GOVERNMENT MUST BUILD SHIPS

Nations at War Protest Against Buying Ships of Their Enemies

We Want New Ships to Develop South American Trade

"It must be done" says Congressman Alexander, our merchant marine must be built up. It is now proposed to BUILD SHIPS instead of buying ships of Germany, Great Britain or France. And Quincy endorses this course.

A special dispatch from Washington to the Monitor says:

For the double purpose of securing ships especially adapted to their trade and avoiding neutrality complications, the United States shipping board provided in the Alexander government ship purchase bill may decide to build ships instead of purchasing them from German, British or French citizens.

The bill, which the President desires to have made effective at the earliest possible date, would constitute the secretaries of the treasury and commerce and the postmaster-general a shipping board under the President's direction, vested with the authority to issue $30,000,000 of Panama canal bonds, and with the proceeds to purchase or construct ships to be operated by a government company.

No restriction is made as to where or how the ships shall be secured. Large numbers of ships hailing from belligerent countries are now tied up in American harbors. With the British navy controlling the seas, German vessels especially are useless to their owners and could be bought, presumably, at reasonable figures. But the informal protests made by the British and French ambassadors against such purchase by the United States government of German ships, and similar protest by the German ambassador against purchase of British and French ships, will cause the President to proceed with caution.

"I think there is no more punctilious citizen of the United States with respect to the neutrality of this country than the President," said William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, on this point. "I think you may safely depend upon it, if this bill is passed and this board is vested with power to act, that power will be exercised in such a way that the neutrality of this country will be preserved. I believe it cannot be successfully disputed by any individual or any nation that this government or any government has a right to buy merchant ships, provided it buys them in good faith and for a neutral purpose, and that is exactly what would be done in this case."

The cabinet members concerned and the President are not saying now what they will do. If they decide to purchase ships the question involved in each instance will have to be settled in accordance with the circumstances. They must deal with specific cases, and cannot lay down a general policy.

While there is nothing in international law, as explained by Mr. McAdoo, to prevent such purchases, there is also nothing to prevent the nations concerned from protesting and thus making friction, and this will be avoided so far as possible. The argument advanced by the ambassadors that such purchases would concert the opponent's idle property into needed cash is thought to be answered by their representations that no objection would be made if such purchases were to be distributed equally among the belligerent countries instead of all the ships bought being German or British. But if there is any likelihood of complications the President may be trusted to take the safe course.

A practical reason for building ships instead of buying those now available is advanced by Representative Joshua Alexander, chairman of the merchant marine committee and author of the bill.

"The trade in which we propose to use these government ships," he said, "will require a certain type of vessel and it may be that we cannot get just what is best adapted to it ready made. The harbors of the west coast of South America, for example, are shallow and most of the freight has to be lightered to and from the shore. Think how useless such great liners as the George Washington would be for this purpose.

"If we build our ships we can make them to order. A man wouldn't think of buying a coat that didn't fit him, just because he could get it at a bargain. Of course it would take time to build ships, but the immediate emergency for ships in the regular trade it past and we want ships to develop new lines of trade, unprofitable at first where others will not go. Then it would promote industry in American shipyards. This is a plan to build up our merchant marine, and whether it is done in this Congress or another, it must be done."

Full of fun of a wholesome nature, is what everybody says of "Along Came Ruth" and just as full of ginger as your grandmother's gingerbread.

ROTARY CLUB AT BANQUET

Ernest W. Campbell Presides and Makes Address

The actual effect of the European war on the present and future business of this section of the country, could not have been more reliably disclosed than at the dinner of the Boston Rotary Club held at Frost & Dearborns, Wednesday evening. This powerful business organization composed of nearly 200 representative business firms has as its members, either a member of the firm or its manager. Only one firm in any line of business is elected, thus forming the most complete asembling of varied industries possible.

Ernest W. Campbell, of Wollaston was the presiding officer and leading speaker of the evening. His remarks concerning the importation of goods from the war zone, the exportation of products to these countries, the inability to obtain material not manufactured here, the question of ener-

ELLSWORTH WADSWORTH

Well Known Quincy People Married in Connecticut

A very quiet wedding was solemnized Wednesday at New Haven, Connecticut, at the home of Henry S. Anderson, the bride being his sister, Mrs. Kate Anderson Wadsworth of Quincy, Mass., and the groom, Dr. Samuel Walker Ellsworth, also of Quincy. Only the immediate families were present at the ceremony which was at one o'clock, Rev. Edward Anderson the bride's father officiating. Miss Sally Betts of Norwalk, Conn., was maid of honor wearing a gown of white charmeuse and net. Dr. Laurence Strong of New York was best man and the bride was given in marriage by her brother Dr. William G. Anderson. The house decorations were pink roses and the bride's bouquet white roses.

An informal reception was held, Colonel Anderson, Mrs. A. A. Ellsworth, Dr. and Mrs. William G. Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Anderson, assisting Dr. and Mrs. Ellsworth in receiving.

Dr. and Mrs. Ellsworth are to spend a few weeks in camp at Megantic, and on their return will reside at the bride's home on Monroe road, Presidents hill, where Colonel Edward Anderson also makes his home with his daughter.

Dr. Ellsworth is prominent in the children's department of the Massachusetts General Hospital, being recognized as an authority and is physician for the X-Ray department of the Boston City Hospital and specialist at the Quincy Hospital. He is the son of the late Rev. A. A. Ellsworth and Mrs. Ellsworth of Russell park, where he has made his home since coming to Quincy.

PORTRAIT STATUES OF THE PRESIDENTS

Should Be Erected on the Grounds of the Church of the Presidents

Quincy the Birthplace of Two Presidents of United States

Since the erection of the bulletin board on the grounds of the First Parish church, and the announcement that early next spring steps were to be taken, not only to regrade the ground but possibly to build a granolithic sidewalk about the church, the question has been asked why public spirited citizens should not take a hand in the changing conditions on this historical spot and see to it that sufficient funds are raised by popular subscription, to place life sized portrait statues on the grounds of Presidents John Adams and President John Quincy Adams.

No city in the union can boast of having been the birthplace of two Presidents of the United States, and it is an honor of which the city might well feel proud.

It is generally known that the remains of these two Presidents repose in sarcophagi beneath the steps of the church, and that mural monuments occupy places on the walls on the interior of the church. It statues were erected on the church grounds, one on the northerly side and one on the southerly side of the church, it would serve to keep alive patriotism, and call attention to the thousands of strangers who visit Quincy every year, that the citizens are proud of the fact that the city has produced two Presidents of these United States and revere their memory..

There is still another reason why this spot should be suitably marked as historic ground, for years ago this spot was known as the training field where soldiers who fought for the independence of the nation were wont to congregate.

On Oct. 11, the First Parish church will celebrate its 275th anniversary, and it would be eminently fitting if on the occasion of this important event, that the first steps might be taken toward the erection as suggested above, of two portrait statues of the two Adamses.

In connection with this it might be

Many people have been praying for the end of the war, but few are reported to be praying for the health of the European kings.

The intelligent voter is now preparing for the duties of citizenship at the fall elections by reading the football news.

Having received a dispatch that the Kaiser had a severe cold, many of our accurate and painstaking editors issued a bulletin that he was dead.

How can Carranza expect to remain in power, when he hasn't given Mexico any war for six weeks.

There is a unanimous agreement that everybody else should contribute liberally to the Red Cross fund for the wounded.

The women's clubs are actively laying out programs of women's work, and carefully avoiding all mention of cooking.

After spending six months attending a dancing class, any one should be able to do the fashionable steps for at least six weeks.

THRIFT IN WAR-TIME.

The remark is frequently made and with good sense, that in the uncertain business outlook now existing, there should be a wholesale effort for more thrift and economy in living expenses. The war is going to destroy billions of loanable capital. The American people will have to take up enormous quantities of their stocks and bonds now held in Europe.

The trouble comes, in putting this idea into practice, that as the prosperity of the country has grown, most people have taken on more costly habits of living. It is easy to let the dimes and dollars slip out into new ways of spending, and triply hard to return to former frugal habits.

For instance, a young man remarked in the hearing of the writer a short time ago, that a man must hold on to a nickel pretty tight, if he made it a practice to black his own boots. In his home city, he said, the business streets were lined with boot-blacking establishments. Few young men in his set condescended any longer to black their own boots.

The young man is apparently getting a salary of about $15 per week. His business demanded that he make a good appearance. He should have his boots polished every day. At five cents each time, that would be over $15 a year. A substantial chunk out of his moderate income.

One such expense may not be of vital moment. But just as soon as people begin to hire others to do what they can equally well do for themselves, they become infected with the contagion of waste and easy spending.

All the money that the people can save will be needed in the next few years to keep the factories, the railroads, and the mines going. It is a time when people in moderate circumstances should cast away false pride. They should feel no shame, even if they do cook their own dinners, and carry their own suitcases when travelling.

WITHDRAWAL ALL ALONG BATTLE LINE

German Armies in France Believed to Be Retreating

BATTLE OF THE AISNE IS PRACTICALLY OVER

Allies Unable to Surround an Army Because Harassed Columns of Invaders Are Strengthened by Reinforcements—Mad Charges of French Drive Kaiser's Troops Back From the Meuse—Wedge Driven In Centre Toward Base Where Germans Feed and Arm Their Troops—Fighting Grows More Intense In Belgium, Where Defenders Valiantly Battle With Invaders—Italy's Attitude

London, Oct. 1.—No doubt exists in London that all the German armies in France have begun to retreat, leaving only enough men upon the battlefront to hold back the allies and to enable the invaders to secure in strength their tremendous fortified positions along the Sambre and Meuse rivers.

The official statements issued in Paris and London do not confirm this except by inference. But the sudden cessation of the vicious assaults by the Germans and the steady progress that is being made by the allies upon both wings makes it impossible to doubt that the battle of the Aisne is practically over.

Every kind of wild rumor is being spread in Paris and London, and although the majority are unworthy of credence, there is unmistakably a basis of fact beneath all the stories descriptive of a German rout.

Not a Real Rout

The setback that the Germans have received is not yet a rout nor is it likely to be turned into one. Reinforcements have come to the rescue of harassed columns in such strength that nowhere has it been possible for the British and French to surround an army. And the defensive works are so much stronger than those held by the Germans after the battle of the Marne that a comparatively small number of men can hold them long enough to enable the main bodies of the troops to retire safely.

Hours after the battle of the Marne was practically decided the French official statements continued to remain conservative and even placed the hostile battle lines far south of the actual locations. Not until the retreat had become effective all along the line was it admitted officially in Paris that von Kluck's army had begun to break under constant attacks three days before.

The same condition appears to prevail today. French cavalry were reported several days ago at Orchies, many miles further to the north and east than any point mentioned in the official statements. Cambrai, said to be the headquarters of General von Boehm, has not been seriously menaced, according to the French ministry of war, but unofficial reports sent out by reliable correspondents place the British forces just outside the town.

Good News Held Back

Everything points to the view that the military chiefs in Paris have much more assuring news than they have yet given out but that they are holding it back for dramatic effect. It will be issued when the withdrawal of the German right and left wings compel the heavily fortified centre to fall back.

All day Wednesday the British and French drove northward and eastward in their efforts to smash through the defense of the German right wing. Gains were made at the point of the bayonet, and although they were never of great length, they were made in more distinct places than on any other day of the fighting. There was not the same ability displayed by the Germans in hurling reinforcements to rescue troops that were in danger of being cut off, evidence that the men left in the trenches were there for the purpose of covering the retreat.

Only once did the invaders attempt one of the wild counter charges that distinguished the fighting from Friday to Monday. At Tracy le Mont, a few miles to the east and slightly to the south of Ribecourt, they made a valliant effort to repeat their success of last week at Noyon. But the assault, although made in great force and continued heroically, was checked with tremendous slaughter by the British and French, who were able to press on for a considerable gain after the force of the German attack had been shattered by the merciless fire of the French artillery.

Routed on the Meuse

On the heights of the Meuse, where the Germans a few days ago were carrying all before them, the French were everywhere triumphant Wednesday. The garrison army that came out of Toul to oppose the invading rush swept northward like a tornado, driving the enemy out of St. Mihiel and regaining the Camp des Romains, the barrier fort that the heavy howitzers had levelled.

Back from the Meuse retreated the Germans, through the valley of the Rupt de Mad and out of Seicheprey, unable to stand against the mad charges of the French troops.

In the centre, where the invading lines are strongest, the French have had some success, especially in driving a wedge toward Juniville, where the Germans have established their great base in France for the feeding and arming of their armies. Juniville is a short distance south of Rethel, through which the invading centre will retreat if the pressure on the wings continues. If Juniville can be seized, the peril of the Germans will be great, as it will be extremely difficult to hurry up sufficient food and ammunition to maintain the great host.

Prince Reported Captured

The report published in the London Times that a Bavarian prince, presumably Crown Prince Ruprecht, commander of the German army that has been besieging the Meuse forts, has been taken prisoner has not been confirmed. It is said, however, that the story is based upon fact and that the Bavarians are making desperate measures to recapture Nomeny, where their leader was seized.

In Belgium the fighting has grown more intense. Fully 150,000 Germans are now engaged there, besieging Antwerp and battling with the valiant little Belgian detachments that have done so much to humble the kaiser's armies. Alost has been retaken by the Germans, who bombarded the town until the houses were in flames, driving out the defenders.

Whether the Germans in Belgium are engaged only with the Belgians or with a French and British force that is trying to cut off retreat from France is one of the mysteries of the war that will remain unexplained until the Germans have actually been forced back into Belgium.

Italy's Attitude

Italy, which has been with difficulty keeping out of the colossal struggle, again seems on the point of throwing its lot in with the allies. If this had not been the case so often before it would be justifiable to prophesy that Austria would be facing another attack within a few days.

It is certain, however, that the Austrian practice of strewing floating mines in the Adriatic, which yesterday caused the loss of an Italian fishing vessel, and which has practically driven Italian fishermen from their familiar waters, has aroused tremendous indignation along the east coast of Italy.

The northern provinces have long been clamoring for a chance to get revenge for past wrongs incurred at the hands of Austria, and it will not be surprising if Rome and Vienna are soon at war. This will automatically precipitate Roumania into the struggle and Austria will then have no frontiers free from attack except those bordering upon Germany.

ITALY READY FOR WAR

Demand Upon Austria Forecasts Her Entry Into the Conflict

Italy has taken what is generally accepted as the first step leading to an open break with Austria. The Italian ambassador at Vienna was instructed to file a protest against the strewing of mines by Austrians in the Adriatic. He was directed to demand that the Austrian government immediately discontinue this practice.

Inasmuch as the mines are the only thing which has permitted the Austrian fleet to remain within the protection of the Pola fortifications, it is not believed that Austria will agree to stop planting them. Then it will be up to Italy to enforce her decree by her army and navy.

In the official statement sent to Vienna, it is pointed out that many Italian fishing vessels have fallen victims to the mines.

CAMPBELL NOT TO RESIGN

Large Campaign Fund Raised for His Campaign

With the same snap and enthusiasm that is characteristic of the man they are supporting, the campaign to be waged in the interest of Chester I. Campbell for mayor opened Wednesday evening in Hancock hall. It was originally planned to devote the evening to a quiet discussion of campaign plans, and the perfecting of a permanent organization, but there was such unbounded enthusiasm that it developed into a rousing rally for Mr. Campbell, and when the finance committee announced its intentions of raising campaign funds more than a thousand dollars was pledged by those present.

It was a sincere, earnest crowd and the general trend of the speakers was to the effect that eevry man present was ready to take off his coat and work hard for the election of Mr. Campbell. A campaign committee was organized with chairmen in every precinct of the city. These gentlemen will in turn appoint a subcommittee that will make canvass of every voter in the city.

Mr. Campbell addressed the crowd and got an uproarious reception. His remarks, which were brief, were warmly applauded especially when he nailed the rumor which has it that he was to withdraw from the contest. "I don't know how such a story got started," said Mr. Campbell," but I want to assure you gentlemen that I will be in the fight until the ballots are counted, and if the enthusiasm and the size of the crowd here tonight is any indication, I will be the next mayor of Quincy.

"Whether or not I am elected I am going to make a clean fight. If it is a case of resorting to cheap, dishonorable, political tricks, in order to win then I will go down in defeat, I intend to conduct this campaign in as business like manner as I would run the city's affairs if I am elected. If you don't want business methods with the highest efficiency in each department then don't vote for me.

"The City of Quincy wants business results, and I know that I can get them. I can't see why a city can't be run on the same business methods of a great corporation. If the same energy honesty, tact and business methods employed in running a great corporation is applied to the affairs of the City of Quincy results are bound to be obtained."

Alexander Falconer was elected permanent chairman of the campaign committee, with S. C. Melville secretary, and W. William Coulson of Atlantic, treasurer. The finance committee includes Delcevare King, Arthur B. Homer and John L. Hamilton.

When the various ward and precinct committees are organized there will be over a hundred men making a personal canvass of the city's vote for Candidate Campbell. In each precint there will be a committee with a precinct captain. These precinct captains elected last night were as follows: Ward One, Delcevare King and Roy Prout; Ward Two, John Henry and Robert Falconer; Ward Three, Alexander Cowe. Ward Four, John Evans; Ward Five, George Taylor and A. R. MacDonald; Ward Six, Edward E. Palmer and Fred Kessler.

Among those noted in the crowd were W. H. Weightman, Arthur B. Homer, A. N. Murray, Dr. C. E. Munroe, W. O. Wellington, C. W. Bailey, Thomas L. A. Musgrave, John F. Mahony, J. W. Hendrie, Delcevare King, Thomas G. Breed, John L. Hamilton, C. L. Gilliatt, Thomas Cotterell, B. H. Bain, J. Carlton Lewis, C. W. Sherburne, J. L. Thayer, A. L. Whitman, Reginald Sprague, H. G. AGREEMENT NOT REACHED

But No Trouble is Anticipated by Street Railway

Today is the day upon which the new agreement adopted by the street car men of the Bay State Street Railway was to go into effect. The employees and company, however, have not as yet fully agreed upon the new schedule, but there will be no labor trouble, as a clause in the present agreement prevents any suspension of work pending a settlement.

Officers of the union are now in conference with the officials of the company, trying to arrive at an agreement, and it is expected that they will solve the question. Whatever way it is settled the new agreement will date back to Oct. 1.

It was also announced at the street railway car barn this morning that everything was running smoothly, and that no trouble was anticipated. Officers of the Company and Union are holding conferences over the new schedule. In case they fail to agree there is a clause which provides for the settlement upon the same plan as the recent threatened trouble on the Boston Elevated was settled, that is by arbitration.

The employees of the railway are no more anxious for trouble than are the officials. Both realize what the results of interrupted street car traffic would mean in case of a strike, and both sides are doing all that is possible to avoid it. It was mainly for this reason that the arbitration clause was inserted in the last agreement.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

The opportunities for education which the people of this century have would have amazed those of past centuries. One of the greatest of these is the free use of books on every known subject, to be had at the public library. Another is the many lectures and courses given by various educational organizations. Concerning these, information may often be found at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Beginning October 8 at the Boston Public Library some well known authorities will speak on various subjects, such as music, art, travel, the theatre, birds, and many others. These lectures are given Thursday evenings at 8 and Sunday afternoons at 3.30 o'clock. They are free, and the notice posted gives the date, the subject, and the lecturer for each time. Other free lectures on the fine arts are those given Sunday afternoons at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Among other notices posted at the library is the bulletin of information concerning shrubs, flowers and trees, which is sent by the Arnold Arboretum.

One may also learn of special courses given at Boston University and of the day and evening courses given at the Clark Shorthand Institute.

Besides the above we would call atention to the circular and catalog of the College of the Spoken Word, in which is given notice of the chance to learn to speak and think in Spanish. Individual instruction is given either at the college or at homes of the students.

The library also has on file catalogs and bulletins of several colleges, academies, and other educational institutions, which are kept in boxes at the end of the magazine case in the Reading Room.

The official paper of the New York city school department, in its last issue, had the following to say in regard to part time schooling.

"Pupils of under years, in the opinion of many of the best supervising authorities are better off with part time instruction than they would be if kept in school a full day's session. They are not suffering from an injustice. Perhaps it would be best for the school authorities to establish a three hour school work day for the youngest children, devoting the other two hours to play.

"Conditions are working to that end and it would be a blessing in disguise if they should succeed.

"The youngest children suffer more from restraint of school life than they do from the injustice of part time. There is no good reason why society should arbitrarily keep young children in school five hours a day at the start, solely because they have reached the school age. Small boys and girls beginning to go to school need opportunity to relax and stretch They quickly weary of their school work. This is a phase of public school administration, which the best supervising authorities believe will regulate itself unless ill-advised writers succeed in befogging the minds of parents and persuade them that they should all clamor for a full school day for all the children."

This editorial voices the best thought on educational matters at the present time. One of the next steps will be the orderly arrangement of the school day so that children of six and seven years of age shall have a day much shorter than five hours, while the day of the young people of 17 and 18 in the high school may be longer.

A school room day of uniform length for all pupils of all ages has little logic to sustain it.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

The Industrial school and the prevocational classes for boys and girls of grammar school age all start with full numbers and as fast as one pupil leaves school for one cause or another there are plenty of applications to fill the vacancies. The boys of the Industrial school find no lack of work to do, in equipping and fitting up the old Adams school to meet their needs. Belts have to be boxed in, benches, cupboards, tool chests and drawing tables made, the building has to be wired for bells and lights and no end of repair and improvement jobs present themselves for attention. The younger boys at the Willard school also find plenty of work of a simpler nature to do as well as a great amount of job printing for the schools.

SEWING COMPULSORY.

One of the requirements for graduation this year for the girls of the eighth grade, as a culmination of their four year course in sewing, is that they shall have completed a dress of simple style and inexpensive material, which will in turn serve as a graduation dress. The work of the year thus serves as a test of proficency and will show the result of the sewing course.

The over crowded condition of the labor market of stenographers and typists at the present time calls attention to the fact that the business colleges and high school commercial courses are equally crowded with new comers pressing on, while the domestic science courses are but moderately popular. The high school has little trouble at anytime in starting those of its graduates who show real ability. To the graduate of moderate or little natural business ability, the outlook is not promising.

NO MORE ANNEXATION

Hyde Park Not Getting Any Improvements

No improvements for three years, since Hyde Park was annexed to Boston, is the subject for resolutions adopted this week by the Business Mens Association of Hyde Park, and shows disgust over annexation.

The association voted that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Mayor and to every member of the City Council, and also requests the co-operation and support of all the citizens of Boston in the accomplishment of these improvements. These are the resolutions:

Whereas, prior to the election and of the city of Boston nearly three years ago, by a popular vote of practically two to one in the other twenty-five wards and only by a small plurality in Hyde Park and

Wheras, prior to the election and since te city government has repeatedly assured us we should have those improvements which we herein enumerate, so far as its actions and influence could secure them, and Wheras, not one of them has been accorded to us during the three years since annexation.

Resolved, That the Business Men's Association of Hyde Park, now insist in the interest of fair play and common justice that the city government of Boston shall give to this community

A new police station.

Proper playgrounds.

New sidewalks in the centre and on the main streets, and the widening of Hyde Park avenue, and shall use its influence to obtain for us

Eighty-cent gas.

Five-cent fare to Boston.

And be it further resolved, That this association asks the co-operation and support of all citizens of Boston in the accomplishment of these improvements which are necessary to our growth and taxable valuation.

KINCAIDE FOR CONGRESS

Quincy Enthusing Over Him Regardless of Party

Col. Henry L. Kincaide, who received the nomination as Progressive candidate for Congressman from the Fourteenth district at the tSate primaries, by the use of stickers, promises to put up a good fight for the election. Two years ago, when Col. Kincaide was a candidate, he made a remarkable run, and had the voters of Quincy exerted themselves a little more he would have been elected.

It would mean considerable to Quincy to have one of its citizens in Congress, which was realized by the voters at the State primaries when they gave Commodore Crane such a handsome vote. Unfortunately Commodore Crane failed of nomination in a three cornered fight.

But Quincy has a candidate in the person of Col. Kincaide, and it is for the interest of every citizen who believes in a bigger and busier Quincy to send him to Congress.

James Bradbury has been playing the part of Israel Putnam Hubbard in "Along Came Ruth" so true to life that he has almost lost his identity. If you find it return it to the box office at Kincaides theatre next Monday.

NEW AMERICANS AT OUR DOORS

Dr. Tupper and Secretary Gold Speak in Quincy

Dr. George W. Tupper of Boston, and Guy C. Gold, secretary of the New American Civic Association of Brockton, discussed the "New American" under the auspices of interested Quincy men of that organization at the Court House Wednesday evening. Both talked at length and were then bombarded with questions.

A. F. Bromley presided, and a committee was appointed to undertake the work of the New American Civic Association in this city, which included H. Gerrish Smith, chairman; Judge Albert E. Avery, Frank Burgess, H. C. Smalley, John D. Mackay, John W. McAnarney, Timothy J. Carey, Joseph Prout, Alexander Falconer, Timothy J. Collins, A. F. Bromley, Alfred Anderson, Rev. J. A. Matheson and Ernest Bizzozero.

He said all came here full of hope, but probably became suspicious after a short time of the conditions on which government continues, but he said in every case where a well directed effort has been made to reach the foreigner through the proper agency they have acquired citizenship.

Mr. Gold spoke of the work of the Brockton branch. He said the "job" was the excuse for the foreigners presence, and the occasion of his remaining. Service to the immigrant must be through a community spirit. The three agencies that touch him at all angles are city government and its departments, philanthropic organizations which includes churches, and industrial agencies.

There are 51 forces touching the life of the foreigner and it would be unfair to any one agency to attempt a development of lines for all must be affiliated. Proper organization means the carrying out of a program which touches the life of the foreigner in every phase.

He said the first sign of the consciousness of their responsibility is when first papers for citizenship are secured. The tendency of the foreigner is to organize, but in Brockton they seek the approval of the association before carrying out the greater part of their programs.

In Brockton, he said, the association had accomplished what was necessary but impossible through different agencies, because they didn't know how to get at it.

The slogan said Mr. Gold should be "Good will is the only asset you cannot overcapitalize."

The purport of the movement is to properly relate the foreigner to the industry he associates with after landing here.

Dr. Tupper, an extensive traveller and student of the physchology of races, said immigration is not a menace for all have overlooked assets. The danger lies in the discontinuance of disassociation. Democracy exists on a basis of mutual trust and that destroyed promotes discord among its people.

Assimilation is not the driving out of the ideas of Old World people they have cherished for ages, it is not even the pouring in of American ideals, but the taking of old ideas and planting them with the new.

The public schools, a factor in assimilation are facing an unprecedented situation, for the foreigner has stolen in so silently in some communities others are unaware of his arrival, and he therefore knows nothing about the benefits that await him with opportunities.

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE MEETING

A large and enthusiastic meeting of real estate men was held in the Board of Trade rooms Wednesday evening to arrange for a Real Estate Exchange for Southeastern Massachusetts.

Representatives were present from Quincy, Braintree, Brockton, Hingham, Weymouth, Hull, Milton and Hyde Park.

It was the unanimous opinion that an organization of real estate men such as proposed would be of immense value. both to the real estate men and to their customers. The speakers were unanimous in endorsing this proposition, and a committee representing the different sections was appointed to outline a plan for organization and report at an early date next week.

SETS NEW RECORD

Manager Connie Mack Wins His Sixth American League Flag

By winning his sixth championship in the American league yesterday, Connie Mack breaks all records for all major circuits for all times. He has proved himself to be the master of all baseball tacticians since the birth of organized baseball in 1876.

Moreover, all of the tall tutor's triumphs were scored in the same league and in the same city. Mack came to Philadelphia in 1901 and since then has won six pennants. This gives the Athletics' chief of staff the baseball supremacy of America.

High Court of Empire State Decrees Against Teacher-Mother

Albany, Oct. 1.—The action of the New York city board of education in dismissing Mrs. Bridget C. Peixotto because she had absented herself from duty as a teacher to give birth to a child is upheld by the court of appeals.

Supreme Court Justice Seabury had granted a writ of mandamus for the reinstatement of Mrs. Peixotto. That action was reversed by the appellate division.

The latter decision is now affirmed by the highest court, with Chief Judge Bartlett and Judge Hogan dissenting.

Chinese Woman In San Francisco Convicted on Slavery Charge

San Francisco, Oct. 1.—The first conviction on record here for keeping a human being in slavery was obtained in the United States district court when Mrs. Wong Sam, a Chinese woman, was found guilty of holding in bondage Loy Gum, a slave girl.

Evidence showed that the girl was smuggled into this country and sold for $3900. After she had worked out this charge she still was held under threats that if she attempted to escae she would be buried alive.

CARRANZA'S TERMS

Will Give Up Mexican Presidency If Other Generals Keep Out

Washington, Oct. 1.—Provisional President Carranza telegraphed the constitutionalists here that he stands ready to give up the presidency if the conference called at Mexico City approves. His only condition is that Villa and the other generals of the army retire.

This telegram from Carranza was very favorably regarded by the constitutionalists, who believe that this will pave the way for a permanent adjustment of the difficulties between the Mexican generals.

MAGNATES OFTEN OVERLOOK STARS

Change of Scene Known to Develop a Player.

SOME SPECIMEN MISTAKES.

Connie Mack Had Joe Jackson Once, but Failed to Hold Him—Connie and Frank Chance Were Both Fooled by Catcher Schang—Clarence Walker Was Turned Loose by Clark Griffith.

Some scribes have singled out Mack of the Athletics as the greatest judge of a ball player in the nation's pastime. Mack may be entitled to this distinction, but his judgment proved faulty on several occasions in his estimate of players who afterward became famous. Mack at one time owned Joe Jackson, the great fielding and slugging outfielder of the Cleveland Naps, but failed to see the diamond in the rough. Later when Jackson attained fame Mack saw his great mistake.

The manager and half owner of the Athletics has been singled out as a lucky baseball man in getting the services of Schang when thirteen clubs had drafts in for that player.

Did Mack see the great prize he had drawn in the draft? Did he recognize Schang as a possible future great—one of the catching wonders of the American league? He did not.

Soon after Mack had drafted Schang he made overtures to Manager Frank Chance of the New York Highlanders to trade Schang for an obscure pitcher highly touted at the time, but who has failed to make good in the big leagues.

Chance, who was said to be a wonder at detecting good playing talent, turned Mack down cold and lost a chance to add one of the best receiving and hitting backstops of the day to his roster in Gotham. All of which goes to show that they all make mistakes.

Mack also today might not own Frank Baker were it not for Charles Herzog, present manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

President Comiskey and his managers of the last five years have been criticised at times for releasing players who have made good on other clubs. Gandil went to the minors and then became the best hitting first sacker in the American league. Rath was traded to Kansas City as part payment for Breton and is today the best all around second baseman in the minor leagues, with an average of .350 at bat.

Yes, it's true that these players have made good on other clubs, but consider the other side of the question. Ray Demmitt was set down as a failure by Hugh Jennings last spring at the Tigers' training camp in the south. Comiskey bought him at the waiver price. Jennings has lamented his mistake on several occasions. Demmitt has proved himself a good fielder, an able hitter in the pinches and one of the greatest throwing outfielders in baseball. Comiskey got him for $2,500 and wouldn't take $30,000 for his bargain.

Eddie Cicotte was sold to the Sox for a few hundred simoleons by the Boston club, where he "couldn't win games." He is a great pitcher for Comiskey on the true basis, that of the earned run, and Commy wouldn't part with Eddie for a small fortune.

Comiskey lost Gandil, but he owns Jack Fournier, a player Boston couldn't use. The Red Sox have needed a good hitting first sacker, but the former owner failed to detect the future successor of Lajoie in the awkward French boy.

Yes, they all fumble a few chances occasionally. Jennings once owned Jimmy Archer and gets mad every time one mentions it. Clark Griffith turned Clarence Walker away as a failure because he had "hands too small" to make good. Those same hands have made Walker the slugging rival of Sam Crawford in the American league. Many other instances could be cited to prove that no one can tell, because there are no fortune tellers or soothsayers in the baseball game. If there were and they could tell a star at first sight they would assemble an unbeatable club and break up the old pastime.

MURPHY HAS RIGHT SYSTEM.

Great Reinsman Purchases Possible Opponents In Races.

Tommy Murphy, that master reinsman, is up to his old tricks—that of purchasing dangerous contenders to make sure his own horse can win, writes Walter E. Hapgood in the Boston Herald. He bought Belvasia from the Cox estate not so many years ago in order to clear the way for R. T. C. to win more money than had ever been cleaned up by a trotter in a single season. And now he has purchased another Cox trained, Boston owned horse in Peter Scott, fearing that Peter might prove too fast for his own Lassie McGregor in this season's big trotting stakes.

With every one of his patrons a millionaire—at least that is the generally accepted story in the grand circuit—Murphy has the means at his disposal to legitimately eliminate the opposition, where a less favored trainer must go out and fight it from wire to wire. It may not be the highest type of sportsmanship, but it all helps to keep the Poughkeepsie teamster at the top of the list of winning drivers.

Tent 32 D. of V. held a sewing bee and supper preceding their last meeting.

An entertainment was given in the First Baptist vestry Tuesday evening for the benefit of the Baptist Bible fund. There were readings by Miss Leslie Sweet, piano trios by Misses Helen Pray, Catherine Davenport and Hazel Hollis; soprano solos by Mrs. Maud Jordan; piano solos by Miss Ruth Harper and an address on "The Bible" by James Robinson.

The prompt arrival and action of the volunteer fire company of the A. A. C. Co., (Bradley's Fertilizer Co.) with two lines of hose and chemical extinguishers, averted what might have proved a serious conflagration when Box 13 sounded at 3.29 P. M. Tuesday for fire in a cottage at Rose Cliff owned and occupied during the summer season by Percy D. Roarty of Brockton. The garage in the rear of the cottage of J. A. Roarty, next door, was saved only by great effort. Combination 3 made the run in eight minutes and Ward One apparatus made good time.

The Pond Plain Improvement Association Auxiliary held its first meeting at Association hall, South Weymouth Wednesday with Mrs. William Fottler presiding. A gentlemen's night will be held Hallowe'en in charge of Mrs. Henry Brown. Mrs. Proctor will have charge of a series of whist parties. The company was entertained with readings by Mrs. H. A. Davis and solos by Miss Annie Deane.

The committees appointed for the ensuing year by S. G. Dunbar, president of the Universalist Men's Club are: Committee on speakers—Frank H. Torrey, Edwin R. Sampson, Peter K. Nisbet; Membership—C. Edgar Stiles, Henry F. Clapp, John Taylor; entertainment A. W. Gardner, C. C. Howland, I. W. Morgan, George Ames and J. Herbert Libbey. Meetings will be held the fourth Monday of each month until June.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Selectmen held Monday evening permission was given the Weymouth Art Leather Co., to move a building from Water to East street. A special town meeting will be held Oct. 14, to consider matters to be brought before the citizens by the Water Commissioners. Mrs. Kate Pierce Thayer, as a representative of the Monday and Old Colony Clubs, submitted program of three orchestral concerts and three lectures to be given in various parts of the town during the winter with free admission. The income from the Tufts fund will pay the expenses. The Board will decide the dates and places of entertainments Arthur H. getic action on our part to either manufacture the identical article ourselves or invent a substitute, and a call to be optimistic and inaugurate entirely new industries for American, stamping them at the close of the war "Made in U. S. A."—not the reverse motto as has been our custom—met with hearty response and enthusiasm, and formed the central topic of succeeding speeches.

The general effect of the war on the Shoe and Leather trade was explained by Mr. Wilson of the Wilson Shoe Co. He was followed by Mr. Willcockson of the Loose Wiles Biscuit Co., Mr. Young of J. L. Hammett Co. School Supplies, Mr. Blackman for paper twine and burlap, Edwin C. Miller of H. F. Miller Piano Company, L. S. Winchenbaugh for fine papers, A. N. Hatch of Hatch Co. rugs, and others, all disclosing many most interesting and hitherto unpublished and in fact unobtainable items of interest, showing how closely the business life of nations are dependent one on the other.

All expressed, however the utmost confidence in the points especially emphasized by Mr. Campbell, that where chemicals, dyes etc., were actually unobtainable in this country, the inventive genius here would eventually produce a substitute, necessarily at a greater cost at first, but reduced as plants were established. If capital could be advanced to establish them, and not hoarded up just now when, if ever, American enterpris should be encouraged in these new departures, the results would be almost immediate.

Emergencies like these, produce not only men but the goods. A large attendance and lively business feeling was in evidence throughout the evening and the theme was the most interesting ever discussed at the Club.

GERMAN ATTACK IS FRUSTRATED

Hurled Back by Russians and Now In Full Retreat

MARCHING ONWARD IN GALICIA

Reorganization of Lemberg and East Galicia Will Be Based on Russian Ideals—Governor General Introduces Russian Language—Austrian Crown Prince In Command at Cracow

Petrograd, Oct. 1.—That the German offensive against the defenses of the Nieman river has been completely frustrated and that the Germans are now in complete retreat in Suwalki province was officially announced.

It was stated that the Germans had failed in their attempt to capture the roads leading through the forests of the Nieman and that they were now being pushed backward at every point.

The fighting was especially desperate in the vicinity of Ossowetz, Druskeniki and Augustowo. The objective of the Germans was the northern outlet to the forests in that section and they were also anxious to get across the Niemen river to retake Grodno, from which they were driven.

In an address to his army, General Rennenkampf is quoted as declaring the Russians will be in Berlin for Christmas and that, therefore, the troops can easily meet the present hardships and campaigning through heavy rains, with expectations of good times to come.

Meanwhile the onward march of the Russians through Galicia is declared to be proceeding uninterruptedly in two parallel lines. The Austrian resistance is declared to be already so badly broken that the troops of the dual empire seem unable to make a decided stand. It is not believed they will give battle until Cracow is reached. The Austrian crown prince, Archduke Charles Francis Joseph, is reported to have reached Cracow and to have taken command of that post.

Russia Governs Galicia

Dispatches from Lemberg, Galicia, declare that all the prominent Austrian provincial and city officials, together with the judges, the archbishops of all the churches and the rabbis, attended the establishment of Russian civil government over eastern Galicia and the assumption of the office of governor-general by Count Bobrinsky.

M. Rutovsky, mayor of Lemberg, in formally surrendering the government, spoke in Polish, and said:

"Not without our co-operation have the Austro-Hungarian troops left Lemberg without firing a shot. There was no struggle here, thanks to our efforts. We believe your excellency has been informed that your troops found here co-operation and a cordial reception. In proffering the government of this capital allow me to express my gratitude to the former military governor, who lessened our hardships."

Count Bobrinsky replied in Russian. After thanking the mayor for keeping order in the town, he said:

"I think it necessary to acquaint you with the leading principles of my policy. I consider Lemberg and East Galicia the real origin of Great Russia, since the original population was Russian. The reorganization will be based on Russian ideals. We will immediately introduce the Russian language and Russian customs.

"These steps will be taken with the necessary care. We shall at first limit this to the appointment of Russian governors and other officials. Many of the present executives will not be replaced. We shall forbid the convocation of your legislature during the war. All social and political organizations must be discontinued and may resume their activities only by permission. These precepts obtain only in East Galicia; West Galicia will be treated differently."

Among the remarkable war trophies arriving at Smolensk is the entire herd of Emperor William's famous pedigree cattle and stud of horses, captured by the Russians from the emperor's estate at Rominten in East Prussia. They were taken to Moscow and presented to the Russian agricultural institute for distribution to agricultural breeding associations.

SERBS OCCUPY SEMLIN

Austrians Unable to Resist Series of Desperate Bayonet Charges

It is officially announced at Nish that the Servians have reoccupied Semlin, on the north side of the Save river in Slavonia, from which they were driven a fortnight ago by an Austrian army.

The armies of the Servian crown prince are declared to have taken the Austrian fortifications in a series of desperate bayonet charges in which many Austrians were killed and wounded.

The Servians are now pursuing the defeated Austrians and the siege of Belgrade will soon be raised.

Girl Students Flee in Nighties

Livingston, Ala., Oct. 1.—Two hundred and fifty girl students and teachers fled in their night clothes when fire destroyed the main dormitory of the Alabama normal college here.

Reporting a Hurricane

By F. A. MITCHEL

There is a town in Florida that some years ago was the scene of a rivalry between two newspapers. The field was barely large enough for one journal, the Chronicle, which had occupied it ever since Joe Baxter established it during the last century. When Baxter died his son, Captain Joe, Jr., carried it on. But the captain had been in the Confederate army during the war between the states and received a wound that had crippled him for life. The girl he had left behind him, however, was true to him and married him in a hospital after the surrender.

Joe was fitted to perform the indoor work connected with a newspaper, but was not able to do much getting about gathering news. Mrs. Joe did a good deal of that, and, having many friends, she was kept well posted on the social news, which is important to any newspaper. She and Joe managed to keep the wolf from the door till Philip Stringer came from New Orleans, looked the place over and determined that there might be room enough for two papers.

The truth is that the place was beginning to fill up with northern visitors during the winter, and the more people the more chance for a newspaper. But the special inducement was that Joe's physical handicap kept him from getting about to gather in the news, and Stringer calculated to get ahead of him in this respect every time. Besides, Springer, having been connected with a New Orleans paper, believed he knew better how to cater to city people than did Baxter.

So the Gazette was established and, being the more enterprising of the two papers, got most of the new subscribers and advertisers, the old residents standing by the Chronicle. But the new was more valuable than the old, and the former was constantly eating into the latter till it looked as if the Baxters would soon have to discontinue their paper.

One morning Molly Baxter, after having cleaned up the breakfast dishes and sent the children to school, reported at the office to find Joe very gloomy.

"The weather bureau reports a hurricane coming up from the West Indies and says that it will probably reach our coast today. If it should be here I ought to go to the coast and write a description of it. But I can feel the storm in my wound now, and it takes all the starch out of me. Stringer will be there and will write it up with all the grandiloquence of which he is capable."

"You stay where you are. I know how bad weather affects you. I'll do what work is to be done here between now and 11 o'clock, go home and get the dinner ready for you and the children, and I will take the 2 o'clock train for the coast."

As the afternoon train neared its terminal on the coast on passing between two hills it was struck by a gust of wind that lifted it clear off the track. Molly Baxter was on it and considerably bruised. She thought of how Joe, when he was wounded in Pickett's charge at Gettysburg, got up and went on till he was driven back with the rest by a murderous fire, and, pulling herself together, she forced her way against what wind there was on the lee side of a hill facing the ocean to the top and found herself in the corner of a stone wall, where she was perfectly protected and with her eyes just above it saw one of the biggest storms that have ever visited the Atlantic coast. She did not have writing materials with her, for she would not have been able to use them, but she had a fine memory and stacked it with numerous details. She saw the waves envelop the town below, its shrieking citizens climb the hills, one ship riding at anchor buried by a huge billow and then lifted over a dock and landed up among the houses. These and many more things as terrible she saw and crammed them all down in the storehouse of her memory.

When she had got enough the problem was to get back home with it. About dusk the wind went down inland enough to admit of a vehicle not being blown over, and, hiring a farmer to take her in his wagon, she reached the Chronicle office about 11 o'clock, where she found her husband anxiously waiting for her. Assured of her safety, he gave her copy paper and a pencil and prepared to set up what she wrote. At 2 o'clock the next morning she had finished her description and helped him set up the last column.

When the Chronicle and the Gazette came out those who read the Chronicle account remarked, "What a big storm that was!" Those who read the Gazette said, "That storm has given Stringer a chance to spread himself." A correspondent of a northern paper who had not seen the storm, but saw Molly Baxter's account of it, telegraphed it verbatim to his paper. A message came back:

"Who wrote that description of the hurricane?"

The reply stated that it was written by Mrs. Baxter, wife of the owner of the —— Chronicle.

The next mail brought Molly Baxter an offer of $3,000 a year as special correspondent for a northern newspaper to cover such places as would interest the northern public. She accepted it, but she and Joe kept the Chronicle, for Molly's storm work turned the tide against Springer, and he sold out to them for a song.

ONE VOTE SHORT ON JOINT BALLOT

Democrats Win Lower Branch of Maine Legislature

REPUBLICANS CONTROL SENATE

Official Returns of State Election Show Close Contest For Auditor, In Which Republican Incumbent Was Defeated—Public Utilities Act Goes Into Effect at End of Month

Augusta, Me., Oct. 1.—The tabulation of the official returns of the state election, except those for governor, has been completed and the committee made its report at the monthly meeting of the governor and council. The official returns of the vote for governor go to the legislature.

The results of the tabulation do not differ from the early newspaper reports. Congressmen Hinds, Peters, Guernsey, Republicans, and McGillicuddy, Democrat, were re-elected.

State Auditor Callahan of Lewiston, a Republican, was defeated by 472 votes by J. E. Sullivan of Bangor, a Democrat, the vote being 60,451 for Callahan and 60,923 for Sullivan.

The public utilities act was approved by a vote of 67,365 to 37,008.

The returns on the election of members of the legislature indicate there will be seventeen Republicans and fourteen Democrats in the senate and eventy Republicans, seventy-seven Democrats and four Progressives in the house. This would give the Republicans eighty-seven, the Progressives four and the Democrats ninety-one on a joint ballot, the Democrats being one vote short of a majority.

The report of the committee on elections was presented and accepted. It did not include the results for state auditor on account of the close vote and the examination of ballots now in progress.

A proclamation declaring that a majority of the voters in the referendum on the public utilities act were in favor of its adoption was issued by Governor Haines.

The new law, which was passed at the last session of the legislature, will go into effect on Oct. 30. It creates a commission which will have control of all public utilities in the state.

TRADING STAMP DECISION

Merchants Not Obliged to Use Those of Any One Concern

Boston, Oct. 1.—Merchants who use "legal" stamps should be permitted to use any other trading stamps they wish, in the opinion of Franklin P. Hammond, master in the case of the Merchants' Legal Stamp company against the People's Cash Stamp company and William H. Murphy, general manager of the latter company.

Judge Wait of the superior court confirmed the master's report, which declares that the contracts of the Merchants' Legal Stamp company with merchants, prohibiting the use of other stamps than the "legal" stamps, are against public policy, illegal and void.

ROBBERY HIS MOTIVE

Prisoner Admits Murdering Girl Who Recognized Him

Akron, O., Oct. 1.—Sullenly refusing to add to his signed confession that he murdered 23-year-old Vinnie Becker, mission worker, Harry Boomer prepared to tell his story to the grand jury.

Boomer, the police say, told how he entered a tea store, where Vinnie Becker was the clerk, proposing to rob the place. She recognized him and he struck her down. Then he finished the murder with a hatchet, and fled with $62, the contents of the cash register.

HUB'S NEW POSTMASTER

Mansfield Relinquishes Office to Ex-Congressman Murray

Boston, Oct. 1.—William F. Murray, congressman up to yesterday, has become postmaster of Boston. Just at midnight last night he handed Postmaster Mansfield a receipt for all the money and stamps that are turned over to him with the office.

There are approximately $2,000,000 worth of stamps and $700,000 worth of postal supplies in addition to the money order funds. The postmaster's salary is $8000 a year. Edward Mansfield has been postmaster for six years.

MURDERER IS PARDONED

Has Served Thirty-Two Years In Maine State Prison

Augusta, Me., Oct. 1.—An unconditional pardon was granted by the governor and council to Charles W. G. Smith, who has served thirty-two years of a life sentence for murder.

Smith killed his mother-in-law, Mrs. Robbins, and his young son after shooting but not fatally wounding his wife at their home in Warren. His wife had told him she intended to leave him.

Unhappy Marriages.

The reason why so few marriages are happy is because young ladies spend their time in making nets and not in making cages.—Jonathan Swift.

Kitchen Kinks

Intelligent Use of Butter.

It is almost universally admitted that vegetables require the addition of fat in order that they may be at their best, and there is no fat which is so suitable as butter for the majority of vegetables, judged by the character of the dish and also by its flavor.

Some housekeepers have a way of looking upon the use of butter, milk and cream in the preparation of vegetables, soups and sauces as if these ingredients were simply "luxuries" and not food essentials. But it should be remembered that these articles are valuable foods and naturally increase the food value of the dish of which they form a part. They are all wholesome foods, and, although generally more expensive than the vegetable foods with which they are combined, their use in reasonable quantities is certainly to be recommended.

Increasing the cost of the dish by the free use of butter, cream, etc., may, after all, be economy if the increase is intelligently made, and the vegetable soups and purees made richer as well as more appetizing by the addition of butter or cream combined with smaller quantities of meat.

Preserved Ginger.

Those people who like it should keep a few jars of preserved ginger on hand. Now is the time to buy the ginger root. Young roots are put into a vessel and kept at the scalding point until tender, when they should be peeled in cold water. Make a thin sirup and pour it over the ginger and allow it to remain for five days. Then place the ginger in the jars for keeping and enrich the sirup by the addition of sugar. Boil thoroughly and pour over the ginger. It is then ready for sealing.

Ginger pears are novel. The pears should be ripe. Peel them and remove the cores, then cut into thin slices. To every four pounds of pears allow the juice of two large lemons, three and one-half pounds of sugar, four ounces of ginger root shaved fine and one gill of water. Dissolve the sugar, then drop in the pears, ginger and lemon juice and cook for an hour very slowly. Place in the cans and seal when hot.

Blanched Vegetables.

Green string beans, onions, full grown lima beans and other green garden vegetables are made more delicate and palatable for many by blanching them, to remove the strong or acrid flavor, before cooking them. This is done by dropping the prepared vegetables into a saucepan well filled with boiling water and salted, immediately brought back to boiling point and boiled continuously from five to twenty minutes, according to the kind and condition of the vegetable.

The cover, if used at all, should only partially cover the saucepan. The blanched vegetables must not stand in this water. If not convenient to finish cooking them at once, drain them from the hot water, throw into cold water to cool at once; then drain again and set in a cool place covered with a piece of cheesecloth until ready to finish the cooking.

Fruit Sirups.

To make fruit sirups boil the fruit till soft and let it drip through a jelly bag. Put juice in a preserving kettle, boil and skim it, add a pint of sugar to each quart of juice, boil it five minutes, and skim. Have ready bottles sterilized by putting them in cool water brought to a boil. Fill them with the sirup and stand them in pans of water in the oven for ten minutes. Have boiling juice ready, fill the bottles, put in corks that have been in boiling water, and coat the corks with paraffin. Stand the bottles where no draft can strike them till cool; keep them in a cool, dark place.

Dutch Butter Cakes.

Dutch butter cakes are delicious. They are made as follows: Take one-half pound butter, three cupfuls flour, one-half pound brown sugar, a heaping teaspoonful baking powder, one-fourth pound sweet almonds and yolk of one egg, cut into small pieces. Mix butter and sugar until soft; add all other ingredients, mix thoroughly with hands until they stick together; form into cakes and brush each with white of egg. Bake in very hot oven; not too brown, as otherwise butter becomes too dry.

How to Can Beets.

Wash young beets, and leave on an inch of the stems. Boil them till tender, drop them in cold water then rub off the skin, pack them tightly in jars, set these on a rack, fill the jars to overflowing with boiling water, and add a teaspoonful of salt to each jar. Put on rubbers and covers loosely, set the jars in a kettle of water that partly covers them, and boil them for three-quarters of an hour. Then tighten the covers and let them cool in the kettle. Carrots may be canned in the same way.

Crisp Cabbage.

To treat cabbage in order to have it retain all its fresh, crisp, clean qualities for a long time, strip off the root and old outside leaves clear down to a compact head. Take two or three thicknesses of clean newspapers and wrap each cabbage in a tight, neat little bundle. Place in a box or barrel.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE CAST

Quincy to Have Exact Reproduction of Comedy

That there are a few knockers left in Quincy is evident from the rumors on the street like these:

"The Kincaide players could not present such a comedy as 'Along Came Ruth!"

"The stage of the Kincaide Theatre is not large enough!"

"A New York Company like the Along Came Ruth Company would not come to a small town."

In the words of Col. Bradford, "Say CITY you old fossils! Wake up and realize that there is a new era in Quincy! That most everybody is now a Booster! Get on the band wagon.

The following letter will show that Florence Shirley, who has the title role at the Plymouth, is coming:

"Boston, Sept. 28,1914.

"My Dear Mrs. Hamilton:

"Just a line to tell you what a delightful time I had Sunday. I want to thank you and Mr. Hamilton again and again.

"I hear we are to play in Quincy Monday night. I can't understand how it was all arranged so quickly. However needless to say, I am delighted.

"I will bring your sweater out to the house before the play if there is time.

"Thanking you again for the delightful Sunday I had, I am sincerely (Signed "Florence Shirley."

"P. S.—Kiss Janet for me."

Yes, the $1000 contract with Henry W. Savage's Along Came Ruth Company of New York calls for exactly the same cast as at the Plymouth Theatre in Boston; exactly the same scenery; and all the properties used in New York and Boston. The comedy will not be given by the Kincaide players, or under the management of the Kincaide Theatre. Paul Davis, the business representative of the Along Came Ruth Company, assures the Daily Ledger that the Kincaide Theatre stage is large enough and admirable for the production. Other members of the executive staff for Henry W. Savage have also been in Quincy and looked over the theattre, including:

Stage Carpenter, Joseph Willoughby
Master of Properties, John H. McSmith.
Electrician, William Watson

It is not surprising that some have almost lost their breath because of the announcement extra ordinary, that Quincy is to have such a grand treat. Hundreds of Quincy people who have seen the comedy in Boston are to see the Quincy production next Monday evening, and if everybody who wants to see it is able to purchase a ticket they will be lucky. Already there has been a tremendous call for tickets at the box office at the theatre, and all the tickets at 50 cents, $1 and $1.50 will be sold before Saturday night. It may be possible to get a few of the 25 cent tickets on Monday.

Miss Shirley says she could not understand how it was all arranged so quickly, but it is an example of how President Hamilton and the Quincy Board of Trade do business. Certainly the merchants and business men of Quincy will back the Board of Trade in this effort to BOOST Quincy. It is in no sense to make money, for the only way the Board can come out whole is to sell every seat at the theatre.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

Miss Clara Barrie of Whitwell street has gone to New York to spend three weeks.

Arrangements will be made for the parking of autos for all who attend the Board of Trade play Monday evening, "Along Came Ruth" at the Kincaide Theatre.

Among the offenders against the automobile law fined $5 each in the Dorchester court Wednesday were Harison Gamble and Frank L. Anderson of Quincy.

The question has been asked as to the date of the City caucuses. Under the laws the city caucus comes a week from the date of the State election. That is the city caucuses will be held Tuesday, Nov. 10.

The annual election of officers of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus will take place at its regular meeting in Colonial hall this evening. Grand Knight William A. Carey announced last meeting he was not a candidate for re-election.

The Quincy Women's Club is cooperating with the Board of Trade in the sale of tickets for "Along Came Ruth." Action was taken at a meeting of the executive committee this morning, and a canvass was started immediately.

Harry Johnson of Adams Shore, whose arm was amputated at the Quincy City Hospital as the result of the accidental discharge of a gun, is resting comfortably, and surgeons believe he will be able to leave that institution within three weeks.

The Assessors are holding their semi-weekly meeting today, and as was the case last Monday, it was necessary for them to met in the Council Chamber, as their office was too small to accommodate the number of citizens who desired to see them about having their tax assessments reduced.

The football team of Quincy High school meets the strong aggregation from the Rindge Manual Training School of Cambridge at the Merrymount oval Friday afternoon. The student body plan to appear and lend all its moral support to the players. DiSenso since his 65 yeard run at Newton has been the little hero of the hour. All admit now that the efforts of the others to reach the standard he set resulted in better team work.

W. H. VAUGHN REINSTATED

Back Again as Keeper of the Almshouse

It was moving day today at the Quincy Home, for this morning bright and early William H. Vaughn moved back to the home from which he was removed last April, and William Campbell and family moved out. There was no music or display of fireworks when the change was made. In fact there was no ceremony of any kind, Mr. Vaughn simply went to the Home and took up the reins of government, and Mr. Campbell moved out.

The River and Harbor bill has been passed and is now before President Wilson. The bill carries a general appropriation of $20,000,000 for continuing present projects in the discretion of the army engineers.

Mrs. Eugenie Turgeon Crawford, a nurse of Wollaston, and Charles Herbert Prescott, a prominent business man of Rochester, N. H., were the contracting parties in a very pretty church wedding in that town on Monday evening, September 28. The marriage was solemnized by Rev. Frank S. Hartley of the Rochester Baptist church. Mrs. Prescott will make her home in Rochester, N. H. and will be glad to welcome her friends after November first.

One Wollaston citizen quickly formed his opinion of the Assessors when he got his tax bill and found his valuation had been jumped to the tune of about $10.000.

The bowling league of the Wollaston Tennis Club, consisting of 10 teams rolls its first matches at the Coliseum alleys next Wednesday evening. Their schedule extends over a period of 22 weeks. In their lineup will be some of the best bowlers of the city. Arrangements will be made at the close of the season to have a representation of the Tennis league roll for the all city championship against the pick of Fore River. Clan MacGregor and Knights of Columbus leagues, the latter as yet unorganized.

Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook gave a piano and voice recital at her home on Holbrook road, Bellevue Park, on Wednesday evening. The recital was given for the parents and friends of Miss Holbrook's pupils. Upon request Carl Hopkins of Norfolk Downs sang "The Rosary" and "I Hear You Calling Me," by Marshall. At the end of the program punch and fancy cakes were served. Miss Eldiene Young of Atlantic presided at the punch bowl.

At a meeting held this week by the Ladies of the Wollaston Methodist Episcopal church Mrs. Joseph A. Sedgwick was unanimously elected president of the Ladies' Aid to succeed Mrs. George Crothers who has resigned on account of ill health.

Mr. Sereno Ayers and family have moved from Bellevue Park to their own house on Rawson road, Norfolk Downs.

The annual meeting of the Rand Class was held Wednesday evening in the vestry of the Wollaston Baptist church, preceded by a lobster supper to which those present did ample justice. The supper was prepared and served by William Bullock, Nathan Drew and George Drew, assisted by Mrs. George Drew, Miss Eleanor Dunn.

The president, Charles Roach, presided at the business meeting, and the reports of the Secretary and committees for the year showed the class to be in a flourishing condition, and doing good work. The following list of officers were unanimously elected for the coming year:

President,—William Bullock.
Vice President,—Harold Thomas.
Secretary,—George Drew.
Treasurer,—Chester Barlow.
Membership Committee,—Edward Bullock. Stuart Walther and Arthur Axberg.
Devotional committee,— Charles Roach, Will Talbot and J. H. Hill.
Social committee,—Harold Neal, Percy Foss and James Cahill.
Athletic committee,—Earl Church, John Cahill and Murray McLeod.
Teacher,—J. A. Sparrow.
Assistant teacher,—A. J. Luxton.

The officers and committees are all hustlers, and there will be things doing in the Class the coming year. All young men not connected with other classes are cordially invited to attend the class and are assured of a cordial welcome. After the business meeting the class listened to an interesting and inspiring address by Rev. C. C. Tilley of Quincy South on "The value of men's classes."

PORTRAIT STATUES

added that it would not be necessary to go outside of Quincy to have the statues cut, for work of this kind is being cut daily in some of the granite yards of the city. This is notably true of the yard of Frederick Barnicoat, who makes a specialty of carving portrait statues in granite.

Then again Quincy has the granite of which the pedestals could be made and while carved work is usually done in Westerly granite, some very fine specimens of carved work in Quincy granite have been turned out in Quincy.

The Daily Ledger invites at this time the co-operation of the public citizens of Quincy in this project and would be glad for a public expression of their ideas in relation to the same.

QUINCY ATLANTIC

A meeting of Ward 6 Democratic Committee was held at the home of the Secretary on Wednesday evening. Nearly all of the 20 members were present. The work of the Committee was laid out for the coming State election and everybody was enthusiastic. The matter of resignation was gone into, and work in all sections of the ward laid out. Daniel Corcoran attended and spoke, at length of the coming State election and is confident of success.

The committee had the pleasure of meeting Edward J. Fegan, the Candidate for Mayor. They were pleased at his ability and ideas as regards registration and advice toward the work at the coming State election, and his desire to get out a large vote for State officers.

The Committee selected the following gentlemen to run for city council —from Ward Six: John J. Cusick, of 1 Edwin street, Philip R Guinan of 15 Pierce street, and Lewis A. Twitchell of 35 Newbury avenue.

The Ward Committee are out to work hard and hustle this fall and make Ward Six Democratic.

Rev. Thomas W. Davison of the Memorial church was the officiating clergyman at the wedding of Carleton L. Reed and Miss Alice Frances Freeman at Everett on Tuesday evening.

RECEPTION AT ATLANTIC

A large number of the members and congregation of Memorial church turned out at the annual reception and reunion of the Church and parish members Wednesday evening.

An excellent musical program was rendered by Mrs. Mabel Lincoln of Boston and Mr. David Beckford of West Roxbury. Miss Hazel C. Davison was accompanist.

After the program the audience was invited to the vestry where lunch was served, and a social time enjoyed.

Rev. T. W. Davison gave a brief talk on the work of the church, and the activities Memorial church is carrying on. He paid a tribute to Deacon B. F. Thomas and his appreciation of Mr. Thomas' orthodoxy in this age of unrest.

Mrs. Isabel Smith and Mrs. L. T. Gurney were the committee in charge, and were ably assisted by Mrs. William F. Cummings, Mrs. C. A. Stearns Mrs. Fred Osgood, Mrs. William F. Davy, and a number of the young ladies who acted as ushers.

Mrs. John Hill of Farrington street is in the Hospital threatened with pneumonia.

The registrars of Voters met in Ward Four Wednesday night and aded 31 names to the voting lists. Of this number one was from Ward One, one from Ward Three, and 29 from Ward Four.

Lively times are promised for the members of the St. Mary's C. T. A. & M. R. Society, for in addition to a reorganization of the bowling league, plans are underway for the opening of a member's tournament. These affairs were great successes last season and resulted in several records being established, the most conspicuous being the over 1600 team total of one of the bowling teams.

John Casey and family, who summered at Houghs Neck, have returned to their home at Miller and Copeland streets.

Henry Sandberg of Cambridge will spend the week-end with his parents, Representative and Mrs. Edward J. Sandberg of Buckley street.

Patrolman Jeremiah Hinchon, who is in a Boston Hospital recovering from a slight operation, is reported as recovering rapidly.

The members of the Finnish Socialist Society will be given special instruction this winter in civil government with the view of teaching them how to become better Americanized. Fellow countrymen who are not affiliated with the society will reopen their civil government classes within a few weeks, and at midwinter the examiners will hold a special session to pass on the qualifications of a class of 60 for citizenship.

The entertainment committee of the Copeland club is arranging the season program which will include whist and forty-five parties and a dance.

Ave Maria council, Knights of Columbus, is about to open its winter season program. Guest nights, when visiting brothers will be entertained will be held bi-weekly and lectures by men prominent in public life and in the order will be the speakers at regular meetings.

Councilman Daniel T. Corcoran, candidate for representative in the sixth Norfolk district, will hold an open air rally at Cross and Copeland streets tonight.

FIRE HAZARD LAWS IN EFFECT

Keepers of Gasolene and Paints Under New Regulations

The new fire hazard law goes into effect today, and trouble commences for parties who keep paints, oils, gasulene, etc. When Chief Whitney was made Acting Fire Hazard Commissioner he made certain rules, one of which was that all powers of City Councils relative to granting licenses to keep and sell gasolene were taken from the city. Under the old rule the City Council had to give a hearing and the permission it granted after the hearing was subject to the approval of the chief of the district police.

The acting commissioner overturned this, but Commissioner O'Keefe has put that rule back in force again, the only change being that final approval of the grant of the City Council shall be by the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department who has been appointed a deputy commissioner.

Chief Billings under his appointment has been given a lot of work to do in the way of inspecting buildings, and it will require all of his spare time.

Chief Billings said this morning that his men are daily inspecting business places about the city, and that there is not a day but what they find several hundred gallons of gasolene which is being kept contrary to the law. Under the new rules a person who has a gasolene stove may keep a couple of quarts of the fluid on hand, but any amount over that up to 10 gallons may be kept without a permit although it must be buried. If over ten gallons is kept, which is frequently the case of parties owing two or more automobiles, a license must be obtained after a hearing by the City Council.

Another clause which will hit Quincy business men, is that in relation to keeping of paints and oils, for under the new ruling, all such paints and oils must be kept in a fire proof room.

When the Chief finds a cellar where rubbish has accumulated, he notifies the owner in writing that it must be cleaned, and the party is given so long a time to do it in. If he does not comply with this order the cellar is cleaned and the cost charged to the owner.

ALONG CAME KINCAIDE AND HIS THEATRE

And Board of Trade Did the Rest to Bring "Along Came Ruth"

Already City is On Qui Vive--See "Ads" Today

Of course everybody knows by this time that "Along Came Ruth" is coming to Quincy and are planning to go to Kincaide Theatre next Monday evening. However one should not overlook the fact that Quincy has an enterprising business man, and it might well be said "Along came Kincaide with his theatre" for without Kincaide, he with the title of Colonel it would have been impossible to have produced the play in this city. Although Quincy has numerous public halls, none outside of this theatre are fitted for the production of "Along Came Ruth."

To the enterprise of Col. Kincaide, whose foresight, prompted him to erect the theatre building, might be added the energy of the Quincy Board of Trade, who stand back of the production. Of course the main object of the Board of Trade, as everybody know, is to "talk Quincy, work for Quincy," and do anything else that

MURDER ATTEMPTED AND SUICIDE FOLLOWS

Mrs. Tom Bradbury Was Shot At But Escaped Uninjured Her Husband Dead

Tradgedy Took Place at Spear Street House This Morning

Tom Bradbury, 27 years, who has been the mechanic for Thurston the magician the past summer, and a well known man in theatrical circles, fired a revolver at his wife as she stood in the kitchen of a lodging house at 6 Spear street at 10 o'clock this morning and then shot himself through the head. Death was probably instantaneous.

The shooting is said to have followed a series of threats Bradbury has made since he joined his wife on Friday, after an absence of several months. According to people in the house he had an ungovernable temper, and probably acted while temporarily insane.

His wife was standing in the kitchen of her home when Bradbury quietly entered, and without warning fired from behind. The bullet passed over her left shoulder, slightly burnt her clothing, and went through a window. She quickly turned, but not in time to prevent him from taking his own life.

Bradbury came from Leicester Eng., last December, worked at the shipyard a few months and later was booked with Thurston. Last June his wife and three year old daughter came to Quincy, and have since made their home here. Unpleasant domestic relations are said to have developed, and the past three days Bradbury made frequent threats. This morning, he armed himself with a 38 calibre revolver, but in attempting to take the life of his wife was balked by fate.

The shooting created a great deal of excitement in the house, and Dr. Fred E. Jones, summoned as a physician, acted in his official capacity as medical examiner. The body was removed to the Hall undertaking hooms.

Mrs. Bradbury, unnerved, for some time, was on the verge of a collapse but has apparently recovered self possession at noon.

VISITATION TO RURAL LODGE

Rt. Wor. Barker Has a Large and Notable Suite on His First Visit

Party From Navy Yard See Friend Take Degree

Although the apartments of Rural lodge A. F. and A. M., are spacious, it is on such occasions as Thursday evening when the lodge received an official visit from the Rt. Wor. Gardner R. R. Barker of Weymouth district deputy grand master, that they prove none too large to accomodate the many brothers who come to greet the Right Worshipful.

The visitors book showed that there were brothers present from all over New England, and many western states,one brother even being credited to the Army and Navy lodge of Hong Kong, South China, while others were credited to operative lodges in Scotland. The various cities and towns represented included: Harrison, Miss.; Everett, Malden, Freeport, Me.; Weymouth, Wollaston, Wellington, Randolph, Kittery, Me.; Washington, D. BIG LOSS IN TAX COLLECTIONS

Over $50,000 Less to Oct. 1 Than in 1913

The financial statement of City Auditor Fairbanks for the nine months of the year ending Sept. 30 shows that the city on that date had a borrowing margin of $276,192.

The collections of taxes while somewhat larger than in 1912 falls $51,-999.92 behind the collections in 1913. This is in spite of the increase in the tax levy. The collections for water this year run close to those of the corresponding period in 1913,e those of 1914 exceeding 1913 a few hundred dollars. Still the water receipts do not come up to 1912. The collections for sewer connections fall behind those of 1913, although they exceed the collections in 1912. Collections for sewer house connections show a material increase over 1913 which were lower that year than in the year previous, 1912.

The following table gives the receipts to Oct. 1, this year in comparison with the years 1913 and 1912.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

1914 to Oct. 1,	$296,409.60
1913 to Oct. 1,	348,409.52

Even though President Wilson went way over to Baltimore the other Sunday to attend church, it is not probable that the deacons permitted him to sit in a back seat.

It is reported that none of the candidates mentioned thus far in the mayoralty contest will withdraw, but will go into the caucuses and fight it out. All of the candidates seeking the Republican nomination promise to conduct a clean campaign, free from the so-called mud throwing. Throwing mud usually reacts upon the parties throwing it, a fact that has been learned in years past by candidates for office.

The suggestion of the Daily Ledger to have statues of the two Presidents erected on the grounds of the First Parish church, have immediately met with favor, and it is probable that steps will be taken in the immediate future to carry out the proposed plan. Another suggestion made is that a cluster of electric lights be placed over the tables recently erected on the church grounds that they may be read at night.

HIGHER INTEREST RATE.

An unusual incident in the financial world happened the past week, when a large block of New York city six per cent bonds were offered at par. It was but a very few years ago that a bond of this class sold to bring only about three and one-half per cent. The financial wiseacres of that recent date predicted that interest rates would be steadily falling. As they saw it, there was such a surplus of loanable capital that soon interest would be about down to the English level, of two per cent for a government security.

The rapid ascent of the interest rate falsified these predictions. Even a year ago, the manager of a large and sound land proposition in Colorado was offering eight per cent for money. A few years ago Eastern investors were glad to get sound real estate mortgages in the West for five and six per cent. It is doubtful if this company could borrow money for ten per cent today.

The low bond prices now prevailing are of course due in large measure to the war. Yet, even if the war were to close quite soon, interest rates might not fall very much. Half of the business men of Europe could not pay their debts without realizing on their securities. Our people must take up the stocks and bonds, that at the close of the war will flood our market.

The effect of this change will be far reaching. Municipalities will have to pay much higher rates for money. Making public improvements and paying for them in long term bonds will be a terribly costly proposition. The pay-as-you-go policy will be better than ever. Railroads and public service corporations will have to offer almost prohibitive interest rates on enlargements. Either the public will have to pay higher charges, or it will have to content itself without the improvements it desires.

ALONG CAME

will have a tendency to upbuild the city.

What Ruth did for Oldport, is not impossible to be accomplished in Quincy. The example which the play sets, is one that any town or city might well follow. Quick to realize this, the Board of Trade has arranged for the play to be given in all of its details and incidents, at Kincaide's Theatre next Monday evening, by the Plymouth Theatre cast and scenery.

Tickets for the Quincy production have been on sale but a few days, but there has been an unprecedented demand for them, so that it will not be surprising if early Monday evening the familiar sign "Standing room only" will be displayed in the lobby. And if Quincy makes a success of "Along Came Ruth," the Kincaide Theatre will give us more comedies and dramas.

The merchants of Quincy have already adopted the spirit of the comedy, as is clearly shown by the advertising columns of the Ledger today. Most of the leading merchants have new announcements today, and others have engaged space for Saturday.

Along Came Foy.
Along Came Kincaide.
Along Came Remick.
Along Came Public Market.
Along Came Coughlin & Donovan.
Along Came Hearn.
Along Came Grossman.
Along Came Edmonston.
Along Came Payson.
Others are coming.

In appreciation of the spontaneous and generous advertising of local merchants, the Daily Ledger has printed an extra edition of 2,000 for free distribution in Quincy, Wollaston and Quincy Atlantic, a total of over 5,000 today.

VISITATION

In addition to these there was Bro. Charles E. Pierce and James F. Merrill, both fifty year members, and Bro. William O. Howland, a forty-six year member.

The communication was called for 5 o'clock, and it was a little after 8 o'clock when the presence of the Grand Master and suite was announced in waiting.

Wor. Emery L. Crane was appointed as chairman of the committee of past masters to receive the Grand Master and suite, which also included, Bro. Pierce and Howland. The Grand officers were received and accorded the customary honors by Wor. H. Everett Crane.

Accompanying the Grand Master was Wor. Charles W. Dunbar as deputy grand marshal, George F. Farrar, worshipful master of Orphans Hope lodge as deputy grand senior warden; W. J. Harrison, worshipful master of Delta lodge of Braintree as deputy grand junior warden; Ernest S. Rogers, worshipful master of Norfolk Union lodge of Randolph as deputy grand treasurer; Carroll E. Bates, acting master of Wollaston lodge as deputy grand treasurer.

Others on the suite were Wor. Edwin M. Wight, Wor. E. F. Sterling, Wor. Charles E. Gutterson, Wor. Charles E. Jordan, and Bro. Henry D. Higgins, junior warden of Delta lodge of Braintree; Wor. Albert L. Barbour of Mount Moriah lodge, Lime Rock, R. I.; Wor. Walter S. Pinkham of Wollaston lodge, Quincy; Wor. Olaf Olson of Gate of Temple lodge, Boston; Wor. George E. White, Wor. Leroy P. Holbrook, Wor. John W. Porter, Wor. E. J. T. Dexter of Norfolk Union lodge of Randolph; Wor. Joseph Chase, Jr., Wor. Frank H. Torrey, Wor. Leavitt W. Bates, Bro. Stanley J. Torrey, senior warden and Bro. Charles H. Chubbuck, Jr., junior warden of Orphans Hope lodge East Weymouth.

The Grand officers witnessed an exemplification of the work by Wor. H. Everett Crane and officers of Rural lodge, music during the work being by the Temple quartette. The work was exceptionally well rendered and the worshipful master was accorded an ovation at its close.

The Deputy brought the greetings of the Grand Master and his special messages to subordinate lodges, his report of the Masonic Home, being of unusual interest. A large collection was taken for the home.

At the close of the evening refreshments were served in the banquet hall.

TEACHERS PENSIONS.

More than 5000 school teachers from all over the state have signified their desire to join the Massachusetts Teachers Retirement association established by the legislature of 1913.

Wednesday was the last day when applications may be regularly received as prescribed by the law, although it is possible for teachers to join the association later.

The new law affects 10,000 teachers in the state outside of Boston, Boston teachers not being included in the act. Under the act, up to the present time, 115 teachers have been retired and $6,000 was paid out in pensions to them Aug. 31. The lowest pension paid is $300 and the highest $750.

All teachers, except those of Boston, entering service after July 1, 1914, become members of the association automatically. Those entering service previous to July 1, do so at their own option.

The management of the retiring system is vested in a board consisting of seven members, the insurance commissioner, the bank commissioner and commissioner of education, three members of the organization and the seventh to be elected by the other six.

The funds of the retirement system consist of an expense fund, an annuity fund and pension fund. The expense fund is made up of amounts appropriated yearly by the legislature, the annuity, of amounts contributed by the members of the association as determined by the retirement board. The pension fund consists of amounts appropriated by the General Court on estimates furnished by the retirement board for the purpose of paying pensions provided by the act.

The act provides a teacher may retire on attaining 60 years, and must retire on attaining 70 years.

SOLDIERS MEMORIAL.

The 12th Massachusetts Regimental association has purchased an acre of land on the Hazel Plain farm, which includes the spot where Col. Fletcher Webster, son of Daniel Webster, was killed at the second battle of Bull Run, and the association with the Fletcher Webster Grand Army post, will erect a marker on the site to be dedicated sometime during this month. The marker is a suitably inscribed bronze tablet and a granite boulder from the Webster farm at Marshfield.

☞ The love scene of Israel Putnam Hubbard and Dorcas Burnham in "Along Came Ruth" is well worth seeing over again. Dorcas is certainly very coy in her love scene with Israel.

☞ Modesty, yet firmness in the carrying out of her ideas, are the elements that Ruth used that made Oldport, a thriving city in the play "Along Came Ruth." Quincy will profit from the comedy.

SERIOUS FIRE AT ROCKLAND

The business centre of Rockland was visited by a disastrous fire shortly after midnight Thursday and it was not until 2 o'clock that it was under control. Assistance was asked from Brockton and that city sent a part of its department.

The fire started in a three-story business block on Union street, known as the Phoenix block, in the tailoring room in the rear of the store of the Cooper Co. Other occupants of this building were the Rockland Furniture Co., the dental offices of Drs. W. B. Coy and N. S. Dunn, Gardner's photographic studio, and the quarters of the Odd Fellows and encampment, Sons of St. George, Boy Scouts and other lodges.

Adjoining this block was the Perry building occupied by the Rockland Y. M. C. A. On the other side was the Gibb's block occupied by the Red Men on the upper floor while on the street floor was the drug store of Mr. Gibbs. Just across the street was the Standard block occupied by the Rockland Standard. The roof of this block caught fire but little damage was done. Employees of the Standard who were present removed valuable plates.

Several firemen are reported as being hurt by falling glass. The loss is estimated at $20,000.

RIVADAVIA VS. FORE RIVER

It may turn out to be a social affair, and it may develop into an international tangle, but in any event the soccer team of the Fore River shipyard has received permission of the governing board to play a game with a team from the Argentine battleship Rivadavia at Quincy Point, Saturday afternoon, and are training for the match.

Fore River was scheduled to play Clan Lindsay at Cambridge and the Carters have been substituted.

Although not generally known soccer has received fine support in Argentine, and the Rivadavia team is a member of the International Football Association. They will troop on the field wearing the blue and white colors of their country. In size most of them are smaller than the Fore River men, but they are as agile as any athlete that ever trod a sod. It is expected that they will be accompanied by the ships band, a fine musical organization, which includes all of the Argentine tango compositions in their repertoire.

BROCKTON FAIR TRAVEL.

The advent of automobiles has resulted in many changes in the mode of travel, which is perhaps most apparent during the days of the Brockton fair. When automobiles were looked upon as more of a luxury than they are now, Brockton fair days were busy ones in City Square, for there was a constant stream of coaches and carriages of all kinds.

The occupants of many of these carriages were filled with too much enthusiasm on the homeward trip, with the result that it required several officers on duty in City Square evenings to keep the crowds from making too much disturbance. Even then there was lots of boisterousness.

Now, however, thousands go to and from the fair by automobiles and as the streets are better via Milton. Quincy does not get as many. For this reason there is no more excitement in City Square on Brockton fair days than any other day.

Orent-Payson Co., extends a cordial invitation for the shrewd buyer to visit them upon the occasion of the formal opening on their remodelled City Square store, Saturday, Oct. 10. While bargains are offerred every day some special bargains will be offered on the opening day.

CZAR'S MILLION FRESH TROOPS

Preparing In Poland For the Invasion of Silesia

FOUR GREAT BATTLES ARE ON

Vienna Expects Fall of Tarnow, as Russians Far Outnumber Austrian Garrison—Claim That Russians Have Not Yet Scored "Distinct Victory"—Situation "Satisfactory"

London, Oct. 2.—A Vienna dispatch says that four gigantic battles and two fort bombardments, involving fully 6,000,000 men, are in progress in the eastern theatre of war. At no point has there been any decisive results and it will be several days before the fighting will reach a crisis.

General Rennenkampf, with 1,000,000 Russian first line troops, is endeavoring to resist the efforts of General von Hindenberg's army to cross the Nieman river between Druskeniki and Grodno. The fighting along this line is of the most severe character. Up to the present it has been impossible for the Germans to break through.

Another German army is engaged with 500,000 Russians in the big pine forest of Augustowo, which is twenty-four miles long and thirty-five miles broad, and is filled with small lakes and a canal that connects with Nieman and the Vistula. This German army was driven from the village of Augustowo and is now being used to protect von Hindenberg's flank and rear.

The great Russian central army, under the direct command of Grand Duke Nicholas, is made up of 1,000,000 fresh troops who have been mobilized in Russian Poland to move against the main German army, which has been feverishly fortifying the entire line of the Silesian frontier.

This force is reported in contact with the German advance guard, which has been pushed forward to protect the lines of communication to Cracow. This fight, now little more than a skirmish, is expected to develop into the greatest battle of the war in the east, as the German troops engaged are those which were withdrawn from the west to try to stop the Russian advance.

Meanwhile there are between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 Russians in Galicia moving in two parallel lines. The northern column, which has enveloped Przemysl, has completed the investment of Tarnow, fifty miles east of Cracow. The fall of Tarnow is feared at Vienna, as the Russians far outnumber the Austrian garrison and there exists no good strategic reason for trying to hold the city, as the troops that would be needed there will be of far greater value in Cracow. The second Galician army, traversing the southern line and overflowing into the passes of the Carpathian mountains, captured Krosno after a desperate resistance, in which the Austrian garrison inflicted enormous losses on the Russians.

The combined German-Austrian armies in the theatre of war do not number 2,000,000, including all reserves, while the Russians have more than 4,000,000 already on the scene. Yet at no point have the Russians scored a distinct victory since the opening of the battles. In the north the fighting is entirely in German territory, while in the south, in Galicia, the Austrians have withdrawn toward Cracow for strategic reasons.

An official statement issued at Vienna says that the entire situation is "satisfactory," that the garrison at Przemysl maintains its advantage, inflicting great damage on the Russian besiegers in sorties, and that while Cracow will be besieged it "can be expected to hold out indefinitely."

A dispatch from Petrograd says the Austrians are not making any determined resistance and their morale is declared very bad. All efforts to stamp out Asiatic cholera and dysentery in the Austrian ranks have failed. Because of this the Russian commanders have been ordered to take the utmost precautions to see that disease is not communicated to their own troops.

All food supplies captured are burned, as is camp equipment which falls into the hands of the Russians. Up to the present no cases of cholera have been reported in the Russian army.

The correspondent of the Novoe Vremya at the front reports that the Galicians are welcoming the advance of the Russians, expressing deep gratification over the change of government.

Missouri Girl Charges Tesreau With Breach of Promise

New York, Oct. 2.—Charles E. Tesreau, known to baseball fans as "Jeff," has filed in the supreme court a bond for $25,000, guaranteeing that he will be present at the trial of a breach of promise action which Miss Clara Young has brought against him.

Miss Young, who lives in Perryville, Mo., alleges that Tesreau asked her to be his wife. She consented, and it was generally known, she says, that she was his fiancee.

About the time that Miss Young expected to become Mrs. Tesreau she was startled to see an announcement of Tesreau's marriage to Miss Helen E. Blake. Tesreau has filed an answer denying the allegations.

PEACE PACT WITH RUSSIA

Twenty-Seventh of Important Series Signed at Washington

Washington, Oct. 2.—Secretary Bryan, for the United States, and Ambassador Bakhmetoff, for Russia, signed a treaty binding the two nations to submit all disputes that cannot be settled diplomatically to an international commission of five members for investigation during a period of at least one year, during which hostilities may not be commenced.

This is the twenty-seventh of the so-called investigations treaties and follows in a general way the lines of those previously negotiated with nations all over the world.

HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Woman Admitted to Police That She Stabbed Husband

Boston, Oct. 2.—Probable cause was found in the case of Mrs. Mary Pelrine, charged with the murder of her husband, Reuben Pelrine, in their home, Sept. 23. She was held without bail for the grand jury.

Captain Brickley of police division 7 testified that the woman confessed to him that she killed her husband by stabbing him with a potato knife, following an argument in the kitchen of their home.

Forgery Suspect Caught

Chicago, Oct. 2.—James G. McGinness, 34 years old, is under arrest here on charges connecting him with alleged forgeries and confidence games which are said to have netted him about $10,000. He is said to be wanted in several cities.

Slayer Killed by Policeman

Shreveport, La., Oct. 2.—R. M. Denholme, business manager of the Shreveport Times, was shot and killed in his office by a negro, who, it is thought, was demented. A policeman shot and killed the negro as he left the office.

Athlete Died From Blow

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 2.—That Jeremiah J. Dunn, an athlete whose body was found in a pond, came to his end by a blow administered by some person unknown and drowned while unconscious, was the finding of Judge Lummus.

Killed Son-In-Law

Belfast, Me., Oct. 2.—Lewis Burgess of Burnham was convicted of manslaughter for the fatal shooting of John Ronco, his son-in-law. He was tried on the charge of murder.

MISSING GIRL PERHAPS ALIVE

Mildred Sullivan Now Thought to Be In Maine Hospital

FOUR SUSPECTS ARE BAILED

Alleged Principals Held In $4000 Each and Sisters Charged With Being Accessories In $2500 Each When Arraigned In Sheriff's Office In Jail at Houlton

Bangor, Me., Oct. 2.—All four suspects arrested at Boston in the case of Mildred Sullivan, the missing Houlton girl, are at liberty until next Tuesday, having been released on bail after arraignment last evening at Houlton.

The party, consisting of Dr. L. E. Dudley, Etta and Alice Pelletier and Kate O. Michaud, in charge of Deputy Sheriff Lawlis and County Attorney Archibald of Aroostook county, left Bangor yesterday for Houlton, and upon arrival there the prisoners were locked in jail.

A great crowd had assembled around the municipal court, and in order to avoid any demonstration it was decided to arraign the prisoners before Judge Carroll in the sheriff's office at the jail.

The proceedings were merely formal, and all four respondents were held for preliminary hearing next Tuesday, Dudley and Kate Michaud in $4000 each, the Pelletier sisters in $2500 each. All gave bail and were released.

Dudley and Miss Michaud are charged with having procured an illegal operation on the body of Mildred Sullivan, and the Pelletier sisters are accused as accessories. A brother, Forrest M. Dudley, and a brother-in-law, Owen W. Smith, are bondsmen for Dudley and the Pelletier girls, while P. T. Michaud and G. Z. Michaud gave sureites for Miss Michaud.

Rumors that Mildred Sullivan had been seen in Bangor and in Newport, twenty-five miles west of the city, prove to be groundless. The belief grows stronger that the Sullivan girl has never left Maine, but that she is in a hospital somewhere between Bangor and Presque Isle.

CHAUFFEUR STOLE $16,697

Spent Money on Auto and Chorus Girls Before His Arrest

Malden, Mass., Oct. 2.—The theft of $16,697 in cash more than a month ago from a safe in the home of William Pray of Everett became known with the arrest for grand larceny of Louis Zega, who was formerly chauffeur for the Pray family.

Zega was arrested in a garage on Hawkins street, Boston, where he kept an automobile bought with $2500 of the stolen money. In his pockets were found ten $1000 bills and $1890.72 in smaller bills and coins.

Zega is 24 years old. In New York, it is said, he spent large sums entertaining members of the chorus of a musical show. Zega was arraigned in court here and was held in $5000 for the grand jury.

MINE ROOF GIVES WAY

At Least a Dozen Americans Killed by Cave-In In Missouri

Webb City, Mo., Oct. 2.—At least twelve men are believed to have been killed in cave-ins in the American Davey zinc mines here. Some reports place the death list above twenty.

Fifty men working in the mines were temporarily imprisoned when the timbering, supporting the roofs of three of the seven connected mines, gave way. Most of them escaped by finding their way to air shafts.

The mines, owned by the American Zinc, Lead and Smelting company, were being worked double shifts because of the closing of the German zinc mines. All of the miners are Americans.

New Industrial Study

New York, Oct. 2.—The Rockefeller institute announced that it had decided to make a far-reaching investigation of the industrial condition in this country and that it had retained the services of W. L. M. King, former minister of labor in Canada, as director of the investigation.

KINCAIDE THEATRE.

There's a great comedy show now playing at Quincy's Popular Playhouse and if you want to laugh you want to take it in, afternoon or evening.

Monday next there will be no matinee. In the evening "Along Came Ruth" will be presented by the company from the Plymouth Theatre, Boston. This great atraction is given under the auspices of the Quincy Board of Trade, and tickets are selling rapidly at 25c to $1.50.

Beginning Tuesday matinee the regular Kincaide Theatre show will start. Manager Wardwell has engaged a company of eleven clever players, The Marcus Musical Stock Company, and they put on an hour show that's good all the way through. There's lots of funny jokes, latest song hits, sensational dances, novel electrical effects, splendid scenery and magnificent costumes. There will be two reels of the "Perils of Pauline" besides other pictures and the regular orchestra, which rounds out a full two hours of clean healthy hearty amusement.

FOR DELICATE CHILDREN

A Mother's Letter to Mothers.

Mrs. E. W. Cooper of Bloomfield, N. J. says: "My child, seven years old, had a bad cold and was weak and quite run down in health. She had been in this condition for about six weeks when I began giving her Vinol. It was a wonderful help to the child, breaking up her cold quickly and building up her strength beside I have also found Vinol a most excellent tonic for keeping up the children's strength during a siege of whooping cough."

Vinol is a wonderful combination of two world-famed tonics—the medicinal body building elements of cod liver oil and iron for the blood, therefore it is a perfectly safe medicine for children, because it is not a patent medicine, everything in it is printed on every package, so mothers may know what they are giving their little ones.

Therefore we ask every mother of a weak, sickly or ailing child in this vicinity to try Vinol on our guarantee. Edward J. Murphy, Druggist, Quincy, Mass.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Superior Court, Norfolk, ss.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court next to be holden at Dedham within and for the County of Norfolk: Respectfully libels and represents Katherine Higgins of Quincy in said county that she was lawfully married to John W. Higgins whose present whereabouts are unknown at Quincy in said county of Norfolk on the nineteenth day of March A. D. 1907, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said John W. Higgins lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth to wit, at Quincy and Cambridge; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said John W. Higgins being wholly regardless of the same at Cambridge in the county of Middlesex, on or about the thirtieth day of November A. D. 1911, and at divers other times and places was guilty of cruel and abusive treatment toward your libellant and your libellant further says that there has been born of said marriage a female child Margaret I. Higgins.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said John W. Higgins and that the care and custody of said minor child Margaret I. Higgins be decreed to her.

Dated the seventh day of March A. D. 1914.

MRS. KATHERINE HIGGINS.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
Norfolk, ss. Superior Court.

On the foregoing Libel, it is ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said John W. Higgins the Libellee, to appear before the Justices of this Court, to be holden at Dedham, within and for said County, on the first Monday of November next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper printed at Quincy in the County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of November next, and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be, by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said John W. Higgins an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, that the said John W. Higgins may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted.

By the Court,
LOUIS A. COOK, Clerk.

THOUSANDS FALL BEFORE FRENCH GUNS

Germans Vainly Strive to Smash Fortified Positions

COUNTLESS CLASHES AT BATTLE OF THE AISNE

Minor Conflicts Which Would Be Called Great Battles In Any Other Great War Are Now Unreported—Allies Believed to Be Succeeding In Flanking Von Kluck and Von Boehm—Hotly-Contested Battle at Roye Won by Defenders—French Sweep All Opposition Before Them on German Left—Antwerp Continues to Hold Out Despite Fierce Bombardment by Germans

London, Oct. 2.—Despite the continued caution of the French official reports, it is clearly evident that the great turning movement of the allies is steadily forcing the German right wing toward the Belgian boundary.

Only once Thursday, so far as can be learned, did the invaders alter their plan to remain under shelter in their subterranean cities. In the neighborhood of Roye, covered by a heavy artillery fire, the Germans scrambled out of their trenches and dashed at the lines of the allies. They were beaten back, but returned and again and again they strove in vain to smash a way through the fortified positions of the British and French.

Just as at Tracy-le-Mont, the assault was plainly an effort of the invaders to try to find out if the allies had stretched out their flanking movement too far and had weakened their defensive front. The attack, similar to previous encounters, took place in the devastated countryside that corresponds roughly with the human elbow—where the lines of the hostile forces extending to the north and to the east met in a sharp angle.

Germans Fall by Thousands

The battle of Roye was probably fought on the fertile pleateau known locally as the Sancerre, one of the most famous grain bearing regions of France. Never has there been such reaping on the Sancerre as that of Thursday, when Germans by thousands fell like mown wheat as the deadly French artillery swept the plain.

Further toward the north, as the allies reached out toward the Belgian frontier in their stupendous effort to turn the German flank, there were countless clashes. But this battle of the Aisne is upon such a tremendous scale that thousands of men are falling daily on uncelebrated fields of battle. In almost any other great war these minor conflicts would have been hailed as great battles, but today they are unreported.

One reason for the lack of knowledge is of course the unwillingness of the censors to pass descriptions of fighting until they are many days old. For this reason it is is impossible to know how far toward the north the turning movement of the allies has passed. Cavalry are probably riding by thousands near the Belgian frontier, and the infantry must be north of Cambrai.

Allies Are Succeeding

Everything continues to indicate that the British and French are succeeding in their, that they are flanking von Kluck and von Boehm just as they flanked von Kluck and von Buelow in the battle of the Marne. The official dispatches merely state that the situation is satisfactory and that in both the west and east progress is being made daily.

Each day makes it more difficult for the invaders to hold their lines of communication; each day sees a retirement so pronounced that it is impossible to doubt that a slow retreat is being carried on by a large force of Germans who are stubbornly holding their fortified trenches to allow their comrades treking north to reach their next line line of defense on Belgian soil.

From Berlin come optimistic wireless messages that seek to revive hope in the sorrowful non-combatants who remain in Germany. In the latest German statement the only place mentioned is Albert, where, it is said, the attacks of the allies were repulsed. Although this dispatch was not received in London until Thursday, it is believed that the clash at Albert must have been the one that occurred last Tuesday, when the invaders succeeded in wiping another town off the map.

Industrial Town Wiped Out

The little industrial town on the river Ancre, a place of pilgrimage on account of the celebrity of the Church of Notre Dame de Brebieres, was the scene of desperate battling which began last Saturday and which lasted until Tuesday night, when the flames from the burning town lit up the sky for miles around. When the last correspondent left the scene, a 8 o'clock that night, the tower of a church was standing out in black relief against the leaping red flames that were eating their way through the town, but there is little doubt that the tower must later have toppled into the black ruins about it.

French Advance Continues

On the German left, where the menace of invasion was last week so acute, the French continue their drive, sweeping all opposition before them in the Woevre region. The garrisons at Toul and Verdun, who were mourning in the early days of the war because they never caught sight of a German uniform, have been fighting hard enough for the past few days to bring content to the bitterest enemy of Germany. Every step that they advance brings them nearer to the coveted territory of Lorraine, which, with Alsace, every Frenchman expects to see rejoicing in the raising of the tricolor after the last shot of the war has been fired.

The French progress in the forest of Argonne, made in several new points, according to the official Paris statement, is steadily driving northward a wedge that threatens to separate the crown prince from the armies of the Duke of Wuertemberg and General von Einem.

The arrival of native troops from India, said to be 75,000 strong, has been officially admitted by the British press bureau. They reached Marseilles last Friday and some of them have probably been engaged already in fighting. In addition fresh regiments of British territorialists have also reached the front, including the renowned London Scottish.

This large addition to the left wing of the allies should be able to exert enough force to accelerate the German retreat, already under way toward the Sambre.

Hard Fighting In Belgium

So far as can be judged from the dispatches, the fighting in Belgium is more intense at present than in any part of France except the district where von Kluck is desperately battling to maintain an orderly retirement. The bombardment of the outer forts at Antwerp, the temporary Belgian capital, continues practically without interruption, but thus far none of the Belgian strongholds have been reduced. The assault is most violent from the district between Termonde and Malines, and the invaders are said to have suffered heavy losses.

Antwerp is now the last refuge of the Belgian army and once more the heroic people of that suffering nation are asking if the British and French are coming to their assistance. The allies could not safely aid Belgium while Liege was being smashed and while the conquerers were parading into Brussels, but now they are on their way to rescue beleaguered Antwerp. If the Germans have not succeeded in getting their heavy howitzers in position, it is thought that relief will come to Antwerp before a surrender of the city can be compelled.

Military Necessity For Germans

Military experts in London declare that the possesion of Antwerp is now an absolute necessity for the Germans. So long as they were able to hold their lines in France it made very little difference whether the Belgians retained the great seaport city or not. Now that the lines have been shortened and the Germans are going to be forced to hold Belgium not only against the Belgians, but also against the allied armies, the reduction of Antwerp becomes an absolute military necessity from the German point of view.

There are grave doubts whether Antwerp can withstand a general siege. Her fortifications are no stronger, so far as individual units are concerned, than were Liege and Namur. And they, with Maubeuge, fell before the shells of the great German 16.3 siege guns, the "Busy Berthas" of which the German general staff is so proud that every official of the Krupp factory has been awarded an iron cross.

APOLOGY BY AUSTRIA

Averts Immediate Danger of Italy's Entrance Into the War

It is officially announced that Austria has apologized to Italy for the presence of mines near the Italian coast in the Adriatic; has expressed its regrets for the sinking of Italian ships; has promised to remove the mines and to pay damages to victims of the mines.

This action of Austria is believed to have averted a crisis that would have led to war if Vienna had refused to heed Italy's protest.

Estimates of the indemnity that Italy expected to ask range from $750,000 to $1,000,000.

GREATEST IN HISTORY

Battle of the Aisne Shown to Overshadow All Other Conflicts

The battle of the Aisne, which has been raging between the forces of the Germans and the allies for eighteen days, has taken its place as the greatest military struggle of all time, according to a compilation from United States war department records.

It is surpassed, to date, in duration of continuous fighting only by the battle of Mukden, in the Russo-Japanese war, which lasted twenty days. The battle of the Winilderness in the Civil war, which lasted for twenty-six days, also surpassed it in duration, so far, although the fighting in the former was intermittent.

In point of numbers engaged, extent of battle front and casualties, however, the battle of the Aisne overshadows all conflicts. It began on Sept. 14 and is still on. It is estimated that 3,000,000 men have been engaged. More than a week ago it was estimated that the losses on both sides totalled more than 150,000, and thousands have fallen since then.

TURKEY MUST KEEP OUT

Warned That Otherwise She Will Lose All Her Possessions

Turkey, the London Daily Telegraph says it understands, is about to make a demand concerning the station of certain British warships with which it will be impossible for Great Britain to comply and it is likely, therefore, to bring Turkey into the European war.

The Telegraph instances many indications of the Turkish policy, such as the Ottoman government's ambiguous conduct in relation to the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, the invitation to German officers to go to Constantinople, the mobilization of Turkish troops in Syria and the closing of the Dardanelles, and adds:

"If Turkey chooses war, let her clearly understand that it will mean the end not merely of Turkey in Europe, but of Turkey in Asia, and that the allied powers will exact the fullest retribution.

THREE GUN TURRETS

Battleship Nevada First to be Thus Equipped

The battleship Nevada, now under construction at the Fore River yards, will have the distinction of the first American battleship to be fitted with three-gun turrets. Preparations are now being made for the installation of this novelty in naval architecture, and the task is no easy one, for the turrets are the heaviest ever set up.

Their weight is 80 tons, being about 11 tons heavier than those placed on the Rivadavia. Much preliminary work yet remains to be done, and it is not expected that the first turret will be hoisted aboard inside of three weeks. This type will be the best protected of any in the world.

Each of these turrets will have three 14-inch guns, the most powerful on any United States battleship, and rivalled by a few guns in British and German battleships. The 14-inch guns weigh on an average about 47,500 pounds and will throw a charge 1400 pounds in weight and containing a large amount of explosive. Two of the three gun turrets will be set up, one on the forecastle deck, one on the quarter-deck, with a two gun turret behind and slightly above each.

DIVIDEND MAINTAINED.

The Wollaston Co-operative Bank on Wednesday evening declared its semi-annual dividend at the rate of five and one-half per cent., and has out on sale 2500 shares in the new series beginning with the October payment.

This bank is now in its 26th year, has assets of $1,003,805.36 and has no foreclosed property and its dividends have averaged over five and one-half per cent during the whole time.

The co-operative banks of Massachusetts are fast growing in popularity and increasing in strength, having combined assets at the present time of more than $82,000,000.00.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

Much interest centres on the engagement of the new comedy "Wanted $22,000" at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, commencing next Monday night. Primarily because it is a Cohan and Harris production, and their offerings are invariably worth while, and secondly on account of the importance of the players who are to originate the several roles of the new piece. That New England playgoers are unusually interested in the new comedy, is evidenced in th advance seat sale the opening night, when, unless all signs fail, a brilliant audience will assemble to find out for itself what the big mystery is all about. The piece is the work of the A. E. Thomas best known as author of "The Rainbow" and other big successes and Clayton Hamilton, who has been a big contributor to magazines. The producers have refrained from disclosing the story of the play but from authentic sources it is learned that it contains a surprise that is likely to prove more or less of a sensation. Out-of-town playgoers should avail themselves of the extra matinee announced for Monday, Oct. 12, Columbus Day. Regular matinees Thursdays and Saturdays.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

John Mason, that sterling theatrical star who is perhaps the greatest footlight favorite now before the public, will begin the second week of his limited engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre Monday evening in his new play entitled "Drugged." Boston has stamped this attraction with its distinct and unanimous approval. The public and the newspapers have agreed that its appeal is not limited to one class of theatregoers, but to all classes who are on the lookout for entertainment which contains enough comedy to relieve the tears and enough thrills to make one forget the monotony of daily existence. This John Mason and "Drugged" do without question and this is the reason for their success. There are four acts in the play and each one holds enough life-drama in itself to satisfy the usual amusement seeker. When the thrills of the entire piece are considered the reason for its wide appeal to all classes is at once apparent. "Drugged" was purposely written to strike the heart-cords a resounding blow and the spectacle of seeing an entire audience rise unconsciously in its seat at the end of that great third act literally swept off its feet by the intensity of the scene, is a nightly occurrence at the Hollis Street Theatre.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"Arizona," Augustus Thomas' most successful play, has been doing big business at Castle Square all this week. The full houses may be ascribed partly to the cool weather, which again makes theatre going a pleasure and partly to the strong appeal of this full blooded drama of Western military life.

"Widow by Proxy" which will be given next week, is a high spirited farce with breathlessly rapid action. Gloria Grey, the chief character, is a young music teacher who gets into financial difficulties and in a spirit of dare devilry, persuades a widowed girl friend that lives with her to let her impersonate her and win the esteem of her husband's rich relatives. She not only does this but wins the heart of the son of the family, a naval officer. One entanglement brings on another, and Gloria is involved in a seemingly inextricable web of difficulties, when everything is straightened out by an unexpected return from Alaska. The high spirited and resourceful Gloria will be acted by Miss Young. There is one excruciating funny scene in which the sham widow has to pass off an old German delicatessen dealer and a society dressmaker as wealthy foreign connections.

WILBUR THEATRE.

The fourth week of William Hodge in "The Road to Happiness" at the beautiful Wilbur Theatre in Boston shows steady success and increasing popularity for this most American of all the plays now on our stage and for this star who is the most American of all our actors. The very spirit of the masses of the American people or that homely, simple, basic cheerfulness and optimism which distinguishes our native character and humor—shine forth delightfully in this well-named drama. The large audience bask in the happy Yankee wit and the sunshine of the piece. Denman Thompson's heart throbs in "The Old Homestead," James A. Horne's pathos and humor in "Shore Acres" and "Sag Harbor" and Sol Smith Russell's in quiet, droll sentiment in "A Poor Relation," have all passed into this latest drama of village life. The heart interest and the humor caused the spectators to sway between smiles and tears, while Hodge as Jim Whitman, the struggling young carpenter, striving to be a lawyer, is a local Lincoln. He has all the spirit of the youth of that village-bred President. His sayings are full of inspiration. They set a new light in the eye and start a new laugh on the lip. The title of the play comes from Whitman's motto: "Courage—confidence in the truth—this forms the road to happiness." And this courage is the foundation of his cheerfulness. This entire play of American home life is picturesquely realistic and charming throughout and as Jim Whitman, Mr. Hodge has a new character success that makes one even forget his Daniel Voorhees Pike in "The Man from Home." "The Road to Happiness" at the Wilbur is one that everybody should travel.

SHUBERT THEATRE.

Following closely the most successful tours of "The Passing Show of 1912," "The Honeymoon Express," and "The Passing Show of 1913" the Winter Garden's latest spectacle, "The Whirl of the World" will be shown at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, for a limited engagement commencing Monday night. With a company of 125 comedians, singers and dancers headed by Eugene and Willie Howard, Mlle. Chapine, Juliette Lippe, Elizabeth Goodall, Lucille Cavanaugh, Emily Lea, Moon and Morris, Robert and Lawrence Ward, Burrell Barbaretto, Clarence Harvey, John T. Murray, Lewis J. Cody, Edward Cutler, Felix Patty, Jean Leprince, Wyclif Parker and a beauty chorus of sixty beautifully gowned girls. The big revue has to its credit a run of five months at the Winter Garden and sixteen weeks of success at the Cohan Grand Opera House, Chicago.

The departure of the S. S. Vaterland from the dock at Havre, the burning of a steamship at sea with the rescue of passengers in the life boats of the Vaterland and the runway out over the orchestra seats are three unusual features. The other scenes are all beautiful conceptions and give every opportunity for the display of modern gowns by the Winter Garden's own mannequins. The action is swift throughout save for those intervals where in the comedians and vaudevillians enliven the proceedings. The company is a numerous one and well rehearsed. Pretty faces abound thus upholding the Winter Garden's trade mark.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Arthur Hammerstein's production of "The Trap" which scored an instantaneous hit at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, will enter upon its last week at that playhouse Monday. The play is the work of Richard Harding Davis and Jules Eckert Goodman, and is presented by one of the strongest casts seen in a single production in many years. Among those well-known to local audiences are Janet Beecher, Charles Richman, Orrin Johnson, Tully Marshall, Ralph Delmore and Elaine Hammerstein. "The Trap" is the story of an unscrupulous miner who attempts to blackmail a woman. Edward Fallon, one of the lucky men of the Yukon has struck a mine valued at millions. His brother, Dick Fallon was married to Jane Carson. She was led to believe the marriage was illegal and is blackmailed by Martin. Miss Carson is a school teacher in the Yukon and in order to keep the disgrace of her illegal marriage from the public gives up blood money to him. Dick Fallon is shot in a gambling house and although he died Martin follows Miss Carson to New York and there once more continues to blackmail her after convincing her he is still alive. Edward Fallon, the good-whole souled Alaska miner comes to New York and seeks out Miss Carson. The reconciliation of Graham and his wife in the last act and the reward of Fallon by being given the sister of Mrs. Graham in whom he has taken a great interest, ends the play in a happy manner. The work of Mr. Richman as Edward Fallon, Miss Beecher as Miss Carson, Orrin Johnson as the husband, Ralph Delmore as the unlucky miner with a great fondness for stock speculation and Miss Hammerstein as the younger sister all deserve special mention.

BOSTON THEATRE.

The dream of Boston music lovers to secure real Grand Opera at prices within the means of the masses is to find its complete realization at the Boston Theatre beginning Monday evening when a season of twelve weeks of popular grand opera will be inaugurated. Despite the war in Europe which has crippled most of the great opera houses of the world, the management of the Boston Theatre has assembled a company of high class artists that will compare very favorably with the permanent organization of the Metropolitan and the Boston Opera Companies in the past. As a foundation for these artists there will be a superb chorus recruited from the chorus which the Boston Opera Company took to Paris last spring, and generally conceded in musical circles to be the finest in the world. The splendid ballet of beautiful young girls has also been secured from the Boston Opera House, as well as the magnificent orchestra. With such a foundation an ensemble is assured equal to that of any opera house in the world, not even excepting the Metropolitan in New York. As for the artists they will speak for themselves before the first week is over. Suffice it to say that a number of genuine sensations are promised particularly among the tenors and the sopranos.

There will be performances every evening at 8 o'clock, and on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons at 2 o'clock. The opening bill for Monday night will be a spectacular production o the great Verdian opera, "Aida." The scenic settings or this opera will surely startle the most blase. They have all been painted especially for the opening, and the gorgeous Nile scene must be seen to be appreciated. This opera will see the Boston debut of two local singers, who, although the bearers of wonderful reputations from abroad, have never sung in opera in their native city. The first is Blanche Hamilton Fox, the brilliant mezzo-soprano who will sing the role of Amneris. Miss Fox is a world figure in Opera, having sung leading roles in all of the great opera houses in Europe. Her home coming will be made the occasion of a magnificent reception from her hosts of Boston friends. The other Boston product is Joseph Florian, a splendid basso who has been heard in every great operatic city but his own. The title role of Aida will be sung by Johanna Kristoffy, the leading soprano of the great Hof Opera in Vienna. This opera, "Aida," will be repeated Wednesday afternoon. Tuesday and Friday evenings the favorite opera of "Carmen" will be given with Alice Gentle from Hammerstein's Manhattan Opera Company in the title role. "Lucia di Lammermoor" will be sung on Wednesday evening and Saturday afternoon. The supreme favorite "Trovatore" will be given on Thursday and Saturday evenings. Every Sunday evening there will be a superb operatic concert by the members of the company.

SENECA CLUB DRAMATICS

Students from the Colonial College of Dramatic Art of Boston entertained the members and friends of the Seneca Club in the latter's rooms in South Quincy Thursday evening. The program included a one-act comedy, a comedy sketch, and a one-act play.

In the "Cast of Coddles Trouble," the comedy, were Allen Daw, Clement Hayes, Eleanor Cobb and Laura Carbry. "Mr. Cohen's divorce," the sketch, was given by Allen Daw and Paul Herbert, anod "The Convict," the play, had a cast of Paul Herbert, George Ducott, Kate Robertson and Mae Agnew.

At the close of the entertainment a collation was served after which there was a social hour.

☞ The high cost of living is in my mind a matter of opinion. Of course if we work hard for our salary it may cause some little alarm, but in glancing over today's Ledger I find that Coughlin & Donovan are very reasonable in regards to grocery and meat prices. Here in one item you see Spring Lamb at 17 1-2c. a lb. I don't think we should complain; reasonable enough, if it isn't, well, we should suggest giving it away.

QUINCY SQUARE

John Adams commandery, Knights of Malta, are to hold an entertainment and dance in Colonial hall, Oct. 21.

The annual inspection of Quincy chapter, O. E. S., will take place Monday evening.

If one wants to be in the swim with the 400, he or she must have a head cold.

Mrs. Mattie M. Starbird formerly of The Ladies Shop on Maple street is now with the millinery department of R. H. White Co., Boston.

Many Quincy people were at the Brockton fair Thursday and many others have gone today, the last day. A firemen's muster is one of the main attractions today.

George Lewis Olney of New York gave an illustrated lecture on "The Wayward Boy" at the St. Paul's M. E. church Thursday evening. The picture story included beautiful painted views from life models on 150 stereopticon slides.

Five souvenirs were awarded at the weekly whist party of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge in Odd Fellows hall Thursday afternoon. The winners were Mrs. Annie Pratt, Mrs. S. Hughes, Mrs. E. Newcomb, Mrs. William Westland, Mrs. Davidson.

The men members of Lodge Skandia, Vasa Orden, entertained a large number at a dancing party in Electa hall Thursday evening. Supper was served and there was a short musical program. The committee was Olaf Hason, Anton J. Nelson, Olaf A. Johnson, Carl Ericson, John Skoglund.

☞ If you happen to be tickled in the throat, as many are, owing to the changes in the weather, see Hearn the druggist, for a box of those Bronchial lozenges. Instant relief is assured.

☞ Full of fun of a wholesome nature, is what everybody says of "Along Came Ruth" and just as full of ginger as your grandmother's gingerbread.

Genuine Pity.

"Mr. and Mrs. Whiffer never have any arguments." "How does that happen?" "Mr. Whiffer won't argue." "The poor woman."--Birmingham Age-Herald.

QUINCY WOLLASTON

Mrs. E. F. Young and daughter, Miss Ethel Young of Eliot avenue, Bellevue Park, returned this week Orleans, Mass.

It is reported that a large building is to be erected on Hancock street, near the car barn. The lower, or street floor, will be devoted to business purposes and the upper part to tenements.

It is expected that active work will be commenced at an early date erecting the Sachem club building.

Business at the meeting of the Wollaston Co-operative bank was hurried through Wednesday evening, that those present might go to Quincy and attend the Campbell rally. Automobiles were furnished to bring them to Quincy.

Rev. William B. Ayers of the Park and Downs church will give another of the series of interesting lectures Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, subject: "How is peace possible?" These lectures are attended by the full seating capacity of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew S. Johnson of 249 Safford street observed their 20th marriage anniversary on Monday evening when they entertained not only Quincy friends, but others from Brookline and Sarnia, Ontaria. They were married 1894 in Sherbrooke, Quebec. In behalf of the guests R. W. Moore of Quincy Atlantic presented the couple a china tea set. There were other gifts of china ware, etc. Music and games were enjoyed, and a salad supper was served.

Rt. Wor. Gardner R. P. Barker of Weymouth, district deputy grand master of the 26th Masonic district, will make his first official visit to Wollaston lodge, A. F. & A. M., on Tuesday evening, Oct. 6.

JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY NIGHT

The members of the Quincy Catholic Club held a "John Boyle O'Reilly night" after the regular meeting in the rooms of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, Thursday evening, which was attended by 75 members. President Mrs. Agnes Reardon presided. She announced that Henrietta Gilman Tighe would read "Within the Law" for members and their friends at Colonial hall at an early date.

The evening program was devoted to the life and works of the Irish poet and included readings from his works by Miss Catherine Garrity, and vocal solos by Miss Helen Brick of Dorchester. The piano solos of Miss Mary McConnarty were Irish airs.

Refreshments were served at the close of the program by the entertainment and social committee of the club.

☞ It is much the same everywhere, but there are exceptions. Right here in Quincy there is a clothes shop which gives dollar for dollar at all times. Mr. Grossman has adopted the policy of maintaining standard price on all suits.

QUINCY WEST

Enoch D. Fuller is among the students who have entered Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., this fall. The present freshman class of 165 is the largest in the history of this typical American college, where, twenty-five years ago, President Wilson taught history and illustrated methods of government by organizing the students into a model of the English Parliament for debating practice. Since that time Wesleyan has won many intercollegiate debates.

Councilman Daniel T. Corcoran, candidate for representative from the Sixth Norfolk district, at an open meeting, attended by 400 at Cross and Copeland streets, Thursday evening, attacked the record of his opponent Edward J. Sandberg who is a candidate for re-election. School Committeeman Joseph L. McPherson presided, and the other speakers were Councilman James O'Dowd and John D. Smith. Councilman Corcoran was give an ovation.

October devotions will be held every evening during the month at St. Marys church.

Joseph McTiernan, the three year year old son of Metropolitan Officer and Mrs. Joseph McTiernan, entertained friends at the home of his parents on Common street today in honor of his birthday anniversary.

James Dillon of the fire department, who is at the Quincy City Hospital recovering from the effects of an operation, is rapidly improving.

Mrs. Mary Rogers of Nova Scotia and Mrs. E. Wirth her daughter, will make their home on Whittisch place

The auto chemical squad extinguishd a slight fire in the rear of the Lavers Granite Co. on Arthur street Thursday evening. There was no property damage.

William Joyce, of the Quincy post office, has returned from a trip to Washington, D. C., where he spent his vacation.

Benard O'Neil of the Metropolitan police force, who covers the Furnace Brook parkway, is on his vacation and Patrolman William Kenney has been assigned to the beat.

The committee of St. Marys guild met Thursday evening at the home of Miss Catherine Shea on Common street to plan the work of the season. Those present were Mrs. S. B. Little, Mrs. Mabel Fennessy, Mrs. William Callahan, Miss Ethel Burns, Miss Sadie Monahan, Miss Annie McGilvary.

Collective.

At a regular mass meeting of the Scandinavians in South Minneapolis a few nights since, the pastor having heard that one John Johnson wanted to join the church, said, "Will John Johnson, if present, please stand up?" Nearly all the men present stood up. The bewildered preacher looked around awhile, and then said: "You may sit down, Mr. Johnson, I will call a meeting of you some time next week."

QUINCY SOUTH

The alarm from Box 38 at 10.27 this morning was for a bonfire on Penn street. The fire was in the rear of the home of a Jewish resident and was getting dangerously near his barn and it was thought best to call the department. The recall sounded in a few minutes.

Business in the granite yards in and about the district is unusually brisk for this season of the year. All firms report many orders.

Little mention has been made of the rapid rate in which what is known as Penn's hill is growing. Within a short space of time Independence avenue and Penn's hill have become a thriving residential section.

South Quincy business men are wondering when, if ever, the Water street crossing will be abolished?

ALL THAT THE NAME IMPLIES.

Here in Quincy there is a store that can be rightfully named "The Wide-Awake store." This is the age of specialties, and we all aim to specialze. Some of us are almost perfect at it. For instance, the Wide-Awake store, are representatives for Kuppenheimer clothes, that in itself is typical of specializing. Of course we have all heard more or less about the House of Kuppenheimer, so we won't linger on that, but here this Wide-Awake store is offering real bargains in men's soft hats. One would consider himself fortunate if he paid the same price for them at the end of the season.

☞ Well said the sidewalk critic, as Florence Shirley of "Along Came Ruth" drove by Sunday. She looks good to me. Thats what all who have seen her say. She is refined and a sweet young actress.

Sick-Room Light.

If there are electric lights in the sick room they will generally be found too brilliant, hurting the eyes of the patient, and not every sick room has the electric lights that can be turned up or down. Make a little green silk bag and fasten it over the incandescent bulb and it will give a good but subdued and harmless light.

QUINCY ATLANTIC

The following program will be carried out the coming week at the Atlantic Methodist revival. Monday evening, sermon by pastor; Tuesday, sermon by Rev. Perry S. Neldon of West Quincy; Wednesday, sermon by Rev. W. J. Kelly of Newton Highlands; Thursday, sermon by Rev. Dr. Parkinson of Newton Centre; Friday, sermon by the pastor; Saturday, Charles T. Noble of Newton Highlands, an experienced and efficient singer will have charge of singing from the Epworth hymnal of which 100 copies have been provided.

The Hall orchestra will aid in the music at the Atlantic Methodist church on Sunday evening, the occasion of Peace Day. All should attend as requested by President Wilson to express sympathy for World Peace.

The young people of the Atlantic M. E. Sunday School will wear cross badges during during October as significant of their sympathy with the revival effort. They will be presented at the public services Sunday morning.

Peace day will be observed at the Atlantic Methodist church by two sermons on "Peace" by the pastor 10.45 A. M. and 7 P. M. This day also marks the beginning of the special Revival meetings which will continue throughout October. The sacrament will be administered at the close of the morning sermon. Sunday school at 12.15. Election of officers of the Epworth league at 3.30, Mrs. Thomas, superintendent. Epworth league at 6.30 first half hour devoted to Bible study lead by the pastor. Epworth league proper at 6.30. Public service at 7 P. M. with singing conducted by Charles C. Noble, Miss Young organist.

☞ A few steps taken off the travelled side of the street brings one to the Public Market where it will be noticed by their advertisement in today's Daily Ledger they quote remarkably low prices on the many articles usually found in markets. These prices are well worth reading over.

QUINCY POINT

The best score at the weekly whist for men at the clubhouse of the Town River Yacht club on Thursday evening were made by John Hynes 48, Charles Spencer 45, William Cranshaw and H. Oliver a tie at 42.

George Dunham of Washington street, assistant superintendent of the Prudential Life Insurance Co. of this district, and James Doyle are the guests of the company on a trip which includes visitations to cities between here and Washington, D. C. The trip will cover two weeks.

"COL." A. L. Whitman, who was defeated for the Republican nomination for Representative, says he will do all possible to elect Councilman Ericson.

Work on the new Catholic church on Washington street is going forward rapidly, and it will not be many weeks before it will be in condition to hold services.

It looks now as though an assembly hall for the Washington school was a long distance off. The prospects of a new school building in the district in the near future however are bright.

☞ One who has seen Florence Shirley, the leading lady in "Along Came Ruth," can hardly blame George LeGuere from falling head over heels in love with her. They all do.

QUINCY PIANOFORTE SCHOOL
Greenleaf Block, 1419 Hancock St., Quincy

ADVANTAGES:

1.—Better instruction and better prices cannot be obtained in Quincy.
2.—Our system is thorough and modern; our instructors are capable, experienced and up-to-date.
3.—Our pupils have the privilege of appearing in public three times a season; and know how to conduct themselves correctly and gracefully on the concert stage.
4.—Our 1st. and 2nd. year General Class lessons are worth as much as the regular piano lessons, but this year we include these lessons with the price of the piano lessons alone.
5.—The director, Mr. Hackelton, is a graduate of the N. E. Conservatory of Music, finished abroad and a leading teacher in Boston for ten years.
6.—We award certificates to pupils finishing our courses.
7.—We are presenting a limited number of music rolls to our pupils as a souvenir of our opening.

Information regarding terms, teachers, system etc., will be cheerfully given at the School, or a circular sent on request.

YOUNG MAN KILLED BY AUTO

Charles Brackett Formerly a Resident of Quincy

Quincy friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. and Mrs. Lillian W. Brackett of Ashmont, Dorchester, former residents of Thayer street, Quincy, sympathize with them in the death of their second son, Charles P., aged 14 years, who was killed at Ashmont on Friday afternoon by being run over by a heavy coal truck of the City Fuel Co. of Neponset.

The accident took place in Peabody Square, a short distance from the boy's home. According to reports of the accident, the boy jumped onto the rear of the truck to get a ride toward his home. As the truck passed through Peabody Square, the boy slipped and fell, the wheels of the heavy truck passing over his abdomen causing almost instant death.

The truck was in charge of John F. Rogers, of 630 Saratoga street. As soon as he learned from the shouts of bystanders what had happened, he stopped his truck, jumped down, and rushed the boy to the office of Dr. C. H. Miller across the square. Dr. Miller immediately sent the boy to the hospital, but he died on the way. Rogers was later arrested and immediately bailed out by the company by whom he is employed.

The boy was well and favorably known about Ashmont. He was graduated from the Henry L. Pierce school last fall, and the first of September entered the Dorchester High school. He was on his way home from school when the accident happened.

The boys parents are well known in Quincy where they lived for several years after their marriage. Some few years ago they moved to Ashmont, where their home would be nearer Mr. Brackett's empolyment.

Their present home it at 19 Rowena street, a short distance from where the accident happened.

Mr. and Mrs. Brackett had four children, two sons and two daughters, and the boy who was killed was their younger son.

CITY COUNCIL BUSINESS.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held Monday evening, but as many of the members of the Council desire to attend the presentation of "Along Came Ruth" at Kincaide's theatre the session promises to reach an early adjournment. No committees have met since the last meeting and there is but little business to come before the meeting. The main business will be to pass the orders granting the street railway a relocation in Hancock street, that the work of widening and rebuilding the street may be commenced; the granting of the street railway a location for a branch-off track to a gravel pit on Sea street, and granting the Gas Co. a location for mains.

N. E. O. P. SOCIAL.

Following the regular business meeting of Quincy lodge, N. E. O. P. Friday evening, the families of the members were entertained. The program included: Piano duet by Mrs. and Miss White, song by Miss Elsie Watson, violin solo by Miss Marion White, reading by Miss Elsie Watson, song by Mildred Hopey, solo dance by Miss Elsie Watson and piano solo by Miss White. Refreshments were served, including sandwiches, coffee, cake and cookies. Dancing closed the festivities.

FIRST PARISH SUNDAY SCHOOL

Sessions Will Be Resumed on Sunday--Other Notes

The chapel of the First Parish church has had a thorough overhauling this week in preparation for the 275th anniversary on October 11, and also in view of the opening meetings next Sunday of the Sunday School and Young Peoples Religious Union.

Miss Minnie Packard will assume her duties as Superintendent for the first time on Sunday, and has requested all officers, teachers and members to be in their places at one minute before twelve, in order that the school may open promptly on the hour. Several new teachers are to be added to the force this year, and an effort will be made to bring about a more perfect system of grading of the different classes and departments. There will be no lessons next Sunday but the time will be given to organizing the school, in preparation for the year's work, and to some explanation of the significance of the 275th anniversary of the church to be observed a week later.

The meeting of the Young People's Religious Union, at 4.30 P. M., promises to be of unusual interest. The subject of the afternoon will be "The vacation meetings at the Isles of Shoals," and interesting personal reports will be given by Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann, Mrs. James A. Slade, Miss Beatrice Morrison and Miss Minnie Packard. There was a large attendance of Quincy people at the "Shoals" meetings during the summer, all of whom report having had a delightful outing, and if is expected that these reports will cover a somewhat wide range of experiences.

The union enjoyed last year one of the most successful seasons in its history, and the present year promises to be even more interesting and successful. Miss Marie Bass was reelected as president for 1914-1915.

☞ There are a large majority in favor of the latest society dances. The Osborne school of modern dancing is one of the best equipped in New England. Mrs. M. F. Osborne is a pupil of the Chalif New York normal school of dancing. The Osborne school is very much the same. Congenial surroundings, special classes for children and the art of dancing in a correct and dignified manner.

COUNTRY FAIR ON BIG SCALE

Many Farmers of Quincy Wollaston Exhibitors

The opening of the second annual Wollaston Country Fair held at the Unitarian vestry and grounds last evening was a brilliant event, and was largely attended throughout the evening.

The electrical illumination which could be seen the length of Beale street and Winthrop avenue, and the pleasant autumn night helped to swell the number to 300 people who wended their way to the fair grounds.

Displays of fruit, vegetables and flowers grown in Quincy Wollaston were on exhibition in the vestry and many Wollaston people were agreeably surprised to find what fine specimens are actually raised in their home city.

The exhibitors represented all parts of Wollaston and several had a number of separate displays, which consisted notably of corn, beans, lettuce, squashes, beets, apples and grapes. Many specimens were labelled as prize winners, and a cup will be presented to the person who in the opinion of the judges has the finest exhibit. A report of this event together with a complete list of exhibitors and prize winners will appear in the Monday edition of this paper.

On the grounds outside was a miniature wonderland known as "Joyland Park," which was a midway consisting of booths for ring toss, grabs, wheel of fortune, knockdown dolls, bowling alleys, ice cream, candy and other refreshments.

At the Houpla, where there were boxes of candy, china, etc., over which rings were to be tossed, Joseph Crossby and R. U. Oldham were in charge. Captain Kidd's Treasure grab was in charge of E. T. Brigham and Harold Green. Walter M. Baker was at the ring toss and Winslow B. Weston at Ringing the Canes. The wheel of fortune around which there was always an eager group waiting for their number to show up was operated by H. C. Seymour and Seldon George.

George Holmes was manager of the base ball diamond game, and Dr. John Merrill of the peanut grab where two prizes, a cigar case for the gentleman and a salt and pepper shaker for the lady, are waiting for those having the highest score at the end of the second evening. At present the two leaders are H. C. Seymour with 45, and Miss Margaret Magee with 32. George E. Brown and G. Ernest Carr were in charge of shooting the darts.

As there were some good baseball shots present, the knockdown dolls suffered badly from the constant fusillade, one of them being partially decapitated. Percy Hull and A. G. Nelson who were in charge of this feature were kept busy handing out cigars.

THE Y. M. C. A. OPEN SEASON

Secretaries Appointed for the Various Departments

The fall opening of the Boys department of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. was held in the boy's rooms last evening with a large number of boys present.

J. A. Sedgwick, chairman of the boys work committee, presided, and gave the address of welcome also introducing the speakers of the evenings. He told in a few words something of the cost of running an association, and urged the boys to cooperate with those in charge in the work of the department.

Frank Burgess, president of the Association, was introduced and had as his subject, "Physical exercise in every day life," urging the boys to exercise daily and so fit themselves for the duties which lay ahead of them in their future life.

A. F. Bromley the general secretary of the association, spoke on "Responsibility," telling the boys that each should feel his responsibility toward the association in trying to use the equipment provided for them properly.

Mr. Sedgwick introduced the new boys secretary, C. H. Humphrey, who told briefly of the plans for the work in the department for the winter months.

The members of the Boys Cabinet were introduced by Mr. Humphrey as follows: President and secretary of Religious Work, Sturgis Hunt. Vice president of religious work Joseph Beal. Secretary of Physical Work, Herbert Hendry; Secretary of Physical work, Frederick Kingsbury; Secretaries of Educational Work, Arthur Skinner and Donald Crocker. Secretary of Social Work, John McNeil.

Mention was made of an athletic meet for the employed boys on the evening of Oct. 12, in which all the employed boys were invited to participate.

The hit of the evening was made by Joe Beal, who recited in his usual witty fashion, keeping the boys in a gale of laughter throughout the evening. He was assisted by his brother Carlton, who entertained the boys with some of the latest songs.

Refreshments were served and an exciting relay race was run off on the track in the gymnasium by the boys present.

Quincy High and South Boston High will not play Tuesday because the change in coaches at the latter institution has resulted in a rearranged schedule. South Boston will play here later in the season.

Gunners who have been barred from gunning at Great pond, have made arrangements to gun near the Quincy reservoir.

THAYER ACADEMY BOY

Run over by Automobile and Right Leg Broken

Henry Kent, the 16 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Kent of Marshfield was struck by an automobile yesterday morning on Washington street and seriously injured. The young man is a student at Thayer academy and had just alighted from a Brockton bound car due at South Braintree square about 8.15 o'clock. The car was taking the academy turn out and had not come to a full stop when young Kent jumped off and was run down by an automobile owned by the Old Colony Gas Company and driven by Campbell Brown. The machine was proceeding slowly but the young man slipped and fell as he alighted from the electric and the automobile passed over his legs before the chauffeur could stop.

Mr. Kent was placed in Bryan Leonard's auto and taken to the office of Dr. C. A. Sullivan who found that he hadsustained a compound fracture of the right leg. After receiving treatment, he was conveyed to his home in Marshfield in the same automobile.

FUNERAL OF VICTIM.

The funeral of Tom Bradbury, who fired a revolver at his wife and then shot himself through the head Friday morning, was held from the undertaking rooms of John Hall this afternoon. Services were conducted by Rev. J. A. Matheson of the First Presbyterian church. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Bradbury's death was probably instantaneous and his wife escaped through poor marksmanship. A search of the dead man's clothes at the morgue led to the discovery of a supply of amunition but little money.

MAGANN SENTENCED.

Edward V. Magann of Brighton, formerly of this city, who operated an auto that crashed into a stone wall at Nantasket on Sunday morning, Sept. 20, as a result of which one person was killed and six injured, was found guilty of driving while under the influence of liquor in the Hingham court on Friday. Magann was sentenced to four months in the house of correction. He appealed and was held under a bond of $400 for the Superior court at Plymouth.

After hearing a political speech one usually feels that all that is necessary to settle the European war, tranquilize Mexico, end all financial troubles, and raise every one's pay, is to send the candidate to Congress.

Bridge is again the popular card game this fall. If you work at it every day for about two hours, you should sometime become a respectable player.

The corn crop has come out more than was expected, and probably the farmer will get less for it while the consumer will pay more.

The prevailing theory of municipal finance is that it makes no difference what interest you pay on a loan, so long as the payment of the principal is adjourned as long as possible.

The bankers emphatically deny that they are hoarding money, in spite of the fact that many people who would be willing to borrow have not been able to do so.

The highly civilized European fighters are now throwing bombs at children, and if they are going to do a thorough job they must next attack the babies.

COUNTRY FAIR

The bowling alley was the scene of several interesting matches and as there is to be a $5 prize for the best score during the two evenings there was considerable competition. As it now stands Frederick H. Bishop led the gentlemen with a score of 62, and Miss Helen Baker was the lady in the lead with 41. The alleys were run by Jesse I. Litchfield and Charles E. Barker.

The candy booth, which was in charge of the members of the Young Peoples Religious Union, was prettily decorated and the attractively arranged candy was on sale by the following committee: Miss Almira E. Simmons, Anna Weston, Charlotte Barston, Helen Moulton, Katherine Reed, Elizabeth Reed, Priscilla Robinson, Ednah Sanborn and George Simmons.

Ice cream was served by Mrs. G. Ernest Carr and Mrs. C. E. Barker. Coffe and doughnuts by Mrs. R. W. Oldham, Mrs. James B. Geddes. Pop corn by Mrs. R. C. Baker and Mrs. C. H. Baker and frankforts by A. R. Moulton.

Food was on sale in the vestry by a committee of the Ladies' Aid Alliance composed of Miss H .E. Turner, Mrs. Frank A. Page, Miss Jeannie Bliss. Mrs. William E. Howard, and Mrs. William H. Boynton.

The Quincy National Band of ten pieces rendered music throughout the evening.

The entire agricultural exhibit which was beautifully arranged in the vestry was in sole charge of Frederick H. Bishop.

The committee supervisng the Joyland Park was Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. G. Ernest Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Oldham, Leon Brown and George E. Brown.

WARMER TODAY.

As predicted, the weather warmed up considerable today from what it has been during the past two weeks, and this noon the temperature had climbed to the 73 degree point, which was four degrees higher than any point reached at noon in October, 1913. The warmest October day in eighteen years was on Oct. 4, 1898, when the temperature at noon was 85 degrees. Some Indian summer weather is promised for the month of October.

BRAINTREE WEDDING.

Miss Emily Susan Porter daughter Mrs. H. Parker Hobart of 845 Washington street was united in marriage Wednesday evening to Fred Belyea, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Belyea of Mount Vernon avenue. The ceremony was performed at the bride's home at seven o'clock by Rev. Tyler E. Gale, pastor of the South Congregational church. Wales Andrews of Newton was best man and the maid of honor was the bride's cousin, Miss Jane Louise Hobart of East Braintree.

Mr. and Mrs. Belyea left for a wedding trip of about ten days and will visit New York, Washington and Atlantic City. On their return, they will reside at 159 River street, Braintree, and will be at home after December first. Mrs. Belyea is a well known South Braintree young lady and has a host of friends. Mr. Belyea is a popular Braintree young man and is in the employ of the Lewis A. Crossett Co., at North Abington.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery Association is to be held Thursday afternoon at half past two at the Women's clubhouse.

RUTH TICKETS AT PREMIUM

Miss Shirley Says It Will be Like Acting in Home City

Reserved seats will certainly be at a premium on Monday for the Quincy performance of "Along Came Ruth," direct from the Plymouth Theatre, under the auspices of the Quincy Board of Trade.

Owing to the unprecedented demand for tickets for the Quincy production, the Board of Trade feel that it would be unjust to hundreds who have been unable to secure accommodation, to hold tickets which have been reserved at the box office at the theatre after 10 A. M. Monday. At that hour, all tickets so reserved and uncalled for, will be used to fill orders now on hand. Over $850 worth of tickets have already been sold.

Miss Florence Shirley, who has the title role of "Miss Ruth Ambrose," says it will be like acting in her home city to play in Quincy, because the people here have been so warm hearted and hospitable, and have made her feel so much at home. Miss Shirley will arrive in Quincy early Monday afternoon, and will be met by the "Quincy Ruth," who will entertain her during the afternoon. Bud Newcomb and Charles H. Penniman have kindly volunteered the use of their automobiles.

Visits will probably be made to Kincaide Theatre, the Mayor's office at City Hall, the rooms of the Board of Trade, the furniture house of Henry L. Kincaide & Co., the office of the Daily Ledger, and to some of the points of interest in which Quincy abounds.

George F. Elcock thinks he will be able to furnish a thousand more dahlias for another mammoth "Q" for Miss Shirley, if the heavy frosts will hold off a few days. The frosts this week ruined many of his choicest dahlias, but others have bloomed since then, and George is guarding them carefully. Nothing is too good for Miss Shirley he says.

William Patterson, the florist, has volunteered to design another 5x4 floral "Q," from Mr. Elcock's dahlias, and will place it in the foyer of Kincaide's Theatre during the afternoon Photos of the original "Q" may be obtained at the studio of Sue Rice, and will be a souvenir of the night in Boston and the night in Quincy.

This floral piece will be presented to Miss Shirley over the footlights at the close of scene two.

An ovation will probably be given to Miss Shirley when she makes her first appearance in scene one as a demure school girl, seeking a situation in the old furniture store of I. P. Hubbard & Co., and there may be several bouquets presented during the evening.

Perhaps some would like to know of Miss Shirley's mascots, which always accompany her from city to city. She has two, a stuffed black cat and a Campbell kid doll, both of which will squeak if the magic spot is touched. To tease the heroine, these mascots are often stolen or hidden, and are discovered in perilous positions. They always come back however. She often receives requests like this: "Please loan me the doll this evening." And it is liable to bob up in one of the boxes or come over the footlights.

The Quincy production of "Along Came Ruth" has made it necessary to install a large number of additional electric lights at the theatre, and other improvements, for the Board of Trade contract with the company calls for an exact reproduction of the comedy as given this week at the Plymouth Theatre, with the same cast, same scenery and on the same grand scale.

CHIME BELLS TO BE MUFFLED

An interesting feature of the nation-wide observance of Peace Sunday tomorrow will take place in Hingham, when the chime bells on the memorial tower in that town will be rung by the Guild of English bell ringers, connected with the Salem Street church Boston, who will render a half-muffled peal of the bells beginning at 2.30 and lasting an hour. The members of the Guild who will peal the bells desire it understood that their muffled bells will be in memoriam of the dead in the present war, not alone of Great Britain, but the dead of all nations engaged in the present great war. The half-muffled effect is given by covering one side of the bell tongue with leather. When the bells are pealed the stroke from the uncovered side is clear and loud, while that of the covered side is soft, like an echo producing a very sweet effect.

ON WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN TOUR

Quincy's candidate for Congress, Henry L. Kincaide, spoke last night to an audience of men that taxed the capacity of the Manet Club rooms. The speaker was introduced by one of the club members, Waldo A. Galligan, and delivered a stirring address, discussing in detail each of the several improvements for which he will work in Washington. Great applause greeted his remarks and enthusiasm unbounded was displayed. Provosts orchestra furnished music for the evening and the whistling solos by Mathew Fay were a fetching feature. So great was the interest manifested by the men that Colonel Kincaide was unable to leave for East Weymouth until nearly 10 o'clock although billed to speak there at 9.

BACK IN BOSTON.

Herbert F. Price, one of the early residents of Norfolk Downs who about a year ago returned to the old site after a sojourn of some three years years in the South, has associated himself with A. Hailparn & Co., of Winter street, Boston, as general manager and superintendent and advertising manager. For twenty-one years Mr. Price's business life was spent on Winter street in the employ of the Shepard Norwell Co., where he started as a boy and went steadily up the ladder of promotion until he became their advertising manager, resigning to enter the largest department store in Richmond, Va. After two years' service in the South, he came East and associated himself with L. Dimond & Sons, of Providence, R. I.

Mr. Price is a man extremely well known in Boston, having served under the Hon. John F. Fitzgerald as trustee and secretary of the Boston Consumptives' Hospital almost six years, commencing with the institution of this board, and only resigning his office after witnessing this work develop into a great series of hospitals, devoted to the treatment of tuberculosis. He is author of "Successful Salemanship"-"Thrift" and other subjects, and has in the past delivered numerous addresses before various Merchants' Associations on the "Past and Present of Retail Merchandising" and before bodies of salespeople on the Science of Salesmanship.

He was a member of the Pilgrim Publicity Association of Boston, The Advertisers Club of Richmond, Va., and the Town Criers of Providence, R. I., and he went to Baltimore, Md., as a delegate to the Convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America.

WOLLASTON AUXILIARY.

Officers for Wollaston Auxiliary Woman's Board of Missions for the season of 1914-1915 are:

President—Mrs. A. A. Lincoln; vice president—Mrs. N. G. Nickerson; secretary—Mrs. G. H. Murray; treasurer—Mrs. L. S. Bugbee; executive committee the above officers and Mrs. E. S. Tenney, Mrs. I. W. Sneath and Mrs. C. G. Farwell. Meetings are held the first Wednesday of each month at half past two, the opening one of the season being Oct. 7 with Mrs. A. A. Lincoln of Lincoln avenue, which will introduce the text book "The Child in the Midst."

Modesty, yet firmness in the carrying out of her ideas, are the elements that Ruth used that made Oldport, a thriving city in the play "Along Came Ruth." Quincy will profit from the comedy.

SPORT NEWS

A record number of teams, 30 have sent entries for the State soccer cup competition. The time for sending entries has been extended until this evening and the officials believe five or six more teams will come in. On Sunday the State association will meet to make the drawings for the games of the first round which is to be decided by Oct. 31.

Physical Director L. F. LaRose withdrew his Y. M. C. A. relay team from the race at the Brockton Fair because of the inability of one his men to compete. Kingsbury has run within a period of 90 days for the B. A. A. and was not eligible to represent the Y. M. C. A.

Harry Wessels of this city took third place in the pole vault at the Brockton fair. He cleared the bar at 11 ft. 2 in. It was Wessells first appearance in athletics since he became the chemist at the Bradley Fertilizer plant at North Weymouth. The event was won by H. J. Reed of the Irish American A. A. who went 11 ft. 7 in. from scratch.

The first pool match for a trophy played here in some years is scheduled for Monday evening, when Daniel Barnes and Raymond Josephine meet in a 300 point match. The former is a veteran and the latter one of the younger players in the city, and experience may count heavily in the results.

DR. SMITH HELD UP.

Thre were no games in the grammar school soccer league Friday afternoon because Dr. J. Gardner Smith, physicial director of the schools who has the sport in charge failed to appear in time to start the contests. Dr. Smith finished his instruction at the Atherton Hough school in time to catch the 3.30 car but a friendly autoist invited him to ride and he accepted. Engine trouble held up the machine until it was too late for the game. Dr. Smith has been in this city for five years and has always been present on time.

SHIPYARD BOWLING

Yard, Government Draftsmen and G. Department Win

Mooney of the Mold Loft totaled 327 rolling against the Yard team at the Coliseum alleys in the Fore River league matches Friday night, and easily outclassed the other rollers. His high single of 128, followed a single of 91 and 108 respectively, and records trembled and fell with a crash.

Kateon had a single of 115, Bliss 113, Mooney 107, Ryan 110, Auld 116, and the men in general showed marked improvement over their previous showing.

The Yard and the Mold Loft divided the points, Mahoneys finish spoiling the former's chance of getting the odd point.

RINDGE TECH DEFEATS HIGH

Score Was 13 to 0 in Favor of the Visitors

A heavy football eleven of Rindge Tech of Cambridge easily defeated Quincy at the Merrymount oval Friday afternoon, 13 to 0, in a game in which White, the visiting right half contributed all the spectacular features.

His first score followed a series of line bucks from Quincys 28-yard line, at which point the local aggregation lost the ball on a fumble. The second score was the result of a 30-yard forward pass from Hadley, which White received a few feet from the goal line. In the third period he took a kickoff on the 10-yard line, and before he was downed by five of the Quincy players he had carried the ball more than half the length of the field.

The rivalry existing between the teams was intense, and when they trooped on togged out in light football style, on account of the ideal weather, the crowd that lined the steep slope on the side sent up cheer after cheer It was seldom during the game, however, the cheering squad under the direction of Reggie Gay, were able to toot for Quincy High team, the occasions requiring individual mention in most cases including Larkin, DiSenso, Bogan and Hamlin, who were commended in public by the rooters and the other men on the line not often enough to make an impression on the crowd.

The visitors plowed the line with ease, greatly assisted by superior weight, but their end runs were uncertain. Their forward passes when allowed were good for distances, while Quincy only got away with two forwards. The visiting team appeared to cripple easily and harder playing of Quincy in the first period would have resulted in the Rindge team going home under difficulties.

MILTON HIGH DEFEATED.

The Milton High football team played the second game of the season against the High School of Commerce team, Friday afternoon at Cunningham Park. The score was 12 to 0 in favor of the visitors. During the first half Milton played a very dead game. it was then that the winners made their score. In the second half the home team came back strong and showed some real "pep." "Mayor" White, right end for Milton, got three beautiful tackles in succession in the second half, he was the star player throughout the game. Capt. "Dutch" Reiser and "Porker" Field also did some fine playing. The Milton boys were too slow throughout the game and several men on the line played like a bunch of "sticks." They will have to get a good waking up if they intend to win any games this year.

Joseph Murphy, who has been letter carrier on the Fort Point route, has been assigned to the reserve list, the season being closed.

Francis B. Carroll re-entered Harvard this week.

Rev. Clifford Newton is to preach at the regular service of the Universalist church Sunday.

Mrs. Addie Williams has returned from a two weeks' stay at Waltham and to once more presiding at D. A. Jones'.

Robert Alvord returned to Yale the first of the week.

Joseph McLaughlin, who had charge of the porters at the Profile house at the White Mountains the past season, has entered Tufts Medical school.

Miss Nellie Crane has entered Boothby Hospital to train as a nurse.

Miss Ruth Freeman, 18 Hillside road, was hostes Thursday for the Wide Awakes. There was a roll call, followed by a session in the interest of the Weymouth District Nurse Association. A social hour followed with refreshments.

FINED ON TWO CHARGES.

Patrick Keaney, a probationer from the Massachusetts Reformatory, attended the Brockton fair Friday, and when it came time to go home found himself without funds. He boarded a train however and attempted to hide on the lower step of the rear car. There he was found by the conductor, and in refusing to pay his fare is alleged to have assaulted the conductor. When the train arrived at Holbrook he was put off and given in charge of an officer with whom he also put up a fight. In the Quincy court he was fined $25 for evading fare and $25 for assault on an officer.

Harry Holton has the contract to truck all the "Along Came Ruth" scenery and property to Quincy early Monday morning. Several trips will be necessary.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED.

It cost three Braintree young men $25 each this morning for engaging in a game of craps in a public street of that town last Sunday. It was during the early afternoon that Officer Gallivan came across them busily engaged in shooting craps on Sterling street. They were summoned into court and on their plea of guilty were fined $25 each. The court suspended their sentences on condition that they refrain from further gambling.

BRAINTREE GRANGE.

Last Monday evening the members of Braintree Grange held a fair and an exhibition of flowers, fruits and vegetables in Odd Fellows' hall, and townspeople whether members of the grange or not were allowed to exhibit. The display was most interesting and there was a long list of "honorable mentions," although there were no prizes offered. The drama "All Tangled Up" was ably presented by the following cast:

Ice Cream—Owen Faulkner, Lloyd Faulkner, Kenneth Dyer.

Next Tuesday evening will be "neighbors night" at the Everett grange and the local grange will have charge of the entertainment.

The committee of arrangements composed of those in charge of the tables, with Miss Isora Dustin as chairman.

☞ The love scene of Israel Putnam Hubbard and Dorcas Burnham in "Along Came Ruth" is well worth seeing over again. Dorcas is certainly very coy in her love scene with Israel.

IMPROVEMENTS AT ATLANTIC

Discussed at Meeting of the Local Association

At the first fall meeting of the Atlantic Improvement Association in Ward Six rooms last night. President Henry Mosses asked the men to confine all business to that for which the Association was organized, and to work for improvements in the community.

It was voted that the Atlantic Associations work with the Squantum Association and see if the street railway would not put on an extra car at noon for the benefit of the school children and not have the twelve o'clock Squantum car wait at the school until after twelve as is now the custom.

Action was also taken to have a committee at once call on the Commissioner of Public Works and see if Ocean street could not be improved at once instead of waiting until frost comes.

A committee was also chosen to see about having an electric light put on Atlantic street between the bridge and Hancock.

Complaints were made about the condition of Billings street where it it runs into Atlantic.

The meeting voted to eliminate all politics from the Association, and if any of the candidates wish to be heard, they can hire the hall and conduct the meeting themselves.

GOVERNOR'S DAY.

Governor's Day at Brockton Fair brought none other than Councillor Charles W. Guy of this city who is a candidate for re-election. The sage councillor was in the party with Lieut. Gov. Barry, and during a discussion of politics the lieutenant governor remarked there is more brotherhood of man and less partiality shown in politics today than ever before, and it is good that it is that way.

SWEDISH LUTHERANS LAY CORNER STONE

Addition to Their Church Will Be Nearly as Large as the Edifice

Acting Mayor Crane and Others Were Speakers

Sunday afternoon at 4.30, the ceremonies of laying the corner stone of the addition that is to be built to the Swedish Lutheran church on Granite street were held in the presence of a large congregation. The services were of a simple nature and save for the brief address of City Clerk Crane, the acting Mayor, the exercises were conducted in the Swedish language.

The Swedish Lutheran church, is perhaps better known as "the church on the rock," for it is built on the top of a large ledge. The corner stone of the original church was laid in 1892 at the time Dr. C. O. Young was pastor. Dr. Young was a most earnest worker for the church during its early struggle, and that the foundation he laid of the society was well done is manifest by the rapid growth the society has made since that time. The present edifice has long been too small to meet the wants of the society for it has been found necessary in case of church affairs to hire a hall outside of the church. Then the large Sunday school has been cramped for room and the present addition was imperative.

The addition, which is nearly as large as the original church, is being built on the easterly side. It was necessary to quarry out the rock in order to obtain a cellar under the addition. The rock thus quarried was finished on the spot, and is being used for the walls of the addition, which is to cost in the neighborhood of $6,000.

The services Sunday afternoon opened with a congregational hymn followed by scripture reading and prayer by the pastor, Rev. Leander Hokenson. He spoke briefly of the growth of the Lutheran church throughout the country. He also spoke of the work of the Lutheran church in Quincy, and the growth of the Quincy church. He spoke of the personal interest which Mayor Miller had taken in the church. He regretted that Mayor Miller was unable to be present on account of illness. The Acting Mayor was however with us and he took pleasure in presenting him.

Acting Mayor Crane said: "Today when many papers are bewailing the decrease in church goers, it is a pleasing novelty to know one church is obliged to increase the size of its edifice. The more churches a city has the better it is, and today, more than ever before, churches have a great task before them.

"Irreverence and socialism are the foes that should be fought. Irreverance may be combated through religious teachings.

"Socialism must be treated differently. Sometimes it seems as if the people who march through the streets, flaunting their banners inscribed 'No God, No Master' threaten the very life of the church. All must stand shoulder to shoulder and put them down, because without reverence, law and order, no country can long survive."

A resolution of sympathy to Mayor Miller in his illness, and expressing the hope for his speedy recovery was passed by a rising vote.

The ceremony of laying the corner stone, which had already been placed in position, was then read in the Swedish language by the pastor.

August Viden, one of the original members of the church, spoke of the early history of the Lutheran church in Quincy and its growth. A collection was taken for the building fund, and the exercises closed with benediction by the pastor.

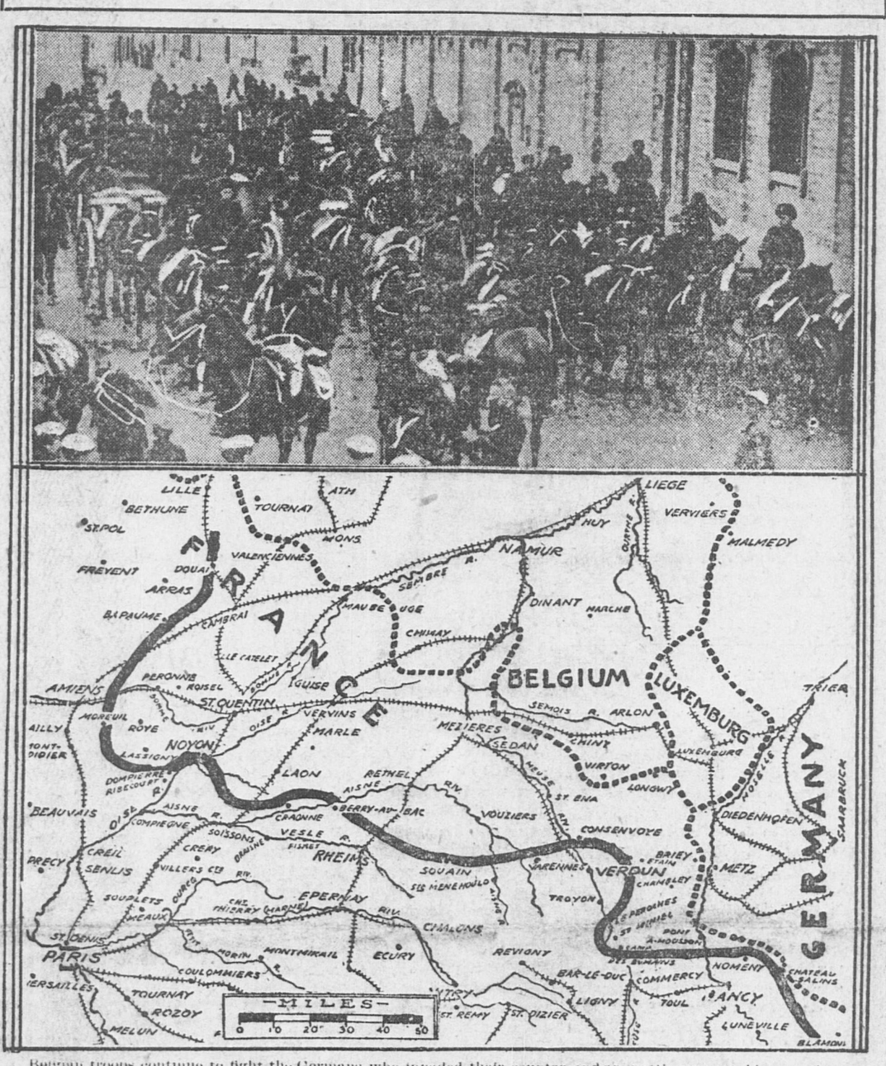

During the exercises there was singing by the church choir and a solo by Miss Celia Lindquist.

TICKETS FOR TAXPAYERS

In spite of the fact that the Assessors claim there are no complaints about the tax valuation, outside of newspaper talk, the number of callers this morning seeking to have their valuation reduced was so great that that a clerk was placed at the head of the stairway leading to the Council Chamber, giving out number tickets, the same as they do in barber shops. Kickers were admitted into the presence of the august body of Assessors by number and the numbers given out ran well long toward a hundred.

Unity Circle Kings Daughters will meet Tuesday Oct. 6 at 7.30 in Bethany chapel. Miss Purchase will speak on "The Winter's Need in Quincy."

Belgians Continue Stubborn Fight; Map Showing Battle Line In France.

Belgian troops continue to fight the Germans who invaded their country and are putting up a stubborn resistance. The upper picture shows Belgian artillery in active service. The black line on the map shows the battle line in France according to latest bulletins showing the positions of the opposing armies.

MAYOR'S CONDITION IS CRITICAL

No special news as to the condition of Mayor Miller was given out this morning. It was said at City Hall that he passed a comfortable night but that he was very weak, and that his condition was critical. It is now thirty days since he has been at City Hall, and the duties of the office have fallen on City Clerk Emery L. Crane which with the usual rush of business in the City Clerks office at this season of the year, makes him a very busy official.

FIRE ALARMS NUMEROUS

But Many Were False and Loss Slight

Sunday afternoon and evening were busy ones for the fire department for there were four bell alarms during the evening and one still alarm. The first alarm was from Box 123 at 6.12. This was for a blaze in a large tree on the Dorothy Q. estate. The tree, an old one, hung over the sidewalk on Hancock street and the fire which was started in the stump, probably by some boys, blazed up and started the dry leaves on the tree burning, so that it made quite a spectacular blaze. A still alarm would have been sufficient, but some one rang in the box near the car born. A stream from a hydrant at the corner of Bridge street extinguished the blaze. The Central station auto chemical however was obliged to respond to a still call again at 10 o'clock as the fire had started up again.

At 8.35 an alarm was sounded from Box 16 located on the corner of Sea street and Rock Island road. This was a false alarm and the recall sounded almost immediately.

At 9.53 the lost child call was sounded from Box 24, as noted elsewhere. At 11.09 an alarm was sounded from Box 137. This was for a slight fire in the box office of the ball grounds of the Old Colony club on Water street. The fire was doubtless an incendiary and did but little damage. The last alarm of the evening came from Box 45 at 11.30 and was false.

BRIDE POPULAR QUINCY GIRL

Boston Fireman Finds Life Helpmate in This City

Miss Theresa Howley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Howley of Hall place, one of the most popular young ladies of West Quincy and James Hennessey, a member of the Boston fire department were married Sunday evening in the presence of their immediate relatives and friends.

The ceremony took place at the St. Mary's parish house, Rev. Fr. Thomas R. McCoy, pastor, officiating. Miss Anna Howley, a sister of the bride was bridesmaid and Albert Hennessey, a brother of the groom was best man.

The bride was handsomely gowned in a dress of chantilly lace over white satin and wore a veil caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her attendant was dressed in pink crepe meteor and carried pink roses.

About eighty persons attended the reception at the home of the bride's parents. The house was brilliantly illuminated and decorated with potted plants, ferns and autumnal foliage.

Mr. and Mrs. Hennessey are now on a honeymoon to New York and Washington and on their return will reside at 38 Norton street, Dorchester.

The bride is one of the best known club members of this city and has been private secretary at the advertising offices of Brackett and Parker Boston.

PRIZE WINNERS AT COUNTRY FAIR

Children Rival Them in Beautiful Flower Gardens

The second and last day of the Wollaston Country Fair, held at the vestry and grounds of the Unitarian church was even better patronized than on the first night. All Saturday afternoon and evening the grounds were crowded and the attendance exceeded 500.

Joyland Park was in operation the same as on Friday evening, but was running at fuller blast as a consequence of the larger crowd.

PRIZE WINNERS.

The judges, Charles Luard and Mrs. C. R. Safford, after carefully going over the exhibits, selected the best collections and assigned the prizes. The association cup for the best exhibit was awarded to Miss Agnes P. Laffan of Madison street. Her exhibit was a large one and took many prizes, as follows; first prize, red tomatoes; first prize, carrots; second prize lettuce; second prize, squash; second prize. musk-melon; second prize, chard; second prize, turnips; third prize, potatoes; special prize, yellow tomatoes; special prize, pop corn; third prize, beets; special prize, cucumbers; special prize, endive; special prize, beans. Miss Laffan was also awarded a special prize of $1 for parsley.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS.

When the war began, the news censor and his big blue pencil were very obvious. One could hardly tell whether a dispatch was describing the battle of Waterloo in 1815 or that of Liege in 1914. As the campaign proceeded, the lid was lifted quite a little. The world could see and hear the clash of Armageddon. But last week things seem to have tightened down again.

It is perhaps taken for granted that war movements must be conducted in secrecy. Yet one can't help feeling that a war correspondent performs a very important function, and one that an armed force distinctly needs.

It is the business of the trained military writer to present a vivid picture of the work of the soldiers. If the preparation of this account is left to the press agents of the war offices, all the color of the picture is left out. It becomes as pale and flat as a law brief, with little to arouse enthusiasm or win sympathy.

But if the trained war correspondent is permitted to accompany the troops, and write with some freedom, he transmits to the world a thrilling picture of the daring and sacrifices of war. This communicates enthusiasm to his own countrymen, relieves anxities, and elicts hope and confidence. It arouses the admiration and sympathy of neutral nations. When the censor cuts out the news, he cuts the line of communication with home enthusiasm.

It is natural that military commanders should wish to conceal movements of troops. But to conceal these movements until long after the enemy are aware of them is poor policy. Itl a graphic story of past events is promptly sent home by writers trained to observe and tell what they see, a most efficient means of elicting home support and winning favorable sentiment has been set to work.

TWO CARS ROLL OVER

Quincy Excursionists in Railroad Wreck in North Adams

Three Quincy people had narrow escapes from serious injury Saturday afternoon when the train upon which they were bound from Wilmington to North Adams left the irons, and two cars of the train rolled down the embankment. The Quincy people were Officer John J. Avery, Alexander Thompson and Miss Elizabeth Gurant of 118 Phipps street. They with many other Greater Boston people had taken the excusion to the Hoosac Tunnel. The Quincy party on arriving at North Adams took the side excursion to Wilmington, Vt. The trip had been a delightful one and they were on their way back to North Adams where they were to take the train for Boston when the accident hapened.

Officer Avery in telling of his experience said there were but two cars on the special train and he and the others from Quincy were in the rear car. Suddenly the bumping of the car showed that it had left the rails. One of the men reached up and pulled the bell rope and the emergency brakes were immediately applied. Before they could do anything to save themselves, however, their car began to roll down the embankment. A telephone pole half way down the embankment served to temporarily check the car in which he was, but it continued to roll until it brought up, upside down, in a brook at the foot of the embankment.

Officer Avery and the others tried to grab hold of the seats to protect themselves, but the heavy cushions of the seats were not fastened, and they came off and flew about, adding confusion and danger. All were spellbound for a minute, and then the air was full of shrieks. Fortunately there was but little water in the brook at the time, but soon this began to run into the car and there was a scramble to get out. Officer Avery and the two other Quincy people crawled through the roof of the car. Finding himself not seriously injured, he joined with other passengers in trying to get the injured from the overturned car. There was a panic for a time, but fortunately there was nothing to cause the cars to take fire and a much worse horror was averted.

Eventually, all were gotten out, but it was not until they were taken to North Adams that physicians were obtained. The worse injured were given first-aid treatment and then taken to the hospitals and the others came home.

Officer Avery said that only one car went down the embankment the other tipping over on its side near the rails. The locomotive did not leave the rails but the tender was overturned.

Many were injured by flying glass and broken car seats, as for a time the car seemed to be full of flying glass and seats. Miss Gurant escaped almost without a scratch. Officer Avery had his back badly wrenched and Mr. Thompson an ankle sprained. The clothing of all three was more or less torn.

According to Officer Avery the accident must have been caused by the rails spreading.

This morning it was learned that there were two other Quincy people on the train at the time of the accident but fortunately both escaped injury. They were Miss Mary Coyle of Wibird street and Miss Annie Stancomb of Maple street.

FOR CHRONIC COUGHS

Milton, Pa., Woman Has Found a Remedy.

Mrs. Howard Wagner of Milton, Pa., says: "I had a bad cold for months, and would cough every night until midnight. I consulted a doctor and took two kinds of medicine but got no relief. Vinol was recommended and after taking it a week I could sleep all night without coughing once. I continued its use and now have a fine appetite, never felt better and my cough is entirely gone."

It is a well known fact that when a person is run-down, stomach out of order, or the system overloaded with waste matter, vital resistance is lowered and colds and coughs are easily contracted.

The safest and surest method we know to overcome this condition is by taking our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol. In the most natural manner Vinol tones up the digestive organs, promotes a hearty appetite, enriches the blood, and as a specific for chronic coughs, colds and bronchial troubles Vinol is unexcelled.

Among Our Churches

FIRST PARISH CHURCH.

At the First Parish a special service of "peace and righteousness" was used in compliance with the request of the President; and the sermon dealt with the fundamental conditions of permanent peace.

First, however, by way of introduction Mr. Hudson gave on interesting and vivid description of the fascination of following mountain trails. While doing so he emphasized the necessity for the successful mountain climber to familiarize himself with the marks of the particular trail he is following, and be guided absolutely by those marks.

It often happens in mountain climbing that the section of the right path immediately before you seems less promising and attractive than some other way. But the only safety lies in following the marks of your trail. Otherwise you are sure to get lost.

Then the preacher applied the lesson to life. Mankind must have a definite standard and follow that standard faithfully. If each man does the thing most pleasing to himself, or the thing which is commonly done by others of his class, then society inevitably drifts toward chaos, and individual character becomes weak and flabby.

Nor is there any doubt as to what our standard must be. As a Christian nation our only standard is the personality, the life and the teachings of Jesus Christ. For us he is the revelation of the will of God, and that will we must follow at the peril of losing all that is best in civilization and in life.

Moreover Jesus himself summarized for us the whole significance of the Christian standard in two commands: Love God with all your heart, mind, soul and strength; and your neighbor as yourself. First faith, then good will. If Christian nations had followed that standard, Europe and the world might have been spared this devastating war. It is useless to discuss methods of insuring peace by treaties and international agreements so long as hatred, prejudice and distrust continue to be dominating motives in the lives of men and nations. The present challenge to Protestant Christianity is to make the standard of Christ vital and imperative in modern society, and he urged this as a special responsibility upon All Churches calling themselves liberal and particularly upon those whose history has been indentical with the deelopment of New England.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

As a part of the opening exercises of Bethany Bible school on Sunday was the presentation of a silk flag by the Woman's Relief Corps to the school. Two hymns were sung, Supt. Hayward read the scriptures, and the pastor offered prayer.

Then Mrs. Newman Savage, the president of the corps, told of the objects of the visit of the members of the W. R. C. Mrs. W. W. Penniman, the patriotic instructor of the corps, followed and told briefly the history of the flag. She said this was the third flag the W. R. C. had presented to Sunday schools of Quincy, the first being to the Unitarian and the second to the Universalist.

All united in giving the school salute to the flag; the church choir sang the Star Spangled Banner, and the ladies gave the W. R. C. salute.

Supt. Hayward, in accepting the flag, said the school would do its best to educate the boys and girls to love the flag and to be patriotic.

Rev. B. A. Willmott said every child should love the symbol of our government. The flag does not stand for war but for peace. He recognized that the flag meant much to the Grand Army, as it had cost the veterans a great deal. He was grateful to the W. R. C. for the flag as he had wanted the Bible school to have one for a long time.

At the regular Sunday morning service, the pastor referred to the Peace day proclamation of President Wilson, and said he thought the people generally were in sympathy. We should pray not only in the churches but in the home. It was serious times when over half the world was involved in war.

An offering was taken in behalf of the work of the Red Cross.

The text of the morning sermon was from St. Luke 11:1—And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said under him, Lord, teach us to pray as John also taught his disciples.

It was the first of a series of sermons on the Lords Prayer. The following subjects will be: "Our Father," "Hallowed be Thy name," "Thy kingdom come," "Our daily bread," "Forgive our debts," and "Temptation."

The pleasant evening service attracted a large audience. The topic was first in the series on the revelation of God in the lives of men—"The jealous man." The second will be "The great pioneer." The third "The penalty of greed," and the fourth "The foe of injustice." The girls vested choir has been enlarged to 36 voices, and attracts many to these services.

Tuesday evening Unity circle of Kings Daughters will be addressed by Miss Purchase, the secretary of the Associated Charities upon "Winter's needs in Quincy."

Mrs. Theophilus King of Adams street will entertain Bethany Womens Union on Wednesday afternoon at its first meeting of the season. All ladies attending the church are invited.

Marion Horton will be the leader of the Junior Christian Endeavor at 4 P. M. Thursday.

The subject for the mid week service on Thursday evening will be "The appeal of the church to men."

The first conclave of the Knights of King Arthur will be held Friday at 6 P. M.

On Wednesday evening Rev. Mr. Willmott will preach the sermon at the installation of Rev. A. F. Dunnels at Orange, N. J.

HALL PLACE M. E.

"The dove of peace" was the subject on which Rev. P. S. Neldon based his sermon at the Hall Place M. E. church Sunday morning, taking his text from Genesis 8-11 "And the dove came in to him in the evening; and lo, in her mouth was an olive leaf plucked off; so Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth."

In speaking of the cause of the terrible war in Europe, Mr. Neldon said it was not caused by the assassination which took place in Servia a short while ago, but that the cry of the last 25 years had been "In times of peace prepare for war," as the only way to keep peace was for each nation to be equipped more strongly than its competitor. As a result of that idea the whole of Europe has become so saturated with the thought of war that it only needed that one spark in Servia to start the conflagration that has set the whole of Europe at war, and that those people are finding out that the best way to secure peace and keep peace is not in preparing for war.

The Sunday school has started in on the new graded lesson system.

The Epworth League devotional service was led by the first vice president on the subject, "A song of Companionships," and was followed by the consecration service.

The pastor took for the text of his evening sermon—"Think not that I am come to send peace on earth; I came not the send peace but a sword" Matt. 10-34. He said that though this might seem to go against his sermon of the morning on peace, it was not so, as he was speaking here of the "sword of the Spirit" which was to prepare us for the great work of the Master.

A meeting of the Ladies Aid is called Tuesday night in the vestry.

Wednesday night the Fowler chapter of the Brotherhood will hold its 17th meeting in the vestry. Mr. Betts of the Park Avenue church will speak on the subject "A man little known." All men are invited.

Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7.30. Choir rehearsal will follow.

Friday evening the Epworth League will give an entertainment in the vestry at 8 o'clock.

Next Sunday will be Rally Day in the Sunday school.

ADVANTAGES:

1.—Better instruction and better prices cannot be obtained in Quincy.

2.—Our system is thorough and modern; our instructors are capable, experienced and up-to-date.

3.—Our pupils have the privilege of appearing in public three times a season; and know how to conduct themselves correctly and gracefully on the concert stage.

4.—Our 1st. and 2nd. year General Class lessons are worth as much as the regular piano lessons, but this year we include these lessons with the price of the piano lessons alone.

5.—The director, Mr. Hackelton, is a graduate of the N. E. Conservatory of Music, finished abroad and a leading teacher in Boston for ten years.

6.—We award certificates to pupils finishing our courses.

7.—We are presenting a limited number of music rolls to our pupils as a souvenir of our opening.

Information regarding terms, teachers, system etc., will be cheerfully given at the School, or a circular sent on request.

SUDDEN DEATH OF A PRIEST

Rev. Fr. McDonnell of Braintree Passes Away

Rev. Fr. Matthew Francis McDonnell, pastor of the St. Francis church of South Braintree passed away Saturday evening at the parochial residence after an illness of about one hour, death ensuing from heart failure.

On the morning of that day, he had said a funeral mass for one of his late parishioners and at 7.30 o'clock in the evening he had officiated at a baptism. About 9 o'clock he was taken ill and died about 10 o'clock despite all the skilled efforts of his physician, Dr. C. A. Sullivan who was called to attend him.

Matthew Francis McDonnell was the son of Patrick and Bridget (Cunniff) McDonnell and was born in County Roscommon, Ireland, June 18, 1853. He was educated at Summer Hill College in Athlone and at All Hallows College, Dublin. He was ordained to the priesthood at All Hallows college, June 24, 1878, and in July of the same year came to Boston to take up his chosen career of a churchman.

Father McDonnell was appointed by the late Archbishop Williams to be curate at Stoughton, where the youthful priest labored for a year. He was then transferred to St. Charles church in Woburn, where he remained as curate for eleven years, going from there to St. Anne's church Neponset, where he was curate for three years.

In 1903, Archbishop Williams honored him with the appointment as pastor of the St. Francis church of Braintree, soon after the death of the former pastor, Rev. Francis Friguglietti. During the eleven years that Father McDonnell labored as pastor, the parish has prospered and the beautiful new church on Washington street has been erected to take the place of the old edifice on Central avenue. Last May, Father McDonnell enjoyed a trip to Europe, visiting Lourdes in France, points of interest in Germany, and his old home in Ireland. He spent considerable time in Rome and during his stay there he was received in audience by the late Pope Pius X and was privileged to say mass in a chapel of St. ePters.

He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Hugh Whoriskey and Mrs. James F. Kelley of Quincy and Miss Theresa McDonnell, a teacher in the Quincy public schools, who made her home at the parochial residence. He leaves a nephew, Rev. Timothy A. McDonnell, C. S. S. R. of Maguez, Porto Rico, also several nieces and nephews, the children of his late brothers John A. and Thomas McDonnell of Quincy.

QUINCY PEOPLE IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Three Quincy persons were thrown out of an automobile and slightly injured Sunday evening when the auto in which they were riding was struck by the machine driven by William F. Carrigan, catcher and manager of the Red Sox at Pond and Prine streets, Jamaica Plain.

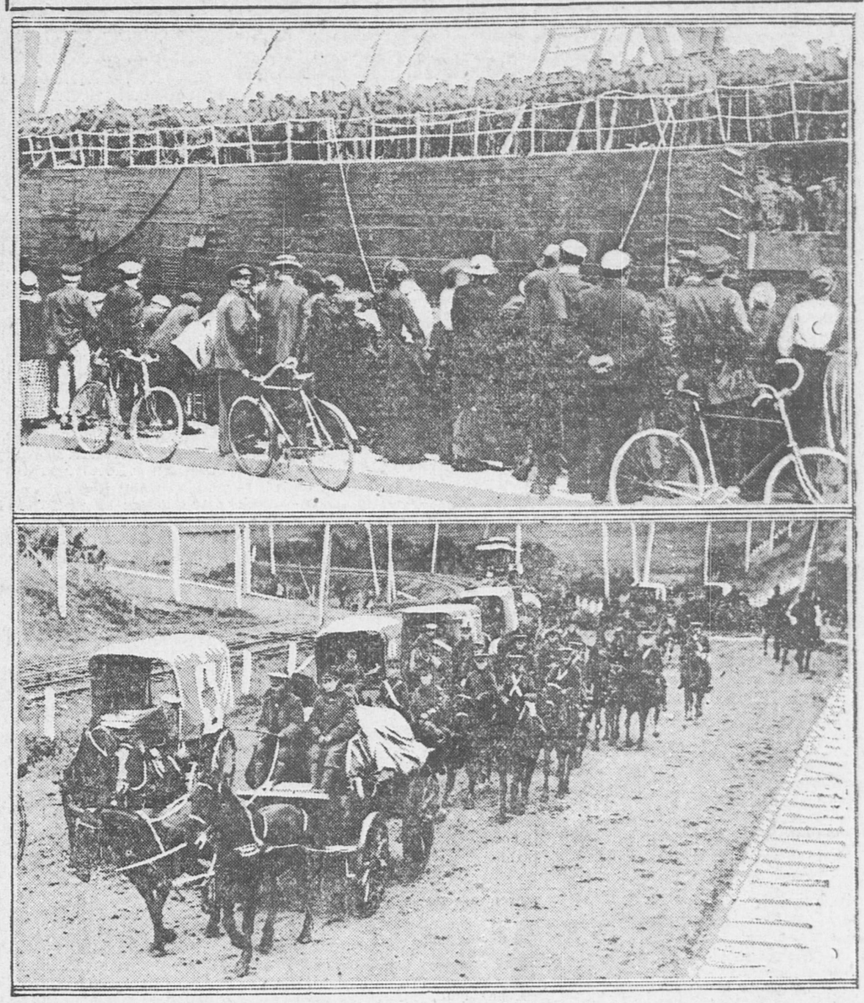

The injured were Mr. and Mrs. John McDermott and their 21 year old daughter, Anna, all of Willard street, West Quincy. Mrs. McDermott was the most seriously injured of the three.

The machine in which they rode was owned and operated by William McPherson of 91 Common street, West Quincy. McPherson had just turned a corner when the Carrigan machine struck it. The impact was so great the rear axle of the McPherson machine snapped and his passengers were thrown out.

Mrs. McDermott was picked up in a semi conscious condition but revived before Dr. Mansfield of Prince street arrived. He found her left side strained. Her daughter struck the street hands first and sustained slight burises and abrasions about the face and hands. Mr. McDermott apparently withstood the sudden shock. McPherson was not thrown out but struck heavily against the steering wheel of his machine. All were taken to their homes and are doing well this morning.

William E. Hingston, the well known handwriting expert, is to give a talk before the Quincy Master's club at the Coddington school hall this week on handwriting and its bearing on crime.

England Is Hurrying Troops From All Directions For Service Against Germany.

Photos by American Press Association.

All lands that are under the British flag are hurrying troops to the front in the war against Germany. Even India and Australia are furnishing their quotas of fighting men. DISTRICT COURT.

Nilo Dallasta was fined $10 for hunting on the Lords Day at Braintree and $10 for hunting without a license.

David Kenney was fined $15 for drunkenness at Weymouth, Harry Anderson $15, John Prispanen $15 and Edward Gleason $15 for drunkenness at Quincy and Daniel Bennett was sentenced to three months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Braintree.

Richmond W. Wells was fined $50 and sentenced to two months in the house of correction for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor at Cohasset.

THEOSOPHISTS.

The New Thought Theosophists held a meeting in Electa hall at 2.45 Sunday Mrs. Lottie Brooks of Boston gave a very interesting talk on the Bible and its teachings pointing out very clearly the doctrines of good will towards all mankind, thus living up to the true standard of its teachings. The meeting was very interesting to those who attended and Mrs. Brook's services have been obtained for a series of those soul talks, to be held in Electa hall, Johnson building each Sunday at 2.45 until further notice. All welcome.

SPIRITUALISTS.

Quincy First Spiritualist church held their meeting in Electa hall, Sunday evening at 7.30. After scripture reading, prayer and praise service Dr. Walter H. Rollins gave a practical demonstration of his healing powers in full view of the audience and on local reliable people thus proving the truth of the Saviour's message to mankind, "And more than this will ye do in my name." The audience were very attentive and many were surprised by the talk and testimonies given from the speaker.

SPORT NEWS

Quincy and Weymouth High schools are the only two New England institutions honored with half tones of teams in the Reach official basket ball guide, advance copies of which were delivered to this office today. The picture of the High school group which totaled 459 points to 317 for their opponents, appears on page 96. The group includes H. W. French. the faculty coach; Fred Atwood, manager; Mullen, Page, White, Crocker, Jenkins, Bates, Hamlin, Brown and Martin. The resemblances are remarkable.

The book which contains the official rules for this year, information of value to the fan, and a synopsis of last years work is considered the most authentic manual issued for the protection and government of the game. Edited by experts who have followed the game for years, the special mention of Quincy High's last year team puts the special mark of national approval on the fastest High school aggregation in New England last fall.

Racing by moonlight was one of the features at the Saturday meet of the Old Colony Driving club at South Weymouth. This race was that of class A. pacers and was won by Miss Winifred. The winners in the other events were as follows:—Class B, Katherine; class C, Edith R. class D, Kathleen; class E, Catherine; class G, Teddy Muscovite; class H, Doubtful; class I, Lady B; class J, Sampson Maid; class K, Patriot; class L, Higgins; class M, Kaldar.

Thirty-one Massachusetts and New Hampshire teams have entered for the state soccer foot ball cup. This is ten more clubs than last year and shows that interest in this game is on the increase. Among the noted teams however who have not entered this year are the Fore Rivers which has casioned some surprise.

The Redmen and Div. 22, A. O. H. did not cross bats Saturday afternoon to play off the tie for the amateur championship of the city, and the indications are that the season will wane without the question being settled. The West Quincy players claim that the South Quincy aggregation will not meet them. The fans hope to see both nines together on Columbus Day however unless the weather grows steadily colder.

Mrs. C. E. Prescott, D. D. G. P., of Boston, is to be the guest of Maple lodge, Wednesday evening at their meeting in Protction hall.

EAST MILTON DEFEATED

Championship of Milton Goes to Mattapan

All hopes of the baseball team, representing East Milton, getting the championship of the town and the $100 purse, vanished Saturday afternoon when they were badly defeated by the Mattapan team, by the score of 10 to 2. The game was called at the end of the seventh inning, on account of darkness at the request of the managers of both teams. The game was very interesting and each team fought "nip and tuck" except in the last two innings. There was some very heavy hitting throughout the game on both sides.

"Fredie" and "Eddie" Hoyt playing for East Milton each got a three-base hit. Murphy, right fielder for Mattapan knocked out a home run in the fifth, and Stuart the pitcher for the same team, got to third base in the sixth on account of an error on the part of East Milton's outfield. Wood's the right fielder for the losers, and Brooks, short-stop for the winners each made a sensational catch during the game.

The teams played a pretty even game up to the sixth inning when Mattapan had a regular "walk-off" and pulled in six runs off "Ed" Palucci, who was not as strong as usual, but still he showed a game spirit throughout the whole game.

The three base hit of "Eddie" Hoyt in the fourth brought in East Milton's only two runs. In the seventh inning a very pretty double play was made by Robertson to "Freddie" Hoyt.

This championship series proved to be the best and most successful of its kind ever held i nthe base ball history of the town an dmuch credit is due for its grand success to "Ed" Palucci, the popular pitcher of the East Milton team.

The score by innings was:

Mattapan	1 0 0 2 0 6 1—10
E. Milton	0 0 0 2 0 0 0— 2

FAXON KICKS TWO GOALS

Milton Academy Wins from Roxbury Latin

Milton Academy foot ball team played their second game of the season Saturday afternoon when they met the Roxbury Latin team and won by the score of 7 to 0. The game was very close throughout and Roxbury's errors were very costly. In the first period Milton started the scoring, when Trainor made a touchdown. In the second Codman for Milton, intercepted a forward pass of the visitors when they were on the three-yard line, and rushed it for another touchdown.

During the third period Humphrey left end for Milton, recovered a fumble made by the Latin school team, and made the third touchdown for the home team. Apthorp, after a series of fumbles on both sides, made a touchback in Milton's favor, in the last period.

Faxon, of Quincy, a new player this year for the Academy, made two goal kicks and did some fine all round play inging for the winning team. Trainor and Clark also starred for Milton. Capt. Brewer was rendered unconcious after making a long run for the home team and had to be taken off the field. He was able to watch his team play at the end of the last period, but was not able to enter the game again.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Wood of Whitwell street returned Sunday from a month's visit to Mrs. Wood's home at Prince Edwards Island.

SLAIN AND ROBBED

Body of Italian Is Then Placed Across Railroad Tracks

Ayer, Mass., Oct. 5.—The body of a man with two bullet wounds in his head and his feet bound together was found on the Boston and Maine railroad bridge over the Nashua river, between this town and Groton.

The police believe robbery was the motive of the murder. The man's pockets were turned inside out and there were bruises on his chest and arms, indicating that he had been dragged a considerable distance before he was placed across the rails. He was apparently an Italian, about 30 years of age.

DRIVEN LIKE A FLOCK OF SHEEP

German Army Reported Defeated Under Eyes of Kaiser

LATTER WAS CLOSE TO DEATH

Said to Have Narrowly Escaped Drowning When Russians Drove Enemy Before Them Into Niemen River—Czar Going to the Front In Eastern Theatre of War

Petrograd, Oct. 5.—Reports have reached here from the front that the kaiser was present at the rout of a German force near Suwalki and narrowly escaped being drowned in the Niemen. Other reports of his appearance near the frontier have it that he is at Bromberg and Thorn, a safe distance from the fighting line.

His alleged appearance at the scene of the fighting is reported in several of the Petrograd newspapers. According to this story the Russians drove the enemy, who had crossed the Niemen, before them like sheep. whole regiments are declared to have been drowned in the river. The kaiser is said to have been with these troops and to have escaped drowning by a narrow margin.

Whether the kaiser has actually appeared at the front, it is declared that the campaign against Russia is being directed by him, and military experts see in this an explanation of the defeats and terrible losses suffered by the Germans along the line of the Niemen.

While the German right was being pushed into Rusisan Poland, where it has been badly punished, the German left was ordered to pass the Niemen and strike into Russia and cut the lines of communications of the Russian armies.

At Niemen, however, the Germans learned once more the mistake they had made in underestimating the effectiveness of the enemy. They met with field artillery greatly superior to what they expected and served in brilliant fashion. Moreover, they met infantry whose efficiency and fighting strength was a match for the best of their corps.

For her own defense now Prussia is calling in the fighting strength of the empire, although Austria is being ravaged and the Rhine provinces will soon be in immediate danger.

That the kaiser now realizes that he cannot hold back the Russians with a few troops while he hurls his armies against the allies in France, and later use them at his leisure against the Russians, is shown by the great force of all classes being assembled on his eastern front. The military critic of the Russki Slowo says:

"The Rusisans now have to deal with a total of six armies. Two of these in Eastern Poland constitute the left flank, two in Western Poland form the centre and two others are concentrating on the right wing in West Galicia.

"The Polish peasants in Kalisz, Russian Poland, are carrying on a guerilla warfare in which the Germans and peasants stalk each other in the forests with the aid of snares and entanglements. No mercy is shown by either side."

The czar, it is announced, is going to the front. He is reported to have reached Warsaw.

ADMITS HOLD-UP OF TRAIN

Insurance Solicitor Who Turned Bandit Secured Only a Dollar

San Bernardino, Cal., Oct. 5.—Confession that he held up the passengers of the Sunset Limited train of the Southern Pacific at Colton was made by Jesse Carle, 28 years old, a Los Angeles insurance solicitor.

J. O. Gibson, a local automobile man, was arrested as an alleged accomplice, accused of having followed the train in an automobile to pick up Carle. The authorities say Gibson fled when he heard shooting.

One dollar was all that Carle obtained in the hold-up. Angered at his ill-success, he fired a shot in the air. The bullet rebounded from the car roof and grazed the foot of a passenger.

PUBLICITY

Sure Cure for Corporate Diseases.

The startling disclosures of corporate mismanagement in the last ten years have brought about a general feeling that publicity of corporation affairs is both necessary and desirable for the future well-being of all corporations. This publicity may be affected in many ways and should give the public as well as the stockholders such information as will eliminate all possible chance for corruption and mismanagement.

In the past, managers of some corporations have operated their business in a more or less arrogant fashion, persistently refusing to make their acts known to the public or even to their stockholders. In most instances if these operations had been made public at the time, many of the ills from which they and the suffering would not have occurred, and millions of dollars of investment would have been saved.

The effect of corporate mismanagement is greatly magnified, however, when its discovery comes too late by governmental investigation. Generally speaking, if the facts were voluntarily made public, or if they were made known through established methods of publicity, in the regular course of business, the mismanagement of the corporation would never occur or it could be remedied immediately and the bad effect of it would be comparatively small.

And so it is with many houses of business—in the field of commerce and manufacture. They are afraid of publicity—afraid to have their factories examined and to let purchasers verify statements or facts concerning the goods. The only conclusion to be reached in such case is that the manufacturer has something to conceal, which, if discovered, would not bear out his assertions.

Publicity in relation to all business matters is the best cure for their evils, just as light and air kill the germs of disease.

GERMANY'S LOSS ON THE FIELD

Estimated to Be Not Less Than One Million Men

IN A MOST PITIABLE PLIGHT

Expert on Military Strategy Sees Glaring Need of Executive Ability In Controlling Troops—Indian Contingent Makes Position of Kaiser's Fighters Still More Desperate

London, Oct. 5.—Declaring that the position which the German army finds itself in is pitiable, and that the general staff is unable to concentrate at any point sufficient troops to obtain anything like a decisive victory, Colonel Maude also asserts that Germany already has lost 1,000,000 men.

That Maude is considered an authority on military matters was shown by the German government when it had his book, "The Evolution of Strategy," translated and distributed to its own army staff.

Maude bases his observations on the army's plight through letters and telegrams received from the front, stating that they show that the German general staff is demoralized and that there is glaring need of executive ability in the control of the troops. Maude says:

"They began the war with organized troops totalling some 4,000,000 men, and behind these organized units lay an inchoate mass of some 4,000,000 more landstrum, practically without trainin;, and for whom no framework of officers or noncommissioned officers and staff existed.

"More than half their organized units are held by the Russians, hence at the outset they cannot have kept more than 2,000,000 really efficient fighters for the Belgian and French invasion. Of these, up to date, they cannot have lost less than 400,000 in killed and wounded, and assuming that their losses from illness on the march, stragglers, footsore men and so forth, are greater per day than in the far shorter marches and less sustained efforts during the first six weeks of 1870, they must have lost well over 500,000 men already, making a total reduction in their numbers of about 1,000,000 men. And this is a low estimate.

"I do not, therefore, believe it possible that, including Austrians and Bavarians, they can muster 750,000 men under arms at any given moment to defend their 250 miles of front in France, say 3000 men to the mile, and these are of a very heterogeneous character. Meanwhile they have lost all freedom of movement. They are held everywhere by superior forces, whose aeroplanes can detect all attempts at concentration in ample time to take counter measures.

"And now to all this is added the certain knowledge that the Indian contingent is on French soil with an admirable system of railway at their disposal, thanks to which it is impossible to predict with certainty at what point of their line, right, left or centre, the Indian troops may appear, and you will get some conception of the sense of depression and anxiety under which the staff and its supreme head are now working.

"Lastly, superimpose the Russian peril on the east, and very natural doubts arise as to the competence of the most high commander and his entourage, diplomatic and administrative, to handle the whole problem of the nation behind them—doubts which neither ignorance nor desire can any longer ignare."

PEACE CONFERENCE OFF

Plans For Holding It at The Hague Next Year Abandoned

Washington, Oct. 5.—All plans for holding the third international peace conference at The Hague next year have been abandoned. This was announced at the state department.

Not only does the European war, in the opinion of observers, make it out of the question to discuss the next conference at present, but as a year's time is required in which to formulate a program, it is considered impossible to make the necessary arrangements for a meeting next year.

Child Killed by Auto

Bloomfield, Conn., Oct. 5.—Four little girls who were playing in the road were struck by an automobile driven by Charles Reubenbauer with the result that Catherine Clements, aged 4, was killed outright; her sister Ruth, 5, was perhaps fatally hurt; Virginia Perry, 4, received severe injuries, and the fourth girl escaped harm.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

Henry Williams, a Kittery, Me., student, was accidentally shot and killed while gunning.

Peter Giovanini, 32, of Cambridge, Mass., committed suicide by leaping out of the third-story window in his home.

Rebecca Sullivan, 26, was drowned at Methuen, Mass., when a boat in which she and Frank Hoffman were riding was capsized.

Thomas McCormick, 5, was killed at Boston when he was struck by a trolley car.

THE CHURCHES

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

At the Sunday morning service, peace was especially emphasized in accordance with the request of the President of our country. Peace was mentioned in prayer, in sermon, and in the singing. The text was taken from the 72 Psalm, the 18th and 19th verses—"A beautiful prayer; Let the glory of the Lord fill all the earth." The morning service was largely attended.

The Sunday school had an attendance of 309. New scholars were added to the school.

The Junior Endeavor meeting was in charge of Mrs. Joseph Walther. The subject was "How God will help us."

The consecration meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. was held. Subject: "The trust verse." Isaiah 12:2. Charles M. Roach was the leader of the meeting.

At the usual evening service the pastor Rev. Joseph Walther took the subject: "In view of Christ's second coming." This was an inspiring subject. The chorus choir sang morning and evening.

Wednesday, beginning at 10.00 A. M. an all-day sewing meeting will be held in the chapel, clothing for men, women and children solicited, needs urgent.

Wednesday afternoon at 3, the monthly business meeting of the Ladies Social and Benevolent Society, will be held in the chapel; every member urged to attend.

Thursday evening at 7.45, the regular meeting for praise, prayer and testimony will be held in the chapel. Subject: "What we believe about the Bible." A good attendance is desired. All strangers are welcome.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL.

There was a large congregation assembled at the Wollaston Congregational church at the Sunday morning service to unite in prayers for the speedy cessation of war in the lands beyond the sea. George H. Murray read the President's proclamation, prayers were offered by the pastor, and Messrs. R. B. Tobey, G. A. Smith and C. P. Hutchins. Special prayers were printed upon the calendar which the congregation read together, and the peace hymn written by Rabbi Mender was also printed upon the calendar and sung.

Dr. Sneath, the pastor, spoke briefly upon the need of prayer for peace, using Zach 9:10—"And He shall speak peace unto the nations" as the text. He said we need to pray sincerely and in faith, with sympathy for all who are suffering by the war, irrespective of nationality.

We are to ask for peace, not in the manner as we would see the war terminated, but as God sees best. At the same time we can pray that German rationality, French skepticism, Russian despotism, Turkish Moslemism, and the indifference to religion everywhere may cease and a larger faith and loyalty to God arise. This would lead to a truer spirit of brotherhood. We are also to pray for ourselves, for the President and those in authority, that we may be kept from war, that we may see our duty and do it, and that we may be kept humble and true to righteousness.

The Ladies Auxiliary will meet on Wednesday at 2.30 P. M. at the home of Mrs. A. A. Lincoln, 109 Lincoln avenue.

The Little Lights Mission Band will meet with Mrs. Murray on Newport avenue, on Monday at 3.45 P. M.

The midweek service on Thursday evening in the vestry will be addressed by Dr. Sneath upon the topis, "Christ and your right."

A church band of young people was organized on Sunday in connection with the morning service and nearly forty have joined. An Intermediate Society of Christian Endeavor has also been formed to meet at 4.30 on Sunday afternoon.

A. L. Baker, chairman of the building committee of the parish house, made a special statement on Sunday morning at the service. He said the committee had completed the plans of the parish house and obtained bids, and would shortly call a meeting of the church upon the question of the advisability of beginning its erection this fall or of waiting until spring. He said the payment of the pledges had been going on in a very encouraging manner.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

Sunday was observed as Peace day in accordance with the recommendation of President Wilson. The beautiful autumn weather brought out a large congregation. The Girls' Choir was assisted by R. McCurdie, soloist. The responsive reading from the Psalms, the prayer, the lessons, the sermon—all were in keeping with the thought of peace on earth, good will toward men. The Peace hymn written by Rev. John Haynes Holmes of the Church of the Messiah (Unitarian) New York, was sung with fervor by the congregation. The printed slips of this hymn were the gift of of Miss Emily F. Allen, one of the new members of the church. A generous collection was taken for the benefit of the American National Red Cross Society.

Rev. Mr. Horst's serman was from the text "Blessed are the peace makers." He said: Of all the nations in the world America must lead in the great world peace movement.

Let us do our part to hasten the time
"When the war-drum throbs no longer, and the battle-flags are furled
In the parliament of man, the federation of the world."
"And thou, O my Country, from many made one
Last born of the nations, at morning thy sun, arise to the place thou art given to fill,
And lead the world—triumph of peace and good-will."

The Sunday school sessions were resumed. There was a large attendance of pupils occupying every seat in the Sunday school room. A fine spirit prevails and a profitable year in christian instruction is anticipated by all.

The kindergarten, in charge of Mrs. Aylmer Hatch, who has had charge of the Wollaston public kindergarten for so many years, met at 10.45 in the vestry. There was a large attendance. The mothers in Wollaston evidently appreciate that they can bring their children to church, knowing that while they are attending divine service upstairs, their children down stairs are under the influence of one of the best trained kindergarteners.

The Ladies Aid Alliance will hold its first regular meeting Wednesday, Oct. 7, in the vestry. Luncheon will be served at one o'clock, under the direction of Mrs. Frank A. Page. Mrs. Roger S. Forbes of Dorchester will speak on "Those inside and those outside a Parish." All ladies are cordially invited.

The members of our parish are cordially invited to attend the services in the Quincy Stone Temple next Sunday, Oct. 11, commemorating the 275th anniversary of the gathering of the First Parish in Quincy.

Rev. Louis C Dethlefs will be installed as pastor of the First Parish in Medford, Wednesday, Oct. 7, at 8 o'clock.

The Wollaston Unitarian Club, which always hold its meetings the second Tuesday in the month, meets Oct. 13. Dinner at 6.30 o'clock.

Rev. Carl G. Horst attended today the monthly meeting of the Boston Ministers' Monday Club.

Mrs. George York of Somerville formerly of Wollaston attended the morning worship and received a hearty welcome from her many friends in the church.

The Y. P. R. U. holds its first meeting of the season Sunday evening, October 18, at 7 o'clock.

PARK AND DOWNS.

At the Sunday morning service a strong appeal from the pastor Aev. William B. Ayers went up to God that peace might prevail over the entire world and his prayer on this subject was not only touching but powerful in its force. He took for his text Matthew XI:28—"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." The subject "How is peace possible, to the individual?" The minister named and analyzed some of the most prominent of the solutions which men's minds have suggested to bring peace to the heart of the individual. He showed the limitations and the failure of these things. Then he took up Christ's answer to the individual yearning for peace, and he showed that in Christ alone is the permanent prospect of peace. It was an exceedingly helpful sermon.

Evening sermon, subject, "How is peace possible, to the race?" The speaker considered and debated the causes of war and the suggestions that men are everywhere offering for the bringing in of a world peace, such as the spread of democracy, the dothroning of Kings; the bringing to an end of secret diplomacy; disarmament; the creation of an international police force to keep the peace; the creation of international Codes and Boards of Arbitration, and the spread of culture. With ruthless logic the speaker analyzed the possibilities and revealed the weakness of each one showing that in none of these things lies the hope of permanent peace. Then he took up the study of human nature as it exists among the different types of people in the world to show how impossible it is for the wisdom and invention of anyone type of mind to fit and satisfy the conditions of all of them.

ATLANTIC METHODIST.

Peace day was observed at the Atlantic Methodist church. The audience showed interest in the subject. The pastor preached from Heb. 12: 14—"Follow peace with all men." The speaker based his sermon on the following heads:—Peace National: peace in communities; peace of conscience;; peace of soul. He evaded the discussion of the war but dwelt upon its causes, and remedies.

He spoke of the enemies of peace, viz; pride, anger and ambition.

Pride proved the ruin of Haman. It stole ten of the tribes from Rehoboam. It thrust the kingdom out of the hands of Saul. It drove Adam out of Eden. It cast the angels out of Heaven. It will lead to our ruin, as a nation and as individuals.

Anger was held up as a principal cause of family and national quarrels: It lead Austria to declare war against Servia. This plunged all Europe into war. Anger may be of different kinds or degrees. There is a damnable, selfish and religious anger. The best saints of earth may be religiously vexed; so was Righteous Lot, with Sodom. So was the Great Teacher with the profaners of the temple. With whip cords he drove them out. But there is an anger that works ruin. How destroy this enemy? Cease to furnish fuel to keep it alive, as fire without fuel must die, so anger.

But the great arch enemy to National peace is ambition to rule. Wars are based upon it. Study the lives of the four great monarchs of the world. Alexander, Hannibal, Caesar and Napoleon. Ambition was their ruin. Study their history; note their fate.

The injunction follow Peace simply means conquer these enemies of peace. Had Austria curbed her anger, the war of the seven nations might never occurred. The recipients of peace are all men; all Nations; all races. It is for every nationality. It is for the cosmopolitan population of the United tSates. Forty-seven nationalities unite to make one America. The speaker referred to the close of the Civil war, when the news reached home of the surrender of Lee. Two great armies had stacked arms to go home to live in peace. What demonstrations of joy and peace went up from millions of Americans.

For a half of a century the dove of peace has reigned in this beloved land. Let us pray that peace may come to all Europe; to all the world.

Todays service us this church marks the beginning of a series of revival meetings to run through October. The pastor aided by the several pastors of Boston and Quincy churches.

WILL BE PLENTY OF ENTHUSIASM

Less than a week ago negotiations were opened for a Quincy production of "Along Came Ruth." The first public announcement was made in the Daily Ledger last Tuesday. Within four days, or 96 hours, over $800 worth of tickets were sold at $1.50, $1.00 and 50 cents each, almost unheard of prices in Quincy.

So that Saturday night the presidents and directors of the Board of Trade were relieved of all anxiety as to the success of their venture, and were privileged to retire early and sleep late.

It was late Monday afternoon when the editor of the Daily Ledger approached Paul Davis, the Boston business manager at the Plymouth Theatre. He learned that the company would close its engagement in Boston on Saturday night, and had no date for the next week. He assured Mr. Davis that President Hamilton of the Quincy Board of Trade was anxious that the company should play in Quincy, and suggested that Quincy Music Hall could probably be secured.

Immediately, Mr. Davis came to Quincy, but an inspection of the Music hall stage, convinced him it would be useless to attempt to present such a heavy play there. The stage was too small and too low.

Kincaide's Theatre offered the only alternative, and Mr. Davis was delighted to find in Quincy such an up-to-date commodious playhouse. He was satisfied it would meet all requirements.

But there were other obstacles to overcome; Manager Wardwell had booked a comedy for two weeks and Oct. 5 was to be the opening date. It meant a disarrangement of plans and a loss to the theatre. However, Manager Wardwell was asked to figure in all these things, and set a price.

That evening President Hamilton laid the subject of a Quincy production of "Along Came Ruth" before the directors of the Board of Trade and they thought he was crazy. Bring to Quincy a $1,000 play and get out of it whole, why, it was preposterous! Col. Henry L. Kincaide, the proprietor of the theatre, was also skeptical, and did not think it would be a pronounced success. However he sliced off $50 from Manager Wardwell's figures, and President Hamilton was authorized to present to Mr. Davis a proposition Tuesday morning.

Mr. Hamilton was enthusiastic and had a conference Tuesday with Mr. Davis at the Plymouth Theatre.. He succeeded in making satisfactory terms, and by telephone notified the Daily Ledger to advertise carte blanche the production, stating only the prices agreed upon for tickets.

How well the Daily Ledger has fulfilled its trust is known to all; and how successful the Board of Trade has been its venture, will be seen at Kincaide's Theatre tonight. It is probable that every seat will be filled, and if the law would permit all the standing room would also be crowded But only a limited number are allowed to stand in the rear, so many will be turned away.

"Along Came Ruth" is an enthusiastic comedy, but at Quincy it is proposed to give Miss Ruth the greatest ovation she ever received in her career. It would not do to tell all the plans in advance, but take our word for it there will be enthusiasm at the Quincy production of Along Came Ruth" tonight. There will be something doing, and you will be sorry if you miss it.

QUINCY SQUARE

Sermons on Peace were given in the Catholic churches of the city Sunday at all the masses and the special prayer especially composed was read by the clergy.

It is expected that the steamer, which has been fitted with a tractor, left Providence, R. I., this morning for Quincy. She is coming over the road under her own power.

President Whiton of the City Council returned from the Cape on Sunday, where he has been on a few days' gunning trip.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held this evening. The session should not be a long one.

Smelting parties are in vogue just at present, not only among the men but among the ladies as well. Some very good catches have been reported by the ladies.

A few more good seats are left for "Along Came Ruth" at Kincaide's theatre this evening which may be had at the box office at the theatre.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Crowell have moved from Elm street to Francis court.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Crowell of Francis court have gone to Milford, Mass., to visit a brother.

Dr. Harold Curtis sailed from Boston Saturday on the White Star line for Egypt.

ENTHUSIASM FOR TILDEN

Workers Have Volunteered in All Wards of City

The committee having in charge the campaign of Henry F. Tilden for Mayor have opened headquarters in the Adams building, entrance A, where every evening a crowd of hustlers and vote getters can be found. Nomination papers have already been circulated in each ward of the city and are now already for filing with the Registrars of Voters.

headquarters and there was plenty of enthusiasm for the candidate who can say "No." No set speeches were made but there was a general discussion on the merits of Candidate Tilden. It was pointed out that there was no citizen of Quincy who knew better where the leaks were than did Henry F. Tilden, and there was no citizen who could be depended upon better to stop these leaks than this same Henry F. Tilden.

It was announced that the committee had no paid publicity agent, and that no large sum like $3,000 had been quickly raised, for it did not require the extravagant use of money to make the voters of the city realize that Mr. Tilden was the man of the hour.

There was plenty of enthusiasm, however, among those present, all of whom are pledged to take off their coats and work early and late when the time comes. It was declared that there must be no mud throwing, and that the campaign must be waged on its merits. If the people wanted a man in the Mayor's office next year, who had the time to give to the office that was needed, and who could be depended upon to conduct the business of the city with the same care which a business man would conduct his own private business, then they would cast their votes for Mr. Tilden.

Strong rallying committees of workers have volunteered in each ward and there promises to be a lively campaign waged from now on.

Talking Shop.

Enthusiastic interest in one's occupation is always an advantage, but, on the other hand, it is not well for a woman in business to talk of her work at all times and places. Naturally, the thing that we do constantly is our most absorbing interest, but we must remember that other people have other things to talk about.

Mrs. William E. Hingston received a letter Saturday from her sister, Miss Hill, who is in Brussels. The letter states that she is all right and being well taken care of at the time it was written, but that she was not allowed to write of anything that related in the least manner to militarism. The letter was written before the Germans had entered that city, so that Mrs. Hingston, does not know how her sister may be at the present time.

TO OPEN BIDS ON TUESDAY

The bids for the three proposed battleships provided for during this session of Congress will be opened at Washington, D. C., on Tuesday.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Corp. will be represented by President Joseph W. Powell, Vice President Harry Brown and Chief Engineer Wilder.

The officials of the company are optimistic and expect that at least one of the contracts will be awarded to Quincy, and the possibility that all three may be secured is not remote.

The reorganization plans at the shipyard, brought about through a deep investigation by efficiency experts, has resulted in changes so marked that the company, able always to compete with the most progressive shipbuilding firms, is now in a position to lead the list .

The rumor that another ship will be constructed for Argentine Republic is being circulated by men connected with the Argentine commission, but authentic information is not available and nothing definite is known at the shipyard.

The turbine to replace the wrecked engine on the Rivadavia is being takendown today and will be sent over to Charlestown for installation. As soon as it is assembled the ship will leave for Brooklyn, N. Y.

MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING

Quincy Boy is on Dangerous List at City Hospital

Leslie Rowe, a 17 year old employee of the Fore River shipyard lies at the Quincy City Hospital seriously wounded, with a bullet through his vitals and refuses to clearly explain to the police of Weymouth where he was wounded or how it came about. He was shot Friday night and removed to the hospital where he is on the dangrous list.

Friends say he was shot by mistake for some boys who had been stealing grapes. He denies it but speaks of the weapon used a rifle. Further than this he declines to furnish information.

He says that three boys with him were fellow employees and that while he knows their nick-name he knows nothing further. The investigation being made cannot be cleared up until the boy frankly tells the circumstances.

JOHN GOOD.

The funeral of John Good was held from the home of his sister, Mrs. William Duane of 38 Bryant avenue Sunday afternoon. Services were held in St. Mary's church, Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy officiating. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. This morning a high mass of requiem for the repose of his soul was celebrated by Rv. Fr. Thomas R. McCoy.

MISS ETHEL SHAW.

Miss Ethel Shaw, daughter of William Shaw of Somerville, who was stricken with a sudden illness while visiting her sister on Prescott street and later removed to the Quincy City Hospital died there Sunday. She was 18 years of age. Her funeral will take place here Tuesday and the body will be sent to Cambridge for burial.

QUINCY ATLANTIC

James Dillon, driver of auto chemical two of Atlantic who was operated upon at the Quincy Hospital two weeks ago is now at his home on Conant street and expects to be able to resume duty within a few days.

It is announced that a rally in the interest of the candidacy of Henry F. Tilden for Mayor is to be held Wednesday evening.

C. G. HALVOSA DROWNED.

Word reached here today of the accidental drowning of Charles G. Halvosa of Hartford, Ct., formerly of this city, who fell overboard from a motorboat at Green Harbor Point, New Jersey, where he was passing his vacation. The young man was 23 years of age, the son of Mrs. Charles G. Halvosa and nephew of Philip Halvosa, labor editor of the Boston American. His father Charles Halvosa was president of the Barre, Vt., branch of the Granite Cutters' International Association and was well known here.

CHILD INJURED.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Griffin of 1067 Hancock street extend to them their sympathy and wishes for the speedy recovery of their daughter Helen who is now seriously ill at the City Hospital as a result of an accident while at play. The little girl, a most winsome child, was at play near her home when she fell and in falling struck her side on the edge of a box causing an injury which required a surgical operation at the City Hospital.

STRAYED TO WEYMOUTH.

Eva Mattson, 5 years, and her sister Alice, 8 years, children of Mrs. Mary Mattson of Granite street left home at two o'clock Sunday afternoon to visit friends on Chestnut and Union streets Thel failed to arrive at the latter home at nine o'clock and the lost child call was sounded. Both children were picked up a short time after at North Weymouth.

RANDALL—FARRAR.

Samuel O. Randall of Weymouth was united in marriage at Abington, Saturday, to Miss Ellen Whitney Farrar. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Paul Speedy. The wedding took place at the home of the bride who wore the gown in which her mother was married.

WILLIAM KANE.

The funeral of William Kane who died Saturday was held this morning from the home of his sister, Mrs. John Barron of 53 Willard street. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Mary's church by Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Barron and Miss Mary Kane.

QUINCY SOUTH

Miss Clotilda Giorusso of 189 Liberty street and Aristrode Marziotti of 11 Jackson street, were married Saturday evening. The ceremony was performed at Boston by Rev. Cyprian Gavlini, O. F. M., and was witnessed by relatives and friends of the contracting parties. A reception was held in Malnati hall which was attended by several hundreds of the Italian residents of this city. The bride has made her home in Quincy South for a number of years and is a sister of Umberto Giarusso who is well known in labor circles. The groom is a shoe maker. They will live in Quincy.

The Misses Lillian and Annie Keddy returned Sunday from Kentville, N. S., where they have been on a visit to relatives. Their sister, Mrs. William Pulsiver of Greenwich, N. S. returned with them.

HARVEY—PHILIP.

Saturday afternoon, Miss Mary Clinton Philip, daughter of A. Philip, the baker in West Quincy, and William George Harvey of Petersburg avenue, East Milton, were united in marriage at the East Congregational church, East Milton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Raymond Calkins of Cambridge and consisted of the double ring service. It was only attended by the immediate family and friends of the bride and groom.

The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Archibald Philip of Beale street, Wollaston. The maid of honor was Miss Jesse B. Phinister and the best man Norman J. Simpson of Reservation road, East Milton. The church was very prettily and artistically decorated with many beautiful floral decorations. The Lohengren wedding march was rendered by Herbert R. Boardman of Somerville, formerly organist of the church.

The ushers were Messrs. William Johnstone of Milton and John Taylor of Philadelphia. The bride was dressed in a beautifully made wedding gown of pure white net and silk and she carried a lovely bouquet of lilies of the valley.

A reception and wedding supper, served by Spargo the caterer, was held in Elsworth hall, immediately after the wedding ceremony. Selections from the bag-pipes were given by "Jack" Carson of Boston and the friends of the happy couple enjoyed dancing. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Harvey left town for an extended wedding trip to West Virginia. When they return they will reside in the Robinson house on Plymouth avenue, East Milton.

QUINCY SQUANTUM

The Rev. Thomas W. Davison, pastor of the First Church of Squantum preached a very interesting sermon advocating "Peace" at the 4 o'clock service Sunday. Miss Cassie Turner sang two solos accompanied by Mrs. Charles Bostwick at the piano. A large congregation was present.

The military whist given by the Squantum Women's club at the home of Mrs. Stanley Purcell Saturday evening was well attended, ten tables being played. The lucky ones with the high scores were, Mr. and Mrs. George Hersey, Letitia McCarty and Mrs. James Foster, and they were awarded pretty souvenirs.

Among those present were; Mrs. John Holmes, Mrs. Joseph Allen, Mrs. Ella Perkins, Mrs. Gregory, Mrs. Cuneo, Perley Bostwick, Mrs. Charles Bostwick, Louise Holt, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Morse, Mrs. Helen McGowan, Mrs. James Foster, Letitia McCarty, Mr. and Mrs. George Morrill, Annie Morrill, Mr. and Mrs. Devine, Mr. Callanan, Mr. and Mrs. George Hersey, Frank Anderson, John Jepson, John Jepson, Jr., Francis Bean, Mildred Bean, Charles Cullen, Mrs. Bell, Mrs. Lingren, Mrs. Emma Nilsson.

QUINCY POINT

Mrs. Elisha B. Holmes of Edison street is in Holyoke with a party of relatives and friends enjoying the lovely fall days. She will be away two weeks.

MRS. CLARA GILRAINE.

Mrs. Clara Gilraine, widow of James Gilraine, and one of the oldest residents of West Quincy, died Saturday evening at her home on Quarry street extension. She was 83 years of age and 62 years of her life was passed in Quincy. Her death cast a shade of sorrow over the community in which she resided because her many acts of kindness to friends and strangers, saddened by affliction and sorrow, endeared her a great many of the residents of the ward.

Mrs. Gilraine was born in Ireland and spent most of her girlhood in England. Her recollection of events which are now recorded as important histrically was clear, law requiring that Catholic marriages be legalized by Protestant ceremonies was enforced within her memory.

She married after coming to America and was the mother of a large family. One son James, was well known throughout the state as a ball player, and was third baseman of the fast West Quincy team which became famous in its day.

Mrs. Gilraine is survived by one daughter, Miss Mary Gilraine, and one son, Peter Gilraine. Her funeral will be held Tuesday morning.

EPOCH MAKING EVENT IN ANNALS OF DEAR OLD QUINCY

"ALONG CAME RUTH" CAPTIVATES CITY

Remarkable Production Under Auspices of Board of Trade at Kincaide Theatre

Enthusiasm Unbounded and a New Era is Opened

If Sept. 15, 1914, QUINCY night at the Plymouth Theatre, was the date on which QUINCY was rejuvenated, what shall be said of Oct. 5, 1914, the evening of the QUINCY production of "Along Came Ruth" at Kincaide Theatre?

It certainly was an epoch-making date in the annals of QUINCY—an eventful day long to be remembered, and one which will be of benefit to QUINCY for weeks and months, and the Daily Ledger hopes for years and years.

Every seat in the theatre was occupied by representative QUINCY citizens, who were very appreciative of the efforts of the actors to instruct and please, and applauded frequently.

The cast came direct from the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, and included:

Israel Putnam Hubbard — James Bradbury
Mrs. I. P. Hubbard — Julia Walcott
Allan Hubbard — GeorgeLeGuere
Priscilla Hubbard — Evelyn H. Meade
RUTH AMBROSE — FLORENCE SHIRLEY
Col. Myles Standish Bradford — Joseph Kilgour
Mrs. Dorcas Burnham — Maude Turner Gordon
Annabelle Burnham — Louise Corbin
Oscar Dunn — Edgar Nelson
Captain Hodge — F. J. McCarthy
Evander Hitchborn — John C. Reil
Pliny Bangs — Edward M. McGuinness
Helen Keyes — Dorothy Gordon
James Grant — J. J. Wynne

Without exception all the actors entered into the QUINCY spirit, and outdid themselves to enthuse the large audience. Miss Florence Shirley, who had the title role of "Ruth Ambrose" says it was the most notable and successful night in her career, and her speech printed in full in another column clearly shows her feeling and her sentiment. She certainly is a clever litle actress, natural and unaffected. Not only did all the men in the cast fall in love with her, but if the truth is known everybody in the audience was in love with her. She already feels as though QUINCY was her home, since she has found the people so warm-hearted and hospitable.

James Bradbury is one of those actors who has been recognized by American managers for years as a man of exceptional attainments, who only needed the opening of one unusual part to achieve fame as a character actor in a thousand. He has had many good parts, but the one part which would give free play to his dry humor and droll personality always seemed to elude him. And then was written "Along Came Ruth," the comedy of the waking up of Oldport, a sleepy shipping town on the coast of Maine.

When this play was produced by Henry W. Savage last February in New York, there was no doubt about the man destined to fill the role of Israel Putnam Hubbard, proprietor of Oldport's furniture emporium. "Send for Bradbury. This is his chance," said Mr. Savage, when he had read the manuscript.

As usual Mr. Savage showed his happy faculty for picking the right actors. "Along Came Ruth" has a long cast which pictures many humorous types familiar to anyone who has acquaintance with the small cities along the New England coast. But when Ruth graduated from the normal school and went to work in Israel Hubbard's store she undoubtedly chose the hardest nut to crack in all Oldport. In his earlier years Israel may have had a sunny disposition, but the sun had long since vanished behind a cloud. Prosperity never shone on Israel.

He is full of wise business saws. He seems to have memorized all the rules of the business game. But he has never learned how to play it. It takes the introduction of Ruth Ambrose into his organization to make the business hum. She shows "spread and gumption" as Israel expressed it. And

As "Ruth Ambrose," as she appeared in Act II in "Along Came Ruth" at Kincaide Theatre, Quincy.

EVERYONE NOW PROUD OF QUINCY

The address of Miss Florence Shirley, upon accepting the floral "Q" at the QUINCY production of "Along Came Ruth," was a gem which has already kindled a flame in the hearts of many QUINCY people. It brought home to them the achievements and possibilities of QUINCY, and the opportunities ahead. It will be read again and again, and be an inspiration for weeks and months.

The Daily Ledger takes pleasure in giving it prominence, and may reprint it once a week:.

"My Dear Friends:

"I hardly know how to express my sincere pleasure in seeing you again. What better proof can be wanted of the sincerity and activity of the QUINCY Boosters' Club?

"I am sure, and you will agree with me, that their gratifying work adds another laurel to your city's wreath of fame.

"In my opinion they will accomplish whatever maybe their aim. I believe I am safe in saying this, because of the splendid and hearty co-operation you lend them.

"Keep up the good work and in less time than you can imagine the country will not only regard QUINCY as the city of ship building and great granite works, but as THE SPOT WHERE BROAD-MINDED, KEENLY INTELLIGENT AND MOST LOVABLE PEOPLE ARE BORN AND REARED.

"In conclusion I want to repeat my thanks for your many kindnesses and shall also cherish this occasion as one of the most delightful of my career."

Is It Worth While?

To fuss and bother preparing cake and bread for your husband and the children's meals just because Hubby likes home-made bread and cake, when for the price that you pay for the raw ingredients you can buy a loaf of bread as good as home-made. We think your answer will be No. Why, because at Barnard's you can get bread and cake as tasty and with as delicious a flavor as mother ever made. Look at the time and trouble attached to home baking. Hustle, fuss, and tear around, when all of this needless labor is eliminated by getting Barnard's bread and cake. Barnard's goods are made by men who know their business, where cleanliness and quality are in harmony. It certainly needs no argument to prove which way is superior. DROP in today.—Two Stores.

TWO YOUNG MEN AT HOSPITAL

As Result of Collision on Quincy Avenue

A motorcycle and an automobile collided on Quincy avenue Braintree, Monday evening. and as a result Charles Hunt and Fred Sherrick of Weymouth are at the Quincy City Hospital and Dr. and Mrs. Myron Davis of Malden, occupants of the auto, received minor hurts.

Dr. Davis was on his way to the home of William E. Mayberry, 411 Quincy avenue, and the accident occured a few feet north of the driveway of the latter. The motorcycle, sai dto have been travelling at high speed, struck a pile of ashes, skidded and dashed against the auto. The cycle was badly twisted by the force of the compact, and both riders were thrown to the street. Sherrick who was operating struck on his head, and Hunt who rode on an extra seat was thrown against the auto. The windshield of the auto was smashed and flying glass struck Mrs. Davis, inflicting a cut over the eye. Dr. Davis in trying to quickly leave the machine sustained a badly turned ankle.

Dr. Davis with the aid of Dr. James H. Cook rendered emergency treatment, and sent both young men to the Quincy City Hospital.

It developed there that Sherrick had concussion of the brain and numerous contusions about the body, and that Hunt had a compound fracture of the nose, a fractured cheek bone and a fractured left leg. Both are resting comfortably today and beyond question will recover.

MAYOR MILLER COMFORTABLE

A son of Mayor Miller, who was at City Hall this morning, said that his fathers condition remained about the same as it had been for several days, and that he was resting comfortably.

EASTERN STAR INSPECTION

Official Visit of Mrs. Flavell Deputy Grand Matron

Deputy Grand Matron, Mrs. Lizzie Flavell, past grand matron of Rexham chapter at Marshfield accompanied by a suite of Grand officers and many matrons and past matrons of the chapters of Boston and vicinity, made her annual inspection of Quincy chapter, Order of Eastern Star, Monday evening. The inspection followed the regular meeting in Colonial hall, at which seven candidates were given a class initiation.

Comprising the suite were Deputy Grand Marshal, Mrs. Sarah Ewell of Rexham chapter; Deputy Grand Patron David M. Kidder, past patron of Mayflower chapter of Weymouth; Past Grand Matron, Mrs. Isadora Forbes of Boston; Past Grand Matron, Mrs. Miriam Watts of Winthrop, and Past Grand Patron Edward A. Sears of Roxbury.

Matron Mrs. Margaret Gammons presided during the exemplification and there were remarks by the visitors. All were later entertained by a committee headed by Mrs. Leonora Gibbs.

E-Mayor Eugene R. Stone left this morning for a few days business trip through Maine.

CLERK EXTRAS AT CITY HALL

The Subject of Resolutions Adopted by the City Council Last Evening

Salary Increases Wanted in the Fire Department

Although Monday night's meeting of the City Council was not a long one, there was considerable important business. An adjournment was reached at 8.27.

The absent members were Councilmen Bass, Gelotte, Sodergren and Thompson. Several members who were booked to attend the performance of Ruth at Kincaide's theatre appeared in their open face suits and left about 8 o'clock.

APPOINTMENTS.

Communication was received from acting mayor appointing Bernard Griffin a public weigher and Francis Clinton a special constable at Hibernian hall. Confirmed.

SCHOOL LOT OFFERED.

A letter was received from Annie F. Faircloth offering her lot in the rear of Quincy avenue, adjoining Dysart street for a school lot. Referred to the Finance Committee.

In reply to a resolution adopted at the last meeting of the Council, the City Auditor forwarded to the Council a list of the clerks at City Hall, stating the amount of their regular salary and the amounts which they had received for extra services this year.

The list showed that every clerk in City Hall had received more or less. Some for assisting the Auditor in auditing books, in doing work for other departments, the amounts varying from $3.75 to $52.50. In other cases two clerks received a stated salary of $100 a year. One for keeping the books of the Fire department, and the other for keeping the books of the Engineer's department, and one clerk $150 for doing the work of the Gypsy Moth department. In two other cases one clerk had received $10 a month additional since June 1, and another

THE AUTUMNAL BONFIRE.

In the country life, to which many of us look back, one of the most prized yearly festivals was the autumnal bonfire. How cheery was its crackling flame and radiant heat! And how much better the roast potatoes and apples tasted, even though seared and blackened with ashes, than the cleanest product of the cook stove at home!

Where people live more closely together, the fall bonfire is apt to be a source of neighborly ill feeling. The moment you get to burning your flower stalks and vegetable tops, the wind seems to change. Some malicious breeze seems sure to blow the odorous smoke over against your neighbor with the sensitive nose, and blacken her spotless curtains with the sooty flakes.

Some people say bonfires spread disease germs and are unhealthy. In the hands of careless persons, they certainly make the firemen worry. But fed and tended by persons of discretion, they still seem to have a rather festive air, and get rid of rubbish very conveniently. The children will still gather dancing around them, even if there is a football game in the next lot.

GARDEN CONTESTS.

A great many cities and towns have been holding garden competitions the past summer. Newspaper exchanges bring many reports of prizes awarded in these contests. It is often noted that children have won out in these contests who never stood well in their book work in school.

Formerly the boy who could not learn lessons readily was set down as a blockhead. Yet the boy who does not take easily to books is often very adaptive in other ways. He frequently is ready of speech in the ordinary matters of daily life, tactful in what he says, with a gift for leadership and doing things.

In the old fashioned school, the boy who was dull at his books was prodded and spurred along the thorny path which he was never fitted to travel. Somehow he never could see things through the printed pages. Put him out in a garden, and give him corn seed, hoe and spade, or put him on the ballground, and he might raise a crop or play a game much superior to the bookish boy's.

Books are the record of the world's wisdom, but their use should not be over emphasized. Too much reading and study makes the boy overmuch of a spectator. His energy is satisfied by the thrill of reading how other boys do things. Meanwhile the dull boy is out selling his papers or raising his potatoes, and slowly winning his way.

Every school should have some outlet for the children who are slow at books. Home and school gardens are one of the most useful of these outlets. Dressmaking and cooking classes teach an art that lies at the foundation of home economy, and which the average mother fails to impart. To more than half of the boys, success in life is to be reached through skill of the hand rather than through the printed pages.

EVENING SCHOOLS LARGELY ATTENDED

The evening schools throughout the city opened Monday evening. At the industrial schools the attendance was considerably larger than in other years. In this department there were eleven classes of fifteen each, making a total of 165. These are the classes at the High school, Adams school and cooking class at the Willard school. Of the eleven classes eight are for men and three for women.

Owing to the lack of work at the shipyard at the present time the classes for new Americans at the Adams and Willard buildings are considerably less than last yar.

The number at the Willard School was 92, about half of whom are out of employment. At the Adams school the number enrolled was 137, less than half of which are out of employment at the present time.

It was a noticable fact in connection with the opening of the evening schools that those in which the state pays part of the expense, there was an increased attendance shown this year. In fact it is the largest in the history of evening schools in the city. In the evening schools for new Americans, however in which the city bears all the expense the attendance was smaller.

CITY COUNCIL

had received $8 a month since July 1.

The communication was laid on the table until later when Councilman Ross offered a resolve as follows:—

"Whereas, the custom seems to be growing that in addition to the regular salary appropriated in the budget for the pay of clerks, the same are receiving additional regular compensation, charging this to other appropriations in their respective departments, that we believe this to be wrong in principle, and the clerk's salary for her or his position should be openly stated in the budget, and we would recommend to the consideration of the next City Council, that the budget be so arranged and worded, that no additional compensation shall be permitted for clerks in any department, when such work is done in regular office hours.

"To be further resolved that a copy of this resolution be forwarded by the Clerk of the Council to the Mayor of 1915, and also to the clerk of the Finance Committee for the year 1915 when elected."

The resolution was adopted without debate.

PETITIONS.

Petitions for licenses to keep gasoline from L. and A. Warshaw and George F. Smith were received and laid on the table until later when Councilman Beeman offered orders for public hearings Oct. 19. Adopted.

A petition was received from David Silverman and I. Cutler setting forth that they had been fined $10 each in the district court for violation of an ordinance, which had later been declared illegal. That these fines they had paid. They now petitioned that they be reinbursed the amount of these fines. Referred to the Finance Committee.

Several applications for minor licenses were received and referred to the Committee on Licenses.

AUDITORS EXPENSES.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $100 for expenses of the Auditor's office. Order adopted.

The Committee on State Aid reported an order granting Soldiers Relief. Adopted.

POLLING PLACES.

Councilman Craig offered an order designating the polling places for the election of Nov. 3. Adopted.

GAS HEARING.

A public hearing was held at 8 o'clock on petitions of the Electric Light Co., for a location for poles. There was no opposition. Hearing closed and order laid on the table until later when Councilman Gilliatt offered an order granting the locations which was read and ordered to a second reading.

SALARY INCREASES.

Councilman Williams offered two orders. One increased the salary of the Chief of the Fire department from $1,400 to $1,500 a year, and the other increased the salaries of the officers and permanent men of the Fire department $100 a year each. Referred to joint committee on Finance and Fire department.

DRAIN WANTED.

Councilman Hadlock offered an order appropriating $450 to build a drain and tide gate in order to drain the meadow on Babcock street, near the Willows. Referred to Committee on Sewers and Drains.

MORE LIGHT.

Councilman Nelson offered an order for seven street lights at Squantum. Referred to the Executive.

Councilman Ericson offered an order for two lights on Packard lane. Referred to the Executive.

ROGERS STREET.

President Whiton ruled that under the rules of the Council this order would have to be referred to the next City Council.

Councilman Corcoran said that the paved gutters were now being laid on the streets, and that it was important that it should be widened at the present time, according to City Engineer, to make a good job. He moved the suspension of the rules.

City Engineer Sargent favored the proposition for the widening, and Councilmen O'Dowd and Little favored the suspension of the rules.

The President stated that it required a three-fourths vote taken by roll call to suspend the rule. The rule was suspended and the order received and referred to the Street committee.

ORDERS PASSED.

In the calendar the orders granting the Street Railway Co., a relocation for its tracks on Hancock street, a location for a branch-off to a gravel pit on Sea street and granting the Gas Co. a location for mains, took their second reading and were passed under suspension of the rules.

Adjourned at 8.27 until Oct. 19.

ALONG CAME RUTH

above all she puts the spirit of youth and enterprise into this shop.

Ruth rejuvenates Israel as well as his business. The change from the taciturn old fault-finder, to the exuberant "man of affairs" is as exhilarating as it is funny. No one could give both sides of this character quite so well as James Bradbury does. This was the unanimous verdict of the New York critics when the play was produced there in New York and they praised Mr. Bradbury's work quite as generously as they praised "Along Came Ruth."

JOHN L. HAMILTON.

Joseph Kilgour, as Col. Miles Standish Bradford, who reminded everyone of Col. Henry L. Kincaide the live wire of QUINCY, was certainly under the spell of Miss Ruth. "What is this mysterious influence you have over me?" he asks Miss Ruth. She tells him he has a masterly control over men, but he replies, "I am only an amateur!"

Edgar Nelson as "Oscar Dunn" was another favorite. And what a transformation under the spell of Miss Ruth as the play progressed. The massage had a wonderful effect.

The parts of Capt. Hodge and Evander Hitchborn, the undertaker, were admirably taken, and George LeGuere, the youthful actor, as Allan was all right.

Julia Walcott as Mrs. Hubbard was capital, and the part of Priscilla was well taken. Mrs. Burnham and Annabelle were not popular with the audience until the last act, but in the love scene of the widow and Israel clever acting was shown.

In "Along Came Ruth" Mr. Day has given a laughable picture of small town politics, showing the development of Israel Hubbard's political ambitions. One of the lines of the play which never fails to get a round of applause comes when Hubbard has just been elected Mayor. One of his lady admirers says confidentially, "Israel, I never thought you had it in you." To this, Israel, who has gained his victory by characteristic methods, answers largely: "Oh, you never kin tell where Mayors come from."

On a par with this, was the business-like proposal of Pliny Bangs. When summarily refused by Miss Ruth, he asks if that is final; then he says, that's business.

The enthusiasm of the QUINCY audience gave vent when Miss Ruth made her first appearance on the stage, although then in a demure part.

All the actors were liberally applauded at frequent intervals, and there never was such an enthusiastic audience at any gathering in QUINCY

At the close of Act I there were several curtain scenes, and two beautiful floral tributes went over the footlights to Miss Shirley, one a huge bunch of pink delights from the directors of the Board of Trade, and the other a large bouquet of pansies from the "QUINCY Ruth," Miss Mildred Gray Huston.

The demonstration of the evening came at the close of Act II, after Miss Ruth had been serenaded by the band. It was during one of these curtain scenes that the mammoth floral "Q" made from George Elcock's dahlias by William Patterson, went over the footlights. Ten or twelve times the curtain was raised and there was applause for each of the actors as they appeared, but the audience clamored for a little speech from Miss Shirley, and they were not disappointed. Her speech was a masterly gem which came from the heart, and is reproduced in full in today's paper. It should be read and read again, for it will give all residents of QUINCY courage.

Accompanying the floral "Q" was a beautiful bouquet of roses from Boston friends who were numerous in the audience, including Miss Shirley's mother and sister, Mr. Lunt of the Castle Square company and others.

Early in the evening a Campbell kid doll, one of Miss Shirley's mascots, was started from the rear of the orchestra, and travelled through each of the rows between the two centre aisles, toward the stage. It was labelled "I am Miss Shirley's mascot, treat me kindly. Please pass me along toward the stage. I want to go over the footlights." The kid reached Miss Shirley just after her speech, and was warmly caressed by her, and will go about with her on her tours all over the country, as a souvenir of QUINCY.

Just before the curtain went up for the final act, Frank F. Prescott was pressed into the service, to introduce to the audience John L. Hamilton, the president of the Quincy Board of Trade.

President Hamilton told how "Along Came Ruth", was brought to Quincy by the Board of Trade. How a few enthusiastic live wires had downed the skeptical with the results you see this evening. He was pleased to give all the credit for this delightful treat to Mr. Prescott of the Daily Ledger. Some have not been willing to give the Board of Trade support or encouragement, but with 1000 boosters for QUINCY it would be difficult to measure the accomplishments. Say CITY, old fossils. QUINCY has a great future if the Board of Trade and the newspapers can have the support of Quincy people.

It was the privilege of several QUINCY admirers of Miss Shirley to go back of the scenes where they found her the same vivacious, appreciative little miss, grateful for the kindness of QUINCY people. Miss Shirley came to QUINCY by auto early Monday afternoon, and after an inspection of Kincaide theatre, enjoyed a pleasure drive about the city with Miss Huston the QUINCY Ruth; President Hamilton of the Board of Trade, Secretary Hall and Frank F. Prescott. The homes of Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Prescott were visited. Charles H. Penniman was proud to act as chauffeur. After the play Miss Shirley motored back to Boston, carrying with her the floral "Q" and other gifts. At 10 this morning the "Along Came Ruth" company left Boston for New York, and their next engagement will probably be in Chicago. All the company will for years remember their night in QUINCY.

There has been much discussion of late about the peculiar policies of the Orent Payson Co., but of course we all receive our knocks. Their store on Saturday will be a notable event for the public. New merchandise at very moderate prices. Then again the store's facilities are much improved, new lights, plenty of room, courteous and polite salespeople and their dustproof wardrobes. As they say in today's advertisement, shopping in Boston won't be considered at all.

OPENING OF BOSTON EXPOSITION

The Boston Domestic Science and Pure Food Exposition, so large an exhibition that only worlds fairs surpass it, opened in Mechanics building, Monday, when a wireless message from the White House, sent by President Wilson, was received by Naval apparatus in one of the booths. The message of a congratulatory nature was immediately acknowledged.

Adjt-Gen. Cole represented Gov. Walsh and other addresses were by Mayor Curley, Mrs. Perkins and George Reno who is in charge of the Cuban exhibit. President Hill of the Grocers Association was chairman.

Some 2000 grocers and 62,000 club women from all over the State have co-operated in the exposition, and national, state and city exhibits are shown, in addition to private displays. The Cuban government display of its agricultural and industrial wealth has not yet been set up.

The exhibits of the federal, state and city authorities occupy the entire basement, and emphasis is laid on their educational features. Hustle, bustle and activity is part of the whirl and aside from the agricultural exhibit, a branch post office is in operation, with a working parcel post, the latest type of war vessels, and a 90 foot model of the Panama canal.

The Red Cross display is elaborate and its tent shows wax figures of wounded, nurses and surgeons. A model sick room with everything in readiness for a patient is shown by the Massachusetts State Nurses Association.

Ancient and modern shoes for women are displayed by the United Shoe Machinery Co. There are 70 samples, so selected as to show what has been worn the past 400 years up to the present.

Generally Succeeds.

SHIPYARD BOWLING

Pipefitters, Machine Gallery and Yard Teams Win

Ordinary scores, excepting those of Herb Smiths, prevailed in the regular matches of the Fore River league at the Coliseum alleys Monday evening. Smith closed with a total of 302, his best single being 113, one less than the high single of the evening made by Morgan.

The Yard team took three out of four of the points from the Draftsmen, the last string total being but three more than the short enders.

ANNUAL DANCE GLENETHA GIRLS

The Glenetha Girls, a club of girls of this city, gave their third annual dancing party in Alpha hall Monday evening, and entertained many friends from this city and surrounding towns.

Miss Helen M. Hastings was floor directress and Miss Gertrude C. Fraser assistant. The aids were Marion J. Fraser, Miss Anastasia E. Hastings, Helen P. Kelliher and Gertrude C. Whalen.

Music for the evening was by the Hamilton orchestra, and the modern dances were in vogue. The party continued until midnight.

POOL CHAMPIONSHIP.

Daniel Barnes defeated Raymond Josephine, 300 to 246 in a pool match Monday evening for the championship of the city. The match was hotly contested, both men running the frames in good order. The odds favored the veteran from the younger player kept him on edge throughout the game and several times it looked as though the victory was to be reversed.

IN PAINT AND FEATHERS

Indians Fall Upon and Disperse I. W. W. Agitators In Montana

Glasgow, Mont., Oct. 6.—Indians in feathers and blankets fell upon and dispersed Industrial Workers of the World itinerants whose clashes cost four lives. The Indians' work was bloodless, so far as could be learned.

The Indian police from the reservation near Poplar, Mont., were called upon and responded, with a number of braves who had been hastily deputized. A celebration was in progress and all were gaudy with paint and decorations.

The trouble arose from internal dissensions and one bullet which killed A. J. Giantvalley, a civil engineer, was a stray one. The other three men killed were members of the band.

ROASTS HIMSELF ALIVE

Peculiar Suicide of Artist Who Was Disappointed In Ambition

New York, Oct. 6.—Crazed because he could not satisfy his artistic ambitions, but was compelled to make cheap plaster casts, William Abele committed suicide by suspending himself over a bonfire in the woods near his home in the Winchester section of the Bronx.

He had borrowed a rope which had been used for a porch swing, undressed himself and suspended himself from a spur of rock over the flames.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE

Hundreds Reported Killed by Earthquake In Asia Minor

Athens, Oct. 6.—An earthquake occurred at Smyrna, Asia Minor, and though the shock was felt slightly at Smyrna, its most destructive effect was at Isabarta and Burdur, in Konia province, centre of the carpet industry.

The loss of life was heavy, estimates ranging from 150 to 3000, but official figures may not be available for several weeks.

France Has Heavy Grain Yield

Paris, Oct. 6.—The agricultural department issued a statement stating that France's grain crop has exceeded expectations. It is estimated at from 60,000,000 to 82,000,000 quintals.

VICTORIES OVER THE GERMANS

Latter's Offensive From East Prussian Frontier Ends In a Rout—Berlin Version of Fighting Maintains Germans Generally Have Been Successful—Austrians Still Active

London, Oct. 6.—The Germans defeated along the Niemen have now reformed just inside of the Russian frontier and are endeavoring to resume the offensive, according to reports received at Petrograd. Fighting is also in progress all along the Polish frontier, where the Russians are delivering a series of attacks on the German intrenched positions.

At Kutnow the Germans were defeated and forced to retreat with a loss of 2000 and two heavily armored automobiles.

It is announced that the czar's arrival at the front was the signal for patriotic demonstrations, after which the Russian soldiers, in a series of wild attacks on the Germans, gained decisive victories at nearly every point.

The fighting in Galicia still continues with the Austro-German forces on the defensive.

Russian reports indicate that the German offensive toward the Niemen river from the East Prussian frontier has ended in a rout after the battle of Augustowo, which has been under way since Sept. 25. If these reports are true it means that not only has General Rennenkampf been given an opportunity to resume the offensive, but the important fortress of Ossowetz has been relieved from investment.

An official message from the commandant of the German fortress at Koenigsburg, however, contradicts the Russian report, and the Berlin version of the fighting, while it does not localize it as particularly as the Russian report, maintains that the Germans along the East Prussian frontier have generally been victorious.

As was expected, subsequent reports have discredited the rumor that the Russians were investing Cracow. It was hardly possible for the Muscovite forces to have reached there in such a short time, but a report that Cossacks have reached the neighborhood of Cracow is distinctly credible, as the famous Russian cavalry is showing an ability to cover the same wide field of operations as the uhlans in the western war area.

While the allies in the west are congratulating themselves upon the excellence of the railway service which enabled them to bring up all the necessary transports and reinforcements, the Russians in East Prussia are suffering from a lack of such facilities. No matter how great the Russian invading host proves to be, physical conditions alone would prevent an duplication of the wonderful march of the German forces through Belgium and northern France.

A dispatch from Petrograd to the Central News states that a member of the Russian duma, who has just returned from Galicia, declares that the Russians captured the heights four and five miles from Przemysl, and that the Austrians have several times vainly attempted to retake them.

A dispatch to The Star from Rome, speaking of the Russian invasion of Hungary, says: "Having captured all the Carpathian passes the Russians have commenced the invasion of Hungary. Advancing to the south they have occupied Hosszumezo. Then the Cossacks effected a daring coup. They crossed the river and cut the railway at Cziget, thus isolating the remainder of Hungary."

CURED BY SURGEON'S KNIFE

Daughter of Governor of Illinois Had Been Cripple From Birth

Springfield, Ills., Oct. 6.—Jeanette Dunne, 12-year-old daughter of Governor Dunne, who has been a cripple since birth, has started to learn to play. The knife of a Chicago surgeon transformed the girl from a helpless invalid into a healthy youngster.

A weak and crooked spine made Jeanette a cripple. Two months ago Dunne heard of a remarkable operation performed by Dr. Porter of Chicago, in which a splinter of bone was taken from the leg of a child and transplanted into her spine. Jeanette was taken to the hospital and the operation performed six weeks ago. She rose from her bed and walked unaided last night.

New York, Oct. 6.—The Athletics continue to be favorites in the betting on the world's series. The prevailing odds are 5 to 4 that they will win the series, and also that they will win the first game.

FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT

Atlantic Man Was Operating the Machine

Blinded by the bright headlights on an approaching trolley car, Charles Kolstad of 9 Moscow street, Atlantic, failed to make the proper turn of a sharp corner in Canton Monday night and with three others was thrown from an auto into the path of the car. Kolstad escaped with slight injuries.

The Herald reports the accident as follows:

An automobile ride through the Blue Hills toward the South Shore, in which two young women and two men participated, had a tragic ending last night when the driver of the machine tried to make too sharp a turning on Washington street, Canton, so that the car turned turtle twice. One of the girls was thrown 10 feet to the street car track and instantly killed, and then run over by a Mattapan-Canton electric.

The victim was Miss Margaret Dooley, aged 17, of 116 Greenwood street, Dorchester, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Dooley, who now are at Greenfield, N. H., on their vacation. Her body was removed to a Canton undertaking establishment and the parents were notified.

Miss Dooley's girl companion was Miss Virginia Reed aged 25, of 11 Gleason street, Dorchester, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Reed. Mr. Reed is a Democratic politician and an attorney.

The men in the auto were Roland L. Smith of 14 Hancock street, Everett, who owned the machine, and Charles N. Kolstad of 9 Moscow street, Atlantic. They escaped injury, while Miss Reed received scalp wounds that were treated at her home.

The accident occurred at 8 o'clock, as the four young persons were coming along Green Lodge street, Canton. There is a sharp curve at the junction of Washington street, but in the darkness Kolstad, who was driving, did not see the swing and continued on straight ahead in the belief that he was going into Washington street, where the car tracks run.

Too late he saw his mistake and swerved the car so sharply that it heeled on two wheels and then toppled over and down the slight embankment to where the car tracks are. Miss Dooley was thrown clear of the machine and to the tracks, and Miss Reed fell in such a way that the auto did not harm her as it continued to turn over.

Though the electric car that was approaching along Washington street passed over Miss Dooley's body and mangled it, it is believed the fall caused instant death.

Smith and Kolstad, in the hope that Miss Dooley might not be dead, halted a passing automobile and in it scoured the neighborhood until they had found three physicians and the medical examiner, Dr. Faxon.

The same auto that had been impressed into service to find the doctors then was used to carry Miss Reed bleeding profusely but not seriously hurt, into Boston.

When Miss Reed reached her home in the automobile of Dr. Porter of Canton she was almost hysterical and somewhat confused about what had happened. Shortly after dinner, she told her mother, she went for a brief visit at Miss Dooley's house, and was invited by the later to go for a short automobile ride.

As the machine was approaching Canton, she said, its occupants could see the blinding light of the approaching street car, the brilliancy of which she blames for the accident. Kolstad, she thinks, became confused.

The Dorchester police were notified of the accident by the Canton authorities and at once got into touch with relatives of the girls. An uncle of Miss Dooley went at once to Canton in the absence of her parents to see about arrangement for the removal of her body to her home.

The two young men were exonerated by Chief of Police John H. Flood, who declared the affair was entirely accidental.

DETERMINED STAND MADE BY GERMANS

Von Kluck, Reinforced, Again Assumes the Offensive

ALLIES FORCED BACK IN SEVERAL PLACES

Small Towns Raked With Shells Until They Are in Flames as Battle Continues With Unabated Vigor—No Decisive Result Yet Reached—Plan of Allies May Compel Germans to Release Pressure on Belgians—Germany's Prisoners to Date Reported to Number 240,000—Belgium Declares That Her Forts Are Holding Everywhere

London, Oct. 6.—The seemingly impossible has once more happened. General von Kluck has again been reinforced. Monday, despite the unanimous opinion in London that his power to take the offensive was lost, the German troops again battered at the lines of the British and French at Roye and Noyon and Lassigny.

Over cleared fields, where thousands of bodies remain unburied, over treacherous bogs, and over the slight elevations of land that crop out here and there in this generally flat countryside, the invading attack broke as furiously as in the closing days of last week.

The flanking movement about Arras was once more nearly suspended as reinforcements were rushed to the elbow of the lines where the British have been bearing the brunt of the persistent and courageous German assaults.

Cities and Towns Destroyed

Here and there, at places unspecified in the official dispatches, the allies were forced backward and the Germans were able to retain the trenches that they captured after a long bombardment and persistent charges. Small towns that had hitherto escaped the shells of the hostile armies were raked until they were in flames, and other cities, towns and villages that had already suffered terribly were again ravaged by fire and bullets.

Fortunately practically all of the non-combatant populace had long ago left this blighted land that was a few weeks ago so smiling with the growing crops.

Von Kluck, reinforced with troops from the German centere, continues to make a determined stand against the attempt of the allies to outflank him.

The French, who on Sunday officially reported that all the German attacks in this region had been repulsed, and that the allies had resumed the offensive, follow this by the announcement that while, to the north of the Oise, the battle, which commenced seriously about Sept. 27, continues with great violence, no decisive result has been reached.

Capitals Are Surprised

Both in London and in Paris there is the greatest confidence, although some surprise is displayed at the success of the Germans in preventing the outflanking movement. There is a feeling, however, that the Germans cannot extend their line much further north without weakening it at some point.

Along the rest of the line, the French communication says, there has been no change; so that the progress in the region of Soissons and in Woevre, reported on Sunday night, either has satisfied them for the moment or they have been checked by the Germans. Of the fighting here, as on their right, German reports say it is proceeding favorably for the German arms.

Naturally, progress must be extremely slow, for afteer every advance, no matter how slight, the troops making it must entrench themselves for protection against the shells from the enemy's guns posted in strong positions from one end of the line to the other.

Fighting In Flat Country

The country where the chief fighting is going on is flat and under cultivation. In many places it is boggy and there are scattered coal mines. The allied armies are continually extending toward the north and bending eastward toward the Belgian frontier, and are thus compelling the Germans, in order to prevent the crumpling up of their main army, to move large forces from the centre and so keep pace with the allies, whose position menaces the invaders along the whole line.

The allies' plan, it is thought, may compel the Germans to release the pressure on the Belgians.

The rapidity with which the French change position is remarkable. Two entire divisions of infantry marched nearly thirty miles Saturday and twenty-eight miles Sunday.

The Germans, however, by means of their aviators, who are continually flitting over the lines despite numerous casualties, discovered the movements and brought up reinforcements to meet them. As the Germans occupy the inside of the circle, they are able to reach an appointed spot with much shorter marches.

It was this that enabled them to force the advanced guards of the allies to cede a small amount of ground until further assistance came.

At one point on the allies' front, a French regiment, after a three days' spell in the trenches, on being ordered to the rear for a rest, sent a petition through their colonel to the commanding general asking permission to remain until the German position facing them was taken.

Stories for which there appear little or no foundation appeared to the effect that the crown prince is wounded and that Luxemburg has been devastated by the Germans. Wounding will be no new experience for the crown prince, for European news agencies have killed him, whenever news has been scarce, ever since the war began.

Enormous Number of Prisoners

Official Berlin statements, which correspond closely with those previously received and with Berlin and Russian casualty lists, state that 240,000 prisoners have been taken since the beginning of the war, and that they are to be put to work.

Of these, about 100,000 are Russians, 40,000 Belgians, 7000 English and 93,000 French. No confirmation can be obtained from Belgian and French sources of these figures, for nothing has been given out regarding the losses of these nations; but the Belgian prisoners probably number about 40,000, for only about 90,000 men, at most, are left of the Belgian army.

English troops are said to have come to the aid of Antwerp, and Belgium declares that the forts hold everywhere. Similar statements were made regarding Liege, long after the city had fallen. Germany maintains that a wide breach has been made in the first line of defense and that the second line is now open to attack.

Germany has warned neuteral shipping that England is planting mines in the North sea. Berlin hears that Portuguese troops are being taken aboard British ships at Lisbon for service against Germany. Some weeks ago Portugal announced that its "ancient treaty" with England would compel it to support that country. Germany now expects war with the new republic.

WANT TRENT IN ITALY

Petitioners Formally Put Their Case Before Italian Parliament

Italians from Trent, in Austria, who reside in Italy, have petitioned the Italian parliament to complete the work of freeing Italy begun by King Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi. They request that Italy unite to the kingdom the Austrian provinces inhabited by Italians. The petitioners are headed by Signor Battisti.

A great meeting was held at Milan, and before a large and enthusiastic crowd Battisti made a speech in which he said that, as a son of Trent, it was awaiting liberation by its Italian brothers. "The liberation of Trent and Triest," he said, "means the accomplishment of a duty left as a heritage by the great makers of the fatherland."

"BRITISHERS TREMBLE"

Berlin Paper Says They Fear Attack Under Water and In Air

The German newspapers continue to print items of news sent them from England. One of the latest newspapers in Berlin contains the following:

"It is difficult to say whether the Britishers tremble more in fear of an enemy below the water or in the air, after the exploit of the German submarine off the Hook of Holland. Now that foggy weather is beginning, and as the German submarines and torpedo boats can steal out and attack big English battleships, which are visible a mile away, and be off before they are seen, the 'producence' of the British sailors is growing daily.

"As to danger from the air, Zeppelins are expected everywhere. London is kept at night in semi-darkness in the fear that the city may be made a target for the enemy's airships."

STRUCK BY A MINE

Grain-Laden Steamer From the United States Is Sunk

Telegraphing from Ostend, the Exchange Telegraph correspondent says:

The Ardmount was from Galveston, and it is reported that when she reached Falmouth last Saturday she was ordered on to Antwerp.

The British steamer Ardmont, a vessel of 3510 tons, commanded by Captain Ronald, sailed from Galveston Sept. 9, and arrived at Falmouth Oct. 3, and sailed shortly afterward for Antwerp. The Ardmount was owned by the Ashmount Steamship company, Glasgow.

SUBMARINE DISAPPEARS

Retired Italian Naval Lieutenant Is Under Suspicion

A submarine boat which has just been completed in a private shipyard near Spezia, Italy, has disappeared, and it is declared that a retired naval lieutenant, Angelo Bellini, who was in charge of her, has taken the vessel to some unknown destination.

The submarine was out for trial in the gulf of Spezia, and when she did not return a torpedo boat was sent to search for her. Bellini, in a letter to the firm that constructed the boat, said he would furnish an explanation for the disappearance of the craft. He added that the crew of the submarine was ignorant of his plans.

DECORATIONS FOR AVIATORS

Kaiser Will Honor First One Who Drops Bomb on London

Wiring from Amsterdam the London Standard's correspondent says:

Information has been received here from Berlin that the kaiser has promised to confer a special decoration for the second class of the order of the Red Eagle on the first German aviator who drops explosives on London.

Lesser, but still unusual honors, are promised to German aviators who drop explosives on a British warship or some town in England other than London.

CRUISERS LOST 1433 MEN

This Number, Exclusive of Officers, Killed In the North Sea

Exclusive of officers, 1433 lives were lost in the sinking of the British cruisers Aboukir, Cressy and Hogue in the North sea Sept. 22, according to a report issued by the British admiralty.

The Abcukir lost 510 men, the Cressy 561 and the Hogue 362.

LOST IN BATTLE ZONE

Friends of Landor Becoming Anxious as to His Whereabouts

A. H. S. Landor, the British explorer, who disputed Theodore Roosevelt's discovery of the River of Doubt in South America, is reported to have ventured beyond the outer line of fortifications in Antwerp, and is missing.

Whether Landor has been taken prisoner by the Germans is not definitely known, but his friends in London fear that this is the case.

BAIL BOND FORFEITED

Jack Johnson Fails to Appear In Court When Case Is Called

Chicago, Oct. 6.—The $50,000 bond of Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, was declared forfeited by Federal Judge Carpenter when Johnson failed to appear in court for retrial on white slavery charges.

The district attorney will begin suit against the estate of Matthew Baldwin, a deceased professional bondsman, and against Mrs. Tina Johnson, mother of the fighter, to recover the amount of the bond. Johnson was not represented in court.

GREAT PRAIRIE FIRE

District Thirty-Six Miles Long and Twelve Wide Is Swept

Mandan, N. D., Oct. 6.—After raging for four days and devastating a district twelve miles wide and thirty-six miles long, a prairie fire here is thought to be under control.

Of the 700 men and women called out to fight the fire, many were from the Standing Rock Indian reservation, where the most damage was done. Indications are that the damage will go beyond $100,000.

Girl Killed In Auto Wreck

Canton, Mass., Oct. 6.—Margaret Dooley was killed and three companions were seriously injured when the touring car in which they were riding overturned here.

Dutch Steamer Blown Up

Amsterdam, Oct. 6.—The Dutch steamer Nieuwland struck a mine in the North Sea and sank. Her crew of seventeen men were saved by a trawler.

"What sort of man is Jinks?"

"The impression you get of Jinks depends on the circumstances under which you meet him. If you're there to collect money you won't like him. But if you're there to pay money he seems a lovely character."

PRESSING WORK NEARLY DONE

Adjournment of Congress Is Planned For Oct. 15

WILL BE NO EXTRA SESSION

Only Some Extraordinary Emergency Would Necessitate Extra Term Either In November or Next March —President Tells What Is to Be Done Before Congress Closes

Washington, Oct. 6.—Outlining the legislative program for the remainder of the session of congress, President Wilson told callers that no extra session in November was contemplated. He added that only some extraordinary emergency would necessitate an extra session following adjournment of the short session in March.

The president said the war tax bill, the Clayton anti-trust bill and the Alaskan coal leasing bill would complete the important work for the present session, and that when these bills were disposed of he saw no reason why an adjournment should not be taken. Oct. 15 is the date tentatively agreed upon.

Asked about threats by Representative Henry of Texas to fight against an adjournment until cotton relief measures were passed the president said the membership of the house rather than Henry would decide when to adjourn.

For the next session the program as outlined by the president will include the Alexander ship purchase bill, the Philippine bill, the general leasing bill, the general land bill, the general dam bill and the usual appropriation bills.

Regarding the presidential primary bill, which he favors, the president said that he had held several conferences on the subject and had found there would be no great complexity in framing the details in order not to conflict with state election laws. It would be difficult, he said, to complete the legislation this congress, but he was still at work on the subject.

The president said he did not think it necessary to act on the safety-at-sea convention during the present session. The Reyburn securities issue bill also probably will go over until the next session.

VILLA FACING REVOLT

Ten Thousand of His Followers Are Already In Mutiny

Juarez, Mex., Oct. 6.—With 10,000 of his men already in revolt and discontent among his generals growing, General Villa hurriedly returned to Torreon to put an end to a more general mutiny, which is threatened in the northern army.

The loss of the Herrerra army of nearly 5000 and of the Arrieta forces in Durango, numbering nearly 3000 more, annoyed Villa, but he became alarmed when General Chao, commanding a detachment of 2500 troops, deserted with his men.

Chao's action, following that of Herrerra and Arrieta, causes Villa and his friends to fear a general revolt in his army, which may give Carranza an advantage which will be difficult to overcome.

NOW GOES TO HOUSE

Senate Adopts Conference Report on Anti-Trust Measure

Washington, Oct. 6.—The administeration anti-trust program was completed in the senate late yesterday when the conference report on the Clayton anti-trust bill was agreed to by a vote of 35 to 24.

The senate voted down a motion by Senator Reed to recommit the bill to conference. Reed's motion contemplated the reinstatement of criminal penalties for violations of sections specifying methods of competition declared unlawful.

The conference report will now go to the house, where its adoption with only brief debate is expected.

Bubonic Plague Reappears

New Orleans, Oct. 6.—Bubonic plague, which had been declared eradicated here, reappeared. Ching Yu, a Chinese, died four hours after he was removed to the isolation hospital, and John Kearney, 4 years old, was stricken.

Life Sentence For Murderer

Portland, Me., Oct. 6.—Albert L. Barker, convicted of the murder of Helen Brown, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the superior court. Both are negroes.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

W. P. Brown, for years known as the "Cotton King of the South," died at New Orleans.

Maria Sonzino, 26, of Boston was arrested on the charge of being an accessory to the murder of her husband by Giovanni Cinecola.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

The Finance committee of the City Council will meet on Thursday evening.

Chief of Police Burrell returned from Maine, Monday evening, where he had been on a few days vacation.

Mrs. E. A. Glover has been confined to her room in the Adams building the last two weeks with a badly scalded foot.

A Spiritualist meeting will be held this evening at 7 45 at 8 Mechanics street. The message bearer will be Mrs. S. V. Odiorne and the speaker Mrs. L. Brooks.

In the superior court at Dedham Monday the case of the town of Milton through its assessors, was begun against Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater for $4,755 alleged taxes due to the town.

BOARD OF TRADE APPRECIATIVE

When last night, I was called to the stage at the end of the second act of the Board of Trade Play, "Along Came Ruth," my mind was filled with what I wanted to say, but when I stepped on to the stage, and looked across those blinding foot-lights, into that sea of faces, my thoughts forsook me, and for a moment, I was at a loss.

That justice be done to those to whom justice is due, I wish now and here to personally express the obligation under which the Board of Trade lies,

First—to the Directors who worked so faithfully.

Secondly—to the Board members who supported us so splendidly.

Thirdly—to Col. Henry L. Kincaide whose generosity and public spirit made possible the use of his theatre, and his further generosity in the donation which he personally made towards the expenses of the production.

Fourthly—to the newspapers of our city who so unstintingly gave of their time and space to help in making the play of last night one long to be remembered in Quincy.

I must not forget Capt. George Wardwell and his office staff and their interested and thorough co-operation. trouble theyi--ia jitAcccc:tKsvcigOB Nor must I forget C. R. Derby and Walter G. Field, the publishers of the new and beautiful program, and the trouble they personally took in the arrangement and distribution, and last, but not least, I must not forget the absolute and ready response of our citizens, to whose patronage the success of last evening is entirely due.

In conclusion, let me say, that if the lesson as taught by "Along Came Ruth"—initiative, co-operation, and push-proves an invitation to even one of that vast audience to help the Board of Trade in its continued efforts to build up Quincy, then the effort has not been in vain.

Thanking everyone who contributed in any measure to the success of last night's play, and hoping that it will be an inspiration to each and all
Gratefully,
JOHN L. HAMILTON,
President of Quincy Board of Trade.

Rudolph Cronquist, a mariner, and Gertrude M. Peterson of 168 Centre street were married in Boston Oct. 2 by Rev. A. W. Sundelof. They will live in this city.

The funeral of Clara Gilraine, widow of James Gilraine, was held from her home at 295 Quarry street extension this morning and attended by many relatives and friends. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Mary's church by Rev. Fr. Thomas R McCoy, pastor, and music was by the regular choir. The bearers were Joseph McPherson, John W. Burke, Michael Barry, Frank Alice, Michael Shea and Thomas Rogan. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

One of the Penniman taxicabs was badly damaged when it ran into the Pearson block at Brewers corner at midnight, after its steering gear locked as the result of hitting a heavy jounce on Garfield street. Thomas Curtin of Garfield street, the chauffeur, who was slightly shaken up, probably owes his escape from injury to the fact that the machine did not sideswipe the building. Curtin was operating at moderate speed and turned from Granite to Garfield street when the heavy jounce caused the gear to lock. The wheels turned suddenly at right angles and before the brakes could be applied the machine shot across the street and hit the building almost head-on. The force of the impact sprung the axle and bent several rods. There were no passengers in the machine at the time.

HISTORICAL AUTOGRAPH

Through a collection donated to the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants by Miss Florina M. Collamore, Miss Adeline Collamore Young and Charles Hatch of Quincy to the society, it has, following an eighteen year search been able to find one autograph signature of the Mayflower passenger. The signature was found in a collection of 5000 papers donated by the Quincy people as noted above. Nearly 400 of these papers bore dates before 1750 being the property of the late Peter Collamore, of Scituate who died in 1684 and which were handed down to his relatives in Quincy.

The signature found is that of Samuel Fuller, which was found on a deed dated March 25, 1650 and is a conveyance of the house and land at Scituate of Fuller to Peter Collamore.

Samuel Fuller, the grantor and his wife, called Jane, who consented to this sale, it is certain was indietical with the Samuel Fuller who came over with his father, Edward Fuller in the Mayflower.

A dispatch from Plymouth however takes some exceptions as to whether the signature of Samuel Fuller, the credit of finding of which is given to George Ernest Bowman, editor of Pilgrim Notes and Queries, is that of Samuel Fuller of Scituate, who came with his father Edward Fuller in the Mayflower .

The dispatch states that if anyone interested, will visit the Plymouth County registry of deeds they can find at least four genuine Pilgrim autographs of men famous in history. On this registry can be found the autographs of Myles Standish, Governor William Bradford, John Alden and Elder William Brewster, with the names of others who were passengers on the famous craft, written in the old fashioned hand. The dispatch however says that the discovery of the Fuller signature is of interest.

BATTLESHIP BIDS OPENED

Fore River Company Was a High Bidder

Bids were opened at Washington this noon for building three battleships. There were two classes of bids asked for. One was for building ships according to designs of the government, and were known as class A The other known as class B were for battleships to be built according to designs of private yards.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation submitted bids for two of the battleships to be built under class B. One of their bids was for battleships equipped with the Curtis turbine and the second for battleships equipped with what is known as electric drive.

The bids of the different firms were as follows:

Newport News, three bids, $7,115,000, $7,150,000 and $7,195,000.

New York Shipbuilding Co., three bids, $7,175,000, $7,250,000 and $7,350,000.

Fore River Shipbuilding Corp., two bids, $7,440,000 and $7,540,000.

Cramps, one bid, $7,625,000.

It will be seen by the above that the Newport News Co., was the lowest bidder. Unless the work is divided Quincy will not get a ship.

Collective.

At a regular mass meeting of the Scandinavians in South Minneapolis a few nights since, the pastor having heard that one John Johnson wanted to join the church, said, "Will John Johnson, if present, please stand up?" Nearly all the men present stood up. The bewildered preacher looked around awhile, and then said: "You may sit down, Mr. Johnson, I will call a meeting of you some time next week."

QUINCY ATLANTIC

A rally in the interest of Candidate Tilden for Mayor will be held on Wednesday evening, at which the candidate will be present.

Word has been received from Charles W. Read of Billings street, who is now in White Hall, London that he expects to be back in Atlantic about Oct. 20. Mr. Read is strong in his sympathies for Great Britain, and expresses the belief that Britain's fight is not only for herself and the European nations, but also for all English speaking countries including America.

The advisory board of the Memorial Congregational church of Atlantic took steps at its monthly meeting Monday evening for aggressive work this winter that will count much in making the new comers feel that the church is interested in them. The treasurer, Paul Butler, reported that all bills for renovation of church and other summer expenses had been paid and that the church treasury was in a healthful conditon.

Mrs. L. D. Gurney of Walker street is visiting her niece at Northfield seminary, Northfield.

Dr. William McGlauflin of Billings street left Sunday for Buffalo, where he will atend a Universalist convention.

Mary E., wife of Thomas F. Kerrigan, died at St. Margarets hospital Monday after a short illness. She was a well known resident of Atlantic. Her funeral will take place Thursday morning.

CITY CLERK COMPLIMENTED

In view of the fact that there has been much complaint on the part of the Secretary of State over the manner in which the returns of the State primaries were made by the city and town clerks throughout the state, it is pleasant to note that City Clerk Emery L. Crane has been complimented by the Secretary of State for the officient attention which he gave to the returns of the primaries. His letter sent to City Clerk Crane is as follows:

Boston, Oct. 5, 1914.

Dear Sir: Permit me to express to you my sincere appreciation of the care and attention given to the duties required of you in connection with the primaries. Your promptness has contributed much to the success to the work of this department.

Very truly yours,
Frank J. Donahue.

Mr. E. L. Crane,
City Clerk, Quincy, Mass.

The funeral of Ethel Shaw of Somerville, who died while visiting in this city, was held this afternoon from the home of her sister on Trescott street. Services were conducted by Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott of Bethany Congregational church, and the body was taken to Cambridge for burial.

Alfred J. P. Pinel of South Quincy is suffering from a fracture of the right wrist sustained in falling from an electric car Thursday evening.

QUINCY POINT

A reception is to be given to Rev. Stephen C. Lang, pastor of the Washington street congregational church, and Mrs. Lang, Wednesday evening by the people of the church. The reception will be held in the vestry of the church and all interested in the church, over fourteen years of age are cordially invited.

The Home Missionary society of the Washington street Congregational church will meet with Mrs. Alex. Shirley, at 592 South street, Thursday afternoon.

The Registrars of Voters meet in the hose house at Atlantic tonight to add names to the voting lists.

BOY IS SHOT MYSTERIOUSLY

Definite information that will lead to the solution of the mystery surrounding the shooting of 17 year old Leslie Rowe, who is at the Quincy City Hospital with a bullet in his vitals, has not been secured by either the Weymouth or Quincy police.

Four boys who were with him when he was shot in Weymouth on Friday were taken from the the shipyard Monday by Patrolman Edward Johnson of this city. They gave their names as William Scott, 465 Washington street; Charles Nezins, 629 South street; Thomas and James Kelly, South street, all of Quincy Point.

Their story is that together with Rowe they went to East Weymouth on Friday, where they picked some grapes Suddenly they saw a man jump out of the bushes and fire a gun. Rowe fell to the ground and before they had a good look at the man he disappeared.

Rowe has an indistinct recollection of some one firing five shots, but fails to remember when or where it happened. The police are making further investigations.

SUCCESSOR OF MAYOR MILLER IS SWORN IN

END CAME PEACEFULLY LAST EVENING AT 9.20

Hon. John L. Miller, Mayor of Quincy, Succumbs to a Long Illness

City Hall and Schoolhouse Flags at Half Mast

Mayor John L. Miller passed away at his home on Franklin street, Tuesday evening, at 9.20. The Mayor had been in an unconscious state for some days past, and the family at his bedside realized that it was only a question of how long his strength would hold out. Early Tuesday evening a change for the worse in his condition was noticed and Dr. E. R. Johnson the family physician was summoned. Dr. Johnson remained at the bedside until the end.

The Mayor had not been a well man for a long time. Although able to be about City Hall most of the time during the early part of the year, for the past six months he has been there but little, and the duties of Mayor devolved upon City Clerk Emery L. Crane. The last time that Mayor Miller was at City Hall was the Saturday before Labor Day, Sept. 5. That day his condition was so weak that he had to be assisted to his home.

The Mayor fully realized his condition and understood that should he not live until after the first of October a special election would be necessary. To those near him he expressed a strong desire to live long enough that he might save the city the necessary expense of a special election, and this wish has been gratified.

It has been generally supposed that if the Mayor lived until Oct. 1, a special election would not be necessary. Such however was not the case. Under the City Charter if a vacancy occurs within three months from the end of the MUNICIPAL YEAR a special election would be necessary. This does not mean three months from the end of the calendar year, but the municipal year. The municipal year begins on the first Monday in January, which next year would be January 4. It was therefore necessary that the Mayor should live until after Oct. 4.

Although the Mayor has been a great sufferer during the past year the end came peacefully.

Mayor Miller was born in Truro, N. S., and came to Quincy in 1870, and started to learn the granite cutter's trade which he thoroughly mastered. He was one of those who became affiliated with the Granite Cutters' Union in its early years and in 1878 was elected as its president, which office he held during the time of the famous lockout, when for seven months the granite cutters of the city were deprived of employment at their trade. This was really the first serious labor trouble the granite industry of Quincy ever had.

Those who resided in Quincy at that time will recall the strenuous times during the great lockout. At that time the union established a kind of co-operative store, and instead of paying money direct to the men they were given groceries at cost.

As a direct result of this lockout there was organized the Merrymount Granite Co., the organization being the work of Mayor Miller. This was in 1879, and as all the stockholders were locked out granite cutters, the firm was able to continue business. Mr. Miller served as president of this company for several years.

In 1885 he formed a co-partnership with W. H. Thomas under the firm name of Thomas & Miller, and started the present manufacturing plant in Quincy, the firm doing a very large retail business all over the country.

In 1900 Mr. Thomas retired from the firm since which time it has been carried on by Mr. Miller. In 1893 he was elected by the Granite Manufacturers association of which he had then become a member to go to the World's fair at Chicago, and settle a controversy there with the judges. In this he was successful.

He became president of the Granite Manufacturers Association in 1900 and served in that capacity for four years.

His first public office was as a member of the School Committee being elected in 1902 for a term of three years as member of that board from Ward Three. He served as a member of the School Committee continuously until the close of the year 1913, four years of his service being as chairman of the board.

In 1913, he was chairman of the bureau which had charge of the plans for the National Retail Granite Dealers' convention which was held in Boston, in August, 1913.

In 1912 he became the candidate for the Progressive party for Mayor, but was defeated at the polls by Eugene R. Stone. The following year, he was a candidate for the nomination of the party at its convention held in Wollaston but was defeated for the nomination by William G. Shaw.

Upon leaving the convention hall, steps were immediately taken to have him become an independent candidate and it was under this title that he was elected after a campaign that was unique. During all of this campaign he was a sick man, and for the most part of the time was confined to his home, and was unable to attend rallies or take active part to any great extent in the campaign. However when the election was over, and the votes counted, it was seen that he had been elected by a good plurality.

He was unable to be about much until after inauguration day, and broke all precedents by not preparing any inauguration day address. He delivered an extemporaneous address which was unique as well as characteristic.

Once installed as Mayor he found things far different from what he expected, and that all of the office holders were not rogues as some had pictured them, and it was not many days after he had announced his appointments that, he said things were very much different from what he had been led to believe and that if he had things to do over again he would do them differently.

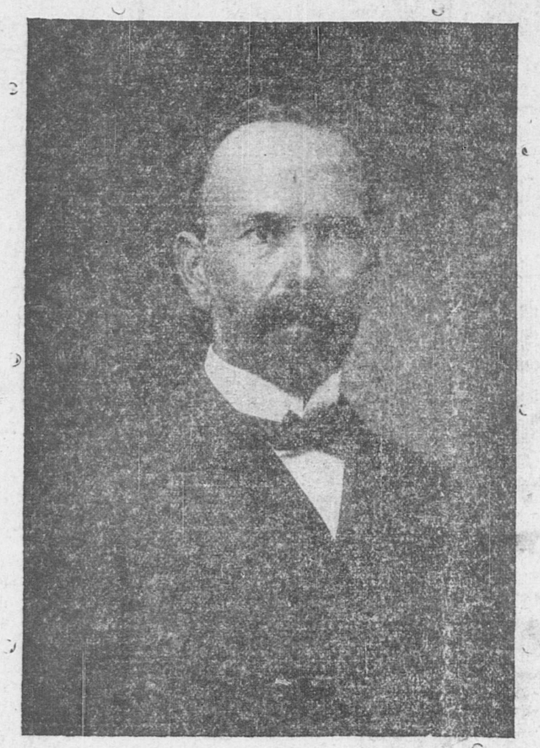

His administration has been one filled with excitement. First came the removal of the entire Board of Assessors and the appointment of new men, one of whom was removed a few weeks later. Then came the abolishing of other offices in order to get rid of certain civil service men, and there has been something doing in the way of news in the old stone building up to the time when his health failed more rapidly and he was unable to give all the time to the office which he desired.

He was gritty, however, and stuck to the ship as long as strength and will power would permit. Early in the summer he went to Hingham where he lived in a tent in the woods until Labor day when he came back to Quincy.

Taken as a whole his administration has been a strenuous one. He and the City Council failed to agree on many things, and during the latter part of the session before vacation there was more or less friction. However, all agree that Mayor Miller was honest and that it was his desire and intention to give the city the best administration it ever had.

Had his health permitted things might have been different and had he lived he would have been a candidate for re-election this fall.

He was a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the Quincy Y. M. C. A., Wollaston Baptist church and Wollaston lodge of Masons. He leaves a widow, son and daughters.

CITY CHARTER PROVISIONS

Section 5 of the City Charter provides for elections, etc: It reads as follows:

Sec. 5. At such municipal election the qualified voters shall give in their votes by ballot in the several wards for Mayor, Councilman and members of the School Committee then to be elected, and the person receiving the highest number of votes for any office shall be deemed and declared to be elected to such office; and whenever two or more persons are to be elected to the same office, the several persons, up to the number required to be chosen, receiving the highest number of votes shall be deemed and declared to be elected.

"If it shall appear that there is no choice of Mayor, or if the person elected mayor shall refuse to accept the office, or shall die before qualifying, or if a vacancy in said office shall occur subsequently and more than three months previous to the expiration of the municipal year, the city council shall forthwith cause warrants to be issued for a new election, and the same proceedings shall be had in all respects as are hereinbefore provided for the election of Mayor, and shall be repeated until the election of the Mayor is completed.

"If the full number of members of the City Council has not been elected or if a vacancy in the office of councilman shall occur subsequently and more than three months previous to the expiration of the municipal year, the council shall forthwith cause a new election to be held to fill the vacancy or vacancies."

Sec. 31. Whenever there shall be a vacancy in the office of mayor, the president of the city council shall act as mayor and possess all the rights and powers of mayor during such vacancy, except that when so acting as mayor he shall not have the power of appointment or removal unless thereto in any instance authorized by vote of the council.

TRIBUTES TO MAYOR MILLER

Mayor Whiton when interviewed this morning relative to the death of Mayor Miller said:

"In common with all of our citizens, I deeply deplore the death of our late Mayor, Hon. John L. Miller. I had the greatest respect for his honor and integrity, and am sure, that had he been blessed with good health, he would have made a most efficient Mayor."

'It is with regret that we are obliged to record the death of Mr. Miller, and I hasten to express my sympathy in all that he has suffered during the past year. I sympathize with his family in their sad loss, and join with all in expressing my best wishes for their future welfare. Mayor Miller was known in the community as a man of pronounced opinions on public questions; ill health during his short term of office prevented him from working out many of those opinions in his administration."

John D. Mackay, chairman of the School Committee said:

"The early demise of Mayor Miller was anticipated by all who knew his condition for some time past, and perhaps it is well that he has secured release from pain. It is his breaking down that is to be regretted. John L. Miller was a type of citizen altogether too rare now-a-days. He was public-spirited and enterprising, an ardent lover of fair-play and a consistent hater of the crooked deal."

JOSEPH L. WHITON BECOMES MAYOR

City Charter Provides President of City Council Shall Take Office

Special Election Will Not Now Be Necessary

Official notice of the death of Mayor Miller was received shortly after 10 o'clock Tuesday evening by City Clerk Crane, then acting Mayor, upon his return from the session of the Registrars of Voters at Atlantic.

President Whiton of the City Council was notified and he and Mr. Crane went to City Hall where President Joseph L. Whiton of the City Council was duly sworn in at 10.15 as Mayor in accordance with the terms of the City Charter.

This morning Mayor Whiton came to City Hall early and immediately took up the reins of office. One of his first duties was to call upon the family of Mayor Miller and extend his sympathy, and that of the citizens of Quincy, in their great loss. He was accompanied to the home of Mayor Miller by City Clerk Crane.

When seen after his return he said that he should call a special meeting of the City Council for Thursday evening to take official action on the death of Mayor Miller. He also stated that City Hall would be closed Friday afternoon, the date of the funeral services, and that a delegation of the permanent men of the police and Fire departments would do escort duty at the funeral.

He was unable to get into [illegible] with Chairman Mackay of the School Committee this morning, but probably will do so before the day is out, to arrange for the public schools to close on Friday afternoon, and possibly all day. It is also possible that City Hall may be draped.

JOSEPH L. WHITON.

Funeral services for the late Mayor will be held from his late home on Franklin street Friday afternoon at 2.30, and will in accordance with the wish of the family, be simple.

Mayor Whiton, who by the death of Mayor Miller assumes the office of Mayor by virtue of the city charter for the remainder of the year is well qualified to fulfill the manifold duties of the office. His long intimacy with the affairs while serving as a member of the City Council, has made him familiar with all branches of the city government, as he is now serving his eighth term as a member of that body.

His first three years of service were as a member from Ward Two. This was in 1902, 1903 and 1908. He also served in the years 1909, 1910, 1913, a part of the time as Councilman at large.

During the early part of 1914 he was elected as President of the City Council to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of President Charles M. Bryant. It was his first experience as presiding officer over that body, but he soon grasped the situation, and quickly mastered the many details of parliamentary procedure, which it is necessary, for the presiding officer to be familiar with. The result of his election as President put a stop to the filibustering which had threatened to hamper the transaction of business.

Mayor Whiton is a Quincy boy, having been born in this city Feb. 28, 1873. He was educated in the public schools of the city and at Adams Academy. He was engaged for a number of years as a shoe salesman, but for several years past has been connected with a large Boston rubber goods house.

He has often been considered, and urged to become a candidate for Mayor, but though he was almost sure of election, did he enter the contest, he has always steadfastly refused, mainly for the reason that his business interests during the early part of the year were such that he could not give the time to the duties of the office which he felt should be given. At this season of the year however his line of business is not so pressing, and he promises to give the city the best there is in him for the balance of the year.

In addition to being a member of Rural lodge of Masons, he is affiliated with St. Stephen's R. A. M., and Quincy commandery, K. T., He is also a member of the Quincy Yacht club.

SCHOOLS OF CITY WILL CLOSE

Mayor Whiton sent the following letter to the School Committee this morning:

Mr. John D. Mackay, Chairman of the School Committee.

Dear Sir:—Owing to the death of Mayor, Mr. John L. Miller, I hereby request the schools to be closed on Friday, Oct. 9, 1914, at 12 o'clock noon for the rest of the day, out of respect to his family.

Yours respectfully,
Joseph L. Whiton,
Acting Mayor.

As soon as Chairman Mackay received the letter he got in touch with Mayor Whiton and informed him that the request would be granted.

Judging from the conflicting reports put out by the war bureaus, they have all sent over to New York and secured the services of the most competent theatrical press agents.

Newly married people used to wonder if they were too old to go to dancing school, but now they usually feel too young.

When a student pays $100 for his tuition, and $500 or more for his clothes and social engagements, there is considerable doubt in the minds of the faculty as to what he came to college for anyway.

EFFECT OF THE WAR.

The European armies so far, seem to have been supported mostly out of "war chests," vast sums previously amassed. But the borrowing of money has begun. This means that all the contending people must for many years pay an extra tax. If the powers have any sense remaining, they will agree, when the war closes, on some reduction of armament. The saving here might balance the heavier taxes caused by interest and payments on war loans.

Where the war will pinch bitterly is in the loss of earning power. Millions of families must now draw on their savings, and very likely exhaust them. The scale of living will be reduced. People will occupy poorer houses, eat less food, and cut out luxuries. Families that have lost the breadwinner must struggle on ill-fed and half nourished.

Europe cannot for the next decade buy so many American manufactured goods. It will not be able to eat so much grain and meat. While the war lasts, more food products will be bought in this country. Armies have to be fed, even if the children starve. So many farm workers have been killed, that agricultural production will drop in Europe after the war. So perhaps, in spite of the prospective poverty, Europe may permanently buy just as much of our farm products.

The war will have at least three economic effects on American business:—

2.—Some new export trade should be developed by our manufacturers in Southern countries, on account of the crippling of European producers.

3.—Business will be so disorganized in Europe for a period of years, that competition with American factories for our home market will be less severe.

Hence as far as effect on American business goes, there seem to be two favorable factors to one that is adverse. Hence there is every reason why business in America should advance confidently. Let every one save needless expense. But it is no time to hoard. If you can save a dollar take it to some bank, where it will help finance some good enterprise.

MASONIC VISITATION

Wollaston Lodge Has Plans Ready for New Temple

Two important events took place in the history of Wollaston Masonic lodge Tuesday evening. The first was the occasion of the official visitation of the Rt. Wor. District Deputy Grand Master, Gardner R. P. Barker and suite. The second was the announcement made by the building committee, that plans for the Temple to be erected on the site secured on Beale street had been secured, and that the builder had been selected, and that it would be but a matter of a short time before active work would be commenced.

Wollaston lodge has long been cramped for room. It has been growing very fast and its quarters are much too small to allow the work of conferring degrees to be carried out as the officers desire. Tuesday evening, was the occasion of the annual visitation, and it is on such evenings that there is always a large attendance, and it proved no exception to the rule, for the attendance was upwards of 200.

One other incident occurred late in the evening just at the end of the closing ceremonies, when Dr. E. R Johnson announced that Mayor John L. Miller, a member of Wollaston lodge, had passed away.

A brief service for the departed brother was then held, prayer being offered by the chaplain, Rev. Isaiah W. Sneath, while the brothers stood with bowed heads.

The Grand officers were received shortly after 8 o'clock being accorded the usual honors by the Acting Master, Carroll E. Bates in the absence of Wor. Charles E. Cherrington, who is ill, but is now reported to be on the road to recovery.

The Grand officers were escorted by a committee consisting of Wor. Eugene F. DeNormandie, Wor. Walter S. Pinkham, Wor. Charles E. Monroe and Bros. Burrell, Harrison, Young and Robbins.

The right Worshipful was accompanied by Wor. Charles W. Dunbar, as district deputy grand marshal; Wor. Walker J. S. Harrison, sitting master of Delta lodge of Braintree, as grand senior warden; Wor. George F. Farrar, sitting master of Orphans Hope lodge, East Weymouth as grand junior warden; Wor. H. Everett Crane, sitting master of Rural lodge of Quincy, as grand treasurer; and Wor. Ernest S. Rogers, sitting master of Norfolk Union lodge of Randolph as grand secretary.

Others on the suite were Wor. Edward M. Wight, and Wor. Edwin F. Sterling of Delta lodge; Bro. Henry D. Higgins, junior warden of Delta lodge; Wor. Samuel F. Howard, of Paul Revere lodge of Brockton; Wor. Olaf Olson of Gate of the Temple lodge of Boston; Wor. Frank A. Reed, Wor. Albert M. Parker of Rural lodge, Bro. Charles H. Chubbuck, Jr., junior warden of Orphans Hope lodge; and Bro. George E. White, senior warden of Norfolk Union lodge.

There were two other distinguished brothers on the suite who attracted considerable attention as they walked in side by side. They were Bro. Walter E. Simmons, for upwards of thirty years secretary of Rural lodge, and James C. Bates, the veteran secretary of Massachusetts lodge of Boston, who is also the father of Bro. Carroll E. Bates, senior warden of Wollaston lodge, and on this occasion acting master.

During the evening the deputy and suite witnessed an exemplification of the work of the officers, after which the right worshipful brought the greetings of the Grand lodge and complimented the officers on their work and Wollaston lodge on its flourishing condition.

A collection taken for the Masonic Home amounted to $45. During the evening music was furnished by the Weber quartette. At the close of the business of the evening an adjournment was made to Brasee's hall where a banquet was served.

QUINCY MEN TO THE FRONT

They Will Have An Opportunity to Follow I. P. Hubbard and Col. Bradford

Look for Startling Announcement Tomorrow

Too many compliments have been extended to me for the part I took in bringing to Quincy the production of "Along Came Ruth." Without co-operation of the and hundreds of others, the grand success would not have been possible To one and all of these I unite with the Board of Trade in returning hearty thanks. Also to the entire cast and every one connected with the "Along Came Ruth" Company, and to the Plymouth Theatre.

One feels encouraged to work for his city when he has such hearty co-operation. As the people of Quincy well know, the Daily Ledger has been exerting itself to the utmost of late to BOOST QUINCY. It was on Sept. 4, my birthday, that Quincy and Boston dailies united in inviting people to live in Quincy. And everyone saw the cal.

Since then the following "live wires" have written special articles BOOSTING QUINCY, all of which have had effect beyond all expectations:

Rev. D. M. Wilson
Rev. A. L. Hudson
Rupert F. Claflin.
Clarence Burgin
Herman F. McIntire
Col. Henry L. Kincaide
Rev. B. A. Willmott
Fred E. Wright
Emery L. Crane
Miss Florence Shirley
John D. Mackay
Mrs. Edith Cary Page
And others.

To the above list should be added the live merchants of Quincy who have taken larger space in the local newspapers. The success of "Along Came Ruth" shows that "advertising pays." How else would it have been possible to sell every seat in Kincaide's Theatre at $1.50 and $1.00 per ticket in four days?

Miss Shirley in her little speech said: "In my opinion they (the Boosters) will accomplish whatever may be their aim.: I believe I am safe in saying this because of the splendid and hearty co-operation you lend them." She little knew what success was coming immediately, but the Daily Ledger knows, and will make a startling announcement tomorrow. A leading businessman of the city does not propose to wait for the secretary of the Board of Trade to call on him. Read his proposition in the Daily Ledger tomorrow. An edition of 5000 copies will be printed. Merchants this is your opportunity at regular rates.

QUINCY PIANOFORTE SCHOOL
Greenleaf Block, 1419 Hancock St., Quincy

ADVANTAGES:

1.—Better instruction and better prices cannot be obtained in Quincy.

2.—Our system is thorough and modern; our instructors are capable, experienced and up-to-date.

3.—Our pupils have the privilege of appearing in public three times a season; and know how to conduct themselves correctly and gracefully on the concert stage.

4.—Our 1st. and 2nd. year General Class lessons are worth as much as the regular piano lessons, but this year we include these lessons with the price of the piano lessons alone.

5.—The director, Mr. Hackelton, is a graduate of the N. E. Conservatory of Music, finished abroad and a leading teacher in Boston for ten years.

6.—We award certificates to pupils finishing our courses.

7.—We are presenting a limited number of music rolls to our pupils as a souvenir of our opening.

Information regarding terms, teachers, system etc., will be cheerfully given at the School, or a circular sent on request.

ENTHUSIASTIC FOR WALL

Col. Kincaide One of Ward Three Speakers

Five hundred enthusiastic voters of Ward Three tendered James E. Wall, the tax-payers' candidate for Mayor, a reception at Franklin hall. Tuesday evening. David McIntosh, former president of the Granite Cutters' Union, presided. Music was furnished by Sullivan Sisters' lady orchestra of Wollaston. During the evening solos were rendered by Deputy Sheriff William J. McDevitt of Suffolk County. Light refreshments were served.

The speakers of the evening included James F. Hagan of Atlantic, chairman of the Taxpayers' Association: Neil McDonald of Ward Four: Daniel Driscoll of Ward Three; Albert Marr of Ward Two; ex-state Senator Albert E. Morrison of Ward Three; Councilman Carlson of Ward Six, Temple E. Winsloe of Ward Five, Arthur L. Thomas of Ward One; Harry Levowich of Ward Two; and James E. Wall the candidate, who set forth in no uncertain terms his platform and policies which were greeted with rounds of applause.

The closing speaker of the evening was Col. Henry L. Kincaide, candidate for Congress, who arrived late from Whitman and Braintree and received a tremendous ovation when he paid his respects to Mr. Wall. The applause which Colonel Kincaide received at the conclusion of his speech would leave no doubt in the minds of any true Quincyite that he would be the next Congressman from this district.

At the close of the meeting word was received of the death of Mayor Miller. Upon the suggestion of the chairman the sympathy of the meeting was expressed by all rising while the orchestra rendered "Nearer My God to Thee."

—An equal suffrage plank is one of the features of the platform endorsed by the Democratic party of Massachusetts at the convention last week. It reads: "We believe that the question of equal suffrage should be submitted to the vote of the people in the manner provided by the constitution.

"No Alum"

must be the watchword when the housewife buys baking powder.

Alum is well known to be a powerful astringent, and should never be used in food.

Prof. Geo. F. Barker, M. D., of the University of Pennsylvania, says: "I consider the use of alum baking powder highly injurious to health."

Food economy now, more than ever, demands the purchase and use of those food articles of known high quality and absolute purity and healthfulness.

WOULD LIKE TO BE HOMANS

But Descendents of the Adamses Object

The objections of Robert Homans of this city and Boston to a family of "Horgans" changing their name to "Hogans" changing their name to Back Bay family may before long have their petition granted.

The individual changes desired by the Hogan family are as follows: Edward J. Hogan to Edward J. Homan, Edward O. to Osborn, Mary to Louise, Herbert to Warren. Gladys would retain her christian name.

Edward J. is a clothing salesman, Edward O. a workman and Herbert W. a bank clerk. Edward J. was born in St. Johns N. F. in 1856, and since 1864 lived in Cambridge, Malden, Wakefield and Everett. On April 28 he took out his first papers for citizenship and intends to become one.

Robert Homans, a lawyer whose town address is 256 Beacon street, entered an appearance objection to the several petitions of the Hogan family, whereupon the Hogans filed motions calling on him to set forth in writing specifications detailing his objection to their becoming Homans.

Edward J. Hogan said last evening that the matter had been adjusted and his family name would be changed to Homan.

Mr. Homans was graduated from Harvard in 1894. He is a member of the Somerset, Tavern, Union Exchange and Tennis and Racket Clubs. It is said his ancestors settled in the vicinity of Boston in the 17th century.

In 1907 he married Miss Abigal Adams of Beacon street and Quincy, a great granddaughter of President John Quincy Adams and named after Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife of President John Adams. In 1909, having the support of the Good Government Association, he was appointed to the Finance Commission.

In 1913 he was counsel for the Chamber of Commerce in the investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the railroad condition of New England.

—It is said that the first sawmill in the United States was at Jamestown, from which sawed boards were exported in June, 1607. A water-power sawmill was in use in 1625 near present site of Richmond.

FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

John W. Skillen of Sidney, Ohio, Has Found a Remedy.

Experts declare that the reason stomach disorders are so common in this country is due to hasty and careless habits of eating. Stomach troubles and run-down conditions usually go together.

John W. Skillen of Sidney, Ohio, says: "I had a bad stomach trouble for years, and became so weak that I could hardly walk or do any work. My appetitie was poor, and it seemed impossible to get any relief. Since taking 'Vinol' I find a remarkable improvement in my health, my digestion is much stronger, and I have gained in weight. I would not be without Vinol."

Vinol makes weak stomachs strong because it strengthens and tones up the weakened, tired and overtaxed nerves of the digestive organs. Vinol is easily assimilated by the weakest stomachs, and is delicious to the taste.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. Edward J. Murphy, Druggist, Quincy, Mass.

WOLLASTON WOMAN'S CLUB.

Tuesday afternoon the first meeting of the Wollaston Woman's Club was held in the Unitarian church, the president Mrs. Arthur D. Ropes presiding.

The president welcomed the old members most cordially and extended a hearty greeting to the new ones each of whom had been presented with a carnation. The sympathy of the club was extended to the family of Mrs. Clarence Fuller, her death occurring during the summer. A word was spoken of the war, how we were facing new problems, and the hope expressed that God in his own good time would restore peace and the sorrow and bloodshed of war be no more.

The club ode written by Miss Fanny Johnson the club secretary, was then sung by the club.

The business of the afternoon consisted of the reading of the secretary's minutes; the report of the treasurer, Mrs. Charles M. Bryant and of the auditor, Mrs. Charles T. Baker.

It was voted to suspend one of the standing rules and on the evening of the lecture by John Kendrick Bangs in Wollaston School hall, give club members unlimited guest privileges.

The reports of the standing committees were: Mrs. Arthur Homer—chairman of Art and Arts and Craft committee announced that the work of last year would be carried on, if sufficient numbers show interest in joining the classes. The Arts and Crafts Exchange will be open at every afternoon meeting. The committee has two Art Museum tickets which entitles any two club members or friend to visit the Art Museum at any time by applying to Mrs. Homer for the tickets.

Mrs. Badger of the Civics announced that her committee had voted to give Mr. Goodspeed $25 for the Wollaston school playground.

The chairman of the Education committee Mrs. Willard E. Keyes, called attention to two very interesting features; the current events talks six in number, conducted by Mrs. Pennock who will deal with very important events, relating to foreign affairs as well as affairs of our own country. Tickets to be procured from members of the committee; and the lecture Nov. 3 by John Kendrick Bangs, one of the foremost humorists in the United States, to be held as a regular meeting in the Wollaston School hall.

Mrs. Percival Thompson, chairman of the Hospitality committee, announced that McIntire & Price had donated 10 pounds of crackers to the club, which would be served at the club teas.

Mrs. John O. Short, Home Economics, reminded the club of the Hallowe'en dance to be held in Alpha hall, Oct. 30.

Mrs. Harry Stevens of the Legislative committee announced the Parliamentary Law class, under the direction of Mrs. Sherman, to be held at 10 o'clock the second and fourth Friday of each month, beginning Nov. 13. Ten lessons in course and fee $1.00.

Mrs. Joseph Barber of the Literature and Library extension announced that a committee from the Quincy Women's Club would join her committee in having a tea day at the Pure Food fair on Thursday, Oct. 29, tea to be served from four to five-thirty. members must present their club ticket when in quest of a cup of tea.

Miss Florence Olney for the Music committee has plans for a chorus conducted by Mr. Crowley. Anyone desirous of joining, to send names to her before Thursday, Oct. 8. An orchestra is also being formed. Miss Olney would like to receive names of those wishing to join, a player for the flute and clarinet being much desired. Preparations for the opera Priscilla to be held in Quincy Music hall, Jan. 22 are well under way.

Mrs. Charles R. Safford chairman of Program committee, called attention to the opera talks by Mr. Hubbard of the Boston Opera house, for Nov. 23, Jan. 20, Jan. 27, and Feb. 3, tickets to be obtained of the program committee and Mrs. Jameson, custodian, at one dollar for the course.

Mrs. Charles S. Adams of Social and Industrial committee, told how her committee with the help of club had paid the rent of a very worthy family of Wollaston. In July a committee with Mrs. Abner Baker in charge, packed and shipped, five barrels and eighteen boxes of clothing to the Salem sufferers. Particular attention was called to the next meeting, Oct. 20, Donation Day when jelly, preserves, fruit and money, would be very acceptable to be distributed among the worthy poor of Quincy. Ladies will be at Park and Downs church from 2 to 2.30 o'clock to receive donations or they may be sent to Mrs. Goodspeed, Grand view avenue; Mrs. Samuel Chapman, Willow street; Mrs. Abner Baker, Winthrop avenue; or Mrs. Charles Adams, Brooks street. Notice was also given that on or before Dec. 1, one of the committee will call on each member of the club to contribute towards the maintenance of the visiting nurse fund.

Mrs. Herbert Albee, chairman of Woman's Exchange, announced the sale of food to be held at every meeting except the evening ones. The committee would be glad to fill all orders, especially for birthday cakes.

Mrs. Bryant told of the Philanthropic work. The club had accomplished in its first year, Salem fund $50.; Associated Charities $50.; King's Daughters $10; Mass. Child Labor Commission $5; Rubbish Cans $15; Playgrounds $25. The Social Industrial Committee paid out $106.39 for Philanthropic and Endowment fund, for National Federation $25.

The club had the pleasure of listening to a violin solo "Legende" by Wierianiski, also "Madrigale" by Seon onette, which were delightfully rendered by Miss Clarke, with Mrs. Barry at the organ.

State Federation reports were read—the first day by Mrs. Rowe. She spoke of the delightful manner in which the delegates left Wollaston from the Unitarian church at six o'clock in the morning, going by auto and arriving in Worcester at nine o'clock. From the Bancroft hotel they went to the beautiful Worcester clubhouse. It was the 22nd annual meeting of the Federation and held in Tuckerman hall, May 20 and 21. The Worcester Woman's club planned many attractive features for the entertainment of its guests. The address of welcome was given by Mrs. Tucker, president of the club, and was responded to by Mrs. Winslow Perkins, president of the Federation. Mrs. Jameson spoke of the afternoon session. Greetings from outside clubs were given. Prof. Harold Baynes gave a lecture on birds which was wonderfully interesting. After the meeting tea was served.

Mrs. Safford gave an account of the second day of the Federation. Eight new clubs were presented, each club telling of its purpose and accomplishments, showing what an immense amount of good the woman's clubs of Massachusetts are doing. The questions of the morning were continued at the afternoon session. The last question was "What welfare work is being done in the industrial plants of your town? was answered by 63 clubs. The Quincy club report was among the answers selected. At the close of the meeting many visited the Art Museum and other places of interest.

These reports closed the meeting which was followed by an informal reception held in the vestry. The officers receiving.

Tea was served by Mrs. P. A. Thompson chairman of the committee, assisted by Mrs. William Whitney, the tea tables being presided over by Mrs. Charles Brooks, Mrs. E. Wilson Blake, Mrs. Bowles and Mrs. Akien.

The food exchange displayed delicious cakes and rolls, which found a ready sale. The Arts and Crafts had fancy articles for sale.

Oct. 7—Opening reception.

Oct. 20—Reading, Elizabeth Pooler Rice.

Nov. 3—Lecture, John Kendrick Bangs.

Nov. 17—Travel Talk, Mrs. Ropes.

FOR GIRLS' CLUBS.

Through the generosity of W. G. Wilcox of New York, a former resident of Malden, the Malden Girls' Club, an organization devoted to the welfare of young women of the city, will have a permanent home, if sufficient funds for maintenance can be secured.

Mr. Wilcox has offered to the club his house and estate, subject to conditions. The organization, to avail itself of the offer, must be non-sectarian, must be able to convince him of the worthiness of its object and must have pledged by Sept. 1 the sum of $5000, which will be needed for repairs and running expenses for one year.

The association under which the club has been maintained has been engaged actively in raising the funds needed and has now pledges of $3000. It is hoped that the remainder may be secured within the time limit. Numbers of Malden women interested in the work are busy seeking funds in the belief that the worthy cause will be argument enough to bring a hearty support.

The club was started two years ago in an effort to bring a greater opportunity for instruction and recreation to Malden young women between the ages of 14 and 18 years, especially those who have no chance for home influences and are compelled to live in lodging rooms after hours of work

Through the interest of the school committee the gymnasium of the high school has been made available for the club in the evening and classes in physical culture, elocution, dressmaking and millinery have been conducted by various members of the club.

VICTORY FOR CLUB WOMEN.

The announcement early in the summer that street car steps will be lower was a victory for club women. The Public Service Commission has decided that the height of street car steps must be reduced. The limit for all cars purchased in future by any road in the State is 15 inches above the level of the top of the rail. For all cars at present in use the limit after July 1 next will be 17 inches.

The commission promises to consider requests for an extension of time with reference to the adoption of the new step, in cases where for one reason or another a street railway may consider itself unable to meet the requirements within the time allowed.

DAY NURSERY ASSO.

The Quincy Day Nursery Association held its annual meeting Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse. Reports of the secretary treasurer and purchasing committee were read and accepted and the following officers elected:

President—Mrs. E. C. Hultman.
1st Vice—Mrs. S. W. Ellsworth.
2d Vice—Mrs. John H. Johnson.
Secretary—Mrs. George W. Abele.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. F. Merrill.

Board of Directors—the above officers and Mrs. Henry M. Faxon, Mrs. Theophilus King, Mrs. R. H. Allen, Mrs. William H. Doble, Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, Mrs. Thomas A. Addison, Mrs. Charles C. Hearn, Mrs. Clarence Burgin, Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann, Mrs. Roderick McLennan.

Mrs. Safford of the visiting committee reported the Nursery in splendid condition.

The matron reported 27 children being cared for that afternoon, with a waiting list of 7. Also that the donations for the month were from the National Sailors' Home, Christ Church Guild, (through Mrs. William Cooper) and from Mrs. Hunting.

After the business meeting, tea was served to members and guests and a social hour was enjoyed.

The annual report of the secretary was as follows:—The first Tuesday of October brings again the annual meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery Association.

Board meetings have been held every month with the exception of July and August and also special meetings have been called during the year.

Last year this association started incorporation proceedings and in November held the first meeting as a Corporation.

The usual parties were held for the benefit of the Nursery. The Christmas party was a delight to all who attended it. First the children entertained their parents and friends of the Association. Then came the Christmas tree with its gifts. Each girl received a doll and each boy a game, while all received stockings, mittens and boxes of candy. After the gifts had been distributed, ice cream and cake were served and Mrs. Hultman, president of the Association was presented with a bouquet of flowers.

The children's Valentine party which was to have been given in February, had to be postponed on account of sickness in the city, to a later date But Mrs. Johnson and her assistants gave the children a very happy afternoon and to the Association was netted a neat little sum. Many thanks are due Mr. Delcevare King for his kindness in helping the young people to have a jolly time.

Another dancing party was held in April. All had a very enjoyable evening and $67 was cleared.

November 19, from 2 until 5 o'clock a Donation party, for the benefit of the Nursery, was held in Bethany chapel. The gifts were most generous and practical. Over 83 Individuals and church societies helped make the party a most gratifying success.

Another very successful party held for the Nursery was the "Cabaret" given in July at the Quincy Yacht club. Mrs. Johnson and her committee worked very hard for this affair and feel very grateful to the members of the Yacht Club who so kindly gave the use of the clubhouse and also to the young people who entertained so delightfully and those who served so well. $72 was cleared.

"Tag Day," with its hopes and fears came Sept. 26. The tags were timetables this year and a goodly number were sold, the receipts being over $590.

Among the societies showing an interest in the work of the Nursery is the Finnish Temperance Society. This Society gave an entertainment and dance in May for the benefit of the Nursery. During the evening, Mrs Hultman spoke on Day Nurseries and Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann told some interesting facts about birds. $21.70 was given to the Nursery and much credit is due this Finnish Society for their generosity and good-will.

The Nursery was never in better condition. Throughout the year, the visiting committee has always found everything neat and clean and the children happy and contented, which speaks well for the matron, Mrs. Ericson.

Let all the friends of the Nursery continue to show, by their presence at the monthly meetings and by their financial help, their interest in this good work.

Nov. 21—"Woman's Duty to Society," Leslie Willis Sprague of Chicago.

Nov. 28—"Woman's Side of the Criminal Problem." Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth.

Dec. 5—"The Present Day Mission of the College-bred Woman," President Mary E. Woolley of Mount Holyoke College.

Dec. 12—"Ellen Key as a Social Symptom," Norman Hapgood, editor of Harper's Weekly.

HOLLIS—SIMPSON.

On Monday, October 5 at N. E. Hollis' camp, Koaneeta, Emery Mills, Me., his son, Everett Stanwood Hollis, was united in marriage to Miss Etta Irene Simpson of Troy, N. Y. The large living room of the cottage was tastily decorated with autumn leaves and roses.

The bridal couple stood beneath a large bell of white carnations, while the Rev. Thomas Simms of Gorham, Me., a former Braintree pastor, united them in marriage with a simple service, using the single ring.

The bride wore a dress of white silk, with an overdrapery of cream net, and carried a shower boquet of white roses. Only the immediate members of the family and the attendants at the camp were present, no cards being issued. The grooms gift to the bride was a platinum chain with a diamond pendant.

After a short wedding trip the newly married couple will take up their residence in their remodelled home in Braintree near Deering park.

Is It Worth While?

To fuss and bother preparing cake and bread for your husband and the children's meals just because Hubby likes home-made bread and cake, when for the price that you pay for the raw ingredients you can buy a loaf of bread as good as home-made. We think your answer will be No. Why, because at Barnard's you can get bread and cake as tasty and with as delicious a flavor as mother ever made. Look at the time and trouble attached to home baking. Hustle, fuss, and tear around, when all of this needless labor is eliminated by getting Barnard's bread and cake. Barnard's goods are made by men who know their business, where cleanliness and quality are in harmony. It certainly needs no argument to prove which way is superior. DROP in today.—Two Stores.

NICHOLL'S TEAM WIN FOUR

Other Teams Divide Points in MacGregor League

The MacGregors were out at the Coliseum alleys Tuesday night and they made pretty good scores, that is, some of them did. Nicoll, made 121 in his second string, and was the only man to triple. Peter Dackers put up a hard fight for a triple, but fell down in rolling the 90th ball.

The Nicolls, lead by their captain, trimmed the McLeans 4 to 0. Only Nicoll passed a 250 mark, so his single brought home the quartette of points.

CLARK CLASS TIE WITH PETS

McDonald, anchor man on the Pets a team of young men of the First Presbyterian church, who last week secured a 17 spare in his last box and jumped the total of his team enough to tie that of the Clark class, had the exceptional experience Tuesday evening of again repeating his performance.

Clark class had 1194 and its bowlers were eagerly watching McDonald as he stepped to the line. A pretty drop, a snappy ball which brought up a hard spare, and then seven more closed the coming from behind of the Pets, and signalled their arrival on the rubber. The Pets won the roll-off by four pins.

BREAKS HIS RIGHT LEG

Third Baseman Smith of Braves Is Out of World's Series

Brooklyn, Oct. 7.—Third Baseman J. C. Smith of the Boston Braves broke his right leg while sliding into second base in the ninth inning of the first game of the doubleheader with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

He made a perfect fade-away slide, crooking his right leg into the bag. Then Cutshaw noticed that Smith could not rise and was apparently in agony. Examination disclosed that his leg had been broken just above the ankle. The whole Boston team felt badly at the accident.

"Red" Smith was obtained from the Brooklyn club by the Braves about six weeks ago. He has been a material assistance to Stallings in his pennant race and will be sorely missed in the world's series.

ANTWERP IS VERY CLOSE TO DISASTER

Belgium Admits Bombardment of Stronghold Is Imminent

POPULACE IN FLIGHT FROM THREATENED CITY

What Has Happened to Fortifications and How Many Defenses Have Fallen Not Made Known—Last Possible Place of Refuge For Belgian Army Will Struggle to the End—German Right Wing Will Be Relieved of Tremendous Pressure If City Falls—Allies Cannot Reach There In Time to Render Aid—Fresh Troops Being Hurled to the Front by Both Sides In Battle of the Aisne, Which Is Still On

London, Oct. 7.—The fall of Antwerp is hourly expected. The Germans have been able to get their great howitzers into such favorable positions that a bombardment of the city is imminent. This is admitted by the official Belgian dispatches.

The population, confident to the last moment that Antwerp could not share the fate of Liege and Namur, have now begun to flee from the threatened city. By thousands they are pouring out over the few roads left open that stretch toward the friendly neutral land of Holland.

Thousands more have crowded the nondescript ships drawn up along the banks of the Scheldt. Steamers and sailing vessels, large and small, have been dropping down the river, thronged with sorrowing non-combatants who are departing for near-by river ports in Holland or for the friendly shores of England.

Message Passed by Censors

What has happened to the great fortifications to bring the city into such imminent danger is absolutely unknown. But the message that hints of disaster to the temporary capital of Belgium, practically the only city still holding out against the invaders, has been passed by the censors, so that some disaster seems imminent.

It has been conceded in London for days that the German claims that they have reduced three of the outside forts were probably based upon fact, although the Belgians have strenuously denied it. Opinion is divided as to the fate of the second ring of forts, although the general opinion is that at least one of this line must have been battered down by the howitzers, and a breach made through which troops could pour and establish other great guns near the outskirts of Antwerp.

Germans Begin Bombardment

The first hint that Antwerp was in desperate peril came when the Great Eastern Steamship company suddenly stopped its boats which ply from Tilbury to the Belgian port. Then stories began to be heard that the Germans were close enough to the city to begin a bombardment which was speedily confirmed by the receipt of the official Belgian statement.

Antwerp, the last possible place of refuge for the Belgian army, will undoubtedly struggle to the end. No such collapse of the resistance as that at Lille will be seen. Presumably the defense will be stiffer than that at Namur and comparable with the vicious battling at Liege and Maubeuge.

But if the city falls, the plight of the Belgian army will be extreme. If they escape down the Scheldt, they will have to pass through Dutch territory and must there be interned until the end of the war. A tremendous pressure will be lifted from the German right wing, as the Belgians have constantly menaced the long lines of communication that feed, clothe and supply with ammunition the armies of Generals von Boehm, von Kluck and von Buelow.

Rumors of Shells Falling

It is rumored in London that shells are already falling into the city, but this cannot be affirmed. It is certain, however, that the bombardment will not be postponed for many hours.

Besides the natural grief felt in London over the successive disasters that have overwhelmed the little nation that has fought so gloriously to protect its neutrality, there is also apparent an axiety lest historic Antwerp share the fate of Louvain and many another irreplacable Belgian city. The cathedral is world-famous, a shrine for the admirers of Rubens. It is presumed that the priceless canvasses have been removed to safety, but it is doubtful whether the great cathedral itself can escape damage that can never be repaired.

The Fighting in France

In France heavy reinforcements dashed to the aid of the fighting right wing of the German army have stretched the battle line into Belgian territory. With both Germans and the French and British hurling fresh troops to the scene of the most colossal conflict in history, it has now become a question how far the long lines can be extended before one or the other breaks. But no longer is there any hope held that the allies can reach Antwerp before the city falls.

The most desperate fighting in France has been waged all day and far into the night in the broken country between the Oise and the Somme rivers, where the hostile lines form an angle, the trenches stretching across France eastwardly to Verdun, here meeting those that come down from the Belgian frontier.

At Roye, Noyon and Lassigny, places where bitter battles have been waged almost daily for more than a week, the Germans once more smashed assault after assault. Unlike their attacks of Monday, they were sturdily held Tuesday in every position by the entrenched British and French troops.

Battle of Aisne a Draw

The British war office pronounced the battle of the Aisne a draw. It has developed into a campaign of great proportions and of still greater possibilities.

Success of the allies' flanking movement will mean a general retreat of the German line to new positions, perhaps the capture of many German prisoners, and an advance to the rescue of the beleaguered Antwerp garrison.

Victory for Germany, on the other hand, means a potential disruption of the allied armies, the practical certainty of a new advance to Paris, and the placing of Antwerp's hope of salvation on what its garrison can do unaided.

Planning New Raids?

Germany, by extending the battle line to the north, has still another purpose, for if the channel coast is gained by German troops a stop can be put to the importation of reinforcements from England. German cavalry is reported in strong force at Lille, and this, it may be presumed, indicates a renewal of the dashing raids through the north of France that featured the previous movement on Paris.

On the main battle line there appears to be alternate movements back and forth of the opposing troops, but the reticence of the French war office would seem to indicate that the German gains of Monday, which were probably considerable, have not been recovered.

In the interest attaching to the attack on Antwerp, operations about Verdun have been lost to view, but presumably the Germans are continuing their efforts to take that fortress. The allies claim an advance north of Soissons, and say that a German attack on Lassigny, the elbow of the allies' battle line, has failed.

GERMAN POSTER.

Full Size Reproduction Of Big Shells Used In Bombarding French Forts.

© 1914, by American Press Association.

London has received specimens of a broadsheet published in Berlin, where it is said to have been widely sold. It is a full sized reproduction of the 16.4-inch shell thrown by the great German siege guns. The legend at the top of the poster means "German War Surprise, 1914." The sheet is labeled "Our 42-C Bomb" and bears the names of Liege, Namur, Longwy and Maubeuge, Belgian and French fortresses, with the dates of their fall and pictures of the ruins. Below is the motto "With God For King and Fatherland."

PEACE PRAYER FAVORED

Paris Newspapers Say American Example Should Be Followed

All the Paris newspapers announced that prayers for peace were given throughout America on Sunday last. Commenting on the incident The Gaulois regrets that the example has not been followed by France, and declares that President Wilson is not afraid to have the American republic kneel before the Most High.

"It lifts the hope," says The Gaulois, "that our republic will one day follow the example of the United States which we so often imitate and not fear to show itself as religious, faithful and confident in God as the most ancient monarchies of Europe."

TURNS UP IN FRANCE

Submarine Which Disappeared From Spezia Is Located

The Italian-built submarine, which disappeared while undergoing a trial trip in the gulf of Spezia, arrived at Bastia, a fortified seaport town of France, in Corsica.

The submarine, which had just been completed in a private yard near Spezia for the Russian government, was under the command of Lieutenant Bellini, retired, who was reported to have expressed dissatisfaction over the neutral attitude of Italy in the war.

CAPTURED BY JAPAN

Germany Loses Seat of Government In Marshall Islands

The Japanese fleet has landed bluejackets on Jaluit island, the seat of government in the Marshall archipelago, which was annexed by Germany in 1886, according to word received by the Japanese navy department.

It is believed the German base was destroyed.

TIME NOT YET RIPE

No Peace Plans Are Under Consideration at Washington

There is neither prospect nor expectation of the success of any peace movement seeking to abate the European war, according to well-informed diplomats in Washington. Nor is there any reason to believe that the administration will sanction at this time any step on the part of the department of state which has that end in view.

As President Wilson clearly explained some days ago, reports and intimations that he is urging either mediation or a peace conference at this time can serve only to reflect on his good sense and thus militate against his efforts in that direction when the time for him to move becomes opportune.

UNIQUE LABOR PACT

100,000 Union Garment Makers In Year's Labor Truce

New York, Oct. 7.—A truce of one year, during which there shall be no strikes or lockouts, has been agreed upon by representatives of the American Clothing Manufacturers' association, which largely controls the output of the cheaper grades of men's and boys' clothing in this city, and the local branch of the United Garment Workers of America, comprising unions to which approximately 100,000 workers belong.

The calling of the truce, coming subsequent to frequent labor troubles in the garment making industry here in recent years, is preliminary to what both sides hope will be a permanent agreement under which there will be no strikes or lockouts in future.

SHAKEUP IN POSTOFFICES

Change In Personnel of Staff to Be Made In Many Large Cities

Washington, Oct. 7.—Plans for reorganization of postoffice staffs in a score of large cities, with resultant shakeup in the personnel and put experienced men in charge of the direct work of handling the mails, was announced by the postmaster general.

The office of assistant postmaster may be abolished in some cities. Many promotions and demotions are involved. The new plans call for creation of separate finance and mail handling divisions in each office. The postmasters hereafter will be confined to purely executive functions.

GLYNN AT THE HEAD

Assumes Active Leadership of Democrats In New York

Albany, Oct. 7.—Governor Glynn assumed leadership of the New York state Democracy in an address to the state committee. His action followed the announcement from Tammany Hall that the activities of Charles F. Murphy will henceforth be confined to Manhattan.

Active leadership of the party by the governor was also assured when William F. McCombs declined to accept the chairmanship of the state committee.

Cotton Bill Rejected

Washington, Oct. 7.—The Lever cotton and grain warehousing bill to facilitate granting of bank credits on warehouse receipts for cotton, grain and like agricultural products, was rejected by the house, 163 to 109.

For Stamp Tax on Medicines

Washington, Oct. 7.—Stamp taxes on proprietary medicines, cosmetics, perfumes and chewing gum, were voted into the war revenue bill by the Democrats of the senate finance committee.

Earthquake Kills 2500

London, Oct. 7.—An official message from Constantinople says that the victims of the earthquake in the province of Konia, Asia Minor, are estimated at 2500.

Mrs. William Windom, widow of the secretary of the treasury in President Garfield's cabinet, died at Williamstown, Mass.

President Wilson has taken his first ride in his new touring car. It is sixty-six horsepower.

Chairman Mackay of the School Committee finds the duties of that position take so much of his time that he says he does not intend to be a candidate for re-election as chairman next year.

The ladies high string bowling record of the city, 102, held by Miss Frances Morrill, a nurse at the Quincy City Hospital, was equaled Tuesday at Kincaide alleys by Miss Esther McDonald and Mrs. Florence Moran. All three are now tied as record holders and effort may be made to hold a roll-off this week.

Charles H. Johnson upon receiving the announcement of the death of Mayor Miller last evening, at once cancelled the three dates fixed for meetings in behalf of his candidacy out of respect to the late Mayor who was one of his opponents last year.

COL. KINCAIDE PUSHING CAMPAIGN

Each day and evening finds Colonel Kincaide in some part of the 14th District pushing his campaign. Rallies in his interest are being held nightly by enthusiastic workers.

In his talks at Whitman and Braintree Tuesday evening, he cited the City of Liverpool, England, with its $300,000 annual appropriation for modern workingmen's homes which are rented to the people on a basis of $1.00 per month per room. He explained the financial side of the undertaking which is self supporting, the income from rents taking care of interest and fixed charges.

He spoke of co-operative activities in foreign countries as examples of what might be done in this country, and of measures he advocated and would work for to make the homes of our working people and living conditions better.

Collective.

At a regular mass meeting of the Scandinavians in South Minneapolis a few nights since, the pastor having heard that one John Johnson wanted to join the church, said, "Will John Johnson, if present, please stand up?" Nearly all the men present stood up. The bewildered preacher looked around awhile, and then said: "You may sit down, Mr. Johnson, I will call a meeting of you some time next week."

Welsh Gold Mines Still Worked.

Welsh gold mines, in one of which a rich vein is reported to have been struck, have been systematically worked for over sixty years. Gold was first discovered in the principality in 1845, in a lode, on the Clogan mountain.

QUINCY WOLLASTON

Miss Ruth S. Onge of Wollaston, who is well known in the theatrical profession, was given a surprise on returning to her home Tuesday evening after several months absence by a large number of her friends. Miss St. Onge has been in Canada. She was presented with several trinkets of value and an impromptu musical program was rendered. A collation was served.

With the erection of the new Masonic Temple and the new clubhouse of the Sachem club off Hancock street near Beale street, the appearance of the street will be greatly improved.

Budapest Declares That Russians Have Been Repulsed

HUNGARIAN CAPITAL IS MOVED

Second Russian Army Said to Be Threatening New Location Which They Have Invaded Through Carpathian Passes—Desperate Fighting Reported by Russian Staff

London, Oct 7.—According to a message from Budapest, says the Reuter correspondent at Amsterdam, the battles with the Russians who entered Hungary have not yet been definitely concluded, but the Russians have been repulsed at a point to the northwest of Muramoroszige and at Tarkozkooz. German troops participated in the fighting.

"Between Polena and Aknos," the dispatch says, "Russians again attempted to break through the allied German and Austrian lines, but were forced to retreat. The Austrian and German troops hotly pursued the Russians and captured many prisoners.

"Railroads in East Prussia are crowded with troop trains, and our aerial scouts report an uninterrupted movement of Germans in a westerly direction. German columns and German troop trains are withdrawing across the frontier."

Speaking of the Russian invasion of Hungary, a dispatch from Rome to the Exchange Telegraph company says:

"According to Budapest advices the capture of Marmaros-Sziget, capital of the Hungarian county of Marmaros, has necessitated the removal of the government of that department to Huszt, twenty-eight miles west-northwest of Sziget. A second Russian army now threatens the latter city and reinforcements are being hurried up to check the Russian advance."

Marmaros, the county in Hungary which the Russians have invaded through the Carpathian passes, is in the northeast, bordering on Galicia, Bukowina and Transylvania.

The following official statement was given out at Russian general headquarters at Petrograd:

"The Russian offensive campaign continues. The fortified positions (of the enemy) on the frontier are under a heavy artillery fire. The enemy has received reinforcements from the garrison at Koenigsberg. There has been particularly desperate fighting in the vicinity of Bakalargev."

QUINCY SOUTH

Miss Margaret Francis Talbot of South Quincy, a teacher at the Gridley Bryant school, and John Henry Clifford of Portsmouth, N. H., were married at St. Johns church at 7 o'clock this morning with a nuptial mass. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. John J .Coan, pastor, assisted by Rev. Fr. Walter A. Quinlan. Father Quinlan celebrated the mass. Miss Mary Galligan of Attleboro, a cousin of the bride was bridesmaid and Thomas Ronan of Newburyport, a nephew of the groom, was the best man. The bride was dressed in blue broadcloth and wore a black velvet hat with ostrich plumes Her attendant wore a lighter shade of blue and a black velvet hat trimmed with paradise plumes. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride at 3 Lawry place, which was attended by many relatives and friends, after which Mr. and Mrs. Clifford left on a wedding trip. They will reside in Portsmouth, N. H.

Charles Martin, a well known resident of South Quincy, died at his home on Centre street Tuesday evening after a short illness. He was in his 42d year and one of the most prominent members of Granite lodge, Sons of St. George. For the past ten years Mr. Martin has been a member of the Quincy Fire department and has been a call man attached to Combination 1.

Mrs. William R. French will entertain the sewing circle of Rebecca Wiswell tent, Daughters of Veterans, at her home on Independence avenue Friday.

QUINCY POINT

The Catholics of Quincy Point, who will soon worship in the new mission station under construction on Washington and Pray streets, held their first paris party Tuesday evening in a recently erected store on Washington street. Joseph Dorly, under whose auspices the affair was held and who was stricken with illness Monday and removed to the Quincy City Hospital could not attend. Whist was enjoyed and souvenirs were awarded to Mrs. Thomas Valle, Andrew Sullivan, Miss Margaret McDonnell, Mrs. T. O'Toole, Miss Marion Allen, Miss Ethel Abrams, Patrick Smith, Donald McLaughlin, William O'Brien, Miss Mary Harrold, Miss Margaret Heaney.

Rev. and Mrs. Stephen B. Lang will be tendered a reception in the vestry of the Washington Street Congregational church this evening by the members of the parish. The affair will be given under the direction of the Ladies Aid Society. Rev. and Mrs. Lang were married during the summer and the reception will be in the nature of a welcome to his wife.

Frank F. Prescott,
Editor Daily Ledger:

As is usual at this time, discontented tax payers (and there are many of them) are seeking either revenge or reform

As in the past years, the mails are being flooded with literature from various aspirants for office, promising a lower tax rate and better conduct of the city affairs. Doubtless all these promises are sincere, but they are based on miscalculations.

The writer believes it to be a fact that not a dollar of the city's money has been dishonestly expended, yet the city is getting into deeper financial difficulty each year. The 1914 tax bills show that today we are worse off than ever.

True, the rate has been reduced, but valuations have been raised. One more than offsets the other, because next year, our contribution to the State, Metropolitan and County taxes will be based on this increased valuation. Rarely, if ever, is a city's valuation lowered so the net result is a permanent liability fastened on to the city.

Is it not time for us to consider where we are drifting? The course we are following can have but one ending. Instead of bringing to Quincy people who will increase our taxable assets, we will drive from it our large personal property taxpayers, who are here now and want to remain, if we will only put our City affairs on a sane business basis.

Quincy has already lost some of its taxpayers because of its high taxes. If more go, the burden must be borne by those who remain.

WHAT IS THE REMEDY?

The only remedy sought in the past has been in a change of officers.

Golden promises were made, new men elected, hopes raised, and relief anticipated, only to realize when September came it was the same old story—with Quincy one year nearer to the hour of its financial embarrassment.

If twenty-five years of administration by the best men we could elect has brought Quincy to the pass it is now at, then there is something radically wrong with some fundamental law or combination of laws controlling the free exercise of our right to obtain and live under the best form of municipal government.

It is said Quincy can be governed as a business corporation—that the same principles should govern each.

Is this so? Under existing laws can Quincy be so governed?

Can we go wherever we wish and pick our Mayor or General Manager, a man who has had the necessary experience and who has proved his fitness for the position?

Are we not restricted to a citizen of Quincy?

Is our Mayor obliged to give his undivided attention to the City's business? The position is surely important enough to require it.

In a business corporation the Directors, usually five or seven, elect the General Manager.

The board is not restricted to candidates from any one locality. It selects the most competent man the business can afford.

The General Manager is given full authority in the selection of his assistants, the adjustment of his departments, so as to make a working unit, thus obtaining the greatest degree of efficiency.

No Board of Directors of a corporation the size of Quincy would think of appointing as General Manager, a man, who knew nothing of the duties of the office, either from actual experience, study or training. To do so, would be to invite bankruptcy. Yet that is what we have been doing and are now about to do, no matter which of the candidates is finally chosen.

The Board of Directors of a successful business corporation is in harmony with its management.

In Quincy, the Council is large—23 members—frequently antagonistic to the Mayor, and differing among themselves along political

HOME WEDDING HOUGHS NECK

Miss Carrie E. Jones Becomes Bride of Harry A Dutton

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized Wednesday night when Harry Ayer Dutton and Carrie Elizabeth Jones, both of Quincy, were united in marriage by Rev. W. J. Sayre pastor of the People's Union church, Houghs Neck.

The ceremony took place in the home of the bride 167 Babcock street, Quincy at 8 o'clock and was so well attended by relatives and friends that the house was filled to its capacity. Mendelsohn's Wedding March was played by Miss Geraldine Davis.

The bride wore white satin trimmed with chantilly lace and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lillies of the valley.

Miss Ethel A. Ball, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a pink marquisette over pink messaline and carried a large bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

The groom was attended by his brother Charles H. Dutton of Chelmsford Mass. The ushers were Francis O. Dutton and Roy Prout.

The parlor, where the ceremony took place, was prettily decorated with potted ferns and palms.

After the ceremony the bridal couple received the congratulations and good wishes of all those present They were also the recipients of many useful and beautiful presents, most unique of which was a handsome, white, crocheted, bed spread which was made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. A. Ball, and which showed many hours of patient labor A substantial check was a gift from the groom's father, Charles Dutton.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful pendant and chain, while the bride's gift to the bridesmaid and pianist were pendants. The groom's gifts to the best man and ushers were opal stickpins.

Refreshments were served and during the evening selections on the piano were rendered by Miss Geraldine Davis, Miss Vera M. Leonard and Chester D. Brown.

The bride has always been a resident of Quincy and graduated from the grammar and High schools, and is well known among the young people of the city.

The groom formerly resided in Chelmsford, Mass., but of late years has made his home in Quincy. He is employed in the civil service department in the Boston post office, and is a member of the Masonic fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Dutton started on their honeymoon amid a shower of confetti, old shoes, and other tokens of good luck. They will visit New York, Philadelphia and Washington, D. C. and upon their return will make their home in Quincy.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Miss Effie Weeden of Cranch street was tendered a birthday surprise party Wednesday evening at the home of her aunt, Mrs. John Weeden, also of Cranch street. A few of her friends and relatives were present and all enjoyed a most pleasant evening.

Miss Weeden was given a handsome necklace, and received other tokens of remembrance from those present. Refreshments were served during the evening and a jolly good time was brought to a close at a late hour.

RECEPTION TO PASTOR HALLIN

Bridal Couple Also Come in For Congratulations

An enjoyable evening was spent at the Swedish Baptist church Tuesday, by upwards of 100 of the parishioners who tendered a reception to their pastor, Rev. Paul Hallin, in honor of his homecoming. The event was of double interest as it was also a reception to Mr. and Mrs. G. I. Johnson, a newly married couple, residents of Dorchester.

Mrs. Johnson, formerly Miss Ella Werme of Quincy, was a most faithful and interested worker of the church before her marriage and the members took the opportunity Tuesday evening to show their appreciation and love by presenting her with a beautiful silver set. Both Mr. and Mrs. Johnson responded in a little speech of thanks. An original poem written for the occasion was read and was exceedingly humorous. Mrs. Johnson's former Sunday school class of young girls sang two songs which were warmly applauded.

Rev. Mr. Hallin was taken by surprise when he in turn was presented with a beautiful gas lamp, a token of love and esteem from his parishioners He responded and said he was glad to be home again after his extensive tour through some of the states.

The program was a most interesting one and was brought to a close much too soon. Ice cream and cake were served after which adjournment was made downstairs to enjoy coffee and a social chat. The church was prettily decorated with flowers and autumn foliage.

EXPRESSES SYMPATHY

In compliance with the vote of the Quincy Board of Trade this Wednesday evening, Oct. 7, the Secretary forwarded the following letter to Mrs. Miller.

My dear Mrs. Miller:

At at meeting of the Board of Trade held last evening the death of Mr. Miller, Mayor of the City of Quincy, was reported and it was the unanimous expression of the Board that the Secretary be instructed to extend to you and your family expressions of sympathy in your bereavement and record the sorrow of the members of the Board at the loss of an honored and worthy citizen.

In complying with that request I voice the feeling of respect which is held by all for his business integrity, his service to the City of Quincy in his public offices and for the faithfulness and courage which he displayed while in the office of Mayor in attending to its duties when a less courageous man would have succumbed.

Respectfully,
John O. Hall.
Secretary.

ELEMENTARY TEACHERS ASSO.

Holds Second Annual Meeting and Hears Reports

The Quincy Elementary Teachers' Assaciation held its second annual meeting on Monday afternoon in Coddington school hall, the president, Miss Alice Hatch, presiding. The goodly number present evidenced the interest felt in this new and active organization of over 100 members.

The annual report of the secretary, Miss Josephine Kelley, and of the treasurer, Miss Esther Viden, were read and approved.

Reports of standing committees were listened to with interest. The education committee, Miss Elizbeth Sullivan chairman, secured as speaker Edmund S. Cogswell of the Massachusetts Retirement Board, who addressed the Association on the evening of Dec. 2, 1913, on "The Retirement System." This committee also afforded the association pleasure and benefit by procuring Miss Amy Watkins of the Boston schools, who, on the evening of April 14, 1914, gave a most instructive and interesting illustrated talk on "Story telling and dramatization in the Grades."

The entertainment committee, Miss Alicia Elcock, chairman, was successful in furnishing artistic and delightful entertainment during the year. On Dec. 2 this committee was fortunate in presenting Miss Lois Lynn, reader, Miss Bertha Estes, piano soloist (a member, and the Misses Flieger in vocal duets (also members) all of whom displayed artistic accomplishment and charmed their audiences.

This committee also gave the Association a delightful surprise at the meeting on April 14, 1914, by introducing a double quartette of the members in vocal selections which were greatly enjoyed and highly appreciated for their artistic rendition. On this evening Miss Ada James entertained with readings, and Miss Lindquist sang several solos in exquisite voice. Refreshments were served on two evenings, and the social spirit pervading each affair in itself proved to members the worth of the association.

Miss Lillian Waterhouse, chairman of the committee on salaries, reported for that committee, giving the association a comprehensive synopsis of the recent report of the N. E. A. supplied by the United States Bureau of Education, on "Salaries of teachers in relation to High cost of living" based on statistics.

It is printed in full below.

Miss Isabel Moir chairman of the nomination committee, brought in the following list of officers who were duly elected for the coming year:

President—Miss Lillian Waterhouse
Vice-President—Miss Mary Murray.
Secretary—Miss Alicia Elcock.
Treasurer—Miss May Kapples.

The following standing committees were elected:

Education,—Miss Sara Malone, Miss Ethel Humphrey, Miss May Coyle, Miss Bertha Estes and Miss Clara Thayer.

Salaries,—Miss Josephine Kelley, Miss Eliza Dolan, Miss May Keating, Miss Charlotte Donovan and Miss Gertrude Burke.

Entertainment,— Miss Cassandana Thayer, Miss Mabel Lovejoy, Miss Minnie Parker, Miss Mary Sampson, Miss Gladys Flieger, Miss Marie Fegan, Miss Annie White, Miss Eldredge and Miss Munster.

A unanimous vote of thanks was extended to the retiring officers for their efficient service and self sacrifice for the good of the association. Committee meetings will be held at once, and a profitable and enjoyable season is assured.

The report of the committee on salaries follows:

Your Committee on Salaries has scarcely become acquainted this year, so rare, have been its meetings, but

MISS SHIRLEY HONORARY MEMBER

Board of Trade Unexpectedly Nets $147 from Production of "Along Came Ruth"

Waterways Delegates Report Delightful Entertainment

A dozen or more subjects were discussed more or less at the regular meeting of the Board of Trade Wednesday evening, most of the discussions being puncuated by the President in the form of an appeal for additional members. Owing to a bad cold of the president Vice President Sedgwick presided.

Applications for membership were received from 33 firms and the following were elected.

Henry P. Murphy, H. A. Abbott, O. D. McLaughlin, A. L. Hayden, Arthur Brown, Louis A Fegan, Walter L. Sargent, Edwin C. Reed, Sue Rice, William M. Chase, Charles E. Weeks, John F. Hyland, Edward J. Fagan, Henry H. Schultz, J. W. Hendry, Walter F. Hall, L. P. Wright, Alfred N. LaBrecque, L. W. Taylor, Elbert R. Allen, Louis S. Cleaves, Robert H. Findlay, William Provost, Joseph Thorley, Carl F. Prescott, Robert L. Sheraton, Charles B. Yule, Walter G. Field, William Carlson, Thomas G. Breen, V. E. Matlack, C. H. Smith, Ryder P. Gallagher.

On motion of Frank F. Prescott Florence Shirley of the "Along Came Ruth" company was elected an honorary member.

A communication was received from the National association of granite industries urging the Board of Trade to join with similar organizations throughout the state in petitioning the Governor and Council to take action on awarding the contract for the dry dock in Boston.

It was voted that the secretary forward a resolution to the Governor and council, the directors of the Port of Boston and Councillor GGuy of Quincy urging that the contract be awarded.

A communication from William Y. Kenyon of the Squantum improvement association relative to the proposed bridge over the Neponset river for a new boulevard was briefly discussed by Chairman Merrill of the County Commissioners who spoke of the cost of new bridges and that as a new bridge was necessary to replace the present Neponset bridge he believed the best plan would be for Quincy to co-operate with other bodies as expense might be saved.

The matter was referred to the committee on City Improvements.

President Hamilton made a report relative to the production of the play "Along Came Ruth" last Monday evening at the conclusion of which he turned his check over to the Board for $147.20 which represented the profits from the production. This he said simply showed what the Board could do if it started out. He also paid a tribute to the Daily Ledger for the part it took in making the production such a success.

On motion of Secretary Hall a vote of thanks was extended to Col. Henry L. Kincaide, Alfred W. Goodhue, Capt. George A. Wardwell and his force at the theatre and Frank F. Prescott for their many efforts to make the affair a success.

Attention was called to the need of a

If the war correspondents would come back to this country, they might find out something about the war.

All some journalists have to do to sell a paper is to put in big headlines and deny what they said yesterday.

Aviator Beachey has been looping the loop over Washington, but it wasn't half so startling as the somersaults the politicians make out there.

The Russians may have captured Przemysl, but at last accounts the town was still holding out heroically against the simplified spellers.

It's almost as dangerous in those trenches on the Aisne river as being a guide in the Northern woods during the shooting season.

Some one asks where are the people that used to write the canning and preserving rules for the magazines. Probably they are now getting up beauty hints and facial make-up notes.

BASEBALL SEASON.

To the philosophic observer of daily life, the close of the baseball season offers food for reflection. There has now come to an end for the year 1914, one of the leading activities of the American people. It could perhaps be demonstrated that more people have seen ball games the past summer than have entered the doors of churches or schools.

A few moralists of extreme severity say it encourages men to waste valuable time, and incites to the vice of betting. As to the gambling, that is rather incidental. For the great majority, it is a form of happy activity that works against many evils. When a fellow is howling on the grand grand stand, in encouragement of athletic skill, he is not injuring his body with dissipation, nor polluting his mind with low thoughts.

There is one objection worth considering. That is the passiveness of the spectator's attitude to the game. It encourages too much the attitude of seeing other people do things.

When a player knocks a home run or fields a swift and stinging ball, the "fan" feels a thrill of elation. He is as proud as if he had done the thing himself. That may tend to discourage him from doing things in life, and may lead him to find his rewards, not in his own achievement, but in watching other people achieve.

As an outlet for superflous energy and a distraction from vice, baseball must have an incalcuable influence for wholesome living and thinking. It is a mistake though, when the "fan" lets his interest deter him from acquiring skill of his own in some favorite game. If he is so busy computing the percentages and discussing the plays of the league leaders, that he has no time left to practice some favorite and healthful sport of his own, baseball has not had its best results for him.

AUSTRIANS STILL HOLD TARNOW

Vienna Reports That Invaders Are Driven Back

EFFORT TO BESIEGE CRACOW

Claim That Czar's Troops Have Been Defeated In Endeavors to Break Through Front of Foe—German Invasion of Russian Poland Threatens Russians with Flank Attack

London, Oct. 8.—It is officially announced at Vienna that the Russians invading Galicia in an attempt to besiege the Cracow fortifications have been driven back from the line of the Donajec river by the reinforced Austrian armies.

The Austrians have retaken Nowy Sandec (Neu Sandec) on the southern Galicia railway line just east of the Donajec river, and are still in possession of Tarnow.

The Russians have made several assaults in force on the Austrian positions in the vicinity of Tarnow, but in every instance, it is stated, they have been repulsed.

The battle line in Galicia now extends from the Vistula river just north of Sczecucin along the line of railroad that parallels the Donajec, connecting the northern and southern Galician lines. The Russians have attempted to advance with two entire armies along the northern and southern lines, but they have been defeated in every attempt they have made to break through the Austrian front. The Austrians are now on the offensive and will endeavor decisively to defeat the Russians and thus raise the siege of Przemysl.

The Russians will soon be in danger of a flank attack, as the German invasion of Russian Poland from the neighborhood of Bendzim is continuing.

The above dispatch from Vienna, by way of Rome, flatly contradicts the Russian claims that they have occupied Tarnow and were about to cross the Donajec river for the purpose of isolating Cracow.

A dispatch from Petrograd says a report from Lemberg, Galicia, states that Przemysl, the strong fortress of the Austrians, is being bombarded by Russian heavy artillery.

The damage is considerable, houses being set on fire by bursting shrapnel. All efforts of the Austrian field forces to assist the fort have been unsuccessful and their troops have retreated to Vlotslavsk.

It is officially announced from Huszt, Marmaros county, Hungary, that Austrian forces have been heavily engaged with Russians since Monday at a point near Tecso, telegraphs the Amsterdam correspondent of the Reuter Telegram company. The Russians retreated. The battle came to an end near Kricsfalva, with complete victory for the Austrians.

Tecso is about twenty miles southeast of Huszt. Marmaros county is in the extreme east of Hungary between Galicia and Transylvania.

Small detachments of Russians were engaged by Austrian gendarmes at a point near Beszterzenazod. Austrian reinforcements have been dispatched to Beszterzenazod. All the passes are occupied by the Russians.

MARION MANOLA DEAD

Former Light Opera Star Succumbs to Surgical Operation

New Rochelle, N. Y., Oct. 8.—Marion Manola, a famous light opera star of twenty years ago, died in the New Rochelle hospital after an operation to remove gall stones.

She was 48 years of age and was born in Oswego, N. Y., the daughter of John Stevens, an inventor. She made her debut in London. In America she appeared as prima donna in the McCall opera productions.

She married Henry Mould of Cleveland when she was 16, and later divorced him. Eighteen years ago she married John Mason, an actor. Eleven years ago, after divorcing Mason, she entered the Keith circuit. Three years later she retired from the stage. Her surviving husband is George G. Gates, an accountant.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

that committee has not been entirely inactive, since it has been concerning itself with statistics of value.

For politic and economic reasons, this has not been a propitious year for furthering the just demand of the Elementary Teachers of Quincy for an increase in salary.

However, "Knowledge is power," and your committee on salaries, in putting before you the results of its investigations, hopes to strengthen the basis of your claim that Quincy teachers are sadly underpaid,—at the same time counseling you to be patient in time of present economic stress.

At the San Francisco meeting of the National Education Association in July, 1911, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That the president of the National Education Association be authorized to appoint a committee consisting of seven active members to consider and report to the association its findings and recommendations concerning the salaries, tenure, and pensions of teachers, the committee to take into consideration, among other things, the increased cost of living, the increased professional demands upon the time, strength, and funds of teachers, and whether the increase in teachers' wages has kept pace with the increase in the wages of other workers, the increase in the cost of living, and the increased demands upon teachers.

The committee was appointed in October, 1911. The president of Swarthmore College, Penn., the professor of education at Yale, a district superintendent of New York Schools, (a woman), the president of the Normal and Industrial College at Rock Hill, S. C., the professor of education of Northwestern University of Illinois and the principal of Polytechnic High School of San Francisco—were the members of this committee.

The committee recognized the great necessity of securing accurate data and of putting its report in such a form that it might be useful to the teachers generally of the United States, so it secured the services of an expert statistician and economist. Investigations were instituted, and the results of these investigations were published in January, 1913, by the National Education Association.

Your committee on salaries secured the voluminous report from the Commissioner of Education, of the Bureau of Education at Washington, D. C. Every page is of value, but your committee will attempt to bring to your attention only a few of the most striking statistics and conclusions of the report. These statistics are based upon data obtained from four distinct geographical sections of the United States, and they represent a nation-wide character, being a national average, as it were, so that when salaries, prices of commodities, and so forth, are mentioned, they do not refer to any one city, state, or section of the country, but represent approximately an average of the whole United States.

The first investigation is of cost of living and of the purchasing power of salaries during a period of fourteen years, from 1897 to 1911. (To quote from the report)

"In 1911 wholesale prices were 44.1 per cent higher than in 1897. The purchases of teachers are of course largely at retail prices, which would make the percent higher. In June 1912 retail food prices were 61.7 per cent higher than in 1896. Prices began to rise in 1897. Even at the low prices prevailing at that time a salary of $600 may have been barely adequate all things considered. On account of increased cost of living, through rising prices, the $600 salary that was barely adequate in 1897 had become insufficient in 1905. Then, somewhat tardily, salaries were raised 14 per cent during the next five years, and the $600 teacher finds herself drawing $684 in 1910, but $684 in 1910 is equal in purchasing power only to $466.22 in 1897. The salary increase of 14 per cent therefore, coming as it did at the end of a long period of rising prices, still leaves the teacher with a much smaller purchasing power than she possessed in 1897.

"One can say that the same purchasing power represented by a salary of $500 in 1897, would have required a salary of $720.73 in 1911. If, however, considering the degree of preparation and amount of work required, community standards, and all other factors recognized as determining justice and adequacy of salary payments. $500 was unsatisfactory and insufficient in 1897, then a salary of $720.73 in 1911, would be unsatisfactory and insufficient to exactly the same degree, in spite of the monetary increase of 44 per cent that had apparently taken place.

"Altogether it is evident, that the problem of the cost of living, which must be met and solved by the teacher of today, is conditioned, fundamentally, by a general level of prices, which har risen at least from 40 to 50 per cent above that of 1896. This rise in the cost of living is a factor of immense importance and cannot be left out of sight for an instant in any discussion or settlement of the problem of teachers' salaries.

"In Boston, Buffalo and Kansas City where no change in salaries was reported, salaries were nominally in 1910 exactly where they had been in 1905. In purchasing power, as measured by wholesale prices, however, they had actually fallen to slightly more than seven-eighths of their purchasing power in 1905. On the other hand the percentages of increase in salaries of grade teachers in San Francisco, Providence, Newark, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Detroit, Minneapolis, Rochester, Indianapolis, Jersey City, St. Louis, Baltimore, and Toledo were higher than the increase in wholesale prices. Indeed in the case of the last, three mentioned cities the percentage salary increase was about three times the percentage of the increase in wholesale prices.

"Brockton, Mass., with a population of only 56,877 has food prices 6 per cent higher, and Lawrence, Mass., with 85,892 people, 5 per cent higher than New York City. All New England is shown to have very high food prices."

"According to a table of comparison of the cost of food and rent in twenty seven cities throughout the United States, "it would require, to equal the purchasing power for rent and food alone of a $1000 salary in New York City; $990 in Boston; $1000 in Brockton; $900 in Fall River; $950 in Lawrence; $900 in Lowell; $880 in Providence."

(Recall the high salaries paid teachers in New York, and compare them with Quincy salaries while contemplating this table of the comparison of cost of living in the two places.) In considering the factor of persons dependent upon teachers for support it was found that "this burden rests upon more than half of the unmarried grade teachers, that it is very considerable, that it increases as age advances, except perhaps in the case of those teachers who are nearly superannuated themselves."

"The subject of cost of board and room is reported upon, but prices are so far below prices being paid in Quincy (in advance) that to quote them would have little value to this organization.

"More than half the teachers in all cities add to their salaries between 5 and 10 per cent from other sources.

"Altogether, though, the opportunities open to teachers to supplement their incomes from other sources are not largely productive. The force of this conclusion is strengthened when we note that the majority of these who add to their salaries by outside employment belong to the group of women grade teachers whose salaries are the lowest." (They are forced to do it in order to live.)

Once more we quote the exact words of the report:

"It is to be regretted in some ways that teachers in larger and more progressive cities do find opportunity for so much outside teaching. Usually such employment enhances the monotony of the regular day's work, it is equally confining, and, unlike the workman's overtime, is seldom paid at as large a rate per hour as her regular teaching. Of course outside work of any sort materially reduces the teachers' time for leisure, social intercourse and recreation and also for the study and preparation of her regular work, and for general professional study and development. In any well-regulated school system the latter demands are likely to be quite sufficient to fully occupy the teacher of ordinary physical stamina during the school year. Considering the extremely nervous strain of teaching it is even doubtful whether much outside work of a gainful character is desirable during vacations unless it is manual labor in the open air.

"In general the most striking fact brought out by the tables regarding the savings of teachers during 1911 is the large number who report no savings for the year. The relationship between this unsatisfactory condition and low salaries is made apparent by inter-city comparisons, and also by the larger percentage of those reporting no savings among grade teachers, particularly among younger grade teachers who are in receipt of the lowest salaries fixed in the schedules of their respective cities. Among teachers of longer experience and higher rank, however, the proportion of non-savers is disquietingly large. Unmarried women, high school teachers, principals, assistant principals, supervisors, etc. make a more satisfactory showing, yet among such teachers the per centage of non-savers is so large as to reveal clearly the burden of the support of dependent relatives.

"Among grade teachers, savings of $100 a year may be taken to represent creditably successful economy in the cities that pay as well as Cincinnati and Denver where the average salaries for grade teachers is respectivly $888 and $893.

"In cities with lower salary schedules, the putting aside of this amount becomes exceptional. and probably means the crippling of the efficiency of the teachor who does it.

"With the longest possible teaching service, and the best possible good fortune in the way of avoiding sickness accident, misfortune, or the care of dependents, it is evident that it is impossible for the great majority of teachers so situated to save enough from salaries to enable them to retire at their own expense.

"At safe rates of interest, not exceeding 4 or 5 per cent. annually only those teachers possessing at least $5,000 could expect to retire upon their own resources, and then, only in case no others were dependent upon them. Even in the latter and more favorable assumption, which is by no means always realized in practice, the income from this amount of property would be sufficient only for the most frugal manner of living. Comfort could only be possible with the addition of a pension.

"It is easy to dismiss such statements with the remark that they show improvidence. That there are persons of this character among teachers as well as in all other social groups, it would of course, be foolish to deny. But when one considers the small, or at best, modest salaries paid, the relatively high community demands up to which teachers must bring their standards of living, and finally, the large number of single women teachers burdened with the support of dependents, it is manifest that the charge of improvidence alone does not explain the situation, or obviate the necessity of proper provision for such teachers retiring after long years of service in the schools.'

"(Of course we have our pension system now, but if our present salaries are inadequate for living under existing prices, how will half that amount, as a pension, be adequate with prices rising? And from many salaries 5 per cent. can not now be spared yearly to provide for pension.)

"In considering the length of the teacher's working day authorities agree that there has been a considerable reduction in hours during the last fifty years.

"This, however, is not a definition of the professional demands upon the teacher, but only the beginning of such a definition.

"During the same period that has witnessed the shortening of school hours there has also occurred a lengthening of the curriculum, (we would like to add clerical work) that has imposed heavy burdens outside of school hours upon teachers. Also the conception of the teacher's duty, socially as well as pedagogically has broadened, leading to numerous other demands, both direct and indirect, which must be met if her work is to be regarded as efficient.

"The outside public is prone to forget these additional burdens upon the time of a teacher. The teacher's working day appears extremely short. Yet it is in this profession that an unusually large number of nervous break-downs from nerve strain and overwork occur. The situation cannot be understood, especially that part of it relating to the real length of the working day, without taking into account the demands, both direct and indirect, made upon teachers out of school hours. Very few business men or salaried employees are obliged to work evenings. (To the ordinary teacher this is a commonplace occurrence thruout the school year, with occasional periods of extra, not to say over exertion, during examinations and other special occasions.

"Summing up detailed statements of the grade teachers of five representative cities of the United States the statistics show that work outside of and additional to that done by teachers in the regular school hours requires an amount of time equal to from three-tenths to one-half of the length of their school day."

Among the subjects with which the report deals is that of the increased demands upon the funds of the teacher, her expenditures or the apportionment of her salary. In one table are compared the expenditures of 70 unmarried women teachers for certain specified purposes. None of these women were living with relatives. "Board, room rent, and clothing, the three elementary necessities represent from 57 to 78 per cent. of the total expenditures of these teachers. It is evident that the latter percentage leaves scant margin for vacations, care of health, self-improvement, and provision for the future." (And 27 of these 70 teachers were receiving over $1000 salaries and 12 more than over $800 salaries. Does anyone see how Quincy teachers can exist at all in face of these statistics?)

Another table of comparison represents the expenditures of these teachers to meet professional demands, such as dues in teachers' associations educational books and periodicals, fees for conventions, lectures, advanced normal courses, and summer schools, contributions to school activities, transportation costs, dug to attendance upon teachers' meetings, etc., which add from 1 to 5 per cent. to a teacher's expenditures.

Then there are the expenditures for religion and for charity. "For religious purposes rent paying teacher's families spent from 1.24 to 3.40 per cent. home owning teachers from 2.17 to 3.88 per cent. Workingmen's families report an expenditure of .99 per cent. for religious purposes.

For charity the minimum percentage reported was .33 per cent. the maximum 2.23 per cent. by rent paying teachers, by home owning teachers minimum .32 per cent., 1.91 maximum per cent. Workingmen's families report .31 per cent. expended for charity. Here again the burden borne by the teacher is much greater."

Lastly, the report deals with a comparison of teachers' salaries with the wages of other workers. "Notoriously comparisons are odious. Without them, however, no progress is possible in the study of the wage question." "But, as a matter of fact, the compensation of public school teachers, and not necessarily those of lower grades, either, has been shown by statistics not only to be less than manual workers of the higher grades, but also, in numerous cases, to be lower than that of common or unskilled labor."

"Many instances are found of workers employed only in the commonest of unskilled, and even menial tasks, whose wages are higher than the salaries of teachers in the grades."

The remainder of the report is devoted to summaries of general statements of teachers upon their compensations, standards of living, suggested reforms, and so forth, which would correspond with your own experiences and meet with your sympathy.

Salary schedules in various sections of the country tenure of office and general teachers' pension laws in the United States complete this volume.

Of so much value and interest is this report that your committee on salaries recommends that as many teachers as possible obtain it from the Commissioner of Education, Bureau of Education at Washington.

Knowledge of facts is power, and if we would improve our condition, we must possess ourselves of this power, for within ourselves largely lies the ability to overcome all our limitations.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

In connection with the forthcoming celebration of the 275th anniversary of the regathering of the First Church in Quincy, it will be interesting to know of the gift to the Thomas Crane Public Library of the large quarto volume on the Old Silver of American Churches. This book was privately printed at the Arden Press, Letchworth, England, for the National Society of Colonial Dames of America, and 506 copies were printed, of which this volume is No. 322. There are 145 plates, and No. 121 with seven pages of text is devoted to the silver of the First Congregational Society (Unitarian) of Quincy. There is also a page of description of the vessels of Christ Church, Quincy.

The volume is too large for handling anywhere but in the Library and may be seen upon application to the Librarian.

Our copy is presented to the Library by Mr. Charles Francis Adams, now of South Lincoln, whose interest in the Library of Quincy is still keen and vital. Mr. Adams is the only one living of the six men of the first Board of Trustees and was Chairman of the Board for 23 years previous to his leaving our city.

Another volume which the Library has lately secured is "John Wheelwright; his writings, including his Fast Day Sermon, 1637," etc., and a memoir of Wheelwright by Charles H. Bell, who edits the volume. The Library was extremely fortunate in being able to find this volume by purchase, as it is one of the publications of the Prince Society, and "contains documents not generally accessible even to scholars, being a useful contribution to an important and interesting chapter of our early history."

At the meeting of the Trustees last evening, out of respect to our late Mayor it was voted to close the Library on Friday afternoon from 1 until 6 o'clock. The Branch Reading Rooms will not open on Friday as they are closed Friday evening.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The opening of the evening schools on Monday evening as was stated earlier in the week, brought a marked increase in the state aided classes and a slight decrease in attendance in the city classes. It is quite apparent for one thing that the number of illiterate minors in the city is appreciably less than it was a year ago. Previous to the opening of school, the employment records were consulted and a list of all persons obliged by law to attend school was secured so that such attendance may be enforced if it it is not voluntary. The Russians who were present in large numbers last winter are very few in number this year, while the Hebrew people have also diminished in number. The people in attendance report themselves out of employment in great numbers, far more so than the average reader of this paper has realized. The class in mechanical and freehand drawing at the High school is in larger numbers than a year ago and is meeting on Monday, Wednesday and Friday weekly, two teachers being required to look after the work.

All the classes for women have opened with better attendance and with more interest than ever. The work being planned and conducted on a different basis than ever before. One class in sewing meets on Wednesdays and Fridays and is concerned with the making of one piece dresses; the other class, meeting on Mondays and Thursdays, works on waist making.

The class in cooking, meeting on Wednesdays and Fridays, will have 10 lessons on breakfasts and 10 on suppers. These lessons are based on the needs of a family of five and with an allowance of 25 cents or 5 cents per person for each meal. On this basis Cooking lessons can hardly be accused of being extravagant or unpractical. The classes for men at the Industrial school building have all been well filled and a visitor at this building on any of the four evenings that the school is in session will find much to interest him.

SCHOOLMASTERS' CLUB.

The Quincy Schoolmasters club held its first meeting of the season last evening at the high school library As many of the men are engaged in evening school work, the attendance was not at its full strength. William E. Hingston of Wollaston, the well known expert in handwriting gave a most interesting and novel talk on his professional experiences.

The members of the School Committee have been invited to the meeting of the Massachusetts Fields Parents' Association this evening in the school building. The principal subject for discussion will be the question of overcrowding in that building and the possible means of remedy.

The afternoon session of the public schools will be omitted tomorrow afternoon, as a mark of respect to the memory of the late Mayor John L. Miller.

TEACHERS' RECEPTION.

The Parents' Teachers' Association of the Quincy school gave a reception to the teachers Tuesday evening in Assembly hall, the first of its kind and it proved a great success. The committee in charge were: Mrs. Henry B. Barham, Mrs. Lugene J. Hayford, Mrs. Eugene Luke, Mrs. W. F. Cummings and Mrs. Charles O'Malley.

The decorations were autumn leaves and flowers artistically arranged. The ushers were graduates of the Quincy school, namely: Mary Browne, Clare Von Emden, Evelyn Luke, Eva Frosted, Collina Brown, Edith Olson, Madeline Coulson, Augusta McMahon, Mildred Willmore, Dorothy Buckley, Sybil Hobbs, Hilda Johnason, Paul Coombs and Harold Sherwin.

During the evening a fine program was enjoyed the talent being local and consisted of the following numbers:

Duet, Joseph Uppling, banjo, Master Joseph Uppling, Jilophone.

Whistling Solo, Mr. Uppling, accompanied by Joseph Uppling on piano.

Recitation by Evelyn Luke.

Crackers and punch were served. All pronounced the affair a great success and felt that the Association had made a good beginning in its year's work. The officers have shown their ability to work and all that is needed is the hearty and constant cooperation of the parents. This thought was impressed upon the minds of those present by William F. Cummings president of the association.

Telephone Operator Notifies Police of Trouble in Store

Information to the effect that the telephone signal from the store of the Walsh Drug Co. at Franklin and Water streets was continuously flashing in the local exchange created considerable excitement at police headquarters shortly before one o'clock this morning resulted in a squad of officers and citizens leaving for that place on the run.

Although their investigation was fruitless and the cause undiscovered until this morning when a lineman found two crossed wires behind the telephone booth, it was a demonstration of the value of an alert night operator at critical moments.

It was just about 1 o'clock that the suspicions of Miss Margaret Scanlon of Atlantic were aroused by the constantly flashing signal. Unsuccessful in her attempts to secure a response to her "number please" she immediately advised police headquarters.

Sergt. Larkin who received the message ordered a squad to the store post haste and with coats flying and the remains of a partly munched luncheon in their mouths the patrolmen, accompanied by citizens rushed from the station.

A quick examination revealed no trace of burglars or fire. The interior of the store was examined with the aid of flash lights placed against the windows but nothing appeared to be disturbed. The doors of both telephone booths were wide open and there was no evidence that any one had collapsed after removing the receiver from the hook.

The place was well covered the balance of the night but nothing developed. The lineman placed the cause this morning.

AVERY TO BE NOMINATED

Edward Avery of Braintree, son of Judge Albert E. Avery of the Quincy district court, has been unanimously chosen Democratic nominee to fill the vacancy in the eighth Norfolk district caused by the death of Representative Moses H. McGaughey who was a candidate for re-election.

The choice was made at a meeting of the committees of Braintree, Holbrook and Avon, towns included in the district, at Braintree Wednesday evening. Joseph W. Colbert of Braintree presided.

Mr. Avery is well known in this city. He is an attorney with offices here and in Boston. Although it will be his first venture in politics the indications point strongly to his election.

MacLEAN—DICKIE.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Blackmur, 74 Elm street was the scene of a quite wedding Wednesday afternoon. The occasion being the mariage of Miss Margaret MacLean, daughter of Capt. Angus MacLean of Cape Breton to Herbert J,. Dickie of this City. Mr. Dickie is a native of Quincy. Very popular, and favorably known in the hardware business.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson, minister of the First Parish church. The bride was attended by Miss Hannah Littlewood, as maid of honor and the groom by David J. Brownrigg as best man, both of Quincy.

After a short sojourn in New York and the Berkshires, the couple will tak up their residence in Worcester, where Mr. Dickie holds a responsible position as general manager of the W. H. Willard Co., a large hardware concern.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

The first meeting of Quincy Branch Alliance was held in the Parlor of the First Parish church Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. William B. Nichols reported the Isles of Shoales conference. After the regular business meeting Mrs. Alice Haynes Marsh interested her audience in speaking of the the duties of the Church in the Social Service work of today Mrs. James H. Slade, accompanied by Mrs. Joseph Evans sang two songs, "Sweet Wind that Blows o'er Sunny Isles" words by Oscar Leighton, and "Goodbye Sweet Day" by Celia Thaxter. The afternoon closed with a social half hour. The next meeting will be held in conjunction with the Fragment Society on Wednesday, Oct. 21 at 3 o'clock.

MISS SHIRLEY

shelter house at Mt. Wollaston cemetery urging the Board to see if arrangements could not be made for such a shelter house, with some one in charge. Referred to committee on City Improvements.

Commodore Frank Fessenden Crane read an interesting report of the Waterways convention in New York, which set forth each days program. It spoke of the great enthusiasm that was shown at every place the delegates visited. He also said that he wished he could bring back a little of the enthusiasm that was shown. A letter along the same lines was read from J. S. Swingle one of the delegates and Vice President Sedgwick also spoke briefly along the same line.

Commodore Crane also said that in what ever had been accomplished by the waterways conventions throughout the country the Quincy Board of Trade was entitled to its share of credit for it had been represented at every convention from the very first.

On motion of Hon. J. F. Merrill resilutions on the death of Mayor John L. Miller were adopted.

Mr. Houghton who had charge of the building of the powerful fire pump which was recently built at the Fire River was introduced and spoke at length upon the apparatus. What he desired was the formation of a company to manufacture the apparatus in Quincy. It would require a capital of from $50,000 to $75,000 to start the plant in operation. His pumps would cost more than those now on the market but were of greater efficiency and they would pay the company a good profit.

He went into detail in regard to the kind of pump, motor and other parts used showing wherein the pump was far superior to anything now manufactured. Many cities were waiting to buy pieces of the apparatus just as soon as the engine could be sent to those cities and demonstrate it, before them. At the start fteen of twenty men would be employed and eventually from 200 to 300 men. He also spoke of the amounts different cities had appropriated for fire apparatus to meet the approval of the underwriters and that this pump was the only one that had come up to their requirements

H. G. Smith, general manager of the Fore River Cor. stated the reason why that company had not taken up the manufacture of the pumps. It was first because it desired to confine itself to marine work and then because of the development along certain lines which was now in progress. He also endorsed all that Mr. Houghton had said about the apparatus.

Later on Mr. Houghton said that he had the exclusive right to use the pumps and motors for re apparatus and that $15,000 would buy the pump at the Fore River which had proved its worth on several occasions, which could be sent to New York and elsewhere to demonstrate what it could do. When asked what he would expect out of the company if formed he said, a salary and commission.

Vice President Sedgwick also had a good word to say for the pump and said that the Fore River Corp had the utmost condence in Mr. Houghton.

It was voted that a committee be appointed to go into the matter fully as to financial question, cost of operating, and other facts so that the Board might have definite information as to just what it would cost to launch the company and start the business.

On the suggestion of A. Milne, Jr., the secretary was instructed to write to the Boston Elevated officials, relative to having its employees at terminals informed that there was a late car from Neponset to Quincy leaving at 2 A. M. a fact which the said officials did not now know.

The matter if excessive valuations of city estate was then brought up and after a brief discussion it was voted that the Board request that any who ad complaints as to xcessive valuation should bring their data to the Board that necessary material might be obtained to bring the matter before the Tax Commissioner. The Committee on City Improvements was appointed to take up the matter.

The matter of the location of the American Rubber Co. in Quincy was brought up. This company desired to raise a capital of $12,000 and the inducements it offered looked good.

It was voted that the Board indorse the project and that a committee of three be appointed to see what could be done toward raising the necessary finances.

FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS

The City Council at its special meeting tonight will probably take action is regard to attending the funeral of Mayor J. L. Miller. In addition to this resolutions will be adopted on his death.

As will be noticed by an advertisement in another column Acting Mayor Whiton has requested the business houses throughout the city to close between 2.30 and 3.30 the hours of the funeral services and the business men will comply with the request.

The services which will be held from his late residence on Franklin street will be conducted by Rev. Joseph Walther, pastor of the Wollaston Baptist church, and it has been announced that the bearers will be brothers from Wollaston Masonic lodge of which he was a member.

OPEN CIRCUIT CAUSED ALARM

The apparatus of the Central fire station had a needless run Wednesday evening when they responded to box 12 at Houghs Neck. An examination of the box showed it had not been sounded and an investigation disclosed an open circuit which had sent in blows enough to register on the indicator.

FINE IMPOSED.

Thomas Murphy of Sictuate one of the quartette who figured in an auto accident at Cohasset Monday was discharged from a hospital Wednesday and arrested on a charge of drunkenness by Thomas Bates, chief of police of that town.

Murphy was arrangned in the District Court this morning and found guilty. He was assessed the costs of court and hospital charges which brought the total up to $20. Similar charges against his three companions resulted in their conviction Tuesday.

DISTRICT COURT.

Joseph H. Johnson was sentenced to one month in the house of correction for drunkenness at Milton.

Mary Rubolino was arraigned for assault at Weymouth. Case placed on probation on the payment of $5 costs.

PRISONERS AT THE ISLAND

Three Finns and an Irishman, who disagreed over the cause of the European war, were arrested at Neponset on Tuesday evening, and fined $10 each in the Dorchester district court this morning. Lacking the money they are now prisoners of war at Deer island.

They gave their names as Oscar Burke of 11 Nelson street Adam Kinhunen of 26 Nelson street, William Kiulle of 29 Huntington street, and Michael J. Monahan of 1 Newton court, all of this city.

The three Finns were having an animated discussion when Monahan appeared and announced that they mis understood the situation. Words led to blows and Patrolman McLaughlin lowered the curtain by placing all under arrest.

JUNIOR TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

Title is Captured by Favreau of the High School

Arthur Favreau of Quincy High is the first Massachusetts junior tennis champion. He won the title at Chestnut Hill Wednesday afternoon, beating E. L. Farrar, Dorchester in the final round. His score was 6-4, 6-2.

E. F. Farrar, who beat H. W. Hatch in the unfinished semi-final match proved to be no match for Favreau who played strongly at the net. He impressed the gallery as being quick in court covering and appears to have a promising future.

The new champion is a member of the junior class at Quincy High. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Favreau of 182 Pine street, Wollaston and is a popular resident of the fifth ward.

The tournament was successful and its continuance is assured. The summary:

SEMI-FINAL ROUND.
(Uncompleted Tuesday)
E. F. Farrar beat H. W. Hatch 6-3, 6-5.

FINAL ROUND.
Arthur Favreau beat E. L. Farrar, 6-4, 6-2.

OPENING WHIST TOURNAMENT

The opening whist tournament of the winter series under the auspices of the Granite City Club was held Wednesday evening with nine tables in play. The two best scores of the evening were made by Warren H. Rideout and John J. Gallagher. Ice cream cake and coffee were served after the play. Tournaments will be held every Wednesday throughout the winter.

SPORT NEWS

Paul Poehler of Quincy, rolling with the Chauncey team against the Carruth boys in the Boston city league Wednesday night contributed a total of 342. His singles were 111, 114, 116.

The Greater Boston Y. M. C. A. bowling league has organized. There are to be 28 weeks of competition between teams representing Salem, Wakefield, Lynn, Boston, Hyde Park, Cambridge, Quincy and Somerville organizations. The matches will be rolled Tuesday nights. J. R. Davis is president. L. Hydocker is vice president and C. F. Foster secretary-treasurer.

An elimination pool tournament between four of the fastest players in the city will be played at the Chestnut street parlors on Monday evening. Joseph Van Cyr and Cahries Maloney will play one match and Daniel Barnes and Raymond Josephine the other. The winners will then play for the championship. The quartette is a good one and the fans are finding it difficult to pick the winner.

The bowling season of the Wollaston Tennis club will open next Wednesday evening at the Coliseum alleys. Wednesday night the candidates for captainey on the teams rolled to qualify for the honor. The schedule covers the greater part of the winter.

GREAT MASS OF PROOF

Reports of 30,000 Cases of Kidney Trouble, Some of them Quincy Cases.

Each of some 6,000 newspapers of the United States is publishing from week to week, names of people in its particular neighborhood, who have used and recommended Doan's Kidney Pills for kidney backache, weak kidneys, bladder troubles and urinary disorders. This mass of proof includes over 30,000 recommendations. Quincy is no exception. Here is one of the Quincy cases.

Charles J. Somers, barber, 17 Newcomb street, Quincy, says: "I had a lame back and weak kidneys for ten years. Nothing ever relieved me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They soon restored my kidneys to their proper working order and corrected the other ailments. I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills after they helped me so much and I have watched their effect in other cases since. I use Doan's Kidney Pills off and on and I wouldn't be without a supply."

THE WORLD'S SERIES

Braves Strong In Defense, Athletics Rivals In Offensive

The time-worn question of what will happen when an irresistible force comes in contact with an immovable body should be at least partially answered when the Philadelphia and Boston teams meet in the 1914 world's series.

In this case the irresistible force will be represented by the Athletics, who are everywhere reputed to carry the most dangerous offense in baseball; the Braves with their unusually good pitching and rapid fire field work will furnish the immovable body.

The clash of these two nines will undoubtedly attract more real interest than any series of recent years, largely because there is a feeling that Boston can at the very least give Philadelphia a stiff rub for honors.

WELCOME TO PASTOR'S BRIDE

Rev. and Mrs. Stephen C. Lang Warmly Congratulated

Rev. and Mrs. Stephen C. Lang were tendered a reception by the members of the Washington street Congregational church in the vestry Wednesday evening. Rev. Mr. Lang, who succeeded Rev. C. P. Marshall as pastor claimed a bride during his vacation this summer and the event was in the nature of a wecome to both.

A majority of the members of the parish were present and the special guests of the evening were Rev. Leon H. Austin of Roslindale, a former pastor, who was accompanied by Mrs. Austin.

In the receiving line were Deacon and Mrs. H. E. Bonney, Deacon W. E. Lee, Mrs. C. H. Sherburne and Rev. and Mrs. Lang.

The vestry was prettily decorated with autumn leaves and foliage dahlias, asters and geraniums and the receiving line was surrounded by a wealth of flowers. There were brief remarks by Rev. Mr. Lang, Rev. Mr. Austin and Thomas B. Pollard.

During the evening orchestral selections were rendered by Irving Hayden and Max Pinkham. Mrs. Edith Cary Page rendered vocal solos which included Irish folk song, Daffodils a-blooming, a Birthday, Blossom land, Little grey house in the west. This portion of the program was entertaining and well received.

The decorations were designed and completed by Mrs. E. H. Bushnell and Mrs. C. Oliver.

The refreshments were served by the Misses Jennie Gibb, Doris Carter Eva Forrest, Marie Lorenson, Isabel Foster, Mabel Roache, Marion Peterson, Irene Rouse and consisted of ice cream and cake.

The reception committee included Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Blanchard and Mrs. Gibb and the refreshment committee was Mrs. C. W. Newcomb, Mrs. M. Wight, Mrs. B. Barnes, Mrs. A. Foster.

BIRTHDAY PARTIES.

FIFTH BIRTHDAY.

Mildred Bake of 74 Billings street, Atlantic, gave a Sunbonnet Baby party to her little friends on her fifth birthday, Saturday, Oct. 3, from 3 until 5 o'clock. Sunbonnet Babies were in evidence everywhere, on table covers, napkins, souvenirs, bon bons, etc. The decorations of crepe paper in the dining room were very artistic and presented a pretty sight when the twenty-one children gathered around the table. There was music and games were played until the time for departure.

Those present were Jeannette Woodward of Brookline, and Louise Voyella, Thomas Voyella, Caroline Cherrington, Helen Cherrington, Harry Beede, Ada York, Ormand Damon, Judith Conant, Cleo Gill, Ruth Beeman, Catherine Bean, Gladys Barclay, Fred Kendall, Eileen Gallagher, Margaret Ferrier, Bessie Grocott, Robert Brown, Frank Leavitt and Betham Leavitt all of Atlantic.

TENTH BIRTHDAY.

Barbara and Elizabeth Wells of Webster street, entertained thir little friends Tuesday afternoon, from 4.30 until 6.30, the occasion being Barbara's tenth birthday. Elizabeth was four years old last month.

Refreshments were served and all spent a pleasant afternoon playing games. Those present were: Alice White, Jennie White, Constance Stecher, Marjorie Dame, Helen Cherrington, Bertha Wight, Laura Rogers, Louise Carter, Ruth Beeman, Marjorie Barham, Virginia Barham, Ada York and Doris McClure.

Miss Marian F. Bill recently of Upland road has returned from New York, where she studied at the Castle House of Modern Dancing. She is opening a dancing class with J. Paul Gardner, also of Castle House, in Hancock hall, Tuesday evenings, the opening receptions to be held in Alpha hall, Oct. 13, they will give exhibitions of the latest dances including the ta too, lu lu fado, Brazilian Polka, and Fox Trot.

There is a whole lot of truth in what Mr. Barnard has to say in his advertisement. It does seem ridiculous to fuss and worry at baking when you can get, as good goods at the price you have to pay for raw material. Take Barnard's advice go to the matinee and enjoy yourself. Let Barnard prepare your supper.

ENTHUSIASTIC FOR TILDEN

Atlantic Citizens Give Candidate Rousing Reception

What might be called the first opening guns in the campaign to nominate Henry F. Tilden as the Republican candidate for Mayor, were fired in Atlantic Wednesday evening, and while the large gathering of citizens present, was made up almost exclusively of citizens from that ward, the report of those guns will be heard all over the city. The candidate, Mr. Tilden was present and the voters had an opportunity to meet and hear the man who is looked upon as the one man whom it is most desired should be the governing power of the city next year.

It was the first opportunity also that he has had to speak to the voters and explain in his own way, his ideas of how the business of the city should be conducted, and that those present coincided with his ideas was evident by the applause that was accorded him.

Co-operation and conservation whs the general theme of his remarks. The co-operation of the brightest minds. Quincy can produce and the conservation of all efforts and money to produce the best results for the development of Quincy.

Councilman Herbert G. Beeman presided at the meeting which was attended by upwards of thirty citizens. At that time the candidate was what might be called a stranger to the voters but when he had completed his remarks he numbered them as his friends and supporters.

Nathan Ames started the ball rolling, briefly stating how the business men of the city looked upon the administration of city affairs. They had come to realize that a man was needed in the Mayor's office who was not only familiar with the wants of city and the present acknowledged leaks as well as a man who had the business ability and who could give his entire time to the fast increasing duties of the office. Such a man the business men of the city believed would be found in Henry F. Tilden whom he then presented.

The candidate was given a rousing reception as he arose to reply. Without any attempt at oratory he told his hearers in plain language that he thought the time had come when the city should receive a dollar's return for every dollar it expended. That if honored by the election he would devote his best energies to place the city on a sound financial basis. That not a dollar of the city's money would be expended unless he knew just where that dollar would be expended and that the city received in return for that dollar its full value. That he would personally be on the job from morning to night and that he should expect and demand that other employees of the city did the same.

He also said that during his two years as City Treasurer, he had been given an opportunity, not enjoyed by citizens in general to see how the financial affairs of the city were conducted. He was firm in his statement that he would absolutely make no promises in regard to appointments. That if he could not be elected without the promise of patronage to this or that man, why then he would not be elected. He was not a seeker after the office but it was only after the earnest solicitation of business men, none of whom were seekers after office, and whose only subject was to secure for the city the same business conduct which they would give to their own business, that he had consented to allow the use of his name. He also said that he would not promise to do this or that thing, but would give of his best for the interest of the city at large.

The straightforward statements made by the candidate immediately caught his hearers and as he concluded he was given a most cordial reception.

Several other gentlemen from Atlantic followed, and they expressed themselves as more than pleased with the stand that had been taken by Mr. Tilden. They said they fully realized the great need of a business man at City Hall who had the ability as well as the time to give to the duties of the office, and that the city would be the gainer by Mr. Tilden's decision to enter the caucuses for the nomination.

It was announced before the meeting adjourned that similar meetings would be held in the other wards of the city and that other rallies would be held in Atlantic.

Suffrage Plank Turned Down by Platform Committee—Protective Tariff Favored and Democratic "Extravagance" Condemned—Congress Must Close and Factories Open

Providence, Oct. 8.—Suffragists succeeded in obtaining from the Republican leaders at the last minute the right to present a proposed equal suffrage plank to the state convention of the party.

Mrs. Barton P. Jenks of Providence was allowed to address the delegates five minutes in favor of the plank, which was referred to the platform committee. The committee made no report on the suffrage issue.

The ticket, with R. L. Beeckman for governor and E. J. San Souci for lieutenant governor, was named without opposition. Secretary of State Parker, Attorney General Rice and General Treasurer Read were renominated.

R. L. BEECKMAN

The platform advocates a "reasonable protective tariff," condemns "the incessant and intemperate attacks of the administration upon the business interests," and calls attention to "the reckless extravagance" of congress. Other planks favor a complete system of improved public roads for the state and the extension of the juvenile court system.

Addresses were made by United States Senator Lippitt and Governor Pothier. Lippitt assailed war revenue and business legislation. He asserted that the time had come when less law and more business were needed.

"We want a party," he said, "that will shut down congress and open up the factories."

Congressional conventions unanimously nominated R. B. Burchard in the First district; W. R. Stiness in the Second, and Congressman Kennedy in the Third.

CURED BY ELECTRIC OVEN

Mercury Poison Taken From the Body of a New York Broker

New York, Oct. 8.—After being placed in an electric oven with a heat of from 250 to 300 degrees, David R. Beach, a broker, was cured of accidental bichloride of mercury poisoning.

The cure is considered remarkable inasmuch as his kidneys had stopped operation, usually a fatal sign, and the baking process was resorted to as a last hope to save his life.

After injections of salt solutions, the oven was fitted closely over his bed and the current, supplying dry heat, turned on.

HURLEY STAYS IN OFFICE

Attempt to Recall Mayor of Salem Is Formally Abandoned

Salem, Mass., Oct. 8.—The executive committee of the Citizens' league, which was organized for the purpose of attempting the recall of Mayor Hurley, announced that the attempt had been abandoned.

No mention was made of the committee's failure to obtain the requisite number of names to recall the mayor. The reason given was that John J. Mack, indorsed by the league, had withdrawn as a candidate for mayor.

Canada Can Send 500,000

New York, Oct. 8.—Canada is willing and able to furnish 500,000 picked men to fight against Germany if the British government needs them, according to Colonel Hughes, the Canadian minister of marine, who sailed for England on the steamer Cedric.

Fight More Viciously Than at Any Other Time During the War—Irresistible In the Face of Terrible Fire From German Guns—Victories For French and British In Day of Countless Separate Engagements—Invaders on Offensive, but Defenders Do Not Give Way—Bombardment of Antwerp Begun After Warning Is Served by Germans—Belgian Government Changes Quarters For the Second Time

London, Oct. 8.—Despite the menace to England contained in the nearness of the fall of Antwerp, confidence in the greater operations in France was visibly restored in London by two impressive successes gained by the French and British.

North of Lille and within a mile or two of the Belgian frontier, the spectacular cavalry raid of the invaders was not only halted, but the horsemen were driven back. Elsewhere in the north the cavalry were unable to make any impression upon the strongly-held positions which the Germans hoped to swing around and launch a flank attack.

French Face Awful Carnage

Just as important were the results of the furious fighting on the line between Roye and Chaulnes. Here, on the fertile grain field of the Santerre, where the French were driven out of their trenches on Monday, the battling Wednesday was almost hand-to-hand. But Wednesday the invaders were on the defensive. They had made good use of the last forty-eight hours and had everywhere strengthened the positions they had won.

But the French were irresistible. Never before in the course of the war, although they have proved their bravery time and again, have they fought more viciously. They pressed on despite the fearful carnage of the well placed German machine guns; they did not falter when whole rows of men dropped bleeding from the rifle fire that flamed out of the trenches that they themselves built.

Eight miles of fertile countryside separate Roye and Chaulnes. Nearly every inch of this land was bitterly contested in Wednesday's battle. And when darkness came, the French were back in the trenches they had lost forty-eight hours before, while the Germans had been driven back to their lines a few hundred yards toward the east.

Other clashes, as desperate and as violent, were occurring all along the great battle line that stretches northward from Noyon to the Belgian boundary. Once more the invaders tried to break through the allied lines around Lassigny and thus separate the enemy, but they were not even able to bend the straight line of trenches.

Allies Gain New Courage

Between Chaulnes and the Belgian boundary almost countless separate engagements were being fought. It was distinctly a day of good fortune for the allies, just as Monday was advantageous to the invaders. But the French and British were even more successful. The repulse of the German cavalry has inspirited the officers and men alike, for it was felt that considerable danger lurked in this shrewd attempt of the invaders to cut off once more the lines of communication that run from the Channel to Paris.

The strength of this fleet German detachment of cavalry is tremendous; apparently as strong as in the early days of the war when the cavalry swept so irresistibly through Belgium. The horsemen, however, charged in vain Wednesday. Everywhere that a flying column came rushing along one of the fine French roads it dashed impotently upon forces of barricaded infantry, and nowhere were the riders able to smash through the staunch defense.

German Cavalry Driven Back

A few miles north of Lille, the cavalry was not only held but driven back in considerable disorder, after suffering heavily in the encounters. At several places British cavalry were opposed to German and the clashes proved most spectacular. The Germans were always on the offensive but never were they able to make the British give way. Always it was the German force that fell back when the fighting was over.

In the neighborhood of Lens, where the allied flanking movement is now striking against the German lines of communication, the fighting was as violent as in the vicinity of Roye. Lens is located almost in the heart of the French coal fields, about twelve miles north of Arras by the railroad. So far as can be determined by dispatches, neither the French nor Germans were able to make any substantial progress.

The battle wage about Lens extends as far as Arleux-en-Gohelle, where cavalry were engaged, practically upon the boundary between France and Belgium.

Allies Advance In Centre

Elsewhere on the great battle lines the advantage Wednesday lay with the allies. In the centre advances were made against places where the Germans had weakened their defense by sending troops to the right wing.

Once more the Germans tried to counteract the assaults that are being delivered on their right wing by a determined attempt to gain ground south of Verdun. The force engaged, however, was not nearly so strong as that which last week occupied St. Mihiel and the French were able to hold all their positions.

Antwerp's Fall Is Near

Antwerp seems destined to fall before the week is out, probably tomorrow. The seat of government of the little nation that has fought so courageously against the German violators of neutrality has been once more changed. The principal officials, accompanied by Cardinal Mercier, motored out of Antwerp across the frontier to Flushing in Holland, and there took boat for Ostend.

It is believed King Albert has remained in Antwerp in command of the comparatively small army still able to resist the Germans.

Little definite can be learned of the state of the Antwerp defenses. Berlin reports that Forts Brochem and Kessel have been battered into submission, in addition to three or four of the outside ring. This is not doubted in London, as some breach must have been made in the inner ring to enable the invaders to get their siege guns near enough to the city to bombard it.

The Germans were more rigorous in their adherence to the rules governing the bombardment of fortified towns than they were when they dropped bombs upon the sleeping city from a dirigible. The exodus of refugees began long before nightfall Tuesday, and all night long fugitives poured northward out of the doomed city.

Refugees on the March

Dawn found them weary and saddened but still moving away from the menace of the German guns. Some rode in automobiles, some in carriages, some on bicycles. But the majority walked, plodding dispiritedly northward through the night, the few household articles that they most valued slung over their shoulders or pulled by the faithful dogs that are so characteristic of Belgium.

At 7:30 Wednesday morning, under a flag of truce, a German officer rode into Antwerp and announced that the bombardment would begin in two hours. Precisely at 9:30, the first shell was fired and a few seconds later it had burst in the streets of one of the most historic and beautiful cities of Europe.

Nothing has been learned about the damage done by the bombardment or whether the city will be surrendered to save the fine old structures that have been admired by tourists for so many generations. It is reported that the British and Belgians, except for a few troops stationed in the city, have been massed upon the river Nethe and that they have thus far been able to prevent the Germans from crossing.

CLOSED TO SHIPPING

Berlin Says British Mines Blockade Ports of Holland

The British announcement concerning the laying of mines in the southerly part of the North sea is published in Berlin.

Commenting on this measure, it was pointed out at Berlin that it virtually closes the channel to neutral shipping, and that this belt of mines stretching between Ramsgate and Ostend constitutes an effective, although unofficial, blockade of the ports of Holland. The prospects of navigation when the storms of winter tear these mines loose from their anchorages are not particularly pleasant.

The German admiralty has reiterated its declaration that German mines have been laid only along the coast of Great Britain.

DOING SPLENDID WORK

London Times Gives Praise to American Ambulance Corps

The London Times describes the American ambulance corps, established in the Pasteur Lycee at Neuilly by a committee of Americans, as one of the best equipped and most remarkable war hospitals in Europe.

"Its splendid work is not sufficiently known in England," says The Times. "It deserves all the help that Englishmen can give, and the devotion and kindness of the self-denying American citizens in Paris should send a thrill of gratitude throughout England."

THRILLING BATTLE IN AIR

French Aviator Is Victor In Duel With German Fliers

Official dispatches received by the French war deartment give a graphic account of an aerial duel which was watched by thousands of soldiers of the French and German armies at Jonchery, in the region of Rheims.

A German aeroplane ascended with two men and, after circling over the French positions, was returning to its own lines, when Sergeant Frantz, one of the expert French aviators, accompanied by his mechanic, Quinault, sprang to a machine and gave chase.

By a skilful maneuver, the French aeroplane took the German on the flank and wounded the pilot and put a bullet through the gasolene tank.

A sheet of flame enveloped the German machine and it dropped rapidly, landing close to the French lines. In the descent the unwounded man continued to fire his pistol until prevented by the flames.

Frantz came to earth in a series of magnificent spirals. Both Germans were found burned to death in the embers of their machine.

Frantz was decorated with the Legion of Honor and Quinault was awarded the military medal for their exploit.

BRITISH MINED OWN SHIP

Ardmount Survivors Say Steamer Was Sunk by English Explosives

A dispatch from Ostend says that the survivors from the sunken British steamer Ardmount, on arriving at the Belgian port, declared that their vessel was struck by English mines.

The Ardmount, they say, did not sink until she had struck a third mine. At the first explosion a lifeboat took off the crew of thirty-five

The Ardmount, which was of 2249 tons, left Galveston Sept. 9, arriving at Falmouth Oct. 4. She was then ordered to Antwerp, but soon after sailing ran into a mine field in the North sea and was sunk.

NEW AMERICAN SHIPS

Sixty Have Adopted Old Glory Under Recent Registry Law

Washington, Oct. 8.—Sixty foreign-built vessels with an aggregate of 233,781 gross tons have been removed from danger of capture by the European powers involved in the present war by admission to the American registry, according to an official announcement by the department of commerce.

Great Britain has suffered most, as fifty-four of the vessels previously sailed under the British flag. Four German vessels and two Belgian complete the list.

The steamship Oceana, with a displacement of 7796 gross tons, is the largest of the vessels transferred to American registry, while the schooner Roseway of 291 tons displacement is the smallest.

NO REVIEW THIS YEAR

Atlantic Fleet Will Be Too Busy to Participate In Big Show

Washington, Oct. 8.—There will be no formal review of the Atlantic fleet this year. It was announced that Rear Admiral Fletcher, commander-in-chief, had reported that, in view of the absence of many vessels on Mexican and West Indian duty, it would be impracticable to have a review.

The last formal rendezvous of the fleet was in New York two years ago, and the Philadelphia city council recently urged Secretary Daniels to have the ships gather in the Philadelphia harbor this year.

SODA FOUNTAINS IN BARS

How New Jersey Ice Cream Men Would Promote Temperance

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 8.—John Barleycorn will have a new enemy if the plans of the Pennsylvania Ice Cream Manufacturers do not go awry.

Delegates in convention here, asserting that many beer and whisky drinkers had forsaken the stronger liquid for sodas, seriously proposed that a campaign be instituted to install soda fountains in all first-class bars.

Plans were formulated to enlist the aid of barkeepers in the effervescent raid on rum.

REMOVED FROM OFFICE

Mayor and Sheriff of Butte Guilty of Neglect of Duties

Butte, Mont., Oct. 8.—Sheriff Driscoll and Mayor Duncan were found guilty of neglect of their duties in connection with the recent miners' riots and removed from office by judge Ayers of the district court after a trial which lasted over two weeks.

The court refused to grant a stay of execution of ten days while an appeal to the supreme court was perfected.

Clarence A. Smith, president of the city council, was elected mayor to succeed Duncan.

USES GUN ON SELF

Man Wanted to Answer Murder Charge Commits Suicide

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 8.—The body of Daniel Pisnark, who had been sought by the police as the murderer of Yafran Malnik, was found in the woods at Manville. The man apparently had committed suicide, as a revolver lay near by.

Pisnark rushed into a mill of the Manville company Sept. 16 and, according to the police, shot down Malnik because of the latter's attentions to Pisnark's fiancee.

Cardinal Ferrata Very Ill

Rome, Oct. 8.—The condition of Cardinal Ferrata, papal secretary of state, has assumed a grave turn. He is suffering considerable pain with some fever.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 8.—A world's record of 1.59½ for a third heat in a race was established by Directum I., in the "Tennessee," which he won in straight heats from a small field.

Another Cut In Sugar

New York, Oct. 8.—The Federal Sugar Refining company announces another reduction in refined sugar prices to 6¼ cents a pound.

NO COUNCILMANIC SLATE.

At an informal meeting of the Chester I. Campbell campaign committee Wednesday night it was made plain that the story to the effect that Mr. Campbell was favoring a councilmanic slate in the various wards of the City was without foundation and entirely contrary to the campaign methods of Mr. Campbell. Mr. Campbell was present at the meeting, and emphatically denied that he would support any slate for the council. "My first utterances in this campaign," said Mr. Campbell "were to the effect that there would be no strings attached to me if I was elected. Fostering such a slate would make me politically responsible for the councilmen that I would support. I had no idea of meddling with the contest for councilmen in any ward, nor will I ask anybody's support in favor of any particular councilman."

During the past few days a number of prominent business and representative citizens of Quincy have voluntarily got on the Campbell Band Wagon among them ex-Mayor Charles M. Bryant, Senator Louis F. R. Langelier, and Col. Henry L. Kincaide, they would support him.

"The Campbell campaign is quite different from any that has ever been waged in this city," says Chairman Falconer. "Scores and scores of citizens who realize that it is about time for Quincy's affairs to be run on a strict business basis have announced they would do everything in their power to elect him. Many of these men have never before taken an interest in Quincy politics. There seems to be awakening of men who feel that Mr. Campbell can put Quincy on the map and promote 100 per cent efficiency in the various municipal departments."

Chairman Falconer has issued a call for a meeting of the Campbell Campaign committee for Friday evening at Union hall when the committee will get down to real business and outline the schedule of rallies and speakers.

MILTON.

The annual harvest supper and sale of the Ladies Aid Society of the First Baptist church was held Tuesday evening in the church vestry at East Milton with great success. NEWSPAPER MAN APPOINTED

To Be Deputy Collector Internal Revenue

Leo P. Noonan, a newspaper man of this city has been appointed a deputy collector in the Internal Revenue service and assumed his duties this week. Mr. Noonan is probably one of the best known young men of Quincy.

He graduated from Boston college three years ago and has since followed newspaper work. For a time he was affiliated with the Daily Ledger and later became district correspondent for the Boston American. He was also connected with the Quincy Telegram.

Mr. Noonan has been a familiar figure at Democratic gatherings and two years ago stumped the fourteenth district in the interests of Richard Olney 2nd of Dedham. Last fall he was elected associate county commissioner but was declared ineligible because the law does not permit an associate and a commissioner to live in the same city or town.

Mr. Noonan has been assigned to the third Massachusetts district. The announcement of his appointment was well received in this city.

Collective.

At a regular mass meeting of the Scandinavians in South Minneapolis a few nights since, the pastor having heard that one John Johnson wanted to join the church, said, "Will John Johnson, if present, please stand up?" Nearly all the men present stood up. The bewildered preacher looked around awhile, and then said: "You may sit down, Mr. Johnson, I will call a meeting of you some time next week."

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

The Electrical workers, who defeated the Plumbers in a series of base ball games in the Labor league, were the guests of their vanquished foes in the Johnson building Tuesday evening. The program included an entertainment and collation and presided over by James McKenzie of the winners. During the evening there was singing and dancing by Edward Kilcourse, songs by Timothy O'Meara, buck and wing dancing by Walter Mason, comic songs by Phillip Burns, and Jewish monologues by John Killiprack.

Plans for a smoker to be held in the near future were completed at the meeting of Quincy lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, in Electa hall, Tuesday evening. The affair will be under the direction of the entertainment committee headed by Neil McDonald.

The bowling enthusiasts of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, will meet in the rooms of the council Thursday evening to complete plans for the re-organization of the bowling league. It is planned to have eight teams contest this season. The marks and scores of the teams of last season were on a par with the other leagues of the city. The winning combination will meet the winners of other leagues on the completion of the schedule.

The Woman's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. meets tomorrow afternoon in Association hall, for the opening meeting of the fall season.

Daniel A. Boyd, husband of Margaret Boyd, of 28 Leroy street, Dorchester, who died Tuesday, was a member of St. Francis court, 25, M. C. O. F., of this city.

Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter, D. A. R. has its opening meeting this week Friday afternoon with Mrs. Antoinette S. Paige of Davis street. The date was changed from the usual Monday on account of Columbus day being a holiday.

Flags on City Hall, the school buildings, Grand Army hall and on many stores, private buildings and residences are at half mast today in respect to Mayor Miller.

Rebecca Wiswell tent, Daughters of Veterans, will be given its second inspection since its institution on Friday evening. The affair will take place in Grand Army hall and will be attended by the members of Col. Abner Packard camp, Sons of eVterans and Paul Revere Post, G. A. R. The inspection will be conducted by Miss Agnes G. Barry of South Boston department inspector, and she will be assisted by Mrs. Mabelle H. Gooding of East Weymouth, department aid.

If the plans of two young men of Quincy are carried out, Quincy will have an ice skating rink this winter. This will make it possible for the High school to organize a hockey team. Complete detail and names of the young men will be published at a later date.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fisher Prescott were among the Boston & Albany excursionists to New York. They go to Albany today and down the Hudson on Friday, returning next week.

Quincy herd of Buffalos at its meeting Wednesday evening passed resolutions on the death of Mayor Miller.

City Hall and the fire stations throughout the city were draped in mourning Wednesday afternoon on account of the death of Mayor Miller.

At a meeting of the Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library last evening, out of respect to our late Mayor, it was voted to close Crane Memorial Hall on Friday afternoon from 1 until 6 o'clock. The Branch Reading Rooms will not open on Friday as they are closed Friday evening.

The Henry W. Savage of the real estate agency represented in Quincy by Edmund G. Hayden, is the same man who owns the "Along Came Ruth" company.

The School Committee have accepted an invitation to be the guests of the Massachusetts Fields Parents' Teachers' association at its meeting this evening. The subject of a playground for the school will probably be discussed.

QUINCY WEST

Epworth League is to give an entertainment in the vestry of the Hall Place M. E. church Friday evening. The hit of the evening will be a short sketch entitled "Per Telephone."

Vincent A. Bolger of West Quincy and Miss Genevieve McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. McCarthy of 18 Pleasant street Dorchester were married Wednesday evening.

The ceremony was performed in the rectory of St. Margaret's church by Rev. Fr. Michael Cuddihy. Miss Bessie M. McCarthy, a sister of the bride was her attendant and William T. Foley of Roxbury was best man. Mr. and Mrs. John C. Ballou of West Quincy, the former an uncle of the groom, assisted at the reception following the ceremony.

SERVICES ARE APPRECIATED

Reception to Miss Maude E. Read at Memorial Church

The reception given in honor of Miss Maud E. Read and W. Norton Stetson in Memorial church Wednesday evening, filled the vestry and parlors of the church with those who for years had listened to Miss Read's singing with appreciation.

The ladies' parlor was neatly decorated with lavender and white wistaria with a large wedding bell hung from the center of the room.

The windows and tables were decorated with cut flowers and potted plants from Mr. Dizer's hot house, so that the whole interior was filled with the sugegstion of life.

To avoid the stiffness of the ordinary reception, an entertainment was started at 8 o'clock with a three piece orchestra consisting of Miss Hazel Davison, piano, Miss Edith Abbott, cornet and W. Armstead, violin of Neponset.

After the orchestra selection the large choir sang "Forget me not."

Humorous readings were given by Mrs. George E. Frost of Neponset. Among the readings were "The Wedding" and "Her dream came true" Two solos were sung by Miss Jordine E. Davison, "Sing, sing! birds on the wing" and "Philosophy."

Two duets were sung by Miss Laura Churchill and Mr. John C. Ward. "The Gypsy countess" and "No Sir." Miss Churchill was dressed in Gypsy costume.

After the entertainment Rev. T. W. Davison acting as toastmaster called on Rev. Sampson Nicholls who in the most humorous way spoke of the many marriages he had attended both in England and America.

Deacon Herbert Tucker also spoke for the church expressing his appreciation of the choir and especially the guests of the evening and what the music had meant to the church.

Deacon B. F. Thomas expressed his good wishes and told how Miss Read had given up in the church and had been so faithful and that the large gathering meant an expression of high regard to the guests of the evvening.

Spencer Apollonio who seemed the most familiar said he knew Miss Read when she was too young to known herself. Mr. Apollonio told reminiscences of Harry Read's courtship in Deerfield years ago and said that Mr. Stetson's, after all was not much different. After indulging in the humorous strain he in behalf of the friends present and the music committee of the church presented Miss Read and Mr. Stetson with a beautiful hand painted punch bowl that had been painted by the pastor for the occasion. The gift was a surprise to Miss Read and Mr. Stetson and with some verses written by Mr. Apollonio for the occasion the guests found it hard to find words of expression for their appreciation.

Refreshments were served after the presentation, during which time the orchestra furnished music.

The committee in charge were Mrs. A. H. Hall, Mrs. J. C. Ward, Miss Edith Abbott, Miss Hazel C. Davison, Mr. Spencer Apollonio and Mr. Hargrave Heap. All of the choir acted as ushers.

BIRTHDAY OBSERVED.

A birthday social was tendered to Miss Etta Spargo Wednesday evening at her home 188 Centre street. During the evening there were games of various kinds, music and refreshments, and the evening proved a jolly one with jokes and speeches by Charles Johnson of Buckley street. Miss Spargo was also the recepient of a number of birthday gifts from her friends.

At the whist contest the prizes for the best scores were awarded to Wilbur D. Richardson and Miss Gladys Moorehouse while the consolation prize went to Miss Mary LeCount and Henry Moorehouse.

Among those present were Miss Etta Spargo, Miss Violet Spargo, Mr. and Mrs. Spargo, L. C. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Sunnerberg, Russell Sunnerberg, Wilbur D. Richardson, Charles Johnson, Joseph Spargo, Henry Johnson, Henry Moorehouse, Annie McLean Miss Moyle, Gladys Moorehouse and Mary LeCount.

RATS LIKE TO GNAW TUSKS.

There is a curious but little known fact that well illustrates the ravages that rats can inflict on the hardest substances with their sharp little teeth.

Many of the elephants' tusks imported into London for the use of ivory ornament makers have their surfaces grooved into small furrows of unequal depth, as if cut by a very sharp edged instrument. Surely no man can have taken the trouble to do that, for what would be the profit of his labor?

The rats are at the bottom of the mischief. They have found out the tusks that contain the most gelatin or animal glue, a sweet and delicious morsel for the rat's dainty palate, and having gnawed away as much as suited their purpose, have left the rest for the ivory cutter. He, for his part, is able and willing to profit by the fact that the rats have made clear.

The ivory that contains a large amount of gelatin is softer and more elastic than that which does not, and as elasticity is the thing most needed for billiard balls the ivory worker chooses this rat marked ivory and turns it into beautiful, elastic billiard balls. The elasticity of some of the balls is so great that if thrown down forcibly on a hard pavement they will rebound into the hand to the height of three or four feet.—Exchange.

WHERE RAIN IS A NOVELTY.

Think of Having a Shower Only Once In Twenty-four Years!

The Chilean provinces of Atacama, Tarapaca and Tacna are in the rainless region, or desert country west of the Andes, and are entirely devoid of vegetation. The winds in all of this region are from the east and in passing over the elevated perpetual snows of the Andes are stripped of their moisure and arrive on the coast perfectly dry.

The last rain, a slight shower which fell in Antofagasta, in Atacama province, was the first rain which had fallen in sixteen years. The last rain which fell in Iquique, in Tarapaca province, was the first in twenty-four years. With both of these showers a notable phenomenon occurred. The bare hills back of these cities assumed a green tint from a little plant which sprang up almost in a night. The query is, "From where did this plant come?"

The whole of the coast presents a most dismal and discouraging appearance from the sea, but the climate is healthy, being especially adapted to pulmonary and throat troubles from its extreme dryness and freedom from germs. The heat is modfied by a local sea breeze, and the sea bathing is most invigorating, as the water is cold.

QUINCY POINT

Many Quincy Point residents are somewhat concerned over the improbability of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation getting a contract for one of the three new battleships. Workmen are preparing to leave the vicinity. Many feel that although the bid of the plant was high the Navy department will turn over a contract to the Quincy firm.

WARRANTS ISSUED

Warrants were issued at the District court this morning for the parties said to be implicated in the shooting of Leslie Rowe, a 17 year old Quincy Point boy who is in a critical condition at the Quincy City hospital and the Weymouth police expect to make the arrests today.

The shooting which took place in Weymouth, Friday night was shrouded in mystery until the police investigation uncovered evidence strong enough to make the complaints necessary to take the principals into custody.

The warrants charge assault with a dangerous weapon, a serious charge in view of the condition of the boy.

As far as can be learned Rowe and three companions were walking along the street after taking fruit from a Weymouth orchard when a man and woman appeared. One of the couple fired five shots from a rifle. Rowe was struck in the back and is on the dangerous list. One bullet hit the heel of the shoe of James Kelly and the other three went wild.

EFFICIENCY EXPERT

and other lines. Can you conceive of a more unbusinesslike condition of affairs?

I do not pretend to be qualified to suggest the remedy for this unfortunate condition of our city affairs

From experience, I know what a business concern would do if it found itself in our condition. It would promptly obtain the best EFFICENCY EXPERT available for advice. The expert would study existing conditions in the business, and compare the same with those of other concerns operating on similar lines successfully. To secure this expert would cost money.

I am a native of Quincy. I believe in it and its future. With its natural advantages as a residential, manufacturing and commercial city is can be in prosperous condition.

I believe the time has come for our citizens to rouse themselves and endeavor to solve the problem of how best to govern and manage our municipality.

LET US secure the services of some qualified EFFICIENCY EXPERT OR ENGINEER, who will study local conditions and those of other cities, operating under commission form or otherwise, and make such recommendations as he may think the case requires. Nothing can be accomplished until a sufficient amount of money is pledged to pay for these services.

I know the City cannot afford to pay for such services but its taxpayers can.

I am ready to bear my share, no matter how much it may be.

I have deposited with this letter my certified check payable to the order of the Editor of the Daily Ledger, for $250.00, to be held until a sufficient sum has been subscribed for the above purpose. It will probably cost from $5,000 to $10,000 to do the work. I invite every citizen who can, to subscribe to such a movement and send his name and the amount of his subscription to the Editor of the Daily Ledger. As soon as $5000 has been subscribed, a meeting of subscribers will be held and proper steps taken to carry the plan into execution. If there is no occasion for using all the money subscribed, the balance will be given to the Board of Trade, or otherwise disposed of as the subscribers may decide.

BELIEVER IN QUINCY

The editor of the Daily Ledger feels that every man (and some of the women), who attended "Along Came Ruth" at Kincaide's Theatre this week, will want to co-operate with "Believer in Quincy" in the meritorious work which he has inaugurated.

That is real BOOSTING for QUINCY, and the time is now ripe to "accomplish whatever may be the aim."

We are firmly of the opinion that "Believer in Quincy" has struck the keynote. Quincy needs a more efficient City government.

He has also told us how to obtain it. The move is in the right direction, and should not lack for funds.

The editor regrets that he is not to be in Quincy the next few days, to assist in this BOOST. He left early this morning with Mrs. Prescott on an excursion to New York via Albany and the Hudson, feeling the need of a few days' recreation after a strenuous week but he believes he can depend on the 'Quincy Ruth" and President Hamilton of the Board of Trade, also Secretary Hall and the Board of Directors, to push along the good work.

He hopes for good reports when he returns Tuesday morning of generous donations to the cause from prominent citizens, business firms, corporations, and others. Don't wait this time until the tickets are all sold. How much will you add to this list? Make checks payable to Frank F. Prescott.

REPUBLICAN CITY COMMITTEE

To Remain Neutral on Mayoralty Candidate Until After Caucuses

Plans Made for Grand Rally to be Held Later in the Month

A red hot meeting of the Republican City Committee was held Thursday evening. The meeting was well attended and there was some plain talk in relation to matters in general before the meeting was adjourned.

Harry Howard the Republican candidate for Congressman from the Fourteenth district was present as was also Guy A. Ham, the Republican candidate for Councillor from the Second district. Both of these gentlemen spoke briefly. Mr. Howard spoke especially of Commodore Frank F. Crane. Mr. Crane he said had conducted an honorable campaign and as soon as it was announced who had receive the nomination he had written him extending his congratulations. Mr. Howard also said that Mr. Crane had been of great help to him and that he was doing what he could to further his election.

During the evening it was arranged to hold a grand Republican rally at Music hall the latter part of the month, although the exact date could not be announced at the present time. Prominent speakers would be present at this rally including one of the western senators who are now campaigning in Massachusetts.

Louis F. R. Langelier, candidate for Senator took occasion to deny most emphatically the statement sent out to the press Thursday by the Campbell press bureau that he had voluntarily got onto the Campbell band wagon. This statement was absolutely false and had been made without his authority.

Several speakers took occasion at the same time to criticise some other statements put out by this same publicity bureau.

This brought about a discussion of municipal affairs. Charles H. Johnson who was present announced that he had been in conference with the managers of Mr. Tilden in reference to his withdrawing from the caucuses. He stated however that he was the first in the field and he did not see why he should withdraw at this time. He was willing to abide by the result of the caucuses. It had been stated to him that if he withdrew his supporters would go over to Mr. Tilden but there was no assurance of that fact.

The committee then went into the record of Messrs Tilden, Campbell and Bates all of whom were seeking the Republican nomination.

Mr. Tilden, it was announced, was a enrolled Republican and was entitled to the support of the Republicans.

Mr. Campbell was shown by the enrollment the committee had to be an enrolled Progressive, who was seeking the support of the Republicans. As for Mr. Bates no one knew just how he was enrolled.

As there were two recognized Republicans seeking the nomination for Mayor the committee voted that it should give its unqualified support to the party candidate who should receive the nomination at the caucus. If a member of the committee was not will ing to support the party candidate he should resign form the committee and it was stated that the rules of the committee in this respect would be strictly enforced this year.

BREAKING UP GANG SPIRIT

Sentence Now Hanging Over Leaders of Gang

Wendell Nason of 19 Old Colony avenue and Ralph Faulkner of 1 Woodbine street were pronounced delinquents by Judge Avery in the juvenile court Thursday afternoon and sentenced to the Industrial school for boys at Shirley, sentence was suspended for one year.

The boys were charged by Judge Avery to earn money and make restitution for all money taken, keep away from moving picture shows, to keep away from each other and from the other boys in the gang, and to report to the probation officer once every two weeks. Judge Avery told the parents as to their duties and also the neighbors in court whose homes had been broken into and goods taken, that they also must report to the Probation officer if they saw the boys together, with any of the other gang or in any way misbehaving themselves.

Judge Avery said the gang spirit must be broken up.

These lads were brought to Quincy Sept. 28 by Chief Burrell from Bangor, Me., where they were charged with breaking, entering and larceny the same day they reached that city. Nearly a dozen houses have been broken into in Wollaston this summer and fall and now with sentence hanging over the ring leader of the gang it is hoped that Judge Avery has put a stop to this kind of work.

☞Much comment has been heard of the window display by the Grossman Clothes Shop in the new Kincaide Block. The display is a showing of turned maple branches and leaves with neckwear of the maple leaf shades. The bottom of the window is covered with grass, making the display appear as if it was some corner of the woods with a showing of neckwear. There is a single attractive card which reads "We do not intend to let the grass grow under our feet," which shows the progressiveness of the concern and that nothing will be left undone.

COUNCIL ADOPT RESOLUTIONS

To Attend Funeral of Mayor Miller in Body

A special meeting of the City Council was held Thursday evening having been called by Acting Mayor Joseph L. Whiton to take action on the death of Mayor John L. Miller.

Immediately after reading the call Councilman Ross offered the following resolution which was adopted by a rising vote.

Resolved: That it is with the deepest regret that the City Council learns of the death of our honored Mayor and fellow citizen, John L. Miller. Words fail us at this time to express to his family our deep feelings of sorrow and sympathy in this the hour of their great bereavement.

The firmness and integrity with which he performed the duties of this high office made for him many fast and firm friends, and by his death the City of Quincy loses a faithful servant and an honest administrator. And be it further

Resolved:

That a copy of these resolutions be spread at large upon the records of the City Council and that the Clerk of the Council be directed to forward a copy to his immediate family, with our deepest sympathy for their great loss.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

President Whiton announced that he had called upon the family to learn their wishes. Nothing had been said about the City Council escorting the body to the grave. However he hoped that all of the members of the council would attend and if it was the wish of the family, that they march to the grave. He also announced that City Hall would be closed today, Friday, after 12 o'clock noon and that a special car would leave in front of City Hall at 2.10 for the city officials and members of the council.

NEW OFFICERS.

REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE

A second meeting of those interested in the formation of a real estate exchange, to be known as the Southeastern Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange was held Thursday evening at the office of Swithin & Merrill. There were about 25 present representing two cities and 15 towns. Thomas Swithin presided and John O. Hall was the secretary.

The meeting was to formulate plans for the organization and to outline the necessary by laws. There was a great deal of enthusiasm shown and the organization promises to be a live one.

It was decided that the meeting for permanent organization should be held in Brockton on Thursday evening Oct. 22.

COSTUME PARTY ALPHA HALL

The members of English Ivy lodge Order of Daughters of St. George held its annual costume party in Alpha hall, Thursday evening. There was a large attendance and most of the guests remained until after midnight.

Every variety of costume was represented in the gathering and one of the pleasantest features was the presence of eight dairy maids who led the grand march and left before the unmasking keeping their identity secret.

Miss Emily Moyle as "Columbia" and Robert King as a clown were awarded the prizes. The judges were William Dunston, Mrs Jackson Marvin and H. J. Rendle. Music was furnished during the party by the Hamilton orchestra. Refreshments were served in Union hall by Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Marvin.

The committee in charge was Miss Lena Allen, Mrs. Beatrice Hunter, Miss Elizabeth Wallace, Mrs. James King, Miss Emily Moyle, Miss Lillian Hollingshead, Mrs. Lottie Vanner.

☞Coughlin & Donovan's prices on meats, fruit and groceries are hard to beat. Fresh food, cleanliness and quality, is their motto. They have a very interesting ad in todays Ledger.

☞Have you ordered your Sunday dinner? No I am waiting for the Ledger to come to see what R. E. Foy & Co., are advertising. They always have a timely reminder.

FUNERAL OF MAYOR MILLER

Business in General Suspended Throughout City

The city is in mourning today on account of the funeral of Mayor John L. Miller which took place this afternoon at 2.30 from his late home on Franklin street.

As a mark of respect to Mayor Miller all business was generally suspended throughout the city. City Hall was closed at 12 o'clock noon for the remainder of the day. The public schools of the city also closed at noon for the remainder of the day and during the hours of the funeral business at all of the stores was suspended and curtains were drawn.

In the granite district in which Mr. Miller labored for so many years, business was also suspended for the afternoon, a request to that effect having been made by the Granite Manufacturers association.

The members of the City Council, and the city officials headed by Acting Mayor Joseph L. Whiton attended the services in a body, leaving City Square on a special car at 2.10.

While it was not definitely certain this morning it is more than probable that the members of the City Council will do escort duty. A delegation from the police and fire departments will also do escort duty. The services were conducted by Rev. Joseph Walther of the Wollaston Baptist church and the burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

CELEBRATES 76th BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Frank Gardiner Is Remembered by Friends

Mrs. Frank Gardiner of Atlantic celebrated her 76th birthday anniversary Thursday by giving an at home to 56 relatives and friends. Guests were present from New York, New Jersey, Newton, Stoneham, Woburn, Jamaica Plain, Roslindale Winthrop, Dorchester, Somerville and Quincy.

The parlor where Mrs. Gardiner received was decorated with potted palms and a magnificent bunch of 76 red roses the gift of an old neighbor and friend.

Mrs. Gardiner received many pretty gifts including gold and silver and a substantial gift from her brother A. P. Greenleaf of Southport, Maine.

The color scheme of the decorations was red, the table being decorated with candelabra and souvenir de Gustave dahlias. The centre piece was a handsomely decorated birthday cake, a gift from a very dear friend. A collation was served consisting of ices, fruit punch and other dainties.

Music was rendered by Mrs. Gardiner's nephews, Ralph Greenleaf and Kenneth Wiley.

Mrs. Gardiner was Casilda Greenleaf a Greenleaf of the family of John Greenleaf Whittier, and also connected with the Quincy Greenleafs and the wife of Dr. Woodward, founder of the institute in Quincy which bears his name.

It is pretty tough to stick to your desk this nice fall weather, when you might be in the woods bagging a guide or a hunter.

On Saturday the colleges play football, and on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday they talk about the game.

After drawing all their money out of the banks and putting it into safe deposit vaults, people wonder why the rest of the country doesn't recover confidence sooner.

The modern untrained hired girl makes more work for the women, but having a servant improves one's social standing.

As usual, during the fall, new triumphs in the writing of fiction are achieved by the people who compose the political platforms.

Inducements for marriage offered in Europe. The kings must have plenty of men to shoot at.

Some people seem to think that the side that wins in war is thereby proved to be right. Not always. Jack Johnson might be able to lick a dozen ministers of the gospel.

SUPPLY OF TEACHERS.

A number of teachers' employment agencies have reported, since the fall terms of school began, that the supply of teachers is much greater than the demand. To a certain extent, this has always been the case, but there has never been an over-supply of thoroughly trained teachers. There always have been a great many girls who imagined they could teach without professional training.

Man complaints are made about low wages paid teachers. The conditions just referred to will make this worse than ever. Of course, because of business depression, stenographers and others out of work are trying to bridge over the gap just now by teaching. But the under-payment of teachers will be a factor after the business depression passes.

Many sweet and well-meaning girls have been trying to teach without the enthusiasm and originality that the work calls for. They stand the children up in rows and hear them recite, but they neither lead nor inspire As dressmakers, milliners, gardeners, or even farmers, they would be more effective. At housework they could turn out luscious pie and nutritive bread, and would be a blessing to the world.

Moreover, at housework, they would earn $4 to $6 a week the year around, plus board. At teaching, they make $10 a week for 38 to 40 weeks, paying $7 for board. It simply isn't a business proposition.

The reports from these agencies, and the unsatisfactory returns of teaching, point ambitious young women to just one remedy. That is to cut down the supply until the demand catches up to it. When there comes to be a little shortage of good teachers school boards and superintendents will be forced to pay what the work is worth, and towns and cities will have to foot the bill.

BELIEVER IN QUINCY.

No one who reads the letter of "Believer In Quincy" can fail to agree with every word of the communication. It is full of straight commonsense and should receive the careful consideration of taxpayers, men or women, and also of every resident of the city who is interested in his home, his neighborhood and his city.

That a change is needed in the conduct of the City is evident to even the most casual observer, but just what change, and how to go at it is the problem. But no problem is without solution and this is the task to be first undertaken. Running a city should be on business principles same as any commercial business.

Recently Providence, R. I., the most up-to-date city of its size in New England, solved its lighting problem by hiring an expert who looked the city over thoroughly street byu street elim inated lights here and there and pu tin new ones in dark places. The result is that Providence is the best lighted city of its size in the country surpassing Boston and New York in the thoroughness of its lighting and the beauty of it is that it is at much less expense per capita than by the old system.

Our point is that what was accomplished in Providence can be worked out in every department of a city, whether that city be Quincy or Providence. It is only necessary to get together a body of men same as the Quincy Booster Club and all work together in solving how.

The best way to go at it is to create a fund, then get together and get the best advice possible for the money. And any one dissastisfied with existing conditions should not only be willing but glad to contribute toward a fund to be used for this purpose. Whose will be the next name on the list of contributors? Even small amounts will help swell the total.

MR. SAVAGE A BOOSTER

Only a few are aware that Savage, the real estate man, and Henry W Savage, producer of "Along Came Ruth," are one and the same. He is a Quincy Booster, for it is through him more than 150 families a year locate in Quincy. Families from the west who decide to move east go to a real estate man for advice on homes and locations. Mr. Savage realizing that Malden, Somerville, Melrose and other towns in greater Boston are no more desirable for a home than Quincy sends them to his Quincy office. As Mr. Hayden, Mr. Savage's representative puts it, families have come to him whose furniture arrives on the next train. Some 150 families a year is the average number he locates. Mr. Savage and his Quincy representative are certainly in line on the Boost Quincy movement.

FORCE FIGHT IN OPEN COUNTRY

Russians on Ground More Favorable to Their Cause

BOMBARDMENT OF PRZEMYSL

Many Houses In Austrian Stronghold Reported Destroyed by Russian Guns—Germans In Strong Position on East Prussian Frontier, Where Fighting Continues With Violence

Petrograd, Oct. 9.—An official explanation of the withdrawal of the Russians in Galicia from the line of the river Donajec was issued here. It was stated that the combined Austro-German army occupied a strongly intrenched line extending from Kielce, in Rusisan Poland, south through Sergucin, Tarnow, to New Sandec.

The Russian advance guard felt out this position and discovered it was so strong that to take it by frontal assaults would result in frightful losses to the attacking army. In consequence the Russians withdrew in order to force the Austrians to accept battle in the open country.

The ruse was successful, it is stated, and a new battle is now in progress along lines far more favorable to the Russians. The fighting is declared to be particularly severe in the vicinity of the Vistula river just to the north of Serguein.

Meanwhile the bombardment of Przemysl by the heavy Russian artillery continues. Great breaches are apparent in the walls of the fortifications, while the Russian airmen who have flown over the city report that many houses have been destroyed by fire and that they saw numerous dead lying unburied in the streets.

The Austrian garrison attempted a sortie, but the aerial scouts had reported that troops were being massed for that purpose and the Russians were in readiness. They annihilated the front columns by a fire from machine guns that had been masked on both sides of the southern gate, through which the garrison tried to emerge.

The fighting continues with the utmost violence on the East Prussian frontier, where the Germans occupy strong positions in the Tcherneganja region. They have uncovered here, it is stated, a series of hidden redoubts which are a part of their first defense line, and in which are mounted heavy guns.

The entire battle line is of great strategic advantage, because of the marshy nature of the land and the many small lakes and streams that about there. In consequence the Russian advance is of necessity very slow. The entire Russian lines are again being heavily reinforced and additional regiments of artillery are being rushed to the front.

In making answer to the statement from Vienna that the Russians have been completely driven out of Hungary, Russian authorities state that the Russian forces now occupy the entire province of Bukowina, seven-eights of Galicia and one-fifth of Hungary; all the passes in the Carpathian mountains and the Hungarian towns of Ungvar, Munkacs and Sziget.

LORIMER INDICTED

Alleged Misapplication of Bank Funds by Unseated Senator

Chicago, Oct. 9.—William Lorimer, voted out of the United States senate after an investigation on the ground that he had not been legally elected, was indicted in the federal court on a charge of misapplication of the funds of the LaSalle Street National bank, the forerunner of the defunct LaSalle Street Trust and Savings bank. Lorimer was president of both institutions.

The indictment also names Joseph P. Gallagher, with whom he had been associated in the contracting firm of Lorimer and Gallagher, as a co-defendant charged with aiding and abetting the alleged misapplication of the funds.

"PURE CUSSEDNESS"

Mellen Thus Characterizes Suit Brought by New Haven Road

New York, Oct. 9.—"It's the pure cussedness of those who instituted the suit," declared Charles S. Mellen, ex-president of the New Haven, in his comment upon the action of that road in bringing suit against John L. Billard and the directors of the Billard company to recover $3,828,147, Mellen also being involved.

Mellen said Billard was not a dummy for the New Haven. On the other hand, the latter acted in good faith and took all the risk involved in the transaction, he said.

BENEDICT XV. IS A BORN DIPLOMAT

Selection Due Largely to That Fact and His Age.

ASTUTE, CALM, CAUTIOUS.

"Chosen Because He Was Recognized as Safe Leader For Church When All Europe Was In Arms"—Is of an Engaging Personality—Combines Characteristics of Last Two Pontiffs.

Pope Benedict XV. is the two hundred and sixtieth occupant of the chair of St. Peter. Like most of his predecessors he is an Italian. Of fifty-seven popes since 1378 only four have been foreigners. There were one Greek, two Spaniards and one Dutchman.

As Benedict XV., if fate deals as kindly with him as his predecessors, the new pope is apt to occupy the throne for many years. He was fifty-nine years of age Nov. 21 last. Pius X. was sixty-eight at his election, and his pontificate lasted eleven years. Leo XIII. was the same age, and he reigned twenty-five years. Gregory XIV., who preceded Pius IX., was sixty-five years of age when elected, and he reigned sixteen years. The youngest man to be chosen pontiff in the last three quarters of a century was Pius IX. He was only fifty-four, and his pontificate covered thirty-two years.

It is believed that the age of the new pope had considerable to do with his choice at the present time. It was deemed wise to have a pontiff not weighted down with years or infirmity. Also it was realized that Cardinal della Chiesa was well versed in all the diplomacy of the Vatican, an especially important consideration now, with half the world at war.

Choice of Name Indicates Policy.

"If we can judge," says the Rev. John J. Wynne, S. J., editor of the Catholic Encyclopedia, "of the intention of the new pope by the choice of his name, Benedict XV., he will combine very happily in his administration the characteristics of the last two pontiffs, Leo and Pius, the former distinguished for his temporal policies, the latter for his spiritual.

"Benedict XIV. was famous as a canonist, and a canonist is needed now to bring to completion the great work begun by Pius X. of codifying and adapting the laws of the church to its modern conditions. The last Benedict was also a great liturgist and perhaps the most successful of all the popes in conciliating the eastern churches. It is very likely, therefore, that Benedict XV. will insist on the liturgical reforms, particularly in church music, established by Pius X., and there is no doubt that he will imitate the late pontiff in attempting to bring about the unity of churches of the east and of the west."

A man of diplomacy, a cool, level headed leader, a man of even temper who can face a tremendous emergency dispassionately, a man of the school of Cardinal Rampolla, with a keen reverence for all the traditions of the Vatican—that is the impression Pope Benedict XV. made upon an American who had a chance several years ago to meet and to know the man who is now head of the Roman Catholic church.

It was in 1907, when he was then Mgr. della Chiesa, holding a minor post in the Vatican, that the present pontiff was in a position to meet men from foreign lands. One of these men was Amasa Thornton, a New York lawyer.

Regarded as Safe Leader.

"The present pope," says Mr. Thornton, "never lost his head and was never angry. He was one of the kindest hearted men I ever met.

"I think that he was chosen not because he was a builder or a constructive genius, but because he was recognized as a safe leader for the church when all Europe was in arms. At another time I believe he would not have been considered.

"The new pontiff has a most engaging personality. He convinces one at once of his earnestness. He is familiar with important issues. He is quick to grasp and quick to act. He is courteous and at the same time guarded in his response.

"Pope Benedict is a strong believer in everything American."

MELTING POT FOR GERMANY.

Wedding Rings and Keepsakes to Relieve Distress In the Fatherland.

Hundreds of wedding rings, bracelets, baby pins, earrings and keepsakes of all sorts of gold or silver have poured into the "melting pot" of the German Historical Society of the State of New York from patriotic Germans The metal will be converted into money and sent to the fatherland for the relief of soldiers' families.

One woman, who said she was a widow, entered, accompanied by her five small children. She took off her wedding ring and placed it on the table with the other contributions, saying that it was the only remembrance of her late husband.

Charles Stolberg, a veteran of the Franco-Prussian war, gave a heavy gold watch to the fund. He said that it had been presented to him by his superior officers after the battle of Sedan, when he captured a French standard.

MORE TROUBLE OVER STICKERS

Senator Langelier Seeking Progressive Endorsement

Senator Louis F. R. Langelier of Quincy representing himself; Herbert O. Cassidy and Edwin P. Reed of Quincy both representing George W. Baker, Progressive candidate for senator from the First Norfolk Senatorial district, were before the Ballot Law Commission at the state house Thursday afternoon on the petition of Senator Langelier for a ruling as to the nominee of the Progressive party at the state primaries Sept. 22, in the First Norfolk Senatorial District.

On the face of the returns Mr. Baker has 18 votes and appears to be nominated. Senator Langelier has 12 votes and Charles L. Prosser, Democrat has 11 votes.

As Senator Langelier stated to the Commission there were some 23 votes cast for him in the precincts of Hyde Park, now Ward 26 of Boston, which were not counted as for him by the precinct officers under the new primary law which requires that the address shall be given with the name of each candidate written in upon a ballot or attached by stickers. Mr. Langelier contended that the will of the voter was not to be thwarted by reason of a technicality; neither did he wish to lose this nomination on a technicality. He said that his name is a peculiar one, that as a matter of fact there is but one other person in the whole commonwealth bearing the name of Langelier and he is his brother Henry. But regardless of that he contended that whether he should be declared entitled to the nomination or not that the issue should be decided on the will of the people. As a matter of fact he said, he ran on printed stickers bearing the name and post office address, so that it appeared evident that the returns of the precinct officers giving so many progressive votes for "Langelier" for senator were not properly made and the error was on their part and not on his own. He should not suffer and the people should not suffer because of the error or neglect of a precinct officer.

Messrs. Cassidy and Reed both stated that if these votes which were not counted for Langelier were found to bear the proper identification as required by the direct primary act of this year, they would not object, but they certainly should object to the counting of any votes bearing simply the name "Langelier" without giving the residence of the candidate.

It was decided by the Commission that they would confer with the Election Commission of Boston as to the Progressive vote cast in Ward 26 at the Primary of Sept. 22 and that they would adjourn this hearing to 2 o'clock today.

THAT TIRED FEELING

Suggests Grandmother's Remedy.

It's true, the season is here with its sudden changes, and the old idea that we need a blood medicine is not without reason. Too much heavy food has caused a torpid liver, sluggish blood, and a weak, tired out feeling.

Sulphur, cream of tartar and molasses was grandmother's remedy but that has long ago been displaced by Vinol, a combination of the two most world famed tonics, namely, the medicinal curative elements of the cod's liver, without oil, and iron for the blood.

Vinol builds you up, makes you eat more and digest better, makes your blood rich and pure—puts healthy color in your cheeks.

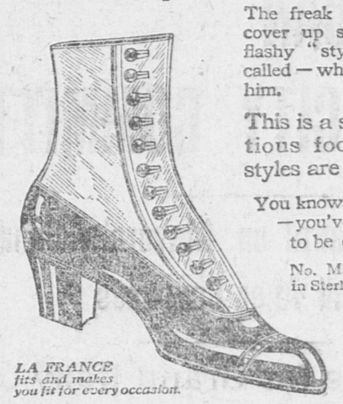

N. G. Clift of Opelika, Ala., says: "Last spring I was all run-down, no strength, no appetite. I took Vinol and was greatly benefited by its use, as I soon felt strong and well as ever."

We guarantee Vinol to satisfy you and refund your money if it does not.

WILBUR THEATRE.

William Hodge is in the fifth week of his big success at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, where "The Road to Happiness" is being travelled every night by a host of playgoers, who find that the play sends them away feeling better and life looking brighter. The Wednesday matinee is a popular one and on Monday, there will be a special Columbus Day matinee.

Some of the sentiments expressed by Jim Whitman, village youth and optimist, the new character impersonated by Hodge in this piece, bear the same element of homely thought as did the sayings of Daniel Voorhees Pike, the role Mr. Hodge made famous in "The Man from Home." "You can't fight trouble with tears; tears help trouble as water helps flowers," says Jim. "The only way to whip trouble is to smile at it, and if you can't sing, whistle. If you weep, your heart aches, and if you smile it dances." The title of the play comes from the lines expressed by Mr. Hodge as the young optimist: "Courage and honesty and truth—these form the road to happiness. If you have not courage, borrow it." At one time in the play when Jim Whitman complains that his girl throws him over every time her pa coughs, he says: "An' then I have to recite Riley to yer fer an hour and propose all over again," and that reminds you that the play is made something after Riley's recipe.

SHUBERT THEATRE.

With all its tuneful melodies, refreshing gales of laughter, scenic splendor and gorgeous costuming, "The Whirl of the World" at the Shubert Theatre has become a red-letter event on Boston's busy amusement calendar. One of the chief reasons for the success of the big Winter Garden show, aside from the magnificent stage pictures and colorful costuming, is the wide variety of musical ensembles and song numbers that are presented: Dreamy waltzes, lively one steps, the Brazilian Maxixe, tantalizing tangos, modern ballads and whirling eccentric dance tunes, all blend into a carefully arranged melange that pleases from start to finish. In "The Whirl of the World," Eugene and Willie Howard return in triumph to the scene of their success in "The Passing Show of 1912." Eugene's mellow baritone is more resonant and delightful than ever while Willie's laughmaking proclivities have been heightened to a degree. Their "Grand Opera" burlesque is a clever bit of travesty. Mlle. Chapon, the prima donna from the Opera Comique, Paris, is a dainty bit of femininity and has proven herself a musical comedy favorite of the twenty-four karat standard. She is a sort of composite of Fritzi Scheff and Emma Trentini.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

With the Craig Players in "Widow by Proxy" and Miss Mary Young, as the high spirited young music teacher who puts on weeds for a date, Castle Square Theatre this week has been giving one of the most uproariously funny farces ever seen on its boards to large and delighted audiences. Next week "Graustark," George Barr McCutcheon's romantic drama, is to be the attraction. Graustark is said to hold the record among modern plays for theatre filling powers and it is said that during one period of a year it was played at forty different theatres. The reason for its popularity is easy to see. The story of Princess Yetive—brought up all her life in Courts and taught to regard commoners as the ground beneath her feet—and of Grenfall Lorry, her brave and breezy young American lover, is one that gains all hearts. Love and political intrigue are sure winners when mixed as skillfully as Mr. McCutcheon knows how. The part of Princess Yetive will be played by Miss Mary Young. William Carleton will be the resourceful lover and Al Roberts will take the part of Litsky, the smart American bell-hop. The large cast for this production will include all the Castle Square favorites, old and new.

BOSTON THEATRE.

The enthusiastic reception accorded the oepning of the grand opera season at the Boston Theatre Monday evening by both press and public dispelled every element of skepticism that may have been entertained by those who questioned that high class grand opera could be produced at a popular scale. Never in the history of the historic Boston Theatre did a more brilliant gathering of opera livers display such profound enthusiasm. From the rise to the drop of the curtain the performance was frequently interrupted by enthusiastic applause. Long before the end of the performance it was evident that the opera season which is scheduled for a period of twelve weeks will prove highly successful both artistically and financially. An excellent repertoire has been arranged for next week with special matinee on Columbus Day, when that supreme favorite "Trovatore," will be sung with Kathryn Lynbrook as Leonora, Blanche Hamilton Fox as Azucena, Luigi Mainiero as Manrico and Pietro Gallazzi as Count di Luna. Monday evening "Otello" will be offered with Mmes. Kristoffy and Renis and the Mm. Corradetti, Tricario and di Biasi and repeated at Wednesday matinee. Tuesday and Friday evenings, "Rigoletto" will be the offering with Miriam Ardini as Gilda. Wednesday evening and Saturday matinee the first double bill will be presented in "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" with Blanche Hamilton Fox, Cara Sapin, Pietro Gallazzi and Umberto Sacchetti as the principal artists in the first mentioned and Dora de Philippe, David Silva, Guglielmo Giuliani, Millo Picco and Giuseppe Opezzo as the leading artists For Thursday and Saturday evenings "The Barber of Seville" will be sung.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Woman's love of luxury and personal adornment and the craze for vulgar display and outdoing one's neighbors form the foundation upon which is built "To-Day," the vital and vivid drama of New York life of George Broadhurst and Abraham Schomer, which will open its engagement at the Majestic Theatre Columbus Day with a special matinee performance.

"To-Day" has to do with the fortunes and misfortunes of a young married couple after the husband has suddenly been stripped of his possessions by business reverses. The wife's failure, or inability, to adapt herself to their reduced circumstances results in the developing of a story that is best described as an intensely human document as true as it is human, and one which commanded the attention and aroused the interest of hundreds of thousands of theatregoers during the long engagement on Broadway.

The company which Manager Harry Von Tilzer has selected is one of superb strength including a trio of stars in Edmund Breese, Marie Wainwright, and Madame Mathilde Gettrelly. Ethel Valentine, the young western actress who became a leading lady on Broadway over night. Teresa Maxwell Conover and Bernard Reinold are among the members of the company whose attainments have attracted attention and admiration.

"To-Day" comes here enjoying the enviable distinction of having been the drama longest on the boards in New York during the theatrical year 1913-14. It is not a white slave play, nor is it a "redlight" drama, but it does discuss graphically and dramatically the feminine desire for finery and its acquisition, and discloses in no uncertain way the dangers attendant thereto.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

No better example of remarkable stage-craft and ingeniuty of construction has been demonstrated than in "Wanted $22,000," the new Cohan and Harris piece, which with the Columbus day matinee, begins its second week at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston. The producers chose to describe it as an unusual play. This sentence but mildly expounds its unique and novel idea. Not in a great many years has Boston witnessed such a remarkable play. Every class of theatregoer will find genuine pleasure in witnessing it. Whether it be the lover of tragedy, comedy, farce or drama their appetite is sure to be whetted for all these elements have been cleverly fused into one. To quote the Boston Journal: "One moment the audience is on the verge of tears at the tragedy about to be enacted. The next instant they are screaming with laughter. Comedy-tragedy, or tragic-comedy—whatever it appears from one moment to another—it is the cleverest, snappiest, most fascinating play imaginable. The story represents a play within a play. The unusual plot concerns the difficulty of James Howard, bank president, who has embezzled $20,000 to accommodate a friend, and who has likewise borrowed $2000 from the paying teller. Faced with discovery he is in despair. Only his son, a youth of literary tastes and much charm, is aware of the situaiton. He undertakes to save his father aided by a young girl with literary ability. The manner in which both set about accomplishing their aim offers a series of the most brilliantly amusing situations ever produced on the modern stage.

MASS. FIELDS ASSOCIATION

Plans for Addition to Building Are Discussed

Although an invitation was extended to the School committee to attend the meeting of the Masachusetts Fields Parents-Teachers association Thursday evening Chairman Mackay was the only member who accepted, although Supt. Barbour was present.

The question of two sessions for the first grade pupils as well as supervised playgrounds was considered and it was voted to give the new teachers a reception at the next meeting.

A plan for a proposed addition to the school building was discussed at length. Chairman Mackay in his brief remarks said that his committee had only advisory powers until a building was dedicated and up to that time the needs of the district should be forcibly impressed on the council.

Supt. Barbour said a possible solution to the overflow of the High school might be the teaching of High school subjects in the two upper grades of the grammar school. He was particularly careful not to commit himself as to any plan for an addition to the building.

WINS SHADE TREE CONTEST

The town of Scituate has won the tree contest offered by the Massachusetts Forestry association and as a result the association will plant a mile of shade trees in the town. There were 58 towns in the contest of which 54 carried it through to the conclusion. The prize was to go to the city or town which planted the most shade trees during the summer, in proportion to its population. Scituate had set out 727 shade trees and Marshfield, which was third in the contest 505.

WOMENS MOOSE IS DISBANDED

The members of Women's Loyal Moose Circle 62 of this city, at its meeting in Electa hall on Thursday evening voted to disband. The circle was instituted over a year ago and has constantly gained in membership. From a social standpoint it was one of the most acceptable in the city. The action is the direct result of a controversy between the circles and national headquarters. The members in good standing still retain their membership.

THE 1914 STATE ASSESSMENTS

Quincy's Share for Metropolitan Improvements

State Treasurer Frederick W. Mansfield Thursday issued his report containing the 1914 assessments on the various cities and towns of the Metropolitan District for the support of the metropolitan parks and boulevards, the Metropolitan North Sewer, the Charles River basin and the Metropolitan Water District.

The report prescribes the proportion of the cost to be borne by the City of Quincy. The basis of these charges is for maintenance, interest, sinking fund, serial bonds and other important charges associated with the annual cost of maintaining the metropolitan system.

Mr. Mansfield has taken a decisive step in increasing from three to four percent in computing the interest on the sinking fund. While the total assessment of last year was $812,869, the assessment of this year will be but $492,402, approximately forty percent less.

Regarding this change of policy, Mr. Mansfield says: "These reductions will continue practically the same annually until the end of the term, thus distributing the burden of taxation over a longer period of time than was possible under the old rate. If the policy of computing the sinking funds on a three percent interest earning basis were continued the result would be that each loan would be filled long before it was time to pay it, and it is plain that this would mean that the present generation would be bearing part of the burden of taxation that should be borne by posterity.

"Such a policy seems to me to be indefensible. Sinking funds should be computed as closely to the rate that they are actually earning as is possible with safety, and if they are in reality earning more than four percent I see no reason for figuring them as low as three percent. If four percent should prove to be too high in any future year it would be a simple matter to reduce the rate of computation."

Quincy will pay the total sum of $107,698.24 as its assessment for the present year. The amounts are divided as follows: Metropolitan water, $51,469.66; metropolitan parks and boulevards, $23,998.29; metropolitan sewer, south system, $29,125.39; Charles Rjver basin, $3,104.90; Total, $107,698.24.

As its share of the metropolitan water loan the city of Quincy will pay $.02 on every $1 paid in. This rate is determined under a state law which takes into consideration the valuation of the city on April 1, 1913 and the average daily consumption of water.

The share of the metropolitan parks system to be borne by the city is $23,998.29, which is divided as follows: total sinking fund, $2,161.87; total interest, $9,092.88; total maintenance, $12,622.23; total serial bonds, $121,31. Last year the city paid $23,343.79 for this expense.

The city's share in the sinking fund requirements of the parks loan, including the boulevards and Nantasket is $8,977.64, which is divided as follows Parks, $4,636.78; boulevards, $4,065.97 Nantasket, $274.89. Last year the city paid $3,001.01 as its share of this assessment.

The interest requirements for the park loans totals $9,092.98, as follows; Parks, $,4704.23; boulevards, $4,113.76 Nantasket and the maintenance requirements are as follows: parks, $7564.13; boulevards, $4664.82; Nantasket, $393.28. The serial bond requirements are as follows: parks, $121.31.

Quincy is required to pay a total assessment of $29,125.39 as its share of the South system of the Metropolitan sewerage loan. The items are as follows: Sinking fund, $3,017.42; interest, $16,200.86; maintenance, $9,907.11. The ratio of this contribution is based on the valuation and on the population as taken from the United States census. A comparison of the parks and sewer assessments for the years 1913 and 1914 is as follows: Parks, 1913, $23,343.79, 1914, $23,998.29; sewer, 1913, $29,948.08, 1914, $29,125.39.

The proportion of the share to be borne by the city for the interest and sinking fund requirements of the Charles River basin loan is $.01173 of every $1 paid in and for the maintenance and requirement, $.01313 on every $1. The total assessment of the Charles River Basin loan is $3104.90 which is divided as follows: Interest requirements, $1,297.94 cost of maintenance, $1,727.07; serial bonds, $79.89.

The city's share of the net debt of the entire metropolitan system is as follows; Metropolitan parks, $93,-$13.16; metropolitan parks including Nantasket, $6548.05; metropolitan parks, including boulevards, $90,872.82 metropolitan sewerage, $419,931.45; metropolitan water, $734,209.46; Charles River basin, $24,028.59 a total of $1,369,403.53.

CANDIDATE KINCAIDE BUSY.

Thursday Colonel Kincaide spent the greater portion of the day and evening throughout the district directing the work of the volunteers who are waging one of the most acttive campaigns in his behalf that the district has ever known. Late into the night he was in conference with Brockton and Randolph committees and formed a Kincaide Young Voters Club in Randolph.

A list of the factories and dates for noonday rallies was prepared by the Congressional Committee and will be published by Saturday. Arrangements are being made today with the factories throughout the district for the needed permits, and the rallies will start on Tuesday next and continue daily.

In speaking about city politics Colonel Kincaide says that since the primaries which nominated him, he has taken no active part in the Mayorality Campaign (notwithstanding reports to the contrary) and will not do so during the Congressional Campaign. He says the city is fortunate this year in having so many able candidates and that in the city election the independent voters, and not the party, will elect the next mayor. The Colonel says he is anxious to appear before and meet the voters at any of the local rallies or gatherings, and will esteem it an honor to be granted the privilege of speaking to the voters on all such occasions.

MOODY vs BISHOP.

Rolling an even 1200 score the Moody Pets defeated Bishops Pets at the Wardwell alleys Friday evening. Both teams were made up of members of the Quincy Adams Social Club. Parrick had high score 101 but Sullivan copped high total.

DISTRICT COURT.

Eight operators of autos faced Judge Avery in the District Court this morning on charges of violation of auto laws and rules and regulations of the Blue Hill Parkway at Milton.

James H. Buzzell, 31 years, of 3 Whitman street, Somerville, pleaded nolo and paid $10 costs. On file.

John P. Henaghan of 101 Old Harbor street, Boston, offered a plea of nolo which was accepted. The costs were $10. On file.

Harry Rosenfield, 34 years, 102 Beaver street, also pleaded nolo and the costs were set at $20. On file.

Ernest W. Palmer, 42, 582 Boston avenue, Medford, on a plea of nolo was assessed $15. On file.

Charles B. White, 18 years, 277 Humboldt avenue, Dorchester, offered an nolo plea and costs were set at 5. On file.

Vincent J. Falcone, 21 years, 337 Harrison avenue, Boston, was fined 10. Sentence suspended to Nov. 12, 1914.

James McKenna of 3 Cherry street was arraigned on a charge of larceny on complaint of patrolman Dhooge. He was fined $10 and sentence was suspended to May 26, 1915. McKenna was one of a group of boys caught stealing apples at Quincy Point. He was in the tree, shaking the fruit down, when the officer appeared and failed to reach the ground in time to effect an escape. His companions were lost to sight.

George Betha was found guilty for peddling without a license and fined $5. Sentence was suspended until Nov. 5.

MILTON LOSES SUIT FOR TAXES

In the superior court at Dedham Thursday a verdict for the defendant was given in the case of the Town of Milton against Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater to recover taxes to the amount over $1,000 for taxes from 1908 up to 1911. The case was one in which Mrs. Slater claimed her legal residence to be in Webster and in this claim she is upheld by the jury.

NEW RECORD.

Miss Fannie McCarthy of South Quincy broke the city record for ladies at the Wardwell alleys Thursday evening by rolling 107, five better than the record held jointly by Miss Frances Morrill of the Quincy City Hospital, Mrs. Florence Moran and Miss Esther McDonald. The record of Miss McCarthy will probably stand for some time to come but the young ladies of the city have taken to the sport so enthusiastically and are developing so quickly it may be only a short time before it is broken.

The lady bowlers took possession of the upper floor of Wardwell alleys Thursday evening and a team captained by Mrs. Paul Poehler, wife of the champion defeated the W. S. W. Girls of the centre. High single by G. Elcock was 104 and the three string total was made by Mrs. Oresten. The match was an enthusiastic one for the gallery and furnished plenty of excitement. It was the first of a series between the lady bowlers of the city. The score:

Not Triplets.

My little grandson was told by his mother to run across the street and inquire of a lady who was going by with three little babes in a cart if they were triplets. He soon came back, looking much disappointed, and said: "No, they are not triplets. They were born the same day, but two of them are girls and the other one is a boy."—Exchange.

STALLINGS USES HOT LANGUAGE

Manager of Boston Braves Gets Runs by Invective.

HE'S A HARD TASKMASTER.

In Selecting Players He Likes Men Rejected by Other Managers, and Castoffs He Has Taken From Other Clubs Have Made Good—Rudolph, Gowdy and Red Smith Are Examples.

The efficacy of prayer is well known, but it has remained for George Stallings to show that torrid talk is not without its uses. The leader of the Boston Braves has driven his men from dead last to a contending position for the pennant by the sheer force of his invectives.

John J. McGraw can use language upon occasion, and Connie Mack, although very sparing in his criticism, can say things which hit the mark and cut in doing so, but both these men, leaders as they are of two great schools of baseball, make it an almost invariable rule not to criticise a player while a game is in progress.

Stallings, on the other hand, is a perfect demon while a close battle is being fought. He is known as one of the hardest taskmasters in baseball, yet he is not unpopular among his men, for he plays no favorites and will call down a planet of the first magnitude with just as much fervor as he will use in addressing one of his minor stars.

The Braves have a certain secret pride in the linguistic prowess of their leader, and one player was heard to boast that during a certain series in which the Braves played very badly Stallings swore steadily for four days and never repeated a single phrase. This ability may be laid partly to the fact that he is always in training, for he spends the winters on his plantation in Georgia and keeps in trim by talking to the mules.

Almost every manager has some special species of player as his idea. Thus the Giants are made up largely of the McGraw type—a type distinguished by a superlative aggressiveness and cockiness. The college type of player as exemplified in Collins and Barry is a type much in favor with Connie Mack. But it would be hard to analyze the likes and dislikes of George Stallings. The only general rule which can be laid down is that Stallings likes players who have been declared failures by some one else.

Of course no good manager pays much attention to the estimate placed upon players by newspapers, but Stallings is particularly independent of public criticism. He had at first base for his team last year Hap Myers. Hap did not hit very hard, but he fielded his position well and ran bases in wonderful fashion. Yet when this season came around Stallings released Myers and signed in his place a very Percheron of a man named Schmidt, who played the bag most awkwardly.

Schmidt did not hit at the beginning of the season, and everybody declared Stallings had made a bad blunder, but the batting of the big first baseman has proved to be one of the chief factors in putting the Braves into the race. Josh Devore had been with almost every team in the league before Stallings took him, and Connolly, another outfielder, was cast aside by Clark Griffith.

John J. McGraw tried Dick Rudolph and decided that he was too small. Other managers thought the same when the pitcher was released, but Stallings took him on and soon found that he was amply large enough to be one of the winning pitchers of the season. Maranville did not attract other managers because he could not hit, but under Stallings he developed into one of the best shortstops in the game. Hess was a has-been who had been dropped from fast company, but he has pitched much good ball for Boston.

Hank Gowdy was much too awkward for McGraw, but Stallings signed him for three years. Wilbert Robinson decided that Red Smith was such a trouble maker that he would be a detriment to any team, so Stallings quickly bought him.

Seemingly it makes little difference what the component parts are which Stallings takes at the beginning of the season, for at the end of the year he invariably has not so many individual players, but a machine.

The Trouble With the Naps.

Aside from his capabilities as a white hope, Jack Sheridan has been connected long enough with the national pastime to be able to diagnose the trouble with a losing club. Asked his opinion of the poor showing of the Cleveland team, the veteran umpire replied:

"I doubt if the Naps have had the same lineup in the field more than three days in succession this year. Such being the case, how can any one expect such a team to display good team work, especially when pitted against teams that are there with veteran lineups day in and day out, like the Athletics, Red Sox and Washington clubs? In all my career as an umpire I cannot recall a club that has had as many players injured as the Naps have this year. It would be a surprise to me if they were higher in the race than they are."

MRS. MILLS INDICTED

Charged With Manley Murder on Strength of Daughter's Story

Concord, N. H., Oct. 9.—The Merrimac county grand jury indicted Jennie Mills of Henniker for the murder of Charles A. Manley. No indictment was returned against Eugene Wood, also of Henniker, for the murder of Howard W. Peaslee of that town, who was shot and killed while reading in a shed on his farm.

The indictment of Mrs. Mills was the result of a confession of her 11-year-old daughter, Florence, who said she had seen her mother shoot Manley with a shotgun while he lay asleep in his bed. Mrs. Mills was housekeeper for Manley.

When Mrs. Mills was told that her daughter had confessed she too confessed and was held for the grand jury.

SILLIMAN'S INSTRUCTIONS

United States Interested Only In Peace of Mexico

Washington, Oct. 9.—Steps to be taken in aiding the Mexican factions to restore harmony and set up a new provisional government were outlined by President Wilson to Consul Silliman, who left last night for Mexico City.

The consul, who has been acting as the president's personal representative at the Mexican capital, was told again that the United States government has no intention of championing the cause of either Carranza or Villa, and will use its influence only toward bringing about an agreement that will prevent further disorder and bloodshed.

ANTI-TRUST LEGISLATION

This Session's Program Ends With Adoption of Clayton Bill

Washington, Oct. 9.—The conference report on the Clayton anti-trust bill, already adopted by the senate, was agreed to by the house, 244 to 54, completing the anti-trust legislation program for the session.

Every Democrat and many Republicans voted for it. The bill now goes to the president.

Twenty-two Republicans and six Progressives voted with the solid Democratic membership for the report.

MANAGERS IN WAR OF WORDS

Stallings Wrathy Over Refusal of Use of Shibe Park

THREATENS TO PUNCH MACK

Physical Combat Avoided Because Conflict Takes Place Over Telephone Wire—Fans Amazed at Confidence of Braves—Rudolph Will Probably Oppose Bender Today

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—His face flushed with anger following a telephone conversation with Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, Manager Stallings of the Boston Braves declared he had threatened to punch Mack's face.

"Mack called me down for saying that his attitude in refusing the Braves permission to use Shibe park before the series starts unsportsmanlike," said Stallings. "I reiterated it. Then he said some things that made me tell him to come down to the hotel and I would punch his face. And that goes double. If he says anything to me I will punch his face."

The minor incidents leading up to the warmest ante-world's series mix-up of rival leaders since the big championship became a fact, consisted of the denial by Mack of a request by Stallings that the Braves be allowed to have the use of Shibe park for a few hours of afternoon practice Thursday.

Stallings' plea phoned to Mack was made on the grounds that the Boston players wished to become accustomed to the playing field under the condition when an afternoon sun was slanting its rays upon it.

Unto which Mack made reply that he would have been overjoyed to extend the courtesy had he not already arranged to have the Athletics have an afternoon workout. As a sort of compromise Mack offered Stallings the use of the Athletic park for morning practice. This was refused.

It leaked out through the channels of the press that Stallings had stated a number of thing of a highly personal nature concerning Mack. Chief among these were the expressions "Double-Crosser" and "Bum Sportsman."

Mack read just what Stallings' somewhat censored opinion of him amounted to and then strode Connie to a telephone, the nearest at hand. It is said by bystanders at the telephone booth of the Hotel Majestic, in which Stallings held sway, that the outburst of vivid language was never surpassed on land or sea.

Mack opened up by complaining that Stallings was unjust in his attitude and criticism. Stallings countered with a repetition of his printed opinion of Connie. Both men speeded up as the conversation continued, and by the time both had jammed down the receivers nothing but blue flashes of lightning could be seen.

As for the Philadelphia leader he continues to maintain that Stallings was absolutely wrong in his attitude. Mack's players naturally side with their boss, so that a very large personal element is likely to be injected into the big tilts for the title of the world's championship.

Although Philadelphians are amazed and somewhat upset at the continued confidence of the Braves, it seems that the Boston team has lost no grain of their assurance, despite the fact. If the men of Stallings are going to the slaughter, they are certainly going with heads up. Hardly a Brave shows a trace of the nervousness to be expected. High strung Johnny Evers, with responsibility on his shoulders, is practically the only one to show any effects of the strain.

Neither Stallings nor Mack will announce definitely who will be their pitching choices for today. Following out a custom which has become general in baseball the two leaders will jockey around trying to put over a bit of strategy on each other. But it is the overwhelming consensus of opinion that Rudolph will oppose Bender.

When the first game starts today, both clubs will jump away to get the edge, because each realizes how much this edge is going to mean to it in this short series.

Bombard Guilty In Second Degree

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 9.—Thomas H. Bombard was found guilty of murder in the second degree by a jury on an indictment charging him with the murder of Erhardt Reithel, superintendent of Pondville mill in Auburn, by shooting.

CHRIS FOUND OUT.

How Charlie Comiskey Put One Over on Famous Magnate.

Charlie Comiskey was about the only player on the old St. Louis Browns who was absolutely not afraid of Von der Ahe. One day at the St. Louis ball park, when Von der Ahe was seated in a box with his pretty young wife near the bench occupied by the home team, he overheard some remark attacking his personal appearance. He thought it had been mouthed by one of the St. Louis players. Turning quickly in his seat, the German magnate discovered several of the local cohorts clustered in conversation near by. Comiskey was among them. Chris called him over to his box.

"Who was it said it?" asked the St. Louis boss.

"Said what?" rejoined Comiskey.

Von der Ahe told Comiskey what he had heard—he thought—coming from the direction of the home players' rendezvous. Then, pulling out a fat roll of greenbacks and ripping off a century case note, which he brandished dramatically, Chris made this statement to Comiskey in a semiconfidential manner:

"You see this, Commy? I give it to know who it was said it."

"Hand it to me, Chris," said Comiskey, "and I'll tell you."

Comiskey, after deftly assisting Von der Ahe to hand over the currency to him, remarked icily:

"Well, Chris, I'm the one that said it," and then hastily vanished with the $100 bill crunched in the palm of his right hand.

SNYDER A REAL FIND.

St. Louis Cardinals Have Catcher With Wonderful Arm.

Ivy Wingo used to be the Cardinals' star catcher, but he is a bench warmer nowadays because Miller Huggins has unearthed a better backstop and thrower in Frank Snyder, a big, rawboned fellow who hails from Wisconsin. Snyder is no relation of the once famous Charley Snyder, who caught for the Bostons thirty years ago, but he acts like him.

In throwing to bases he shows the accuracy of a sharpshooter, planting the ball in exactly the spot to make tagging easy. In a recent series against the Giants eight of the New Yorkers tried to steal second and not one succeeded. Such speedy men as Burns, Robertson and Bescher were turned back by feet.

When it is remembered that Wingo is batting above .300 and that Snyder's hitting is about .250 it may be seen Snyder's work behind the bat must be away above par.

COMISKEY CHANGES SYSTEM.

He Will Not Use High Priced Player at Once.

Charley Comiskey evidently has seen the error of his ways, for his latest "beauty" will not make his American league debut with the Chicago White Sox until late in the campaign, if he reports at all this year. The Old Roman claims to have paid $12,000 cash and an outfielder and an infielder for Outfielder Felch of the Milwaukee American association club, but it has been agreed that Felch shall finish out the A. A. season.

Comiskey has paid fabulous amounts for many a ball player and has set all of them back from one to four or five seasons by popping them right into the lineup for advertising purposes. Blackburne and Chappell are notable examples. By the time Felch appears for his trial the folks will have forgotten that approximately $15,000 has been paid for him, and his chances of making good will be just so much better.

Cap For the Sun Field.

George Burns claims that the new device patented by Fred Clarke for the tip of his cap to keep the sun out of a player's eyes has helped him a great deal in playing the difficult sun field at the New York grounds. When the Giants' left fielder is not up against a sun field he has his regular cap. He uses the other for the glare of the sun.

Clarke and Wagner to Quit?

A well founded rumor says that this will be Fred Clarke's last season as manager of the Pirates. Wagner is also talked about the same way. It is rumored that the famous German will end his baseball career after this season closes. Barney Dreyfuss is mum on the subject, and he has the last say.

McGraw Plays Only on Diamond.

According to the Giant players, McGraw is a good loser and forgets all the troubles on the ball field after the game. He never flays any of them over at the hotel. He is one manager who says the only place to play the dear old game is out on the lot.

Card Rooters Are Rough.

St. Louis fans have a peculiar and dangerous way of showing their enthusiasm. When one of the Cardinal players makes a great catch or a long hit in a pinch with men on bases hundreds of pop bottles are hurled on to the playing field.

Miller Is Liked In St. Louis.

Jack Miller, formerly with the Pirates, has endeared himself to the Cardinal fans. Jack has played a great game for Huggins and Ed Konetchy is no longer missed by the old school of rooters.

Redlegs to Go to Cuba.

ANTWERP CAN NO LONGER HOLD OUT

Siege Has Become Most Spectacular Feature of War

GERMANS SETTLE DOWN TO DESTRUCTIVE WORK

Shells From Their Great Krupp Howitzers Cause Six Forts Which Were Regarded as Impregnable to Fall—Terrible Toll Will Have Been Exacted From Invaders When City Falls, Which Will Be Very Soon—Lines of Fugitives Stretch Far Into the North as Ancient City Is Attacked From Earth and Sky—But Little Change in Battle Lines Along the French Frontier

London, Oct. 9.—With the departure of King Albert of Belgium the last hope that Antwerp could hold out until the allies reached the beleagured city has been abandoned.

The last great fortress of the Belgian nation is doomed. That is the almost universal opinion in London.

The city may hold out a few days longer, but a careful reading of the latest dispatches makes it seem impossible that the defense can be maintained more than a few hours.

The siege has now become the most spectacular feature of the war, in some respects the greatest tragedy of the twentieth century. Liege, Namur, Longwy and Maubeuge—these memorable sieges pale beside the titanic conflict that is being waged day and night for the possession of the picturesque and historic city by the placid Scheldt.

Bombs Dropped Into City

High above the quaint houses and the aspiring tower of the mighty cathedral swift aeroplanes and speedy Zeppelins have been hovering, dropping destruction into the very heart of the city, tearing out houses as by a convulsion of nature, killing and wounding scores of affrighted bystanders.

In a vast semi-circle about the city are ranged the hostile armies—nearly 250,000 gray clad Germans battling furiously against the defenders, the bulk of the Belgian army and a small force of British artillerymen and infantry.

Shells scream above the charging lines and explode in the city, many of them falling perilously close to the Place Verte, where the great spire of the cathedral towers majestically above the mean houses that huddle about the sacred building. Thus far no damage has been done to the cathedral, which is flying flags with red and white diagonal stripes to indicate that it is not being used for military purposes.

Six Forts Have Fallen

Six of the great forts that have been regarded as impregnable have fallen before the power in the shells smashed against them by the great Krupp howitzers. Into these breaches thousands of men have rushed in wild fury, overpowering by brute force of numbers the heroic but war worn veterans of the Belgian army.

When Antwerp has been captured, it will have exacted a terrible toll from the German host. In the battles that have been waged to gain crossing places over the Nethe and the Scheldt; thousands of lives have been lost, the heaviest burdens falling upon the assaulters. Many of the engagements have been fought in marshes and on the edges of the inundated area where the water is shallow enough to permit attacks by wading.

But despite the dogged resistance of the Belgians and their British allies, the Germans have been massed in such irresistible numbers that they could not be denied. Driven back in one place, they have made greater progress at another. Yard by yard they have been driving on for days until their great guns are near enough to the doomed city to make the bombardment frightful in its effectiveness.

Populace Terror-Stricken

The few non-combatants who refused to leave the city are cowering in cellars, listening in terror to the shriek of the shells, sometimes cautiously seeking their doors to try to hear the beating propellers of the great Zeppelins above them. All night long is heard the incessant crash of cannonade and the rolling fire of rifles as attacks are made by infantry. Into the sky are stabbing shafts of light, directed by searchlights which are hunting the darkness for dirigibles.

It is rumored from trustworthy sources that a considerable part of the Belgian army has been able to escape from the city and that, headed by the king, they have been able to evade the outstretched arms of the German army and that they are well on the way to Ostend by way of Ghent. It is generally believed in London that only the troops necessary to man the forts still standing have been left in the city and that they will evacuate their stations when it becomes evident that the battle is absolutely hopeless.

Far into the north stretch lines of fugitives, the most pitiful of all the pitiful spectacles caused by the great war. No less than 100,000 have found refuge in Holland, and thousands more choke the roads.

In front of the city is a blackened zone where, only a few short weeks ago, were a half dozen or more prosperous villages. But they were in the path of the fighting and now they are no more. They are only names to men and women of other lands—Lierre, Schoonnerde, Gremhergen, Heydonck, Contich, Luith, Hove, Horssel, Viux-Dieu—but they were homes for thousands of hapless fugitives who are out on the open roads or living among strangers whose tongue they cannot speak.

That is one of the little tragedies of Antwerp. In Brussels and many of the other Belgian cities the majority of the people speak French, but in Antwerp few can understand anything except Flemish. Wherever they go, they are unable to find the relief that comes of telling of their woes.

Other Great Fights Continue

While Antwerp is fighting for life, the great battles still rage in France and eastern Europe. On neither line is there much to describe, for little progress has been made by any of the embattling armies.

About Roye the Germans continue to batter the lines of the allies with fresh troops; near Arras the French and British have been able to drive back the foe; from Douai a small body of French have fallen back. Further to the north a tremendous cavalry battle has been fought, the British horsemen finding opportunities to emulate some of the deeds of British cavalry in other wars. Far into Belgium stretch the fighting lines, but nowhere has any decided victory been reached.

SUNK IN 600-YARD SHOT

Details of Destruction of German Craft by British Submarine

The London Telegraph's Harwich correspondent in a dispatch describing the sinking of the German torpedo boat destroyer by the submarine E-9 says:

The islands off the province of Fresia, in the shelter of which German craft were known to lurk, was the scene of the sinking.

When the commander of the E-9 sighted the German torpedo boat destroyer the submarine sank sixteen feet and prepared for the attack. At one time the E-9 was too near the destroyer—100 yards away—to loosen a torpedo, an act which would have been highly dangerous to the submarine itself.

At a distance of 600 yards the submarine fired, the torpedo striking the enemy amidships. The debris was blown high in the air, the ship being torn in two.

THREE FORTS DEMOLISHED

German Garrison at Tsingtau Refuses to Yield to Japanese

The Japanese continue their bombardment of the Kiauchau fortifications and are reported to be in possession of the outer chain of Tsingtau fortifications.

The fleet continues to co-operate with the land forces and, according to a statement by the Japanese legation at Pekin, three of the harbor forts have been demolished.

It is expected another formal demand for the surrender of the concession will be made in a few days. It is believed the garrison must be running short of both food and ammunition, but up to the present all suggestions of surrender have been sternly rejected by the commandant, who insists he and his men will perish at their posts.

CHOLERA IN GALICIA

Vienna Reports Forty Cases In Most Violent Form at Tarnow

A message from Vienna announces a sudden outbreak of Asiatic cholera, in a most violent form, at Tarnow, in Galicia. Forty cases, the message says, are reported.

Tarnow, on the Dunajec river, has about 35,000 inhabitants. It is 135 miles west of Lemberg and on the line which the Austrians and Rusisans are taking on their way to Cracow. Fighting between the Austrians and the Russians near Tarnow has been reported several times recently.

COSTS $55 A SECOND

War Causing a Tremendous Strain on the British Purse

"This war is costing the country $55 a second, day and night," said Sidney Webb, well known as a political economist, in a lecture at the London school of economics and political science, of which he was the principal founder.

The war, Webb added, was equivalent to a species of economic earthquake which was upsetting everything and presenting in a new light. Nobody could predict to what degree of good or evil the world would be changed by the war, the speaker said, but the change undoubtedly would be colossal.

GERMANS IN COMMAND

Change Made In Austria Despite Opposition of Francis Joseph

A dispatch from Vienna confirms a previous report that the Austrian army in Galicia has been placed under the control of the German staff, despite the opposition of Emperor Francis Joseph.

The dispatch adds that Major General Conrad, chief of the Austrian general staff, has virtually been deprived of all power on account of his alleged condition resulting from the death of his son, who was killed in action.

Dealing with the removal of General Auffenborg from his command, the correspondent asserts this action was taken ostensibly because of the general's ill health but that in reality it was due to his move on Lublin, which was considered an enormous mistake and responsible in great part for the Austrian defeat.

DROPS BOMBS ON PARIS

German Aviator Wounds Three Persons With One Missile

A German aeroplane flying over Paris and the suburbs of Aubervilliers and Saint Denis dropped two bombs, one of which wounded three persons. The other did no harm.

The French troops stationed in the city and suburbs have been commanded not to fire upon the aeroplanes for the reason of the incidental danger to the public from falling bullets.

WOULD HUNT SEA MINES

Woman Shell Divers Offer Their Services to the Japanese Navy

One hundred women shell divers of Shima province offered their services to the Japanese navy to clear the mines from Kiauchau bay. The offer was declined by the navy, as the law prohibits the employment of women in war operations.

These women are accustomed to remain in the water for a long period. Their idea was that, unseen by the enemy, they could dive for the mines near Kiauchau and remove them to the Japanese warships.

FAVOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Rhode Island Democrats Also Score New Haven Directors

Providence, Oct. 9.—Planks demanding the retirement of New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad directors, and declaring for equal suffrage, are included in the platform adopted by the Democratic state convention.

Patrick H. Quinn of West Hardwick was nominated for governor, defeating Addison P. Munroe of Providence, 147 to 27. The other nominations, made unanimously, are as follows: Lieutenant governor, Sumner Mowry; secretary of state, J. M. FitzGerald; attorney general, I. O. Hunt; general treasurer, Adelard Archambault.

The platform, indorsing President Wilson, aproves the administration tariff, currency, income tax and anti-trust legislation. It calls for a state constitutional convention and referendum in 1915. Among constitutional reforms advocated are the abolition of the property voting qualification and equitable representation in the state senate.

HAS NO JURISDICTION

Ruling of United States Court In Marconi Wireless Suit

New York, Oct. 9.—The federal district court ruled that it had no jurisdiction in the suit brought against Secretary of the Navy Daniels and four naval censors by the Marconi Wireless Company of America to prevent the government from keeping closed the wireless stations at Siasconset, Mass., and Sea Girt, N. J. The company's application for an injunction was dismissed.

The court was without jurisdiction, Judge Veeder held, inasmuch as none of the defendants or the plaintiff reside within this federal district. No other question was raised by the government in its motion of demurrer, and none other was dealt with by the court.

ALLEGED CRIME "TRUST"

Report of Investigator Said to Involve Police In Chicago

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Details of the organization of a pickpocket trust, its alleged affiliation with certain policemen, a list of more than fifty saloons said to be recognized as headquarters for these thieves and a list of 100 men known to be professional purse and jewelry snatchers, were given to the city council crime commission by Edward W. Altz, an investigator employed by the commission.

The policemen, it was charged, got 35 percent of the gross receipts. Often policemen searched the pockets of the thieves to see that no loot was concealed, the report said.

Murder Suspects Freed

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 9.—Andrew Baris, Peter Sanuta and Martin Obleczenski, the three suspects arrested in connection with the murder of Charles Gingras, were released, having satisfied the police they were not concerned in the crime.

Money For New England Harbors

Washington, Oct. 9.—In the allotment of the $20,000,000 appropriated by congress for river and harbor improvement this year Boston harbor receives $200,000; Portland, Me., $105,000; Isle of Shoals, $5000; Salem harbor $7500.

Mrs. William Windom, widow of the secretary of the treasury in President Garfield's cabinet, died at Williamstown, Mass.

For Young Folks

Intelligent Face of a Canadian Sledge Dog.

What a handsome and intelligent countenance is shown by the dog in the picture! Surely every one who sees it will echo this sentiment. This dog is named Collar and is one of the numerous dogs selected in Canada by Sir Ernest Shackleton to take to the antarctic in his proposed trip across that frozen end of the world. Now that war has broken out in Europe it is doubtful if Sir Ernest will proceed on his quest. The experiences of explorers in the arctic and the antarctic have proved that dogs provide the best means of transportation. Ponies have been tried and found to be of little use in long journeys over the ice. Admiral Peary, who discovered the north pole, was accompanied by dog teams, as was also Roald Amundsen, who first reached the south pole. Captain Scott, who with several companions perished in the snow after reaching the pole, took ponies, but they died long before he reached the pole.

A String Trick.

Lay a piece of string across the palms of your hands placed side by side, letting the ends hang down; then bring your palms quickly together, at the same time secretly catching hold of the middle of the string with your fourth and fifth fingers. Then direct any person to tie your thumbs together as tight as he pleases, and he will not, of course, be tying them, because you have hold of the string, yet it will appear to him that he is doing so. Ask him to place a hat over your hands. Then blow upon the hat and say, "Be loose," slipping your thumbs from under the string. Direct him to remove the hat and show the thumbs free. Request that the hat be again placed over your hands. Then blow upon the hat as before and say, "Be tied," slipping your thumbs under the string again, and when the hat is removed your thumbs will appear to be tied as tight as at first. After you have performed the trick you must convey the string deftly into your pocket so that it may not be detected.

Hunt the Whistle.

Tie a wooden whistle on to one end of a piece of string and a large safety pin on to the other end. Those who know how to play the game remain in the room while the others go out. A circle is formed, seated, and, one by one, the others are called in. One passes to the center of the circle, where one will explain to him that there is just one whistle in the ring. It is not to go outside of the circle; nobody is allowed to hold it, etc. While this explanation is taking place the one to whom his back is turned is pinning the whistle to his coat. When that is done he blows it, and that is the signal for the hunt. You cannot imagine the fun it causes to see them darting first this side, then that, catching first the hands of one, then of another, and declaring that they have it. When they learn that it was fastened to them all the time it is certainly funny to see the faces. Keep the whistle blowing; you will laugh until your face aches.

How Tinfoil Is Made.

In making tinfoil the melted tin is poured into molds making thin plates These plates are then passed through rollers, first singly, and then as they grow thinner several are run through together until, finally, as many as 300 sheets pass under the rollers at once, which reduces each sheet to a thickness of one-tenth of a millimeter. Then it is still further beaten out by hand with wooden mallets. The metal is often alloyed with 1 or 2 per cent of copper, while for the cheaper kinds, such as is used for wrapping tea, tobacco and candy, lead is used as the alloy.—St. Nicholas.

Ma an' I.

I tell you—we've heaps of fun,
Ma an' I. She can mend my gun
An' fix my cart—an' lots of things.
She knows jes' why a bird has wings—
An' all the bestest kinds of games.
Why, most of 'em don't have no names!
But I don't see why she's got to kiss
Me, jes' because I'm lookin' like this!
She bites my fingers an' chews my toes
An' says to me, "Oh, goodness knows,
I don't see how I ever got along without my Beauty Spot."
An' then she grabs an' hugs me tight
An' rubs my cheeks till they're shiny bright.
I tell you what, I love my ma;
I think she's most as nice as pa.

MILTON—BROWN.

The Milton Academy football team won their second straight game of the season Wednesday by defeating the Brown and Nichols team by the score of 28 to 0.

It is the third game that the academy team has not been scored on. In the first period, Felton, after a series of excellent forward passes, made Milton's first touchdown, which was followed by a goal kick by Faxon. By means of another successful forward pass in the second period Hutchinson scored Milton's second touchdown. Again Faxon kicked a goal. After a series of tackles in the third period Whitcomb, Milton's right half back, made a touchdown and "Heinie" Faxon kicked his third consecutive goal. Trainor made the final touchdown in the last period and Humphrey kicked the goal. Milton was very strong on her forward passes and in covering her punts. "Heinie" Faxon was again the star player, both at kicking and at tackling. He is about one of the best goal kickers the Academy has produced for years. Capt. Brewer was for the second time the victim of misfortunewhen he hurt his ankle and had to be removed from the field. Felton, Trainor and Humphrey also played a good game for Milton.

NEW TRACTOR IN COMMISSION

To Be Demonstrated in City Square Saturday Morning

Steamer No. 1 equipped with an A. & B. tractor truck, the purchase of which was provided for in an order passed by the City Council making an appropriation of $4,000 for that purpose arrived in town Thursday evening having come over the road from Providence, R. I. where the tractor was attached at the A. & B. fatcory.

The steamer was sent to the factory several weeks ago and in addtion to being motorized has been equipped with heavy wheels fitted with Firestone rubber tires. The motor is of 60 horse power and the maximum speed is given as 30 miles an hour. As the steamer stands today her weight is eight tons as against five tons when equipped for horses.

The steamer left Providence Thursday morning in charge of Frank Lunn an expert of the manufacturers. Accompanying him were Herbert Griffin and James O'Connell of the steamer crew who have been taking lessons in the operation of the tractor and have made good progress.

Several stops were mare between Providence and Quincy which was reached at 7.45. A short stop was made in front of City Hall where she was looked over hurriedly by members of the City Council.

Mr. Lunn will remain in Quincy a few days, or until the crew have been broken in. This morning Mayor Whiton, the father of the steamer and strong advocate for the purchase of the tractor, paid a visit to the central station and made a close inspection of it, and appeared evry much pleased

As soon as it arrived at the central station Thursday night it was put into commission and was ready to respond to any alarms. Saturday morning the steamer will be taken to City Square at 8.30 where she will be demonstrated. She will then be given a run about the city, particularly Wollaston where she will be tried out on some of the steep graded hills in that section.

ST. GAUDENS' GOLD COINS.

This Country Did Not Appreciate Their Art, Says a Critic.

All the arts but one, says Layton Crippon in his book, "Clay and Fire," show degradation today, in many cases degradation so great that they have virtually ceased to exist. We have not only forgotten how to make beautiful things, but we have even acquired an instinctive dislike of beautiful things. They seem to have become offensive to us.

"There was recently one curious little instance to which I am tempted to refer showing as it did that in our present stage of degradation beauty is not only ignored, but has actually become offensive, causes instinctive dislike. The St. Gaudens ten and five dollar gold pieces were undoubtedly the noblest coins produced in any country in 200 years. Within a couple of months the American public had howled them out of circulation.

"The explanation was afterward made that the coins were disliked because the relief was inconveniently high, but a reference to the files of the New York or Chicago papers will convince anybody that the original outcry was against the design and only the design of these exquisite examples of die cutting. But America has no monopoly of this instinctive hatred of beauty. It is exemplified in the vandalism that is now common all over Europe, the destruction of ancient and glorious buildings, usually without valid excuse."

OXYGEN GAS.

The Value of Rev. Joseph Priestley's Momentous Discovery.

Oxygen was discovered in the year 1774. Joseph Priestley, a dissenting English clergyman who had turned scientist, obtained the hitherto unknown gas by igniting mercuric oxide. The oxygen he thus produced he called "dephlogisticated air."

He and Benjamin Franklin had often discussed the mysterious composition of air and water. No one up to that time had determined what element it was in both which so invigorated the physical energies of man. It is said that Priestley made his actual discovery of the oxygen while experimenting in a brewery near his home in England. He spent the last ten years of his life in the United States, a voluntary exile.

Today a monument stands in England to commemorate Priestley's discovery. Were he alive, he could read of thousands of lives saved by his work. Oxygen is the only gas capable of supporting respiration, and is repeatedly used in the sick chamber to pull a patient through a crisis. Helmets equipped with oxygen attachments enable the diver to go to ocean depths, the aviator to ascend into rarified air, the fireman to stand in dense smoke, and rescuers to descend into gas filled mines. So wide are its uses that some 4,000,000 cubic feet of this gas are bottled in the United States every year.—New York Post.

Clog Almanacs.

In early times in England the people used what were called clog almanacs, which remained in use till the beginning of the eighteenth century. An old writer thus describes them:

"This almanac is usually a square piece of wood containing three months on each of the four edges. The number of days in them are expressed by notches, the first day by a notch with a patulous stroke turned up from it and every seventh by a large sized notch. Over against many of the notches are placed on the left hand several marks or symbols denoting the golden number or cycle of the moon. The festivals are marked by symbols of the several saints issuing from the notches."

The Exception.

Uncle Zack, the stable man, enjoyed local repute as a weather prophet. Miss Cassie, coming down early one morning, found Zack on the back porch.

"Is the rain going to last all day, Zack?" she asked.

"Yessum. Ah reckin' it is."

"Why, Zack," Miss Cassie said, "I have always heard you say, 'Rain before 7, clear before 11.' Isn't that true?"

"Yessum, it's strickly true," Uncle Zack maintained stoutly, "jes' 'cepting it doan't apply to an all day rain, ma'am."—New York Post.

No Sightseer.

Little Bobby—Papa, did you ever see a cyclone carrying houses up in the air and cows and horses and wagons upside down? Papa—No, my son. Little Bobby—Did you ever see a sea serpent? Papa—No, my son. Little Bobby—I should think it 'ud be tiresome to live to your age and never see anything.—London Mail.

A Great Difference.

"You always advised against speculation?"

"Yes," returned Mr. Dustin Stax.

"You never played the market yourself?"

"No, sir. I never played it; I worked it."—Washington Star.

Then She Couldn't Talk.

"And what do you think I'd look best in, George?" inquired the chattering wife at the recess of a three hour talk on clothes.

"In a coma, darling," replied George, he having secured his hat.—New York Press.

Plenty of Difference.

CITY MOURNS AT FUNERAL OF MAYOR JOHN L. MILLER

HUNDREDS ATTEND SERVICES AT LATE HOME

Rev. Joseph Walther Pays Tribute to Life and Character of Mayor

Body Escorted to Grave by Members of Council and City Official

Hundreds of citizens of Quincy paid tribute to the memory of Hon. John L. Miller, the first Mayor to die in office, at the funeral services held Friday afternoon. Business throughout the city was suspended, the public schools were closed and the flags on all public buildings, school houses and private residences were at half mast.

Among those who attended were representative men of the state, Mayor Joseph L. Whiton who succeeded to the office on the death of Mayor Miller, the members of the city government and city council and delegations from the Boston Chamber of Commerce, National Association of Granite Industries, Board of Trade, Wollaston lodge of Masons, and various other civic and trade associations.

The services were held at his late home on Franklin street and were conducted by Rev. Joseph W. Walther of the Wollaston Baptist church who also pronounced the eulogy, which in part was as follows:

"While we sorrow naturally for one taken away from our midst, nevertheless for him we rejoice because the Apostle Paul has written 'For me to die is gain.' There is the presence of the great God in us all. There is freedom from sorrow and pain, there is the end of all struggles and all misunderstandings and all sin; there is joy, pure and serene, and I for one with the tenderest feeling, with the realization that I shall miss him as many others will miss him, I for one rejoice that our brother has received the crown of blessing. I could have wished him to live and would have been glad to have seen him continue his work to the end of the year, completing his own purposes and desires had he strength but God has determined otherwise and we believe our brother now walks the pearly streets with God, triumphant over all.

"We think of one today who was absolutely sincere in life however wrong at times he might have been, of one sincere, who wanted to do the right thing and labored with all the strength of his being. With him today are the men of honest convictions. He was a man who believed certain things, who had positive notions, who came to certain conclusions and believed he was right, and I think, friends that in these days in which we are living these qualities must need to be far emphasized.

"We need sincerity more and more. We need to banish hypocracy in every form. We need in public office and private life men of honest convictions, men who believe things and who stand by them with all the power and vigor of their being.

"The Apostle Paul was a man of honest conviction and he went about seeking to slay all who bore the name of Christ. We know he was doing wrong but he believed he was doing right. We honor any man who has notions of right, however wrong they may be to our way of thinking, and who stands by his convictions.

"We think of the man who had the courage of his convictions, who having certain feelings and ideas was willing to stand by them no matter who was against him. My brethren, the characteristic needed today more and more is the quality of moral courage. Many a man has the courage to receive a gun shot wound but to stand against the persuasion of your own friends, the feelings of those who may be nearest and dearest to you, requires great strength and character, and I believe our friend and brother had it, the moral courage so much needed.

"He was our friend and courage was his. He was a man of great energy and persistence even in the hour of his sickness. All these brought him to the high place which he held when he passed away.

"Mayor Miller did not have the opportunities of culture and education that many had. He was trained in the school of experience. If sometimes he gave hard knocks, let us never forget that hard knocks were the only thing he knew from experience, that he was educated in a school of hard knocks and from boyhood up had to win his way under great difficulties.

In speaking of the spiritual man Rv. Mr. Walther said, "We admire him for the high success he achieved in view of the handicaps of his life. He was faithful. I believe the guardian angel will say to him 'well done good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of our Lord.' I never knew or heard of our brother betraying a single trust ever committed to him.

"Within three weeks of his departure he said 'I have this satisfaction, that I have been faithful to every promise I made, as far as I know, before election.' Grand it is. So, it seems to me it is well worth having such feeling as that, knowing there is no real chance for recovery.

"Mayor Miller was not a man content to sit around and be waited upon. He was impatient with such men. His desire was always to serve and if you study his life in relation to the various organizations he was connected with you will find somewhere and somehow he has been useful.

"We rejoice our brother has met with the greatest triumph of life and we pray with all tenderness that the dear ones and all who need him may be comforted and inspired by his example, overlooking mistakes and things on which we have not agreed, but may we all strive more and more as we pass to be true and faithful as he was and to meet with such honor as we see here today."

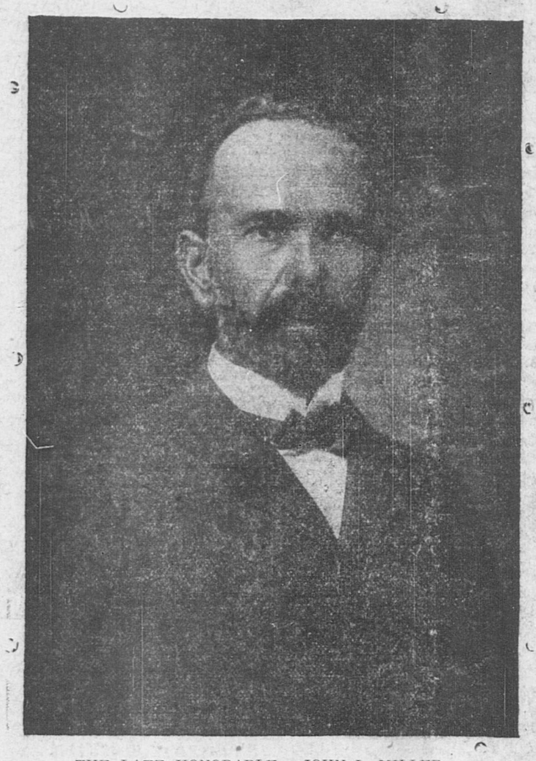

Singing was by the Pilgrim quartette who rendered "Nearer My God to Thee" at the request of the deceased. "Passing out of the shadow" and "Passing over the hill tops." The attendance was large and many remained outside participating in the services while there.

The funeral procession left the house escorted by a platoon of policemen headed by Capt. Daniel R. McKay and Inspector Goodhue. The patrolmen in the escort were Officers Duane, Dineen, Black, Ford, Halloran, Malone, Thorn, Broberg, Riley and Farrell.

Directly after followed the members of the city government, city council, and foremen of municipal work, headed by Mayor Joseph L. Whiton. With him was Hon. James M. Curley, Mayor of Boston, who arrived at the services late and walked to the cemetery with Mayor Whiton.

On either side of the hearse were the representatives of the Quincy fire department who acted as bearers.

THE LATE HONORABLE JOHN L. MILLER.

SEVERE TEST FOR TRACTOR

Climbs and Backs up Steepest Hills With Ease

The new tractor truck was given a most severe test this morning, but she readily proved she could easily accomplish all that was claimed for it by the builders the A. & B. Co.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the tractor was run to City Square where an exhibition was given of turning and backing. Mayor Whiton stood in front of City Hall, and to Mr. Lunn the company's expert he asked. "Can you run up the steep run into City Hall yard?" "Certainly," replied Mr. Lunn and the next instant the steamer was run up the steep incline into City Hall yard.

Mayor Whiton and Chief Billings then went to Wollaston with the apparatus where it was put to a most severe test on the high hills. Wollaston abounds in high hills, the worst of which are those on Highland avenue and Winthrop avenue. The steep hill on Highland avenue was climbed twice with as much ease as if the street had been level. Then the steamer was turned round and backed up the hill twice. It is hard to conceive of a much harder test than this but she backed up without difficulty. It is very doubtful if the steamer is ever called to back up a steep hill, but she can do it if necessity requires.

Following this the steamer was given a two hours road run through Wollaston and Atlantic, returning to quarters shortly after 10 o'clock.

This afternoon Mayor Whiton will accompany the tractor upon another tryout test about the city and it is proposed to try it out on the steepest hills that can be found.

NOW HAS TWO NOMINATIONS

Langelier Gets the Progressive Endorsement

At the adjourned hearing before the Ballot Law Commission Friday afternoon the Election Commissioners of of Boston submitted an amended return of the vote of Progressive party in Hyde Park, which is now Ward 6 of Boston, thereby acknowledging an error on the part of the precinct officers at the recent primaries.

On the returned as originally filed George W. Baker of Quincy was creditedwith 18 votes and Louis F. R. Langelier with 12, and Charles W. Prosser of Randolph 11 votes.

Senator Langelier disputed the returns with the result as noted above an amended return was filed Friday, This gives Senator Langelier 34 votes, Mr. Baker 18 and Mr. Prosser 11. The result is that Senator Langelier gets the Progressive as well as the Republican nomination for Senator.

This is the second time that the officers of the Hyde Park precinct have been shy on returning the Progressive vote for Col. Henry L. Kincaide in his canvas for returns of the Progressive vote for Congressman discovered nine votes in this precinct which were not credited to him, although the printed sticker gave his address.

The October meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of Cohasset, was held Monday afternoon. A very interesting exercise in reading was given by several pupils from the Fourth Grade. Delegates were chosen to attend the State Convention to be held in Worcester, Oct. 15 to 17. Mrs. Robert E. Park of Wollaston was the speaker for the afternoon. Her subject was "Honesty in the Home."

When you see a girl coming down town in one of the new four story skirts, the chances are strong that she left her mother at home making apple pie.

Now that the girls are wearing small hats, all the money spent by the railroads in enlarging their car doors seems to have been thrown away.

The European kings expect us to feel pleasant about this war, when paying our war taxes is the same as paying for a dead horse you never owned.

The contending armies don't seem to make great progress in France, but they can always take hold and kill off some more women and children in Belgium.

Some one asks what has become of the athletic young fellows who used to think nothing of century runs on a bicycle. Many of them are now sitting on the back seats of touring cars, and complaining of weariness when their chauffeur drives them more than 25 miles.

The middle-aged men having all been killed off, and the boys and old men largely dead, the kings of Europe are wondering why the women don't rise and protect their sacred monarchs.

Next Monday is Columbus day, the last real open-air holiday of the year and the newest member of all the "off duty" days. Columbus day comes in what is perhaps in many respects the most beautiful of the seasons and bridges the gap very comfortably between Labor day and Thanksgiving. It is a day that is taken advantage of by thousands for the pursuit of pleasure and is also very handy for the thrifty and far-seeing ones who take this opportunity to put their houses and estates in trim for the coming of winter. Coming as it does on Monday this year, a good opportunity is offered, especially to those who enjoy a half holiday on Saturdays, to plan a good many pleasures for the little vacation thus afforded. If the day is fair and it is pretty sure to be, there will be a general exodus of humanity to the great outdoors.

THE VOTERS.

The failure of a satisfactory proportion of voters to turn out to the primary contests this fall is being widely commented upon. It is not merely unpatriotic, but poor business. It is noticeable that the men who are the most bitter in denouncing government waste and corruption, are often the same ones who are too busy to turn out and help elect better men.

Some candidates this fall have secured excellent results by acting on the theory that all the voters needed was a simple reminder. They would dispatch a postal card to a list of voters a day or two before the primaries, asking for their support in a few brief words.

Nine voters out of ten admit that they ought to exercise the right of suffrage. But they put off doing so from hour to hour, and before they know it the polls are closed. They very frequently forget both the day and the hour when the polling takes place. A simple reminder from the candidate might win more voters than the expenditure of many dollars sending around carriages or hiring political workers.

NEEDS PUSHING.

The uncertainties of this war period of course make the immediate business future more or less problematical. Most people agree that in time the United States will get new trade out of this war. But any sharp and sudden revival can hardly be expected. Under these circumstances, prudence is of course called for. All the same, it is no time to stop efforts to sell goods.

The right view to take of the matter was illustrated by the course of a certain manufacturing concern known to the writer. They found war complications had cut off about 25 per cent of their trade. What did they do? A timid management might have called in part of their salesmen, in order to save expense.

On the contrary, this firm took their highest priced man, and started him out on a very extensive and expensive tour all over the country. Their old trade being injured, they are meeting the situation by drumming up new business.

This spirit of enterprise and of adaptiveness to conditions has a lesson for all engaged in retail trade. Here and there one finds a merchant who feels shaky about the business situation. He decides that he must prune his expenses, so perhaps he cuts his advertising appropriation.

The sales department of a business is its very heart. Whatever pruning may be done, you can't touch the sales expense without striking directly at the receipts of the concern.

The successful and enterprising business, if it finds its sales hurt by the present depression, is trying to make new customers, and increasing its sales work through larger advertising.

QUINCY PIANOFORTE SCHOOL
Greenleaf Block, 1419 Hancock St., Quincy

ADVANTAGES:

1.—Better instruction and better prices cannot be obtained in Quincy.
2.—Our system is thorough and modern; our instructors are capable, experienced and up-to-date.
3.—Our pupils have the privilege of appearing in public three times a season; and know how to conduct themselves correctly and gracefully on the concert stage.
4.—Our 1st. and 2nd. year General Class lessons are worth as much as the regular piano lessons, but this year we include these lessons with the price of the piano lessons alone.
5.—The director, Mr. Hackelton, is a graduate of the N. E. Conservatory of Music, finished abroad and a leading teacher in Boston for ten years.
6.—We award certificates to pupils finishing our courses.
7.—We are presenting a limited number of music rolls to our pupils as a souvenir of our opening.

Information regarding terms, teachers, system etc., will be cheerfully given at the School, or a circular sent on request.

CATHOLIC CLUB WERE THRILLED

A reading of "Within the Law" by Henrietta Gillman Tighe, thrilled the members of the Quincy Catholic club and their friends in Colonial hall on Friday evening. The presentation was entertaining and was received with vigorous enthusiasm.

Mis Tighe is one of the most talented readers appearing in public. The play was given as adapted and abridged by herself, and is in four acts. Instrumental music was by Miss Alice Linehan, violinist and Mis Corinne LaBrecque pianist. There was a large attendance.

ENTERTAIN MANY VISITORS

Courts John Adams, John Ericsson and Roger Wolcott, Foresters of America tendered a reception to Supreme and Grand Court officers in Clan MacGregor hall last evening.

Many visitors from other cities were present.

Conclave No. 120. Knights of Sherwood Forest created a fine impression. th members being all in full uniform.

Chairman of general committee Otto Gelotte introduced Grand Senior Woodward, Peter J. Barry as toastmasters for the evening.

Speeches, songs, and stories were in order and many men prominent in Forestic matters were heard from.

Mayor Harry Howard of Brockton received a hearty greeting when called upon.

The meeting adjourned at 11.30. An excellent entertainment and general good time having been thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

BETHANY CHURCH

The Pastor has arranged a series of sermons for the morning on the Lord's Prayer" and for the evening a series on "The Revelation of God in The Lives of Men." The morning theme will b the first petition, "Our Father." In the Pleasant Sunday Evening service, "The Great Pioneer." The evening choir has been enlarged to thirty-six voices. There are earphones for those who have some difficulty in hearing. All people are cordially invited to come.

MILTON

The freshman class of the High school held their first class meeting of the year Friday afternoon and elected officers. It is interesting to note that all the classes have elected their presidents from the East Milton section of the town. Such a peculiar coincidence has not occurred in years. Following are the officers of class 1918 for the coming year: President—William Hecker; vice president—Philip Rylander; secretary—Doris Hersey; treasurer—Margerite Cunningham. The vote for president was Hecker 55, Hollidge 24, Long 16.

EVERLASTING PEACE.

As we consider the wonderful day in which we are living, when God has been lifting the veil, so to speak, of ignorance and superstitution, and mankind is receiving many wonderful blessings undreamed of in the darker past, together with great enlightenment along all lines, then when we turn our eyes toward the horrible "arena of war" now engaging nearly all of Europe, we must all be compelled to admit that evidently something fundamental is lacking in our present day civilization.

When we also bear in mind that this great conflagration bursts up on the world just at the time when the greatest efforts ever made for bringing in Universal Peace were being put forth, one is naturally inclined to wonder if, after all, the "Peace Propaganda" as it has been carried on in the past will ever accomplish its desired ends.

This great question of the hour should be of vital interest to all classes of people. All are really desirous of peace, jo yand happiness—a condition, which it must be conceded, the world is far from at the present time. How can a condition of "everlasting peace" be inaugurated? This is the great issue and all who are interested and who are desirous of coming to a satisfactory conclusion should not fail to hear this question discussed in the I. B. S. A. Bible Lecture on "Everlasting Peace! When, Where and How," which will be delivered in Colonial hall, City square, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock by C. N. Elliott of Braintree.

The speaker is reputed to have a keen insight into the present situation, and it is said that his presentation of the subject is of unusual interest, and that he speaks as one having authority. The lecture will be entirely free to the public. All are welcome

GARDNER CLUB INITIATION

Thursday evening the Gardner club of Christ church conferred the first degree on three candidates. They were, Wallace Carson, William Clements and John Dickie. This was the first time this year that the new degree team has worked the initiatory degree and they certainly did well. After the initiation the club listened to a pleasing entertainment which was furnished by a committee consisting of John Marshall and Russell Westland.

At the next regular meeting which will be October 22., Hon. H. B. Davis. Judge of the third district court of Plymouth will address the club. Judge Davis is one of the best authorities of the present day on the handling of the "Bad Boy" and has instituted several new ideas and methods. The Judge's long and varied experience is sure to make him a very entertaining speaker. As Thursday evening October 22 is an open night any man who wants to hear a good speaker is invited to come down to the parish house and hear Judge Davis at 8 o'clock.

DISTRICT COURT.

Chief of Police Thomas Bates of Cohasset appeared at the District court this morning to prosecute two residents of his town for keeping unlicensed dogs. William J. McCarty and Manuel Cabral were found guilty and were each ordered to pay $2.20 costs of court, and to pay a license fee to the town. They were placed on probation until Oct. 17.

The liquors seized at the Bread and Cheese Inn at Cohasset, in a recent raid, were ordered returned to the premises by Judge Avery on the grounds that no complaint has been made.

Jeremiah Desmond, a selectman of the town of Randolph was the complainant in a case heard in the district court this morning in which Timothy Lyons, an expressman of that town was charged with failing to keep open to the inspection of a selectman of the town of Randolph the books required to be kept by persons transporting intoxicating liquors for hire or reward into a no-license town. Judge Avery imposed a fine of $50 and an appeal was entered.

Mr. Desmond told of his failing to see the books and of his visits to the office of the express company and said that on one occasion when they were produced it was dark and as he could not accomplish his purpose he promised to call the next day when lists of two days business were shown.

On a charge of failure to keep the books as required by law was dismissed with the consent of both parties.

KINCAIDE THEATRE.

The Marcus Musical Stock Company have been entertaining capacity houses this week at Quincy's Pretty Playhouse and will stay another week. There are eleven in the company and they certainly put on a first class show. Uproars of laughter are the rule from the moment they make their appearance until they exit laughingly an hour later. For the first half of the week these peerless fun makers will present a Cabaret Show "Izzy in Society." Lots of special scenery and light effects will be introduced and the costumes are something swell, one of the girls appearing in a $500 dress. All the late song hits will be given and the show throughout promises to be extra good. "The Beloved Adventure," a new serial picture will start Monday featuring Arthur Johnson and Lottie Briscoe. Pathe Daily News and other pictures with the regular orchestra complete the program. As Monday is a holiday one would do well to secure seats early.

AUTOMOBILE ABANDONED

An abandoned auto, minus registration plates and all means of identification was found on the side of Hancock street Friday morning. One of the front wheels was smashed but there was no other damage.

The police located D. D. Halliwall of the firm of Halliwall and Pope of Boston, who was operating the machine when it struck the pole. He said he ran onto the sidewalk in order to avoid a collision and then went to Boston for an emergency crew to tow the car to the garage.

BIG GAME OF YEAR.

One of the biggest and best football games for years is scheduled for the holiday between Milton High and Academy teams on Academy field. Milton. Never was excitement so high or has the Academy team advantage over the High as it has this year. In a very surprising manner the Academy team his tied with Allen school; defeated Roxbury Latin 27 to 0 and Brown and Nichols 28 to 0. The High school team, on the other hand lost to Wellesley 20 to 0; Commerce 12 to 0 and St. Marks 21 to 7. It is interesting to note that Roxbury Latin played a scoreless tie game with St. Marks and that the Allen school defeated Commerce 13 to 0. Despite the seeming handicap Coach Reggie Nash and Capt. Dutch Reiser are hopeful and expecting that the High school boys will pull through Monday. The Academy team is strong in forward passes as was shown in the Brown and Nichols game and with with such men as Heinie Faxon, Trainor and Felton, will certainly put up a good fight.

Braves Swamp Athletics In Their First Great Game

BENDER KNOCKED FROM BOX

Outpitched by Rudolph, Who Is Followed by Gowdy, Maranville and Whitted Into Company of World Series Heroes—Hank Gowdy May Do All Receiving For Bostons

Philadelphia, Oct. 10.—Boston's Braves drew first blood and secured the big advantage of winning the first game of the world's series here against the Athletics, incidentally knocking Connie Mack's pitching reliance, Chief Bender, out of the box. The score was 7 to 1.

Dick Rudolph outpitched the Carlisle Indian and held the much-feared Mack maulers to a few scattering and ineffective hits. Gowdy, Maranville and Whitted were the tribesmen to follow Rudolph into the small and select company of world's series heroes.

Gowdy's fierce two-bagger scored Whitted with the first run of the series in the second inning. Gowdy opened the fifth with a triple and later scored. Whitted's triple in the big sixth scored two runs. It was Maranville who scored Gowdy in the second and in the fifth. And the little Boston shortstop played a fine game in the short field.

Stallings' men outplayed the Athletics at every nook and turn. They outbatted them and outguessed them and tore to threads the Mackmen's attempts to play anything like inside ball.

The confidence of the Braves is truly remarkable, and their fighting qualities aren't any less startling. A couple of newspapermen were talking to Manager Stallings when he made a remark that about sums up the whole thing.

"I suppose Red Smith's loss is a great blow," was said to Stallings.

"Yes, it may prove that way," replied the manager.

"Well, it may serve a good purpose," said the newspaperman. "It may make them fight all the harder."

"I don't think it will," said Stallings. "I don't think the boys can fight any harder than they have already; they're the gamest in the country."

The chief has plugged the boys so full of this assurance that many are predicting that the series ends in six games, with Boston winning four.

Gowdy has more of a chance than ever to become the real hero of the series than at first thought, for it developed that Bert Whaling isn't in good enough shape to play. In a recent game in New York, Whaling was suddenly taken out. Now it appears that a stitch or torn muscle caused the sudden yanking of him, and now he is not able to bend down and give the signals.

This throws the entire catching end of the game on Gowdy and makes it appear almost a cinch that he will work in all the games. Quite a responsibility, but it happens to fall on one who works all the better when it is put up to him to come through and save the day.

Gowdy, by the way, is counted on by Stallings for some well-timed clouts in these games, for he has been moved to Red Smith's place, sixth position in the batting order. Smith was looked to for some long wallops, which is just about what they have put up to Gowdy to deliver.

BANDIT SHOOTS JEWELER

Two Escape and One Is Captured After Robbing Store

New York, Oct. 10.—Three armed highwaymen entered the jewelry store of Joseph Saresky on Broadway, in Brooklyn, tied his hands, beat and clubbed him and swept a quantity of watches and jewelry into a bag. As they fled Saresky made an outcry. One of them turned and shot the jeweler twice. Saresky was taken in a dying condition to a hospital.

Two of the highwaymen made their escape with the booty by means of an automobile waiting a block away. The third highwayman, with the smoking pistol still in his hand, was overpowered. He told the police his name was John Gaskin.

SLAIN BY MISTAKE

Watchman Mistaken For Yegg Who Had Robbed Postoffice Safe

Buzzards Bay, Mass., Oct. 10.—W. A. Harbroe, night watchman on the railroad bridge which spans the Cape Cod canal here, was fatally injured when Sheriff Harvey Hart or his brother, William, shot him in the abdomen, thinking he was one of the two yeggmen who, an hour before, blew open the postoffice safe at Bourne.

He died later at St. Luke's hospital, New Bedford. The shooting was accidental, and was the result of two sets of men mistaking each other in the fog and darkness for the yeggs.

THREE THOUSAND QUIT WORK

Buffalo Unionists Retaliate For Lockout of Iron Workers

Buffalo, Oct. 10.—A general strike of the building trades began here, about 3000 men laying down their tools.

The strike, union officials said, was in retaliation for the lockout of eighty union iron workers, employed on school buildings.

Structural iron workers, steam fitters, plumbers, carpenters, decorators, painters and their helpers are affected by the strike order.

Grondin Under $10,000 Bonds

Portland, Me., Oct. 10.—John H. Grondin, convicted of attempting to kill his wife in this city nearly two years ago, was sentenced to not more than ten years and not less than five years in state prison. An appeal was taken and he was released under $10,000 bail.

Big Crops, but Help Short

Pittsfield, N. H., Oct. 10.—Farmers throughout this section of the state report that the potato and apple crops are bigger than ever in this generation, but they complain that there is an insufficient supply of help.

Boy Kills Brother by Mistake

Swampscott, Mass., Oct. 10.—Joseph Strong, 14 years old, accidentally shot and killed his 8-year-old brother, George, with a revolver, which the older brother was trying out in the yard of their home here.

Army Flier In Height Record

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 10.—Captain Muller of the coast artillery corps established a new aviation altitude record for the United States here by rising 17,414 feet in a machine with ninety-horsepower motor.

Coal Freights Marked Up

Washington, Oct. 10.—An advance of 10 cents a ton in the freight rates on coal proposed by the southwestern railroads was filed with the interstate commerce commission.

Shackleton at Buenos Ayres

Buenos Ayres, Oct. 10.—Lieutenant Shackleton, the British explorer, arrived here from London on the first stage of his journey of exploration of the Antarctic regions.

Mrs. William Wilhoom, widow of the secretary of the treasury in President Garfield's cabinet, died at Williamstown, Mass.

President Wilson has taken his first ride in his new touring car. It is sixty-six horsepower.

MONDAY'S GAME.

After a weeks preparation the football team of Quincy High school is ready for the game at Arlington Monday afternoon with the High school of that town. The squad, including the 16 best men, coaches, rooters, "Swack" Harkins and other interested parties leave Quincy station at 1.13.

The team scrimmaged Friday afternoon with the Weymouth High team and showed to advantage. They were able to complete several forward passes in various ways. Weymouth completed but one during the scrimmage and that was while they were lined up against the second Quincy team. At times the team is still inclined to play a "ladylike" game but they are fast losing that quality. Larkin in practice Friday seemed to be a bit off color in his running but that can be easily remedied. He is at present suffering from the effects of two sprained fingers.

"Bunch" Arthur is back in the game and will play at right tackle. Hamlin will play the position on the defensive and "Bunch" will play the backfield.

Several new formations have been perfected which Quincy carries out with a snap and vim and there is every reason to believe they will defeat Arlington.

A few changes have been made in the lineup which will be of material advantage. Crocker who has so far recovered from an injury to his knee to get back will play an end, alternating with DiSenso. Crosscup has not reached the point where he is able to don the uniform, his hip still giving him considerable trouble. Otherwise the squad is in fine fettle and ready for the fray.

The arrangement made whereby the Weymouth and Quincy teams will scrimmage a couple of days each week is a good one and will be valuable to the men on both elevens.

It is the first time in the history of athletics at High school that any such arrangement has been made and its announcement was received with much enthusiasm by both players and rosters alike.

BELIEVER IN QUINCY

Frank F. Prescott,
Editor Daily Ledger:

As is usual at this time, discontented tax payers (and there are many of them) are seeking either revenge or reform

As in the past years, the mails are being flooded with literature from various aspirants for office, promising a lower tax rate and better conduct of the city affairs. Doubtless all these promises are sincere, but they are based on miscalculations.

The writer believes it to be a fact that not a dollar of the city's money has been dishonestly expended, yet the city is getting into deeper financial difficulty each year. The 1914 tax bills show that today we are worse off than ever.

True, the rate has been reduced, but valuations have been raised. One more than offsets the other, because next year, our contribution to the State, Metropolitan and County taxes will be based on this increased valuation. Rarely, if ever, is a city's valuation lowered so the net result is a permanent liability fastened on to the city.

Is it not time for us to consider where we are drifting? The course we are following can have but one ending. Instead of bringing to Quincy people who will increase our taxable assets, we will drive from it our large personal property taxpayers, who are here now and want to remain, if we will only put our City affairs on a sane business basis.

Quincy has already lost some of its taxpayers because of its high taxes. If more go, the burden must be borne by those who remain.

WHAT IS THE REMEDY?

The only remedy sought in the past has been in a change of officers.

Golden promises were made, new men elected, hopes raised, and relief anticipated, only to realize when September came it was the same old story—with Quincy one year nearer to the hour of its financial embarrassment.

If twenty-five years of administration by the best men we could elect has brought Quincy to the pass it is now at, then there is something radically wrong with some fundamental law or combination of laws controlling the free exercise of our right to obtain and live under the best form of municipal government.

It is said Quincy can be governed as a business corporation—that the same principles should govern each.

Is this so? Under existing laws can Quincy be so governed?

Can we go wherever we wish and pick our Mayor or General Manager, a man who has had the necessary experience and who has proved his fitness for the position?

Are we not restricted to a citizen of Quincy?

Is our Mayor obliged to give his undivided attention to the City's business? The position is surely important enough to require it.

In a business corporation the Directors, usually five or seven, elect the General Manager.

The board is not restricted to candidates from any one locality. It selects the most competent manthe business can afford.

The General Manager is given full authority in the selection of his assistants, the adjustment of his departments, so as to make a working unit, thus obtaining the greatest degree of efficiency.

No Board of Directors of a corporation the size of Quincy would think of appointing as General Manager, a man, who knew nothing of the duties of the office, either from actual experience, study or training. To do so, would be to invite bankruptcy. Yet that is what we have been doing and are now about to do, no matter which of the candidates is finally chosen.

The Board of Directors of a successful business corporation is in harmony with its management.

In Quincy, the Council is large—23 members—frequently antagonistic to the Mayor, and differing among themselves along political and other lines. Can you conceive of a more unbusinesslike condition of affairs?

I do not pretend to be qualified to suggest the remedy for this unfortunate condition of our city affairs.

From experience, I know what a business concern would do if it found itself in our condition. It would promptly obtain the best EFFICENCY EXPERT available for advice. The expert would study existing conditions in the business, and compare the same with those of other concerns operating on similar lines successfully. To secure this expert would cost money.

I am a native of Quincy. I believe in it and its future. With its natural advantages as a residential, manufacturing and commercial city is can be in prosperous condition.

I believe the time has come for our citizens to rouse themselves and endeavor to solve the problem of how best to govern and manage our municipality.

LET US secure the services of some qualified EFFICIENCY EXPERT OR ENGINEER, who will study local conditions and those of other cities, operating under commission form or otherwise, and make such recommendations as he may think the case requires. Nothing can be accomplished until a sufficient amount of money is pledged to pay for these services.

I know the City cannot afford to pay for such services but its taxpayers can.

I am ready to bear my share, no matter how much it may be.

I have deposited with this letter my certified check payable to the order of the Editor of the Daily Ledger, for $250.00, to be held until a sufficient sum has been subscribed for the above purpose. It will probably cost from $5,000 to $10,000 to do the work. I invite every citizen who can, to subscribe to such a movement and send his name and the amount of his subscription to the Editor of the Daily Ledger. As soon as $5000 has been subscribed, a meeting of subscribers will be held and proper steps taken to carry the plan into execution. If there is no occasion for using all the money subscribed, the balance will be given to the Board of Trade, or otherwise disposed of as the subscribers may decide.

MEN'S MEETING.

The men's meeting at the Water street Presbyterian church, Friday evening was largely attended by the men of the church. E. P. Conlan of Hdye Park gave an inspiring talk on big brotherhood which was listened to with close attention. The Orpheus Quartet proved themselves good entertainers, the solos and duets being exceptionally good. Harmony and good taste was shown in all the parts taken

The Registrars of Voters met in Ward Three Thursday evening and added 38 names to the voting lists, the great majority of which were from Ward Three.

TRIBUTE FROM MAYOR CURLEY

Mayor Miller a Loss to State and Municipality

Mayor Curley of Boston this morning issued the following statement regarding the late Mayor, John L. Miller.

"In the departure from this life of Hon. John L. Miller of Quincy, the loss is shared by the state and municipality equally with his immediate family. It was my good fortune as a member of the Granite Avenue bridge commission to enjoy the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with Mayor Miller whose very presence breathed the same character and rugged honesty that endeared the lamented President Lincoln to the American people.

"His every act in a public way was with as intent an interest as if it was his own private affair. It is unfortunate that men of the type of Mayor Miller are in the minority in this world of ours but the inspiring lesson taught by such men are beneficial during the time they are in our midst and are a source of inspiration after they are gone."

OFFICIAL INSPECTION

Miss Agnes E. Barry of South Boston, department inspector, visited Rebecca Wiswell tent, Daughters of Veterans in Grand Army hall Friday evening and made her second inspection since the tent was instituted over a year ago.

Gooding of East Weymouth, department aide, Commander Dr. C. R. Marston of Paul Revere Post, G. A. R. and comrade O. E Pierson of Braintree Members of Elizabeth Turner tent and the Weymouth tent were also present.

Refreshments were served and it was voted to have a supper and entertainment at the next meeting.

SAVE DOCTOR'S BILLS.

All good family physicians say: "Give the children Castoria." Healthy parents know this remedy of old, for they took it themselves as children. It was more than thirty years ago Castoria made a place for itself in the household. It bore the signature of Charles H. Fletcher, as it does-today. The signature is its guarantee, which is accepted in thousands of homes where there are children.

Much is printed nowadays about big families. Dr. William J. McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., is the father of one of these much-read-about families. Here is what he says:

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have, in my years of practice, found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

First of all it is a vegetable preparation which assimilates the food and regulates the stomach and bowels. After eating comes sleeping, and Castoria looks out for that too. It allays feverishness and prevents loss of sleep, and this absolutely without the us of opium, morphine or other baneful narcotics.

Medical journals are reluctant to discuss proprietary medicines. Hall's Journal of Health, however, says: "Our duty is to expose danger and record the means for advancing health The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowlegde Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health by regulating the system, not by stupefying it. and our readers are entitled to the information."

FANS WATCH BULLETIN BOARDS

A large crowd of base ball fans were lined up on the sidewalk opposite the Ledger office all Friday afternoon, with their eyes fixed upon the bulletin board upon which the score of the first game in the post-series between the Braves and Athletics was posted as fast as received. That it was an enthusiastic Braves crowd was evident by the joy shown as innings after innings showed the Braves to be putting it all over the Athletics.

The first score was posted shortly after 2 o'clock and from then on until the finish of the game the score was posted inning by inning. It was a good natured crowd that watched the bulletin board and while all doubtless were sorry that they could not been present in Philadelphia they were glad to do the next best thing, that is watch the Ledger bulletin board.

The scores of todays game will be bulletined as fast as received.

BOYS DEPT. HOLDS MEETING

The first of a series of Saturday morning meetings for boys from 10 years to 18 years was held this morning in the Association hall from 9 until 10 o'clock. Stereopticon slides were used, describing the life of a waif of England the story being read by the Boys' Secretary. The speaker for next Saturday morning will be Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott, pastor of Bethany Congregational church.

His message is sure to be of interest to all boys of Quincy and they are invited to attend.

A trip has been planned for the boys for Monday, Oct. 12th to Boston going to Boston common first and later visiting the Boston Y. M. C. A. Boys' department where the boys are going to enjoy games and have a chance to try the salt water in the pool.

They will be under the care of the Boys' secretary during the entire trip leaving on the 9.23 train in the morning and returning during the afternoon.

DR. BRUCE A CANDIDATE

All rumors to the effect that Dr. D. A. Bruce of Atlantic might not seek re-election to the School Committee on which he has served during the last three years, were set at rest yesterday when he declared that he had not the slightest intention of retiring, although his professional duties prevented his giving the matter much thought and he had delayed taking out papers.

Nomination papers for the doctor are being circulated by Charles E. Decker, who reports, that he finds a strong sentiment in favor of Dr. Bruce in Atlantic among the Democrats as well as the Republicans. Dr. Bruce has been practising at Atlantic for twenty years or more. He is a McGill university man and supposed to know something about educational matters.

SLIGHT FIRE SUMNER STREET

The alarm from Box 173 at 6.55 this morning was for a fire in the parlor of the house of Louis Katz at 108 Sumner street. When the department arrived they found the furniture of the room piled up in one corner and that the fire was in a lounge. A chemical stream quickly extinguished the blaze. Just what caused the fire is hard to tell. The loss Chief Billings says will not exceed $25. As the tractor has not been accapted as yet Chief Billings did not order it to respond to the alarm but said if he needed it he would telephone for it.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

The regular monthly meeting of the Sunday school board is to be held in Hall Place M. E. church vestry Tuesday evening.

Sunday, is to be observed as rally day by the Hall Place M. E. Sunday school. An interesting service and a large attendance is expected.

Wednesday afternoon the Ladies Aid Society of the Hall Place M. E. church, is to hold a rummage sale in the vacant store at the corner of Copeland street and Furnace avenue.

The Old Colony Association of Universalists meets at Assinippi Wednesday October 21 at 10.30 A. M., for morning and afternoon sessions. The Quincy church is to send delegates.

The Universalist Missionary Circle meets Oct. 19. They are preparing for a play to be given in the church vestry Oct. 22.

Mrs. Alexander Shirley entertained the members of the mission society of the Washington street Congregational church at her home on South street on Thursday afternoon..

The newly organized "Queen Esther Circle" of the Hall Place M. E. church is to hold its second meeting Wednesday evening at the home of the vice president, Miss Bessie Nicholls of Station street.

Memorial church committee at its monthly meeting this week advised holding to the regular church service for the winter instead of resorting to the stereoticon or other reactionary methods.

Isabel Kennedy, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Kennedy of Oak street, has been taken to the Children's Hospital, to have an operation to straighten her foot, which was affected by paralysis last year.

St. Chrysostom's Woman's Guild hold an all day sewing bee Wednesday in the parish rooms beginning at ten o'clock. Mrs. Vibert and Mrs. Hobson serve the luncheon, which will be followed at 2.30 by the regular business meeting. The Guild is busily at work for its fair.

The Walther Men's class meets Sunday at 12.15 i nthe Wolaston Baptist church. Prelude—"Dr. Eliot's Attack on Labor Unions." Bible Lesson: "The Establishment of the Lord's Supper." Song service. Chorus of men. Earnest discussions. All men invited.

Tuesday evening in the Wollaston Congregational vestry will be held the first meeting of the Men's Club. Chester I. Campbell, president, will preside. Supper is to be served at 6.30 sharp and good speakers will address the meeting.

The chorus choir of the Wollaston Baptist church under the leadership of Musical Director Amos D. Albee will sing Sunday morning and evening as usual. This strong choir of about 30 voices is doing very effective work and is adding very considerably to the inspiration of all who attend the services. Those having no other church home are urged to attend this live and growing church. Pastor Walther's subjects for Sunday are "Some Lessons from Jeremiah," and "The Greatness and Littleness of Man."

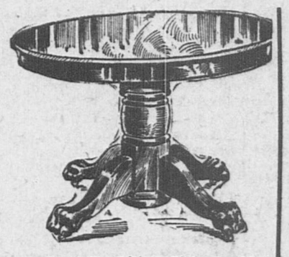

Many of the friends of Councilman Herbert Beeman of Ward Six regret that he is to run as councilman-at-large this year instead of from his own ward. With all the kicking that has been done by different organizations in regard to the city council, Mr. Beeman has had the confidence and respect, and received the largest vote from his own Ward. His attitude is the same this year that he has taken right along, he promises only to do the best possible when occasions arise.

Following Peace day Sunday the Atlantic Methodists began a series of revival meetings. The pastor preached on "The Longing of the Soul to see people saved." Tuesday evening. Rev. Mr. Neldon of West Quincy preached a very helpful sermon on the Brazen serpent. Wednesday night the message was given by Rev. Mr. Kelly of Newton Highlands, Thursday evening. By Rev. Dr. Parkinson, Newton Center. Friday evening and the singing Evangelist Mr. Noble. An interesting program is offered the coming week. Rev. Mr. Neldon will preach Monday night; Rev. Mr. Bailey of Wollaston Tuesday; Rev. Dr. Parkinson of Newton Center Wednesday; Rev. Mr. Gray the popular young pastor at Newton Thursday; the singing Evangelist Friday. This array talent will be a treat to Atlantic people. Mr. Noble's singing is attracting the public.

GIVES COMIC SKETCH.

Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church gave an entertainment in the vestry Friday evening which was of a pleasing character. The program was:

Piano,—Miss Irene Fitzimmons of Milton.
Reading,—"The Unknown Speaker." Rev. P. S. Neldon.
Solo—Raymond Cassidy accompanied by Miss May Critchley.
Sketch—"Perils of a Courtship per Telephone."
Piano—Miss Fitzimmons.
Solo—Raymond Casidy.

The cast of characters in the sketch was

Guy Harling	Robert McCormick
Ned Austin	Edward Newcomb
Nan Cuzzin	Mary Williams
Mary Halcome	Bessie Nicholls
Nora, a servant,	Addie Newcomb

Telephones are all right in their place but after one has notified a whole community of friends that a new one has just been installed in their house, the telephone is apt to re-act in a positively trying manner, especially if one wishes to be undisturbed.

Such was the position into which Miss Nan Cuzzin was forced when Guy Hailing tried to propose to her before he sailed for Liverpool: Each time just as he reached the exciting moment of "popping the question" the telephone would ring until in despair he decides to propose by telephone. Nan is so thoroughly disgusted with the phone that she refuses to answer it and leaves the room and in her absence Guy Harling proposes to Nan's cousin who accepts him although she is surprised. In the meantime her old lover returns from Australia and claims her, while Guy Harling finds out he has proposed to the wrong girl.

For a while matters are rather complicated but in a short time Guy Harling finds himself released from his telephone engagement and Nan accepts him, and her cousin releases Guy Harling (and herself at the same time) and gladdens Ned Austin's heart by saying yes to his proposal.

DECORATIONS WERE THISTLES

The Thistle Club, composed of South Quincy young ladies, entertained its many friends at its second annual dancing party in Alpha hall Friday evening. The hall was artistically decorated with streamers, the color of the thistle and set about the hall were nearly a hundred blossoms.

The matrons were Mrs. Alex Cowe, Mrs. J. Mathieson and Mrs. Joanna Norrie. They received during the early part of the evening.

The dance program included the modern dances and music was furnished by Garmory orchestra. Miss M. Belle Stronach was floor directress and she was assisted by Miss Jennie G. Grassick. The aids, all members, were the Misses Elizabeth Grassick, Florence Williams, Evelyn I. Cowe, Grace A. Lennon, Katherine E. Williams, Annie B. Norrie, Nellie Y. Norrie, Huena McLeod, Mabel Schofield, Marion A. Mathieson, Catherine J. Yule, Harriet P. Daly and Mrs. Rettie N. Flaherty.

ORIENTS VS. COLONIALS.

Ward 3 Playgrounds, Columbus Day 10 A. M.

The Orients and Colonials old time rivals from Wards 3 and 4 respectively will clash in what promises to be a red hot ball game on the morning of Monday, Oct. 12, at Ward 3 playgrounds. Both teams will be made up of players well known in this city, and who are known to put up a good article of baseball, whenever they play A big crowd is expected as there is always something doing from start to finish when teams from these two sections of the city meet on the diamond. The batteries will most likely be Bradley and Buckley for the Orients and McPherson and McDonald for the Colonials. Both are capable of forming winning combinations. Bradley, although having done very little twirling this year, has shown in what games he has pitched that he still possesses the goods, which made him so formidable in years gone by. His southpaw slants with his cool and cunning headwork will make him a hard man to beat. McPherson on the other hand, although not having as much experience in box as Bradley has developed into a good pitcher and has been a large factor in the showing of the Hibernians in the West Quincy league having pitched many a good game worthy of mention.

FOR MAYOR
GUSTAVE B. BATES

A SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS MAN FOR MORE THAN THIRTY YEARS.
A HEAVY TAXPAYER—HAVING PAID INTO THE CITY TREASURY DURING THE YEAR OF 1914 OVER TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS FOR TAXES.
GUSTAVE B. BATES PUBLICLY STATED TEN YEARS AGO.

"If I am elected Mayor, I would compel a change in the present methods of the Assessors' Department, as I do not approve of the present three way system of assessing to raise the tax levy. I am opposed to the discrimination, as exercised today, of taxing the poor man with a little home beyond and above the real value, while the taxdodger, the wealthy, and the corporations are favored and taxed below their real value. I do not believe in a system that compels the poor to be taxed by the foot, while the corporations are taxed by the Block, and the rich by the Acre. The poor man has enough to do to eke out a living and pay his proportionate share of the taxes without burdening him with excessive taxes that rightly should be borne by the wealthy and the corporations."

"I have the interests of our people and the taxpayers of this city at heart, but I am not a Political beggar, asking you for your votes. If you cannot see within me, in this contest, the possibilities of the accomplishment of the best interests of the People, I do not want your vote."

"I now leave this political question in the hands of the Voters, for you to decide,—whether you desire a change or a continuance of the existing conditions in our City"

Very truly yours,
GUSTAVE B. BATES.

Services Commemorating 275th Anniversary Of The First Parish Church Quincy

BRIEF HISTORY WITH LIST OF MINISTERS

Present Edifice the Fourth in History of the Parish

Many Men of Note Among its Thirteen Pastors

"We hereby covenant together to worship the Lord in Spirit and Truth and to walk in brotherly love and the duties thereof, according to the will of the gospel."

Thus reads the covenant adopted by the congregation of the First Parish church, in 1639, and upon which the church stands today, at the end of 275 years. In commemoration of this important period, in the history of the parish, special anniversary services were held Sunday, that of the morning at 10.30 being the anniversary service, while a "fellowship service" was held in the evening at 7.30.

The First Parish church is rich in history, dating back to a time when the now thriving city of 34,000, was a small precinct of the old town of Braintree. Pattee's history tells us that Rev. John Wheelwright was the first minister, who gathered the congregation in December, 1636; who preached his famous sermon on Farst day the following year for which he was banished in November 1637 following which services were discontinued until 1639.

REV. ADELBERT L. HUDSON.

Of the time of construction, or of the site of the first meeting-house, there is neither traditional nor recorded evidence. But extracts from diaries and letters of the time indicate that such a meeting-house was built during the pastorate of John Wheelwright. Of the second church there is no record of the time it was built, although a vane taken from the house at the time it was pulled down bore the date of 1666. Its location, it would appear, from records in Suffolk county, was on Hancock street near the head of what is now Revere road. The third church was located on the site of the present church and was erected in 1732 and was taken down in 1827.

FIRST CHURCH (UNITARIAN)
Under each of the central pillars is buried a president of the United States

The present edifice was erected in 1828, the foundation being commenced April 9, 1827 and on June 11, the corner stone was laid with appropriate solemnities. The church was dedicated to the service of the one living and true God, on Wednesday Nov. 12, 1828. Rev. Dr. Gray offered the introductory prayer; Rev. Mr. Brooks read selections from the Scriptures; Rev. Dr. Lowell offered the dedicatory prayer; the pastor of the church Rev. Peter Whitney preached from Genesis '8; Rev. Dr. Porter offered the concluding prayer.

Under the portico of the present church, lie the remains of the Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives. Some years ago a chapel was built at the rear of the church, or rather on the end toward Washington street.

John Wheelwright, Dec. 1636 banished Nov. 1637.

Joseph Marsh, May 18, 1709 died March 8, 1726.

John Hancock, Nov. 2, 1726, died May 7, 1744.

Peter Whitney, Feb. 5, 1800, died March 3, 1843.

Ellery Channing Butler, June 5, 1894, died May 10, 1912.

Adelbert Lathrop Hudson, installed March 17, 1912.

Both services Sunday were attended by large congregations. At the morning service there were noticed many former residents of Quincy who came to take part in this important event, while at the evening "fellowship service," several clergymen from out of town took part as well as two of Quincy's well known divines.

After the opening services, which included the organ prelude, congregational hymn, service of commemoration, anthem, scripture reading, prayer and response, the minister Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson read a letter of greeting and regret from Rev. Daniel Munro Wilson, a former pastor now located at Kennebunk, Me. In his letter Rev. Mr. Wilson says:

"Through you I have received the invitation, extended by the committee, to participate in the 275th anniversary of the First church in Quincy. Please extend to them my deep-felt thanks. To me it is an important event. I have lived so intimately with the life and traditions of the ancient church, both when I was its minister and since, that this celebration comes upon me as an event. It has taken possession of me; it has subdued me to a reminiscent mood which claims many hours of my present time and from which I find it hard to emerge while writing this letter. And it is a letter of regrets. By numerous ties, tender and lasting I am drawn herein in your glad celebration. I wonder that I can resist them. My place seems with you. But my duties here in my present pastorate have been accumulating through weeks of absence, amounting almost to an irresponsible term of absenteeism. Then with you, I am under the spell of this war-mad world and am compelled to think new thoughts and work out the pressing problems of a strange new age. I must acknowledge, also, that there settles upon me the conviction that I have uttered full enough with regard to the history of First church and in praise of its people, and that it would be quite becoming to retire into the silences."

"As my mind turns to this 275th anniversary which, in spite of distance I cannot help but feel we are enjoying together, I recall vividly the celebration of the 250th anniversary. It was a rare occasion. And in imagination I stand in the exalted pulpit a sea of loving faces looking upon me. Oh, how many of them

'Which I have loved long since and lost awhile,' making the present congregation for the most part one that would be new to me. The children that I knew and the unborn with their growing families mingle with those who are strangers to me. Twenty-five years make many changes. But I feel that America prays to God for peace, but over in Europe they've signed up with the devil.

A tremendous amount of Woman's Suffrage literature is being circulated, but possibly an improvement in the quality of bread and pie would be a more convincing argument with some men.

Many people felt very enthusiastic about Peace Sunday, until they learned that a contribution would be taken up for the Red Cross.

While football seems always likely to be a rough game, the use of dumdum bullets and shrapnel is prohibited

We have known many a man whose voice was for war, but when it came time to fight his legs were for peace.

The new peace treaties, if we are correctly informed, mean that hereafter a country that goes to war must be able to tell what it is fighting about.

The editor of the Daily Ledger upon returning from New York today was disappointed that more subscriptions had not been received to the fund proposed by "Believer in Quincy." He proposed however to get busy, and asks your co-operation.

ENTHUSIASM.

What a contrast the different sections of the country form to each other in the matter of displaying enthusiasm. For instance, on the day when the Boston National League ball nine clinched its lead in the peanant race, on its home grounds, scarcely a ripple of enthusian stirred the small and chilly crowd of fans.

The opposite thing is seen in any concert park where Southern people gather. Watch them cheer when the band plays "Dixie!"

If Boston wins the world's series contests, even the reserved New England temperament will boil over. But as a rule the North and East is slow to express feelings, the West and the South is spontaneous and unreserved.

Too many people, as they acquire, or think they acquire culture, feel that that it is undisciplined to show warm admiration. They think that an air of cold criticism shows more experience of life.

All which is a mistake. Enthusiasm is one of the great forces of the world. The more freely it is expressed, the more freely people feel like going ahead and doing things.

TAXED MAIL ORDER HOUSES.

The petition of many thousand retail merchants, that a portion of the war tax might fittingly be placed on mail order houses, will no doubt be attributed to the feeling of business rivalry. It is always unpopular and unconvincing to advocate a policy that seems to attack a competitor.

Yet on the matter of taxation, the retail merchant is often at a very unfair advantage. Peddlers come into his territory and hawk their wares from door to door. Not having any settled place of business, the majority of them escape taxation on their stocks of merchandise. The gain that comes from buying goods of a roving vendor who is not contributing to the cost of running local government, is a very doubtful kind of profit.

The competition of the mail order houses, as respects taxation, is of much the same character. These establishments are big and substantial. No doubt they pay large taxes where their place of business is located.

But the retail merchant finds it necessary to keep goods on hand where the public can see, touch, and handle them. This gives him a stock of large tangible value, accessible to the eyes of the tax gatherer.

The mail order house, meanwhile, is paying taxes in some distant city, which help to build up none of the communities where its business is located. It sells goods by catalog cut, and its patrons take the goods on faith. The stock on hand, though it may be large, must be relatively small when compared with the amount of business done. Consequently the mail order house must pay relatively small taxes.

Since the business of the mail order house covers many states, and often the whole country, it would seem only fair that it should pay a special tax to the general government. It must "get by" easily on a local tax based on tangible property in sight.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

(SPECIAL.)

Each week marks further improvement in the financial situation. The position of foreign exchange is daily growing more favorable and foreign transactions, though still seriously impeded, are being conducted with increasing facility. The formation of the $100,000,000 gold pool has afforded material relief, and is offering a conspicuous example of what can be accomplished by intelligent, unselfish co-operation. This war has brought many surprises; also some highly gratifying incidents. Among these must be included the work accomplished by New York bankers toward meeting the shock of war, thus preventing disaster and successfully adjusting our commercial affairs to the new situation. When the facts become fully known as to the ability, courage and unselfishness with which the new York bankers faced the most serious financial crisis in our history there will be less prejudice throughout the country, and particularly in political circles, against New York as a financial center. There are serious problems brought on by the war yet to be solved, but the worst part of the crisis has been safely passed. New York has certainly saved the nation from a disastrous panic.

The money market is also working into a much easier position. Good borrowers have less difficulty in finding accommodation and rates are somewhat easier. There is also a better demand for commercial paper which demonstrates improving conditions in the credit market. Much of the present depression in business is due to contraction of credit arising from the war. Needless to say any expansion of credit upon a sound basis will materially help the business situation.

The war continues the dominating factor in business affairs. Present indications are for a lengthy struggle Apparently it will resolve itself in a question of endurance and resources. As yet there are no signs of exhaustion on either side, in spite of the terrific exertions of the past nine weeks Great Britain appears to be feeling the war less than any of the contestants, owing to her insular position and her ability to keep the sea practically open to her enormous commerce. English industry, moreover has not been drawn upon as severely for recruits to the army as in the case of the other belligerents.

Our home trade is far from saisfactory. Contraction of credit has imposed more restraint upon business than was really necessary, and any relief in credit will unquestionably have a helpful effect upon general trade. Bank clearings are still running about 25 and 30 percent below last year, although this decrease is largely due to the closing of the various exchanges. Nevertholess, the volume of trade is considerably below normal. Economy is being practiced not only in business but in many homes and this affects the retail trades. New enterprises are almost entirely deferred. In consequence building is one-third less than a year ago; many undertakings are postponed, and there is a decided falling off in the demand for labor. The industrial outlook for the coming winter is certainly anything but encouragaing. On the other hand, the present situation cannot continue indefinitely. With reconstruction in the credit position, confidence will revive, purse strings will be loosened and industry will surely recover.—Henry Clews, Banker New York, Oct. 10.

275th ANNIVERSARY

I am still one with you all. More than that, I feel that fellowship in the ancient First church of Quincy has wrought in us all an indefinable, but lasting quality which makes for the best manhood and womanhood. It is something in all our lives to have come under the influence of the great traditions of this church. Not only has the religion for which this ancient society existed nourished famous men and women, but it has fostered in general a fine quality of New England character. Intelligent, tolerant, devout and truth-loving there has never arisen among the people of this church throughout the long generations a single person who cried out upon heresy, or urged persecution for witchcraft. The congregations have presented the finest type of a free and intelligent community naturally unfolding. I recall that Miss Eliza Susan Quincy said to me that she had lived in the best age of the world, in the best country of the world, and among the best people of the world. I need not say that she had in mind other places in our loved land than Quincy, but Quincy was certainly included in her vision. Quincy and the simple, kindly aspiring people of her day. And who will say she did not render true judgement? In the lurid light of our war riven day who does not turn with a sigh of longing to those peaceful times? But the future tumultuous though it may be, is thrilling with power unrealized. A new world is struggling to be born. There will be a demand ofr the noblest service of unselfishness and devout manhood and womanhood. May this church prove as helpful in the exacting days we are now numbering as in any period of the past."

"Affectionately yours,
Daniel M. Wilson."

Following the reading of Rev. Mr Wilson's letter, Henry M. Faxon chairman of the parish committee speaking for the officers and members of the parish said:

"To those who write or study history, 275 years does not seem a long period of time, but to us who are kept busy dealing with the problems of the present day and week, it seems to mark the very beginning of things and in fact, that is just what it does do for the people of this church and city.

275 years ago, what is now the City of Quincy was nothing but a small overflow settlement,—a few families belonging to the First Church in Boston and living upon grants of land in what was then known as 'The Mount. But with the consent of the Mother Church this Parish was regathered in the fall of 1639 and began its permanent life.

"For 191 years the history of the parish is substantially identical with the history of the settlement, the precinct and the town. Since 1830 other churches have shared its responsibilities and tasks, but from the beginning, the influence of this church has been of the utmost importance to the welfare of the community. Many of its sons have been called to positions of exalted service in the State and Nation, while the rank and file of its members have always been identified with the true progress of our town and city. I say these things not by the way of boasting, but to indicate something of the responsibility which, it seems to me, devolves on us to live up to our inheritance, and to pass on to future generations the great trust which has been handed down to us. And not only this, but to add some worthy contribution on our own part, to its usefulness and power.

"The officers of the parish are deeply gratified by the evidence on every hand, of growing interest and unity and loyalty among our members. There seems to be among us a reawakening of that sense of responsibility and duty which has been to New England its greatest strength. We look back with grateful pride upon the past, but may we not look forward with a reasonable hope of even nobler achievements in the days before us.

"On behalf of the officers and members of this parish I wish to pledge to our minister our hearty support and co-operation in the noble work to which he is giving his life."

The address on behalf of the congregation was by Brooks Adams, Esq. who said in part:

"I suspect I am not in sympathy with the easy optimism of the majority of my countrymen. I lack their confidence in the ftuure, nor am I convinced that our civilization is approaching perfection, or even that our race is standing on the verge of an era of brotherhood and peace. Yet my religious beliefs are simple.

"I start with the premise that, in my opinion, no society like anything which our ancestors or we have known can cohere without a faith in revealed religion, for without such faith, justice cannot be administered within the land. It cannot be administered because the administration of justice implies the right and power to coerce and, without a moral standard, society loses its coercive power.

"This moral standard, which I conceive to be the foundation of all justice and of all order, I cannot prove to be binding by an appeal to reason, for that surrenders my case. An appeal to reason isi an appeal to private peal to reason is an appeal to private judgment is an appeal to chaos, for judgments are as diverse as those who form them.

"And this is the rock on which, I apprehend, civilizations have often split, for men have occasionally tried to base their moral standard on reason and have uniformly failed.

"I take it to be an axiom that the family is the core of all cohesive society. Christ formally recognized the soundness of this axiom and stated it as a commandment when he declared that the husband and wife whom God had joined together should not be put asunder.

"In conformity with this commandment the Christian Church made marriage a sacrament and decreed that when men and women took the marriage vow they entered into a covenant which should endure until death; and this both because of the divine ordinance and because the Church held that the permanence of the family imported more to the human race than the hapiness or misery of the individual.

"The typical modern American woman tends to deny her responsibility as a wife toward society, husband or child. She owes only a duty to herself, to live for her own good, her guide being her own judgment. She has more or less completely established her contention for, by the legal action of divorce, marriage has become a relation dissoluble at will.

"With the family bond thus relaxed I should suppose that parental authority must gradually fail, and with the passing of parental authority, passes away the substance which has made society cohere.

"Our ancestors would have execrated such laxity in the conception of moral duty for, whatever their shortcomings may have been, they maintained their moral standard by a stern authority.

"Science can explain nothing, neither what is life or death, or even what is sleep. Philosophy is feebler still. For centuries it has striven to prove to us that we live, but philosophy today ends where it began. What folly for us finite men to strive by our reason to fathom the infinite; the infinite which, were it expounded to us by a higher wisdom, we could not comprehend.

"If, then, these scientists and philosophers, admittedly fallible even as I, ask me to take their evanescent theories upon faith, theories which, if I accept them, aid me not one jot in my purpose, why should I cavil at the ecclesiastical tradition which is no more incomprehensible and which gives me that moral standard with which I hope that society may live and without which, I fear, it must surely die? Before such an alternative I do not hesitate, rather I cry in the words of the father, told us by St. Mark, 'Lord, I believe, help Thou mine unbelief.'"

"We stand here in this church, at the very core and heart of protestantism. We are the offspring of the most ultra of protestants, yet we should never forget, that John Wheelwright and his kind did not protest against Christianity, but against, what they thought, a betrayal of trust by the guardians of the moral law. Thus honoring my ancestors and in the light of their example, I make profession of faith this day, for I can see no ground of protest against our church or the doctrine which she expounds. On the contrary, I rest tranquil in the conviction that she will defend as best she may that moral standard which I believe to be vital to my country and my age, and which she tells me that we have received from God, through the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ."

The anniversary sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson, on "The Faith of the Fathers." He distinguished sharply between theology and faith. With advancing knowledge, he said, theology suffers change, but faith is a fundamental instinct of the soul, as necessary to life as hunger to its body.

The Calvinistic theology of our forefathers has been relegated to the rubish head of out-grown things along with the crude mechanical devices with which they carried on their simple industries; but their unswerving faith in God still stands as New England's choicest heritage. It has been the source of that high standard of fidelity to duty which has made New England a mighty bulwark of Liberty and Righteousness.

Such faith is not necessarily antagonistic to scientific progress; but neither is it dependent on scientific assumptions. It is like a man's love for wife or mother—too sacred for analysis and too deep for doubt, and because it is so deeply implanted in our natures it is the greatest safeguard of civilization. To neglect this virile afith of our fathers, or to substitute for it the fascinating philosophy of Eucken and Bergson would be to devitalize religion and thus to strike a fatal blow at the stability of society.

The preacher spoke of Mr. Faxon's reference to those sons of the old church who had been called to positions of exalted service in the state and nation, and claimed them as the natural product of its sturdy faith. These men, he said, had no unique advantages: but out of the soil of our common life they had developed the capacity for noble service. They were nurtured in the sort of faith which makes men faithful; and a thoroughgoing revival of that faith is the most pressing need of our own time. He said he had been show in reaching the conclusion that a rational system of idealistic philosophy standing alone, is not a sufficient foundation for the building of character. But the logic of the times has demonstrated the need of a more positive and vitalizing faith.

"We stand today," said Mr. Hudson, "in the midst of vast confusions, and undisciplined ways of living. As individuals we are apt to forget that service and duty—not comfort and self-indulgence—must be the aim of the citizen in an enduring democracy. As a whole we are coming to accept, far too readily, the easy going standards of the social order about us. The need of the hour, in commonwealth and nation, is that we shall become in fact, as well as in name, a Christian people; that we shall restore to society the moral power of that earnest faith in God which was in our sires, and their obedience to his Will as revealed to them, and to us as well, in the life and teachings of the master, Jesus Christ. That is what we mean when we say that we believe in the 'Fatherhood of God' and the 'Leadership of Jesus'. If we are true to that standard, this ancient and honored church will enter today upon a new era of human helpfulness by means of a constructive faith.

At the close of the sermon the congregation joined in the service of consecration, which closed with the words of the covenant, noted above.

At the fellowship service in the evening several well known clergymen took part. Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott of the Bethany church and president of the Ministerial Union of Quincy, brought not only the greetings of the Ministerial Union but of the Bethany church. Rev. Mr. Willmott said he was well aware that an address was not expected from him. He was simply here to express the good will, and good wishes of all the churches of Quincy to this the First Parish of Quincy. It was a delightful fact that the ministers of Quincy are united on many things. It was a delightful experience that the ministers of the protestant churches were united. While we may not agree in many things I can say we are united in our duty to contribute toward the Kingdom of God. In closing Rev. Mr. Willmott said "God bless this good old church. I have enjoyed your minister and we are great friends and I hope that he will stay here as long as I do that we may continue to work together."

Rev. Carl G. Horst of the Wollaston Unitarian church read the Scripture lesson and the evening prayer was by Rev. Louis C. Cornish of the First Parish church at Hingham.

Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham, of the Arlington street church Boston a grandson of Rev. William Parsons Lunt, spoke of his early days when he came to Quincy to visit his grandmother at the old house on the hill and of his attending services at the First Parish church. Some men, he said, are born ministers, some men achieve it and others have it thrust upon them. He was of the first and last class.

He then went on to speak reminiscently of William Parsons Lunt. His first parish was in New York. The church of the Messiah which he took in 1828 when but 23 years of age. His health became broken down in 1833 and he was obliged to resign. In 1835 he came to Quincy, then a country parish. He spoke of Dr. Lunt's great work in Quincy and of his long desire to visit the Holy Land, which he eventually did, also of his death in the desert.

He spoke of another ancestor Dr. Frothingham and the hymns he had written on the occasion at the installation of Dr. Lunt and on his death.

Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, D. D. president of the American Unitarian Association, brought the greetings of that association.

The fellowship service closed with benediction by Dr. Eliot.

Mrs. Sadie M. Wood, N. G., of George L. Gill Rebekah Lodge has had the honor to be appointed D. D. G. M. of Amana Rebekah Lodge of South Braintree and Miriam Rebekah Lodge of Dorchester. Congratulations are being extended by her many friends and acquaintances.

Among Our Churches

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CHURCH.

The minister, parish committee and and members of the Wollaston Unitarian church cordially invite all, who have no church-home, to make this wide-awake and growing community church their church-home. We are here to serve not some special class, but the whole community and so heartily welcome to worship and work and privileges and opportunities all, irrespective of creed, color or nationality who desire to know truth and do good.

An adjourned parish meeting to hear the report of the building committee of a Community house will be held in the vestry Wednesday evening at 7.45. The prospects for this much needed addition to the church are most encouraging.

Additional contributions for the National Red Cross society will be gratefully received by Rev. Carl G. Horst or the Collector, Charles E. Barker, 294 Fayette street.

To the mother church, the First Parish in Quincy, most hearty congratulations are extended upon its 275th anniversary. The church takes not a little pride in the fact that at the Fellowship service the first hymn on the program was written by the Rev. Edward Augustus Horton for the 25th anniversary of the Wollaston Unitarian church, Jan. 31, 1913.

The Wollaston People's Religious Union meets in the Vestry, Sunday evening, Oct. 18 at 7 o'clock. The first social gathering of the Y. P R. U. will be held in Alpha hall, Tuesday evening, Oct. 27.

In the Wollaston Young People's Religious Union membership contest the "blues" lost and so give the "reds" a supper Friday evening, at 6.30 o'clock in the vestry Horton Page of Hadvard 1918 is captain of the Blues and Miss Katherine Reed of the Wheelock school captain of the Reds.

The autumn meeting of the Unitarian Sunday School society will be held at the First Unitarian church, Manchester, N. H., Wednesday Oct 21.

The Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches will be held in Channing church, Dorchester, Wednesday, Oct. 28.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

Sunday morning the pastor Rev. Joseph Walther, brought out some strong lessons from the life and books of Jeremiah; Jeremiah is not one of the popular Prophets of the old testament there were other Prophets more loved than he. Jeremiah was a man of destiny, God had a place for his life. Jeremiah was a man naturally diffident, shrinking and sensitive, he did not think he was fitted for the great work God had called him to perform, but he submitted to God's will.

God did not call Jeremiah to an easy task, it was a hard task he had to perform, and God saw that Jeremiah had the qualities necessary, although he was unloved and suffered most every persecution, except martyrdom. He was a great Prophet great in character, great in courage, great in endurance. He was a man that feared God.

Some of the lessons that the book of Jeremiah teaches is that present responsibilities, temptations, and troubles bear their relation to the future, and that the only way to fit oneself for the future, is to rightly use the present, by seeking God with the whole heart, although the life of man be marred, and maimed by sin, God can make that life over again, as the potter makes over the marred and broken vessel. The man who suffers for God's sake will in the end receive a just reward.

Nothwithstanding that many were away over the holiday the service was well attended. The chorus choir rendered very sweetly, "Heart be Still." The Sunday school followed the morning service with many interesting discussions on the lesson in he various departments.

The Junior Endeavor meeting held at 3.30 was in charge of Mrs. Joseph Walther subject "Our crosses and what to do with them."

Y. P. S. C. E. meeting at 6.00 was in charge of the president Harold B. Neal, subject "next steps for our society." 2 Pet. 1: 1—8.

The pastor took for the subject of the evening service at 7.00, "The Greatness and Littleness of Man." The chorus choir sang.

Tonight at 7.45; the Nearer and Farther lights society meets with Miss Ethel F. Hatfield, 106 North Central avenue, subject: "Alaska," leader Miss Grace A. Schermerhorn. Those who have earned dollars during the summer are requested to bring them to this meetinng.

Wednesday evening, at 7.45, a reception and home coming social is to be held in the chapel. All the adult members are urged to be present. There will be special features, refreshments and a good time to get acquainted.

Thursday evening the regular meeting for praise, prayer and testimony will be held in the chapel at 7.45; subject: "What we believe about Heaven." It is desired that a large number be present, to help make the meeting one of great value.

PARK AND DOWNS.

The pastor Rev. William B. Ayers gave his congregation at the morning service an interesting sermon from the 4th chapter of the Book of the Acts and took his text from the 12th verse. "There is none other name under heaven whereby men must be saved." The minister showed through the current literature of the day—the different theories which are offered to humanity, as adequate substitutes for religion. He explained how people think that providing good homes, and good blood to the children that all the material of redemption is afforded. He showed the tendencies to make society and the state do the work of transformation. And then he traced the goodness which is in home and social life, and the state to its roots which rest in the soil of Christian teaching. He showed the presence everywhere of man's need of redemption and showed the limits and the failures of all other agencies excepting the redemption of Christ. The evening discourse was another stirring and powerful talk on the present serious and heartrending trouble in Europe whereby many lessons are daily being taught us. The speaker took his text 1st Peter V—7th. "Cast all your care of him, for he careth for you." This was the fifth in the series on Great Lessons from the War. It was a comparison in leaderships—and it compared what human leaders exacted and took with what Jesus gave. It was a strong plea for the leadership of Christ. It showed by the use of many powerful illustrations from modern and historical conditions how other leaders heaped their cares upon their followers and made the followers bear the leaders burdens, while Jesus is the only one who bears our cares for us.

Saturday, Oct. 17 the primary department will hold from 2 to 5 P. M. a candy sale as well as brown bread and baked beans.

ATLANTIC METHODIST.

The text for the morning sermon at the Atlantic Methodist church was taken from Acts 19:2, Paul's language of the twelve men that composed the Ephesus church—"Have you received the Holy Ghost since ye believed." The speaker said "this question has been one of the most paramount importance to the church down through the centuries. There are two branches of sin, viz., actual and inborn. Pardon reaches the first and sanctification reaches the second. The atonement is full and complete.

The revival meetings are growing in interest and power. An interesting program will be given the coming week. Services each evening except Saturday. Charles C. Noble, an efficient singer conducts the singing which begins at 7.30 P. M. The sermon at 8 P. M. to which the public is invited.

SPIRITUALIST CHURCH.

Services were held Sunday at 2.30 and 7.30 P. M. Dr. Hubert Le Roy Clough of Boston, the well known lecturer and message bearer, who is known in Europe as well as here for his efficient discourses on the truth of Spiritualism, was the speaker of the day. His address under inspiration at 2.30 was on divine healing quoting the Bible on the healing power which Jesus had and giving the message that today God has the same work for all who will keep themselves fit for the Masters use.

Dr. Cloughs subject at 7.30 was "True Spiritualism."

Dr. Clough is willing to talk with anyone who wishes to do so at a series of meetings to be held in Electa hall every Sunday this month. Mrs. S. V. Odiorne, Mrs. Mabel D. Page, Mrs Lottie Brooks and Dr. Walter H. Rollins all contributed to the day and evening services and many expressed the wish to hear our friends again.

RUN-DOWN PEOPLE
Let Vinol Make You Strong.

Run-down conditions are caused by overwork, worry, too close confinement, a chronic cough or cold which it is difficult to cure.

We want to say to every person in this condition—you need Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, the great strength creator. It will supply iron to the blood in the most easily assimilated form, create healthy appetite, strengthen your digestive organs and make you eat better, sleep better and feel better.

A case has just come to our attention from Racine, Wis. Mrs. W. H. Brill says: "I was in a very bad run-down condition. Life was not worth living I could not sleep—was nervous and not able to work—and doctors failed to help me, but Vinol did wonders for me. In a short time I was stronger than ever and had gained 22 pounds."

We are confident that Vinol is the best body builder and strength creator we have ever sold. Try a bottle on our guarantee to refund your money if it fails to benefit you. Edward J. Murphy, Druggist, Quincy, Mass.

TRIED TO BOARD MOVING TRAIN

Russell Blank of Braintree Instantly Killed

A shocking accident by which Russell Blank, 22 years old lost his life occurred at the Braintree station shortly after 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Blank had an engagement in Pembroke and failing to catch an earlier train decided to jump on the next one, which is the Plymouth express and does not stop at Braintree. He leaped for one of the cars and caught hold of a hand rail, but the express was going at a speed of about 25 miles per hour and he was dragged beneath the wheels of the next car, the wheels cutting off both his legs and his right arm.

He was taken into the station and Dr. Chauncey M. Marstin was called and Dr. Chester H. Gould came soon after, but the injured man was beyond all aid and died in about 20 minutes. Medical Examiner Frazer viewed the body and it was placed in charge of an undertaker.

Mr. Blank had been a resident of Braintree but a short time and lived at the corner of Washington and Common streets. He leaves a wife and young child.

NEWS ITEMS FROM MILTON

The town of Milton, through Maurice Pierce, chief of police, won a test case in the Quincy court this morning, when Charles Sebbin, a driver for a Boston liquor house, pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal transportation in the town.

The case was brought by Chief Pierce to determine whether or not a dealer can deliver in a no-license town. Sebbin was represented by Judge Coan of the Municipal court of Boston. Judge Avery imposed the costs of court and ordered the liquors forfeited.

SPORT NEWS

The football team of Quincy High school journeyed to Arlington on the holiday, instead of beating the High school of that town by about 40 to 0 contented themselves with a 9 to 0 victory. Six points were made by Larkin, who scored after catching a pretty forward; one by Hamlin, who kicked the goal, and two more on a safety, an Arlington man being held behind after he recovered a punt blocked by Larkin.

The work of Capt. Larkin and Hamlin was pre-eminent, none of the players on the team equalling it. Each man was brilliant in flashes but prosaic football and perhaps a slight diminishing of fighting spirit kept the score low.

Quincy worked several forwards, two of them being intercepted while Hamlin secured one Arlington throw. Bogan played well at quarter and the line aside from an occasional weakening held fairly well. Many local fans saw the game.

GREAT GAME OF SOCCER

Fore Rivers Vanquished by Argentine Jackies

The soccer football team of the Argentine dreadnought Rivadavia achieved a remarkable victory over the far famed Fore River team at the Point grounds on the holiday morning by overcoming a lead of 3 to 1 and winning 5 to 4 in the fastest game ever played in New England. And, to make it more remarkable most of the visitors have not booted a ball since they left Buenos Aires.

In the first half the Rivadavias put up an exceptionally brilliant game and were aggressive throughout. The outside right was especially active and the forwards, backed by the half and full backs, especially the right back, played splendid ball.

Fore River did not have its entire first team in play, several substitues being used. The defense work of McGregor for the shipyard boys was very strong ,it prevented six scores at least.

The Fore River forwards played their usual combination game, supported by its half backs, especially the right wing where most of the work was done.

Harrison's two goals in that period were unsavable, both going through the bars like rockets.

The Rivadavia in this half showed themselves to be powerful kickers and after they scored their first goal Carruthers sent another under leaving the score 3 to 1 for the first half.

In the second half the visitors uncorked a phenomenal burst of speed which resulted in the Fore Rivers putting all their football knowledge in play. Despite that fact they were out played and the Rivadavias sent four smashing drives across, one of them a penalty kick.

The offensive work of Cachechi was the best seen here for some time and Belyudici, who has not booted a ball for nearly two years, created red hot excitement by putting two goals over through a stubborn defense.

Fernandez, formerly an inspector at the shipyard, played right back. He has been out of the game for about four years but his work was of high order. Cassin, the goal, proved to be the man of the hour, his defense breaking the heart of Fore Rivers. It was as surprising as unexpected and resulted in Harrison trying to throw the ball between the posts after Cassin successfully spoiled four beautiful kicks.

Experts say that the fast team work passing and shooting of the Rivadavia team has never been equalled in New England and it was a revelation to the English and Scotch players that make up the local team.

President Joseph W. Powell of the Fore River company kicked off the first ball and H. S. Snyder, vice-president of the Bethlehem Steel works was one of the first to cheer the team work of the viistors. Along the line were over a thousand fans, including men, women and children and from the start the Rivadavia boys were the favorites.

After the game they were entertained by the losers and another game arranged, the date to be announced. The summary:

Eddie Plank and Johnny Evers Are Veterans of Five World's Series.

Photos by American Press Association.

Eddie Plank, the veteran pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, and Johnny Evers, the scrappy little captain of the Boston Braves, have each taken part in previous world's series games. Plank's four have been with the Athletics, while Evers' two were with the Chicago Cubs. They are shown here shaking hands (Plank on the right) before the first game in Philadelphia. The insert shows Hank Gowdy of the Braves scoring the second run in the second inning of the first game in Philadelphia.

EMPLOYED BOYS ATHLETIC MEET

The new records were made on the night of the holiday in the Employed Boys handicap meet of the Y. M. C. A. one by Fred Kingsbury when he lowered the one mile mark from 5 min, 21 sec., to 5 min. 5 2-5 sec. Kingsbury was not pushed at all in this event and undoubtedly would have done much better if the contest had been closer. Alto Hall was the other member of the class to enter the "hall of fame" when he cleared the high-jump bar at 5 ft. 4 in. This beats the old record by 3 inches and will probably stand for some time to come.

Hall was also high point scorer for the evening, having a total of 14 1-2 points, and J. Sullivan a close second with 13 points.

The summary:

150 yard dash,—won by James Sullivan, time 19 3-5 sec., 2nd, Fred Kingsbury; 3rd, tie between John McNeil and Alton Hall.

Running high jump,—won by Alton Hall, height 5 ft., 4 in., 2nd, J. Osberg; 3rd, James Sullivan.

Standing broad jump.—won by Francis Newcomb distance 8 ft and 6 in.; 2nd, J. Sullivan; 3rd, A. Hall.

Six potato race,—won by John McNeil; 2nd, A. Hall, 3rd,. J. Osberg.

One mile run,—won by Fred Kingsbury, time 5 min, 5 2-5 sec., 2nd, J. Sullivan; 3rd, F. Newcomb.

MAY RAISE PRICES.

New York and Pennsylvania Publishers Consider Increase.

A strong sentiment pervades the publishers of daily newspapers throughout New York state (excluding New York city) and eastern Pennsylvania to increase the price of one cent papers to $5 or $6 a year. This includes the cities of Troy, Albany, Schenectady, Elmira and Binghamton, in New York, and Wilkesbarre and Luzerne and Lackawanna counties in Pennsylvania.

The publishers of the latter two counties are reported to be ready to hold a meeting with the sole object of discussing the matter.

The price of the Chicago Daily News was increased on Oct. 1 from 1 cent to 2 cents to all readers, subscribers and otherwise outside of the city limits. The price remains at 1 cent within the city of Chicago.

BIRD LECTURES.

Two bird lectures by Wm. L. Finley of Oregon are to be given at Huntington hall, Boston under the auspices of the Massachusetts Audubon Society, Oct. 24 and 31 at 3 P. M. Tickets may be obtained at the Society's office, 234 Berkeley Street, up to and including the hour of the lecture. Wm. L. Finley is one of the foremost authorities on birds in the country. Each lecture is illustrated with moving pictures and shows birds living and moving in their natural haunts, the charming intimacy of their home life and the incredible numbers in the flocks in the wild natural haunts of the West where they are protected.

The first lecture "Our Children and the Birds" shows the work of school children in actual bird protection, adopting orphan birds, putting up nesting boxes, also at close quarters the teeming bird life on the Oregon Coast Reservation and the inland lakes and marshes, shown in four reels.

The second lecture "Wild Fowl Nurseries of Oregon" shows home life in great bird colonies, adventurous cruising in search of nests, taking moving pictures in the aerie of a bald eagle, camping on sea-rock cliffs among myriad wild fowl, rock-reefs amid murres and sea-lions, and many wonderful and exciting adventures among great colonies of wild birds. Five reels.

The two lectures place one for hours right in the midst of some of the most wonderful bird life of the continent, an opportunity for intimate observation and study that would cost the individual months of time and hundreds of dollars, indeed would be entirely out of reach of the average indivdual under any circumstances, a moving spectacle of wild bird life such as has never before been offered.

Mr. Finley is without question the foremost bird photographer and bird lecturer in the country and his lectures are the very finest of the kind ever given. The opportunity to see his pictures and to hear him is a splendid one.

GOVERNOR ISSUES WARNING.

Massachusetts is confronted with a situation unprecedented since the establishment of the Weather Bureau. During a period covering forty-two days less than one-quarter inch of rain has fallen in the State. The hunting season opens next week and the Governor urges upon people to use every precaution to prevent forest fires.

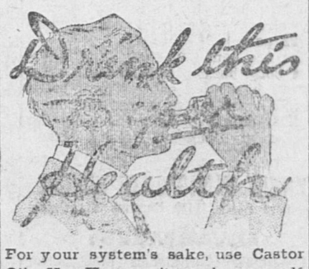

The Commonwealth has expended money and is about to make further expenditures for the reclamation of its forest lands and in restocking the covers with large numbers of game birds, while private enterprises are restocking the state with extensive and valuable orchards, all of which might suffer inestimable loss because of the carelessness of our citizens.

A great public good will be subserved if each individual will see to it that he or she will not be responsible for the starting of bonfires or any fires in the open.

They know by experience that Certain-teed is the highest quality roofing possible to buy and they know it is reasonable in price.

PRICE MAINTENANCE.
Its Necessity to Aid Consumer.

Many big industries engaged in national trade have often in the past done openly what the small concerns in their limited fields have done secretly—varied prices according to the degree of competition at different times and places. Their object has been to secure the highest price to be had, irrespective of whether the buyer was held up or not.

The principle of selling goods at a close margin at one place to meet or to kill competition, and charging a high price, to make up for it, where little or no competition exists, is economically wrong and unfair to the buyer. Every article offered for sale should have a uniform price plainly marked upon it.

Manufacturers will then have to see that the price of their goods is a reasonable one, so they will sell, and at the same time they will provide enough profit to pay the jobber and dealer fairly for handling the goods at a uniform price. This will inspire confidence in the consumer, because he will know the price can not be cut and must, therefore, be a reasonable one to permit the goods to sell. He will buy such goods in preference to a small selling article sold at exaggerated profits.

Everybody will benefit from price maintenance in this way. It will protect the manufacturer who has built up well-known brands, also the newcomer who is seeking to do so. Distributors will be protected in handling it at a fair profit, and they will not be forced, through fear of cut-throat competition, to build up their own private brands at much expense.

When you buy Certain-teed you have our real guarantee that it will last at least five years for 1-ply, ten years for 2-ply and fifteen years for 3-ply, and this guarantee is backed by the world's largest roofing mills.

There is a dealer in your city or town who handles Certain-teed products. He will be glad to give you information and prices.

BRAVES MAKE IT THIRD STRAIGHT

Take Twelve-inning Game by Score of Five to Four

GOWDY'S PLAYING A FEATURE

Athletics Seemed to Have Game All but Won In Tenth, When They Had Home Team by Four to Two—Winning Run Scored on Wild Throw by Bush In Twelfth

Boston, Oct. 13.—The Boston Braves, largely through Hank Gowdy, made it three straight on the Athletics when they won a hard-fought twelve-inning game by a score of 5 to 4.

The game was played before one of the greatest crowds that ever witnessed a world series. It was lost by a wild throw made by Bush, the nervy Athletic pitcher, in the twelfth inning. Three times the score had been tied. It seemed in the tenth inning that the Athletics had their game won when they worked over two runs and had the Braves 4 to 2.

Hank Gowdy, the batting sensation of the series, drove a home run into the centrefield stands in the Braves' half of the tenth, and, fired by his example, they tore in and put over the tieing run on a base on balls, a single by Evers and a sacrifice.

Gowdy was also responsible for the winning run in the twelfth. He was the first man up and doubled. Mann went in to run for him, and when Gilbert was sent in to hit for James, Bush deliberately passed him. Moran then rolled the ball toward the box in the grass. Bush dashed forward, grasped the ball and hurled it toward Baker in an attempt to get Mann. The throw was wide. Baker did his best to reach it, but it bounded toward the stands, Mann dashed over the plate, and one of the greatest games of the series was over.

In their section in Duffy's cliff, the Boston Royal Rooters were again in evidence while the Braves were turning back the Athletics for the third consecutive time. Even with the rest of the multitude of people which packed Fenway park to its capacity cheering like mad, the wild cries of encouragement of the Royal Rooters were heard.

Even the two runs that the Athletics scored in the tenth inning did not dishearten the Royal Rooters, for when the Braves came to bat in their half of this round the Royal Rooters yelled like a pack of wild Indians. Bedlam broke loose when Gowdy lined out his home run, and when Connolly' sacrifice fly scored Moran with the run that evened up the game again the Royal Rooters went wild.

But their enthusiasm in the tenth inning did not begin to compare with that which broke out when the Rooters saw that Bush's throw was wild and that Leslie Mann had scored with the deciding run.

Just before play, the Chalmers car, awarded by the Chalmers trophy commission to Johnny Evers as the most valuable player to his team in the National league, was driven on the field. Ren Mulford, Jr., chairman of the Chalmers trophy commission and a veteran baseball writer, made the presentation speech.

MAKE GENERAL ASSAULT

Republican Senate Leaders Attack Policies of Administration

Washington, Oct. 13.—A general Republican assault on the Democratic administration and its policies, with particular reference to the pending war revenue bill, was made in the senate, while Democratic leaders devoted their efforts to smoothing the way for early adjournment of congress.

Several senators vigorously assailed Democratic legislation and Democratic administrative policies, declaring that the $100,000,000 additional taxation now proposed was made necessary by Democratic blunders. They went into detail in their criticisms of Democratic extravagance in appropriations, providing ammunition for the fall campaigns.

Apathetic silence on the Democratic side greeted the outburst. Democratic leaders planned to allow the Republicans to have their own way, then pass the tax bill and adjourn. Senator Simmons, however, made a brief reply to attacks on the Democratic tariff.

URGE WORLD PEACE

Columbus Day Orators Express Grief at Horrors of War

Boston, Oct. 13.—Although yesterday was intended to be a day of rejoicing over the 422d anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, so heavily does the present tragedy in Europe weigh upon the minds of the people that the observances were turned into pleas for the urging of universal peace.

Throughout almost every speech there was a note of grief at the horrors of the war and a spirit of thankfulness that this country enjoys the blessings of peace.

The day was celebrated by band concerts, flag raisings, speeches and observances in the churches, culminating in a monster meeting last evening under the auspices of the city in honor of Christopher Columbus and of the propagation of universal peace.

CAUSE REIGN OF TERROR

Zapata Adherents Make Night Attack on Mexico City Suburbs

Mexico City, Oct. 13.—An attack made on the night of Oct. 10 on San Angel, Xochimilco and other suburbs of Mexico City by adherents of Emiliano Zapata, caused a reign of terror in the capital until yesterday.

The suspense was relieved when it was officially announced that Zapata's followers had agreed to cease all fighting until the termination of the peace conference between the northern and southern constitutionalists at Aguascalientes. The troubles in the suburbs were satisfactorily adjusted.

Supposed Pauper Had Wealth

Chicago, Oct. 13.—When Michael Kennedy died sixteen months ago the county paid for his funeral. Kennedy left stocks and bonds valued at $42,000, just uncovered in a safety deposit box.

LADIES NIGHT OF MEN'S CLUB

Interesting Address on "The World We Live in"

At the first ladies night and fall meeting of the Atlantic Men's club in Memorial church Monday night the vestry was filled and overflowing and extra chairs had to be brought in to accommodate all. The menu consisted of roast beef, mashed potatoes, green peas, celery, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake.

The musical program was of the usual high order. There were selections by the Ivonian quartet of Stoneham and William A. McDevitt of Boston. The music was inspiring and the large audience showed its appreciation by the applause which called both the quartet and soloist for repetitions.

Rev. Harold Marshall of Melrose was the speaker of the evening. By way of introduction and preparation he told several humorous anecdotes which kept the audience in laughter, then led to serious thought on the theme "The World We Live In."

Mr. Marshall said in part:—"The world we live in at present may seem like a fierce wicked world by what is going on in Europe, but if we interpret what is going on as the last fierce combat of the world of yesterday with the better world that is to be tomorrow, we can see a ray of hope and keep our faith in God and man.

"The world has outgrown the individualism of the part. It is a world with a social consciousness and social aim. No man can get drunk in a community today and say it is nobody's business but his own. There is a community interest, and influence to be considered. And the individual today must consider himself a part of the social unit. In business life we have co-operation, and co-operation is not for the gain or the few, but the good of community. In religious life we can look with admiration at the missionary age, then the organization of ecclesiastical machinery by the church of the middle ages and then after the reformation came the division of the church into sects, but all of this was individualistic and not social. But to keep up that division and sectarian strife today is waste. Who would think of having several city governments set up today, one for republicans, one for democrats, one for progressives, and another in some corner away off by itself for prohibitionists. The ideal today is for a community church that will work not for any sect, but the community in which it is placed. Then our newspaper needs to be brought into line for society and not for any private interest. We pay a penny for a paper, but some firm has paid a thousand dollars more for that same paper, and it is easy to see where the greatest influence will be exerted. It is possible to have a public newspaper that will give facts, and not exploit the public ofr the gain of the few."

Mr. Marshall was urged to keep on when he felt that his time limit was up. His address compared very favorably with what the club has had at all of its meetings.

President Reed announced that he hoped to have a speaker next time that has been in touch with the European war.

HARRIS—STONE.

Miss Margaret G. Stone daughter of C. H. Stone of 5 Summer street, South Braintree and Winslow M. Harris of Quincy were united in marriage Saturday evening.

The ceremony was performed at 9 o'clock at the pastor's residence by Rev. A. L. Hudson of the Unitarian church of Quincy.

The bride's brother Weston E. Stone of South Braintree was best man and the bride was attended by her sister Miss Ruth E. Stone. After the ceremony, there was a reception for the young couple at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Beausang at Adams Shore and they were assisted in receiving by Mr. C. H. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Beausang, Miss Carrie G. Stone and Miss Ruth E. Stone. Mr. and Mrs. Harris will make their home in Quincy.

LAMBS ROASTED AT BARBECUE

Various Party Candidates are Among the Speakers

It is estimated that upwards of 2,000 people, men women and children accepted the invitation of the campaign committee of James E. Wall, and attended the barbecue given on the old aviation field at Squantum Saturday afternoon. The barbecue included the roasting of ten lambs on spits over a charcoal fire, and ice cream and cake which was served the women and children.

J. H. Hagan presided at the meeting and brief addresses were made by Temple A. Winsloe, David McIntosh, Hon. Guy A. Ham, Richard Olney, 2nd, Councilman Carl E. Carlson, Mayor Harry Howard of Brockton, Charles W. Proctor, Senator L. F. R. Langelier, William E. Robertson, State Treasurer, Frederick W. Mansfield and by candidate Wall. During the afternoon there was music by William McDermott, Misses Edna, Louise and Florence Sullivan, which included piano, vocal and cornet solos.

PROUD RECORD FOR QUINCY

The record of the Police department over the holiday seasons speaks for itself.

From 11.45 Friday night, until shortly after 10 Monday night, Columbus day, not a wheel of the Police department turned, no arrests were made, and no complaints of a serious nature were filed at headquarters.

The record aside from being remarkable, surpasses all previous ones, and not within the memory of the oldest officers has a Saturday night and holiday passed with some arrests.

REV. SIDNEY K. B. PERKINS.

Rev. Sidney K. B. Perkins, a native of Braintree, died at Revere on Saturday, aged 84 years. Rev. Mr. Perkins was a son of Rev. Jonas and Mrs. Rhoda Keith Perkins. He was educated in the public schools of Braintree, Monson academy and Amherst college. He fitted for the ministry at the Bangor Theological Seminary. After graduating he was principal of the Hollis school at South Braintree for two years. He has held pastorates at South Royalton, Vt., Middleton and Raynham, Mass., and Perry, Me., covering a period of 48 years.

He married Miss Laura L. Brocklebank of Meriden, N. H., in 1862, who died in 1891. He is survived by two children Henry M. S. Perkins of Medford, and Mrs. Charles G. Sheppard.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

The games in the World series are being bulletined promptly at the Daily Ledger office.

Charles Tirrell has accepted a position as engineer in a laundry at Brockton.

Norfolk County probate court will be held in this city tomorrow morning.

Corps 103 will have a supper and whist this evening.

George O. Langley of Washington street is entertaining his sister and husband of Haverhill, for a week.

A communication has been received from George Ernest Bowman relation to the Mayflower signature which will be printed tomorrow.

The many friends of Mrs. Mabel Jilbert of Baxter street are pleased to see her out again after a few weeks illness.

Mrs. Annie Arnold of Elm street left Monday for a few weeks visit to her son Herbert Arnold at Concord, N. H., where he is an instructor at the St. Pauls school.

James Morrison of Washington street who underwent on operation on his foot four weeks ago at the City Hospital has fully recovered and resumes his duties in Boston this week.

The Registrars of Voters will meet in City Hall this evening and will be in session again Wednesday at City Hall from 12 o'clock noon until 9 P. M., when registration will close.

Mrs. James Nightingale of Granite street announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ada M. Nightingale to Frederick Eaton Tupper.

A man giving his name as Frank G. Hanson, claiming to be a liquor dealer of Dartmouth, N. H., was placed under arrest by Patrolman Sweeney on a charge of drunkenness, and was placed on probation by Judge Avery this morning.

Arthur B. Hultman, after a vacation, has resumed his duties at the District court. Most of the time little "Art" was fishing, but he modestly declined to make any mention of the size of his catches.

The auto of Edward J. Fegan, Democratic candidate for mayor, lost a front wheel on Hancock street Sunday, and in dropping to the street upset his father and mother who were passengers. They escaped with only a slight shaking up however, the moderate speed of the car telling the story.

Edward P. Powers, who proposes to run as the Citizens candidate for mayor, will be host tonight to all the candidates at an open rally in the Casino, Houghs Neck. Party designation cuts no figure, according to Mr. Powers, who believes in giving all a chance to put their views before the voter. A general invitation has been spread broadcast to aspirants and voters alike. Mr. Powers will preside.

EXTRA

TODAY'S GAME IN BOSTON

May Wind-Up the World Series

The batteries for today's great game are:

Athletics—Shawkey and Schang.
Braves—Rudolph and Gowdey.

The Athletics went to the bat promptly at 2 o'clock and quickly went out in the one, two three order.

The Braves were retired in the same order. Score at end of first innings 0 to 0.

In the first half of the second inning the Athletics were again retired without scoring. The Braves likewise failed to score. Score at end of second inning Athletics 0, Braves 0.

The Athletics and Braves both scored goose eggs again in the third. Score end third innings 0 to 0.

QUINCY ATLANTIC

Miss Isabel Knights of Somerville was the guest of Mrs. Fred Foss of 61 Faxon road over the week end.

Harry William Hinckley, one of the best known young men of Atlantic, claimed Miss Mary Ethel Moseley, a Dedham girl, as his bride on Columbus Day. The ceremony was performed at the home of the parents of the bride by Rev. William F. Cheney, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Oakdale. A reception followed which was attended by relatives and friends from this city and other places about Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Hinckley left on a wedding trip through Maine and New Hampshire and on their return will make their home at 165 Davis street, Wollaston.

William Doucette of 41 Tolman street, Neponset, was arrested by a policeman from Division 11, Dorchester, Monday night, charged with assault and battery on Charles Nelson of 71 Hancock street, Quincy, the night of Sept. 26. He was arraigned in the Dorchester Court. Nelson, a special officer in Quincy, was standing near 487 Neponset avenue waiting for a Quincy car when he was attacked by a crowd of young men, among whom, it is alleged, was Doucette. Nelson is stil at the City Hospital in Boston.

WEST QUINCY SOCIAL EVENT

Miss Reynolds the Bride of Dr. Lawrence Kelley

Miss Mary Eleanor Reynold, a sister of Dr. John T. Reynolds of West Quincy, and Dr. Lawrence Kelley of Peabody, a native of Haverhill, were married in West Quincy on Columbus Day. The ceremony was performed in St. Mary's church by Rev. Fr. Thomas R. McCoy, pastor, who also celebrated a nuptial mass. The affair was the leading social event in Catholic circles of the city this season.

Miss Susie Mawn of Winchester was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Catherine Mawn of Winchester, and Miss Carroll Hines of Boston. Eleanor Reynolds, a little daughter of Dr. Reynolds was the ring bearer.

William Carlin of Peabody was the groom's attendant, and the ushers were Harry Talty of Woburn, Gus McDonough of Woburn, Daniel F Looney of East Weymouth, Dr. J. McGann of Boston, William McAuliffe of Boston and Frederick Maloney.

The bride was gowned in white satin wit h trimmings of duchess lace, and her bridal veil was caught up and crowned with lilies of the valley. She carried a shower bouquet of the same blossoms. The attendants wore dresses trimmed in duchess lace.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of Dr. Reynolds, Furnace Brook parkway, after which there was a reception. Included in the guests were 300 people from New York and places in the greater Boston district.

The house was attractively decorated with potted plants, cut flowers, ferns and foliage.

Dr. and Mrs. Kelley are now on a wedding trip to New York and on their return will live at Peabody.

QUINCY WEST

Miss Bertha Slauger, the 17 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Slauger of 26 West street, and Frank Zopatti of 17 Douglas street, both of West Quincy were married Oct. 11 by Rev. Fr. Cypiano Paolini, O. F. M., at Boston. Miss Slauger was one of the youngest brides of the year and because of her age the consent of both parents was required. They will live in West Quincy.

The fox hounds of Miss Helen Elcock, known in hunting circles as "Nimrod" have taken all the prizes at the Brunswick Fur Club show at Medfield. "Saturn" took the first as well as the prize offered for the best dog in the show. "Quincy Belle" received first honors as the best female. Several others were awarded to Miss Elcocks pets. In all 14 fox hounds are entered in the hunt by "Nimrod."

Joseph Rouleau of West Quincy, taken by the police of Cohasset on Monday, and arraigned in the District Court this morning on a charge of violation of the auto law, testified strongly in his own behalf and succeeded in having his case placed on file. The police of the town attempted to show Rouleau was a reckless driver, and said that he followed a zig zag course along South Main street, the centre of the town. Rouleau said it was due to a leaky tire which was almost flat and caused the wheels not to follow and that he was on his way to a Cohasset garage to secure a jack to make the repairs, his own jack having snapped on the road. He testified his speed did not exceed more than 10 miles an hour, and that this explanation had been made to the officer.

A runaway horse, owned by the Boston Ice Cream Co., endangered the lives of many people Monday night, the wild carer of the frightened animal only being checked when a piece of the broken shaft penetrated the heart of the horse causing it to fall dead near the corner of Hancock street and Revere road. The horse started from near the company's plant on Federal avenue and dashed through South Quincy to Revere road. The horse was being driven by Harold Irwin of 26 Foster street who was thrown from the wagon as the horse started. Young Irwin landed on his left side and arm both of which were badly bruised.

QUINCY SQUANTUM

Another successful Military whist was given Saturday night by the Squantum Women's club at the home of Mrs. George Hersey, Trevor street. Nine forts, all hoping they might be the strongest ones to win the pretty souvenirs were the cause of much enjoyment. Those holding the highest scores were Mrs. George Morrill, Mrs. John Holmes, Mrs. George Hersey and Mrs. Hiram Morse.

Mr. and Mrs. William Reed spent the week end at their summer home on Bellevue road.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Orr of Newtonville were among those to open their home at Squantum for the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith had for week-end guests Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Dargie and Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Stowell of Gardner.

Louise Osborne Holt was the soloist at the church services Sunday. Mrs. Charles Bostwick the accompanist. Rev. Thomas W. Davison preached a very interesting sermon to a large congregation.

There will be a meeting of the Squantum Improvement Association at Community hall tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Wunderlich, Catherine Wunderlich and Miss Margaret Grady were at their Squantum home, Bellevue road, for the week end and holiday.

Paul Lovejoy spent Sunday and Monday at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lovejoy, Hampden street.

FIRST RUNS NEW TRACTOR

Slight Fires on Fayette and Parker Streets

The Fire department responded to three still alarms Sunday. The Central station extinguished a fire in the dump off Merrymount road in the morning, and a fire in the woods off Quincy avenue in the evening. The Atlantic combination extinguished a fire on the Neponset bridge.

On Monday the Central station apparatus responded twice for a fire in the old tree on the Dorothy Q estate, once in the morning and again in the afternoon.

In addition to these there were two bell alarms on the holiday which gave the new tractor steamer its first service runs. The first alarm was from Box 116 at 1.27 was for a fire in the marsh off Fayette street, Wollaston. There was no damage. At 3.46 an alarm was sounded from Box 41, for a fire in the woods off Parker street. The sparks from this fire alighted on the roofs of two nearby houses starting slight fires. These fires were extinguished by chemical streams.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR QUINCY ATLANTIC

Building Permit Granted to Large Concern for Manufacture of Rubber

Will Be Located Near the Atlantic Depot

The chances are that the near future will see another large industry established in Quincy. This time it will be a concern for the manufacture of rubber goods.

The proposition of the company which is owned by A. A. MacLaren of Hyde Park was brought up before the Board of Trade at its meeting last week. Evidently the proposition has been accepted, and the capital desired has been secured, for Mr. MacLaren has filed an application with the Inspector of Buildings for a permit to erect a manufacturing building.

The site of the proposed manufacturing building is on Linden street, just off Hancock street and near the bridge over the railroad tracks at the Atlantic depot. It is understood that the company has secured about two acres of land and it is so situated that it can readily be connected with the railroad by a spur track.

The application filed calls for a main building two stories high to be of brick 50 by 80 feet with an L 29 by 30 feet, the cost of the building being estimated from $12,000 to $15,000. The architect of the building is John O. DeWolfe of Boston, and it is understood that the contract has already been let and that work on the foundation will be commenced this week.

FELL FROM RAILROAD BRIDGE

In trying to avoid a swiftly approaching freight on the main line at 4 o'clock this morning, a man who said he was Thomas Postos of North Weymouth fell from the bridge over the Butler brook and landed on the dried brook bed, 10 feet below. He struck on his head and was rendered unconscious.

Recovering from the effects of his fall he crawled to the home of W. H. Collins on Grant street, where he aroused the occupants and asked for assistance. They rendered first aid and summoned the police ambulance.

Postos was taken to police headquarters where an examination showed he had sustained no serious injury. He complained however of severe pains about the head and neck, but as far as is known nothing serious has developed. He was taken to his home in a taxicab.

Postos said he lost the last train from Boston and walked out over the tracks. He said that in trying to get off the track he stumbled and pitched headlong to the brook bed below.

While the first fighting was going on in the streets of Alost, Belgium, J. Frank Brockliss was operating a moving picture camera. ANDERSON THE SPEAKER

At Congregregational Club of Quincy Wollaston

The opening meeting of the Wollaston Congregational Men's Club was held in the vestry Tuesday evening.

After the usual supper a business meeting was called at which the president, Chester I. Campbell, presided.

Various reports were read, among which that of the Minstrel Show committee stated that preparations were well under way and promised well for this season's entertainment.

Rev. Isaiah W. Sneath told the club of a deserving needy family, and a collection was taken for their benefit.

Thomas F. Anderson, of the Boston Chamber of Commerce gave a very interesting lecture on the tour through the various countries of South America of a delegation from the Boston chamber of which Henry L. Kincaide was president.

Their course started on the northwestern coast and followed south to Chili where they were very graciously entertained. Then a trip was made over the mountains into the Argentine Republic and across the plains to Buenos Aires.

Few people realize what a center of culture and commerce this city of Buenos Ayres has become. Its streets are very wide and are laid out systematically at right angles. On the principal avenues the buildings are of uniform height, which characteristic applies particularly to the business blocks. The city is well provided with high class schools and theatres and customs and fashions are of the latest type as they receive them direct from Europe.

Bethany Congregational church has contributed $50.81 to the Red Cross fund for use in Europe.

RALLY FOR ERICSON

Several of the Candidates Speak at His House

An enthusiastic Republican rally was held Tuesday evening at the home of Councilman Charles A. Ericson, the Republican candidate for representative from the Fifth district. The rally was very largely attended, and there was a good array of speakers, who included Hon. Guy A. Ham, Republican candidate for Councillor, who spoke for about thirty minutes on "why the country is in distress."

Other speakers were Senator Louis F. R. Langelier; Mayor Harry Howard of Brockton, Republican candidate for Congressman; Representative Edward J. Sandberg, Republican candidate from the Sixth district; Col. A. L. Whitman and Councilman Otto Gelotte who were defeated by Councilman Ericson for the nomination in the Fifth district, who spoke highly in favor of Councilman Ericson. Councilman Herbert G. Beeman gave credit to the services of Mr. Ericson as a member of the City Council and also gave his reasons why he should be sent to the State House. There were also several other speakers.

The opening reception of the pupils of Miss Marion E. Bill, a well known exponent of the modern dances was held in Alpha hall. Tuesday evening and was well attended. Miss Bill and J. Paul Gardner of Castle house gave exhibitions of the Maxixe, Fox Trot, Brazilienne Polka, Lulu Fado. The matrons were Mrs. W. A. Bills and Mrs. M. E. Bill. Music was by the Bowles Tango orchestra.

CHURCH FOR ALL THE PEOPLE

Editor Langtry Addresses Unitarian Club

Some plain talk on the attitude of the church to the public,, direct from the shoulder, was handed out to the Wollaston Unitarian club at its opening meeting of the season on Tuesday evening, when Hon. Albert P. Langtry of Springfield, was the speaker. Mr. Langtry is now a member of the State House commission and editor of the Springfield Union, and was recently secretary of state.

Dr. Charles E. Munroe welcomed the club, and the blessing was asked by the pastor, Rev. Carl G. Horst.

As usual the members sat down to a hot roast beef dinner at 6.30, which was up to the usual standard. The menu included: Beef cut and served on table, mashed potatoes, peas, celery, ice cream, cake and coffee.

The club has recently increased the membership limit from 100 to 150, and has voted in several new members, so that the need of larger quarters is apparent.

President Munroe in introducing the speaker, reviewed briefly some of the movements to interest men in the churches, and said Editor Langtry would speak on "A church for the people."

Mr. Langtry said he felt at home, as he is a Universalist. His explanation of the difference between Universalists and Unitarians was new to many. He told one of Speaker Reeds stories relative to Dr. William Everett formerly of Quincy. When Dr. Everett some years ago was elected to Congress. Speaker Reed asked, "What is the business of the new member?" The answer was: "A Unitarian minister." Speaker Reed came back with the sally—"I supposed he was a religious man!" Speaker Reed was a Universalist.

Christ's church should be trying to do God's work. All men love honesty It was shown even in the Bowery Theatre at New York when the hero is cheered and the villain hissed. Many are too insistent that their creed is the only proper creed. But most of us inherit our creed. Personally, I have never taken the trouble to investigate any other.

Religion is growing, because the average man is more honest than at any time in history. Being honest is religion, or at least a big factor.

Our morals are better today. Nasty stories are going out of date. Today men are more gentlemanly. Churches are an induction of civilization and hospitality.

Of all the churches I like best the Baptist and the Methodist, because their welcome to the stranger is more hearty. The hardest worked man today is the christian minister. Many seem to think he is "hired" to do all the work, and forget their duties to the pastors.

How much does the church ask of you men? Only one hour on a Sunday! But how numerous the excuses. Yet you have time for bridge, the theatre, and golf (some on Sundays.)

The trouble with our churches is—there is too much dress. Workers cannot feel at home alongside the rich, and they are not welcome either. One church in New York has a sign—"No admittance." In England there is a church with a sign—"Pews for the poor." Isn't that hospitable? We haven't learned how to do God's work.

The speaker sympathized with revivalists and paid tributes to "Billy Sunday" and the Salvation Army. Why are there more women than men in the churches? I dont know. In every church I would like to see a poor men's club. In that club I would allow games, card playing, dancing or any innocent pastime the people demand.

Creed should not keep the churches apart. He told of one small town with four churches (one a Catholic where the four pastors had a club and met together every week.

People are too mean toward their church, but have money for everything else. If all paid what they

SWITHIN LOT FOR SCHOOL HOUSE

School Committee Again Vote in Favor of That Site for Ward Two

Give a Hearing to Owners of Various Estates

An important special meting of the School Committee was held Tuesday evening to consider the matter of the site for a school in the Quincy Point district.

Two weeks ago the Committee on Public Buildings of the City Council reported an order for the purchase of a lot on the Paul Wild estate off Washington street.

As there was some opposition to this site the Finance Committee requested the School Commitee to consider the several lots offered and report which in their opinion was the best lot.

At the meeting Tuesday evening the owners of the several lots were present and made their statements to the Committee. Every member of the School Committee was present at the hearing, after which they went into executive session.

The committee voted unanimously in favor of the purchase of what is known as the "Swithin lot," situated off South street, as being the lot best adapted to the needs of the department. The committee also voted to send a communication to the City Council setting forth its reason for selecting the Swithin lot.

BON FIRES ARE FORBIDDEN

Owing to the present long dry spell and the great danger from fires, the Fire Hazard Commission has notified Chief Billings of the Fire department to revoke all permits for fires, and to prohibit the building of bon fires of any description for the burning of dead leaves and rubbish of all kinds as long as the dry spell continues.

Commissioner Brown has issued orders to all men in the Street department to refrain from setting fires to dead leaves, etc., in the streets and the Commissioner hopes that all citizens will co-operate with the Street and Fire department, and refrain from building bon fires of any sort until the dry spell is broken.

Mr. Amundsen anounces that he will postpone his proposed arctic expedition, but we didn't know there was any fighting going on up there.

We are wondering what will happen to those Hapsburgs.

It is a good thing for the Dove of Peace that it is a migratory bird.

The Monroe Doctrine ought to be able to take care of itself for a while now.

Acting Mayor Whiton can be found on his job at City Hall every morning, and he is using his best endeavors to give the city a good administration for the balance of the year. The citizens must realize, however, his position with but three months to serve and practically all appropriations for the year made and all work started, so that it is impossible for him to outline and maintain any set policy. He, however, promises, and those who know him, understand without further notice, that he will give his best endeavors in the interest of the city, for the remainder of the year.

CAMPAIGN ORATORY.

The style of campaign oratory is changing. When most of us were boys, the typical campaign address was a "rousement." Fiery wind jammers were sent out from headquarters who duty was simply to enthuse "the boys."

Few members of the opposite party would attend such meetings. Such opponents as were present were too fixed in conviction to be converted. All that could be done was to impress the faithful with the imminent peril in which the republic stood, in case the vile and degenerate opposition candidate and his disgraced and discredited party should win the succeeding election.

The political funny man had an assorted collection of stories and anecdotes, largely handed down from previous generations. But still, when pronounced with emphatic unction and forceful gesture, they used to sound good, even if musty. These stock anecdotes could be applied equally well by the orators of either party to the other. They convinced no one.

The shrewdest speakers are those who give due weight to the arguments of the other side. It is often good politics to admit that your opponent is an honest man and a good citizen and that the opposing party may have good ideas, if they only knew how to work them out.

Starting from such a basis, the sagacious speaker gains the confidence of his audience by the appearance of fairness. Then he is in a position to go on and show where the ideas of the opposition are mistaken.

Even the rustiest Uncle Reuben can spot a gold brick today. Also he can recognize political bunk. The very first essential in a political speech is to give the audience the impression that you are fair and open-minded. A speaker who can't do that would better keep still while the Cross Roads band plays a tune.

CANDIDATES AT HOUGHS NECK

Mr. Powers Asks "Is Mayoralty For Sale?"

"Is the Mayoralty of the City of Quincy for sale? Is this sacred office merely a thing of barter to be bought and sold over the counter like so much salt pork or any other commodity of commercial life?" These were the startling questions asked by Edward P. Powers, who proposes to run for the office of Mayor on an independent ticket, at an open rally held under his auspices at the Casino at Houghs Neck, Tuesday evening, and attended by several candidates.

"Is that your conception of the highest office within the gift of the people of this city, continued Mr. Powers? If it is, then I am through right here and now, because I am not for sale. I am my own master, and as a candidate for the office I can neither be bought or traded with, and I will not buy the civic rights of my fellow man."

And Mr. Powers, in addition to continuing his talk along these lines, presided at the rally and presented the visiting speakers—Guy Ham, candidate for the Governors council; Senator L. F. R. Langelier who asks for re-election; Representative Edward J. Sandberg, who makes a similar plea; Representative Michael T. Sullivan, who aspires to a third term; Councilman Daniel R. Corcoran who seeks to displace Representative Sandberg, and Quincy's candidate for congress, Henry L. Kincaide.

Mr. Powers, in a short introduction said, "In view of the reported enormous sums of money said to be subscribed in the interest of certain candidates for the office of chief executive of this city; sums so large that it is reported that the District Attorney of Norfolk County is watching the contest with a view towards official action in connection with the corrupt practice act, I ask seriously and honestly, as one of the stockholders in this great municipal corporation of ours that important question,—"Is the Mayoralty of the city for sale?"

"If I, as Mayor, cannot be chosen representative of the people of Quincy, then I will not be the chosen representative of a few who may have money with which to buy their way through this world. I don't believe the people of Quincy intend to sell their political birthright. I think the people believe with me, that the office of Mayor is a thing too sacred to be offered for sale in the public market, but, if by any mistaken chance they do, then let us surrender our rights to self government now and petition the money kings of the land to dictate to us as their vassal slaves.

Mr. Powers declared against an efficiency expert as proposed by the Daily Ledger correspondent, and said when that necessity comes there will be no use for the office of Mayor. "Quincy is all right and its charter is the best in the state, and if this charter is honestly lived up to and carried out fearlessly, Quincy can be the best governed city in the state."

"I have made no promises so far in the campaign said the candidate, and I will make but one, and that is, if elected Mayor, my only platform will be the City Charter of Quincy, and my motto will be common man-to-man honesty in enforcing the provisions of that charter in every detail of our city government."

Guy Ham spoke of the duties of the Governors council, the indications of his election, and touched briefly on civic affairs.

Representative Sullivan mentioned grade crossings and his lone fight, and Senator Langelier defended his opposing vote on the anti-injunction bill.

Representative Sandberg spoke of his efforts to assist the city and the district he represented, and Councilman Corcoran discussed his service in the Council and the support he would give legitimate legislation.

Col. Kincaide strongly advocated government regulation of prices, stating government should help big and little business, that every corporation was entitled to reasonable dividends on the money invested, that employees should receive substantial wages, and those in charge were entitled to a reasonable return. He pointed out that the custom which has permitted big business to control the commodities of this country should stop and where corporations demand unreasonable profits from the public the government should step in and put a stop to such practice.

In other words, said Col. Kincaide, the power of regulating prices when unreasonable profits are demanded, should be supervised.

He also went over the social welfare problem, touching briefly on the growing demand for old age pensions, workingmen's homes and minimum wage for women, all of which, worked out along lines adopted by foreign countries, would be no great burden upon the country, and be a wonderful help to the working class.

He told of the great army of volunteer workers throughout the district, irrespective of party, who are working for his election and said his strength was increasing daily.

Close to 300 people, including many women attended the rally.

APPEAL TO FRIENDS.

Martha Ellingson, the 16 year old girl of 18 Curtis street, who had her leg cut off and narrowly escaped being killed last June at the Quincy station railroad crossing, has now been discharged from the City Hospital and is at present with her aunt enjoying a few days recuperation with friends at the Cohasset beach.

Her pressing need at present is money for an artificial leg. Miss Ellingson had just began to work at a Boston concern to help her aunt keep the home together when the accident occurred, and the home was thus deprived of the much needed income.

In order to give her many sympathetic friends an opportunity to assist in this so worthy cause the Daily Ledger columns have been opened, and credit will be given from day to day to all subscribers.

Forward all money to Rev. Paul Hallin, 101 Glendale road, Quincy, who has been appointed treasurer for this subscription fund, or the editor Daily Ledger.

WEYMOUTH WEDDING.

Miss Velma L. Collier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William O. Collier, was married to Nathaniel F. Ford of Weymouth in the bride's home on Sea street Tuesday evening. Rev. Charles Clark of the Pilgrim Congregational church officiated. The double ring service was used. Herman P. Collier was the best man, and the maid of honor was Miss Helen Burgess. The ushers were Alva H. Picknell, William H. Gregg. The couple will reside at 322 Bridge street, North Weymouth.

MRS. ELIZABETH HALVOSA.

Mrs. Elizabeth Halvosa, who enjoyed a large circle of friends died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Moyle 116 Upland road, Monday, after an illness of 18 months duration. Mrs. Halvosa was the widow of William Halvosa and leaves four sons and two daughters, Thomas and William of Barre, Vt., Philip of Quincy, Abbott of Connecticut, Mrs. Moyle of Quincy and Miss Lillian Halvosa of New York Funeral services will be held from the home of her daughter Mrs. Moyle, at 116 Upland road, this evening at 7.30. The burial will be at Westerly, R. I. tomorrow where services will be held at he Methodist Episcopal church at 1 o'clock.

DISTRICT COURT.

August Carlson was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy and placed on probation until May, 1915. Daniel Noonan and Cornelius Growberg were fined $10 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Joseph F. Shepard and Fred Shepard were each arraigned on complaints for assault and threatening assault on G. Serafenelli at Quincy. Cases continued until Oct. 20.

MAYFLOWER AUTOGRAPH

Editor Daily Ledger:

In your issue of Tuesday, the 6th instant, I note in an article under the caption "Historical Autograph," referring to the signature of Samuel Fuller on a deed made in 1650, now in the possession of this Society, you say "A dispatch from Plymouth however takes some exceptions as to whether the signature of Samuel Fuller, the credit of finding of which is given to George Ernest Bowman, editor of Pilgrim Notes and Queries, is that of Samuel Fuller of Scituate, who came with his father Edward Fuller in the Mayflower."

In this paragraph you state that doubt has been cast upon the genuineness of this autograph signature. This dispatch, which you apparently found in the Boston Sunday Post, does not convey any doubt as to the genuineness of this autograph. It merely challenges the supposed claim that I had found something not heretofore known,—namely, an autograph of a Mayflower Passenger.

Under separate cover, I send copies of the July, 1914, issue of "The Mayflower Descendant," and the September, 1914 issue of "Pilgrim Notes and Queries." In "The Mayflower Descendant," you will find a half-tone reproduction of the deed in question with notes by myself and a complete copy of the deed and the endorsements thereon. On pages 191 and 192, you will find a brief article in regard to the Collamore Papers. In the "Pilgrim Notes and Queries," you will find a more extended article on the Collamore Papers. An examination of these three articles will show you that I made no claim to have discovered the only autograph of a Mayflower Passenger. I merely announced that I had at last secured for the society the gift of such an autograph.

If the first article in the Post had been submitted to me before publication, I should have insisted on the correction of the misleading heading and first paragraph. Unfortunately I did not see it until after it was printed.

A Plymouth paper immediately, and justly, challenged the supposed claim, that this was the only Mayflower autograph known, and the Post, without giving me an opportunity to explain, printed another article last Sunday which does me a serious injustice, but does not in the slightest degree challenge the genuineness of the autograph.

As your paper, has stated that the genuineness of this signature is doubtful, and thus has seriously reflected upon my honesty and my accuracy as a historical student, I must request you to make correction of the error.

Yours truly,
George Ernest Bowman,
Editor.

NORTH WEYMOUTH

The plant of the Boston Ice Co., at Weymouth Great Pond was burned Tuesday morning and the loss was $40,000. The buildings destroyed included five large houses, a stable with 40 stalls, toolhouse, dynamo house and engine house. The stable was empty and there was little ice in the house. Six families were driven from home by fire in the thick woods, now under control. The reflection illuminated the sky and was plainly seen on Beacon hill, Boston, and scores of auto parties went through Quincy on their way to the scene.

If You Have or Know of a Delicate Child Read This Letter.

"My little daughter Louise, age 9 years, has alway been delicate, anaemic, had no appetite and seemed listless, and we could not seem to find anything that would help her, until we were advised to give her Vinol. She started taking it six weeks ago and inside of two weeks she showed a marked improvement both in appetite, vim and looks. Being so well pleased with the results, I continued giving it to her, and words fail to express my gratitude, and faith in Vinol both as a blood-maker and body builder. As my child was an anaemic for so long makes the reason all the stronger for me to recommend it to others in similar condition." Geo. E Munro, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Vinol restores health and strength in conditions like this because in a natural maner it increases the appetite, tones up the digestive organs, enriches the blood and strengthens every organ of the body.

of England, France, Germany and Russia are not permitted to use a pound of alum baking powder. The efficiency of the soldiers depends too much upon their health and endurance to risk the use of food which the authorities believe would be detrimental. Therefore the manufacture and sale of the alum powder is prohibited.

Royal Baking Powder is extensively used privately and by the military forces throughout the world. Its absolute wholesomeness, imparting as it does, healthful as well as appetizing qualities to the food, and its perfect keeping qualities in every climate and under different conditions, make it particularly desirable for all conditions of use.

REVENUE LAWS: 1912 AND 1913.

Director William J. Harris, of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce, at Washington announces that a bulletin containing a digest of the laws relating to revenue systems of the state and local governments has been completed and is now ready for distribution. The bulletin describes in detail the different sources of revenue in each state, including general property taxes, poll taxes, the inheritance tax, corporation taxes, the income tax, and business tax, licenses, and fees, and in the case of the general property taxes enumerates the classes of property subject to such taxes, the methods of assessment, equalization, and collection, and the statutory limitations of the rates of such levies.

The laws relating to taxation, as shown by the present bulletin, have undergone great changes since 1902, which was the date of the last report on this subject issued by the Bureau of the Census. Among the changes to be noted has been the creation of numerous tax commissions in the various states, having wide discretionary powers over the administration of the work of local officials connected with taxation, and full power over the assessment of the property of corporations doing business in two or more counties of the same state.

What Local Clubs are Doing

News of Women's Clubs is a feature of the Daily Ledger every Wednesday. Secretaries of organizations should send notices of club activities, to reach the Club Editor not later than Tuesday night to insure insertion the next day.

The season of the Thursday Evening Study Club was opened Oct. 9 with the regular autumn social at the home of Mrs. Levi H. Turner. A pleasant evening was spent. Games and music were enjoyed. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. The club will continue the study of German history which owing to the situation in Europe makes this study particularly interesting.

The first meeting of the season of Charitable Ten Circle of King's Daughters will be held Monday at 2.30 with Mrs. Thomas Fenno of Hancock street. A large meeting is hoped for as the coming annual meeting has to be planned. Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick will continue the Study of the Bible which has proved so interesting and instructive.

* * *

The monthly social teas held the first Friday of each month from three until five o'clock by the State Society D. R. commenced this month at the Society headquarters in Boston and will continue through May.

Tuesday afternoon Miss Nancy Barbee is to tell southern dialect stories and sing plantation songs for the entertainment of The Philergians of Braintree. It will also be donation day when members are asked to contribute to Friendly Aid Visiting Nurse supply day. The Exchange department is also to have a sale of kitchen commodities.

Christ Church Women's Guild meets tomorrow afternoon in the parish house to sew for the coming fair.

Oct. 19, in Ford hall, the first fall meeting of the Women's City Club of Boston will be held. Dinner, at 6.30, will be preceded by a reception in Kingsley hall. At 7.45 there will be a stereopticon lecture on "The European War and the Far East" by Professor Toyokichi Iyenaga, Ph. D., of Columbia University. It is expected that the clubhouse at 40 Beacon street will be ready for occupancy early in November. A house warming extending through a whole week will then be announced. The furnishing committee will be glad of the gift or loan of articles in keeping with the period of the house. A course of conferences by Mrs. True Worthy White on "The Social Significance of the Modern Novel" is planned for Thursday evenings in November.

* * *

All the members of Unity circle, Kings Daughters, are enthusiastic over the Kings Daughters edition of the Daily Ledger which they will issue early in November. All the circles in Norfolk county are also interested and will contribute reports from their circles. Others have agreed to write special articles and there will be no lack of material, some of which will be illustrated. Already merchants and others have taken advertising space, while the people generally are subscribing for one or more copies, some five and ten. The Kings Daughters are an organization that should be encouraged.

GENERAL FEDERATION MESSAGE.

Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker,, president of the General Federation, has sent out a message to club women as follows: "Since our organization has pledged itself to Peace, let us pray fervently that all war may cease. Our duty does not end with prayer, however. Want and suffering threaten our land from the two million workers thrown out of employment. At this moment all those who depend upon the cotton crop—the planter, the broker, the manufacturer, the wholesaler, the retailer—are in dire straits. We women can help this situation. We must have cotton goods sooner or later in our homes. After a Sabbath of prayer, let every one of us buy, as generously as we can afford cotton material made in the United States. We should go a step further. During all the winter shopping it is our duty to ask always for goods made in America, insisting that the quality of these goods be of the best, thus spurring our own artists and workmen to their highest creative power and their best craftsmanship Never have we had such an opportunity to show the world that we can and will make any sacrifice to save our country from ruined plantations, silent spindles, closed factories and starving workmen."

QUINCY WOMAN'S CLUB.

"Our part is to conspire with the new work of new days, a heart, to resolve, a hand to contrive, a hand to execute."

—Mrs. Browning

Tuesday afternoon the Quincy Women's Club began another season of meetings with a large gathering of members at the clubhouse. The president Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, at the entrance to the large room greeted old and new members and also after the meeting received informally. New members and special guests were presented with a tea rose and the same flower beautified the tea table and the president's stand.

The president expressed her pleasure at meeting the club members after the summer vacation, and spoke of the unforseen event—the great war which not only affected Europe but our own country. She asked for the singing of one verse of "The Star Spangled Banner." The president accompanied at the piano; Mrs. Frank J. Moore sang the solo and the club joined in the chorus.

After the club was seated the usual reports were given by the clerk and treasurer, also a brief report of the board meetings showing $100 of the money from "The trip around the World in eighty minutes," given for a paid supervisor for the Young Women's Club, also that the club was working with the Federation of Clubs and Board of Trade for a waiting room for the street railway in City Square.

The corresponding secretary announced that extra club books or by-laws could be obtained from the treasurer for 10 cents each. Also she had application blanks if any had friends they would like to get into the club early in the season.

The president made several announcements referring members to the bulletin board for fuller detail She spoke specially of the Pure Food Exposition at Mechanic's building Boston, in which club women were much interested. Tea was served each afternoon by different clubs. Oct. 29 would be Quincy day, the Quincy and Wollaston clubs uniting in serving tea. Membership tickets would admit to tea room but regular tickets would be necessary for admittance to the Exposition. Mrs. Worster called attention to the State Federation booth, which was Four C. on the first floor of the building. Here gifts for Christmas could be bought which would not only help the buyer but help the Federation.

Mrs. Penney in behalf of Art committee had a pleasant surprise for the club, in the presentation of a framed photographic reproduction of one of Mrs. Kitson's masterpieces, the marble figure "Hope." A rising vote of thanks was extended Mrs. Tenney and her committee and to Mrs. Kitson.

Since the last meeting the husbands of two members had died: Gilbert M Miller and Mayor John L. Miller, and it was voted to send letters of sympathy to their families.

Among the committee announcements Mrs. Hunting for the Visiting Nurse said a song recital was to be given Nov. 2 at 3 o'clock at the clubhouse to raise funds for the work Mrs. George G. Saville would give the history of old English ballads and her daughter Miss Catherine Saville would be the soloist.

Mrs. Safford announced a series of opera talks by Havrah W. L. Hubbard of the Boston Opera house, under the auspices of the Wollaston Woman's Club for which she was receiving subscriptions.

Mrs. Bates for the Music committee spoke of "The Mikado" to be given in February, the parts to be taken by men and women. Singers were desired for the chorus work and those desiring to assist were asked to send in their names to Mrs. John F. Hunt chairman of the Music committee.

Mrs. Blanchard for the Art and Arts and Craft announced the forming of classes.

Mrs. Whitcher for the Legislative committee announced a class in parliamentary law, Mrs. Electa Sherman, leader, the first meeting to be this week Thursday morning at the clubhouse. The course tickets $1.00 to club members and $1.25 non-members or 25 cents and 35 cents for single tickets. She urged members to join the class believing it would be of great benefit to them.

Mrs. Moore for the Home Economics committee said the minstrel show had been postponed. She announced a free lecture at the clubhouse, Saturday, Nov. 7 at 2.30 P. M. when David J. Hickey would be the speaker. Every member and a friend was urged to be present at the lecture.

Mrs. Mackay for the Forestry committee told of the great work accomplished on the trees by the men working through her committee. That Quincy people were interested in saving their trees was shown in a substantial way for they had expended $2,200 on the trees the past season which was a wonderful incentive to the Forestry committee. At the next club meeting bottles of various tree pests would be exhibited.

Following the reports there was a group of songs by Frederic Kennedy, soloist at the Rogers Memorial church at Fairhaven, with Mrs. Hunt at the piano. He sang "In a Garden" and "Serenade" which were so well received that he was called back for another.

Three delegates to the annual meeting of the State Federation at Worcester, brought back interesting reports. Miss Hattie E. Turner told of the first day's program; Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham of the second day and Mrs. Edward B. Marsh of the social side of the convention. The reports in full would be interesting reading but space will not permit the printing of them.

Following a group of three songs delightfully sung by Mr. Kennedy, reports of the Biennial meeting in Chicago last June were given by Mrs. John B. Worster and Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop; both interesting and entertaining. These reports contained so much food for thought and present so fully the work of the million or more club women that they will be printed in full in the women's edition of the Daily Ledger to be published in November by the King's Daughters.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. J. Harry Poole of the Brockton Woman's Club, and a director of the State Federation. Her subject was, "The Habit of the Creature" or the Cable of Habit."

We are creatures of habit, be they good or bad, and the more we indulge ourselves the more firmly is the cable welded. It was poor policy to foster the trivial or bad habit as it would become fixed, while on the other hand a good habit could not be too much encouraged.

Try for happiness, not the pleasures that come from seeking excitement but that which radiates from within, from right living and right thinking. Learn to smile, to say please and thank you. A smile and a cheerful word go a long way in brightening not only ones own life but every one one comes in contact with. A please, or thank you, to a tired clerk might brighten a weary day. Sing about your home, be neighborly, make the home happy, the neighbor happy and the community.

Mrs. Poole urged club women to try being happy for a while and see what in effect it would have on themselves and others—a happy inspiration for the beginning of the club year.

Mrs. Walter E. Burke of the Hospitality committee served tea, assisted by Mrs. Laurance H. Sturtevant, Mrs. Frederick H. Breslyn, Mrs. Ernest L. Collins and Mrs. Charles L. Homer, Mrs. Edward S. Tenney and Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham presided over the tea urns.

It was a bright fall afternoon and the meeting was permeated with a bright and happy spirit of sociability and unity in the present and forward look to the season's work so well expressed in this year's motto in the club book, which heads the beginning of this report.

WOLLASTON WOMAN'S CLUB.

Tuesday, Oct. 20 the Wollaston Woman's Club will have the privilege of listening to Elizabeth Pooler Rice, when she will present "Friend Hannah." This day will also be "donation day," when each member will bring something from her store of good things such as, jellies, preserves, fruit, vegetables or money which will be distributed among the city's worthy poor by the Social and Industrial committee. The donation may be sent to the homes of the chairman, Mrs. Charles R. Adams, 62 Brook street; Mrs. A. L. Baker 17 Winthrop avenue; Mrs. Charles E. Goodspeed, 114 Grandview avenue; Mrs. Samuel Chapman, 21 Willow street, or brought to the church where a committee will be ready to receive them.

The Home Economics committee, Mrs. John O. Short, chairman, is making elaborate preparations for the Hallowe'en dance to be held Oct. 30 at Alpha hall. This dance is the second of its kind given by the club and will probably become an annual affair.

The Current Events class holds its first meeting Monday, Oct. 26 at 3 o'clock in the vestry of the Wollaston M. E. church. Mrs. Pennock is to conduct the class, and it is hoped as many as possible will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing this most interesting speaker. Tickets may be obtained of Mrs. Willard E. Keyes, 362 Beale street and members of her committee.

The evening of Nov. 3 club members and friends are to have the pleasure of listening to John Kendrick Bangs in his lecture "Salubrities I have met." Unlimited guest privilege has been voted by the club and tickets may be obtained of the custodian Mrs. Edward E. Jameson, and members of the Educational committee.

Club members are asked not to forget Quincy tea day at the Pure Food exposition at Mechanics building, Boston. It is hoped as many as possible will attend the fair Oct. 29 when the Wollaston and Quincy clubs will serve tea.

D. A. R. MEETING.

The Abigail Phillips Quincy Chapter D. A. R. held its first regular meeting Friday, Oct. 9, at the home of Mrs. A. S. Paige of Davis street, Wollaston. The new regent, Mrs. I. F. Waterhouse welcomed the members and spoke of the work of the year.

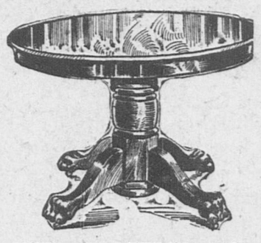

Much business was accomplished. It was unanimously voted to cooperate with the Ledger in its effort to have statues erected to Presidents John and John Quincy Adams on the grounds of the First Parish church. Very neat and attractive copies of the bylaws were distributed at this meeting.

MILTON RIVALS ON GRIDIRON

The most interesting game in football history of Milton was played on the afternoon of the holiday between the two great rivals—the High and Academy teams—on the latter's gridiron with a victory for the High school boys, 20 to 13. It was a game full of surprises and most exciting plays.

It was thought by the 1500 present at the opening of the game that the High School team would receive a dreadful drubbing, especially when the Academy team scored 13 points at the beginning of the first quarter. The losers must be credited with some excellent playing the first of the game, when Johnson made a 60 yard run and Felton and Brewer each got a touchdown but they were soon wrecked against the fierce onslaught of the winners.

In the second period the High boys seemed superhuman in their attacks and surprised even themselves making three straight successful forward passes which resulted in Sprague making a touchdown. They came back all the stronger in the second half and Luce immediately rushed for a touchdown with White tying the score by means of a goal kick. But this did not satisfy the thirst of the winners, they must not only tie the game but win.

Capt. Reiser, the big player of the game, recovered a fumble of the Academys and rushed 50 yards for a touchdown. White followed with another kick and the game was won 20 to 13 by the High school.

Reiser was without a doubt the big feature of the game and Parks, Corbett and Sprague did some fine playing. Robertsons punts were excellent. This was the one game the High team really cared to win this season and now they have beaten the Academy for four successive years.

BOMB IN CATHEDRAL

Two Persons Hurt and $4000 Damage In New York Edifice

New York, Oct. 14.—A bomb, made of dynamite encased in metal, exploded under a pew in famous St. Patrick's cathedral on Fifth avenue.

A hole was blown in the floor, another smaller one in a window, three pews were destroyed, and pieces were chipped from a granite pillar and from a temporary altar. Two persons were slightly injured by flying fragments of metal and wood.

Police and fire officials said they knew of no motive anyone could have for exploding a bomb in the cathedral. Mgr. Lavelle and other priests of St. Patrick's made similar statements.

The damage amounted to about $4000, the police said. Five persons were worshipping in St. Patrick's when the explosion occurred.

HUNTING SUSPENDED

Too Much Danger of Forest Fires In the Bay State

Boston, Oct. 14.—Alarmed over the extraordinary increase in forest fires since the opening of the hunting season on Monday, Governor Walsh issued a proclamation prohibiting all game hunting within the state of Massachusetts for an indefinite period.

Fires, which have raged for weeks, seemed to spring up with added intensity and over a wider area on Monday, the first day of the open season, and the governor decided that "the public may be best served by suspending the present season on upland game until a general and drenching rain has quenched the numerous fires and made conditions again favorable within the commonwealth."

HIGH TREASON CHARGED

Trial of Slayers of Francis Ferdinand and His Wife Is Begun

London, Oct. 14.—A dispatch from Sarajevo, Bosnia, says that the indictment against Gavro Prinzip, the assassin of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife, together with twenty-one of his accomplices, has been read in Sarajevo.

The men are charged with high treason in connection with the assassination of the archduke. Three other persons have been charged with being cognizant of the plot and of having concealed the weapons with which the outrage was perpetrated.

Prinzip under examination admitted that with a second bullet he intended to kill Field Marshal Potiorek, the governor of Bosnia, but that he used it for the archduchess.

EARN TITLE OF MIRACLE MEN

Braves Win Baseball Championship of World

TAKE FOUR STRAIGHT GAMES

Famous Philadelphia Aggregation Completely Overshadowed by Team Which Was at Bottom of National League In July—Winners Carried Off Field on Shoulders of Fans

Boston, Oct. 14.—Boston Braves won the championship of the world. They defeated the Athletics, 3 to 1, and thus performed the unprecedented feat of winning a world series in four straight games. With this feat they earned more than ever their title of the Miracle Men.

Having risen from the bottom of the National league to first place between July and September, the great victory of the Braves is a fitting climax to the most wonderful season a baseball team ever enjoyed.

Pitchers Rudolph and James get the credit for the quartet of victories. Both of Rudolph's were clean cut, his last coming Tuesday. James won a sensational game Saturday, holding the Athletics to two hits. He then got credit for Monday's game, relieving Tyler when the score was tied.

From start to finish the Braves have outhit, outgamed, outgeneraled and outguessed the Athletics. Their infield overshadowed the famous $100,000 infield of Connie Mack completely.

Mack showed everything he had and lost. He relied on his veterans, Bender and Plank, in the first two games, and they fell. Then he turned to the youngsters, and Bush went down Monday and Shawkey and Pennock Tuesday.

The Braves were carried from the field on the shoulders of wildly cheering fans. The Athletics went away as quietly as possible. Thousands then jammed the field before the Braves' bench, giving rousing cheers for President Gaffney, Manager Stallings, Evers and Gowdy, the hitting heroes of the series, and other members of the team.

Stallings and Gaffney delivered short speeches. The Royal Rooters' band played "Tessie" and all Boston took the lid off.

Following are the official figures for attendance and gate receipts and their division for the four games of the series:

Attendance, 111,009.
Receipts, $225,739.
National commission, $22,573.90.
Players' share, $121,898.94.
Clubs, $81,266.16.
Each club's share, $40,633.08.

John E. Bruce, secretary of the national commission, has given out the following official figures of the amounts received by the players on each club:

Of the total players' receipts, 60 percent, or $73,139.36, goes to the Boston men, or $2708.88 for each of twenty-seven players.

Forty percent of the total players' receipts, or $48,759.58, goes to the Philadelphia men, or $1950.38 for each of twenty-five players.

Governor Tener, president of the National league and a member of the commission, made this statement:

"Never before in the history of baseball world series has a team cleaned up four games straight, and the Braves' victory over the Athletics has been decisive beyond question. No finer exhibition of up-to-date work on a ball field has fallen to my lot to see."

"Garry" Herman, chairman of the national commission, took the time to lay emphasis on the "boost" organized baseball has received from the quick win of the world's championship.

BASE BALL BULLETIN

Daily Ledger Service Prompt and Accurate

It was a happy crowd of fans who watched the bulletin board posted in front of the Daily Ledger office Tuesday afternoon, upon which was posted the score of the great battle on the diamond at Fenway park between the Braves of Boston and Athletics of Philadelphia.

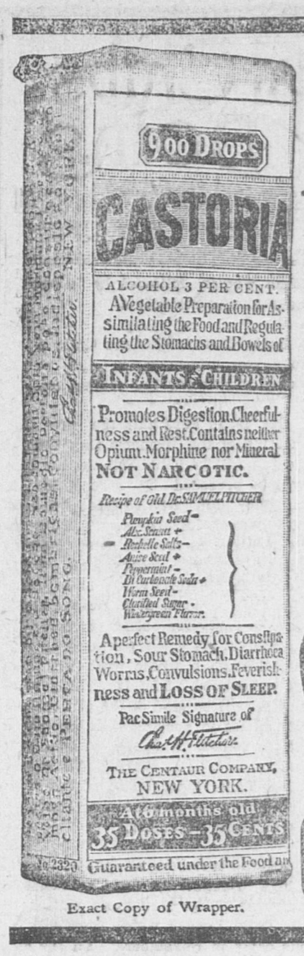

Of course the fans would have much preferred to be on the bleachers than holding down the sidewalk, but as everybody could not obtain possession of the necessary card, it was the next best thing.

The score was posted by half innings just as soon as the side was retired, and as inning after inning was recorded with a zero it became evident that a battle royal was in progress.

The crowd showed but little excitement however, although when the Braves scored two runs making the score 3 to 1 in favor of the Braves, it did warm up some. The rapidity with which the score was posted showed that the two teams were playing a fast game, and it was evident that unless something broke that the game would soon be over, and that the Braves would make it four straight and carry off the World's championship series as they had carried off the championship pennant of the National league. It was about 3.45 when the Athletics went to the bat for the first half of the ninth innings with the score standing 3 to 1, and it was realized that if they failed to score in this half the game was over. Out they went in the one, two three order and as they were first at the bat, there was no necessity for the Braves to play their half of the innings.

When a bulletin was posted in the Daily Ledger office window, that the Braves had made it four straight, there was a shout of joy from the crowd of spectators, who at that time numbered 300 or more, and then they quietly faded away and five minutes later the sidewalk resumed its normal condition and one would have never thought a great battle had just been decided.

Before 4 o'clock an extra edition of the Daily Ledger was on the street with the full score by innings, an hour ahead of all Boston papers.

ENGLAND FACES ARMED REVOLT

Boers in Rebellion Against British Authority

GERMANS STIR UP STRIFE

Promise Aid to Malcontents Who Have Long Had Vision of Boer Republic In South Africa—Whole Union Placed Under Martial Law as Crisis Is Reached

London, Oct. 14.—The rebellion of a section of the Dutch element in South Africa, which broke with a suddenness of a bolt from a blue sky, is the first warning note that has marred the harmony in the British empire since the outbreak of the war, and it has momentarily diverted attention from the arenas near the heart of the empire.

That this rising was real and dangerous was sufficiently proved by official dispatches from Governor General Buxton to the imperial government and by the drastic step General Botha and his colleagues have taken to stamp it out by the imposition of martial law in the whole Union of South Africa.

German machinations in South Africa, it is pointed out in London, have thus borne fruit. England faces armed revolt, aided by German troops and German arms.

No attempt was made to disguise the seriousness of the situation in South Africa. The official press bureau claimed to have no definite word as to the number of men concerned in the revolt, or of the location of the hostile force.

The disaffection dates back to the forced resignation og General Beyers. He had expressed strong opposition to the British operations against Germany and resigned before he could be summarily dismissed.

Colonel Maritz, commandant of one of the thirteen military districts of the union—that one in the northwest separated from German West Africa by the Orange river—next developed belligerency, undoubtedly under promises of aid from German Southwest Africa.

The vision of an independent Boer republic in South Africa has long been before those Boers who never recovered from England's suppression of the previous revolt. London has long been apprised of efforts of Germany to cement these malcontents into an active force of rebellion against British authority.

There are regularly only 7000 British troops now in the South African union, and it is believed that in many cases the officers have been recalled to aid in the European war. The permanent force for defense is the South African mounted riflemen.

LARGE APPLE CROP

Commercial Yield in United States Is About 40,500,000 Barrels

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 14.—The New England Homestead of Oct. 17 will say:

There are of apples in sight some 10,000,000 barrels more available for markets than was the case a year ago. The commercial crop of the United States is now placed at 40,500,000 barrels, against a little less than 31,000,000 in 1913.

This report of 40,500,000 barrels covers the commercial crop of apples, the volume which will comprise the market supply during the fall and winter, and which should determine prices. A good many apples are being placed in cold storage. Prices to growers are ranging from $1.75 to $2.50 per barrel. Orchardists a year ago obtained $3 to $3.25.

30,000 UNCARED FOR

Many Feeble-Minded at Large in the State of New York

New York, Oct. 14.—There are 30,000 feeble-minded persons in New York state who are living among the public, uncared for by the state or by private institutions, according to Dr. Schlapp of the state commission for the investigation of the mentally deficient. His commission will shortly submit its report, urging that for the public safety these feeble-minded persons be segregated.

Schlapp said that an appropriation of $9,000,000 should be made by the legislature to care for these persons so they will not become a menace to the community.

Alleged Robbers Blamed For Death

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 14.—Alfred Fontaine and Francis S. Jarvis are blamed for the death of George Harley in a report of the inquest filed by Coroner Vance. Harley was struck down Sept. 22 and robbed of $249.55.

"What sort of man is Jinks?"

"The impression you get of Jinks depends on the circumstances under which you meet him. If you're there to collect money you won't like him. But if you're there to pay money he seems a lovely character."

MY WOULD BE ASSASSIN

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.

When it was finally settled that I was to go into the mountains of Wyoming on a hunting trip with old Bill Potts a dozen men called to bid me a last goodby. They looked their pity and sorrow, and their hands lingered lovingly in mine. I was rather skeptical. I didn't see why I should be pulled down by a mountain lion, clawed into mincemeat by a grizzly bear or buried under a landslide, but they smiled feebly and shook their heads in a solemn way. Only one telegram received out of eight or ten threw any light on the matter, and the light came too late. It read:

"If you are going hunting with old Bill Potts you'd better make your will and leave things easy for the widowed and fatherless."

I liked old Bill. He was hale and hearty and good natured, and he could pack a mule, cook a good meal and shoot fairly straight. He was a smoker and a chewer, playing a good game of euchre, and I had every confidence that the pair of us would get along like brothers. We got away in good style, and it was two full days before anything happened to shake my confidence in him. Then as I sat cleaning my rifle he picked up the ax to cut some wood. He hadn't made six strokes before the ax flew off the handle and almost shaved my hair as it passed.

"Excuse me, colonel," said old Bill as he held up the handle. "The ax has been loose for the last six months and orter have bin fixed. I'll tend to it the first rainy day we have."

"But, man, that was a close call for me," I said as I felt my anger rising.

"Yes, colonel, but as long as no damage was done it's all right. I kinder thought it was going to cut yer head off, but it riz a leetle and missed ye."

I figured that it was pure accident and overlooked it. Next morning old Bill found the trail of a lion near our camp, and after breakfast we took it up and started out. I had a Winchester, and he had a double barreled shotgun loaded with buckshot. He took the lead, and we had trailed for half a mile when I stumbled over a stone and pitched forward. Potts was about twenty feet ahead of me, gun on his shoulder and passing over perfectly open ground. As I went down both barrels of his gun were discharged, and my hair curled as the handful of shot shrieked over me and cut away half the branches of a young pine.

"What is it? What were you shooting at?" I shouted as I scrambled up, half expecting the lion had got in our rear and was stalking us.

"Ye see, colonel," replied old Potts, with a sheepish look on his face, "I allus carry my gun on the full cock so's to save time, and I guess I must have bin fingerin' them hammers."

"You dolt! You idiot! You jackass!" I yelled at him as I looked for a club. "If I hadn't stumbled over that stone you'd have blown a hole through me as big as a barrel!"

"Yes, but ye stumbled, and, bein' as no harm was done, I hope ye won't get mad about it."

I told Potts that if I ever caught him carrying his gun in that shape again I'd pump lead into his legs and leave him to the wolves, and for the rest of the day the relations between us were strained. Under the influence of a good supper and a pipe we got closer together, however, and by and by he went into the tent for the cards. He was fussing around for several minutes and I had just opened my mouth to ask him the cause of his delay when a bullet lifted the hat off my head and sent it ten feet behind me. I made two jumps for a bowlder and yelled to Potts, thinking I had been fired on by a renegade Indian, but when the man came out with my self cocking revolver in his hand I knew what had happened.

"You blunder head! You fool of a jackass!" I shouted as I made up to him. But he backed off and protestingly explained:

"Don't get nervous, colonel. I had never seen one of these self cockers and was just tryin' it. I might have p'inted it the other way, but I didn't think."

"No, you didn't, and the ball went through my hat! Potts, you are a fool! You don't know enough to chew beans!"

"What a fuss to raise over a leetle accident, and nobody hurt at that!" said Potts. "Waal, the fact of it is I'm goin' to quit. The boys said ye was a crank and a kicker and that I'd soon cut my job, but ye talked smooth and give orders fur plenty of grub, and I was willin' to take chances. Howsumever"—

"Howsumever what? Howsumever—squint eyed, dunderheaded pothunter!"

Next day we started the outfit for home. Potts might have reconsidered his resignation, but I wouldn't give him a chance. I couldn't stay up there alone, but it was death to stay with him. We made the journey of fifty miles without a word. When we reached home I paid him off and said:

"Potts, you—you—you are an unhung idiot!"

"What fur, colonel?" he innocently asked.

"Because you can't help it!"

"Waal, mebbe I am, but if ye could only have held on to that crankiness of yers we'd have got at least four b'ars and five or six lions, to say nuthin' of wolves and wildcats. Day to ye, colonel. Awful sorry ye can't help yer meanness!"

AMONG THE CLUBS

The house was appropriately decorated with flags and flowers. The paper of the afternoon, read by Mrs. C. M. Chase, was a brief history of the earlier flags of our country down to the present flag, also the story of the writing of our National hymn.

The officers of the year are:

Regent—Mrs. I. F. Waterhouse.
Vice Regent—Mrs. W. R. Jones.
Recording secretary—Mrs. C. M. Chase.
Corresponding secretary — Mrs. E. O. Woodward.
Treasurer—Mrs. Frank Burgess.
Registrar—Mrs. Seth Crocker.
Historian—Mrs. Healey.
Custodian—Mrs. Damon.
Chaplain—Mrs. G. T. Taylor.
Librarian—Mrs. A. S. Paige.
Auditor—Mrs. Benjamin Sargent.
Directors—Mrs. William Chase, Mrs. J. K. Broughton, Mrs. William F. Kimball.

Mrs. William M. Chase is to give an illustrated talk of her recent trip abroad, at the Park and Downs church Wednesday, Oct. 21, for the benefit of the chapter.

HOUGHS NECK CATHOLIC CLUB.

One of the active clubs of the city is the Houghs Neck Ladies Catholic Club of which Mrs. Dennis Driscoll is the president; Mrs. D. S. Fenner vice president; Miss Annie Noonan secretary and Mrs. Walter Buchan treasurer.

From a summer resort Houghs Neck has grown to be an all the year round community and the ladies of this club are keeping up with this growth, and doing much to promote social life and a community spirit. It aims to bring people into closer relationship and in its charitable and social work ignores sectarian lines.

Like other Quincy women's clubs it has the clubhouse bee and the past year has purchased a temporary clubhouse, to be replaced later by a modern structure. Entertainments and parties for this object have been given through the summer and others are planned for the winter.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

The annual convocation of St. Stephen's Royal Arch Chapter will be held this evening. In addition to the election and installation of officers there will be a roll call of charter members.

Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Remick, and the Herbert Lawtons of Presidents hill were guests Saturday afternoon at the wedding of Miss Alice Hemingway of Holyoke and John Anthony Remick, Jr., of Boston. which was solemnized at the Skinner Memorial chapel in Holyoke. Mr. Remick was one of the ushers.

Following the regular meeting in Protection hall, Friday evening Quincy lodge, New England Order Protection will hold a "Hunting party." Grand lodge officers will be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Prout with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sargent of Elm street motored to Worcester, Springfield, Hadley and Amherst on Sunday, and to Northampton, Deerfield, Greenfield, Turners Falls, Fitchburg, Monday, total 275 miles, and report a delightful trip.

Alfred Sheehy of Weymouth, is among those mentioned as candidates for driver of the new auto combination delivered to the town this week. Mr. Sheehy is one of the well known young men of that town and has been interested in fire department matters for several years.

Hon. Russell A. Sears of Glendale road is in Atlantic City for a week.

Letter Carrier J. T. Cain was one of the New York excursionists making his headquarters at the Navarre hotel.

Miss Mildred Gray Huston received this week a souvenir postal card from New York, which bore this address without street or number—"Ruth, Quincy, Mass." Everybody knows the Quincy Ruth.

Several desirable houses as advertised to let, some at reducd rates.

Quincy chapter, Order of the Eastern Star is to give a drama and dance at Quincy Music hall in a few weeks. The drama is "Valley Farm" and will be produced under the personal direction of Erastus Osgood of this city.

The opening session of the Bethany Brotherhood will be held this evening. The address of the evening will be by Howard A. Bridgman, D. D., on "Experiences in the war zone."

Two of the triplets born to John F. Wentworth of Miller Stile road, Nov. 11, 1910 are ill with scarlet fever. William is quite seriously ill, while Laura has all the symptoms.

The Registrars of Voters met Tuesday evening at City Hall and added 103 names to the voting lists. The Registrars are in session today at City Hall until 9 o'clock this evening. Today wil be the last opportunity to add names to the voting lists before the election in November.

QUINCY PIANOFORTE SCHOOL
Greenleaf Block, 1419 Hancock St., Quincy
ADVANTAGES:
1.—Better instruction and better prices cannot be obtained in Quincy.
2.—Our system is thorough and modern; our instructors are capable, experienced and up-to-date.
3.—Our pupils have the privilege of appearing in public three times a season; and know how to conduct themselves correctly and gracefully on the concert stage.
4.—Our 1st. and 2nd. year General Class lessons are worth as much as the regular piano lessons, but this year we include these lessons with the price of the piano lessons alone.
5.—The director, Mr. Hackelton, is a graduate of the N. E. Conservatory of Music, finished abroad and a leading teacher in Boston for ten years.
6.—We award certificates to pupils finishing our courses.
7.—We are presenting a limited number of music rolls to our pupils as a souvenir of our opening.
Information regarding terms, teachers, system etc., will be cheerfully given at the School, or a circular sent on request.

QUINCY SOUTH

Many friends of Paul Higgins of Gay street surprised him Oct. 9. The gay crowd of little folks met at 7.30, in front of the St. John's church and marched in twos to to his home. In the midst of the crowd Miss Blanche Graham presented Paul with a silver watch and chain. Paul was surprised at first and then he told them to enjoy themselves and have a good time. Many games were played. Refreshments were served. The committee included; Jessie Johnstone, Blanche Graham, Miriam Hutt, Clarence McDonald. Among those present were; Jessie Johnstone, Blanche Graham, Rita Prout, Eleanor Parsons, Edla Viden, Ebba Armquist, Esther Gordon, Helene Pinel, Annie Mecagni, Lillian Julius, Mildred Bishop, Olivia Vabogi, Leontina Della Lucca, Miriam Hutt, Mary Williams Marion Bishop, Celia Beaton, Miss Furgeson, Eleanor Golbranson, Robena Arbuckle, Clarence McDonald, Stanley Jenkins, Arthur Nicol, Milton Ross, Frank McNeil, Thomas Gorman, John Conroy, David McIntosh, William Hurley, George Howard, Paul Higgins, and Mr. and Mrs. Higgins.

WOMAN'S CLUB

.... CONGRESS OF MOTHERS. ....

The fifth convention of Massachusetts Congress of Mothers' and Parent-Teacher Associations is to be held in Worcester, Oct. 15, 16, and 17. Thudsday morning, there will be reports of the officers, and a conference of the local presidinest of one hundred and twenty-five associations and mother's clubs. In the afternoon reports from the organizations in the tSate will give the actual work accomplished during the past year. At 4 P. M., a reception to delegates will be held in the home of the State president, Mrs. Milton P. Higgins, 228 West street, and in the evening, in the ball room of Hotel Bancroft, the official opening of the convention will take place.

Friday morning, there will be addresses by Mrs. David O. Mears, national vice president; Mrs. Edward M. Barney of Lynn, "The Parable of the Prodigal Chord." A new feature in many of the Western high schools is a special teacher who will guide, advise and teach high school girls and boys the ehtical questions of right and wrong; how to select a vocation, duties and responsibility of citizenship. Miss Laura E. Dyer of Los Angeles, Cal., will give an address on this subject entitled "A Dean of Girls for High Schools." Mrs. Herbert N. Wright of Worcester will speak on "Mental Efficiency Dependent Upon Food," and A. L. Barbour, superintendent of Quincy schools, will give an address on "Some Phases of Trade School Education." In the afternoon Dr. David O. Snedden, commissioner of education, gives an address on "Teaching of Morals in Twentieth Century." Mrs. William Lowell Putnam, official delegate of American Association for Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality, will talk about "Prenatal Care." Mrs. Sumner H. Whitten of Holyoke is to tell about "Better Babies for Massachusetts," and Mrs. Anna Steese Richardson of New York city will give an address on "Our Baby Saving Campaign." In the evening a banquet will be held at Hotel Bancroft. Saturday morning an excellent programme has been arranged for the special benefit of teachers.

A good neighbor according to our way of thinking is one who not only conducts his household affairs so as not to offend those living adjacent to him but, should he own the house in which he lives, takes care to sell it to none but responsible parties and ones whom he has every reason to believe will continue to uphold his policy. Some ill feeling and dissatisfaction has been occasioned in town lately by owners selling their homes to objectionable people who will be no help or credit to the community.

CHURCH FOR ALL THE PEOPLE

should, all churches would be free from debt and have a surplus. People should go to church in the rain as well as to a concert or bridge party. The speaker criticised the moss back hymns sung in most of the churches, especially at the morning services. He would like to have religion made more popular, that it might appeal better to the mill man, the quarryman, the shipbuilder, the street car man and everyone. Also remember the man in the next church is your brother, and striving for the same end. Christ came to save the poor as well as the rich.

Walter M. Hatch, George Taylor and Rev. Mr. Horst took part in the discussion of the speaker's address and a rising vote of thanks was given Editor Langtry.

Rev. Fr. Mackin and Rev. Fr. John Wildenberg of the Dominican Fathers who began a two weeks mission at St. Mary's church Sunday, are this week holding a mission for the women of the parish. The evening services are so well attended the capacity of the church is taxed and extra arrangements for accommodating those present have to be made. The mission mass, at 5 o'clock, is also largely attended. The womens mission will continue the remainder of the week, closing Sunday. That evening the mission for the men commences.

MR. TILDEN AT ATLANTIC

Promises to Give City Business-Like Administration

A neighborhood meeting in the interest of the candidacy of Henry F. Tilden for Mayor was held Tuesday evening at the residence of Lugene J. Hayford on East Squantum street, Atlantic. The meeting was attended by upwards of forty of the prominent citizens of Atlantic, and what was most remarkable, not one of those present was looking for political favors of any kind, or for any particular favors for the ward. The whole idea expressed by the different speakers was that the time had come when the business of the city should be conducted on a business basis.

Councilman Herbert G. Beeman presided, and the first speaker was Acting Mayor Joseph L. Whiton. Others to speak were ex-Mayor Eugene R. Stone, Henry F. Tilden who is seeking the Republican nomination, ex-Councilman Harry W. Read, and several others.

The Acting Mayor spoke of some of the conditions he found when he assumed office, and the great need there was of having a business man in the Mayor's chair next year. A man who was honest and fearless, as well as a man who emphatically says "no" if occasion demands it. Mr. Whiton said he was looking for no favors for himself or anyone else. All that he wanted was that the business of the city should be conducted on a business-like basis. This he knew would be the case with Mr. Tilden as mayor.

Ex-Mayor Eugene R. Stone, who filled the office of Mayor for two years, and who had been urged earlier in the year to enter the contest this year, said that Mr. Tilden had served as city treasurer during his two year's administration, and he knew him to be a man who was amply fitted for the position. He was a man who would be on the job early and late and he believed that he would give the city one of the best administrations it ever had. There was need of a strong man in the Mayor's chair next year, and he believed that Mr. Tilden was just the man the city needed, and if elected he would give a good account of his stewardship.

Harry W. Reed and several other gentlemen of Atlantic spoke and said that they had no axe to grind. That they felt that the time had come when a strong man was needed in City Hall. They wanted no promises from the candidate, other than he should give the city a business administration, and would stop some of the leaks which it was generally acknowledged existed at the present time.

Mr. Tilden, the candidate, when called upon, reiterated some of the statements he had made at other meetings; that he would go into the office, if elected, absolutely without any strings tied to him. He had the time to give to the duties of the office, and if elected he would devote his whole time to looking after the business of the city.

If honored with the nomination and election he should consult with the brightest minds in the city, in order to get the ideas of men who only wanted the best that could be obtained. He had made no promises, other than to give the city an honest and economical administration, and he would give no other. If he could not be elected, without promising this or that position, then he would not be elected. He believed as the citizens in gneral did ,that never had the city needed a business administration more than it did at the present time, and he could assure his hearers that if elected, he would see that the city got full value for every dollar expended.

CHURCHILL CRITICISED

His Course Toward Siege of Antwerp Attacked by Newspapers

The London Post severely attacks Winston S. Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, for what it describes as a costly blunder in sending a small force of marines to Antwerp.

The newspaper expresses the belief that the British losses are greater than admitted and contends that if it was impossible to send a large military force to Antwerp none at all should have been sent and the Belgians permitted to surrender without bombardment, as they would have done but for British advice, which only resulted in loss of life and hampering the retirement of the Belgian army.

Prussian Losses Reach 211,000

The forty lists of losses in the Prussian army contain a total of 211,000 killed, according to a dispatch from Amsterdam. The lists do not include the Bavarians, Saxons and Wurtemburgians.

Turkish Survivors of Earthquake Are In Dire Distress

Washington, Oct. 14.—More than 3000 lives were lost in the earthquake in the province of Konia, Turkey, according to a cablegram from Ambassador Morgenthau to the state department.

Thousands of buildings were destroyed, rendering countless numbers of people homeless.

Morgenthau was unofficially requested by the minister of the interior of the Turkish government to solicit help from the people of the United States, as the Turkish people were declared to be so impoverished that they can render practically no assistance to their suffering compatriots.

Coleman Denies Charging Atrocities to High German Officials

Washington, Oct. 14.—Secretary Garrison says Captain Coleman, U. S. A., charged with discussing the European situation in violation of the president's neutrality order, has voluntarily explained that he was incorrectly quoted in the newspapers.

Coleman admitted having talked with newspapermen upon his return from Europe recently, but disclaimed responsibility for the language attributed to him. He was quoted as saying that high officials were responsible for alleged atrocities committed by German soldiers. Garrison is awaiting a detailed reply before taking any action.

Forty-Eighth Annual Convocation and Two Charter Members Now Living

Plans Under Way to Observe the Semi-Centennial

The annual convocation of St. Stephen's Royal Arch chapter was held in Masonic appartments Wednesday evening. Aside from the interest in the fact that it was the forty-eighth annual convocation it was the occasion of a roll call of charter members.

The roll call brought out the fact that of the 40 original charter members of the chapter, but two are living. They are Lebanon Pratt, now a resident of Neponset, who was exalted in March, 1866, and Albert A. Seaverns, now of South Action, who was exalted in January, 1868.

In speaking of Companion Pratt, the secretary reported that one remarkable thing in connection with him was his great desire to be the first member to pay his annual dues. There was one other companion, said the secretary, who had the same desire and for years it had been a race between these two companions to see who would be the first in paying his yearly assessment.

In connection with Companion Seavrance, the secretary said that he was a veteran of the Civil war, and a card was received from him, upon which it was announced that on Oct. 2, he had celebrated his 75th birthday anniversary.

In honor of these two remaining charter members, steps were taken by the chapter to make them honorary members.

Another interesting matter reported by the secretary was that the membership of the chapter on Oct. 1, was 328 companions, and that but one companion had been lost by death during the past year.

Still another interesting event of the evening was the election of Companion James H. Webb as secretary and his installation into that office for the 21st year.

Following the election the new officers were inducted into office by ex-Companion Thomas D. Borst, acting grand high priest, with ex-Companion John Morgan as acting grand captain of the host. Following the installation, High Priest Arthur B. Raymond presented a past high priests jewel to Lawrence D. Duncan, the retiring high priest, and handsome bouquets to the installing officers.

The list of new officers:

High Priest, Arthur F. Raymond.
Excellent King, Louis S. Cleaves.
Excellent Scribe, David Hanson.
Treasurer, Eben Hardy.
Secretary, James H. Webb.
Captain of the Host, Jacob Peterson.
Principal Sojourner, Albert L. Barbour.
Royal Arch Captain, William E. Tarbox.
Master of Third Veil, Arthur Newton.
Master of Second Veil, Elbert H. R. Gardiner.
Master of First Veil, Arthur B. Hillman.
Senior Steward, Lafayette Gleason.
Junior Steward, Albert Healy.
Organist, Herbert Y. Follett.
Tyler, William H. Parry.
Trustee permanent fund, three years, Jonathan S. Swingle.

At the close of the business of the evening, refreshments were served in the banquet hall.

In 1916 the chapter will have rounded out half a century and a celebration in honor of this event is being planned.

German Guns Captured In France Will Be Exhibited In Various Cities In England.

Germany has been exhibiting guns and flags captured in battle to arouse patriotism in Berlin, and England is preparing to resort to the same tactics. Many pieces of German artillery captured in France have been shipped to England, where they will be hauled through the streets of London, Liverpool, Manchester and other cities to show that success is attending the British arms.

HIBERNIANS CONGRATULATED

At Re-Dedication of Building on Franklin Street

The re-dedication of the Hibernian building on Franklin street rebuilt since it was gutted by fire, took place Wednesday evening with appropriate exercises, which were attended by men prominent in state, county and division circles of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and men prominent in public life, together with upwards of 150 members of Division 5, Auxiliary 1 and friends.

The guests of the evenig were State President John F. Donnelly; State Secretary John F. Dwyer; County President James L. White; Representative Michael T. Sullivan; Mrs. Thomas Cotter president of Auxiliary 10 Charles J. McGilvray, president Michael McNally of Div. 17; vice President Thomas Rogan of Div. 22; Miss Mary Costello, president of the Quincy branch of the Ladies Irish National Foresters; William J. McKeever, state inspector of buildings, Edward J. Fegan and James E. Wall.

Rev. Fr. John J. Coan, pastor of St. Johns church, the special guest of the evening, invoked the blessing before all sat down to the sumptuous banquet and was one of the speakers of the evening. The menu included turkey, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, scalloped oysters, chicken croquettes and green peas, banana fritters, ices, teas, coffee and caks.

President John J. Donahue of Div. 5 presided at the opening exercises, and in presenting Daniel Mannix as toastmaster, paid a fine tribute to the man whose efforts have resulted in the remodelled building.

Mr. Mannix, president of the Building association, which owns the building stated "Along came the Hibernians and along came their building" and proceeded to introduce the speaker.

All spoke in a happy and congratu-

THE W. C. T. U. WOMEN HERE

County Convention Held at the First Church

The annual convention of the Norfolk County Woman's Christian Temperance Union is being held today in the chapel of the First Parish church. The morning session opened at 10.30 with a large attendance of delegates representing all branches in the county.

Mrs. Martha A. Tilden, the county president, presided, and the morning program included devotional exercises led by Bessie R. Waldron, the appointment of committees, reports of the secretary and treasurer, reports of local secretaries, greeting by Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis, with response by Mary E. Mann, introductions of State president and visitors, vocal selection by Clara A. Webber, noon time memorial prayer by Mrs. Crothers.

At 12.30 an adjournment was taken for a noon time basket lunch which was served to the delegates in the dining room.

The afternoon session convened at 1.30, at which time an executive session was held. This was followed by scripture reading by Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson, minister of the First church, roll call and the County song.

The program for the remainder of the afternoon session will include reports of the executive session, nomination of delegates to the National convention, department reports, vocal solo by Miss Ruth Packard, address on "Glimpses of lumber camp life" by Clara A. Webber, election of officers, a question exchange conducted by E. P. Gordon, unfinished business, collection, and adjournment at 4.30.

The reports of the secretary, Alice M. Flint, and the treasurer, Eliza L. White, given at the morning session, showed the unions to be in a most flourishing condition, especially in regard to finances.

MARRIAGE IS ANNOUNCED TODAY

Clark G. Boynton and Jane Foretier Reported to be Man and Wife

But There are Denials and Complications

"Mrs. Alice McClure Foretier announces the marriage of her daughter Jane to Mr. Clark Gilman Boynton. Brattleboro, Vermont."

The anouncement in the mails today dispels the secrecy surrounding the reported elopement of Miss Jane McClure Foretier, a teacher at the New England Conservatory of Music and Clark Boynton of Wollaston. The ceremony is said to have been performed by Rev. D. E. Trout, pastor of the Universalist Church at Brattleboro Vt., on June 3. There were no attendants.

And, within a few days after the marriage, the bride of a few days sailed for Europe. Her taking passage nearly had a tragic beginning, for her husband and mother who were at the wharf to bid her bon voyage narrowly escaped being hit by the gang plank which fell among the crowd gathered when the ropes snapped and caused injuries to six persons.

Mr. Boynton then returned to Wollaston and when curious friends who heard rumors of his marriage questioned him, he denied it had taken place.

In the meantime Mrs. Foretier-Boynton was in war infested Europe, where her efforts to leave were hindered twice through arrest as a spy, and again because the mobilization of armies necessitated seizing all trains. She finally made her escape, and on reaching this city, physicians sent her to the Quincy City Hospital where she recovered from the effects of her trying experiences, after which she resumed her work at the Conservatory teaching pupils and where she intends to remain regardless of the outcome of the controversey regarding her maritial affairs.

The couple have been friendly for several years, but acording to information secured this morning Mr. Boynton was forbidden the privilege of calling at the home of the young lady's parents, and when an auto trip to Brattleboro, Vt., was proposed last June friends gave the matter no thought.

Rumors of the marriage followed, and were discredited by friends upon Boynton's denial, but on Miss Foretier's return the rumers again became curent and hence the announcement.

What the outcome of the situation will be, or what steps may be taken to bring about an annulment is not known It is an established fact that the parents and sister of the bride strongly opposed the match and rumor states a similar feeling exists on the Boynton side.

The announcements are in the mail today and both have been bombarded by curious friends as to details. Nothing has been supressed by the Foretier family. The secrecy which existd was due entirely to respect for the wishes of Mr. Boynton on the part of his bride.

Some one asks what the umpires do in winter. Most likely they stay at home nursing black and blue spots.

Acting Mayor Whiton is evidently of the opinion that poll taxes are assessed for the purpose of being collected and he proposes that if they are not paid he will know the reason why. In this he is right. Two dollars is a very small contribution from any man for all the privileges he enjoys in Quincy.

It is to be hoped that the City Council will decide to accept the recommendation of the School Committee regarding the location for the Bigelow schoolhouse, as the latter body is in a position to decide such a question wisely and has no axe to grind. The recommendation was made unanimously after careful study of the situation and special knowledge of conditions. It is good policy to let each department of our city government have the final word in matters within its sphere of action. If the School Board cannot be trusted to decide a question like this aright, who can?

CROWDING THE COLLEGES.

Some of the colleges are giving out surprisingly large registration figures this fall. Columbia university, for instance, will have for the full academic year of 1914—1915, a total of over 14,000 students. This is an increase of 1500 over last year.

It was not many years ago that it was the rare exception for the boy or girl to go to college. In many High schools there would be no graduate to take higher education for years in succession. The youth who attempted it was looked at with wonder and admiration.

Today, going to college attracts less attention than graduating from a High school some years ago. In many High schools a quarter of the graduates go to college, while more than a quarter additional must enter normal, technical, or business schools.

This host of young people march up to the college door, each representing some high hope or ambition. More often it is the parents' hope, rather than their own. To the student the first question is commonly, "Shall I be able to enter the fraternity?" or, "Can I make the football team?"

Back in some dusty and toiling business office is Dad, secretly disappointed when the boy comes home with no honors, and interested merely in sports.

A college opportunity is not primarily taking certain studies or learning certain facts. More than anything else, it is coming in contact with the bright minds and original thought of competent instructors, men ripe in experience and intellectual power.

In ordinary life, young people are separated by differing interests from older men of ripe and rich thought. College life brings this contact of younger and older people in a common interest. Life is forever after seen by the student with more acute and spacious perceptions. Too bad so many young people never enter into this heart of the college course!

OSTEND WILL BE OCCUPIED BY GERMANS

Allies Cannot Hope to Prevent Capture of the City

WILL OPPOSE FURTHER PROGRESS OF INVADERS

Occupation by French and British of Ypres Removes Dangerous Threat Against Their Left Wing—Battering Assaults Against Weakened German Centre Continue—Troops In East and West France Still Engaged In Desperate Fighting—Bombardment of Belport, a Great French Stronghold, Is Anticipated—Russia, Germany and Austria Preparing For Greatest Conflict of Armed Forces In History

London, Oct. 15.—The great drive of the Germans to seize Ostend and to press onward to the channel ports of France has been checked by the ability of the French and British to meet the forces of General von Boehm with unexpected strength.

Rumors that Ostend had been captured reached London from several sources, but all are believed unreliable. At the same time it is reported that the British and Belgian troops massed at the famous watering place have succeeded in eluding the German outstretched lines and that they have reached the left wing of the allied armies.

Ostend is of so little strategic importance, now that Antwerp has fallen, that it is not believed any serious resistance will be made to a German occupation. But that the further progress of the German right wing against Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne in France will be bitterly opposed is hardly necessary to state.

Allies Occupy Ypres

The quaint old town of Ypres, with its imposing rampart and moat, relics now obsolete except for picturesqueness, was entered by the allied troops Wednesday. The German troops sent forward from the army of General von Boehm had been utilizing Ypres for several days as a base from which to send out troops toward Ostend and detachments of cavalry in the direction of Dunkirk.

For several days this occupation of Ypres has seemed a dangerous threat to the allied left wing in France, as the Belgian town is several miles west of Lille. But the menace is now removed, for a force of French and British marched into the town, capturing it without strong opposition. The Germans retreated southeastward, apparently falling back to Lille.

The seizure of Ypres, however, did not remove the pressure from Bruges and Ostend. It is rumored that about 50,000 Germans, who seized Ghent after the fall of Antwerp, have left only a small guard there and that they are nearing Bruges, if they have not already captured it. A report has reached London of fighting at Zeebrugge, fifteen miles from Ostend.

The Battling In France

On the main battle line in France, the Paris official reports are distressingly meagre. But it is reported from credible sources in the French capital that the allies are continuing their battering assaults against the weakened German centre, which must soon begin to give way decisively unless aid is sent from the extremities of the right wing.

Especially about Berry-au-Bac and northeast of Soissons are the French and British delivering smashing attacks which every day carry forward for short distances the hostile trenches, the allies seizing the German defenses and the Germans digging others a few hundred yards further north.

Although the official report states that nothing new has developed west of Berry-au Bac, rumors are persistent that the cavalry raids of the invaders toward the coast have been stopped. It is said that the cavalry who were operating about Hazebrouck, within easy riding distance of Calais, have been driven back nearly to Lille.

About Rheims the usual inactivity reigns, a quiet punctuated only by occasional artillery duels as the gunners find the range of hostile batteries.

Desperate Fighting

But to the east, as in the west, fighting is desperate over a great extent of territory. In the Argonne, the Germans are struggling with little success to advance their lines, while about Verdun there are constant encounters between small forces which have not, so far as can be learned, yielded much ground to either of the oposing armies.

One of the possibilities of the war is the apparent intention of the Germans to bombard Belfort, the southernmost of the great French strongholds on the boundary between France and Germany, almost opposite the German industrial city of Mulhausen, taken and retaken so many times in the opening weeks of the war. Belfort is a place of tremendous strategic importance, recognized as such during the wars against Napoleon a century ago and during the Franco-Prussian war.

Withstood Long Siege

In 1814 and 1815, Belfort successfully withstood a siege conducted by the allies, who did not obtain possession of the town until after peace was declared.

During the Franco-Prussian war it earned a distinction that neither Paris nor Metz could equal. From Nov. 3, 1870, until Feb. 16, 1871, the Germans strove in vain to compel Belfort to surrender. For two months and a half the forts were under almost constant bombardment. It was surrendered finally, but only at the order of the French government and with all the honors of war.

In commemoration of this memorable siege was carved out of the rock upon which the citadel stands the colossal Lion of Belfort, the work of Bartholdi, the sculptor whose Statue of Liberty in New York harbor has been the welcome of the New World to so many billions of immigrants.

Titanic Conflict Impending

In East Prussia, Russian Poland and Galicia everything is in readiness for perhaps the most titanic conflict of armed forces in history. Tremendous armies face each other just across the San and Vistula rivers for hundreds of miles.

Already the fighting has begun south of Przemysl, where a bloody combat is under way. Petrograd admits that the German advance menaces Warsaw, and it would not be surprising to learn of the fall of that city within a few days.

No details are to be had, but the German forces seem to have assumed a vigorous offensive all along the line, though Russia says that German assaults at various points have been repulsed.

OSTEND IN TERROR

German Airship Adds to Misery of Panic-Stricken People

The government, King Albert and the main military headquarters have left Ostend and 60,000 panic-stricken people await the action of the Germans, who are known to have a large force within twenty miles of the city.

The inhabitants are fleeing as fast as ships can be provided to carry them to England; hospitals were emptied and the docks were lined with injured soldiers. Hundreds were carried on litters, while those less severely wounded hobbled on canes and crutches, supported by Red Cross nurses, doctors, nuns and priests.

The wounded were given preference on the transports provided for the beleaguered city, while 25,000 struggling people were massed upon the docks and terminals in an effort to find a place on the refugee ships.

A German Taube flew over the harbor and struck terror to those below, many of whom had made their way from Antwerp, in fear that the aeroplane might attempt to drop bombs on the docks and the great glass sheds which cover the joint terminals of the railways and steamers.

The Belgian soldiers guarding the docks opened fire on the aeroplane and continued the fusillade for ten minutes. This created still greater consternation among the thousands of women and children, many of whom had sat for three days on the cement floor of the great terminal sheds with their nerves at the breaking point.

Escape is cut off from all sides by land and thousands were still gathered miserably on the docks when the last relief ship left Wednesday. No steamers leave Ostend at night because of the danger from mines. Still the crowds remained on the piers, awaiting the dawn and more ships.

The refugees who managed to find deck space on the crowded transports were not all relieved of the terrible strain under which they have been laboring, for the watchful Taube flew over the steamers, carefully observing their movements as they sailed out of the harbor.

The aeroplane did not drop bombs, however, as one of them had on previous days, when both civil and military hospitals were so narrowly missed by exploding shells that the Belgians charged that the Germans were aiming at the hospitals.

MOBILIZING HER TROOPS

Portugal May Declare War on the Side of Great Britain

Portugal has not yet declared war against Germany, but it was learned in official quarters in London that a partial mobilization of Portuguese troops has been ordered.

It is added that Portugal is preparing for all eventualities, and that if she participates in the war it will be on the side of Great Britain.

Accordng to dispatches received in London from Loanda, martial laws has been proclaimed throughout the Portuguese Congo.

The Portuguese possessions in West Africa, called the Portuguese Congo or Portuguese West Africa, adjoin German Southwest Africa on the south. On the north they are bounded by the French Congo and the Belgian Congo, and on the east by Rhodesia. On the west it is bordered by the Atlantic ocean. The colony has an area of about 500,000 square miles, and a population of 7,000,000. The military force is composed of 5000 men, of whom 3600 are natives.

MAX WOULDN'T SETTLE

New Story of Why Burgomaster of Brussels Is Detained by Germans

The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger gives a new version as to why Burgomaster Max of Brussels is being detained by the Germans in the fortress at Namur.

The paper says that Max paid in cash $700,000 of the $10,000,000 demanded by the Germans and gave bonds for the remainder up to $4,000,000, which later he refused to redeem. The remaining $6,000,000 he refused to consider. This resulted in his detention.

It is added that the committee of sheriffs which is now administering the affairs of the town has agreed to redeem the bonds and to compromise on $4,000,000 more as settling the matter.

600,000 TURKS IN FIELD

Attack on Russia In Black Sea Said to Be Under Contemplation

According to advices received at Paris the German officers at Constantinople estimate the Turkish army at 900,000 men. The estimate made at Rome on figures from reliable sources places the number at between 600,000 and 700,000.

A report from Constantinople says that the commander of the former German cruiser Goeben will become the head of the Turkish fleet and aims to attack the Russian fleet for mastery in the Black sea and to threaten the Russian coast. The Goeben now flies the Turkish flag and all her officers and crew are said to be Germans.

HOPE FOR EARLY PEACE

Pan-American Sentiment Forwarded to Belligerent Nations

Washington, Oct. 15.—Although semi-officially warned that Europe is not now amenable to peace suggestions, Secretary of State Bryan has forwarded to the belligerents the text of the Pan-American union resolution expressing hope for an early settlement of the conflict.

The note declares the union sends its expression of peace "as a tribute to the sentiments of fraternity which have inspired the meeting of the Pan-American conferences."

LOYAL TO ENGLAND

Union of South Africa Will Fight Rebellious Boers

London, Oct. 15.—Recovering from the first shock of the news that organized revolt now menaced British authority in South Africa, London received word that from nearly every section of the Union pledges were coming from the Boers to fight the rebellion led by Colonel Maritz.

As yet Capetown has been unable even to estimate approximately the number of men who form the army under Maritz. It is admitted, however, that the army is a fairly formidable one. The disloyal Boers comprising it are seasoned fighting men, veterans of several campaigns against the natives. There is no way of telling the number of Germans.

How Austria Says It

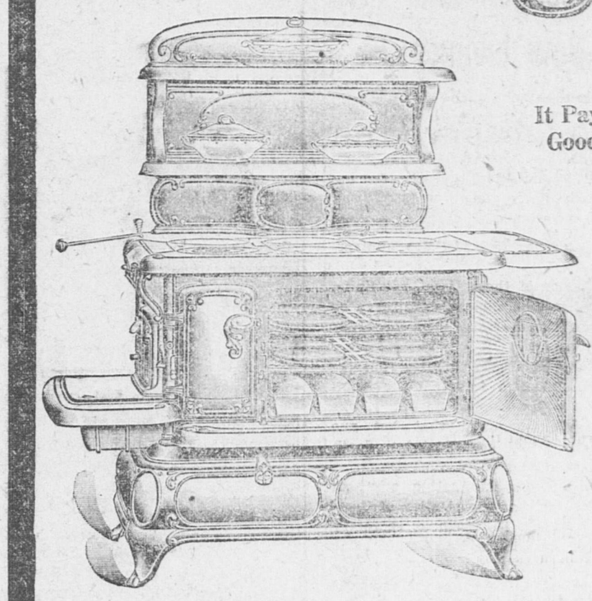

Washington, Oct. 15.—Przemysl is the most mispronounced of all cities mentioned in the war dispatches, said Secretary Sobotka of the Austrian embassy. The official and correct pronunciation, he said, is "S-h-i-m-e-a-s-e-l."

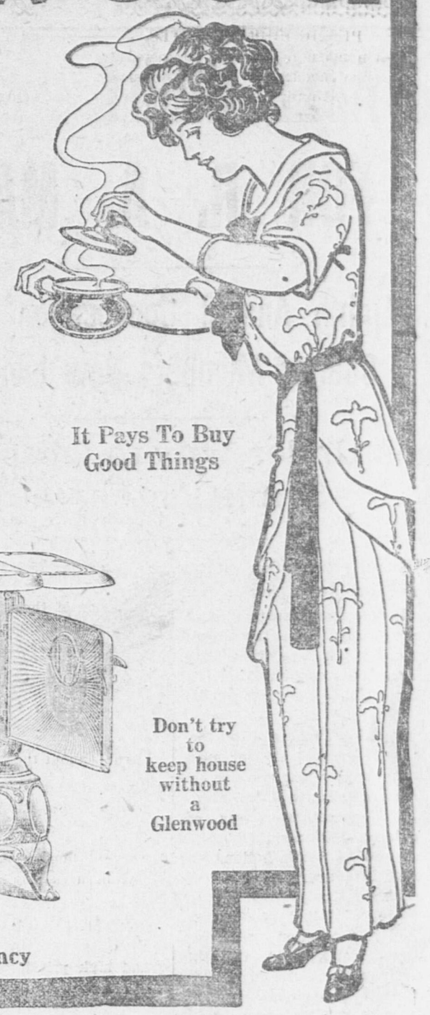

Missions Get $1,062,210

Detroit, Oct. 15.—The total current receipts of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions for the year ending Aug. 31 amounted to $1,062,210, according to the report of Treasurer Wiggins.

INVITED TO SQUANTUM

Political Feast Promised for October 27

The Squantum Improvement Association will have a non-partisan political night on Tuesday, Oct. 27, in Community hall, to which invitations to speak will be sent to the Congressional candidates of this district, the candidate for the Senate and Legislature from the Quincy district, and the aspirants for Mayor, councilmen-at-large and councilmen from Ward Six, as well as candidates for the School committee from the ward.

If these various candidates for office from all the political parties respond, Squantum residents expect brilliant oratory and magnificent (political) promises enough to last them for the winter. Members of the improvement association believe in taking their politics in one large, generous dose.

The entertainment committee of the association will provide hot frankforts, doughnuts and coffee, and the political candidates will be allowed to subscribe toward the feast. Squantum voters believe it will be an even break if they supply the hall and the audience, against the entertainment and something to eat on the part of the political candidates.

The association numbers 175 members, and they will bring their friends, so that an audience of voters well worth the time of the candidates, is assured.

Another important matter taken up at the regular meeting of the association in Community hall, Tuesday night was the matter of year-round mail delivery. According to the schedule made by Former Postmaster Mansfield, the mail delivery by carrier will stop this week.

State Senator Louis R. Langelier, who is a member of the association reported that he had taken the matter up with the Post Office department at Washington, and had received a reply that the matter of year-round delivery would be investigated.

The following committee was appointed to take up the matter with Postmaster Murray: Herbert A. Smith, J. H. Leonard and John R. Nelson.

President John R. Nelson reported relative to complaints regarding street car service that he had taken the matter up with the Bay State street railway officials but had so far received no satisfactory answer to the various demands made by the association at a previous meeting. The company will be asked to place white poles on the Squantum line from Hancock street to the end of the car tracks in Squantum.

ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S CHURCH.

Work is now well under way on the erection of a parish house for St. Chrysostom's church, Wollaston. This involves several changes which will prove advantageous to the church, give better facilities for social adjuncts of the parish, and new quarters for the Sunday school. The new structure will be connected with the church building so as to eliminate a staircase in the rear. This will allow the instaliation of a number of new seats in the church. (The improvements will extend to the grounds around the church. The site will be graded and this will add much to the appearance of the place. The parish house will be finished outside in stucco plaster. It is expected to be done by New Year's, but will be put to use probably some time before. The cost will be approximately $7500. By the addition the parish will be provided for the first time with a hall wherein entertainments may be given. This will include a fine stage. The seating capacity will be 300 persons. The plans include up-to-date kitchen quarters which will enable the Woman's Guild to give its occasional suppers without the inconvenience heretofore entailed. The Sunday school will hold its sessions in the new building.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

A number of boys are interested in learning about and making wireless telegraph outfits for themselves, and hitherto most of the material written for the novice has been in periodicals, such as Popular Electricity and Modern Mechanics and Popular Mechanics Although these contain very helpful information and the latter gives the addresses of dealers in wireless apparatus, we are pleased to announce the addition of some good books on the subject.

Alfred P. Morgan's Wireless Telegraph Construction for Amateurs (j92.127) is one of the best of these. "History and all unimportant details are omitted to give in their place a concise explanation of the parts played by the different instruments and the influence of developing their various factors." Besides the methods of wireless construction there is a chapter giving the wireless law for amateurs, which describes regulations for sending and receiving messages, regulation laws for secrecy of messages and distress signals, and the penalties for breaking these laws. A full and very helpful index increases the value of this book of which this is the new edition, just published.

Making Wireless Outfits by Newton Harrison (j492.164) is a "concise and simple explanation on the construction and use of inexpensive wireless equipments up to 100 miles."

The Wireless Man: his Adventures on Land and Sea by Francis A. Collins (j492.163) gives examples of how wireless works in the army, in the navy and as used in the detective service. The matter is all so clearly explained that it may be very easily understood.

EDUCATIONAL MEETINGS.

Two important educational conventions will be held in Worcester tomorrow. The Massachusetts Superintendents Association holding a number of conferences in various sections, both day and evening, in the Worcester Classical High School, and the Convention of Parents-Teachers' Associations taking place at the Hotel Bancroft and covering a period of three days. Among the officers of the latter association are Mrs. Robert E. Park and Mrs. W. E. Rowe of Wollaston.

High School Alumni.

The movement to inaugurate a High School Alumni Association, which was started last spring, will be renewed this fall, and a preliminary meeting will be held in High School building, Saturday evening, October 24, at 8 o'clock to which all interested are invited.

Coddington Association.

The Parent-Teachers' Association of Coddington school will hold its first meeting of the season in the assembly hall of the school on Wednesday evening, Oct. 21, at 8 o'clock. James S. Perkins, principal of the Coddington school, will speak on "Impressions." Musical selections will be rendered by Miss Edith S. Roubound, violinist; and Miss Agnes B. Ruggles, pianist. Refreshments will be served. A large attendance is desired.

Non-Employment.

An unusually large number of employment certificates issued to minors bye the School department are being returned of late, giving some index to business conditions. In the case of minors under the age of 16, it is required that they return to school. Those above 16 are no doubt idle about the city.

Industrial School.

The Industrial school is reaching a point where it has tangible results to show of its work and is well worth a visit by people interested in training young people toward a trade. The building which is in use proves itself unusually well adapted for the purpose, and such charges and alterations as are needed are all being carried out by the school itself.

Personals.

August W. Johnson who was elected janitor of the Willard school at the last regular meeting of the School Committee, will assume the position Saturday night.

Andrew Johnson the new master of the Montclair and Gridley Bryant schools is seriously ill at his home with typhoid fever.

SOCCER LEAGUE.

The standing in the grammar school soccer league this morning was:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

	Won	Loss	P. C.
Washington	3	0	1.000
John Hancock	2	0	1.000
Quincy	2	0	1.000
Montclair	1	1	.500
Cranch	0	2	.000
Wollaston	0	2	.000
Atherton Hough	0	3	.000

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Coddington	2	0	1.000
Mass. Fields.	2	0	1.000
Willard	2	1	.666
Adams	0	1	.000
Gridley Bryant	0	2	.000
Lincoln	0	2	.000

It will be seen by the above standing that five of the teams have won all their games, three in the National league and two in the American league.

JONATHAN DINNIE.

Jonathan Dinnie, one of Quincy's smartest old men, died at his home on Garfield street, Wednesday evening as a result of a shock earlier in the day. Although in his 74th year Mr. Dinnie was remarkably well and was employed at the polishing mill of Joss Bros. Co., on Garfield street. He went to work Wednesday morning as usual, but had not been there long before he sustained a shock. He was taken to his home near by and a physician summoned. Mr. Dinnie lived until late in the afternoon.

He leaves two sons, Robert and William Dinnie, and three daughters, Mrs. Albert M. Parker; Miss Mary Dinnie, a teacher in the schools of Milton; and a married daughter who resides in California. Mrs. Hammock, who died in New Jersey some months ago was also a daughter.

IMPORTANT HEARINGS.

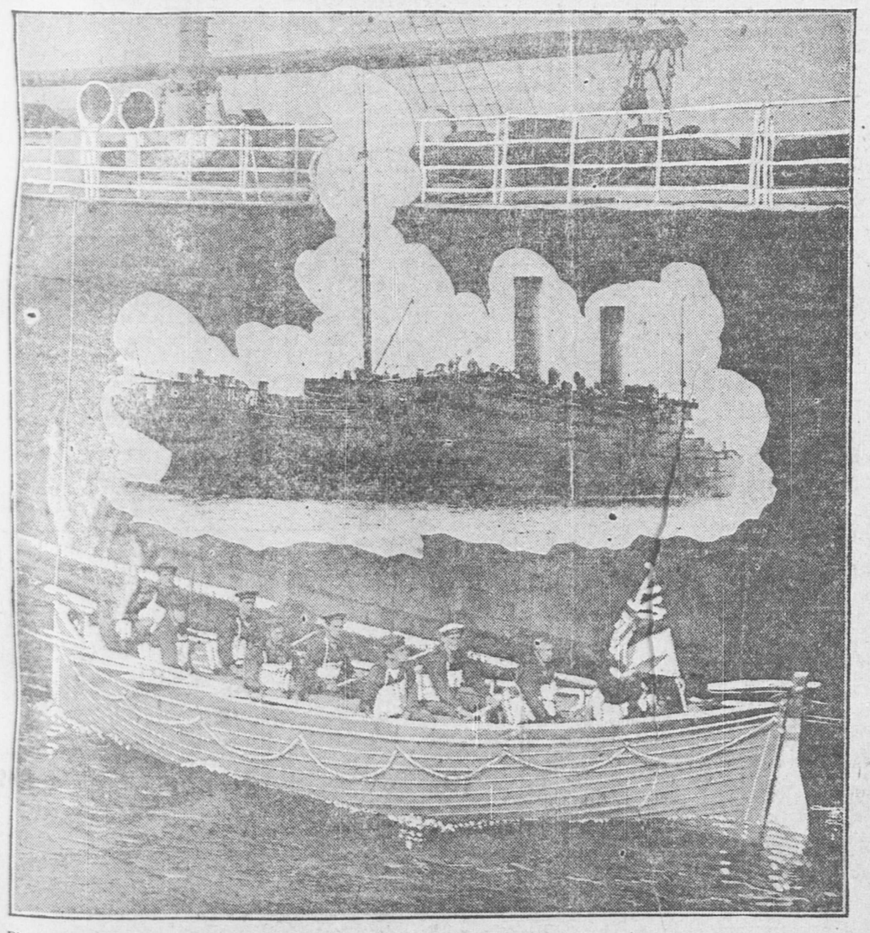

There will be a hearing before the Gas and Electric Light Commission on Monday Oct. 19 at 10.30 A. M. at 15 Ashburton place, room 603, Boston to consider the subject of the taxation of signs and other devices used for commercial advertising.

On Oct. 20 there will be a hearing before the Public Service Commission, 1 Beacon street at 10.30 A. M. to investigate and study the transportation needs present and future of the Metropolitan District.

British Converted Cruiser Is Searching Shipping Leaving the Port of New York.

Photos copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.

The converted cruiser Caronia, which has been hanging around the entrance to the harbor of New York for several days, is still watching shipping and is searching outbound vessels for Germans and for contraband goods. No distinction is made, and British vessels are subjected to the same espionage and inspection as those of other nations. Heavy guns are mounted on the deck of the former liner, and when necessary shots are fired across the bows of vessels to halt them. Transportation men are preparing to protest against the searches, as they say that the delays are expensive and are without authority in international law.

WAR AND PEACE THE SUBJECT

Discussed by Lawyer Elder at Braintree

The first meeting for the season of 1914-15 of the All Souls' Men's club of Braintree was held in the parish hall of All Souls' church Wednesday evening.

After a short social session from 6 to 6.30 o'clock, supper was served and nearly every chair was occupied. The tables were attractive with large vases of dahlias, chrysanthemums and other cut flowers, and the whole atmosphere was one of good fellowship and hospitality. The two principal items on the menu, roast beef and baked potatoes with gravy were supplemented by lima beans, cabbage salad, rolls and coffee. The drinking water was from the celebrated Chickatawbut spring owned by Shelley A. Neal and will be supplied by his curtesy for all the meetings of the club.

After supper, the cigars were passed, and it was announced that the ice-cream which had been shipped to Brockton by mistake would arrive later and be served after the speaking.

The speaker of the evening was the eminent lawyer, Samuel J. Elder of Boston. His subject was "War and peace." Mr. Elder touched upon the present great war and its horrors but confined his remarks chiefly to the preservation of world wide peace through the good offices of international arbitration. He said that war was deep rooted, through centuries of conflict, but that the nations because of rapid methods of transportation. quick communication by cable and wireless telegraphy, were in closer touch and were more dependent upon each other.

He cited the increase in the arbitration treaties between various countries, and thinks the time will come when nations will settle their differences in a great international court of appeal, much as individuals settle their disputes by invoking the aid of the trial by jury.

Mr. Elder foresees the time when law will replace war, and might will give way to right. He cited several instances where by threatening to close its ports and put an embargo on all exports and imports, that one country had brought another power to terms without shedding a drop of anything but ink.

He believes that the present war, because of its magnitude and its appalling slaughter and expense, will be one of the strongest arguments for the settlement of international disputes by arbitration.

He gave a most illuminating and interesting account of the establishing of the peace conference at The Hague and what it had accomplished.

Mr. Elder's words were given the closest attention by his audience and he was applauded to the echo.

Charles T. Gallagher who spoke so interestingly at the club last year in place of Mr. Elder, who was ill, was called upon for a few remarks, and replied in his characteristic and able way. His pleasantries were well timed and appropriate and his rendering of some beautiful verses was an inspiration to all. By this time the ice cream and cake had arrived and were enjoyed.

Herbert F. Kneeland made an announcement of the coming dramatics to be given under the auspices of the Women's Alliance, and urged all the members of the club to purchase tickets, his remarks on this point being ably seconded by the president, Frank P. Rhoades.

After the singing of America, the meeting closed at 8.35 o'clock the proceedings marking a most auspicious opening of the new season.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LEAGUE.

A meeting was held at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening to form a Sunday School bowling league. But little progress was made however in the formation of the league owing to the small attendance. Those interested in forming the league desire that all matches shall be bowled on the same evening which will make it impossible for the matches to be bowled at the Y. M. C. A. alleys. Another meeting will be held at an early date to complete arrangements for the league.

PEOPLE'S FORUM.

A meeting of the People's Forum, that popular series of meeting instituted here by Rev. Daniel Roy Freeman, was held in All Souls' church Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. The speaker was T. Philip Terry F. R. G. S. who spoke on the "religions of China and Japan." Preceding the lecture, there was an enjoyable organ recital by Mrs. Jennie Hocking Hunt the organist of the church.

Mr. Terry was introduced by Herbert F. Kneeland who was presiding officer of the forum.

Mr. Kneeland referred to the lecture given here last March by Mr. Terry on Mexico and which afforded so much pleasure to all who were privileged to hear it. Mr. Terry gave a highly interesting discourse on the various religions of the Orient, especially those of China and Japan and is abundantly able to speak authoritatively on these subjects owing to his long residence in these two countries. He is also the author of several books on the Japanese Empire.

He prefaced his remarks by saying that he must perforce mention Christianity but that none of his words concerning it were intended to give offense to any of its believers.

According to Mr. Terry, one eighth of the people of the world are Mohammedans and the cult is rapidly spreading.

He dwelt at length on the teachings of Confucius and other Chinese philosophers and went very thoroughly into the subject of Buddhism and Shintoism.

He said that Buddhism is strikingly similar in respect in ceremonals, feast days, belief in the power of the saints, etc., to the Catholic faith. Another point of similarity between these two religious is the garb of the priests, the custom of sucing incense and the practice of ecclesiastical celibacy. He declared it to be an almost hopeless task for Christian missionaries to try to convert the Eastern peoples owing to the intense aversion of the Oriental to anything new and their blind unreasoning belief in the doctrine of fatalism. Much progress is being made however but it is a gigantic undertaking.

Mr. Terry had strong words of praise for the Japanese people and says they are honest, frugal, industrious, possess high ideals of love and duty, are almost fanatical in their devotion to their country and the Emperor and are by no means the ignorant heathen that some writers would have us believe. The meeting was concluded by the singing of "America" by all.

QUINCY HIGH TO PLAY WINTHROP

The Winthrop High school warriors play Quincy High at Merrymount oval Friday afternoon. Quincy is ready for the fray and prepared to hang another scalp to its belt. But—

The individualism which exists in the team must be overcome and a more concentrated line be perfected.

The team at present is of mediocre standard, and aside from the brilliant work of Capt. Larkin and Hamlin but little can be said in praise of the squad who occasionaly flash.

The slowness in the development of fighting spirit in Quincy, as well as other teams, is that the mass formations of the old game, having given away in great part to more open play, has resulted in the overlooking of the finer points in line attack. However, the coaches continue their efforts to develop concentration and with more co-operation could secure it.

CONGRESS OF MOTHERS.

Several Quincy delegates are present at the fifth annual convention of the Massachusetts branch of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-teachers association which is being held at Hotel Bancroft in Worcester, on October 15, 16 and 17.

This Massachusetts branch of the National association has among its members the Parents and Teachers associations of the Wollaston, Massachusetts Fields, and Cranch schools, which are entitled to send their presidents and a delegate for each ten members.

Among the prominent educators who are to speak on child training and teaching is A. L. Barbour, superintendent of schools in this city, who on Friday will deliver an address entitled, "Some phases of trade school education."

The general management of the convention is under the supervision of Mrs. William E. Rowe of Winthrop avenue, Wollaston, who has directed preparations and is responsible for the expeditious carry-out of the program. Mrs. Rowe also had charge of the fourth Massachusetts convention and of the convention of the National congress held in Washington last year. Wollaston is also represented by Mrs. Robert Park of Hillside avenue who is a vice president of the organization.

WOLLASTON BOWLERS

Tennis Club Opens the Season's Schedule

The opening matches of the bowling league of the Wollaston Tennis Club at the Coliseum alleys Wednesday night resulted in light pinfall but plenty of enthusiasm. The league consists of eight teams, all known by the name of the captains, and the schedule covers the winter and early spring.

One of the smallest totals of the evening was made by Jenner, last years city champion, who has done no rolling since his match with Herb Smith. He retains the same characteristic style, however, and unless his eye was dimmed the past summer should be in the front ranks of local bowlers within many weeks.

Estes, rolling at anchor on the team he captained, made the best single 114 with Jesse Litchfield trailing with six less. Hoxie secured a total of 290, and was the only man within striking distance of a triple.

The team of Capt. Geddes took three of the four points from the Baker aggregation. One pin separated the teams in the first string while the second went to the Bakers. The third was sufficient to make the total decisive.

CAPT GEDDESS.

NATIONAL GAME IS IMPROVING, SAYS LOWE.

Old Timer Says Players Are More Saving Now.

Bob Lowe, once the peer of any infielder in the baseball game and now acting as scout for the Tigers, has a good word to say for the umpires. Bob was a star in the days when things were decidedly different and he is better able to see the improvement than a younger man who has not lived under both the old and the new order of things.

"Twenty years ago," says Bob, "the umpires weren't supported and the players knew it, so they took all kinds of liberties. The league executives in those days did not seem to have the backbone that they display now, and they let the players get away with a lot of stuff that would throw Messrs. Johnson and Lynch into fits. The double umpire system is partly responsible for the change for the better. Another thing is that the class of men engaged in baseball now is distinctly higher on the average than it was back in the early '90's.

"Nine of every ten players save their money now and are wise enough to know that dissipation doesn't pay. When I first broke into the big league, a man who saved was the exception. Drunkenness was extremely prevalent, and some teams were literally ruined by the dissipation of their players.

"Many college men are going into professional ball these days, and it doesn't hurt the game any to have this class enter the ranks. Of course, there were some fine men on the diamond twenty years ago, some of the finest that I ever have met. Likewise, there were a lot of hard drinking, fighting, devil-may-care fellows who wouldn't be tolerated now.

"Baseball, I believe, is more scientific now than it was in the old days—that is to say, there is better team work and the managers seem to have a better policy. At the same time, the individual player seems to have lost something. Now everything is done by signs and signals; it is the team and not the individual that is being developed. The elaborate code of signs lifts some of the burden from the individual player's shoulders."

NEW BRITISH INVASION.

Inman, Billiard Champion, Over Here to Play Willie Hoppe.

The latest thing in British invasions is the attack on Willie Hoppe's billiard crown by Inman, the English champ.

He came to this country on an extended playing tour, but the match with Hoppe was arranged, and all other dates were canceled temporarily.

It will be the first series of international billiard matches since 1893.

Inman in the present matches doesn't ask Hoppe to play the English game. The matches will be for 6,000 points apiece, just half of which will be played in each game. For instance, a match will be started under the English game, and when a player has obtained 3,000 points in that game he will start playing the other game. The two games are very different and are played on different tables, and it is difficult, even for a marvel like Hoppe, to change from one to the other. Each player expects to win at his own game and lose at his opponent's game, and it will be a question of how well they can do at their opponent's game which will probably decide the match.

The English game is played on a much larger table than that used for the American game. The English table has six pockets, like those on a pool table. In addition to making the carons, points are scored when a carom is made and the cue ball is pocketed.

Hoppe is planning to make an invasion of England in February, when he hopes to duplicate the feat of Ives in 1893 by defeating the English stars at their own game. Hoppe has such wonderful control of the balls that American billiard players are confident that he could master any variety of the game with a fair amount of practice.

Inman is considered almost as much of a marvel in England as Hoppe is in this country and must be considered in the nature of a "dark horse" until some line can be secured on his play.

BOSTON BRAVES AT A BANQUET

Officially Honored by Mayor and Council of Boston

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF MACK

Concedes Champions to Be Greatest Ball Team He Had Ever Seen—Money Lost by Ending Series So Quickly Will Come Back With Liberal Compound Interest

Boston, Oct. 15.—What 35,000 hoarse fanatics shouted at Fenway park Tuesday afternoon is the refrain now being sung by countless thousands of fans all over America: All hail to the Braves, champions of the world.

Never before has a victorious body of athletes received such verbal honors as were heaped upon the Boston Braves last night, when seventy-five of Boston's most prominent men gathered at the Copley-Plaza, the guests of Mayor Curley and the city council at a banquet tendered in honor of the winning of the world's championship.

It was the last official event of the series and it was certainly some night. The Braves, every man of them, from "the miracle man," Stallings, to Willie Connor, the official mascot, were there to tell how the deed was done. That is, all but one. "Red" Smith, the star third sacker, is still on a cot in St. Mary's hospital, Brooklyn. But he was not forgotten, for in the midst of the festivities the company arose and drank a toast in his honor.

The boys who brought home the bacon were eulogized from every possible point of view. The dictionary was robbed to find words of praise for them, and the warriors were told that they were expected to repeat the performance next year.

For the benefit of their admirers, all the secrets of the team were laid bare. But summed up, owner, manager and players admitted the real secret consisted mostly of hard work, brains and more hard work. Players laid all the blame for the victory on the manager, the manager laid it onto the players. The guests agreed that in all probability, both were telling the truth. It was a good example of a mutual admiration society working overtime.

It is no new sensation for Boston to be the world's baseball capital. Only two years ago the Red Sox brought the prize to the Hub. But never before was baseball's supreme prize so summarily and so unexpectedly snatched by any team as by the Braves. It was 36-1 that they wouldn't win four straight against the Athletics. It was a 2-1 shot that the Athletics, champions of the American league, would retain their double crown.

The Athletics are back in Philadelphia, hardly yet conscious of how it all happened. In leaving Boston Connie Mack, the manager of the deposed A's, gamely said that, in his opinion, the Braves formed the greatest ball team he had ever seen.

Connie's sentiments are the sentiments of Boston, of New England and of the nation. The Athletics' wonderful machine was given the appearance of being a worthless old piece of junk when it ranged up against the bustling, hustling, fighting and intelligent Braves. Captain Evers, important factor in the old Cub machine of the last decade, is sponsor for the statement that this Boston team outdistances Frank Chance's old Chicago team in almost every respect.

It has been a short but exceedingly sweet series for Boston fans. Two such games as were played Monday and Tuesday were never before seen in a world series. Brilliant pitching supported inspired fielding and batting of the most timely nature.

Some of the fans would have liked to see one or even two more games played here in Boston. But the taste the Braves have left in the mouths of Hub fans is exceedingly sweet. It will create an appetite for more of the same brand of baseball in 1915.

Unquestionably the club coffers lost big money by having the team win four in a row, but it will all come back with liberally compounded interest in 1915.

George Stallings takes little credit to himself for the showing of his team. He is immoderately pleased at the result, as well he might be. But he gives to Evers, to Maranville, to Gowdy, to his pitchers and to every last member of the team, the full credit for winning the bounty.

Already plans are being made for public demonstrations for the Braves. Boston has been more firmly placed at the top of the sport world than ever and Boston is grateful.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

The W. H. McElwain company of Boston has taken an order for about 150,000 pairs of army shoes for the French government.

Secretary Bryan begun a campaign tour which probably will keep him away from Washington for two weeks.

Plans for a memorial to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson to take the form of a model block of sanitary tenement houses in the Washington slum district are being made.

RETIREMENT OF CARRANZA

Mexican Convention Has Probably Accepted His Resignation

Washington, Oct. 15.—The national convention at Aguascalientes reached a point where the question of the retirement of General Carranza was to be discussed, according to official telegrams received here. It is added that it will probably be accepted.

The name of General Villareal, chairman of the convention, will be presented as a candidate for provisional president and will be most satisfactory to all factions.

It is believed that Carranza's resignation probably has already been accepted and that Villareal has been chosen, but definite advices on this point are lacking.

FORTY YEARS ON BENCH

Judge Fallon of Boston Resigns After Becoming "Good and Ready"

Boston, Oct. 15.—Joseph D. Fallon, for the past forty odd years justice of the South Boston court, has asked the governor that he be retired, just as he said he would—"when he got good and ready"—and Governor Walsh appointed Edward L. Logan, the associate justice, to take his place.

Fallon has been the most independent and fearless judge of all the courts in Boston—scolding police officers and offenders alike and always rushing to the defense of South Boston as being one of the best of the city's districts. The judge retires on three-quarters pay.

DENIED A NEW TRIAL

Slayer Frank Still Has Appeal Before Georgia Supreme Court

Atlanta, Oct. 15.—Leo M. Frank, under sentence of death for the murder of Mary Phagan, an employe of the pencil factory of which Frank was superintendent, was denied a new trial by the Georgia supreme court.

This was Frank's fifth attempt to obtain a retrial or annulment of the verdict which was returned Aug. 25, last year. He still has pending before the state supreme court an appeal from the lower court's denial of a motion to set aside the verdict on the ground that he was not in the courtroom when it was returned.

No Decision on "Unwritten Law"

Washington, Oct. 15.—Failure of Carl Oliver, a Texas negro, to have the record of his case printed, resulted in the dismissal by the supreme court of his appeal from a conviction for murder and removed the possibility of the court announcing its position on the "unwritten law."

ACTIVITIES AT MILTON

Rebuilding of Adams Street, Bowling and Church News

Automobile owners throughout the state, who use Adams street, will rejoice to hear that this thoroughfare is being thoroughly made over. The street department started work Tuesday morning and has three steam rollers and two road machines on the job.

All members of the Cunningham gymnasium, who are interested in forming the bowling league this winter, will meet Saturday evening at the gym. A large crowd of enthusiasts is expected to attend this meeting and "Jim" Cumings expects to get "things started" about the first week in November.

Milton school football team plays its next game Saturday when it goes to Arlington. The Academy team will play the Groton Academy team Friday at Groton.

The Agenda Club of the First Baptist church held their first meeting of the season Tuesday evening in the church parlor. The annual election of officers took place, as follows:

President—Mrs. Edith Davidson.
Vice-President—Mrs. Burton Porter.
Secretary—Miss Edith Graham.
Treasurer—Mrs. Fred Robie.

The chairman of the social committee is Mrs. J. H. Leatherbee and of the flower and calling committee, Mrs. J. Marchant. Following the business meeting a pleasant evening was enjoyed and refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Ernest Choate.

Both the members and the parishioners of the East Congregational church held a business meeting this week. Both divisions of the church voted unanimously to extend a call to Rev. Charles Henry McVey of Mansfield for the pastorate of the church.

The Ladies Aid Society of the First Baptist church held their regular meeting Wednesday afternoon in the church parlor. The society voted to give $10 and ten aprons and other fancy articles to the Boston Bethel. The articles are to be sold at the annual fair of the Bethel to be held Oct. 27, 28, 29. Following the business meeting ice cream and cake were served by Mrs. George Rogers.

The first meeting of the season of the Ladies Aid Society of the East Congregational church was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Oscar C. Bohm on Adams street with a large number of ladies present. The society is to give a reception, open to everybody. Friday evening in the vestry of the church. On Nov. 1 the ladies are planning to hold a harvest supper.

The Parents' Association of the Belcher school will open its season. Monday evening when the first meeting will be held in the school hall. A reception will be tendered to the teachers of the school and exercises will be given by several pupils from the upper grades. The hospitality will be in charge of Mrs. Grace Douglas.

Needful Knowledge

Quincy People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are many. Disordered kidneys often excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, ful of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back may ache, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighted down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better endorsed kidney remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Quincy proof of their merit.

Mrs. S. Nelson, 177 Washington St., Quincy, says: "One of my family had pains across the small of the back Four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills were used and they made a great improvement. Doan's Kidney Pills deserve great credit for what they have done in that case."

RETURN TO ITALY AT THEIR PERIL

Army Claims Services of Even Naturalized Americans

WASHINGTON CAN DO NOTHING

Privilege Granted by Italian Government Has Been Withdrawn—Right of Natives to Expatriate Themselves Not Conceded—Grave Possibility of Complications

Washington, Oct. 15.—Naturalized Italians, and even male children born of native Italians in the United States, will return to Italy at their peril during the continuance of the present European war, for they are almost certain to be impressed into the army, which is now being mobilized.

Hundreds of complaints have come to the state department from the friends and relatives of young Italians who, after having been naturalized in America, have returned to Italy for visits, that they have been required to join the army.

The state department has been unable to do anything for them because there is no naturalization treaty between Italy and the United States, so that the former country does not concede the right of these Italians to expatriate themselves.

Regarding the children born of Italians in the United States, who are likewise being drafted into the Italian army upon their appearance in Italy, there is a possibility of serious complications between the two governments.

Like the French government, the Italian government has consistently held that such children are Italian citizens upon their return to Italy.

The state department never has admitted this contention, which strikes at the roots of American citizenship, and up to this time an actual issue has been averted by the granting of indefinite leaves of absence to such persons by the Italian government, a privilege which it has now withdrawn.

HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

"Snake Charmer" and Boy Alleged Slayers of Rich Farmer

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Miss Ruth McCullough, a 20-year-old "snake charmer," and her companion, Clarence McCormick, 18, were arrested here, charged with the murder of I. W. Mollatt, a wealthy farmer of Hedrick, Ia., and are said by the police to have confessed their guilt.

Mollatt was shot while in his automobile and his head crushed. The purpose of the murder was robbery.

The arrest was made as the pair were about to be evicted from a rooming house for non-payment of rent. The fugitives were penniless. The robbery netted them only $23.

The "snake charmer" was a follower of county fairs and street carnivals, and McCormick met her at one of these in Illinois, became infatuated and followed her from place to place. Mollatt was believed to carry large sums with him.

"WOMAN EDISON" DEAD

Miss Knight Was Inventor of Eighty-Seven Patented Devices

South Framingham, Mass., Oct. 15.—Miss Margaret E. Knight, known as the "woman Edison," and the first woman inventor to obtain an American patent, died at the Framingham hospital.

For twenty-five years she lived alone in Framingham, where she spent nearly nineteen hours out of the twenty-four in her laboratory.

She was born in Manchester, N. H., seventy-five years ago. In all she had eighty-seven inventions patented, most of which are used at the present time. They were confined almost entirely to rubber, cotton and shoe machinery.

ALL PLEAD NOT GUILTY

Three Suspects Arraigned In Lawrence Murder Case

Salem, Mass., Oct. 15.—Bedras Tahearian, Garabed Barbarian and John Andanian were arraigned in superior court charged with manslaughter in killing John K. Shamlin, whose body was found in the Armenian quarter in Lawrence after a long search led by his widow.

The three men pleaded not guilty and were sent back to jail until the next session of court.

The Thinking Power

By WILLIAM BLAKEMAN

Something over a hundred years ago, when Europe was making one of those advances in new lines of thought which have marked different stages of intellectual development, when a crop of great French thinkers—Voltaire and others—were attracting attention, a wealthy Parisian lady conceived in some degree those ideas intended for the amelioration of women that are in vogue during the present day.

Mme. Drivaux did not follow the lines of the present movement, wherein women contend for equality with men. Her idea was that women were capable of higher intellectual development than men from the fact that they are made of finer texture. Her plan was to utilize the brute force of men by making it subservient to the superior intellectual faculties of women.

Mme. Drivaux, who possessed an enormous fortune, purchased an island in the Mediterranean sea, upon which she proposed to carry out her idea. She had no difficulty in founding her colony. Some of her colonists were of noble birth; others were commoners, but all were intellectual. She called for men volunteers who must join with a full understanding that the women were to do the thinking, the men to serve as protectors.

Mme. Drivaux's idea in separating her colonists from the rest of the world was that she might make an absolutely fresh start, untrammeled by existing institutions, laws, customs. But a perfect shaking off of the present in order to inaugurate a new future is very difficult. A weak spot in the founder's purpose was that among the hundred women she took with her there were three each of whom was loved by a man. These men, unwilling to part with those they loved, enrolled themselves among the masculine force who were to do the fighting and laborers. Thus at the very outset did the canker-worm get into the roots of the tree that Mme. Drivaux had planted with so much thought, trouble and expense.

Mme. Drivaux had enlisted every man colonist herself, taking care that he was not opposed to her scheme or unwilling to accept the direction of the women, looking to his muscles rather than his brain for his share of the work. But these three "misbegotten knaves," who had joined for the purpose of getting possession of the women they loved, deceived her by being the loudest in their advocacy of her plan and their promises to be obedient and patient laborers and soldiers.

Marriage was not forbidden in the colony, but every man who married was obliged to promise that he would obey his wife. Moreover, he was obliged to agree to be a hewer of wood and a drawer of water, looking to his wife for guidance like an obedient husband.

Now, the three marplots who had joined the colony were much put out at having to leave Paris for a considerable time in order to save for themselves the women they loved. Even on the voyage they put their heads together to devise a plan for being revenged on the colonists for the sacrifice they were obliged to make. Naturally it was easy for them to get control of the other men colonists, for the latter being content to let the women do their thinking were not disposed to think for themselves; consequently, associating with men who were disposed to lead them, they naturally followed.

Now, it so happened that soon after the colony was established a ship stopped at the island loaded with a fierce band of Arabs from the African coast, bent on plunder. Mme. Drivaux called upon the men to attack the invaders and drive them away. Jules Champinois, one of the three men who had been plotting against the success of the colonial scheme, said:

"We are ready to drive these men away, but we would be pleased if you would give us a plan of attack. It is our part to do the fighting, but your part to tell us how. Shall we take the offensive or act upon the defensive? Shall we use guns or shall we rely on our bayonets?"

Mme. Drivaux looked scornfully on M. Champinois, stamped her foot and told him to drive the rascals away without asking any further questions.

The women who were about their chief were much frightened.

"This colony is organized," continued the men's spokesman, "on the plan that you women do the thinking and we men the work and the fighting. Our portion of the good things we have is for doing these alone. It is not just that we should be called upon to think and fight. If we must do both we can't see wherein you are superior to us, and we call upon you to surrender the leadership in our favor."

The Arabs were stealing up on these poor women while the men were standing idle.

"We shall be murdered!" "Cowards! Do your duty!"

These expressions on the further approach of the enemy gave place to "For heaven's sake save us and you may have everything!"

"Resign the thinking power or perish!" cried Champinois.

"We resign!" replied a hundred voices.

"Follow me!" and, turning, he led the men against the enemy, who ran to their ships and sailed away.

The next day after a triple wedding the colony broke up and returned to France.

BEAUTIFUL DECORATIONS

At Social of Wollaston Baptist Church

An informal reception and home coming social was held in the chapel of the Wollaston Baptist church Wednesday evening and was the occasion of a large gathering of the parishioners of the church.

The motif of the decorations were pronounced to have been the most novel ever seen in Wollaston. The decorations were in charge of Ernest W. Campbell, nearly all of the material used coming from abroad. The wisteria and other flowers from Japan and the foliage as well as the illuminated roses from Germany.

The pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther, and Mrs. Walther, assisted by the deacons with their wives received the guests in a floral alcove of palms and decorative foliage, the whole forming a most beautiful setting. A triple arch between the rooms was outlined in delicate tracing of green foliage and wisteria while connecting the electroliers were festoons of electrically illuminated roses, large escutcheons of dark branches being used on the side walls.

Music during the evening was furnished by the High School orchestra and there were vocal selections by Miss Bailey of North Scituate. Ice cream and cake were served by a committee of young people.

The chairmen of the evening were Mrs. Ernest V. Neil and Mrs. Charles Bennett. The ushers were W. E. Bullock, Charles M. Kempton and H. Lawrence Wilson.

TWOHEY RALLIES AT ATLANTIC

Daniel M. Twohey candidate for mayor, opened his campaign in Atlantic Wednesday night. He addressed two large gatherings, one at Barry's corner and the other at the Atlantic depot.

He was late in reaching the first and young men interested in his campaign went to his home on Safford street in autos and carried him to the scene of action.

Mr. Towhey gave a refreshing resume of what he would do in office. He promised reforms in departments and a quart of good whiskey to "Zeke" Sargent, city engineer, if he could tell what is the matter with Neponset bridge.

Mr. Twohey in the course of his remarks said if a new school house could be built for $55,000 after $60,000 had been appropriated he would be entitled to the balance.

Enthusiasm of the most general nature prevailed and he was cheered to the echo.

The candidate possesses a fine voice and those on the outskirts had no difficulty in hearing his discussion of social welfare topics.

At the Atlantic depot his coming was heralded to the crowd by the lighting of a stick of red fire. He delivered the same speech as at Barry's corner and met with the same reception.

The home of the candidate on Safford street is generously placarded with posters of all descriptions announcing the candidacy of the occupant.

EXPERIENCES IN WAR ZONE

Dr. Bridgman in Paris Day War Was Declared

The Bethany Brotherhood was very fortunate in securing as the speaker for the opening meeting Wednesday evening, Rev. H. M. Bridgman, D. D., editor of the Congregationalist who arrived in Paris the day war was declared. He left New York July 24 and reached Paris July 31, en route to Germany as a delegate to the Peace conference. He spoke of "Experiences in the war zone."

Jokingly, he said, it had made a hero of him in the eyes of many, yet all he did was to run away from war. When his party, the last of the American delegates, sailed for Europe there were no indications of war. Arriving in England they learned war had been declared, but pressed on to Paris.

He said hotel clerks and waiters there looked like a funeral and were expecting to leave for the front in a few hours. On July 31 orders were issued to mobilize and there was an air of confusion.

We found it useless to attempt to reach Germany and almost as difficult to return to America. Transportation was disarranged. Troops and cavalry were passing almost constantly. Soldiers were parting with their families. I never expected to see such scenes where the one thought of a whole country was W-A-R.

Dr. Bridgman told of his experiences. He said the hog and the pessimist was there, but he never saw such kindnes and assistance as was given by Frenchmen, Jews and others.

A few meetings were held by the delegates to the Peace conference who reached Germany early, and were allowed by the Kaiser after other meetings were forbidden, and the conference was by no means a failure. Later the delegates were escorted to the border. Not however until after one delegate, who used a camera, was arrested and thrown into prison, and had to fight rats all night.

We came to realize what war meant. It paralyzed business, and cut the tenderest ties of life. But there are some alleviating factors. It has united nations, elevated tone for awhile, gayety had given away to serious things. We are bound to take home some lessons. Militariasm leads into blind alleys. The doctrine that might makes right must give away.

The speaker thought the time would come when battleships would not fly the flag of any particular country, but would be international. The status of the soldier should be the same as a policeman. Patriotism must broaden. We must move on to World patriotism. Must overcome racial animosity. Brute force should not rule.

We need a new cement—to follow the teachings of Jesus Christ. That is the way out. The Sermon on the Mount is the easiest way. Never before has the church had such an opportunity. May we take advantage of it.

Frank W. Crane, the president, presided at the meeting, which was attended by 125. On motion of Vice President E. L. Collins, a rising vote of thanks was given the speaker. Reports were received from officers, and committees were appointed on membership, sociability, and religions.

Refreshments were served at the close by Henry P. Hayward and Charles Gragg.

APPEAL TO FRIENDS.

Martha Ellingson, the 16 year old girl of 18 Curtis street, who had her leg cut off and narrowly escaped being killed last June at the Quincy station railroad crossing, has now been discharged from the City Hospital and is at present with her aunt enjoying a few days recuperation with friends at the Cohasset beach.

Her pressing need at present is money for an artificial leg. Miss Ellingson had just began to work at a Boston concern to help her aunt keep the home together when the accident occurred, and the home was thus deprived of the much needed income.

In order to give her many sympathetic friends an opportunity to assist in this so worthy cause the Daily Ledger columns have been opened, and credit will be given from day to day to all subscribers.

Forward all money to Rev. Paul Hallin, 101 Glendale road, Quincy, who has been appointed treasurer for this subscription fund, or the editor Daily Ledger.

These subscriptions are acknowledged:

FATALITY AT SHIPYARD

R. B. Carruthers, the Soccer Player Killed

Robert B. Carruthers, one of the Fore River soccer team, and withal one of the best soccer players in New England, died at the Red Cross hospital on the Fore River grounds this morning as a result of an accident Tuesday night.

Carruthers was employed as a chipper, and was working nights on the battleship Nevada. Just how the accident happened no one seems to know. All that is known is that workmen found him in the hole of the battleship, in an unconscious state Wednesday morning.

He was taken to the Red Cross hospital where it was discovered that he had sustained a fracture of the skull. There was a pressure on the brain and in order to relieve this an operation was performed Wednesday, when three inches of bone was removed from the skull. Dr. Blanchard said that he was also suffering from some sort of stomach trouble. Carruthers played in the game against Argentina Monday and was injured, and it is presumed that the injury to his stomach was caused at that time. He lingered until 5.30 this morning when he passed away. He was about 31 years of age and resided at 41 Broadway.

FORD—COLLYER.

One of the prettiest of the early fall weddings was at North Weymouth Tuesday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William O. Collyer, 16 Sea street. There daughter Velma Lincoln Collyer and Nathaniel S. Ford, son of Solomon Ford of North Weymouth were united in marriage at quarter past eight by Rev. Charles Clark of the Pilgrim Congregational church. Miss Helen Burgess cousin of the bride was her maid of honor and the best man was Herman O. Collyer, brother of the bride. The ushers were Alva H. Bicknell of Somerville and Wallace H. Drake of North Weymouth, Harvard 1914. Miss Doris Torrey played the wedding march.

Following the ceremony an informal and very jolly reception was held, the bride and groom being assisted in receiving by the maid of honor and best man. The bride's parents also shared in the congratulations it be the twenty-ninth anniversary of their marriage.

The bride's gown was of white albatross, trimmed with thread lace worn by her mother at her wedding. She carried a large shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a blue crepe de chine, with chiffon trimimngs with tulle veil to match and carried pink roses.

Guests were present from Quincy, Braintree, Hingham, Lowell, Winchester, Somerville and Weymouth.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford were given a hearty send off when they left on a short trip, being showered with confetti and good wishes.

BATES CAMPAIGN.

G. B. Bates will open his Mayoralty campaign Oct. 22, when he has accepted an invitation to address the South Shore Master Plumbers Association on "What is the matter with Quincy, and why it costs more to live here than in any other municipality in Massachusetts." He promises to show the cause and present the remedy.

QUINCY SOUTH

The classified columns of the Daily Ledger became very important to a girl living on Independence avenue the other day. This girl lost a sum of money on Saturday, and it seemed almost hopeless to ever see it again. Before Saturday had passed the money was returned to her. A little "ad." in the Ledger did the trick.

HIBERNIANS CONGRATULATED

latory vein, brightening their brief remarks with apt stories which were enthusiastically received.

Rev. Fr. Coan was greeted with an ovation when he arose to speak and all stood as they applauded. He congratulated the members on their accomplishments. He said it was disheartening to see the condition of the building after the fire, and it was painful for all to recall the efforts it represented in a mass of ruins, but in the midst of difficulties the members, through co-operation with each other have re-erected a structure superior in every way to the one destroyed.

State President Donnelly said all were interested in seeing homes for the divisions and auxiliaries and after greeting the members in the name of the National officers he brought his brief remarks to a close.

State Secretary Dwyer gave a short history of how the Hibernians were organized to protect the Catholic priests. The places of worship he said were the hillsides of Ireland, the sky was their canopy and in these conditions they were not afraid to retain their faith and protect the missionaries and today said Mr. Dwyer the organization stands ever ready to exert its best efforts to develop along the lines on which it was organized.

County President White was brief, congratulating the members and urging them to continue the development of the society in Quincy.

Representative Sullivan, Charles J. J. MvGilvray. Edward J. Fegan and James E. Wall, the latter declaring for women's suffrage, delivered short address on the benefits of the society, made brief references to the history of the Irish people, and urged a continuation of the brotherly spirit.

President McNally brought the greeting of the members of Div. 17 and said the long time friendship between the North and South sections of the city grows gradually and is today stronger than before.

The banquet was served in Franklin hall formerly the lodge room which has been rearranged. Dancing in Quincy Adams hall, in the upper part of the building followed. During the evening vocal solos were rendered by George Davey. Joseph Caravaglio and James McArdle and cornet solos by Thomas Djerf.

The members of the association who directed the remodelling of the building were Daniel Mannix, T. J. Welsh, Edward Powers, J. J. Donohue, Dennis Falvey, M. Shaughnessy, J. J. Kelly, C. J. Sullivan, James Doherty, Daniel Donahue and C. J. McGilvray.

REGISTRATION WAS HEAVY

No More Can be Added Before State Election

REGISTRATION

The Registrars of Voters held an unusually busy session Wednesday afternoon and evening. It was the last opportunity to get names on the voting lists before the State election and during the day and evening 207 names were added, making a grand total of 747 names added since the lists were published in August. The Registrars have not as yet got their figures in shape to announce the number of names on the lists, by precincts, for the State election.

BRIEFS

The Committee on Sewers of the City Council go to Houghs Neck late this afternoon to look over the draining of the madow on Babcock street, near the Willows, an order for which is now pending.

Acting Mayor Whiton made a tour of the city this morning with Commissioner Brown looking at some of the street work which is now in progress.

The furnace fire which was not uncomfortable Wednesday is rather uncomfortable today, for there has been quite a change in the temperature. The cool wind of Wednesday has gone, and the temperature was nearly ten degrees higher this noon than Wednesday at the some hour.

How many copies of the Kings Daughters Ledger have you ordered?

PROPOSALS.

Quincy, Mass., Oct. 15, 1914.

Sealed proposals will be received by the Commissioner of Public Works, City Hall, until 10 o'clock A. M. October 22, 1914, at which time they will be publicly opened and read for building a Block Stone Culvet on the extension of Winthrop Street, Houghs Neck, in accordance with plans on file in the office of the Commissioner.

Proposals must be accompanied by a certified check of Two Hundred Dollars ($200.00) payable to the City of Quincy, which check is the property of the City of Quincy if the bidder fails to execute the contract within six days after the contract may have been awarded to him.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids or to accept the bid deemed best for the city.

QUINCY ATLANTIC

The revival meetings at the Atlantic Methodist church continue with good interest. The unique plan of the pastor in having the pastors of Quincy and suburbs of Boston to participate is meeting favor with the public. During the past week the following pastors assisted viz. Rev. Neldon of West Quincy, Rev. Dr. Baily of Wollaston, Rev. Dr. Parkinson of Newton Center, Rev. Dr. Gray of Newton, Rev. Noble of Newton Highlands. During the coming week rominent speakers are promised.

Mrs. Parkinson wife of Rev. George H. Parkinson of Newton Center gave a very beautiful address to the young people's mass meeting held at the Atlantic Methodist church Sunday evening. A similar meeting will be held next Sunday at 3.30 P. M., to be addressed by Mrs. Carrington of Newton. Mr. Noble will render two solos and will conduct the music.

Miss Ruth Bean of Atlantic street, who is training in the Newton hospital, has been transferred to the contagious ward.

WILL BUILD PARISH HOUSE

Quincy Wollaston Unitarians Take Favorable Action

At a meeting of the parish of the Wollaston Unitarian church held Wednesday evening it was voted to commence at once to build the parish house. Hon. Eugene H. Sprague presided at the meeting at which there was a goodly number present.

The building committee are Charles T. Baker, Dr. Charles S. Adams, John Morgan, Dr. John L. Merrill and Roy C. Baker.

Actual work on the parish house was commenced today, cutting down trees and getting the site in readiness. Work on the parish house is to be rushed and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy in about four months.

The addition is to be two stories high and will be constructed along the same architectual lines as the present church. Like the church the first story will be of granite and the second of wood.

Entrance will be made through a vestibule 12 by 18 from which a stair way will lead down to the coatrooms in the vestry of the present church.

On the upper floor, on a level with the vestibule and church auditoium will be a parish hall, which will be used for entertainments, lectures, dramatics, etc. The hall is 40 by 47 and has a seating capacity of 300. A large stage 19 feet deep with a 20 foot proscenium is a feature of the hall.

On the lower floor will be a supper room 37 by 48 where dances, card parties, etc., may be held. By means of sliding glass doors it is possible to throw this room and the present vestry into one large room.

The present kitchen in the vestry will be changed into coat rooms and a new kitchen 17 by 23 included in the addition.

Two committees or class rooms, 10 by 15, and 11 by 17, are features of the lower floor, and provision is made for table storage when not in use. A stairway at the back will connect the two floors and also provide a rear entrance to the parish house.

In addition there will probably be two fire exits, from the supper room. The proposed changes interfere very little with the interior of the present church auditorium, the only difference being that a portion of one of the windows will be transformed into a door connecting the church with the parish hall.

HOLIDAY. GAME.

The annual ball game between the Norfolk Downs and the Montclair Improvement associations was played on the holiday at the Pines in the presence of a large crowd of rooters. Pete Flynn was the manager of the Norfolk Downs team and J. T. McCabe performed the same function for the Montclair men. The batteries were Langelier and Curtis for Norfolk downs and Bevis and Cady for Montclair. Before the game was over however Bevis was given a rest and Lindberg put in the box. The score was 26 to 21 in favor of the Montclair team.

New Tractor Great Addition to Fire Department

These are busy days at the Central fire station, for the expert who came from the factory of the A & B Co. is breaking in a number of the permanent men, so that they will be able to run the steamer. Up to Thursday night three of the permanent men at the Central station had been instructed. Of course they are unable to handle the piece of apparatus quite as handily as the expert but this will come with time.

During the past few days the steamer has been run to all parts of the city so that the chaffeurs will be familiar with the turns, etc.

According to Chief Billings, while the apparatus as it stands today weighs something like seven tons, it does not require a great amount of gasoline to run it. In fact the gasoline tank under the drivers seat only holds ten gallons. Chief Billings says that it has been determined by actual measurement that it only required a gallon of gasoline to run the steamer to Atlantic and back.

In the tractor it should be under-

BUSINESS MENS COMMITTEE

To Work for Efficiency in City Affairs

Alex. Falconer this morning filed papers with City Clerk Crane and thus brought about the legal start of a new political organization in Quincy. It is known as the "Quincy Business Administration Committee," and its definite purpose according to the papers filed is for the promotion of the welfare of the citizens of the city of Quincy and an improved economical and efficient business administration for Quincy. The papers indicate that Alex. Falconer is chairman of the new committee, William Coulson of Atlantic, treasurer, and S. C. Melville, secretary.

The new organization came to life at a very enthusiastic gathering in Union hall, Thursday evening. There were about 75 representative men from all sections of the city present. and all of the speakers agreed that an organization that would keep a watchful eye on the legislation and the administration of Quincy municipal affairs would do a vast good for the city. It developed that the Quincy business administration committee would not be bound by party ties, but from time to time would exploit the candidacy of any man whom they believed was qualified and who would further the ideas of the committee in municipal affairs.

After the organization had been perfected, and Alex. Falconer was chosen as chairman of the committee, John L. Hamilton moved that the committee endorse Chester I. Campbell's candidacy for Mayor, as he believed that he was the type of man that would carry out the ideas of the new committee if elected.

Chairman Falconer left the chair to second the nomination, saying in part: "Quincy has a chance to obtain the highest standard in municipal affairs. This chance is in the election of Chester I Campbell, who after much persuasion has allowed himself to be drawn into the mayoralty contest, and is willing to sacrifice time from his business to give the City of Quincy the kind of administration that is needed to put it on the map.

"The affairs of Quincy have been too long in the hands of inexperienced men who have unconsciously wasted the city's money without getting results. There are plenty good department heads in the city of Quincy, who with the right sort of a chief executive, could bring these departments to the higest efficiency.

"It would be an untruth to state that there is any graft in any of our previous administrations. It has been purely a case of the lack of the right kind of executives. I believe that they have been high minded, and honestly gave the best that was in them, yet were unused to handling affairs in a business way, and the government has been loosely managed as a result.

"We want a man of the character of Chester I. Campbell, who will work in perfect harmony with the City Council and who will see that the various department heads will get the greatest efficiency in their particular departments.

"It is the purpose of this committee to be on the job 365 days in the year. It is our intention to keep a close watch on municipal affairs and whenever it is possible to work in harmony with the City Council and chief executive by offering suggestions that work out to Quincy's advantage. We will not hesitate to protest any act that we regard as unbusinesslike and we will do it no matter who is behind the undesirable project."

Immediately after the organization of the new committee the various committees of the Campbell Campaign Committee offered their services in a like capacity, and it was voted to accept. In fact, all detail of the Campbell Campaign Committee was immediately taken up by the Quincy Business Administration Committee who will conduct the affairs of Mr. Campbell's campaign.

Great enthusiasm was shown and it was the consensus of opinion that Mr. Campbell's nomination and election was assured. In fact, the new organization dispensed with a lot of business and judging by the snap and enthusiasm they will push a very vigorous campaign for Mr. Campbell. A committee on rallies was appointed and the Campbell oratorical feasts will begin early next week.

FORTY-SEVEN DAYS DROUGHT

A Little Rain Breaks an Unusual Record

The drought which has existed for 47 days has been broken, and a sigh of relief has gone up from the citizens in general. The weather looked rather theatening late in the evening Thursday and by 11.30 there was a smart shower. While at no time during the night did it rain good and hard. yet that which did fall laid the dust nicely and brought relief to many who from the accumulation of dry leaves and rubbish about their premises have been in constant fear of fire. Summerlike heat returned to New England Thursday afternoon and evening and it was uncomfortably warm. More rain is needed.

ADMITS HIS MARRIAGE

Clark G. Boynton Joins Wife in Boston

Practically nothing could be learned of the conversation which took place between Mr. and Mrs. Boynton but it resulted in Mr. Boynton making public the following statement:

"This is Clark G. Boynton of Wollaston," by way of introduction. "I am tired of all this talk about my marriage to Miss Foretier. It is true that I denied the marriage. It was planned in the first place that I should do so. Both Miss Foretier and I agreed to this, and we have both kept our word.

"You may say for me now, however, that I admit we went to Brattleboro, Vt., and were married. That's about all there is to it. Everyone is all right and we are satisfied. to have everyone know we are married."

Clark G. Boynton of Wollaston, deeply concerned over the statement that he denied his marriage to Jane McClure Foretier, a member of the faculty of the New England Convervatory of Music, admitted on Thursday evening that it had taken place and said that the "at home" cards would be sent out within a few days.

The admission of Boynton follows the mailing of cards announcing the marriage by the mother of the bride.

Mrs. Foretier-Boynton remained at

CIVIC SERVICE.

Formerly to hold office in a city or town government, placed an interrogation mark against your reputation. If a man was elected alderman of a city, his character was gone. It was no use trying to reform municipal or state politics. If you did happen to elect honest men, they would be grafters before their terms was out.

At least, so many people believed. In a great many places there was and is reason for this feeling. But people are growing discontented with sloppy municipal government.

Probably the greatest difficulty in the way of efficient local government in American cities lies in the unwillingness of business and professional men to accept public office. They say they don't want to fawn and cringe for the favor of politicians, nor consort with Tom, Dick and Harry in their hangouts and loafing places.

This may sound well as an excuse when your neighbors ask you to run for the school board or the state legislature. But more often the real reason is unwillingness to give up time from private affairs.

Yet, what satisfaction is there in going through life and doing nothing for your home town? What an inglorious old age it is, when a man sits down on his dollars, and has no record of service to his fellows!

The experience of holding office, even in a local government, or in the lower branch of a state legislature, is a valuable and rewarding one to any man, no matter how high one's position in life. If a man is independent and honest, he has acquired an honor that no money can buy. He has helped build a nobler town and a nobler state.

If only our best and brightest men could feel the call to this service, inefficiency and crookedness would disappear.

FRENCH CHECK ADVANCE OF THE GERMANS

Spectacular and Unexpected Attack Upon Invaders

CROSS RIVER WHERE IT WAS UNPROTECTED

Cuirassiers Swim Swollen Stream and Are Followed by Infantry, Who Put End to Menace of German Raid to Cut Off Channel Ports—Allies Bend Back Invading Lines to Very Perceptible Degree—Bombardment of Rheims Continues—Nothing In Way of German March on Ostend

London, Oct. 16.—By swimming their horses through the swollen waters of the river Lys, 2000 French cuirassiers were able Thursday to deliver one of the most spectacular and unexpected attacks of the war.

At nightfall, as a result of the brilliant and daring feat, a division of the French infantry were able to occupy the town of Estaires, ten miles east of Hazebrouck, where, only a day or two ago, the invading cavalry were sweeping practically unopposed through a terrified countryside. The Germans in northern France are now all on the eastern side of the Lys, a decided reversal of the situation two days ago.

The Germans, who have been raiding in small bands across the Lys, had placed batteries of machine guns at every place where it would have been easy to throw across a pontoon bridge. They neglected, however, to guard against a crossing of the river at some places where it could not be bridged.

French aviators were able to report the disposition of the invading troops and guns. During Wednesday night 2000 horsemen made a wide detour, choosing the darkness to avoid any chance of detection by the German flying men.

How It Was Done

At dawn Thursday they had reached a spot where the Lys narrows and where the current was not only swift but deep. One cavalryman, carrying a long rope, swam his horse across the river, where he first made sure that he had not been seen, and then firmly knotted the strong rope to a tree. One by one his comrades followed across the whirling waters, the horses swimming easily while their riders kept them from being swept down stream by holding to the cable.

In a surprisingly short time the whole detachment was on the opposite bank. At Mayville they rushed the invading flank, striking it at a point so weak that the Germans were compelled to give way. The engagement pulled back from the river the artillerymen who were holding a bridge, a division of infantry rushed across and completed the defeat of the Germans and occupied Estaires.

It was comparatively a small engagement, but, in connection with other advances made further south, it has, for the moment at least, put an end to the menace of the German raid to cut off the channel ports and thus impede the flow of British troops to the battle line.

Allies Make Gains

In the neighborhood of Lens, where the great coal fields make the employment of large bodies of troops extremely difficult, the French and British were able to push forward their lines in the direction of Douai. Still further to the south, in the region between damaged Arras and the ruins of what was once the prosperous town of Albert, the allies delivered a telling assault that bent back the invading lines to a very perceptible degree.

Gains in this section have been so pronounced within the last few days that the French artillery should soon be in a position to shell the German lines about Cambrai, where three important railroad lines join.

The activity of the allies on the battle line that stretches northward into Belgium from Roye has been in marked contrast to the stubbornly defensive attitude of the Germans. Even in the bloody angle about Roye and Lassigny, the furious infantry attacks have ceased and the enemy seems content to keep up a desultory bombardment.

Wet weather has once more prevailed for the last few hours, which, added to the bitter cold of the nights, has brought discomfort to the men in the trenches. However, the British and French have now fully prepared themselves for a winter campaign, and the actual suffering is less than in the early days of the battle along the Aisne. There are indications in captured trenches that the Germans are not so well equipped for cold weather as are the allies.

More Fighting In Centre

In the centre there was more fighting Thursday than for any day for the last fortnight. The bombardment of Rheims continued, the cathedral being struck several times. The invaders claim that they have certain information that the spires are being used for military purposes by the French.

Even on the formidable entrenchments of the invaders on the lofty heights at Craonne, the allies were able to make some advance. Northeasterly from Barry au Bac the progress of the past few days was continued. These gains were light, only a little over a mile, but every mile advanced in this tremendously fortified section is strong evidence that the Germans have weakened their centre to a dangerous degree in order to fling troops to the north.

To the south the road leading from Verdun to Metz, in the region of St. Mihiel and near Marcheville, the French were able to push forward, rendering still more remote the attempt of the invaders to batter a way through the Verdun-Toul line of forts.

To add to these assured triumphs, an unofficial dispatch comes from Switzerland which reports that the French are again in Altkirch and Mulhausen in Alsace. This, however, is not given much credence in London.

Situation In Belgium

In Belgium, except in the extreme southwest, the Germans are meeting with practically no opposition. They have occupied Bruges and are probably in Ostend or near enough to it to take possession. No serious fighting is expected in this area until the German army marches southeastward to join with the forces of General von Boehm.

The silence of the official statement from Berlin upon the successes claimed by the French is considered as a tacit admission that things are not going so well in the west as the general staff expected. Considerable curiosity is apparent about the headquarters of the kaiser, which has been moved nearer to the fighting lines in France. Dr. von Bethmann-Holwegg, the imperial chancellor, has reached Brussels, but the reason for his presence in the newly conquered territory has not been explained.

IN STATE OF TERROR

Ostend Fugitives In London Tell Pitiful Stories

The vanguard of the army of flight from Ostend reached London. It was composed mostly of women—bedraggled, weary and still full of the fear of German attack engendered by sleepless days of waiting at the Belgian seaport for passage home. Scores of wounded—Belgian and English—were among the refugees.

They told pitiful stories of the confusion in what had been the Belgian capital. The troops had left days ago, realizing the danger of the German circling movement from Antwerp and the south. The Belgian capital had once again been removed, and all that was left was a city of frightened women, wounded men and civilians, all clamoring for passage across the channel.

There was no other exit than across the channel. Every boat was crowded to suffocation and even tiny fishing vessels were pressed into service to make the passage. The flight of German Taubes over the city gave fear of bomb-dropping.

TYPHUS AMONG GERMANS

English and French Believed to Be Similarly Affected

Both the Germans and English have deemed it necessary to send medical experts to the front to view the condition of the troops there and to take such measures concerning the physical health of the men as may, in view of the conditions, seem necessary to these experts.

Among the Germans typhus is said to have made its appearance, and it is also stated that there is much pneumonia and dysentery. These troops have lived a long time in wet clothes in trenches more or less filled with water and have been of necessity more or less poorly fed.

The actual diseases which have appeared among the English are not mentioned, but as conditions have been much the same for them as for the Germans, it would seem probable that they are afflicted with much the same ailments.

No mention is made of any similar measures having been adopted in regard to the French troops, but as conditions for them are precisely the same as the others, they are probably equally afflicted.

May Transport Troops to Scene of South African Revolt

Interest is again centering in London on the reported movements of a number of vessels of the allied fleets in the North sea and particularly in the channel.

British transports have been reported in Portuguese waters for several days. Presumably they were dispatched there in anticipation of the necessity for utilization of Portuguese troops. These transports, under the convoy of British warships, can be used at once, if Portugal formally determines to lend the aid of her troops to subdue the revolt in South Africa.

Portuguese troops, if they are sent, would skirt the Cape of Good Hope and land at Lorenzo Marques, in Portuguese East Africa, according to the belief of military experts. There are splendid railway facilities there for quick transportation of forces into the northern portion of the South African union.

ROYALTY QUITS LONDON

King George and Family at Sandringham For Indefinite Period

Virtually all the members of the British royal family departed from London for Sandringham for a stay, the duration of which is not announced. Queen Mother Alexandria and Princess Victoria left the capital on a special train, shortly to be followed by another special train bearing King George, Queen Mary and Princess Mary and Princes Albert and John.

SUNK IN NEW YORK HARBOR

Steamer Metapan Is Rammed at the End of a Voyage From Colon

New York, Oct. 16.—A collision in the lower harbor between the steamer Metapan, coming in from Colon, and the freighter Iowan, leaving port for San Francisco, resulted in the Metapan sinking shortly after she had been driven as far as possible on the near by beach.

All her seventy-seven passengers and her crew were rescued.

The Iowan, less seriously damaged, stood by, and her boats took two of the Metapan's passengers aboard. The remainder were transferred to rescuing craft and landed in New York.

The extent of the damage to the freighter could not be learned definitely, but passengers on the Metapan said her bow was badly bent and twisted.

The crash occurred during a dense fog, the freighter being first seen when she was but a short distance away.

The wireless operator on the Metapan immediately sent forth "S. O. S." calls for assistance, which were quickly answered by several vessels in the near vicinity.

LOST VOICE IN A NIGHT

Black Hair of Tenor Jose Also Turned White as Result of Accident

New York, Oct. 16.—A pathetic story was told in supreme court of how Richard Jose, tenor of the "Old Homestead," lost his voice in one night, his jet black hair turning at the same time to a silver white. The singer sued to recover $25,000 from the Orpheum company.

Jose at 42 years looks like a man of 60. His voice is said to have lost its silvery tones. At the close of his story counsel for the Orpheum company asked for a conference, after which it was announced the case had been settled.

When singing in the Alhambra threatre in Brooklyn a weight fell on his head and caused a serious injury.

Praise For Woman Farmers

Wichita, Kan., Oct. 16.—Women are just as efficient farmers as men, Miss Pearl Mitchell of Columbia, Mo., declared at the International Dry Farming congress. Miss Mitchell said there are 200,000 successful women farmers in the United States.

Two Children Burned to Death

Calais, Me., Oct. 16.—Two children, aged 2 and 8, of Fred Eaton were burned to death when their home at North Perry was destroyed by fire. Mrs. Eaton was absent when the fire broke out.

Burial of King Charles

Bucharest, Oct. 16.—With impressive ceremonies, the body of King Charles of Roumania was laid to rest here. The formal funeral exercises were exceedingly simple despite the pomp of royalty.

Thirty Students Poisoned

Macon, Ga., Oct. 16.—Thirty Mercer university students and three members of the faculty are suffering with ptomaine poisoning from food served at dinner in the college dormitory.

Editor Kills Sportsman

San Bernardino, Cal., Oct. 16.—Howard E. Davis, editor of the Evening Index, shot and killed Ben Emerson, a local sportsman. Davis says Emerson attacked him.

INDUSTRIAL TEACHERS

School to be Opened For Their Training

Those in Quincy who have taken an interest in industrial education will be pleased to learn that Massachusetts' plan for training industrial teachers is to be put into practical operation early next month. What is to be known as the Massachusetts Normal School for the Training of Industrial Teachers has been organized with Charles R. Allen, agent of the state board in charge. The school will be composed of five centers in different parts of the state, in each of which the work of training will be carried on.

The school will inaugurate the first training of industrial teachers undertaken by any state in the United States and also a different plan from any carried out for training such teachers elsewhere. Massachusetts believes that industrial teachers must not be taken from among the ranks of the teaching profession but from the industries. It proposes to take men who are successful in their respective industries and train them to impart this knowledge to school pupils, the emphasis being placed upon the industry rather than upon the teaching.

This condition is met by the state in establishing training centers and holding sessions in the evening so that the prospective teacher can retain his position in industry and receive his training at the same time. This will occupy two evenings a week for 20 successive weeks. The training will be only in methods of teaching, for the skilled workman may not know how to impart his knowledge most successfully in the schoolroom. In the second year the normal student will be given a position as assistant teacher, for which they will be paid. In the next year they will be ready to take independent positions.

Each class will be limited to 15 members. The representation of trades and industries will be determined by the possible demand for them in the different localities. The minimum requirements for admission are a trade experience of not less than five years subsequent to apprenticeship, or its equivalent; applicant to have reached a position calling for supervisory work such as foreman in a small plant or assistant foreman in a large plant; grammar school education or its equivalent; age between 25 and 35.

This plan was outlined by Mr. Allen at the meeting two years ago of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education. Last year Pratt Institute in Brooklyn instituted a course of somewhat the same nature. Mr. Allen is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, class of '85. He carries a B. A. degree from that institution and a master of arts degree from Harvard. He has been a graduate student of John Hopkins University and is one of the two or three pioneers in industrial education in this commonwealth.

After spending one or two years at commercial work Mr. Allen became an instructor in the New Bedford high school. He became interested in industrial education over 10 years ago and secured the establishment of an evening industrial department, of which he was made head and which is one of two started almost simultaneously in the state. He was active in securing legislative enactment giving state aid to industrial schools. He was made an agent of the State board of education three years ago last March.

Quincy is taking a foremost position in industrial schools.

In the membership contest of the Young People's Religious Union of the Wollaston Unitarian church he Reds beat the Blues. The event is to be celebrated tonight in the vestry at 6.30 o'clock, when the Blues will serve a supper to the Reds.

UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER

Daily Ledger Yields to Seige by the Ladies

After a long siege, and demands which could not longer be resisted, the publishers of the Daily Ledger have yielded to the terms of the King's Daughters, and will surrender their entire plant early in November to the members of Unity circle, which by-the-way is the largest and strongest circle in Massachusetts, and is doing a great charitable work in this city. No organization in Quincy excels this noble band of women.

November 11, 1914, is the date selected for the publication of the King's Daughters' edition of the Daily Ledger, which may number 12, 18, or even 24 pages according to the support given by advertisers. An edition of 5,000 to 10,000 copies is proposed, and already subscriptions have been received for several hundred copies. It is proposed to make a house-to-house canvass in advance all over the city.

Unity circle numbers 104 active members and several honorary members, and everyone is anxious to serve as editor, or reporter, or writer, or solicitor of advertisement, or news girl, or in any capacity she can to make the Kings Daughters' Daily Dedger a great success.

The paper is already attracting the attention of the Kings Daughter's throughout Norfolk county; yes, throughout Massachusetts, and assistance is coming from unexpected sources. On Nov. 11, therefore, the King's Daughters Ledger will go all over the world.

The staff includes:

Editor-in-Chief—Mrs. Victor E. Miller.

Assistant Editors—Mrs. George R. Badger, Mrs. Frank W. Crane, Mrs. Charles W. Guy, and Mrs. J. Francis Merrill.

Advertising Manager—Mrs. E. L. Mitchell, Jr.

Circulation Department—Miss Lou Lewis.

"Ruth"—Miss Harriett R. Griffiths.

All these departments have a large corps of assistants, and all are hard at work. The King's Daughters have put one over the newspaper men, however, in the selection a young lady who will be known as "Ruth." Well regulated newspaper offices have bookkeepers, stenographers, proof readers, copy holders, and even a devil, but whether "Ruth" fills any of these positions remains to be explained.

DISTRICT COURT.

Timothy Ritchie was fined $15 Joseph Cogan $10, Oscar Johnson $15 for drunkenness at Quincy.

John Conti was arraigned for neglect to support his family at Braintree. Case continued until Oct. 22.

Joseph Levangie was fined $25 and sentenced to one month in the house of correction for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor at Cohasset.

COLE--TORREY WEDDING

The home of Mrs. Abbie Dana, 25 Spear street, Thursday evening was a bower of autumn foliage and flowers for the wedding of Miss Helen Elizabeth Torrey and Harold Allen Cole of Malden.

Lohengrin's wedding march was played by C. Elmer Wilson of the Shawmut Congregational church of Boston at the entrance of the bridal party and Lawrence B. Ford of Quincy sang the Barcarolle from The Tales of Hoffman.

Miss Lilian Mae Howe of Watertown was maid of honor and Clyde F. Felton of East Boston best man. Little Carolyn Dana was the ring bearer and the ushers were Prescott H. Torrey of Derry, N. H., Edwin L. Cole of Malden and Reginald W. Drake of Middleboro.

The bride entered with her father, preceded by the groom and best man, ring bearer, and maid of honor. Rev. Perry Bush of the Universalist church of Chelsea performed the ceremony at eight o'clock, the bride being given in marriage by her father.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held, the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Torrey of Quincy and the groom's parents Mr. and Mrs. Allen P. Cole of Malden assisting the young people in receiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Cole are to reside in Malden at 60 Judson street.

PHILANTHROPHY HELPS CITY

Annual Appeal for Support of Associated Charities

Editor of Daily Ledger:

Just at this time we are engaged in various attempts to boost Quincy; to make it a better place to live in; to add to individual happiness; to increase the number of satisfied denizens of our city.

It may seem singular to the readers of this paper that in contributing to the Associated Charities of Quincy they are by doing so, in a certain sense, boosting the city, but most assuredly it is true that it will increase the satisfaction felt by those that come to our city, to learn that our poor and unfortunate are well cared for; that it is not a matter for rustic provincialism to occasionally lend a helping hand to some deserving, or perhaps undeserving, person or persons, but that it is a system of benevolent action that avoids drawing from the worthy, money to maintain the fit and the unfit, within our borders. who seemingly are unable to care for themselves.

Every movement of well-organized philanthropy does, in some measure, make our city a better place in which to live.

Money is scarce with us. and growing scarer, but while the automobiles fill our streets with pleasure seeking parties, it would seem as though just a trifle of the money spent in sensible pleasure, could be diverted to this very worthy undertaking.

With the terrible horrors of the war across the Atlantic, it sems that the misery within our own confines is small and quite insignificant. At the same time, to the individual, in some cases, the pain may be just as acute and the suffering just as lasting.

To any man who feels that his money is absolutely his own, and that every one should look out for himself and the devil take the hindmost, an appeal for a contribution to this charity would fall upon deaf ears; but as the years roll by, probably the greatest satisfaction most people will find, will be in what little good they have done for others. rather than in the placid contemplation of their own past opulence.

Coincident with this letter, the secretary is putting out a full report of this last year's doings, and many copies will be distributed. Any one desiring a copy and not obtaining one through other channels, will be gladly given one by the secretary at the rooms of the Association on Goffe street.

Rupert F. Claflin.

G. A. R. INSPECTION.

Twenty of the veteran members of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R. lined up for the annual inspection in Grand Army hall Thursday evening. The inspecting officer was Commander J. Pratt of Post 68 of Dorchester, who was accompanied by a detail of his post. Upwards of a dozen visitors from Braintree and nearby towns witnessed the exercises. Commander Dr. C. R. Marstin presided and introduced many of those present. Remarks were brief, after which the old fashioned clam chowder was served.

NEW ADAMS SCHOOL.

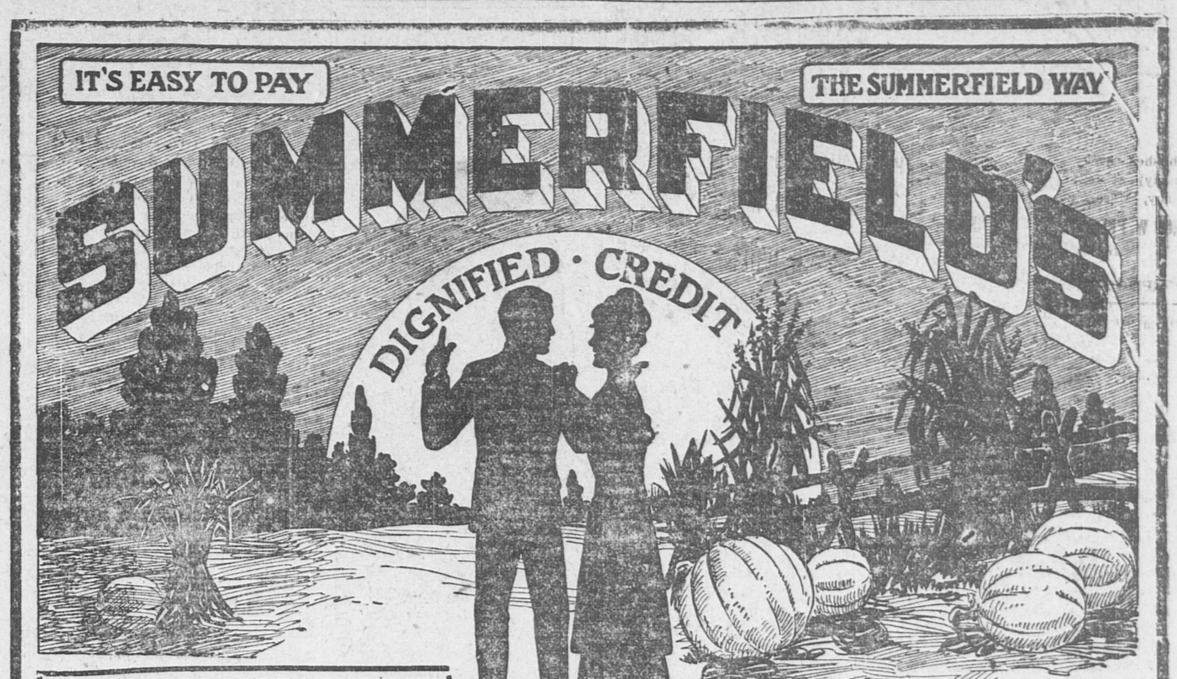

Weather strips are today being set on the north, east and westerly sides of the new Adams school building and it is the belief of the city officials that they will overcome the lack of sufficient heating apparataus.

Last winter the apparatus failed to fulfill expectations, because the heating specifications had provided for 1400 feet less radiation than is furnished the new Wollaston school building although the New Adams is on one of the most exposed sites in the city.

The damages resulting from freeze ups and bursting pipes approximated about $200, and sessions were suspended several times because the building could not be heated.

FINE APPLES.

At the Massachusetts Horticultural exhibition in Boston last week, L. S. Richards of Marshfield Hills, apples attracted considerable attention. The secretary of the board of agriculture said everybody admired the exhibit and also that Marshfield and vicinity was especially adapted to apple growing. Mr. Richards has an orchard of some 800 trees. The Rhode Island State Fruit exhibitors are urging him to send apples to their exhibition at Providence next month.

STORE OPEN SATURDAY, 10 P. M.

Come up out of the darkness, friend—we will help you. Get married just as soon as you like and worry no more about the cost of furnishing a home for your bride-to-be.

Our dignified credit plan permits you to live like a prosperous man, save a little and get a comfortable home. The fancied belief that it is absolutely necessary to have accumulated sufficient capital to pay cash outright for your furniture if you wish your home to be all that you had planned on its being, causes many young people to put off indefinitely their marriage.

That this belief is entirely unfounded is proven instantly when you see the high character of the furniture shown on our sales floors, see how reasonable the goods are marked and then realize that you take your own time in paying for the furniture.

The great gulf that separates the cheerless home from the comfortable one is lack of ready money, and we bridge over this gulf. Do not think for a minute, when accepting credit, you are under any obligation. We frankly tell you that we prefer your taking advantage of our extension of credit, for, in our cash transaction, our relations are over when the goods are delivered; but under our dignified credit system you visit our store weekly or monthly.

You see new merchandise displayed continuously in our store and, if the first furniture bought from us is all that you expected, then ten chances to one you will continue to trade with us year after year.

Our dignified credit system is your protection, as well as convenience, for, looking at things in a cold business way, we could not afford to have you dissatisfied and the goods not paid for.

GRANITE AVENUE BRIDGE.

The floor is being laid over the draw of the nck $50,000 Granite avenue bridge between Milton and Dorchester. It is expected the machinery to set it in operation will be ready for use soon. About six weeks will elapse however, before the highway is open to traffic, approaches still having to be completed. Construction of the permanent aproaches will start in about a week. It will take workmen about four weeks to finish this part Then about one week later the bridge will be opened and the temporary structure removed.

A whist club to be known as the Round Dozen has been organized in the vicinity of Norfolk street, Wollaston, and will meet twice a month for an evening of whist. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Lufter.

MEDALS OF HONOR.

John Georgadin of the Thompson cafe, is one of the few Greek patriots in Massachusetts awarded a medal of honor for bravery during the wars Greece recently participated in. Georgadin left Quincy during the war with Turkey, and at the battle of Salonica, in the Macedonian province, he displayed the heroism of the Spartan. He later repeated his good work in the Bulgarian war.

Both medals are made from the metal of guns captured during the campaigns, and are marked with expressions of gratitude. But one bears a fac simile of Constantine, King of Greece, and his father, the other having a cross of honor on the obverse an a grateful expression on the reverse. Georgadin modestly exhibited the medals to his friends and was tendered an immediate reception.

VERDICT FOR DR. BRUCE.

In the Suffolk Superior court this morning, a verdict was returned in favor of the defendant in the suit against Dr. Daniel A. Bruce of Atlantic to recover the sum of $5,000 for the death of Mary Lochrea of Dorchester. It was just three years ago today that the automobile of Dr. Bruce struck and killed the girl. Suit was entered for $5,000 damages, but it was not proven that it was due to carelessness of Dr. Bruce. McManus & Lucey represented the plaintiff, and the defendant was represented by Paul R. Blackmur and John D. Mackay.

An auto of the Quincy Beef Co., and a carriage of Miss Minnie Hardwick collided near the corner of Newport avenue and Beale street Wednesday evening. No serious damage was done and no one injured.

MASQUE BALL.

The Skandinavian Socialist Club held a masque ball in Electa hall, Thursday evening which was attended by a great many members and friends. All were costumed and the prizes were awarded to Miss Judith Darellius of Quincy, Etta Olson of Cambridge, and Hans Wallin of Quincy. The judges were William Connell, Gus Ericson and Fred Mattson. The committee was Hjalmar Sternberg, A. Bergstedt, and H. Seblom. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight and refreshments were served at intermission.

Frank Martell of Freeman street, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the City Hospital, has so far recovered that he has returned to his home.

WORLD RECORD BEATEN.

The worlds single string bowling record for women, made at the bowling congress in Boston by a Waltham girl, was broken in this city Thursday evening by Mrs. Florence Moran who made a single of 118 at the Wardwell alleys.

The record, however, is not official, not having been made in registered competition, but it indicates that the official record is in danger.

Mrs. Moran's string one better than the record, was made before a gallery of enthusiastic fans which included some of the best known young women of the city, and young men interested in the sport also offered their congratulations when the last pin fell.

HAS OPENED HEADQUARTERS

The candidacy of Charles H. Johnson for the office of Mayor will be waged in good earnest by the indications of the meeting held Thursday evening of his ardent supporters of Ward One, about sixty being present. Headquarters will be opened on Saturday of this week at 4 Maple street, Johnson building. Next week a mass meeting of supporters from all the wards will be held, and the committee of Mr. Johnson will place before the voters during the campaign facts and arguments that they believe will convince all fair minded tax-payers thatMr. Johnson is the one man to lead the Republican party to victory on Dec. 2, 1914.

FULFILLS EVERY TEST

stood that its power is obtained somewhat different from an ordinary automobile. In the tractor the gasoline engine does not drive the car, but operates an electric generator located just back of the driver's seat. The electricity thus generated operates the two motors attached to the front wheel there is a motor fully as powerful as those attached to the axles of an electric car, and it is these motors that drive the tractor.

The faster the engine runs therefore the more power is generated, and the motors attached to the front axle are governed with a controller similar to those used on an electric car, although in this case the controller is attached to the steering wheel.

In automobiles and auto trucks it is no uncommon thing to stall the engine, but in the case with the tractor it is impossible to stall the engine.

Since the apparatus arrived a week ago it has been given every test possible. One of the hardest tests perhaps being that on Highland avenue at Wollaston. The steamer started down the steep hill and when half way down, Mayor Whiton who was watching the trial held up his hand and the apparatus came to a dead stop half way down the hill. Then Mayor Whiton signalled for the steamer to back up the hill. This order in no way phased the driver for reversing his power he backed the seven ton apparatus up the hill as easily as if it had been a light runabout automobile.

Another test made was to stop the apparatus with the forward wheels hard up against the curbing in front of City Hall. Then at a signal given, the driver applied his power and the wheels lifted and climbed up onto the sidewalk, and it looked for a minute as though the apparatus was going to be run into the corridor of City Hall, which the expert said he could if the doors were only a little wider. It would seem therefore that the city made no mistake when it purchased the A. & B. tractor.

Acting Mayor Whiton his morning accepted the A. & B. tractor truck which has been connected with the steamer. The Mayor said that the tractor had been given all known tests, and she had met every requirement, and therefore had been officially accepted.

BOTHA WILL LEAD TROOPS

Boers Rallying to Call to Fight For the British Empire

Cape Town, Oct. 16.—As a result of Colonel Maritza's rebellion in the northwest of the Cape Provinces, General Botha, premier of the Union of South Africa and commander of the troops of the union, is taking the field earlier than he originally intended to do.

Commandants, field cornets and burghers who served under Botha in the South African war are rallying to his call, irrespective of their political feeling, to fight alongside the English in defense of the empire against which twelve years ago they were in arms. This fact has had a marked effect on waverers, who are now flocking to Botha's standard.

SHIPPING IS HALTED

Panama Canal Is Closed to Traffic by Serious Slide

Panama, Oct. 16.—A serious slide in the Culebra cut has interrupted completely traffic through the canal. Several ships that are now in the canal are unable to complete their passage.

The trouble occurred on the east side of the canal north of Gold hill. A large mass of trap rock mixed with loose earth sloughed into the channel. Colonel Goethals declared he was unable to say when the channel again would be navigable. The debris now virtually fills the channel to the west bank, and the bottom of the channel also is being forced up by the weight along the east bank.

GET CASH AND STAMPS

Thieves Pay Regular Semi-Annual Visit to Postoffice

North Billerica, Mass., Oct. 16.—The semi-annual robbery of the local postoffice in the general store of N. R. Mahoney took place when the safe was blown and $70 worth of stamps and $14 in cash taken.

This is the first time that burglars have obtained money during their operations in the store, which has been broken into regularly twice a year for the past six years.

Shoe Strike at Lynn

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 16.—Four hundred employes of the Hennessey, Maxwell & Hennessey shoe factory walked out on strike because the firm had discharged two inspectors and an employe of the "last" room.

DECISIVE TURN TO CAMPAIGN

Awaited by Russia Before Censorship Can Be Raised

STRICT SECRECY IS ENJOINED

Czar's Officers Remember German Espionage on Former Tactics—Total Forces of About Two and a Half Million Men Will Soon Be Engaged Along Eastern Battle Front

London, Oct. 16.—The Russian general staff announced at Petrograd that for the next few weeks the closest secrecy would mark operations of the Russian army in Poland. A previous order a week ago placed the same ban on operations in Galicia.

From now until there is some definite conclusion to the great conflict raging along the Vistula river no statements which might give the enemy an inkling of the disposition of Russian forces will be issued.

The general staff is convinced that the well-nigh perfect system of German espionage, permitting immediate transmission to the enemy of significant troop movements reported in previous official statements, has greatly aided the German war office. For that reason, the statement issued by the Petrograd war office warns the public that practically nothing will be announced until there is a decisive turn in the campaign.

The general staff admits that the enemy's forces total nearly 1,000,000 men, being comprised of ten Austrian army corps, reorganized after the defeats inflicted on the Austrian troops in Galicia, and twelve German corps, including both those of the first and second line. It is estimated at Petrograd that against this vast army Russia has concentrated a still more impressive force—probably twenty-six Russian army corps, totalling about 1,500,000 men.

It is officially admitted that the bulk of the Russian army is now fully engaged along this vast battle front in Poland. It opposes the combined Austro-German forces to the extreme south, and the German army on the centre and north.

The magnitude of these operations renders insignificant the campaign in Galicia. The Poland campaign is Russia's supreme effort. Defeat here for the Germans, a break in their line through which the czar could pour his massed reinforcements, would mean the first step in the march to Berlin.

The enormous number of Russian soldiers crowding military hospitals at Petrograd and at concentration bases nearer the front has necessitated a public appeal for supplies.

The czar has found it impossible to furnish necessaries for immediate relief of the sick and wounded, and public collections are being made.

An official statement issued by the war office at Berlin declares that the Russian siege of the Austrian stronghold of Przemysl has been raised.

Przemysl is now entirely freed of the Russian menace, it is declared, and the invading army is reported in fortified positions on a line through Stary, Sambor and Modya. The Austrians are directing an attack against the positions with the intention of holding the Russian army in check, enabling the Austrian army to advance from Przemysl toward Lemberg.

PROUD OF THE DEED

Prinzip Killed Archduke to Show Desperation of Slavs

Rome, Oct. 16.—Additional details have been received here of the arraignment at Sarajevo of Gavrilo Prinzip, the assassin of Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria, and Prinzip's wife and twenty-one other alleged accomplices in the crime.

According to these details, Prinzip, in addition to having admitted that he shot the archduke and his wife, declared that far from repenting his deed, he was proud of what he had done. It was not a crime, he said, as his object was not to kill a man, but to show the world the desperation to which the whole Slav population under Austria had been reduced.

Spain Approves Arbitration Treaty

Madrid, Oct. 16.—The council of ministers has approved the ratification of the treaty of arbitration between Spain and the United States.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

APPEAL TO FRIENDS.

Martha Ellingson, the 16 year old girl of 18 Curtis street, who had her leg cut off and narrowly escaped being killed last June at the Quincy station railroad crossing, has now been discharged from the City Hospital and is at present with her aunt enjoying a few days recuperation with friends at the Cohasset beach.

Her pressing need at present is money for an artificial leg. Miss Ellingson had just began to work at a Boston concern to help her aunt keep the home together when the accident occurred, and the home was thus deprived of the much needed income.

In order to give her many sympathetic friends an opportunity to assist in this so worthy cause the Daily Ledger columns have been opened, and credit will be given from day to day to all subscribers.

Forward all money to Rev. Paul Hallin, 101 Glendale road, Quincy, who has been appointed treasurer for this subscription fund, or the editor Daily Ledger.

TILDEN RALLIES.

A well attended meeting of the Tilden campaign committee was held Thursday evening at their headquarters in the Adams building. Plans were made to hold rallies in every ward of the city, in order that the voters may see the candidate and hear from his own lips now he considers the business of the city ought to be conducted. The dates for the rallies will be announced later.

AFTER FIVE YEARS

Winthrop Child Was Restored to Health by Vinol.

"Five years ago our little girl had a severe attack of diphtheria which left her subject to bronchitis and stomach trouble. She has been almost constantly under medical treatment. I have tried also two or three remedies containing cod liver oil but found her stomach rebelled against the oil. Reading your description of Vinol I decided to try it and did so mith most astonishing results. I cannot begin to tell you how she has improved because you do not know what a little sufferer she was for five years. She has gained ten pounds since she commenced to take Vinol, and the story of what Vinol has done for her is only half told in this letter." Mrs. Adelaide Mulloy, Winthrop, Mass.

Vinol contains all the healing curative properties of cod liver oil, without the oil, and tonic iron added. That is why it helped this little girl after other remedies had failed.

We ask mothers of weak, sickly children to try Vinol on our offer to give back your money if it fails to help them. Edward J. Murphy, Druggist, Quincy, Mass.

GERMAN CAUSE UNHOLY MENACE

Gardner Thus Expresses His Opinion In Congress

CALLS THE NATION TO ARMS

Says Carnegie Peace Propaganda Has Blinded United States to Fact That Our National Security From Military Point of View Is Undermined—Asks For an Investigation

Washington, Oct. 16.—President Wilson's neutrality proclamation was torn to shreds in the house when Representative Gardner of Massachusetts flayed the Germans and expressed the opinion that God would visit defeat upon them.

"It is true that with respect to the present European wars my views are not those of a neutral," said Gardner, "I am entirely convinced that the German cause is unholy and moreover a menace to the principles of democracy. Furthermore, I believe that the God of battles will visit defeat upon the Germans.

"But no matter which side wins, we must remember that since the beginning of time victorious nations have proved headstrong and high-handed. We must begin at once to reorganize our military strength if we expect to be able to resist high-handedness when the day of necessity comes."

Stating his opinion that the United States is totally unprepared for any kind of war, and that the effect of the vast sums of money spent by Carnegie in his peace propaganda had been to blind Americans to the fact that out national security from a military point of view is undermined, Gardner introduced a resolution providing for a commission of nine to investigate the preparedness of the United States for war, either offensive or defensive. The commission would consist of three senators, three representatives and three other persons to be appointed by the president.

"I simply cannot understand," said Gardner, "how any intelligent student of history can fail to see that we are impotent to defend ourselves and to enforce the Monroe doctrine by moral suasion and financial might alone.

"The time has not yet come when the United States can afford to allow the martial spirit of her sons to be destroyed, and all the Carnegie millions in the world will not silence those of us who believe that bullets cannot be stopped with bombast nor powder vanquished with platitudes."

Gardner's anti-German comment was made in the form of a voluntary statement accompanying his resolution.

CURE FOR LEPROSY

Public Health Service Has Found It In a Tropical Oil

Washington, Oct. 16.—Leprosy may yield to the ministrations of modern science in the near future, if the apparent successes of a new treatment of the public health service developes further. Chaulmoogra oil, a tropical product, is the basic element of the new remedy, which the service reports is more efficacious than any other medicine.

"It produces apparent cures in some cases," the service states, "causes great improvement in many others and arrests the progress of the disease in almost every instance."

Experiments in the Philippines have led the service experts to believe that soon they will be able to cope successfully with the leprosy scourge, which makes its victim an outcast.

AMUSEMENTS

KINCAIDE THEATRE.

"Izzy on the Sanitarium Grounds" is the name of the funfest now being presented by the Marcus Musical Comedy Co. As the name indicates, it's a "crazy comedy" and one that keeps the audience in continuous uproar of laughter. The two reels of the "Million Dollar Mystery" were as usual mighty interesting, being closely watched and warmly applauded. In the Pathe Daily News are some good views of the World Series ball games.

Back to Vaudeville is the program for next week. And it's certainly one great show that Manager Wardwell will present beginning Monday.

"CABIRIA."

Monday's matinee of d'Annunzio's massive dramatic-spectacle, "Cabiria" marked the beginning of the fifth week at Tremont Temple of this remarkable exhibition of motion photography. It also marks the beginning of the end for "Cabiria," on account of other bookings in New England, can only remain in Boston a few more weeks. That "Cabiria" has repeated in Boston its triumphs of other big cities is an established fact. The crowds that have witnessed the unfolding of the famous author's beautiful story of the little child Cabiria, and the ever changing panorama of the world's most intensely interesting story, have nearly filled the enormous capacity of Tremont Temple at every performance. The famous picture, orchestra and chorus are heard and seen twice daily, at 2 and 8. P. M.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

"Wanted $22,000" Monday enters upon its third triumphant week at the Plymouth Theatre in Boston. This latest and most successful play to be presented by Cohan and Harris is the joint work of A. E. Thomas and Clayton Hamilton. The actual writing was mainly the work of Mr. Thomas but the idea of a young literary genius literally writing a play to save his own life was original with Mr. Hamilton. In the fascinating plot of the new work the unusual hero is compelled to turn out a play founded on his own dilemma and that of the wonderful girl who aids him in a few hours. How he does so amid the most unexpected and stressful conditions in a race against time and death is brilliantly set forth in our exciting acts.

One moment the audience is on the verge of tears at the tragedy about to be enacted. The next instant they are screaming with laughter, or what they know to be tragedy is turned into comedy as delicious as ever Richard Brindsley Sheridan or Oscar Wilde produced. It is the cleverest, snappiest, most fascinating play imaginable. It is "something new" to the stage. It is a Cohan and Harris production, which means odd situations, surprises, suspense, brilliant acting, exquisite scenery. Matinees, Thursday and Saturday.

SHUBERT THEATRE.

Monday night, marks the beginning of the third and last week of the engagement of "The Whirl of the World" at the Shubert Theatre. The big Winter Garden productions has met with a favor almost unprecedented in the history of local theatricals, the theatre being crowded nightly with throngs who have alternately laughed at the antics of the funny comedians, marvelled at the scenic surprises, wondered at the dazzling costuming, pleased by the tuneful musical numbers, dancing specialties and song hits with which the big review abounds from first to final curtain. Willie and Eugene Howard, as gifted a pair of singing comedians known in musical plays for many a year, have made a hit of pronounced proportions, and are particularly amusing in their "grand opera" travesty in which the excellent singing voices of both are shown to superior advantage. Their patter is as delightful a bit of foolery as has ever been written for a musical show of the kind. Mlle. Chapino, imported from Paris to create the role of Fifi, has firmly established herself as a prime favorite. The chorus of sixty Winter Garden girls displays some amazing gown creations on the stage and on the runway out over the auditorium. The thrilling and spectacular scenes showing the departure of the S. S. Vaterland from the dock at Harve and the burning of the Atlantic liner, with the rescue of passengers in mid-ocean are nightly greeted with rounds of applause.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Sweeping Boston and New England theatregoers off their feet with the sheer force of its dramatic power, the George Broadhurst and Abraham Schomer vital and vivid play of New York life, "To-Day" came to the Majestic Theatre Columbus Day, where it has established itself for a long run. The startling series of thrilling climaxes, the excellence of the acting and the timeliness of its theme all combine to make of "To-Day" one of the most interesting and powerful plays of the contemporary stage and it can readily be understood why it enjoyed the record run of any drama produced on Broadway last season. "To-Day" has to do with the fortunes of a young couple, Frederick and Lily Wagner. In the first act they are pictured in the luxury of their Fifth Avenue mansion. The husband is rich and prosperous, but business reverses reduce him in the second act to a Harlem flat. His wife, a vain, selfish creature cannot accustom herself to their reduced circumstances and a woman friend, a Mrs. Garland, shows her the way to secure the pretty clothes and the other things that she covets. To venture further than this into the story of "To-Day" and to reveal the electrical denouement of the play would only serve to mar the pleasure of the prospective visit to the play. For the interpretation of "To-Day" Manager Harry Von Tilzer has provided a cast of wonderful strength; Edmund Breese, Madam Mathilde Cottrelly, Marie Wainwright, Ethel Valentine, Teresa Maxwell Conover and Bernard A. Reinold.

WILBUR THEATRE.

There is a new street in Boston—it is called "The Road to Happiness." It starts right at everyone's doorstep, in Boston or throughout New England, and leads right to the Wilbur Theatre to the Hub City. There is where William Hodge, that unique actor of the American type of character, is scoring his latest big hit in that "comedy of cheerfulness." The play is properly styled "The Road to Happiness" for it sends its laughing and heart-touched audiences away all the happier for seeing it. They feel better, and the world seems better, after this delightful picture of "just plain folk" and American home life. Hodge's well-known personality—that of the shrewd, cool Yankee, which he made so famous as Daniel Pike in "The Man From Home."—shines out just as brightly as ever. His saying as Jim Whitman make him a cousin of Artemus Ward, Josh Billings or Mark Twain. His humor is thoroughly American, full of unexpected surprises, comical exaggeration and "driving the nail home" which characterize our native wit and humor. There is also something of the spirit of the youthful "Ben" Franklin and "Honest Abe" Lincoln in this young Whitman. Nothing so distinctively American, in fact, has ever before been seen upon our stage. In the group are such figures as the quaint old Farmer Phil of Azack Evans; the droll tobacco-chewing "Judge" of Edwin Melvin; the bewildered and gray-haired "chore-boy" William, of Howard Morgan; the fussy old housekeeper, Marth, of Marie Haynes; the "rule or ruin" Squire of Scott Cooper; the village minister of Taylor Carroll; the tender mother of Ida Vernon; and the two charming girlish sweethearts, Viola and Eva, of Gertrude Hitz and Hazel Sexton, the old-broken-down, spavined horse, Senator, the beautiful collie Shep, the canary and the hen— all helping in the picturesque "atmosphere" of this wholesome drama of village life.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Beginning with two capacity houses on Columbus Day, the Craig Players have scored heavily all the past week with the dramatic version of McCutcheon's celebrated novel "Graustark." Evidently the story of the brave American lover who saves pretty Princess Yetive from the loss of her crown and liberty and is rewarded by being made the guardian of both, is very much to the taste of Castle Square audiences. Next week is "Panama Week" at the well known South Boston playhouse with Rex Beach's "Ne'er do Well;" another famous book turned into a no less famous play. The discussion aroused by Beach's novel will be well remembered, and the suggestion that he was drawing on his imagination in creating such types as Cortland and the consul at Panama. Luckily the play does not have to stand or fall an anything but its merits and these it has to an extent that has made it already a dramatic headliner. The play opens on the deck of a "fruiter." Kirkland Anthony, a young man about town, wakes up "in the bridal Suite" with an aching head and not the slightest notion of whether he is at land or sea. Worst of all without a cent in his pockets. How Anthony finds his rich father's name is of no use to him in raising funds is befriended by the wife of an American official on board, and brings down seeming ruin on her head in consequence—how he makes good for the first time in his life in order to win her approval, and is finally rescued by his millionaire father, is the plot of a splendidly thrilling play.

BOSTON THEATRE.

The Boston Theatre Opera Company has firmly established itself as a company of distinctly high class and one that can be compared with those of the leading opera houses in the world. This fact has been conclusively evidenced by their extraordinary work during the last two weeks. Never in the history of grand opera in music-loving Boston has an opera company been showered with more enthusiastic praise than the admirable company which Mr. Leahy has corralled for his season of grand opera at the Boston Theatre. Monday and Friday evenings "Un' Ballo in Maschera" will be the offering and music-lovers will be enabled to witness in the principal roles a major portion of the best artists of the company including the Mmes. Blanche Hamilton Fox, Miriam Ardini, Kathlyn Lynbrook and the MM. Guiseppe Tricario, Ferruccio Corradetti, Pietro di Biasi and Joseph Florian. Tuesday evening that ever popular double bill, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci" will be sung with the Mmes. Gentle and Sapin and the MM. Sacchetti and Gallazzi in the first named and the Mme. de Phillippe and the MM. Picco, Opezzo and Guiliani in the last mentioned. Wednesday matinee, "Rigoletto" is the selected opera with another attractive list of artists including the Mmes. Gentle and Ardini and the MM. di Crescenzo, Blanchart, di Biasi and Florian. Wednesday and Saturday evenings, Puccini's supreme triumph, "La Boheme," will be sung with the Mmes. Johanna Kristoffey and Erminda Blanchart. For Thursday evening, "The Barber of Seville" with the Mmes. Ardini and Sapin and the MM. di Crescenzo, Corrucini, Picco and di Biasi will be sung. On Saturday matinee, "Carmen" will be repeated with Alice Gentle in the title role. The series of Sunday night operatic concerts which was inaugurated with big success last Sunday night will be continued and another excellent array of the principal artists of the company will appear next Sunday night.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

David Belasco's presentation of Frances Starr in Henri Bernstein's play "The Secret," beginning Monday night, Oct. 19 at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, will reveal this charming young actress in a role that is said to have materially enhanced the already splendid impression she has created with theatregoers. Mr. Belasco has shown his faith in Miss Starr's genius by allotting to her a complex and difficult role in that of the heroine, Gabrielle Jannelot, a part created by the French dramatist for Mme. Simone and in the interpretation of which the latter achieved a triumph. The judgment of Mr. Belasco was vindicated by the remarkable popularity at the Belasco Theatre, New York, last season of "The Secret," in which Miss Starr appeared for more than five months. Gabrielle, while charming and lovable, with a home life that is perfect, is obsessed with an excessively jealous temperament—she is jealous of the possessions of others. The deep insight into human nature which Bernstein revealed in his former plays, "The Thief" and "Samson," is shown in this latest work by an understanding of the feminine soul and a knowledge of the feminine mind that is almost psychic. "The Secret" is the third drama in which Miss Starr has played the stellar role under Mr. Belasco's management. In "The Rose of the Rancho" she was a laughing, ingenuous Spanish Creole schoolgirl. In the "Case of Becky," as a young woman possessed of a double personality she presented an unforgetable study in psycho-pathology. Now in "The Secret" this young woman's admirers will have a chance to see what the Belasco method has accomplished by way of molding the young star into one of the most promising of American actresses. Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Wise advertisers never make "pie-crust" promises.

They know that to break faith with the public would be fatal—worse than throwing their money away.

That is one reason why advertised goods are more in demand.

People know that there is quality behind them.

They look on them as standards. Any dealer knows that there are more calls for advertised goods than for goods not advertised.

This is especially true if they happen to have been advertised in the newspapers which directly reach the people.

The standard of advertising is more exacting today than ever before. Advertisers are more careful of their promises and more interesting in their text and illustrations.

The world grows better.

Editor Quincy Daily Ledger:

Your timely editorial in Thursdays issue realtive to the Bigelow Park school lot should be cut out and stuck in the hat of every member of the City Council so that each member could see it several times a day, until the question is finally settled. It was concise and right to the point. Keep the schools out of politics.

her home on Charles street the greater part of Thursday, refusing to talk to anyone about the marriage. In the afternoon she went to her new apartment, 726 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, where she, her mother and younger sister are to live, and where it was supposed Boynton would also live. Her husband joined her there.

HOW FRENCH PEOPLE CURE STOMACH TROUBLE

A household remedy of the French peasantry, consisting of pure vegetable oil, and said to possess wonderful merit in the treatment of stomach, liver and intestinal troubles, has been introduced in this country by George H. Mayr, who for twenty years has been one of the leading down town druggists of Chicago and who himself was cured by its use. So quick and effective is its action that a single dose is usually enough to bring pronounced relief in the most stubborn cases, and many people who have tried it declare they never heard of anything to produce such remarkable results in so short a time. It is known as Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy and can now be had at almost any drug store. It is now sold here by Clyde T. Cox and druggists everywhere.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

The sun now rises at 6 o'clock, and sets at 5.

A little rain at last; more is needed.

The Committeec on Streets and Public Buildings of the City Council meet tonight.

St. Margaret's Guild of Christ church are to hold a Hallow'en party Oct. 27.

John Adams aerie of Eagles are arranging for a class initiation to be held at an early date. The aerie is also arranging for a ladies night for Nov. 4.

The George L. Gill Associates held a well attended whist party in Odd Fellows hall Thursday afternoon. Seven tables were in play and prizes were awarded to Mrs. William Thomas, Miss Alice Caldwell, Mrs. Alice Johnson, Mrs. Hattie Spear, Mrs. J. Sargent, Mrs. Prout.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Penniman and Mr. and Mrs. E. Frank Mitchell leave bright and early Monday morning by automobile for White Plains, New York. They will be absent several days.

The City Councill Committee on Sewers and Drains visited Houghs Neck, Thursday afternoon, to view the meadow on Babcock street, which it is proposed to drain into the bay.

It is rather aggrivating to spend a whole day on the water dangling a smelt line over the side of the boat and then be obliged to return home in the evening without even one smelt to show for the day's work. Yet that is the experience of some local fishermen.

Tuesday evening the King Arthur class of the Uuiversalist Sunday school met and gave the first degree to several members. E. Bartlett Spooner is Merlin of the Castle.

The Progressive City Committee is preparing for the rallies to be held in this city during the month.

Meetings of the committee in charge of the social program of Lodge Skandia, Vasa Orden, met Thursday evening and completed arrangements for the annual bazaar to be held in Johnson building this month and for the annual reception in Alpha hall on Nov. 12. The affair will be in charge of a committee including Olaf Swenstrom, John Mattson, Eric Skoglund, Mrs. Hilma O'Brien, Miss Almeda Carlstrom and Miss Alfrida Olson.

Work building the concrete steps and walk on Saville street is about completed. The steps start about half way up the hill, and the concrete walk starting from the corner of Upland road runs along the northerly side of the street connecting with the steps, which are about ten feet wide and set directly in the middle of the street. When the ornamental posts are set and the electric lights connected it will add to Quincys beauty.

Arthur Leslie, formerly of Quincy is on a month's furlough from South America, visiting his mother Mrs. Laura Leslie of Adams street, Dorchester and brothers.

The Waseca Social Club of Quincy Point at its weekly portf-five parties this week. awarded the prixes to Herbert Seldon and W. M. Dorley.

Patrolman and Mrs. John Joseph Avery are receiving the congratulations of their friends on the birth of a daughter on Wednesday evening.

The family of Robert B. Carruthers and members of the team take exceptions to the statement that he was injured during the game of siccer on the holiday. The death of Mr. Carruthers was due solely to he accident at the shipyard which resulted in a fracture of the skull. Mr. Carruthers was working nights when the accident occured. Funeral services will be held from his late home, 41 Broadway, on Sunday at 2.30 o'clock, and will be largely attended.

Charles S. Jones of 58 River street is confined to his home by illness, suffering with gall stones.

GIVE US GOOD MEN.

Just about this time when the citizens are casting their eyes about for efficient municipal officials, says the People's Forum, the following verses by J. G. Holland are well worth reading.

"Give us men. The time demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and willing hands;
Men whom the lust of office does kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagog
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men sun-crowned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking;
For while the rabble with their thumb worn creeds,
Their large professions and their little deeds
Mingle in selfish strife; lo! Freedom weeps!
Wrong rules the land and waiting justice sleeps."

QUINCY WOLLASTON

Mrs. John Hill of Farrington street is able to be out after an attack of pneumonia.

Miss Helen Arthur of Pope street, Montclair is in the Quincy city hospital having undergone an operation for appendicitis.

L. C. Merrill entertained a number of Wollaston people at his farm in Hingham, Columbus day. The people were met at East Weymouth and taken to the house, in automobiles. Refreshments were served during the afternoon.

Miss Ethel Young of Eliot avenue, Bellevue Park spent the week end in New Hampshire, the guest of the Taylors of Beach street.

Preparations are being made for an old fashioned boiled dinner to be served in the Wollaston Methodist Episcopal vestry, Oct. 21.

The Round Dozen Whist Club of Wollaston was organized Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Hodgdon of Norfolk street, with the following members Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Jobin, Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Luster, Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Hodgdon, Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Clapp and Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Armstrong. F. L. Armstrong was elected president and Mrs. Herman L. Dodge secretary and treasurer. Messrs. Armstrong, Clapp and Dodge were named a committee to draft a constitution and by-laws to be submitted at the next meeting to be held with Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Luster of Norfolk street, Oct. 23. At the conclusion of the business meeting whist was played for an hour and a half after which refreshments were served by Mrs. Hodgdon. The first meeting, which was also the occasion of Mr. Hodgdon's birthday, was a delightful affair and promises well for a successful winter's play.

Among the 32 letter carriers in the Boston post office to receive an increase in salary of $100 is Thomas F. Hurley of the Wollaston office.

The Pleiades Club of the Wollaston M. E. church had a party at the home of their teacher, Miss Marguerite Louise Holbrook, Holbrook Road, Bellevue Park. The company enjoyed themselves playing old fashioned games after which refreshments were served. Those present were—Miss Hilda Bailey, Miss Beulah Collett, Miss Ethel Brown, Miss Grace Goodwin, Miss Genie Keith, Miss Evelyn Hirtle, Miss Lucy Palmer, Miss Gladys Dalton, Miss Hattie Lees, Francis McCabe, Nelson Merrill, Herbert Merril, Everett Sutermeister, Sanford Willis, Allen Sterns, Mr. Geddes, Mr. Pope, Otto Hamilton and Mr. Cath.

MORNING IN THE ALPS.

'Tis morn, with gold the verdant mountain glows
More high, the snowy peaks with hues of rose.
Far stretched beneath the many tinted hills,
A mighty waste of mist the valley fills,
A solemn sea, whose billows wide around
Stand motionless, to awful silence bound.
Pines on the coast through mist their tops uprear,
That like to leaning masts of stranded ships appear.
A single chasm, a gulf of gloomy blue,
Gapes in the center of the sea, and, through
That dark, mysterious gulf ascending, sound
Unnumerable streams with roar profound.
Mount through the nearer vapors notes of birds,
And merry flageolet; the low of herds,
The barks of dogs, the heifer's tinkling bell.
Talk, laughter and perchance a church tower knell;
Think not, the peasant from aloft has gazed
And heard with heart unmoved, with soul unraised;
Nor is his spirit less enrapt, nor less
Alive to independent happiness,
Then when he lies outstretched at eventide
Upon the fragrant mountain's purple side.
For as the pleasures of his simple day
Beyond his native valley seldom stray,
Nought round its darling precincts can he find
But brings some past enjoyment to his mind.
While Hope, reclining upon Pleasure's urn,
Binds her wild wreaths and whispers his return.
—William Wordsworth.

QUINCY WEST

Russell W. Badger of 135 Crescent street and Anna Maria Conway of Dorchester were married on Sept. 25. and the affair has just become known to their many friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Michael C. Gilbride of South Boston and was witnessed only by the immediate relatives and friends. The groom is one of the best known young men of West Quincy and his bride a popular Dorchester girl.

David Lindberg of Elm street is at the Westboro State Hospital, where he has been chosen by the Boston University Medical school to serve as interne for a month.

MILTON

An early Thursday morning fire on the estate of C. W. Whittier at the corner of Canton avenue and the Blue Hill parkway, Milton, caused a loss of $20,000. Three valuable driving horses, a pony, six blooded cows, fifty tons of hay, a large quantity of grain, harnesses and vehicles were destroyed. It is suspected that the fire started in the garage, for it spread with great rapidity to the barns and in a few minutes both were enveloped in flames.

ENTHUSIASM FOR TILDEN

Endorsed by Mayor Whiton and Ex-Mayor Stone

Henry F. Tilden, candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor and his campaign committee were guests Friday evening of the Waseca club at Quincy Point. Nearly 100 members and friends were present and the candidate was given an unusually enthusiastic reception. In fact the meeting from beginning to end was one round of enthusiasm. During the evening there was music by a piano and violin and there were several speakers. These included Mr. Tilden, the candidate, Mayor Joseph L. Whiton, chairman of the campaign committee, and ex-Mayor Eugene R. Stone.

Mr. Tilden spoke briefly, and along the same lines as at other rallies. He said he was not a politician, and never aspired to that honor. He however had the interest of the city at heart and if honored with the nomination and election he could safely promise to give the city a business administration, and that the expenditure of money would be carefully looked after, and that he should see to it that the city received ample return for every dollar expended.

Chairman Whiton, who is the present Acting Mayor, said that his few days in the Mayor's office had thoroughly convinced him of the need of a business man in the office. It would be no picnic party for whoever was elected, and it would require great executive ability to pilot the ship of state next year. If Quincy ever needed a thorough business man in office, one who had ability and the time to give to the duties of the office that were required, next year was the time, and he knew of no one better fitted for this arduous duty than Mr. Tilden.

Ex-Mayor Eugene R. Stone, a former resident of Ward Two, was given an ovation when he arose to speak. He said that when he assumed the office of Mayor he cast his eye about for a strong man for the position of treasurer. Mr. Tilden had not sought the appointment in any manner, but it was a case where the office sought the man. He believed Mr. Tilden would make a most efficient treasurer and he had appointed him. He had never felt sorry for that appointment, for he had proved a most able official. Now the business men were demanding a business man in the office of Mayor, and he believed, in fact he knew, that if honored with the nomination and election Mr. Tilden would make good. He had always made good wherever he was placed, and the voters would make no mistake in placing him in the Mayor's chair next year.

An informal social hour followed the speaking, during which those present had an opportunity to meet the candidate and his reception was most enthusiastic, three cheers loud and long being given him as he took his departure.

ORPHEUS CONCERT.

On Tuesday evening next, at Alpha hall a concert will be given by the Orpheus Male Quartet of Boston, assisted by Tom Robie, comedian. A varied program consisting of piano solos; tenor and baritone duets; tenor, baritone, and bass solos; quartet music, both classical and humorous; together with comic songs; and jokes by Mr. Robie. Two Quincy young men, Everett Clark and F. E. Wharton, are members of the quartet, from whom tickets for the concert can be secured.

A LOSS TO SOCCER.

Soccer fans throughout New England received the news of the death of "Bobby" Carruthers, of the Fore River team with regret Carruthers was with the local team for upwards of eight years and in that time has been one of the most popular players in New England. His loss will be keenly felt by the club.

On Friday evening the Boston and the District league met and passed resolutions on his death and Sunday delegations from the various teams will attend his funeral. Carruthers was recently married.

DISTRICT COURT.

William Hanrahan was fined $15, Samuel Johnson $15, Matt Keisala $15 and Thomas C. McDonnell and Michael W. Barry were sent to the state farm for drunkenness at Quincy.

Edward Cummings was arraigned for violation of the dog law at Quincy. Case continued until Oct 21.

Ar-Sar-Ben Ranks With Big Pageants of Nation; Here Are This Year's King and His Royal Court.

Among the characteristic pageants held in various parts of the United States which attract much attention in their respective localities is the Ak-Sar-Ben celebration held each year in October at Omaha, Neb. Ak-Sar-Ben is Nebraska spelled backward. Charles D. Beaton was crowned King Ak-Sar-Ben XX. this year, and he is here shown with his royal court. The rich splendor of a seventeenth century coronation was reproduced. The Ak-Sar-Ben celebration ranks with such well known pageants as the New Orleans Mardi Gras, the Asbury Park baby parade, the Veiled Prophet celebration of St. Louis and the Potlatch of Seattle.

NOMINATION PAPER FILED

The first nomination paper for the city primaries was filed with the City Clerk this morning by Robert T. Foye, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for Councilman from Ward Three. Mr. Foye, is the man who a year ago thought for a time he had been elected. It will be remembered that a year ago the three highest men on th list for ward councilman from Ward Three were Charles A. Ross, Robert B. Craig and Alexander J. Cowe, Jr. After the election it was discovered that Mr. Cowe was not eligible as he had not been a citizen long nough. There was some talk at that time that the election therefore would go to the next highest man, who was Mr. Foye. This belief however was shattered by the City Solicitor, who ruled that a special election was necessary to fill the vacancy.

GIRLS MUST RESIGN.

High school girls throughout the United States will be barred from joining fraternities when they reach college, if they do not resign before Nov. 15 membership in Greek letter fraternities. Such was the resolution adopted by the congress of the National Pan-Hellenic, representing 70,000 college fraternities. Delegates discussing High school fraternities, said that girls were too unschooled to be members of such organizations, and that many became members without the consent and against the wishes of their parents. It was decided that such fraternities were unnecessary as most high school girls resided a home and do not need the fraternal environment as they do at college.

LANDSLIDE IN CANAL.

Word has been received that the and slide in the Panama canal will retard shipping but a brief period. This was the substance of a dispatch received by the Emery Steamship Co. of Boston on Friday. The Emery steamer Pacific, built at the Fore River plant is now on the way from Boston to San Francisco and had planned to pass through the canal. The passage through the canal will probably be carried out as scheduled. The Emery Co. is operating two steamships through the canal, the Atlantic and Pacific, both of which were built in Quincy.

CITY HALL HAPPENINGS

Mayor to Give Hearing to Capt. McKay

Mayor Whiton moved into the Mayor's office at City Hall for the first time this morning. During the past few days the office has been thoroughly renovated. A handsome new desk has been put in, a new rug on the floor, the oilcloth carpet has been varnished and the walls newly calsomined, so that it is now a very attractive office, and the Acting Mayor can be found on the job early and late.

Two well known Italian couples in this city were married at City Hall this morning and Mayor Joseph L. Whiton was one of the witnesses. The civil ceremony was performed by Emery L. Crane, city clerk, and will be later followed by a church ceremony. The grooms, Antonio Ceriani and Luigi Ceriani are first cousins The bride of the first was Giovanina Luchini, and Rosa Cocca was the bride of the second. All four live off Quarry street, West Quincy. Usually the ceremonies are performed in the office of the City Solicitor, but this morning it was occupied and they were invited into the Mayor's office. Mayor Whiton was a witness to the ceremony and signed his name to the intentions. Both men are stone cutters by trade.

Mayor Whiton said this morning that he would hold a hearing next Wednesday morning, at his office at City Hall, at 9 o'clock on the charges preferred against Capt. Daniel R. McKay of the Police department by Harry P. Levowich, an attorney. Mr Levowich filed charges with Mayor Miller some weeks ago against Capt. McKay, charging slander and profanity. On account of the illness of Mayor Miller no action was taken. Mayor Whiton will now take up the matter and will give a hearing which will be private.

ANNUAL DANCE OF RED MEN

The Redmen Athletic Club members at their annual dancing party in Alpha hall on Friday evening proved beyond a doubt that they were not "ladies men" i nthe accepted senso of the words, for the number of young men present greatly exceeded the number of young ladies, but——.

The couples were equally divided until about 9.30 when delegations from other young men's clubs in the city arrived and from 10 until midnight there were no girls present "not dancing."

Music was furnished by the Hamilton orchestra and although the dance program entirely omitted the modern dances those present didn't, and they were generally indulged in.

Cesare Vanelli was the floor director and John Kenn the assistant. Robert Summers was chief of aids, and the aids were Henry Moorehouse John Wallace, Robert Yantardini and Eugene Vanelli, Daniel Mullen, Frank Stronach, Russell Kenn and Russell Veale.

The officers of the club are Henry S Johnson, president; John Kenn, vice president; Everett Howie, secretary; George R. Veale, treasurer.

THOSE TAX BILLS.

There has been a strong rumor about the city the past week that the tax bills were to be called in, but we are inclined to think it is all rumor and without foundation, although a good many bills are finding their way back to City Hall for readjustment.

One thing is sure, however and that is that the city won't be flush in money this fall for the taxpayers are seemingly not in a hurry to pay up. Those who put their money in the bank through the year ready for their taxes are inclined to leave it in the bank for the present, while others are seeking abatement. Many who do pay will have their receipts stamped "paid under protest" for future protection.

It is a question in the minds of many if the Assessors have a legal right to raise the value on buildings especially on old buildings which have depreciated year after year. Land in different localities, in the growth of the city, must of necessity increase in value and bear its burden of taxes.

A big increase in valuation this year means higher tax rate next year to keep up with the increased State tax caused by this years inflated value. Any way one looks at it, it is a hardship on the taxpayer.

But as the saying goes there is "no loss without some gain," and perhaps these tax bills are just what was needed to wake the city up, for we have drifted long enough.

If it will cause an awakening of interest in municipal affairs, and lead to more careful selection of those who are to run the city, and spend the money, some good will have been accomplished.

Read over the "Believer In Quincy" letter in the Ledger of Oct. 8, and ponder a while on the future of Quincy, and your place in this future. Now is the time to boost Quincy, but the only way to do it is to get together and work it out in a co-operative sane way. Who will help?

CAMPAIGN COMMITTEES.

With two business men's committees organized for the same purpose, and others to follow, all pledged to work for the efficiency of the city, particularly in reference to the election of a Mayor, it would seem that a business man must be nominated and elected this year.

As noted above, two such organizations have been formed. One in the interest of Henry F. Tilden, and one in the interest of Chester I. Campbell. The necessary papers, required by law, in favor of Mr. Tilden were filed several days ago and those in favor of Mr. Campbell were filed Friday, and it is probable that similar papers in the interest of Charles H. Johnson, James E. Wall, Edward Powers, G. B. Bates and possibly others, will be filed with a few days.

To get right down to hard facts, however, if regard to these so-called business organizations, they are nothing more than campaign committees, who have filed papers with the City Clerk as required by Chapter 783 of the Acts of the Legislature of 1914, known as the "Corrupt Practice act."

Under this act a candidate cannot expend for his nomination as the primaries, over a certain amount, which is fixed by the number of registered voters. In Quincy the amount is $120. This sum one can readily see would be quickly expended in postage alone, if any kind of a campaign was waged.

However sections 4 and 5 of the act provide a way out, so that if necessary more than $120 can be expended. These sections provide that a political committee, to consist of at least five citizens of the commonwealth, who shall organize with a chairman, secretary and treasurer, in other words, a committee, outside of the regular political committee, which has been elected may be organized. While the amount is small which a regularly elected political committee may expend in the interest of a candidate, the amount which, these efficiency committees may expend is limited to $1,000.

Therefore to get right down to hard cold facts, these committees which have been organized and have filed papers with the City Clerk, are nothing more than campaign committees, who desire to expend in behalf of their candidate more than the $120 allowed under the Corrupt Practice act, and the general public should not be deceived in relation to the object of these committees, although the fact remains however that they are both working for what they consider the best interests of the city.

BATES—CUMMINGS.

There was a very pretty wedding Friday night at 33 Totman street, Quincy, when Helen Cumming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Cumming, and Warren L. Bates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Bates of Braintree, were married.

The brine was given in marriage by her father, the ceremony being performed by Rev. James A. Matheson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, the double ring service being used. The bridal party stood under an arch and bell of autumn leaves.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white crepe de chine trimmed with shadow lace. Her tulle veil was held in place by a spray of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Jennie Cumming, sister of the bride, looked charming in a dress of pink chiffon over silk and carrying a bouquet of pink roses.

John Atkinson of Academy street, Braintree was best man.

Friends were present from Braintree, Boston, Chelsea and Quincy. There were many beautiful presents.

After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Bates will be at home to friends at 19 Sampson avenue, Braintree.

MAY HAVE TO CLOSE

Wireless Plant at Honolulu Violated United States Neutrality

Washington, Oct. 17.—In reporting the arrival of the German gunboat Geier, the Honolulu station of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph company was guilty of flagrant violation of the neutrality of the United States, in the opinion of navy department officials, although that may not have been the purpose of the message.

In consequence, the station will be closed within twenty-four hours if a satisfactory explanation is not forthcoming. Orders to this effect were sent to Admiral Moore at Honolulu.

ORDERED TO BOSTON

Federal Court Acts In Case of Steamer Kronprinzessin Cecile

Portland, Me., Oct. 17.—An order directing that the North German Lloyd steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie, now at Bar Harbor, be transferred "at once" to the district of Massachusetts, was issued in the federal court. The reason given for the removal is that it is not safe for the ship to remain at her present anchorage on account of ice in winter.

United States Marshal Wilson of this district was ordered to provide the necessary convoy, and it is understood that at least one torpedo boat will be employed for this service. As far as possible the vessel will be kept within the three-mile limit, but it is not believed that this can be done for the entire voyage to Boston.

COAL LANDS OPENED

Passage of Alaska Leasing Bill Ends Eight-Year Struggle

Washington, Oct. 17.—Given up as dead legislation less than a week ago, the Alaska coal land leasing bill, revived at the instance of President Wilson and Secretary Lane as part of the administration's program of this session, only awaits the president's signature to become a law. It went through its final ordeal in the house virtually without opposition.

The bill is designed to throw open to a system of leases, under competitive bidding, the immense coal resources of Alaska, tied up the last eight years. Pending claims will be adjudicated within a year.

BATTLE LINES NOW STRETCH TO THE COAST

Germans Victorious In Their Long Attack Upon Ostend

FRONT EXTENDS FROM ALSACE TO CHANNEL

Invaders Blocked In Contemplated "Parade" to French Ports—Preparing to Mass Forces In Desperate Attempt to Break Through Allies' Lines, Their Outflanking Movement Having Been Baffled—German Occupation of Lille Will Be of Short Duration—Allied Armies Will Have Assistance of British Warships In Case of Serious Fighting Along the Coast—Przemysl Continues to Be Centre of Severe Conflict In East

London, Oct. 17.—Ostend has been taken by the Germans and the gray Teutonic line now stretches to the English channel.

From Berlin comes the news of Osten's fall in a dispatch received in London by way of The Hague, and, although the source of the information would tend to deteriorate it in the minds of the London public, there seems little doubt of its truth, in view of the fact that the Germans have practically had the famous Belgian resort at their mercy for several days past.

At the same time that the Germans thus brought to a successful conclusion their advance from Berlin to the coast, the allied British and French lines have also expanded and now have their left resting on the channel shore. Thus, there is now one continuous battle front from Alsace to the sea.

Just where the allies' lines touch the coast is rather difficult to determine from the brief official statements, but as they hold Ypres, in Belgium, it is not to be doubted that there is a strong force between Ostend and Dunkirk.

German "Parade" Blocked

This means that the German advance, which was to make a mere parade of taking in the French channel ports of Dunkirk and Calais, has been decisively blocked. The parade on Calais is now in the same class with the parade on Paris.

With the sea on the extreme right of the Germans and the sea on the extreme left of the allies, there can be no more flanking movements, and frontal attacks for the purpose of smashing through one another's lines are the only tactics that remain.

The result will depend on the heaviest battalions. It now becomes a question of brute force rather than strategy.

It is apparent that the Germans, fully cognizant of this fact, since their own outflanking movement down the coast has been baffled, are preparing to mass forces for one more desperate attempt to break through the British-French lines. Where this attack will come is probably known only to the commanders on both sides. Sir John French and General Joffre are fully notified by their air scouts of any unusual movement of the enemy, and there can be no massing of the German troops without their knowledge.

Point of Attack Not Known

The battling along the French-Belgian line yesterday gave little indication as to where the great attack is to come. There was plenty of vigorous fighting within the area covered by the allies' left wing, and in some instances they plainly gained ground.

One of the advances was made east of Lille, where the Germans were driven back at the little town of Laventie, near Estaires. The allies are in possession of this place, which gives them a further clinch upon the outskirts of Lille.

It is not probable that the German occupation of Lille will be of long duration. In fact, a dispatch from Boulogne says they have already been driven out. This lacks confirmation.

It seems probable that efforts will be made by the Germans to secure control of the outer railway system, now in French hands, which runs from Paris through Amiens and Arras to Hazebrouck Junction and thence to Calais. This system has proven the backbone of the allies' movements during the advance of their left into Belgium and would be of incalculable service to the Germans. Thus far the allies have repulsed every attempt of the Germans to reach this railway and have now pressed them well back from the threatened region.

Belgian Forces Move Southward

From Belgium there is a falling off of reports, and the fact that there is no fighting on the Bruges-Ghent line would indicate that the allies operating in that section with the Belgians have withdrawn southward in order to strengthen the main line against the expected piercing attack of the Germans.

In the case of serious fighting along the coast, the allied armies would have the assistance of British warships stationed in the channel, but it would not be politic for these to shell German forces occupying Ostend or other coast towns, as such action would entail wholly disproportionate damage to the towns themselves.

Chief efforts of the opposing armies appear to be concentrated in the extreme west, and there is little report of activity along other parts of the battle line. The French official statement makes reference to an attack by the Germans on the centre in the region of Melancourt, northeast of Verdun, which was repulsed by the French.

Queer Tales From the East

From the east, the news continues fanciful and fragmentary. Serious fighting has been under way within seven miles of Warsaw, but the Russians now say that the Germans have been repulsed with great loss and that Grojec, nineteen miles south of Warsaw, has been retaken by Russian troops.

Przemysl continues to be the centre of severe fighting, but results are not in sight as yet. Three stories of the day are worthy of comment. One tells how a Russian regiment—4250 men—witnessed a sortie from Przemysl, which had a garrison of 30,000 men.

This sortie, according to the story, included the entire number, 30,000. The Russians coaxed them on until they had reached the proper position and then completely annihilated them. Yet the fort—which must now be ungarrisoned—holds out.

The second comes from Copenhagen. A Danish newspaperman at Brandenburg saw, within one hour, twenty-eight troop trains pass, carrying from 300,000 to 400,000 German troops. If twenty-eight trains carry 300,000 men, there must have been 100 cars to each train, even allowing 100 odd men to a car and disregarding impedimentae. To transport 300,000 men on twenty-eight trains past a given point in an hour is supernatural train dispatching, to say the least.

The third relates to the Petrograd story that 700,000 Germans have been put out of commission since the war began. The strength of the German army at that time was about 800,000 men. The present opposition must, therefore, be furnished largely by landwehrmen.

"A LIFELESS FORMULA"

Neutrality Thus Regarded In Appeal to Socialists to Join War

An appeal to the Socialists of the neutral countries to join in the war on the side of the allies appears in the newspaper France de Sud Oueste, credited to "one of the highest authorities of the Socialist party in France." The appeal says:

"Neutrality is but a lifeless formula, a crazy gangplank on which their uncertainty has found momentary refuge. When the destinies of the world for centuries are at stake, their duty is not to linger on the soft pillow of doubt. This war is no more the war we abominate; it is universal revolution which dawns."

SHARES KING'S PERILS

Queen Elizabeth of the Belgians is with her husband at the headquarters of the Belgian army and is his constant companion except when King Albert approaches the firing line to encourage and direct his troops.

M. Huismans, Belgian minister of state, in announcing the above fact, added that King Albert was showing great stoicism and that Queen Elizabeth was sharing his perils and giving an example of dignity and courage worthy of classic times.

Hearing Heart Beats.

If you hear your heart beat in one ear, as many persons do, it is no proof of anything wrong with the heart. It is much more likely to be a local defect such as chronic catarrh of the middle ear or stiffness and retraction of the drum. This on the authority of Dr. Robert H. Babcock of Chicago.

BELGIANS AT REST.

Some of the Troops Who Opposed German Invasion To the Very Last Ditch.

Copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.

MRS. AZEL R. FRENCH.

It is with regret that we record the death of Mrs. Azel R. French who passed away at her home at South Braintree Thursday about noon. She had been in failing health for the past six months and became seriously ill about three weeks ago.

The funeral will be held at her late home tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. The services will be conducted by Rev. Tyler E. Gale, pastor of the South Congregational church and the burial will be in the family lot at the Pond Street cemetery.

Mrs. French's maiden name was Sarah Louisa Porter and she was the daughter of Joseph F. and Mary (Arnold) Porter of this town. She was born March 19, 1819 in the house at the corner of Crescent and Thayer avenues, now occupied by Richard M. Sanborn and Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Reed and family and was a life long resident of Braintree. She was a graduate of the Braintree High school and the Bridgewater Normal school and after finishing her course at the latter institution taught school here for three years.

In July 1871, she was married to Azel R. French of Dorchester, the ceremony taking place in the South Congregational church, South Braintree. It was a double wedding, the other contracting parties being Samuel A. Willis and Miss Clara E. Thayer of South Braintree and as far as can be learned is the only double wedding ever solemnized in the present church edifice.

Mrs. French is survived by her husband, two children Mrs. Otis B. Oakman and Mrs. Douglas R. Hayden, five grandchildren, her brother Elbridge F. Porter and one sister, Mrs. Ann M. Brooks, all residents of South Braintree. She was very active in the work of the South Congregational church especially along musical lines, she being blessed with a contralto voice of rare richness and power.

She joined the church choir when she was eighteen years old and has served it faithfully and well ever since, giving ungrudgingly of her time and talents for a period of 47 years. She was a member of the Woman's Guild of the South Church, Woman's Relief Corps No. 94, and a former member of Amana Rebekah Lodge No. 26 where she was of great assistance in the musical part of the ritual. She was also the treasurer of the Pond Cemetery Association and a member of the Philergians. Mrs. French was passionately fond of music and sang because she loved to sing and found her greatest joy in it.

Her father was at one time the chorister at the South Congregational church and president of the Old Stoughton Musical Society, an organization of which she was also a member.

She had a solo part at the concert given by that famous company of singers in Boston a few years ago under the auspices of the Chickering Company and was a member of the great chorus at the Peace Jubilee in Boston in 1871.

Mrs. French will be greatly missed in the community and her place will be hard to fill. She had a wide circle of friends who sincerely mourn her loss.

On festive occasions or in the house of mourning, she gladly gave of her vocal talents and her life was marked by her devotion to her family and the generous employment of her gift of sweet singing. The sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved relatives.

RAIN WAS NEEDED.

The rain all day Friday and today will do an inestimable amount of good. The long dry spell has nearly killed the grass on the lawns and the leaves of the trees have turned to a beautiful color but on account of the dryness have curled up and fallen to the ground. The weather predictions are that Sunday will be warm and pleasant.

ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S GUILD.

The Woman's Guild met with a large attendance Wednesday afternoon for the first business meeting of the season. After a sewing bee luncheon was served under the direction of Mrs. Benjamin A. Hobson and Mrs. George A. Vibert.

The president Mrs. Daniel C. Miller appointed Mrs. Frederick H. Steenstra, Mrs. J. Willard Haliett and Mrs. George J. Poch as a nominating committee, also a committee of twelve whose names begin with A, B and C to give a supper in the parish room Thursday, Oct. 29. The secretary Miss Annie Clean reported several new members she also read a list of those who had earned their dollar, and the president said now was the time for the other members to get busy and earn their dollar as the money would be needed for furnishing the Guild room in the new parish house, as was voted a year ago. Much work has been accomplished the past summer at the all day sewing meetings in anticipation of the fair to be held as soon as the new parish house is ready.

Wednesday Oct. 28 is also an all day sewing meeting and after the Guild meeting in the afternoon, Mrs. Steenstra has asked members to the rectory for tea.

Mrs. Herbert L. Packard was appointed delegate to the Woman's Auxiliary meeting in the Cathedral rooms Boston, Oct. 21.

The rector Rev. Frederick H. Steenstra spoke briefly on the work accomplished by the Guild and his appreciation of it. He said the Senior warden, Frank E. Cleveland's planning of the new parish house could not have been beter. Considering the amount of floor space it was a wonder when compared with the cost. Out of the goodness of his heart without a cent of remuneration, Mr. Cleveland had worked on the plans as though his fortune depended on it.

The parish house is a definite step forward on the part of the parish and as this work is now fully underway it is cause for general satisfaction.

RESOLUTIONS.

We, the members of Norfolk County Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in its 29th Annual Conventions assembled, do most gratefully acknowledge and appreciate the privilege of convening this day, in this city, the home of Henry Hardwick Faxon, "loyal and faithful supporter of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union," and this grand old historic church. The resting place of John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives. Therefore, do we resolve:

That this convention extend their heartiest thanks to this entertaining union, for their gracious hospitaliy. To the Unitarian church for so gladly opening their doors to us, and extending to us the courtesy of visiting the tombs of these ancient fathers. To the pastor of this church for his able assistance at our service. To Mrs. Stevenson, Miss Gordon, Mrs. Webber and Mr. William Talbot, for their helpful and valuable assistance. To the musicians, Mrs. Hunt, Miss Packard and her skillful accompanist And all who have so willingly helped to make this day successful.

Resolved, that as we adjourn, we will in the coming year, stand more firmly for the principles of the Woman's Christian Temperence Union.

Gratefully submitted

MRS. H. E. BURNS,
BESSIE R. WALDRON,
ALICE M. FLINT,

CALLS OUR NAVY VERY BAD THIRD

Gardner Declares We Are Laboring Under Delusion

CANNOT DEPEND ON MILITIA

Warns Congress That Army and Navy Experts Have Repeatedly Stated That Nation Is Not Prepared For Armed Conflict—Can No Longer Listen In Silence to Untruths

Washington, Oct. 17.—Representative Gardner of Massachusetts delivered a speech in the house warning his colleagues that the United States is extremely weak in its national defense. Gardner, who previously introduced a resolution for an investigation of the nation's military preparedness, said:

"For a dozen years I have sat here like a coward and listened in silence while men have told us how the United States can safely depend in time of war on the state militia and on the naval reserves. All the time I knew it was not true.

"I was formerly a militiaman and Spanish war veteran, yet I say that such doctrine is the supremest folly. Under that delusion, in ten short years we have let our navy slough off until today it is a very bad third, and sinking rapidly into fourth or fifth place among the navies of the world.

"The belief that we can create an army and navy when the need arises is all wrong. You cannot improvise a battleship or a submarine or a sailor after war breaks out. You cannot make a fighting machine out of a militia regiment until you have eliminated many men from its ranks."

Gardner said the United States was not prepared for war when the Spanish war broke out; that there was difficulty in mobilization of volunteers and that some of the states had not furnished their quota of troops when the war ended. He warned congress that year after year the naval board and Major General Wood had reiterated that this country is not equipped for conflict.

"They ask us to awake from our awful lethargy and grapple this question on which our nation's life depends," said Gardner. "Yet we go shambling and shuffling along, scattering away millions of dollars where the votes grow thickest.

"What possesses us? Are we blind or crazy? By no means; but every voter has been taught to believe that any minute we can create an army and navy fit to face the world and we do not like to tell them otherwise."

After comparisons of the armies and navies of the world, Gardner concluded:

"The blame for our insecurity rests on Republicans and Democrats alike; but the root of the whole matter is deeper. Our country has not awakened to the understanding that 42-centimeter guns and superdreadnoughts present stronger arguments than past victories and present treaties. The time has come for us to rub our eyes and look about us."

President Wilson ignored the anti-German statement from Gardner. It was decided that, despite the president's warning to Americans to remain neutral, nothing could be accomplished by endeavoring to either rebuke or to request Gardner to desist.

CAUSE OF MANY DISEASES

Americans Are Warned Against the "Patent Medicine Habit"

Washington, Oct. 17.—Americans have the "patent medicine habit" and many are victims of "drug intoxication," a warning bulletin issued by the United States public health service declared.

Estimating that $500,000,000 is spent annually by Americans for medicines, the service report declared that most of this is for the unsupervised use of patent medicines.

How many serious diseases result from such unchecked use of drugs is pointed out in the bulletin, which also suggests that increasing deaths, from senility, of Americans between 40 and 60 years of age may be the result of the extensive "drug habit."

Two Fourteen-Year-Olds Kill Themselves In a Vermont Field

West Fairlee, Vt., Oct. 17.—Two 14-year-old boys, Harold Whitney and Gordon Bell, were found dead in a field half a mile from the town, both having died from revolver bullet wounds.

According to the police, the two boys had several times told their companions that they intended to commit suicide.

THIMBLE CLUB.

The members of the Thimble Club connected with America Rebekah Lodge 96 were agreeably entertained by Sister Litchfield and Sister Tenny Thursday afternoon and evening at the Suastika Cottage, Houghs Neck Covers were laid for a bountiful harvest dinner. Guests were present from Quincy, Charlestown, East Weymouth, New Hampshire lodges. Among those noted were District Dept. Grand Master Mrs. Sadie Woods of Quincy, Sister Newcomb of Steadfast lodge of East Weymouth, Mrs. Ruth Bates of NewHampshire and Mrs. Minnie White of Royal lodge Charlestown. The members of the party enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent and voted Sister Litchfield and Sister Tenny ideal hostesses. The party broke up at a late hour singing "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

THE PLEASURES THAT BARNARD'S GIVES YOU

You Mrs. Housewife can go visiting, go to the theatre, go walking (and these lovely afternoons walking is a real delight,) and on your way home drop in at Barnard's and get your bread and cakes for the evening meal. Your Husband will agree with us too, for Barnard's bread and cakes are as tasty as the tastiest home-made food. Considering the labor, time, fuss, worry and expense home-baking is a lost art. Barnard buys his flour, sugar, butter and eggs in large quantities at such low prices that he is able to give you the most nourishing and appetizing bread and cakes for the same price that you Mrs. Housewife will pay for the raw material. On your way home this afternoon drop in—Two Stores.

ELKS LEAGUE OPENING

Teams of Captains Hanson and Maloney Win

The opening matches of the bowling league of members of the Quincy Lodge of Elks at the Wardwell alleys Friday evening were featured by light pinfall and plenty of enthusiasm. A few of the men have not handled the small ball for years, and it was only with extreme difficulty that they were able to make the third ball count. Several famous one-ball rollers sprung into the limelight. The teams are captained by men prominent throughout the city.

Eddie Larkin closed his session with a single of 116, which gave him a total of 288, the nearest to the triple mark. Several strings of 60 and less were made.

The bowling squad took possession of the alleys about 8 o'clock, and their arrival was the signal for the little glooms to appear to some. A good sized gallery of fans gathered and added their applause to that tendered by the bowlers.

The quintette led by Capt. Hanson took three out of four points, none of the three strings being really close.

DEMONSTRATION.

The Peter Pan Kitchen takes pleasure in announcing its first free demonstration. This will be held at Johnson Brothers market, Hancock street, Saturday, October 17. The demonstration opened at 9 o'clock and continues all day, to make Johnson's customers acquainted with the most delicious conserve they have ever tasted, and that you will get the habit of asking for and eating home made fruit conserves from the Peter Pan Kitchen. The conserves contain the finest quality almonds and lemons and that only the purest and best of everything is used. The Peter Pan kitchen will never use adulterants. Sugar is and always will be their only preservative. Fruits nuts, flowers and vegetables are the only flavors or bulk makers. Come to Johnson's today and taste of home made fruit conserves from the Peter Pan kitchen and you will better understand why they dare praise their own cooking.

M. TURPIN.

Inventor of Turpinite, The Poisonous Gas Inclosed In Big Shells.

This is the inventor of turpinite, the deadly gas which has been inclosed in French shells. It is said that one of these shells will kill every one in a space of 400 yards of where it explodes. M. Turpin, the inventor, is shown in his laboratory. Scores of Germans have been found dead without a single wound in localities where this shell has been used. The French, however, are about to abandon its use because of the great danger in firing it.

LONG DROUGHT BROKEN

Greater Boston Experienced Dryest Spell In Ninety-Seven Years

Boston, Oct. 17.—That the rainfall which commenced yesterday broke the longest drought that Greater Boston and most of Massachusetts has experienced in at least ninety-seven years, and perhaps ever, is shown by records at the Boston weather bureau.

September, 1844, has held the low record for rainfall for a single month with a precipitation of .20 inch. The drought just broken, however, lasted through September and half of October, during which the precipitation was but .21.

That practically all of the 150 odd forest fires that have been burning in nearly every part of the state have been extinguished by the rainfall is the statement by State Fire Warden Hutchins.

"APPLE DAY" NEXT TUESDAY

Every One Invited to Join In Disposing of Record Crop

Botson, Oct. 17.—Next Tuesday will be national apple day, when every one is urged to buy apples, a peck, a bag or a barrel, or possibly a supply to last over the winter.

The government estimates the crop this year at 70,000,000 barrels. This is the largest ever produced. The bumper crop comes, too, when export markets virtually are closed.

The state board of agriculture announces that in connection with the celebration of "apple day" it will give two cups as prizes for the best window display in Greater Boston of New England green apples.

SUED FOR $1,050,000

Morse and His Navigation Company Charged With Conspiracy

New York, Oct. 17.—A suit against Charles W. Morse and the Hudson Navigation company, charging conspiracy, was filed in the federal district court by the Manhattan Navigation company.

The action is brought under the Sherman anti-trust law, and the defendant's methods in operating boats on the Hudson river are alleged to have accomplished the plaintiff's ruin. Damages of $1,050,000 are asked.

TAKE SEVENTY PRISONERS

Loyalists Win In Their First Clash With Rebellious Boers

Cape Town, Oct. 17.—The first encounter between the rebellious Boers and the loyalists has resulted in a victory for the latter.

A force of South African native troops under the command of Colonel Brits, sent against the rebels, defeated a band of them and took seventy prisoners.

Fires at Target and Kills Father

East Blackstone, R. I., Oct. 17.—A bullet fired froma revolver in the hands of Fabien Jodoin, Jr., 21, passed through the side of a small building upon which he had fastened a target and killed his father, 58, who was inside.

Exchange Will Soon Open

New York, Oct. 17.—Prediction that the New York stock exchange would open in three weeks was made by Sir George Paish, adviser to the British treasury, who arrived on the Baltic.

Withdraws From Progressive Ticket

Boston, Oct. 17.—Daniel J. Murphy of Lawrence, the Progressive party's candidate for state treasurer, has filed his withdrawal with the secretary of state.

SCORELESS TIE MATCH

Quincy and Winthrop High in Great Contest

There were no players injured in the football game between Quincy and Winthrop High schools on the Merrymount oval on Friday afternoon, which resulted in a scoreless tie, but that was due entirely to good luck. The field was wet and slippery and a heavy mist hung over the oval throughout the game.

Both teams played with might and main and showed an unexpected mid-season improvement. Quincy's offensive was surprisingly strong, the men getting into the game with the "pep" of veterans who feared nothing They encountered an opposition fully as strong, however, which with the assistance of fumbles and other incidentals that happen on rainy days, prevented scoring.

Quincy was within striking distance of the visitor's goal on three different occasions, but each time the ball was either fumbled or they were held for downs. The last period was featured by fumbles by both teams, the wet pigskin being difficult to pass.

One of the features of the game was the 30 yd. run of Larkin, who carried the ball on a delayed pass play from the visitor's 40 to their 10 yd. line, a distance of 30 yds, where the ball became the property of the Winthorps.

The visiting coach ordered a change in line-up in the final period, pulling Roy Talcott back from tackle to the backfield. Talcott, who is a 190 pounder, went through Quincy's line for good gains and although the visitors intercepted a forward in this period the ball was not advanced to even the danger line.

On the whole the game of the home team showed such a wonderful improvement that the cheering section led by Reggie Gay was busy the four periods cheering Hamlin, Larkin and Foy who played good ball for Quincy. The summary:

The new enthusiasm at the game is easily explained. The largest body of students that ever assembled for a mass meeting at the local high school gathered in the auditorium, Friday, at 1.15. They were addressed by Coaches Mansur and French and Capt. Larkin. Much enthusiasm was aroused.

After the meeting the "Royal Rooters" gathered in the center section of seats. Cheers and songs were rehearsed under the leadership of "Reggie" Gay.

Nearly every rooter, boys and girls, attended the game and the team was much encouraged by their concerted cheering.

Keep it up! Boost Q. H. S. Boom Quincy.

NEEDLE WORK GUILD.

As the winter time approaches The Needle Work Guild makes its appearance. The Guild believes in, and has occasion for "blowing its own trumpet" once a year. It means that every member and everyone interested in helping his neighbor, shall contribute two new garments to keep someone warm who might otherwise suffer.

These garments are distributed mainly to individual cases in this city although some have been sent to the Hospital, Day Nursery and Tuberculosis camp. There are emergency cases when it has helped outside as at the time of the Chelsea fire, also the Salem fund.

Often patients taken to the Hospital have to be fitted out with new clothing and the matron calls on the Guild. There are times when a father has been out of work, through no fault of his by illness, perhaps, and the Guild helps him for the time being.

The Guild is not connected with any church, but every one is welcome to help and be helped.

FORE RIVER LEAGUE BOWLING

High single in competition in the Fore River league matches at the Coliseum alleys Friday night was made by Malnati, who got 122 with a total of 313. Tirrell however had a single higher by four, but his team rolled alone for pinfall. Kateon tripled with two singles over the century, one going to 118.

The Electricians beat the Machine Floor 3 to 1.

APPEAL TO FRIENDS.

Martha Ellingson, the 16 year old girl of 18 Curtis street, who had her leg cut off and narrowly escaped being killed last June at the Quincy station railroad crossing, has now been discharged from the City Hospital and is at present with her aunt enjoying a few days recuperation with friends at the Cohasset beach.

Her pressing need at present is money for an artificial leg. Miss Ellingson had just began to work at a Boston concern to help her aunt keep the home together when the accident occurred, and the home was thus deprived of the much needed income.

In order to give her many sympathetic friends an opportunity to assist in this so worthy cause the Daily Ledger columns have been opened, and credit will be given from day to day to all subscribers.

Forward all money to Rev. Paul Hallin, 101 Glendale road, Quincy, who has been appointed treasurer for this subscription fund, or the editor Daily Ledger.

PHILERGIAN NOTES.

The next meeting of the Philergians will be held in Cochato hall Tuesday, Oct. 20, at half past two. The afternoon's program has been arranged by the members of the literature department. Dr. Nathan Haskell Dole of Jamaica Plain will speak, his subject being, "Optimism Triumphant." Dr. Dole is an American editor, translator and author and a lecturer of note.

The attention of club members is called to the fact that next Tuesday is supply day for the Friendly Aid Visiting Nurse and generous contributions for her work are solicited

The members of the exchange department are to conduct their sale of kitchen commodities. The food sale and delicatessen counter will be conducted also at each club meeting excepting the afternoon devoted to the annual dramatics and Gentlemen's night.

Those members who did not receive their year book at the first meeting may obtain them from the corresponding secretary at the next meeting.

The class in parliamentary law is being formed. Those who wish to join may learn particulars from Mrs. Henry F. Knight, Cedar street, Braintree.

The executive board of the Philergians met at the home of Mrs. George G. Ellsworth, Adams street, Friday afternoon.

Members of the Quincy and Wollaston Women's clubs will serve tea at the Pure Food Exposition in Mechanic's Building, Boston on October 29th from 4 to 5.30 o'clock.

ENGLAND ANGRY AT SEA LOSSES

Germans Add to Series of Successes of Submarines

CRUISER HAWKE IS BLOWN UP

Underwater Antagonist Makes Attack on Theseus at Same Time but Fails After Causing Loss of Three Hundred and Forty-Eight Lives—But Fifty-Two Survivors of Disaster

London, Oct. 17.—All England is demanding revenge. The official announcement that another British cruiser had fallen victim to a torpedo hurled by a German submarine stirred the nation to its very depth. The loss of the Hawke, with practically all of her crew, is in itself no serious disaster to Britain's sea strength. There are plenty of war craft ready to take her place. But the almost uninterrupted series of successes of the German submarines, which seem to be able to go where they please unchecked by the British destroyers or torpedo craft, has started a chorus of criticism of the admiralty that only a stern blow, with resultant success, can check.

While details of the loss of the Hawke are withheld, the very fact that her survivors were landed at Aberdeen would indicate it took place far from the German coast and very close to a British naval base. Because of this the bewilderment grows. Where is the British fleet? is the question on every one's lips. But it is a question that for strategical reasons must go unanswered.

At the admiralty no comment was obtainable on the latest German move. But the chiefs there made it plain by their attitude that England would reply in her own way and it will not be greatly surprising if news was soon forthcoming of a British naval move that will balance the now greatly one-sided scale.

The Hawke, a vessel of 7150 tons, under command of Captain Williams, was sunk in the North sea, the graveyard of six other warships which were the victims of German torpedoes.

It was only bad aim on the part of the German gunner which saved the Hawke's sister ship, the Theseus, and the doubling of the disaster, for that vessel, too, was attacked, but she escaped.

The exact complement aboard the Hawke has not been announced, but in ordinary times the men numbered about 550. According to one report she had only 400 aboard. Whatever the number, only fifty-two men were saved and there was not a single commissioned officer among them. The loss of life is thus placed at 248.

The Hawke was 360 feet long, 69 feet in the beam and was capable of a speed of nineteen knots. Her armaments consisted of two 9.2-inch (30 calibre) guns in shields; ten 6-inch guns, four in casements and six in shields; twelve 6-pounders; five 3-pounders; two machine guns and two 18-inch torpedo tubes. She was laid down in 1889.

The cruisers Amphion, Pathfinder, Aboukir; Cressy, Hogue, Pegasus and Hawke and the torpedo boat Speedy make up the formidable list of losses of British warships in the first ten weeks of the war. Against this the British admiralty claims four German cruisers, two torpedo boat destroyers, one torpedo boat, three submarines and eight armed commerce destroyers. Omitting the armed merchantmen, the aggregate warship tonnage loss to England is, of course, much greater than that to Germany.

In those cases the lost ships, with the exception of the cruiser Amphion and the submarines, were older craft used for scouting purposes, the ships intended for the sterner work of a fleet action being held in safer waters for the day when Germany elects to sally from behind her naval base of Helgoland.

ARMY AEROPLANE TESTS

Plan to Have American Machines Superior to Those Abroad

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 17.—Preparations have been completed for the competitive tests to be held here next week, when various makes of aeroplanes will be tried out by the United States army with a view to procuring a military reconnoisance machine superior to those now used by any foreign country.

Even manufacturers of aeroplanes have filed applications with the war department for permission to participate in the competition.

WOMEN NEARLY TRAPPED

Attending Lodge Meeting When Great Fire Breaks Out

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 17.—Nearly 100 persons narrowly escaped being trapped in the Day building, in the business centre of this city, when fire broke out there last night. Seven persons were partly overcome by smoke or sustained other injuries and had to be carried out.

The loss in the fire may be as great as $100,000, for the building is practically wrecked.

More than seventy-five women were attending a lodge meeting on the fifth floor when the fire broke out. The cause of the fire has not been learned.

Wife Slayer Is Insane

London, Oct. 17.—Charles H. Weston, formerly of Salem, Mass., was found guilty of the murder of his wife and at the same time was declared to be insane. He was ordered committed to an asylum.

QUINCY PIANOFORTE SCHOOL

Greenleaf Block, 1419 Hancock St., Quincy

ADVANTAGES:

1.—Better instruction and better prices cannot be obtained in Quincy.

2.—Our system is thorough and modern; our instructors are capable, experienced and up-to-date.

3.—Our pupils have the privilege of appearing in public three times a season; and know how to conduct themselves correctly and gracefully on the concert stage.

4.—Our 1st. and 2nd. year General Class lessons are worth as much as the regular piano lessons, but this year we include these lessons with the price of the piano lessons alone.

5.—The director, Mr. Hackelton, is a graduate of the N. E. Conservatory of Music, finished abroad and a leading teacher in Boston for ten years.

6.—We award certificates to pupils finishing our courses.

7.—We are presenting a limited number of music rolls to our pupils as a souvenir of our opening.

Information regarding terms, teachers, system etc., will be cheerfully given at the School, or a circular sent on request.

REGULAR OF COUNCIL.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held Monday evening. As several commitees have met since the last regular meting reports may be expected. Just what the Finance committee will report, if they do report, on the order for a school lot in the Ward Two district, is awaited with interest. The order before the committee calls for the purchase of a lot on the Paul Wild estate, while the School Committee have gone on record as in favor of the Swithin lot off South street. Should the City Council be divided on the question it may result in no lot being purchased this year.

Several delegates from the Universalist church are to attend the annual meeting of the Old Colony Universalist Association on Tuesday at Assinippi. The meeting will begin at 10.30 A. M.

Hon. H. B. Davis, judge of the Third District Court of Plymouth is to speak at the meeting of the Gardner Club of Christ church on Thursday evening. Judge Davis is much interested in the bad boy problem. The meeting will be an open one and all men over sixteen are urged to attend Refreshments are to be served.

Rev. W. M. Partridge will conduct both services on Sunday at Christ church.

Miss Margaret Trainor of Dorchester, a deputy of the New England Order of Protection, made an official visitation to Quincy chapter in Protection hall, Friday evening. Other grand officers could not attend because of the weather conditions. Miss Trainor gave a short talk, at the conclusion of which there were brief talks by members. A social program was mapped out, and after adjournment the members held a bowling tournament.

QUINCY POINT

A very pleasant afternoon was spent by a few friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Jones of Newcomb square Thursday to celebrate with them their fortieth wedding anniversary. After admiring the beautiful autumn foliage in the woods which joins the Jones estate, they gathered around the table and enjoyed a bountiful supper.

Among those present were Mrs. Alex McIntosh of Boston, Mrs. William Griffiths of Mattapan, Mrs. John Evans, Mrs. David Evans, Mrs. John Walters, Mrs. Alex. Shirley, Mrs. Fred Thayer, Mrs. George Bailey, Mrs J. Robertson, Mrs. J. S. Pierce of Quincy and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jones and little daughter Ruth of Weymouth.

However, there was a cloud over the gathering in the death of Mrs. Catherine McLane who passed away suddenly at noon Wednesday, at her home on Isabella street, Boston. She had looked forward so much to be present at the gathering with her daughter, Mrs. Lillian Ross of Old Town, Maine, and her two sisters, Mrs. John Morgan and Mrs. Charles Ralph of Boston.

The torpedo boat Walker, built at Quincy is now at New York; the Sterett at Whitestone; the Macdonough and the entire submarine flotilla has left Newport for New London.

The East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union will hold its first bimonthly meeting of the season at the Washington Street Congregational church on Monday evening. Rev. Carl Stackman of the First Congregational church of Somerville will be the speaker. Special singing by the entertaining societies is promised, and a large enthusiastic rally is anticipated.

Edward J. Fegan, candidate for mayor on the Democratic ticket, was the guest of the Quincy Point Social Club on Friday evening. He was given an enthusiastic reception. Mr. Fegan spoke chiefly on organization. Among other speakers was Leo P. Noonan.

SULLIVAN VS MERRILL.

William J. Sullivan of Payne street Democratic nominee for county commissioner, will remain in the fight and contest for that office with John F. Merrill, the Republican candidate for re-election. Mr. Sullivan was the nomination on stickers.

D. Cady Davis, formerly of this city and Washington, D. C. is seriously ill at his late home in Swissvale, Pennsylvania.

Those wishing to advertise in the Kings Daughter Edition of the Daily Ledger will do well to notify the advertising manager, Mrs. Edward E. Mitchell, Jr., at once, as space is being rapidly taken.

QUINCY ATLANTIC

Mrs. Tead's Bible class is to have a masquerade party in Memorial vestry this evening.

The directors of the Y. P. S. C. E. of Memorial church met with Frank Damon this week and arranged for their first social on Friday evening, Oct. 23.

Several house parties have been arranged in Atlantic for the Wall candidacy and it is understood he is to answer the critics of his circular letter

The Campbell campaign thus far in Atlantic has been carried on by social visits.

Mrs. Levi S. Turner of Norfolk Downs read a paper on "Women of Genius in the Realm of Song" before the Ladies Society of Memorial church at their monthly meeting on Wednesday and Mrs. S. J. Ripley of Wollaston sang several of the songs much to the appreciation of the large gathering of women.

The case of Mary Roeher vs Dr. D. A Bruce, was decided Friday by a jury in the Suffolk Superior court in favor of the defendant. It was not a little girl that was struck by the auto but a woman, and there was no death. The plaintiff claimed that she had received injuries to her back and chest. This was denied by the defendant who called a specialist to testify to an examination, which was made of the plaintiff, and the jury decided in his favor, as stated. Not only was there no death, but the doctor never figured in an auto accident before.

The program for the Methodist Revival at Atlantic the coming week is as follows—Sunday 10.45 A. M. and 7 P. M. by the pastor Monday evening Mr. Noble; Tuesday evening Rev. Dr. Stephens; Wednesday evening, Dr. Parkinson; Thursday evening, Mrs. Smith; Friday evening Rev. Noble. Mr. Nobles' solo singing is an attractive feature of the meetings.

Miss Alice Gertrude Cahill of Cohasset and Philip Walsh of 438 Hancock street were married this week at Cohasset. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. F. A. Bogan.

FUNERAL OF MR. DINNIE.

The funeral of Jonathan Dinnie took place from his late home this afternoon, Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott of Bethany church conducting the services. There were many beautiful floral tokens of the respect and affection of his friends and fellow workers.

Mr. Dinnie, was born in Scotland and while a young man learned the stone polishing business in that great granite centre Aberdeen. In '72 when this branch of the granite industry was being established in this country, he came to Westerly, R. I. There one of the fine pieces of work done in which he always took especial pride was the beautiful Bethesda fountain, still one of the show pieces of Central Park, New York City.

In '74 he took up his residence in Quincy, in the employment of MacKenzie & Patterson, and later was for many years foreman of the Churchill & Hitchcock's polishing plant. With the erection of a polishing mill at Joss Bros Co., he entered that corporation with which he has ever since been identified.

Since making his home in Quincy he has been a regular and interested attendant of Bethany church. His eldest son, Robert, is a well known electrical expert, now chief engineer at the Bradley Chemical plant. William the youngest of the family is in the employ of the Stone & Webster Co., at Cambridge in, the construction department now erecting the Technology buildings. Miss Dinnie, of the Belcher school, East Milton, Mrs. Richard Dow in California, Mrs. Albert M. Parker and Mrs. Orrin S. Hammack of New Jersey, who passed away recently, are the daughters.

On the jury at Dedham this week are A. Fitch Bromley, Louis S. Cleaves, Walter H. Dunbar, Harrison S. Loud, Warren H. Nelson, Horace W. Richmond and Ralph E. Winslow.

BRAINTREE

At New England hospital, Roxbury, Sept. 21, a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Simonds.

Joseph E. Hayden of Pearl street picked a quantity of ripe strawberries in his garden last Monday.

Principal Taylor of the Jonas Perkins school left last Friday morning for New Hampshire for a few days. In his absence Miss Irene Murphy taught the eighth grade.

The executive board of the Noah Torrey School Association met at the home of the president Mrs. A. F. Hollis Tuesday evening and voted to give a Hallowe'en party, the latter part of the month.

Ten members of the Epworth League of the M. E. church enjoyed a trip to Brockton, Monday, where they attended the annual convention of the Providence District Epworth League held in the Franklin M. E. church.

Herbert Stackhouse, who has been taking a month's rest cure with his sister at Nova Scotia has returned, greatly improved in health. His niece Miss Mae Birnie of Quincy has been the guest of Mrs . Stackhouse during his absence and is still at their home on Presidents road.

The Cemetery Improvement Association of East Braintree and Weymouth met at the home of Mrs. Senior on Front street Weymouth, Wednesday afternoon. There was a large attendance and it was evident that much work is being put into the arrangements for their fair to be held later.

Mrs. George C. Beale of Tremont street was elected a delegate to the twenty-sixth annual conference of the Women's Auxiliaries to the Y. M. C. A. of Massachusetts and Rhode Island at Everett, Oct. 14 and 15. Mrs. Beal is chairman of the boys' work committee of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Quincy Y. M. C. A and went as a delegate from there.

The Unity Circle of Kings Daughters met at the home of Mrs. C. O. Miller. There were sixteen members present and arrangements were made for a harvest supper to be held in the Union church October 23. The arrangements for the supper were left in the hands of Mrs. G. W. Tinkham. The members of the circle were glad to welcome their president Mrs. T. A. Watson who has been summering in Europe.

Mrs. Edwin F. Coose passed away at her home, 1139 Washington street yesterday after an illness of about one year. Funeral services will be held at her late home tomorrow, at 12 o'clock and burial will be in the Plain street cemetery. Ida May Wolfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wolfe was born in North Weymouth, May 30th, 1865. She was married in that town to Edwin F. Coose, October 30th 1883.

The many friends of Mrs. Lawrence Spaulding, nee Annie R. Hill, will be sorry to learn she passed on at her home in Glendora, California, on Monday, Oct. 12. Mrs. Spaulding was the daughter of Mrs. Hattie Hill and granddaughter of Mrs. Whittaker who were old residents of Braintree. She was a very sweet, lovable girl and her husband and mother have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in Braintree.

Miss Lelia M. Harvey, of 99 West street, whose ability as an executant on the church organ, is well known to Braintree people, had the opening number of the season's first concert by advanced students of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, Wednesday evening in Jordan hall of the Conservatory building. Her selection was the Cantilene and Scherzando, op. 20, of Gabriel Pierne, eminent French composer and pupil of the great Cesar Franck. This work was very favorably received by a large and enthusiastic audience.

QUINCY SOUTH

A grand good rain.

City Treasurer Curtis offers for sale at discount a temporary loan of $75,000 dated Oct. 22, and maturing March 31, 1915.

At the roll call of the Calvary Baptist church this week there was a pleasing musical and literary program. Robert Farquhar read the names. Rev. D. B. McLeod of the nited Presbyterian church was one of the speakers. Refreshments were served.

BRIEFS

Rain interferred with the grammar school soccer games Friday and resulted with their postponement. The teams will play latter in the season.

Richard Olney, 2nd, Democratic nominee to congress, expended $98.52 in connection with securing the party nomination at the primaries. The accounts of other candidates have not yet been filed.

At the Pleasant Sunday evening service at Bethany church in City Square the pastor will give the third lecture on the Revelation of God in the lives of men; Topic "The penalty of greed." The organ recital will commence at 7. 15.

In the Superior court at Dedham on Friday the suit of George T. Guston against the Bay tSate Street Railway, to recover $5,000 for alleged personal injuries was finished to the arguments and judge's charge. Guston claims that he sustained personal injuries while a passenger on the defendants cars Oct. 8, 1911 due to a derailment.

Today is Rose Bud day at Brockton, and 100 Brockton young women are selling rose buds for the benefit of the day nursery.

The members of Paul Revere post, G. A. R., were the guests of Col. Abner Packard Camp, Sons of Veterans on Friday evening. Commander Dr. C. R. Marstin and Past Commander George L. Phillips of the Grand Army were among the speakers of the evening. Music was furnished by French's orchestra while clam chowder was served.

AMENDMENT CAUSES A DILEMMA

Elimination of Party Enrollment to be Voted Upon at State Election

Last Week for City Nomination Papers

The time for filing nomination papers for candidates to be voted for at the city primaries expires this week.

The City Clerks throughout the commonwealth, especially those whose municipal caucuses follow the week after the State election are in a quandary as to just what to do in regard to the ballots for the primaries. At the State election, one of the matters to be submitted to the voters is that relative to eliminating party enrollment at caucuses. If the amendment is accepted, it goes into effect at once, which means that at the city caucuses Nov. 10 the enrollment of other years will be abolished.

The difficulty, however, is that as the city primaries come just a week from the State caucus, the time is rather short for the City Clerk to prepare the ballots for the primaries, as it may be Thursday or Friday before it is definitely known whether the enrollment clause has been accepted. It is very evident that if it is Friday following the election, before it is fully determined in regard to the enrollment clause, the City Clerk will not have time to prepare the ballots.

If the enrollment clause in the caucus act stands as it now is, the City Clerk must prepare three sets of ballots, one for the Republicans, one for the Progressives and one for the Democrats. If, however, the amendment shall be accepted, but one ballot will be necessary, and upon this ballot will be the names of all party candidates seeking nomination.

If the amendment should be accepted the names of all candidates will be printed on one ballot. That is if there are three parties, as there happen to be at the present time, there will be three columns, and the act provides that all the Republican candidates shall be printed in one column, all of the Democratic in another and all of the Progressive in another column.

In other words each party shall be in a column by itself. If one wishes to vote for the complete Republican ticket, and there is no contest for the different offices, all that will be necessary will be to place a cross in the upper corner. In the coming caucuses however, where it is known that there will be several candidates seeking the nomination to the same office, a cross must be made after each name to be voted for.

The most serious effect of the new ballot, will be the opportunity for defective ballots. For instance there will be three columns of candidates, each party being represented in one column. If a voter, desiring to be independent, in looking over his ballot finds names in each column which he wishes to vote for, he will not be able to do so.

In other words if a voter marks a cross against a name in the Republican column, then a cross against a name in the Democratic or Progressive column, that ballot becomes defective and must be thrown out.

The time is too short to educate the voter just how to mark his ballot, with the natural result that there will doubtless be a great many defective ballots, should the amendment be accepted, and the new form of ballot used at the city primaries. The whole idea of the amendment seems to be to relieve the voter from placing himself on record as a Republican, Democrat or Progressive, and to save the printing of three sets of ballots.

The amendment provides that it shall be submitted to the voters at the coming election and if accepted by a majority of the voters, shall go into effect immediately.

If it had provided that the amendment went into effect the following year, it might be all right, for then the voters would have an opportunity to become acquainted with the new law and govern themselves accordingly, but where it will go into actual use a week hence, the result will doubtless be many defective ballots, and that some one may get the nomination who would otherwise have been defeated with the ballot in use as at present, is more than likely.

These Birds of War Live Wires; Mounted Chaplains Now Busy Men.

Photos by American Press Association.

Carrier pigeons are used as "wireless" to good effect by the valiant Belgian soldiers. The top picture shows a cavalryman with a cage of the "birds of passage" strapped to his back. The pigeons are truly "live wires" in the game of life and death. The bottom picture shows a Belgian chaplain with his mount at the front. The kaiser gave orders that all Belgian chaplains should be treated as officers if captured. The priests are having a busy, sad time in their sacred calling.

FIREMAN ON DANGEROUS LIST

Richard Colbert, for 25 years a member of the Fire department, is on the dangerous list at the City Hospital, and although the physicians say that there is a chance for his recovery his condition is considered grave.

Fireman Colbert was taken suddenly ill at the Central Fire station Saturday afternoon when he suddenly fell to the floor. It was thought at first that he had expired, but physicians who were summoned found that he was alive, but seriously ill. He was immediately removed to the City Hospital and a specialist summoned from Boston.

It was decided that an operation was necessary for some stomach trouble and it was performed. The surgeons found an abscess on the stomach about as large as the top of a pencil. For some reason, best known to the surgeons it was decided not to remove the abscess, and the opening made was closed up.

It was stated this morning that while his condition was grave there was a chance for his recovery.

At the City Hospital this morning it was stated that Fireman Colbert had a bad night and that he suffered considerable pain and that his condition was not as good as could be wished.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

PENNY PAPERS. ARE HARD HIT

That the newspapers are hard hit by the war is evident from the comments of Frank B. Noyes, President of the Associated Press. He says:

There is, perhaps no popular misunderstanding more widespread than is found in the current belief that a great war or other important happening that causes an increased sale of newspapers is profitable to newspaper owners.

The fundamental error is so grotesque to a newspaper publisher as to cause the humor of it to afford some solace to him if actualities trouble him sorely.

The simple fact is that the newspaper is probably a heavier financial sufferer in the business world through war than any save those whose property is physically destroyed by it.

On this side of the water the burden of the present European war is laid heaviest on newspaper publishers of all our business men. This is so because of facts that are very easy to understand.

The newspapers of large circulation in this country are almost without exception one-cent newspapers. The white paper for these papers cost more than the wholesale selling price. There is a loss on every copy sold, and the greater the excitement, the more "extras" issued, the greater the loss.

In ordinary times this loss is made up by advertising receipts. It is obvious, however, that nothing is received for the advertising in this additional and temporary circulation. The sad reverse of this is true. In all times of excitement advertising diminishes; there are individual exceptions of course, but they are sporadic and only prove the rule.

Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Representatives of Association Speak in Eleven of the Quincy Churches

Open Campaign to Raise Funds for Expenses

In all of the evangelical churches of the city on Sunday, representatives of the Young Men's Christian Association told of the good work being done by the organizations and made an appeal for the support of the Quincy Y. M. C. A.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

Large audiences attended both services at Bethany church on Sunday, and good music and beautiful flowers added to the interest. In the morning the pastor resumed his weekly sermonettes to boys and girls with a bright silver quarter as the illustration.

Two representatives of the Y. M. C. A. spoke at the morning service, State Secretary E. W. Hearne and President Frank Burgess of the Quincy association. The former told of the inception of the Y. M. C. A., in England 70 years ago; its introduction into this country a few years later, and of its remarkable growth and development. Of its social work, its educational classes, its railroad work, and army and navy work, also work amongt he emigrants. The Y. M. C. A. did a lighthouse service as well as a life saving service. It was a common institutional work of the churches.

President Burgess said Quincy had a well equipped plant costing $40,000. The annual cost was about $10,000. We raise from members, dormitories, etc., about $5000, and need about as much more from our friends. Men are giving time and service for the association and should be encouraged.

The attendance at the session of Bethany Bible School was 446 and as usual the names of a number of new scholars were added to the membership roll.

There are so many little children who attend the Beginners department that the ladies parlor where the class meets is not large enough in which to carry on the work. Commencing Sunday, Oct. 25, a new class will be formed to meet during the time of morning worship, and parents may bring their children and leave them in this class to be instructed and cared for while they themselves enjoy the morning church service.

Sunday evening a large number of young people attended the Christian Endeavor meeting at 6 o'clock where Delcevare King spoke on the subject "A Saloonless nation."

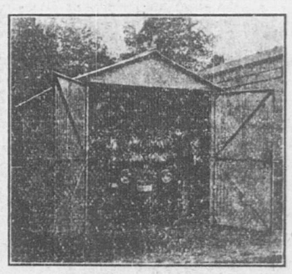

The first church supper of the season will be given Wednesday evening at 6.30 to be followed by a social.

SOCIAL WORK.

A readable little pamphlet about to be circulated is the second annual report of The Associated Charities of Quincy. No one can read the report without gaining a clear idea of the important field this organization fills in the welfare of our city.

Instead of haphazard giving such as has prevailed for years, with much duplication whereby undeserving were given assistance several times and the often more needy overlooked entirely, the work is now so systematized and intelligently carried on that it is not only a pleasure but a privilege to contribute to the Associated Charities.

The Associated Charities serves as a clearing house for all social workers; saves time and money; investigates and relieves promptly and adequately; prevents duplication; increases co-operation; visits faithfully and last and by no means the least of its good work encourages thrift.

This week is set apart as a special time for receiving contributions for the work of the Association. Do not forget that yours combined with someone else's mite help make up an amount that can do much good. Think it over; get one of the little pamphlets and post yourself on just what the Association accomplishes and this week send in your contribution.

WITHOUT FOUNDATION. ....

Citizens of Quincy, no matter with which political party they are affiliated, take vigorous exceptions to, the broad statement credited to ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, at the Democratic rally in Tremont Temple, Boston, Saturday evening. In the course of his remarks the ex-Mayor took occasion to say, according to the published reports, that Quincy was one of the many examples he might mention of graft and mismanagement under Republican rule and where municipal corruption has been exposed within the past few days.

If the ex-Mayor made the statement it is absolutely false, as far as Quincy is concerned. Never in the history of Quincy as a city, has there been one breath of suspicion that there was graft or mismanagement either under Republican or Democratic rule.

Quincy has made its mistakes, as has every city, but it would seem that the genial ex-Mayor had gone a step too far, even for a political speech in his statement in regard to the City of Quincy and that he should be called upon to apologize.

The insult of "Honey Fitz" cannot be allowed to go unchallenged. There has been no municipal corruption exposed in Quincy and we have not sent any of our public men to jail. B ut when a man like Fitzgerald points to Quincy as a horrible example of "graft and mismanagement," isn't it about time for the voters to get together and try to put into office only men of the type elected in the good old days; men of substance, intelligence and responsibility, so that not even the charge of mismanagement can be truthfully made The time to begin is now, before nominations for the Council are made.

FRENCH ARMY PLANNING TO RETAKE LILLE

Long Step Toward It In the Recapture of Armentieres

GERMANS DRIVEN BACK ABOUT THIRTY MILES

Activity Behind Invading Lines Indicates That Formidable Offensive Movement Will Be Undertaken by Kaiser's Forces—Belgians Again Distinguish Themselves by Checking Advance of Enemy—Clashes Between Cavalry at Numerous Places Along Battle Line—Cessation of Assaults About Roye and Lassigny, Where Dead Make Fields Hideous—German Advance In Argonne Forest Is Ended—Preparations For the Bombarding of Belfort

London, Oct. 19.—The recapture of Armentieres by the allies and the appearance of the dauntless Belgian army still battling against the invaders upon the soil of Belgium were the outstanding features of the fighting of Sunday along the 360-mile battle front.

The seizure of Armentieres was an important coup for the French and British troops. Not only does it make the capture of Calais and Dunkirk from the east a much more difficult operation, but it also seems to indicate that the French are again attempting to recapture Lille, only ten miles distant from Armentieres.

For a week fighting has been furious along the frontier in the neighborhood of Armentieres. Only a week ago German cavalry were raiding about Hazebrouck, within easy striking distance of Calais. Now, forced back east of Armentieres, the invaders have been pressed back thirty miles.

Planning Fresh Attack

The Germans made only isolated attacks upon the strong positions of the allies during the day and night. French and British aeronauts have reported great activity behind the invading lines, with long trains, presumably crowded with reinforcements, steadily rolling toward the French and Belgian frontier.

It is daily becoming evident that a formidable offensive will be undertaken by the enemy within a very few days, but where the assault will fall is naturally unknown to correspondents. It is believed, however, that General Joffre and Sir John French are aware of the point aimed at by the German threat and that they have strengthened their lines with thousands of veterans of the battles of the Marne and the Aisne as well as with thousands of new British troops which have recently reached the fighting lines.

Belgians Repulse Invaders

One of the fiercest of the German assaults Sunday developed out of an attempt to sieze crossing places on the river Yser in the tiny corner of southwestern Belgium still free of the gray army. Here the remnants of the gallant little Belgian army which has fought so heroically against overwhelming odds were lined up on the southern bank of the stream. Again and again they were able to crumple up the German advance.

Although attempts were made at many places to throw pontoon bridges across the Yser, not one was successful. Everywhere the Belgians, from their hastily thrown up earthworks, were able to stem the German tide as they had not been while under the protection of the steel and concrete forts of Antwerp.

Despite the fact that the infantry are now engaged at close quarters in northern France, the cavalry are still operating. Clashes between German and British and French horsemen occurred Sunday at numerous places along the battle lines, one particularly severe action preceding the sharp battle that led to the seizure of Armentieres.

French Make Advances

North of the La Bassee canal the French were also able to make a slight advance. In this section they now occupy a line from Givenchy through Illies to Fromelles. Givenchy is about five miles east of Bethune; Illies less than three miles north of La Bassee, and Fromelles about eight miles west of Lille. It is said the allied forces are massed here in such strength that the Germans can hardly retain their hold upon Lille for many hours.

Somewhat north of Arras, presumably on the road toward Douai, where the fighting has been so violent, the French pushed on still further to the east. South of Arras other advances were made, but these were for extremely short distances.

In the angle about Roye and Lassigny, where thousands of dead make the field hideous, the Germans have ceased their assaults. Everything indicates that they are planning to abandon their lines here, where they are nearest to Paris. This, however, is not enough of an advantage to offset the difficulties of their position, assailed from two sides, and by straightening out their lines they will be able to mass their men more effectively.

German Assaults Rolled Back

In the centre about Rheims, the customary calm has prevailed. Even in the forest of the Argonne, the formidable German advance of a few days ago appears to have come to an untimely end. But in the snow capped Vosges, where for weeks only skirmishes have taken place, movements of considerable importance seem to be taking place. Saturday night German troops in great strength strove again to smash their way into St. Die, but both to the north and to the east their assaults were rolled back.

Still further south, almost at the extreme end of the hostile lines as they approach the boundary of Switzerland, there appears to be little doubt that the invaders are getting into place their great guns with which they hope to batter down the forts that form a ring about Belfort.

In Belgium the invaders are reported to have demanded an indemnity of $1,000,000 from Ostend, while provisions to the value of $25,000 have been imposed upon Blankenberghe, a rival resort to the north. The German sentiment seems to be evident here, as each summer between 20,000 and 25,000 Germans visit Blankenberghe, which for a few months takes on a Teutonic appearance. Its popularity seems to have won Blankenberghe much better terms than those imposed upon other Belgian towns and cities.

The British and French fleets and the Montenegrin army are carrying on an attack on Cattaro, the fortified seaport of Austria in Dalmatia, the first sortie from which the Montenegrins claim to have repulsed.

EVIDENCE OF SLAUGHTER

British Alone Have Lost 30,000 Men In Less Than Ten Weeks

Gains made by either side cost them dearly. An official dispatch from the London war office shows that in less than a month—from Sept. 12 to Oct. 8—British losses in France were 561 officers and 12,980 men.

Previous to Sept. 12, the British losses were approximately 15,000, of which the greater part was included among the missing. At that time the Germans had about 7500 British prisoners, according to Berlin statements.

The loss to date must, therefore, be approximately 30,000. Probably most of the recent casualties are in killed and wounded, for the number of British prisoners held by the Germans does not seem to have increased greatly.

The British expeditionary force, from such figures as can be obtained, seems to have aggregated about 170,000 men. A loss of 30,000 in less than ten weeks of actual fighting shows that the slaughter has been terrible.

If the French losses have been proportional—and they have probably been even heavier—France has probably lost somewhere about 200,000 men in killed and wounded during the war, in addition to 100,000 odd prisoners taken by the Germans.

Whether the German losses have been greater or less there is no means of knowing. Probably they were greater in the first few weeks of the war, during the advance through Belgium, than were those of the opposing armies. The French lost heavily in the retreat toward Paris, and von Kluck's losses were probably greater than those of the armies pursuing him at the battle of the Marne.

200-MILE BATTLE FRONT

Decisive Blow Expected Soon In Eastern Theatre of War

Drawn up on the banks of the Vistula river the Austro-German forces and the army of the czar are engaged in the most gigantic battle that has taken place in the far eastern theatre of war. The severest fighting is taking place along the centre of the line, and both sides are claiming successes.

From Petrograd comes the report that the Russians have beaten back the allied Teuton forces at all points along the 200-mile battle front, while Berlin announces that the campaign is proceeding most favorably to the kaiser.

Fighting on the Vistula has been in progress for several days, but the troops have been greatly hampered by the swampy condition of the roads and fields, caused by recent floods and heavy rainfall. These conditions have been improved, and military experts expect a decisive blow to be struck at any moment.

WILL TOTAL $10,000,000,000

Estimate of War Expenditures For Period of Seven Months

Paul Leroy-Beaulieu, the French economist, estimates that each of the greater belligerents is spending an average equivalent to $200,000,000 monthly.

In presenting these figures to the French academy of moral and political science he said he considered it probable that the war would continue for seven months from Aug. 1. Accordingly the five greater powers engaged were committed to an expenditure of $7,000,000,000. Each of the smaller states, including Japan, will have expenses of from $600,000,000 to $800,000,000.

"One might say," he continued, "that the war will cost the fighting powers, roughly, from $9,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000. These figures do not take into account the losses of revenue during hostilities."

BELGIANS MAY RETURN

Refugees Are Granted Permission by German Government

The burgomasters in the leading Dutch towns have issued proclamations announcing that the German government has granted permission for all Belgian refugees to return to their homes in Belgium. The only reservation is that men liable for military service will be considered prisoners of war if they return.

The Dutch burgomasters urge the Dutch to permit the Belgian refugees to return home as quickly as possible. Train service between Roosendaal and Antwerp has been resumed. Satisfaction is expressed over the prospect that Holland will be relieved soon of the great burden of supporting 1,500,000 Belgians.

HAMILTON IS KILLED

Prominent British General Falls on Battlefield In France

A casualty list of the British expeditionary force in France reports the death of Major General Hamilton.

Hamilton commanded the third division of the British field troops in the vicinity of Mons. He was born in 1861. He served in the Egyptian and South African campaigns and in 1900-02 was military secretary to Lord Kitchener, who at that time was commander-in-chief of the British forces in South Africa. He was also military secretary of Kitchener when the latter was commander-in-chief in India.

GERMAN STORES WRECKED

Serious Rioting In London Led by a Hundred Dock Laborers

Serious anti-German rioting occurred in the Deptford borough of London. Several shops conducted by Germans were wrecked by crowds and one shop was set afire.

Damage was done also in the Old Kent road, where meat markets were smashed, and this was followed by the wrecking of a confectionery store. Some of the shops were pillaged.

Police were called out and twenty arrests were made. Precautions have been taken to prevent further rioting.

The rioting was led by 100 dock laborers, who had been turned out of a lodging house to make room for Belgian refugees.

NO CHANGE IN POLICY

Italy's Foreign Office Portfolio Is Assumed by Premier

At a cabinet coucil at Rome Premier Salandra assumed the foreign office portfolio, formerly held by the late Marquis di San Giuliano, and will retain it throughout the war.

Hence the foreign policy of Italy will not be altered as a result of San Giuliano's death.

IS STILL FIRST CHIEF

Carranza's Resignation Not Even Discussed by Convention

Mexico City, Oct. 19.—Although General Carranza has resigned he is still regarded as being the first chief of the constitutionalists, according to Ysidro Fabela, the Mexican foreign minister. He declared the Aguascalientes convention had not discussed Carranza's resignation, but had considered only general questions affecting the nation.

"The Carranza cabinet will continue as before," said Fabela. "There has been no intention of changing the composition of the cabinet, as complete harmony exists in the official family."

Fire Damages Large Church

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 19.—The North Christian church, the largest edifice in the city, was badly damaged by fire. An overheated furnace was the cause. Prompt work by the firemen saved the structure from total ruin.

Governor Martin H. Glynn Heads Democratic Ticket In New York.

Martin H. Glynn, who became the governor of New York by the impeachment and removal of Governor Sulzer, has been named by the Democrats as candidate for chief executive. His nomination came to him because of his businesslike administration and without any campaigning on his part. The principal achievement of his administration has been the workmen's compensation act, legislation that seems to be popular with employers and employees alike.

NORTH WEYMOUTH

A Francis Barnes, one of the selectmen of Weymouth, dropped dead Saturday night, as he was about to place his bicycle in the basement of his home. Mr. Barnes was employed as a drug clerk and had ridden home on his bicycle, and in doing so had evidently over-exerted himself. His housekeeper called two neighbors and physicians were summoned, but Dr. George E. Emerson who was the first to arrive pronounced him dead and that death was due to heart failure.

Mr. Barnes was elected on the board of the selectmen, 1911, 1912 and 1914. He was a member of Orphans Hope lodge, A. F. & A. M., and for many years as secretary of the Weymouth Agricultural society. He leaves two children, his wife having died several years ago.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

UNLICENSED DOGS.

David Gordon, dog warden of the police department, has been unusually vigilant the past two months in making the acquaintance of owners of dogs who have failed to comply with the law requiring them to pay an annual tax, for this year, in addition to other duties he has been empowered to collect the license fee.

The warden works under the direction of the mayor who issues a warrant to the chief of police ordering that all unlicensed dogs be killed. So far 73 canines have disappeared because they were unprotected by the owner and sentence of death is now hanging over six more.

The office of the City Clerk where fees are received show that a fair percentage of the taxes have been paid and it is probable that before many weeks all the fees will have been collected. Otherwise the dog will be a persona non grata with the warden.

Among Our Churches

will begin their rehearsals Thursday at 3.15.

"Be not weary in well doing" will be the subject of the Thursday evening meeting for prayer and good fellowship.

CHRIST CHURCH.

The services on Sunday were well attended.

The Galahad club will meet this evening and E. J. Townsend desires a large attendance.

Members of this church have been invited to the autumn meeting of the South Shore branch of the Sunday School Union at St. Stephens church, Cohasset, on Tuesday at 4 P. M. C. M. Chase is on the executive committee.

The Gardner club will meet Thursday evening, to be addressed by Hon. H. B. Davis, judge of the Plymouth court, who will speak on the "Bad boy problem.

FIRST PARISH.

At the First Parish church on Sunday the Rev. Adelbert Lathrop Hudson followed up the interest aroused by the 275th anniversary of this ancient and honored church by a stirring sermon from the text: "Speak unto my people that they go forward." He described the present condition of society as one of vast unrest without definite direction, being quite fitly characterized by the expression: "We don't know where we're going; but we're on the way."

Until recently we had come to believe that growing intelligence would be a sufficient guide for civilization. But we find that science of itself has no power to direct men's energies. It merely serves any cause which is able to make use of it.

The constructive energies of mankind have made excellent use of science during the past century in giving us the railroad, the steamship, the electric telegraph and telephone, and the countless forms of useful activity we enjoy today, which were unknown and undreamed of in the days of our grandfathers.

But the destructive energies of mankind have made equally effective use of scientific discoveries, during the past few years, in producing the bomb-dropping Zeppelin, the torpedo shooting submarine, and the 42 meter 16 inch siege gun, capable of destroying at will all the accumulated products of art, industry, science and religion. Science merely multiplies mans power either for good or evil; it cannot direct the use of that power.

Facts force us to recognize that the problem of progress is a moral problem. The only power capable of directing human activity along lines of steady progress is the authority of the moral law. And the moral law has always required for it support the underlying power of a strong religious impulse in men's lives. Whenever religion has declined the moral law has lost its hold on people lives, civilization has decayed and the social order has become chaotic.

The real cause of the disorganized condition of affairs in our time, both at home and abroad, may readily be found in the simple fact that, while material progress has been emphasized in the highest degree, religion has been relegated to a very unimportant position in life—in fact has come to be regarded as having no vital significance except for emotional women, immature children and harmless but ineffective men. And what is most needed to-day, in order to re-establish our social equilibrium and insure future progress, is a more vital and positive religious faith among the men and women who are exercising an active influence upon the social, political, commercial and industrial life of the present time. To the deepening and maintaining of such a faith he invited the earnest and loyal devotion of the people of the First Parish at this beginning of a new era in its own history and in the history of the world.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

Rev. Fr. John J. Casey, senior curate of St. Johns parish was the celebrant of the high mass at St. Johns church on Sunday morning. He resumed parish duties last week after an absence of several months on account of illness.

Father Casey was stricken about midwinter and his ready response to treatment resulted in a speedy convalescence. The news of his return was joyously received by the members of the parish and his welcome was most cordial. Father Casey has been connected with St. Johns parish for many years and is one of the most popular clergymen the city ever had.

ST. MARYS.

The Dominican Fathers who conducted the mission for the women of St. Mary's parish last week, brought it to a close with impressive services in St. Mary's church on Sunday afternoon and in the evening officiated at the first service of the men's mission which will continue this week.

The closing of the women's mission was marked by at attendance which taxed the seating capacity of the church. The sermon was preached by Father Mackin and Father Wildenburg bestowed the papal blessing and celebrated the benediction. On Friday, Saturday and Sunday communion was administered to several thousand women.

The mission for the men opened with an attendance that also taxed the capacity of the church, and included men from other parishes in the city. During the week the evening services will be held at 7.30 and will consist of instruction by one of the visiting fathers, rosary and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The morning masses will be at 5.00 and 7.30 o'clock. The singing on Sunday evening was under the direction of Rev. Fr. Thomas R. McCoy, pastor.

The mission for the children of the parish was inaugurated this morning when practically every child in the parish attended the 7 o'clock mass. The mission will be given for them the first three days of the week and will close on Wednesday morning.

HALL PLACE M. E.

The work of the Y. M. C. A. was very ably presented at the Sunday morning service at the Hall Place M. E. church, when the Rev. G. B. Oxnam of Boston gave a splendid address in the interests of this great work. He spoke of the demands put upon the church of today and said that the church should line up with the forces in the community that make for righteousness, and that the Y. M. C. A. can help the Church to meet her problems. Mr. Oxnam was followed by Alexander Clarke of the board of directors who spoke of the coming campaign in Quincy.

Sunday School met at 11.30, and the attendance did not fall much below that of the previous Sunday which, was observed as "Rally Day," at which time fifteen pupils received pins for unbroken attendance for thirteen Sundays.

The Epworth League devotional service was led at 6 P. M., by Arthur Williams, who gave a real live and helpful talk on the subject, "A nation without a saloon: How and when." So absorbed in the subject did the members become that the service ran over its usual hour.

Rev. P. S. Neldon preached on the text "Follow me." John 1: 43. He told who Jesus was, His right to demand that we follow Him, what it meant to follow Jesus, why each one should follow Jesus and the results of following Jesus.

The regular business meeting of the Epworth League will be held in the vestry Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7.30 followed by choir rehearsal.

The teacher-training class will meet at the parsonage Friday evening at 7.30. The Bible Study class will meet at the parsonage Friday at 8.15.

November 1—8 will be observed as "Win-my-chum-week," by the Church. The Pastor will have charge of the services and will be assisted by other pastors and the gospel team of Boston University will conduct the services for the week-end.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

At the Sunday morning service at the Wollaston Baptist church the pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther, read the Scripture lesson from II Timothy 2nd chapter. Addresses were given by A. O. Booth State Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and J. A. Sedgwick of the board of directors of Quincy Y. M. C. A.

Following the morning service the Sunday School assembled in its various departments, the subject of the lesson, "In the Garden of Gethsemane" was a most interesting and helpful one. There were over 300 present, and twelve new members were added. We are always glad to welcome visitors of which there were several.

The Junior Endeavor meeting was in charge of Mrs. Joseph Walther; subject: "Showing that we love Christ." Mrs. Walther is doing a good work among the Juniors.

Y. P. S. C. E. union meeting, was held at the Wollaston Congregational church, subject—"A Saloonless Nation. Why not? How?" Hab. 2:1-14 Leader Rev. Isaiah W. Sneath, Ph. D.

At the evening service the pastor continued the subject of Sunday morning, Oct. 11—"Lessons from the life and boo kof Jeremiah." The chorus choir sang, morning and evening.

Monday evening at 7.45, the regular bi-monthly rally of the East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union will be held in the Washington street Congregational church, Quincy Point, all the young people of our church urged to be present.

Wednesday afternoon at 3 the Women's Foreign missionary society will meet with Mrs J. Arthur Sparrow, 380 Higland avenue. Subject, "The Islands of the Sea." Mrs. Philip S. Dresser will lead the meeting.

The pastor Rev. Joseph Walther, Frank Burgess and George Thomas are delegates to attend the ordination services of Isaac Higginbotham at the Baptist church, West Cottage street, Roxbury, Wednesday, Oct. 21.

Thursday evening at 7.45, a union prayer meeting of the Wollaston churches will be held in our chapel. Rev. Isaiah W. Sneath, Ph. D. will be the leader; subject, "Witnessing for Christ in Wollaston." A large attendance is desired.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL.

A large congregation greeted Frederick S. Morrison, secretary of the Boston Branch Navy Young Men's Christian Association at Charlestown Navy Yard who spoke as the representative of the Y. M. C. A. work, at the Wollaston Congregational church Sunday morning. In a very forcible manner he presented the value of a young man to our age and to the church. He also showed the new problems which the young man of today faces and the need of the churches to be earnestly engaged to help him. He made a profound impression. Roy Prout, a director of the Quincy Y. M. C. A., in a brief business-like manner presented the purpose of the Y. M. C. A. campaign this week.

At 6. P. M. a union young peoples service was held in the vestry, including the young people's societies of the Baptist, Methodist and Congregational churches. The topic was "A saloonless nation, Why Not?" Dr. Sneath was in charge of the meeting and there was a free and full discussion.

On Wednesday the Ladies Benevolent Society will hold an all-day meeting for sewing. Box luncheon at noon. All ladies welcome.

On Thursday evening there will be a union midweek service in the Baptist church. The topic will be "Witnessing for Christ in Wollaston" and Dr. Sneath will open the services.

On Friday evening the first sociable and supper of the season will be held in the vestry. The supper will be served at 6.30, and an entertainment will be given at 7.45. All who cannot attend the supper are invited to the social and entertainment.

A Home department in connection with the Sunday School has been organized and thus far 65 members have been enrolled. A beginners class has also been organized which meets at 10.45 P. M., the church-service hour. It is in charge of Miss Lucille Smalley and Mrs. C. W. Carlisle.

The Y. P. S. C. E. held a very pleasant business meeting and social with Miss Margaret Harding, 21 Winthrop avenue on Friday evening Oct. 16. On account of illness, Miss Marion Farwell felt obliged to resign as president and Eugene G. Smith was elected to the position.

Miss Madeline Morse, superintendent of the Intermediate department, having gone to Merideth, N. H., for a vacation, Mrs. R. F. Trumper took charge of the meeting Sunday Mrs. Trumper was State Junior Superintendent of Ohio for several years until she came to Massachusetts to live.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

At the Sunday morning service at the Wollaston Unitarian church, the pastor, Rev. Carl G. Horst preached on "Sowing and reaping" from the text "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the spirit shall of the spirit reap eternal life, Galatians 6, 7-8.

He said: There are three laws of the harvest in the material as well as the spiritual world. 1—Every man that soweth will also reap. 2—Whatsoever a man soweth, that will he also reap. 3—According to the quantity of seed sown will be the quantity reaped. Such is the plain teaching of the Scriptures. And all expectation of shifting off to another the consequences of our conduct, of receiving what we have not earned, of gaining the benefit of another's merits, of having our sins visited on an innocent brother, so as to enable the sinner to escape punishment, is utterly fallacious. We must work out our own salvation. The Bible does not teach "Jesus died and paid it all," but on the contrary teaches the great universal law that whatsoever a man soweth, that (and not something else) must be also reap. Jesus came to save us from sin. The gospels nowhere tell us that Jesus came to save us from the consequences of our sins. These we must suffer since it is the law of God that we must reap what we sow. Salvation through Christ does not mean that his blood in some mystical way washes away the consequences of our sins—it rather means salvation through the truth which Jesus taught and the character he embodied. If we live by the spirit, by the spirit let us also walk. And as many as shall walk by this rule, peace be upon them, and mercy, from God our Father." Amen.

The Scripture reading (and we recommend to every reader of this paper to look it up) was from the Book of Ezekiel, chapters 14 and 18, and Galatians, chapters 5-6.

There was a large attendance in the kindergarten as well as the Sunday school.

At the Young People's Religious Union meeting Rev. Carl G. Horst gave an address on the life and work of William Ellery Channing, one of the great Americans of the 19th century.

In enlarging the church edifice, the Wollaston Unitarian Society is taking an important step forward. With these larger accommodations we shall be able to serve this community as never before. This community church with its community house is for the benefit of the whole community. Our motto is:

"Here be no man a stranger;
No holy cause be banned;
No good for one be counted,
Not good for all the land."

The autumn meeting of the Unitarian Sunday school society will be held at the First Unitarian church, Manchester, N. H., Wednesday Oct. 21. The speakers are: President William I. Lawrence, Jay William Hudson, Ph. D., and Rev. Florence Buck.

The Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches meets in Channing church, Dorchester, Wednesday, Oct. 28, at 10 A. M. The speakers in the morning are Frederic May Eliot of Cambridge, Mrs. Joel H. Metcalf of Winchester and in the afternoon the Rev. Edward F. Hayward. Let our church be well represented.

The biennial General Conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches will be held in San Francisco, August 24, 27, 1915.

The Boston Sunday School Union meets in Arlington Street church, Wednesday, Oct. 21, at 6 o'clock. All teachers and others interested in Sunday school work are invited.

PARK AND DOWNS.

Rev. William B. Ayers gave an exceptionally fine sermon Sunday at the morning service. It was a review of the great religions of the world showing how they came and what needs they satisfy, and a review of what the Christian religion aims to do, and how it gathers up into itself and completes all other religions.

The speaker showed also the elements in other religions that tend to separate and isolate revealing the impossibility of uniting the race under any of them. In contrast to this Christianity offers itself to all classes and people, breaking down all strife, bending divisions and uniting them into one common humanity. There were many pithy illustrations to this cheering optimistic sermon which was listened to by a large audience of interested hearers.

In the evening the sixth lecture was delivered on the "Great lessons from the war."—Text John 10-2 "He that entereth in by the door is the shepard of the sheep." The speaker reviewed the splendid civilization of Germany. The condition of the people in Germany of different classes: their social and industrial life; their systems of education; their homes, cities and law; their art, science and literature. And then he pointed out that the true destiny of Germany was along the line of development in all of these things. He pointed out the splendid oportunity that awaited Germany in the world. He said that this opportunity was not to be found in military methods or in the conquest of land. Germany was born like Israel to be a world power in the realm of the spirit. Germany's great task was not to colonize or try to keep the nationality of her sons, but to educate them and then send them out and give them freely to all people as school masters and artisans, artists, musicians, physicians and thinkers.

If this alone was Germany's avowed ambition she could safely disband her navy and the civilized world would protect her. Then the speaker pointed out many valuable personal lessons illustrated by the foregoing and amplifying the teaching of Jesus' parable.

Some beautiful music was rendered by the organist and twelve members of the vested choir assisted by Arthur F. Capen soloist.

These deeply interesting, instructive and intellectual lectures are of exceeding great interest to the large number who weekly attend them.

ATLANTIC METHODIST.

The evening services were revival in nature. The solo selections by Rev. Noble is a pleasant feature of the meetings. The special meetings continue through the coming week. Services 7.30 and 8 P. M.

ATLANTIC MEMORIAL.

C. M. Chase, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Cambridge, spoke in the Atlantic Memorial church Sunday morning. Mr. Chase told of the work that the Y. M. C. A. was doing, not only in our eastern cities, but in the western mining camps and various other places where such work is so needed. W. F. Cummings, one of the directors of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. gave a talk on financing the work, and the importance of every one doing a little, whether they have boys or not, but for the sake of other people's boys.

For days and days after the partial destruction of the famous Rheims cathedral by German shells the bombardment of the French city continued. The Germans, however, spared the historic pile from further damage as far as possible. The picture shows some of the damage done to the great edifice. Berlin has explained the shelling of the church, which is one of the greatest in the world, by stating that French officers were stationed in the tower and signaled to their artillery. The cathedral was shelled to drive these soldiers out.

No Tip For Him.

Tipping is at least an ancient custom. In the eighteenth century an Italian visitor to England remarked that "it is polite to dine with the nobility, where you pay the servants for ten times as much as you eat." And an Irish peer replied to the Duke of Ormonde's invitation to dine: "If your grace will give me a guinea to pay your servants, I will. I am too poor, else!" An American actor who once took an English house for the summer had a schedule of the tips his servants expected printed for the guidance of his American friends and put them on the bedroom mantelpieces. He had taken a particular dislike to a very British side whiskered butler he had taken over with the house, and the list, after enumerating the sums to be paid to the chauffeur, the housemaid, and so on, finished with, "The guy with the black whiskers you will meet in the front hall—not a cent."—Argonaut.

Dodged.

Jones' little boy came home from school one day very boastful of the fact that he could spell dog, but when he was asked by his father to do so he hesitated.

"What kind of a dog?" he asked.

"Why, any kind of a dog," said Father Jones.

"A dog like Blank's dog?"

"Yes."

"Well, Blank ain't got any dog."—Woman's Home Companion.

Typhoid and Cocoanut Milk.

An English writer tells of a colored woman in Trinidad who was dying, beyond all hope, of typhoid, and pleaded to be allowed to drink of cocoanut juice. She was beyond the reach of good or harm, so she had her cocoanuts and drank the juice, not of one but of eight in succession—perhaps a gallon of liquid, and the orgie indisputably saved her life.

BUSINESS PROSPERITY

No Reason for Industrial Depression.

Prosperity is a happy state. It depends upon good credit, stable prices, employment of wage earners and a general confidence in the future.

Of late there seems to have been an unnecessary amount of business depression, due mostly to the lack of fairness of one class toward another, and to a little dishonesty or overreaching scattered through all the classes, but not in a majority of any of them.

In a country of our enormous natural wealth, we should have little to worry about. The United States, with its insular possessions and Alaska, is nearly as large as Europe. Our coasts are indented with excellent harbors and intersected by internal waterways, and we have, by far, the finest and cheapest cost railroad transportation in the whole world, making communication cheap and easy. We have tremendous water power and every variety of climate and soil. Magnificent forests cover a great area of our territory. Our land is liberally stocked with almost every variety of mineral wealth, and with our vast agricultural wealth we lead the world in a great many things.

When corporations are renovated and their ills aired by publicity, and when business men begin to feel a renewed confidence, and when political "cure alls," who have never made a success of their own affairs, quit offering "remedies" for all sorts of imaginary troubles; when we have full publicity in politics and in government; when business managers and employees treat each other fairly, the causes for apparent depression will disappear and real prosperity will return and stay with us.

Certain-teed Roll Roofing is guaranteed 5 years for 1-ply, 10 years for 2-ply and 15 years for 3-ply, and the written guarantee is backed by the assets of our big mills.

In addition to above we also make a complete line of other roofings, building papers, etc. Ask your dealer. He will be glad to give you further information about our goods and will quote you reasonable prices.

CHAMPIONSHIP GOES TO CLARA

Although the yachting season closed several weeks ago the championship winners in several classes have not been decided until the present time, simply on account of a number of protests. The final announcement is of interest to the Quincy Yacht club, especially to owners of class D boats. In this class the Clara of ex-Commodore Herbert W. Robbins, after several years trial, wins the championship of this class, and great credit is given the ex-commodore for sticking so faithfully to the game.

Eighteen races have been sailed by this class in the past season and the fight was exceedingly close between the Dartwell of ex-Commodore Whittemore and the Clara. The Dartwell lead practically all of the season, but the Clara won in the last contest by a close margin of 81.3 to 77.8. The final standing in this class is as follows:

	Starts	P.C.	Av.
Clara	18	1464.0	81.3
Dartwell	18	1400.7	77.8
Iris	17	887.9	52.2
Mudjekeewis	16	774.3	45.5
Grayling	16	663 9	41.4
Dolly III	10	558.6	39.9
Almira	7	243.9	17.4

In class I, the Dorchen II, another Quincy boat wins second position.

HONORS TO SOCCER PLAYER

Many Delegations at Funeral of Robert Carruthers

The funeral of Robert Carruthers, held on Sunday afternoon from his home on Beacon street, was one of largest ever seen in this city for a man outside of public life, and was an eloquent tribute to the deceased who was one of the best known soccer football players in New England.

"Bobby's" last two points were scored on Labor Day against the team representing the Argentine dreadnought Rivadavia, and two days later, while employed at the Fore River shipyard he fell 60 feet from the turret of the battleship Nevada, now under construction at the Fore River shipyard, and died as a result of injuries sustained.

The services at the home were conducted by Rev. Alexander Williams of Gloucester, and were largely attended by relatives and friends, and at their conclusion all formed for the march to Mt. Wollaston cemetery where interment took place.

The escort was headed by nearly 300 members of John Adams aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, with its uniform degree team, an organization with which he was affilliated the members of the Rivadavia football team, who wore the uniforms of the Argentine navy; associates and players on the Fore River soccer football team; representatives from the Boston and District Soccer league, and from the International Football Association; and delegations from the clan football teams of Greater Boston.

Participating in the procession were many relatives and friends, and as the long line wended its way to the cemetery the sight was most impressive. The grave was hidden by the floral remembrances received from all parts of the state. The deceased is survived by his wife.

STANDING IN SHIPYARD LEAGUE

Only six teams of the Fore River bowling league rolled last week, the holiday puncturing the schedule. The Electricians moved from seventh to fifth place, and the Machine Gallery retained its lead. Four easy points were garnered by the Gallery team through the non-appearance of their opponents. The standing:

	Won	Lost
Machine Gallery	19	1
Yard	13	3
U. S. Navy	11	5
D. Dept.	13	7
Electricians	11	9
N. Dept.	8	8
S. Dept.	8	8
Blacksmiths	7	13
Machine Floor	6	14
Mold Loft	5	15

QUINCY VS. MILTON.

The only game of the Quincy High school football team this week is at Milton on Friday when the annual contest will be played with Milton High school The town team is nowhere nearly as strong as in past years but the same can be said in a great measure of the local team. A continuance of the "pep" displayed in the Winthrop game last Friday afternoon means a victory. A good scrimmage program is mapped out for afternoon practice.

Massachusetts Congressman Declares United States Is Wholly Unprepared For War

IN LIEU OF SPEECHES

Presidential Letter Lauds Work of Democratic Administration

Washington, Oct. 19.—President Wilson made public a letter to Majority Leader Underwood of the house, in which he reviewed the achievements of his administration, outlined the program for the next session of congress, and declared "the Democratic party is now in fact the only instrument ready to the country's hand by which anything can be accomplished."

The president wrote the letter as an indorsement of all Democratic members of congress in lieu of speeches he said he would like to make in every congressional district.

An era of peace with foreign nations and prosperity at home was predicted for the American people by Underwood in a reply thanking President Wilson for his letter. Underwood said he and his colleagues felt that what they had accomplished was due largely to the president's magnificent leadership.

PHEASANT SLAUGHTER

May Result In Extermination of the Bird In Massachusetts

Boston, Oct. 19.—A cry of protest has been raised in Massachusetts by sportsmen and men in all walks of life to save the pheasant from wholesale slaughter throughout the state.

It is feared that this beautiful and useful bird, which was introduced into Massachusetts at great expense to combat insect life, will be completely killed off by hunters who call it sport to shoot them.

Prominent sportsmen are crying that such needless slaughter is a shame and a wanton waste of the state's money—that no real sportsman would shoot this bird, which is almost as domesticated as a hen.

For years these birds have been protected by the state, but this year the clamor of the hunters to be allowed to shoot them has resulted in permission being granted from Oct. 12 until Nov. 12, and the first day of the shooting saw 3000 of the birds killed.

ESTABLISHES NEW RECORD

Aviator Covers Four Hundred Miles In Sustained Flight

Chicago, Oct. 19.—W. C. Robinson captured the record for sustained flight across country. This was a flight from Des Moines which was intended to end in Chicago, but which really ended in Kentland, Ind., eighty-one miles southeast. He covered the journey in 4h. 26m.

The distance between Des Moines and Chicago is 360 miles, and as the aviator flew eighty-one miles southeast of the city, being deflected by a storm, it was estimated that he actually covered at least 400 miles.

The American record for continuous flight was 264 miles, made by C. M. Wood on Aug. 9, 1913.

WAR TAX BILL PASSED

Emergency Measure Turned Over to House For Consideration

Washington, Oct. 19.—After some rebellious senators had been overcome the senate passed the war revenue bill by a vote of 34 to 22, and the bill awaits action by the house.

Although the Democratic rebellion against the bill fizzled out, it was evident that the president's advisers were much worried over the rebellious attitude of the senators, and although the bill was passed it was the closest shave the administration has had in recent months.

SUNK IN FIGHT OFF HOLLAND

German Flotilla of Destroyers Smashed by British Ships

ATTACK ON HAWKE AVENGED

Casualties of Defenders of Slightest Character, While Invaders Lose Many Men—England Thinks Result of Engagement Foreshadows Ultimate Fate of German Fleet

London, Oct. 19.—The crew of the Hawke, against which a German submarine launched its bolt of death from beneath the waves of the North sea, has been quickly avenged, for a British cruiser and her accompanying flotilla of destroyers sunk four German destroyers off the estuary of the Ems river.

The cruiser was the Undaunted, commanded by Captain Fox, who was in command of the cruiser Amphion when she was sunk by a German mine on Aug. 6, and the United Kingdom is rejoicing that it was he who has more than evened the score.

With the Undaunted were the destroyers Lance, Lennox, Legion and Loyal. So far as is known only thirty-one Germans survive the action, and they are those whom the British rescued and have made prisoners of war.

The British casualties were only one officer and four men wounded. The cruiser and the destroyers were only slightly damaged.

There is a report, as yet unconfirmed officially, that a French warship in the Adriatic has smashed and sunk an Austrian destroyer. There have been other reports of destroyers smashed in the Adriatic, but there has been no official confirmation.

How many lives were lost when the Undaunted and the destroyers sunk the four German destroyers is not known. The larger type of German destroyer carries a crew of about eighty-five men, the older type being manned by about fifty-five men and officers.

With the autumn fogs which are now prevalent over the North sea, the activity of the destroyers on scout duty will probably be increased, and news such as came from the Undaunted may come often from the admiralty.

Six British cruisers and one torpedo boat, none of which had a place in England's line of battle, have been sunk in the North sea by the Germans, and one Russian cruiser has been sunk by a German submarine in the Baltic. The allies have sunk six German and one Austrian cruisers and seven German destroyers, and are reported to have sunk others in the Adriatic.

The engagement of the British and German vessels was marked by brilliant fighting. The Undaunted and her flotilla of destroyers were on patrol, off the coast of Holland. The German destroyers offered battle and when they engaged the men served their guns in fine fashion, but they were no match for the close shooting of the British vessels. In a few minutes the engagement was decided, and the British warships rode the North sea almost unscathed, while the enemy's vessels had gone to the bottom with almost all on board.

It is believed that the movement was not entirely in reprisal for the loss of the Hawke, but was also meant to put something of a check on the activities of the Germans engaged in cutting down the British fleet. The result of this engagement, all England believes, foreshadows the result of the battle when the German fleet emerges and engages with the British fleet on the open waters of the North sea, an action for which all England is praying.

The Undaunted is one of twenty built by the present admiralty board and is a sister ship of the Arethusa. The Arethusa was the leading ship in an attack on a German squadron in the Bight of Heligoland on Aug. 28, in which three German cruisers, the Mainz, the Coln and Ariadne, and two German destroyers were sunk.

Life Lost In Steamer Fire

Portland, Ore., Oct. 19.—Steamer Stanta Catalina, en route here from New York, took fire in the Columbia river and was beached with the loss of one life. The vessel was badly damaged.

Trawler Blown Up by Mine

London, Oct. 19.—The steam trawler Ajax, out of Grimsby, was blown up in the North sea by a German mine. Nine members of the crew lost their lives.

THE EASTERN STAR.

There are many fraternal societies in Quincy, but the one perhaps, of whose aims and objects little is known by the general public is that of the Order of the Eastern Star. The membership of this order is made up of women whose husbands, fathers or brothers or sons have been made Master Masons. Master Masons are also admited to membership. Today the order ranks second among the largest fraternal organizations of the world. Ten years ago its membership was less than 30,000. Today it is more than 700,000.

Although the Eastern Star is associated with Masonry it is not officially recognized as a Masonic body. In some states Masons are not admitted to membership, but in Massachusetts they are.

The purpose of the order may be said to be sociability and mutual helpfulness. Membership in the organization gives Masons and their families opportunity to become acquainted in a way that in ordinary circumstances would be impossible, especially for those residing in the larger cities. Usually meetings are held twice a month, and nearly always in the evening. In the case of a chapter whose members belong to the theatrical profession, however, afternoon meetings are found preferable.

Meetings are held in the hall belonging to the Masons and are conducted with the same seriousness of purpose as are the sessions of that order. The name "Star degree night" is applied to those meetings where new members are initiated. Such meetings do not come necessarily at set times, but it is left to the discretion of the matron to appoint them. A member has the privilege of wearing the emblem of the order.

The expenses of the order are paid by initiation fees and membership dues and by special affairs which bring in the element of sociability as well as adding to the organization's treasury. Socials and dancing parties, fairs and theatre parties are frequent. Each chapter, though under the rule of the grand chapter, has its own by-laws, and in the matter of raising funds, for instance, may follow its own inclination, as different methods are needed in different communities.

Besides raising money for running expenses the Order of the Eastern Star is active in adding to its funds for the purpose of helping members who need financial aid. The desire to make the organization prove a real friend in need to those who through circumstances get into some unexpected plight is one of the foundation planks which give the order its strength. Another source of strength is the fact that the names of members so helped are not passed around but are known as a rule only to the matron and those officers whom she must consult in making arrangements for giving this financial aid. This saves any feeling of embarrassment on the part of the members who need help, and makes them feel that the organization is not only a friend but also a kind and tactful friend.

Michigan was the first state to have a grand chapter. (This was organized about 50 years ago, but the order of Eastern Star is much older than that. One account states that there was such an order as early as 1793 in the United States. This disappeared early in the nineteenth century, and the present system was founded in 1868 by Robert Macoy on the basis of a ritual developed by Robert Morris, an eminent Masonic writer. Today Illinois has the largest number of chapters, and Massachusetts, whose grand chapter was founded 38 years ago, has 142.

WHAT $30 DID.

It provided a vacation of two weeks for a tired overworked mother and two children. After six years steady work with never a vacation she had two weeks in the country with nothing to do but eat, sleep, lie on the grass and gaze at the sky, while the children, safe and near at hand amused themselves playing. This vacation saved one mother from a nervous and physical breakdown and probably saved a home from being broken up.—From the Fresh Air Work as reported in the second annual report of the Associated Charities of Quincy, just published.

APPEAL FOR A STRONG NAVY

United States Must Depend Upon It For Race Purity

EUGENICS A PRIME FACTOR

Migration of Asiatics Means Danger to Our Country, According to Naval League of United States, Which Bases Statement on Effort Put Forth by Congressman Gardner

Washington, Oct. 19.—In a remarkable statement issued here, the executive committee of the Navy League of the United States, which numbers in its membership a great many well known men, comes out in favor of the construction of a strong fleet for the preservation of race purity and upholding the cause of eugenics. Colonel Robert M. Thompson is the chairman of the executive committee.

The statement is based on the effort that is being made by Representative Gardner of Massachusetts to increase the army and navy and put the military establishments in a better condition of preparedness. In indorsing the movement initiated by the Massachusetts congressman, the executive committee of the league remarks that "chaos and anarchy still prevail in Mexico and the United States army is pitifully small for a country of 100,000,000 people."

Mention is made also that there are 800,000,000 yellow and browns in Asia and that railway and steamship lines will encourage the Asiatic to migrate.

These things mean danger to the United States, according to the executive committee of the Navy League of the United States. The league is an unofficial body that has no connection with the United States government, which, if it takes cognizance of the league's statement, will repudiate it as improper and unwise. In backing up its argument that the American navy will have to fight for race purity and eugenics, the statement says:

"Hundreds of Hindus recently made a desperate effort to land in British Columbia and the Japanese and Chinese are steadily migrating to South America and the southern republics are considering the restriction of Oriental immigration.

"National defense not only includes the Monroe doctrine and the neutrality of the Panama canal, but also includes the question of race purity. The American policy of restricting Oriental immigration is justified not only on the economic ground of protecting the American standard of living, but by the law of eugenics that the mixture of diverse races always results in a degenerate, mongrel race.

"The Monroe doctrine is only as strong as the United States navy," and the day is dawning when "race purity will also depend on the United States navy," says the statement.

CARMAN TRIAL BEGINS

Society Woman Charged With Murder of Patient of Husband

Mineola, L. I., Oct. 19.—The rehearsal of an absorbing life drama of mystery-linked romance and tragedy begun here today before a jury audience of Long Island farmers and business men when Mrs. Florence C. Carman was placed on trial on the charge of having murdered Mrs. Louise D. Bailey, a patient of her husband, in his office on June 30 last.

There has been no case in New York jurisprudence, at least in the memory of this generation, where a woman of such position in society and of such personal charm has been on trial for her life.

The principal figures in the tragedy are as intensely interesting, personally, as are the strange circumstances with which they are connected in this famous murder case.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Upon receipt of expressions of regret from the Marconi Wireless company and the promise that their recent violation of neutrality will not occur again, Secretary Daniels directed that the radio station at Honolulu be allowed to remain open.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

Mystery is attached to the finding of the body of a man believed to be Edward Butcher, 70, of Patterson, N. Y., in an abandoned cellar in the woods near New Canaan, Conn.

Joseph Zaletz, 2½, died at Chelsea, Mass., from the effects of a fall from a piazza.

The body of a man who was found dying at the foot of a flight of stairs leading to a garage cellar at Lynn, Mass., was identified as that of James Ratican, 30.

Edward J. Hurley, 45, was instantly killed by a train at the North Attleboro, Mass., station.

An attempt was made to wreck an electric train near Berlin, Conn. No one was hurt.

APPEAL TO FRIENDS.

Martha Ellingson, the 16 year old girl of 18 Curtis street, who had her leg cut off and narrowly escaped being killed last June at the Quincy station railroad crossing, has now been discharged from the City Hospital and is at present with her aunt

Her pressing need at present is money for an artificial leg. Miss Ellingson had just began to work at a Boston concern to help her aunt keep the home together when the accident occurred, and the home was thus deprived of the much needed income.

In order to give her many sympathetic friends an opportunity to assist in this so worthy cause the Daily Ledger columns have been opened, and credit will be given from day to day to all suoscribers.

All Around the Mulberry Bush

Story of a Wife's Devotion.

By JOHN BARTON OXFORD

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

All the afternoon the thud of flatirons on the ironing board had gone on steadily.

Now, with the coming of dusk, they began to lag. In the overheated little kitchen, potently smelling of starch and clean linen, Mrs. Whalen paused at intervals more and more frequent to listen for the sound of familiar footsteps on the back steps.

At last they came—dragging, tired footsteps, pausing at the rubber mat on the top step to wipe the mud from the big boots before they should enter that spotless domain.

Mrs. Whalen whisked her iron back to the stove and sped to the back door to throw it open.

"Wheriver have ye been all this long, dearie?" she gently chided the gray haired, bent figure on the doormat. "I was beginnin' to feel a wee bit worried about ye."

The pallor of his pinched face made his eyes seem unusually large. His clothes hung loosely and baggily on his shrunken frame.

"Now we'll have supper," she announced. "A bit of tay'll be puttin' the heart into ye. I've made ye the iligant mutton broth this afternoon too."

"Ye've been ironin' the livelong day," said Whalen at length. "I take shame to myself to think av yer doin' it, Nora."

"'Tis no wor-rk for me at all; I love it," she declared briskly, but Whalen noticed how tired her eyes looked and how thin the gray hair was getting at her temples. A spoonful of the mutton broth he was swallowing at the moment seemed to choke him.

"Ye'd say that annyway," he averred, looking at her with admiration.

"There's foine money in doin' this fancy stuff," she declared. "Tin dollars a week we can be countin' on now!"

The little clock on the mantel was striking 9 when from the bedroom she heard sleepy, half audible mumblings.

She put down her iron and tiptoed to the threshold. Whalen was tossing restlessly on the bed.

"Foind me anny kind av wor-rk, Brady—anny kind," Mrs. Whalen heard his uneasy mutterings. "Sure, I'm strong enough for wor-rk now. I can't see her workin' like she does to kape us goin'. She's too old for it, Brady. Foind me somethin' to do. Yep, I'll take tin dollars a week to start in on, if I have to."

"So!" she breathed softly to herself. "That's why he's so tired iviry night, hey? 'Tis no sittin' on a par-rk bench that does it. 'Tis lookin' for a job already he is and himself not half over the sickness yet."

She sat for a long time staring thoughtfully at the distorted reflections in the polished nickel of the stove.

At last she arose, smiling and nodding to herself as she whisked another skirt from the basket beneath the board and, with a hot iron, began to smooth out its many flounces.

There were several bundles of laundry to be delivered the next afternoon. No sooner had Whalen poked abroad, ostensibly for his brief walk to the park, than Mrs. Whalen donned her rusty best clothes and fared forth herself.

The little suburban town was mellow with the warmth of early summer. Mrs. Whalen delivered her bundles and then turned her eager steps to one of the town's more pretentious streets. Here each house had its trim bit of lawn, a few shade trees and not infrequently a hopeful little garden.

Up to one of the smaller houses Mrs. Whalen made her way and whirred the bell.

"Would I be findin' Mr. Evans at home?" she inquired of the trim maid who answered her summons.

Mr. Evans was home, and Mrs. Whalen was ushered into a dim library, where a pleasant faced man was poring over a pile of papers.

"Why, it's Nora Whalen," said he, rising to get her a chair. "You want the money for the past few washings, of course?"

Mrs. Whalen shook her head. She began pulling at the fingers of her black cotton gloves.

"Ye—ye couldn't be usin' a man about the place, could ye, Mr. Evans," she asked diffidently, "sort of a gardener, say, or the likes av that?"

"A gardener—me?" Evans inquired, with a slow shake of his head. "Why, that little patch of lawn isn't enough to keep me in trim, Nora. A gardener?"

Mrs. Whalen pulled more nervously at the glove fingers.

"'Twill cost ye nothin' at all," said she.

Evans looked puzzled.

"'Tis like this," she hastened to explain: "Ye know the sickness Mike has had and the bad shape it's wint and left him in. Well, I'm doin' foine wit' the washin' and keepin' things goin' first rate. But Mike do be worrited to death all the time about the way I have to wor-rk. I've found out he's been tryin' iviry day to get him a job instead av pokin' out to the par-rk to set on a bench, like he tells me he does—like that ain't the stren'th av a fly back in him yet. And I'm afraid he'll get a job somewhere, wan that'll lay him out again be the wor-rk in it.

"If he had aisy wor-rk, now, somethin' that wouldn't hurt him none, but would take up his mind and let him think he was earnin' the money that's keepin' us goin', 'twould not be bad at all, I'm thinkin'. So I thought maybe you'd take Mike on as a sort of a gardener here and see he didn't do too much. And if ye would and pay him tin dollars for it I'd sind ye the tin iviry Saturday mornin', so yer could be payin' it to him Saturday night."

"I see," said he. "Why, yes; I think I could afford a gardener under those conditions."

* * * * * * *

"There's a letter for ye the postman just brought, dearie," said Mrs. Whalen that night as Mike came shuffling in somewhat later than usual. "Who's it from?" she asked when her husband had torn it open and read the brief missive.

"Just a bit of an advertisement that don't amount to annything at all," said he.

"He's afraid I won't l'ave him take the job," thought Mrs. Whalen, noting him closely.

Whalen was early away from the house next morning—indeed, quite early enough to stop on his way to his new job at the Cobb place and catch Charlie Cobb before he should leave for town.

"Well, well, Mike," said Cobb as he met Whalen coming up the walk, "what brings you round here at this time of day?"

Whalen caught the other man by the arm in his eagerness.

"Would ye be doin' me a favor, Mr. Cobb?" said he.

"You know anything I can do for you, Mike"—

"Would ye moind, now," Whalen went on, "takin', say, a few av yer clothes over to Nora for her to press and mend? 'Twill cost ye nothin'," he hurried on, catching the perplexity and doubt in jovial Charlie Cobb's eyes. "Not many, moind ye, just a few. And I want ye to tell her ye'll be payin' her tin dollars a week to look after the clothes av ye for awhile.

"Ye see, I've just got the foine, aisy job weedin' a few pansy beds and the loike that's to pay me that much, but Nora did she know av it would put her fut down and say I wa'n't yet well enough to do the wor-rk. She'd say she'd kape on wit' the washin' she's doin', which same, God knows, is cruel har-rd for a woman av her age. But she can't know I'm workin', or she'll be unhappy and worrited to death. So I'll slip ye a tin each Saturday, and when Nora brings back the mended clothes av ye ye can slip it to her, and 'twill be aisy for her and she none the wiser where it comes from. See?"

And so, after going into details somewhat more minutely, it was arranged that Cobb should furnish Mrs. Whalen an easier job than the washing she had heretofore been doing.

* * * * * * *

Now, on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock Charlie Cobb came into the Evans yard and made for Mike Whalen, who, seated comfortably on a low stool, was holding the nozzle of a sizzling hose with which he watered the lawn.

"Mrs. Whalen's just brought back the suit I sent over to her this week," said Cobb. "She's waiting over at the house for her money, although I've had hard work to convince her the work is going to be worth $10 a week. So, if you'll just slip me the ten, Mike, I'll pass it over to her."

"The boss ain't handed me me pay yet," said Whalen. "She's waitin', yer say? Well, I'll run up to the house and"—

"Oh, never mind," said Cobb. "I'm going to have a word with Evans, anyway, before I go back. I'll just tell him to pass your wages over to me."

"Sure!" said Mike and went on comfortably with his sprinkling.

Evans looked up quickly in the library a few minutes later at Charlie Cobb's request.

"Come again, please," said he.

"I say I just saw Mike out here, and he says for you to pass the week's wages that are due him over to me. You see, it's like this"—

Whereupon he explained the deal into which he had entered with Mike Whalen.

"Wait!" said Evans, holding up a hand before Cobb was fairly through. "Now listen to me!"

And he told of his little business arrangement with Mrs. Whalen.

Charlie Cobb began to laugh delightedly, but in the midst of it he stopped short. His face became grave.

"It's a fine circle to chase around, isn't it?" he mused. "But I'm hanged if I'm not going to find a beginning and an end to this particular circle. Why, if you'd see that old codger hatching up that scheme with me so that Nora wouldn't have to wash any more and at the same time not be worried to death about him"—

"Or if you'd seen Nora planning it out so he would think he was earning the money," Evans interrupted.

"I'm hanged if it isn't worth $10 a week to have my clothes looked after!" said Cobb vehemently, bringing down a doubled fist on the corner of the library table.

"Oh, no, it isn't," Evans demurred. "Never in the world, Charlie! But, I'll tell you what, maybe it's worth $5 to you and $5 to me to have Mike look after the lawn. I always did hate watering it and weeding the pansy beds. But we can't be bothered chasing around the mulberry bush with that $10 each week. Suppose you trot back and bring Mrs. Whalen over here in your car, and then maybe all together we can straighten this thing out satisfactorily."

IN BOSTON'S HALL OF FAME

Another former resident of Quincy appears in Boston's hall of fame published by the Globe. There were many Josiah Quincys, but Josiah Quincy Jr., the subject of this sketch was born in Boston, February 23, 1744 and died at sea, April 26, 1775.

The American ancestor of Josiah Quincy, Jr., was the Edmund Quincy, who was one of the assessors appointed to fix a tax upon William Blackstone and purchase his right and title to the peninsula of Shawmut, that is now the city of Boston.

At the time of Josiah's birth his father was a wealthy merchant of Boston, but in 1756 he retired from active business and went to live on his portion of the family estate at Braintree, in that section now known as Quincy. The son was fitted for Harvard at a private school under Joseph Marsh, an eminent instructor, and he graduated in the college class of 1763, and made law his profession.

Although the Stamp Act had been repealed in 1766, there was general dissatisfaction with the restrictions on American commerce and the oppressive measures to augment the revenue by customs duties. Then came what was called the Boston Massacre of 1770, and it was with consternation that the public learned that Quincy was to act as counsel for Capt. Preston and the soldiers who fired upon the citizens in King street, killing five persons.

His father wrote him a letter of reproach, and told him he had hoped to find him one of the patriots to save the country, and that his heart was full of distress at seeing this action. The son replied with dignity, stating that he felt it a duty to act as he had, and that he had been advised to this course by John Adams. The trial lasted six days and Capt. Preston was acquited.

In 1774 Quincy went over to England to make a careful study of political conditions and to seek through personal investigations for some common ground upon which there could be built a satisfactory foundation for liberty in the colonies.

His health had been failing when he sailed from Salem, and he had neglected himself in his zealous work for his country. In spite of the advice of his physicians and friends to rest for a month or two somewhere near Bristol, Mr. Quincy sailed on March 4, 1775. The voyage lasted more than five weeks, and during that period the battle of Lexington was fought and the struggle for independence began.

But Josiah Quincy did not live to hear of this, for he died three days before the ship arrived in port. His body was brought to Gloucester and buried, and later it was removed to the family burial place at Braintree, in the section that is now Quincy. The inscription on his monument was written by John Quincy Adams.

WALKER—ROGERS.

Saturday evening, Oct. 17, a quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, when Miss Grace H. Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Rogers of Braintree became the bride of John S. Walker. The ceremony took place in the presence of the immediate families, the Rev. Harry A. Grimes officiating. The couple are to reside at 48 West street, Braintree.

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

The annual meeting of the Associated Charities of Quincy will be held in the rooms 148 Goffe street, Tuesday at 5 P. M. All members are cordially invited, and it is earnestly desired that as large an attendance as possible may be present. The election of officers and directors for the coming year will be held at that time.

WHAT IS OLD AGE?

Some Younger at 65 Than Others Art at 40 Years.

Old age is not marked by years, but by the stiffened frame, the hardened tissues and arteries.

So many people whom you meet about the time they reach 40 begin by saying "I can't do this, and I can't do that, because I'm getting old now," they begin to act old, feel old and they are older in appearance than many who are much more advanced in years.

When you begin to feel old, when your energy begins to fail build yourself up with our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol. It is a wonderful blood-maker and strengthener.

H. C. Klyce of Corinth, Miss., says: "I am 75 years old and my blood was very poor. I was in a rundown condition and felt that I must have a tonic. Vinol was recommended and it built up my strength until I felt as strong and well as ever."

Thousands of old people have found in Vinol just the medicine they need to build up the feeble, weakened system and create strength. If it fails, we return your money. Edward J. Murphy, Druggist, Quincy, Mass.

ONE WAY TO WRITE HISTORY.

A Talk With Adam About Discreet Young Methuselah.

I have a book published in the early didactic period of the nineteenth century which illustrates a certain way of imparting historical information. It was written with the laudable intention of making history interesting to people who didn't want to venture into the unfamiliar. The author thought that if the patriarchs were conceived of as New England selectmen their lives could be made as interesting as if they were New England selectmen.

And I am not sure but that he succeeded. The book is divided into two parts, a conversation with Adam covering the space of 930 years and an interview with Noah giving an account of the deluge and the other events with which he was familiar. They are represented as nice old gentlemen rather formal in their language and strictly orthodox in their opinions. Adam speaks hopefully of Methuselah, who, he says, "must be now about fifty-seven years old and is a discreet and well principled youth." He was very much disturbed over the radical views of the Tubal-Cains.

There is nothing in the book that would indicate that either Adam or Noah had been out of Connecticut.—S. M. Crothers in Atlantic Monthly.

ELECTRICITY IN RAIN.

The Drops of Moisture, as a Rule, Contain Positive Charges.

Rain drops are almost always charged with electricity. The charge is often positive, rarely negative. Many observers have measured the charge approximately and made it from 0.000,000,000,000,000.01 to 0.000,000,000,000,001 amperes per square centimeter. Professor F. Herath of Kiel describes in the Revue Electrique the experiments by which he has measured them.

He received the rain on a fine metallic cloth twenty-five meters square, insulated and attached to a galvanometer in a cellar. The galvanometer registered photographically. Among the facts he proves are these:

Rains with a constantly positive charge are much more frequent than those that change to a negative. The passage from a positive to a negative charge corresponds to a momentary cessation of the shower. The quantity of positive electricity brought by the rain is fifteen times greater than that of the negative. The positive currents in a steady rainfall are about 0.000,000,000,000,000,1 amperes per square centimeter. The negative currents never exceed 0.000,000,000,000,001 amperes per square centimeter.

Sympathy With Sufferers.

Probably nothing is more stimulating and genuinely tonic to sufferers, especially those with chronic ailments, than the feeling that in spite of their own helplessness they themselves can still be helpful to others. The Shut-in society in this country has made life more bearable for many persons who are confined to their rooms or their houses. Nothing disturbs a certain class of patients so much as to be constantly in contact with those who are in good health and strength and whom they can scarcely help but envy. To be brought into touch with those for whom they themselves can feel is a precious source of consolation and uplift. Pity is a luxury to be enjoyed, but no human being likes to be pitied or to feel that he is an object of pity. To be conscious of some advantage in one's situation over that of others is of itself an alleviation for many sicknesses.—Journal American Medical Association.

An Ornithological Curiosity.

Jane Ann had called on her afternoon out to see her friend Matilda. The latter's mistress had just purchased a parrot, and Jane Ann was much interested in the bird. "Birds is very sensible," she said; "you kin learn them anything. I used to work for a lady that had a bird in a clock, an' when it was time to tell de time of day it used to come out an' say 'Cuckoo' jest as many times as the time was!" "Go 'long! You don't say so!" said Matilda incredulously. "Yes!" replied Jane Ann. "And the most wonderful part was that it was only a wooden bird too!"—London Globe.

A Unique Symbol of Freedom.

A curious custom is observed in the village of Great Bookman, Surrey, England. When the wife of a tradesman goes off for the usual summer holiday to the seaside one or two expert climbers ascend at midnight to the roof of the house and insert old brooms in the chimneys as a sign that the head of the house has the supervision of the domestic arrangements in addition to his ordinary work.

Her Lack of Tact.

"Miss Soulsby has not a particle of tact."

"What has she done now?"

"The other evening when Mr. Jaggles, who is notorious for not paying his debts, asked her to sing she went to the piano and sang 'Trust Him Not!'"—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Source of His Talent.

"That big financier boasts that he can take every man's measure."

"That's because he began life as a tailor's assistant."—Baltimore American.

ACCEPTS QUINCY INVITATION

When the 800 delegates and visitors to the fifth annual convention of the Massachusetts branch of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations, including several from Quincy, met in the ballroom of the Bancroft hotel at Worcester last week it was to learn that the association has doubled its membership in the last year. It now has a membership of 7000 persons and over 150 local organizations. It takes rank as the second largest state branch in the United States.

The convention is attended by women from all over Massachusetts and from other parts of New England, while speakers have come from as far as California.

Mrs. Walter Leroy Smith of Malden, state organizer told of having visited 32 towns and cities in the state in the last year. Her aim is to establish an association in every public school in the state, no matter how isolated the school may be, or how small the attendance. She aims also to form also a parents' department in every church. Mrs. Smith emphasizes the importance of religious training for the child.

Several men and women from various parts of the country addressed the convention which closed its three days session on Saturday after accepted the invitation of Supt. Albert L. Barbour of the Quincy schools to hold its next convention in Quincy.

QUINCY PIANOFORTE SCHOOL
Greenleaf Block, 1419 Hancock St., Quincy

ADVANTAGES:

1.—Better instruction and better prices cannot be obtained in Quincy.
2.—Our system is thorough and modern; our instructors are capable, experienced and up-to-date.
3.—Our pupils have the privilege of appearing in public three times a season; and know how to conduct themselves correctly and gracefully on the concert stage.
4.—Our 1st. and 2nd. year General Class lessons are worth as much as the regular piano lessons, but this year we include these lessons with the price of the piano lessons alone.
5.—The director, Mr. Hackelton, is a graduate of the N. E. Conservatory of Music, finished abroad and a leading teacher in Boston for ten years.
6.—We award certificates to pupils finishing our courses.
7.—We are presenting a limited number of music rolls to our pupils as a souvenir of our opening.
Information regarding terms, teachers, system etc., will be cheerfully given at the School, or a circular sent on request.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

A regular meetings of the City Council will be held tonight, and from appearances the meeting will be a short one. It is understood that the Finance committee, who have been considering the question of a school site in Ward Two, are not ready to report.

Mrs. Herman L. Keene of Francis court returns today from a week-end visit to friends in New York city.

Street oiling cars and street watering carts have been put in their winter quarters, as the Lord has taken a hand in laying the dust of the street, furnishing a copious rain. It was much more effective that dozens of watering carts would have been.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fallon of Glendale road are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son.

The many friends of Marjorie Welch are sorry to learn she is in the Quincy Hospital having undergone an operation on Friday.

Steps have been taken to consolidate the two yacht racing associations in Massachusetts, that is the Y. R. M. A. and the Interclub Y. R. A. Committees have been appointed from each association to meet and formulate plans for the consolidation.

The recent rains have been welcomed by the firemen who have responded to many calls during the dry spell to extinguish grass and wood fires, that were threatening buildings.

The Daily Ledger in its editorial column today protests against a gross slander of the city of Quincy.

All churches should appoint press correspondents and be represented on the church page of the Daily Ledger every Monday.

Music lovers will be glad of the opportunity to hear the Orpheus male quartette who are to appear in a concert at Alpha hall, Oct. 20. Mr Wharton, the manager and basso of the quartette, is one of the well known officials at the Granite Trust Co., and for several years sang in Trinity and other Boston churches, and is now soloist at the First Baptist church, Brockton.

BATTLESHIP CONTRACTS.

The government has awarded the contracts for two of the three battle ships for which bids were recently opened. One went to the Newport News Co. for $7,115,000; and the other to the New York Shipbuilding Co. for $7,250,000.

The Milton academy football team went to Groton Saturday and played a scoreless tie game with the Groton school. Milton used 16 men and Groton 21.

QUINCY POINT

A man who from an address found on papers in his clothing is suposed to be Frank J. Condon of Quincy, committed suicide in his room at a Portland, Me., boarding house Sunday, morning by slashing his throat with a razor. The man had been dead several hours before the door of his room was opened. In his clothing was a pawn ticket issued in Boston last summer in the name of Frank J. Condon, in which the address was given as 632 Washington street, Quincy, and from other papers it is believed that he was in the navy at one time. Inquiry at 632 Washington street, brought out the fact that Condon had been employed as a machinist at the Fore River yard, but that he left Quincy July 29, and no word had been received from him since that time. People at the boarding house said that he had a married sister living at 64 Seaver street, Worcester.

Rev. Carl Stackman of the First Congregational church, Somerville, will be the speaker this evening at the meeting of the East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union at the Quincy Point church.. Members are expected from the Quincy, Wollaston, Milton and Braintree societies.

The funeral of Robert Carruthers and the farewell party to Mrs. Archie Campbell are reported at length in todays paper.

The oil burning submarine tender Fulton steamed from the Fore River shipyard today for the Charlestown Navy Yard where she will be dry docked and made ready for her trials which may take place in Boston harbor the latter part of the month. The contract calls for a speed of 10 knots an hour.

FAREWELL TO MRS. CAMPBELL

Mrs. Mary Campbell of 242 Hayward street, East Braintree, who sails for Scotland this week to spend several months re-visiting old scenes and renewing acquaintances, was tendered a farewell party on Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Agnes Richards at 493 Quincy avenue, Newcomb Square. Two dozen friends attended the party and participated in the program of the evening.

Mrs. Campbell was given a tango leather bag, the presentation speech being made by James Lyons. Among the speakers of the evening was William MacGregor, the crack soccer player of the Fore River team.

A graphophone concert was given by James Mortimus, and violin solos were rendered by Archie Campbell, husband of Mrs. Campbell. Mr. Campbell, who will also accompany his wife, came in for his share of the farewell.

At the conclusion of the program a bountiful supper was served, after which came the partings. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell have lived in East Braintree the past three years and are very popular among the Scottish residents of this city.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. James Mortimus, Mr. and Mrs. William MacGregor, Mr. and Mrs. H. McLeod, Mr. and Mrs. James McCarthy, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lyons, Miss Catherine Doyle, Miss Jessie Gaston, Robert and John Muir, John MacTaggart, Bernard O'Donnell and John O'Donnell, J. Neil, David Meldrum, Peter Quinn, Gilbert Wilson, J. McLean, J. Thompson of Quincy and Mrs. R. McSwan of Pawtucket, R. I.

QUINCY WEST

A mysterious fire on the staircase leading to the second floor of the building at Cross and Copeland streets was discovered Sunday morning and extinguished by the fire department before much damage was done. The lower floor of the building is used for mercantile purposes by Philip T. McGrath and the family of James Gilcoine makes its home on the second floor. The fire had gained but little headway when discovered an and alarm was promptly sent in from box 46. Edmund G. Hayden, a call fireman, who went to the fire in his auto nearly met with a mishap. Hayden, with a ten year old boy as a passenger, had passed the fire at good speed when boys shouted to him. He applied his brakes so quickly that the rear end of his machine swung around and the auto bounded forward at right angles onto the sidewalk. Both escaped injury but one of the wheels of the machine was slightly damaged.

The funeral of Margaret, widow of Luther C. Farnham, a native of West Quincy, and a life long resident of that section of the city, was held from her home on Sunday afternoon and was largely attended. Rev. Frederick H. Steenstra of St. Chrysostom Episcopal church officiated at the services at her home at 14 Bryant avenue. Burial was in the Hall cemetery, West Quincy. Mrs. Farnham was born on Adams street, in what was then known as the "Short House," about 80 years ago. She was a prominent and respected resident of the ward. Two sons survive her, Albert and George Farnham.

The "Queen Esther Circle" which met at the home of Miss Bessie Nicholls for its second meeting has decided, to hold two meetings each month until Christmas in order to get the sewing done which it has planned for its Christmas gift.

The Ladies Aid Society will serve another of its tempting suppers in the vestry of the Hall Place M. E. church, Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock .

A skyrocketting axe nearly severed the big toe on the left foot of John Ferretter of Grove street on Saturday, and may result in its amputation. The accident, one of the most peculiar on record, occurred in the Blue Hills reservation, where he is employed. Ferritter's mishap was due to the trunk of a falling tree striking the end of the handle of an axe which lay on the ground. The impact drove the axe high into the air. Its sharp edge in falling struck Ferritter's left foot, cut through the shoe and partly severed the big toe. Medical assistance was summoned and he was removed to his home.

TO SCRUTINIZE THEIR RECORDS

After four preliminary meetings of citizens representing different wards of this city, a permanent organization to be known as Quincy District Committee of Legislation has been formed. The main purpose of the organization is an examination and study of the official conduct of our senatorial, representative and municipal officers.

Sub-committees will scrutinize all public acts and report to the organization at its regular monthly meetings throughout the year. Thus securing with the aid of Legislative Journals an accurate and important knowledge of governmental affairs, which will be made public from time to time.

At present the organization is examining the conduct of our Senator and Representative in the last session of the General Court, the same to be made public before election day. The secretary has been instructed to cause certain questions to be formally submitted to each of the candidates for the Senate and House. A campaign committee will at once secure permits to hold upon air meetings in every ward in the city.

QUINCY ATLANTIC

The Tead Club of the Memorial church Sunday school gave a masquerade in the church vestry on Saturday evening. During the first part of the evening, a play, entitled "Gone Abroad," was presented by several young ladies of the Quincy Young Women's Club. The cast of characters was as follows:

Mrs. Nearly Gonn, a society lady, Lydia Djerf
Hope, a niece, Harriet Waterhouse
Faith, a niece Ruth Farmer
Mrs. I. P. Kinn, a bosom friend.

The girls showed the fine training given by the coaches of the Quincy Young Women's Club, and Miss Ruth Dahl, one of their special coaches.

During the rest of the evening games were enjoyed, and refreshments served by the social committee, Miss Harriet Waterhouse, Miss Ruth Buckley, and Miss Agnes Kenniburgh.

The girls, in costume were: Miss Ruth Buckley, Irish lassie, Miss Phyllis Smith, tennis boy, Miss Clara Von Emden, Indian, Miss Helen Damon, Topsy, Miss Harriet Waterhouse, Farmer, Miss Marion Letteney, Topsy, Miss Jordine Davison, Rose, Miss Mildred Bean, Kid, Miss Collina Brown, Scotch girl, Miss Pheobe Buckley, Indian, Miss Agnes Kenniburgh, Red Riding Hood, Miss Emily Gnong, Kid, and Miss E. S. Tead was the guest.

Carl H. Allard of 156 Eliot street, this city and Edith Rosalie Axberg of 34 Tyler street, also of this city were married in Boston on Saturday and will make their home in Quincy. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. O. Backlund.

C. W. Whitney of Atlantic street is on a business trip through New Hampshire and New Jersey.

The men of Atlantic who are interested in candidacy of Chester Campbell, are planning several house parties in his interest for this week. Among the non-political men, Mr. Campbell is very popular in Atlantic.

MILTON HIGH HAS A FORUM

Members of the First Baptist church are planning to hold a series of cottage prayer meetings during this fall and winter. The first one will be held Tuesday evening of this week at the home of Mrs. Thomas on Grafton avenue.

Milton High School football team was unable to play the game scheduled for Saturday on account of the rain.

The regular meeting of the Forum, the debating society of the High school was held Friday afternoon. Lawrence Curtis, Wilfred Johnstone and Nicholas Appolonio each gave a short talk on what they thought about the elective system in the High school. At the meeting Oct. 29, eight members of the society will give brief addresses on various subjects, Byron Bentley and Landstrom will take up the subject of a "Merchant Marine for our country;" Kenneth D. Johnson and Nicholas Appolonio will give brief reports on the Mexican situation; Lawrence Curtis and Wilfred Johnstone will summarize the present European war from its beginning up to the present time; Palmer Holmes and Milton Griffin will explain the immigration question in our country.

Many people in the East Milton section of the town are admiring the home-made automobile in the window of Walter K. Pendis' hardware store. The "auto" is made entirely out of articles sold in the store and besides being an attractive window display it is quite a work of art.

Work is rapidly progressing on the dwelling being built by Dattman Bros. of Quincy on Washington street for Mr. Wiley of Dorchester, formerly a resident of this town.

The Ladies Aid Society of the East Congregational church held a very successful social Friday evening, Oct. 16, in the church vestry. The social was open to every one and there was a large attendance. It was intended for a reception to Mr. and Mrs. Austin Greene, formerly of this town, but Mrs. Greene met with an accident so they were unable to attend. Piano selections were given by Miss Marion Hathaway, and an enjoyable evening was spent by all present. Ice cream, cake, candy, salted peanuts, and coffee were served by Mrs. Jesse B. Baxter, Mrs. Benjamin Fuller, Mrs. C. Crawford Hollidge, Mrs. A. A. Brackett, Mrs. W. T. Shapleigh, Mrs. Ira M. Hill and Mrs. Marshall A. Abbot. The committee in charge included Mrs. W. A. Baxter, Mrs. Ira M. Hill, Mrs. Enderley, Mrs. W. T. Shapleigh, Mrs. A. A. Brackett, and Mrs. Benjamin Fuller

The Wollaston Y. P. R. U. will hold a Hallowe'en dance in Alpha hall, next week. All members of the parish are invited.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid Alliance will be held in the Wollaston Unitarian vestry Wednesday, at 2.30 o'clock. "The National Red Cross Society" will be the subject. The program, being provided by the members of the Alliance, is as follows: Florence Nightingale—The English Pioneer Nurse, Mrs. Charles E. Sweet; Poem—"Santa Filomena"—"The Lady of the Lamp," Mrs. Oscar L. Baker; Clara Barton—Red Cross Heroine, Mrs. Charles S. Adams; The Red Cross today, Mrs. Malcolm D. Miller: Patriotic music. Tea will be served. All women are invited.

The Quincy Mansion school has issued invitations to the alumnae of the school and their children, to spend next Monday at the school.

CHARGED WITH SEVERAL BREAKS

Capt. Daniel R. McKay, Inspector A. W. Goodhue and Officers Malone and Corbett visited a boarding house on Nightingale avenue, early Sunday and arrested William O'Neil whom they charged with breaking and entering the store of Joyce Bros., on Granite street, March 20, 1913, and the larceny therefrom of clothing to the value of $235.

The police say that O'Neil is a native of Roxbury and that following the breaks at Joyce Bros., Remicks and Payson-Mitchell stores, he disappeared and that he but recently returned to Quincy. When arrested O'Neil denied his guilt and refused to talk about the case. He has retained counsel.

O'Neil was arraigned in court this morning and entered a plea of not guilty. The case was continued until Oct. 31. The police informed the court this morning that application had also been made for a warrant against O'Neil for one of the other breaks. Upon that statement the court placed the bonds at $1,000.

QUINCY SOUTH

Vittoria Emmanuel Umberto Giarusso, one of the Italian labor leaders of this city, and Seraphino Maria Anglica Fortucci of 166 Water street, a popular South Quincy young lady, were married at Boston on Saturday afternoon. Guiseppi Fortucci, brother of the bride was the best man and Maria DiBona, a relatives, was bridesmaid. Donato DiBona, father of the bridesmaid, gave the bride away. A wedding reception was held at the home of the groom at 189 Liberty street on Sunday which was attended by about 500 of the Italian residents of the city. The festivities commenced early in the morning and continued until late at night. Mr. and Mrs. Giarusso will make their home in this city.

Andrew Manganaro of Boston and Norma M. Bizzozero of 143 Liberty street, South Quincy, were married in Boston Oct. 13. The ceremony was performed by Lewis Pannini, justice of the peace. They will make their home in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan MacMillian of Barre, Vt., is visiting friends in South Quincy.

GIVE US GOOD MEN.

Just about this time when the citizens are casting their eyes about for efficient municipal officials, says the People's Forum, the following verses by J. G. Holland are well worth reading.

"Give us men. The time demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and willing hands;
Men whom the lust of office does kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagog
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men sun-crowned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking;
For while the rabble with their thumb worn creeds,
Their large professions and their little deeds
Mingle in selfish strife; lo! Freedom weeps!
Wrong rules the land and waiting justice sleeps."

CITY COUNCIL ADOPT RESOLUTIONS

Defending the Fair Name of Quincy Against the Slander of Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald

Order for New School Lot on Billings Road

The City Council got after ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston, Monday evening, for his reported statement, that Quincy was a city where graft and mismanagement had been exposed and people high in office had been jailed. The rebuke came in the form of a resolution offered by Councilman Craig calling upon the ex-Mayor to know if he was correctly quoted in his statement of corruption in Quincy, and if so that he furnish forthwith evidence to substantiate his charges. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

The absent members were Councilmen Bass and Gelotte, and although there was considerable business an early adjournment was reached.

TAX REFUND.

The Mayor forwarded a communication for the Tax Collector asking that the Council appropriate $17 to redeem a tax title sold to Julia E. Fuller for an illegal assessment sold her. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Ross offered an order refunding the amount which was referred to the Finance Committee.

PETITIONS.

The Mayor forwarded a petition from Col. Abner B. Packard camp, S. of V., asking for permission for children to appear on the stage at Faxon hall. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Beeman offered an order granting the request, which was adopted.

A petition for the acceptance of Briggs street was referred to the next City Council.

A petition for a gas light on Briggs street was referred to the Executive.

Petitions for gasoline licenses were received from T. L. D. Gurney, the Old Colony Laundry Co., and Arthur W. Loud. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Beeman offered orders for public hearings. Adopted.

A petition from the Teamsters Union that a faucet be placed on the fountain at Brewers corner was referred to the Executive.

Petitions from the Telephone Co., for a relocation of one pole on Elm avenue and for attachments on Glendale road, Germain avenue, Prospect avenue and Faxon road, were granted.

An application of Peter Gacicia, for a permit to transport liquor was received under suspension of the rules, and referred to the License committee.

SQUANTUM SCHOOL.

A petition was received from the Squantum Improvement society urging the necessity of better school accommodations for that section, and the immediate purchase of a site for a school building in that section. Referred to the Committee on Public Buildings.

PUBLIC HEARING.

Public hearings were held on the petitions of L. & A. Warshaw and

QUINCY'S RATE BELOW AVERAGE

Average Rate Is $22.28, and Quincy, $22.20

The Daily Ledger has now completed its list of city tax rates. Woburn is the highest with $26.00, and Beverly the lowest with $15.50.

Twenty of the 33 are $20.00 or more, so that only 13 have a rate of less than $20.00. The average is $22.28.

Twenty-five of the 33 cities report a larger tax rate than in 1913, two are same, while only six are less than last year. Quincy is one of the six with a reduction, the rate in 1913 being $23.70 and this year $22.20. The other five are Beverly, Chicopee, Haverhill, North Adams and Salem.

Last year Quincy had the highest tax rate among the cities. This year there are seven higher, viz: Brockton, Chelsea, Everett, Fall River, New Bedford, and Woburn, while Marlboro is the same.

Here are the rates for both years with the changes:

CAN NOW MAKE BETTER GETAWAY

Some changes in the position of the apparatus at the Central fire station have been possible since putting the new tractor into commission. Formerly the steamer was located in the centre of the floor. Under the new arrangement the steamer will be located on the northerly side of the building, where the Combination Hose stood. In the rear of this the horse stalls will be torn down so that the steamer may set far enough back to allow the Auto Combination to set immediately in front of it. The Combination hose will be located in the centre of the floor where the steamer formerly stood.

Up to the present time the Auto Combination has been housed in a small room in the rear of the main station. This made it rather unhandy and prevented the apparatus getting away as quickly as it otherwise would, had it been located in the main house. Under the new arrangement the Auto Combination will have a direct run into Quincy avenue, with nothing to hinder it from making a quick getaway. Its location in front of the steamer will in no way interfere with that piece of appartus also making a quick getaway.

TWO RALLIES FOR TILDEN

Neighbors in Ward Three Have Kind Word

An unusually enthusiastic reception was given to Henry F. Tilden candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor, in Ward Three Monday night. The candidate is a life long resident of this ward and is probably known personally to a great majority of the residents. The reception, or perhaps it might be called, rally, was held in Dobles hall, and although the hall is a good sized one, it was not large enough to accomodate those who desired to attend. The result was that every seat in the hall was taken and a large crowd stood in the hall unable to get in.

James Milne presided at the meeting and in opening the speaking said that he was a neighbor of Mr. Tilden and had known him all of his life. Mr. Tilden, he said, was not a politician, in any sense of the word, and he for one believed that the time had come when a business man should be sent to City Hall and not a politician. Our candidate, was a man who while familiar with the affairs of the city, especially its financial side, was fully

PROUD TO BE KNOWN AS FARMER GUY

Another of those unique circulars in the interest of the candidacy of Charles W. Guy, the Democratic candidate for the Governors council has made its appearance, and like that of last year it is a literary gem. It was the pleasure of the editor some weeks ago to attend as a guest of Councillor Guy, a dinner given by the council, and at that dinner all of the members of the council spoke in the highest terms of the Quincy Guy as he is called.

In his circular are complementary letters from Gov. Walsh and others and in closing he asks "Will you please act as an agent for Farmer Guy for Councillor and by so doing please his Excellency Governor Walsh and the whole Democratic party."

P. S. by Mr. Guy. "The Governor is sure the best Governor the state ever had."

COUNCILLOR GUY.

During the past year Councillor Guy worked early and late to have the addition to the State House built of Quincy granite and that Quincy granite should be used in the proposed dry dock.

DISTRICT COURT.

The continued cases against Frank Shepard for assault and threatening assault at Quincy were called and the complaints dismissed for want of prosecution on payment of $5 costs.

Mrs. Orshansky and Harry Orshansky were arraigned for assault on William Weinhouse at Quincy. They were fined $5 each.

Frank Brown was arraigned for assault on James Scott at Quincy. Case continued for further hearing.

REMOVE THE WIRES.

The move to have the Electric Light, Telephone and Street Railway companies remove all of their wires from that part of Hancock street between Granite and School streets is a move in the right direction. Now that the street is to be rebuilt it is just the time to place all wires underground. The Telephone Co., have very few wires above ground in this section, but the Street Railway Co., has a line of high tension power wires and the Electric Light Co., has a number of its wires strung on poles along the street.

The Committee on Streets of the City Council desired that in rebuilding its line on this section of the street the street railway should use iron poles, but on account of the high tension wires running along this street it was considered unsafe to place them on iron poles.

If all of these wires however were placed underground it would be a good thing. The time is not far distant when the high power wires must go under ground as have the telephone wires, and now seems to be a good time to start the movement.

FRUIT RAISING.

Many fruit growers have felt some discouragement this fall, owing to the cutting of markets by the war. Apple culture, in particular, is receiving a hard blow, for this year. In wartime Europe is buying little food but grain. The decline in value of exported fruits affects sympathetically the market for all fruits. This temporary condition is not the slightest reason for discouragement.

It is a matter of every day observation, that the consumption of fruit is increasing enormously. Formerly fruit was a luxury, now it is a necessity. People do not eat very much more grain than they used to. Owing to high prices, they eat less meat than fromerly. Fruit is one of the principle substitutes.

The old-fashioned family had meat for breakfast, steak, sausage, hash, warmed over roasts. Now they cost too high. The same families today are eating fruit, cereal, hot muffins, and eggs when they can be afforded. Similarly for millions of families, fruit is a favorite dinner dessert in place of heavy pastries. Doctors all talk fruit eating. It is the food of the future.

Our farmers will do well to plant more fruit. The habits of the people are turning toward the orchard. The demand for fruit gains from three directions, from increase of population at home, better knowledge abroad of our fruits, and the change in the diet of our people.

There is one old-fashioned fallacy that must be avoided. The old-time farmer used to think he could plant fruit trees and they would care for themselves. On the contrary, they need culture, just like any crop. The farmer who cares for apple trees scientifically gets $3 to $5 a barrel for the fruit, where his father got $1.50. Similar gains are made in all other kinds of fruit culture.

ENDEAVOR TO SMASH INTO FRENCH PORTS

Germans Thus Far Unable to Accomplish Their Purpose

ARTILLERY ASSAULTS ARE FOILED BY ALLIES

Invaders Wilt Under Volleys Poured Upon Them by Belgians Who Refuse to Be Pried Out of Their Trenches—British Gunboats Aid In Repulse of Germans, Who Leave Few Troops In Towns They Have Seized—Ostend Reported Recaptured by Allies—Furious Fighting Continues From Belgian Frontier Down to Roye—Indescribable Carnage Along Battle Line In France

London, Oct. 20.—In a third attempt a wedge through the allied lines, the Germans have been trying to batter their way to Dunkirk, the nearest French port to the Belgian frontier.

The sound of cannonading heard from the fortified French city and the wild flight of the inhabitants gave rise to reports that the Germans were already at the gates of Dunkirk, but late dispatches indicate that they have been unable as yet to break the defensive lines from Nieuwport to Dixmude in Belgian territory.

All day the invaders strove in vain to reach Nieuwport and Nieuwport Bains, where French and British lines meet the North sea. Their assaults were foiled, and not even the heavy fire of the German artillery was able to dislodge the allied lines. Not once were they able to make any advance toward the French city, clearly visible from the Belgian beaches.

A few miles to the southeast slight progress was made by the invaders from Vladso to the outskirts of Dixmude, but the Germans found further progress impossible.

Belgian Bravery

The war-worn Belgian army, still confident after their harrowing experiences in the Antwerp forts, took a conspicuous part in the battling. Led by King Albert, buoyed up in hope by the thought that they were still fighting on Belgian soil, they refused to be pried out of their trenches and the Germans wilted under the incessant volleys poured upon them.

When the Germans came within firing distance of the Yser, they found a new and novel enemy in land fighting. A squadron of British gunboats of light draft had anchored in the Yser and as the enemy came into sight broadside after broadside greeted them.

Warships actively participating in land battles are not absolutely new to history, but seldom has it happened that floating forts have been so effectively utilized as they were Monday. Once more has it been strongly emphasized that the British are not to be found wanting in preparedness for emergencies.

Another German Failure?

The German raid upon Paris, designed to succeed because of its swiftness and its overwhelming superiority in numbers, failed. The attempt to break a passage through the Verdun-Toul line of forts near the German boundary failed. It now seems probable that the invaders are concentrating a great force to smash a way along the Belgian coast across the French frontier and to capture Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne.

If this, too, fails, military experts prophesy that the result will be a withdrawal of the German armies to the line of defense in Belgium that has been strengthened daily ever since the first day of the battle of the Aisne. Thus far the assault upon the allied lines has been unavailing, but the new battle has been raging for too short a time to make it possible to forecast its probable result.

Still further inland, but through a countryside of the same character, as flat and as intersected by placid canals as western Holland, the allies have pushed forward as far as Roulers. If they can hold this town, it will seriously menace the march of the invaders along the coast, as already the German lines to the west are beyond the British and French forces.

Towns Have Small Guards

The presence of British warships along the Belgian coast has made it impossible for the Germans to leave many troops in the towns that they have seized. Ostend, Blankenberghe and other resorts are held by merely a few Uhlans.

Persistent reports continue to reach London that Ostend has been recaptured by the allies, but no official confirmation of this can be obtained.

Whether the renowned watering place has been siezed by marines from a British fleet or whether the allies have been able to shatter the German force between Nieuwport and Dixmude is not indicated in the dispatches that are reaching London.

It seems unquestionable, however, that a great battle is being fought out on the Belgian plain and that the official statements are, as usual, refraining from making any extended comments until some decisive stroke has been driven home.

Non-Combatants Fleeing

The exodus of non-combatants, despite the check administered to the Germans, has already begun from Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne. Families are crowding the boats to England and the trains westward into Normandy. As yet, however, there have been none of the agonizing scenes that accompanied the flight from Antwerp and Ostend.

In the battle zone in northern France, there has been furious fighting from the Belgian frontier down to Roye, the nearest place to Paris in possession of the Germans. So far as can be learned, the invaders have been unable to make any progress against the allied lines, while the French and British have in several places been successful in advancing, despite an incessant bombardment and vigorous counter charges.

Terrible Carnage

The carnage upon this battle line is indescribable, exceeding in horror any conflict of modern times. The dead have to be left unburied for days, so impossible is it for burial parties to reach the blackened zone that separates the hostile armies. Each day fires set by shells devour villages and towns and the ruin is so widespread that the patient labors of a generation will hardly erase the signs of strife.

Some correspondents of London papers insist that the Germans have evacuated Lille for the third time in the course of the war, but this cannot be confirmed. It is certain, however, that the capture of Amentieres and Estaires, as well as the advance from the direction of La Bassee, is seriously endangering the German positions near Lille. It is probable, however, that the invaders continue to hold the important industrial city.

In the villages of Ablain and St. Nazaire, not far from La Bassee, the fighting is hand to hand. French and British soldiers are able to advance only by sheltering themselves in houses, driving out the Germans with machine guns and rifles, and then dashing forward to the next house. The incessant fighting has ruined the residences for purposes of living, but the walls, despite the yawning holes that appear in them, are affording shelter for troops.

ORDERED FROM TURKEY

Vienna Reports the Expulsion of Head of the Greek Church

According to a telegram from Berlin, the Turkish government has requested the Oecumenical patriarch, the head of the Greek Orthodox church, to leave Constantinople.

The Greek Orthodox church is the dominant form of Christianity throughout the Russian empire, in the kingdom of Greece, in European Turkey among the Slavs and Greeks, in parts of Austria and of Hungary, and in Roumania, Bulgaria, Servia and Montenegro.

The highest officers of the church are the four patriarchs of Constantinople, Alexandria, Antioch and Jerusalem, but the most imporatnt of these rulers is the patriarch of Constantinople, Germanos V., known also as the Oecumenical patriarch. He is the most exalted ecclesiast of the eastern churches, and his influence reaches far outside of the land of the patriarchate.

BELGIUM SHORT OF FOOD

Supplies In London Await Straightening of Shipping Tangle

The shortage of food in Brussels is very serious. The supply of flour has become exhausted and there is great need that it be replenished immediately. The German government has disclaimed responsibility for the food shortage in Brussels and is itself said to show no disposition to furnish food to the Belgian capital, but is willing that provisions should go forward by way of Holland and Antwerp.

Much food, already in cases, is on the London docks, ready for shipment to Belgium when the international tangle concerning its movement is straightened out.

TO FIGHT FOR BELGIUM

Irish Nationalists Adopt Pledge at a London Meeting

Amid tumultuous cheering, with right hands upraised, the Irish Nationalists, who crowded Central hall, London, adopted a pledge administered by T. P. O'Connor:

"We will never sheath the sword until Belgium has got back her freedom; until every inch of her soil is clear; until a treaty is made, not on a scrap of paper, but on a foundation behind which stands the millions of the British race."

The meeting was called for the purpose of expressing confidence in the leadership of John Redmond and to indorse the action of the Irish party in supporting "the war of the allies against Prussian militarism."

PRINCE OSCAR'S CLOSE CALL

Dropped From "Heart Failure" Just In Time to Save His Life

A dispatch from Copenhagen says it is generally stated in Germany that Prince Oscar, fifth son of the emperor, owes his life to his attack of heart failure.

It appears from the stories current that a party of Turcos were firing from trees and shot down all the officers surrounding the prince without exception.

The sudden excitement led to the attack, and the prince fell unconscious. The Turcos, it appears, believed he was dead and stopped firing.

POPE REFUSES BLESSING

Rulers Made Fruitless Plea In Behalf of Their Troops

Jean de Bonnefon, a leading French Catholic, reveals that Emperor Francis Joseph of Austro-Hungary, in an autograph letter implored Pope Benedict XV. to bless the Austro-Hungarian army.

The pope refused, reminding the Austrian emperor that he was also the spiritual protector of the Servian Catholics.

The Kings of Bavaria and Saxony also asked the pope to bless their Catholic troops, but the requests were ignored.

MOBILIZING IN CANADA

Hundred Thousand Men Expected to Take Part In European War

Orders went out from militia headquarters at Ottawa to the various district centres to proceed at once with recruiting for the new Canadian expeditionary force.

Within a year or less it is expected to have 100,000 men under arms. Drafts will be sent to England from time to time as requested by the war office, probably in units of about 10,000 each.

About 20,000 men are to be mobilized at once.

HUNDREDS ARE BURIED

Earthquakes In Greece Cause Heavy Damage to Property

London, Oct. 20.—A dispatch from Athens says that hundreds of persons were buried under the ruins of Thebes, where the greater portion of the houses were destroyed by an earthquake. The villages of Kaparelli and Pyri, near Thebes, were destroyed.

The Grecian provinces of Boeotia suffered most. Twenty distinct shocks were felt there. The number of casualties is not known. In Athens the movements were felt for twenty seconds. Several houses were wrecked.

A good deal of damage was done at Piraeus. Atlante and Chelkis experienced severe property losses. Shocks were felt in Peloponnesus, Cyclades, Eubone and the Ionian islands.

BURGLARS IN HARD LUCK

Six Breaks In One Night Net Them Total Loot of Only $17.83

Lenox, Mass., Oct. 20.—A pretty disappointed bunch of auto burglars is moping somewhere in this region. They made six breaks in one night, and the six only netted them $17.83. The breaks were all New Haven railroad stations.

At Lenoxdale they got nothing. At Lee they robbed the Pullman company of $13.05. At South Lee they got $3 in pennies. At Stockbridge they got 83 cents from the chewing gum machine. At Glendale they got nothing and Housatonic netted them a nickel short of a dollar.

Doctor and Wife Cremated

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 20.—Dr. Morris Longstreth, former physician to King Alfonso of Spain, and his wife were buried from their late home here. The bodies were cremated at Mount Auburn. Longstreth died at Barcelona. His wife died in the same city nine days later. The bodies were shipped to America together.

Train Derailed by Robbers

Brousard, La., Oct. 20.—Spikes drawn from railroad ties caused the derailment of a train and the injury of fifteen passengers near here. The wreck was planned by robbers.

George F. Smith for gasoline permits. Later in the evening Councilman Beeman offered orders granting the permits which were adopted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing Nov. 9, on widening Rogers street. Adopted.

BABCOCK STREET.

The Committee on Sewers and Water Supply reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $450 for a drain and tide gate to drain Babcock street. Referred to Finance committee.

NEW SCHOOL LOT.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order for the purchase of 66,904 square feet of land situated on Faxon road, Billings road and Glover avenue for a school lot, and appropriating $9,690 for the same. Referred to Finance Committee.

WANT WIRES REMOVED.

Councilman Craig offered a resolve that the Bay State Street Railway Co., the Electric Light Co., and the Telephone Co., take steps to remove their wires from that part of Hancock street between Granite and School streets. Adopted.

ELM AVENUE.

On motion of Councilman Gilliatt the vote of the Council July 6, whereby a report of the Street committee giving the Telephone Co., and Street Railway Co., leave to withdraw on its petition for a joint location for poles on Elm avenue was rescinded. Councilman Gilliatt then offered an order granting the location which was ordered to a second reading.

ELECTION ORDERS.

Councilman Craig offered orders calling the State election of Nov. 3, and designating voting places for the City primaries of Nov. 10. Adopted.

At this point Councilman Craig asked for the special privilege of speaking, and called attention to the reported speech of ex-Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston. He did not believe that statements like this should go unchallenged. If there was any graft or mismanagement in the city, the City Council ought to know it. Personally he did not believe there was any graft in Quincy. He then offered the resolution, that the Mayor be requested to ask Hon. John F. Fitzgerald of Boston if he was correctly quoted in the newspapers in an article relating to corruption alleged to have been unearthed in Quincy within the past few years, and if correctly quoted, ask that he furnish forthwith evidence to substantiate his charge.

Adjourned at 8.29 until Nov. 2.

ANNUAL DANCE WASECA CLUB

The Waseca Social Club held its fifth annual dance in Alpha hall, Monday evening, and the attendance was the largest of the season. Many local clubs were represented, and 50 of the Mystics of Brockton made the trip in an auto truck. There were also delegations from the Somersets of Braintree, Bloomfields of Dorchester, Maxim Girls of Holbrook, and the Oakland Social Club of East Braintree.

The modern dances prevailed but there were very general indications that the glide dances were becoming popular again, many of the younger people alternating glide with modern steps. Music was by Cuff's orchestra.

Henry R. Shea was floor director and John Pinel was his assistant. Stewart Sheriff was chief of aids, and the aids were Charles Costello, Walter Myatt, James Muir, Edmund J. Saunders, William Wright and David Fields.

These Belgian sharpshooters in their "fort" of straw were safer than the garrison that tried in vain to hold Antwerp behind steel and concrete fortifications. Every manner of use is being tried in this war, and the picture shows one of them. The sharpshooters concealed themselves in this retreat under a tree, and from a distance it looked like a heap of wheat or straw.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS

To Hold a Four Days Convention at Fitchburg

For nearly 18 months arrangements have been in the making for the State convention of the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor union, to be held in Fitchburg, Oct. 22, 23, 24 and 25, and it is expected to prove one of the largest gatherings of a young people's religious organization even seen in the Commonwealth.

The Fitchburg union is prepared to entertain more than 3500 delegates, with the State and national officers and other dignitaries and invited guests. The publicity committee has mailed to every Christian Endeavor society and local union in the State attractive pieces of advertising matter and has put forth every effort to secure a record breaking attendance. Many unions have promised larger delegations than they have ever before sent to a State convention.

The series of big meetings will open on Thursday, Oct. 22, and will continue until Sunday evening, Oct. 25, with every morning, afternoon and evening offering something of interest to all delegates. City hall has been secured for the big mass meetings, while some of the conferences will be held in the various churches and chapels near the center of the city.

The Fitchburg Y. M. C. A. has generously offered the facilities of its entire building to the convention committee and the headquarters of the convention will be maintained there.

In addition to the features of the program arranged by the State board, Fitchburg Endeavorers are planning a series of trips through some of the city's largest and most interesting factories and will also conduct on the Monday after the convention a special excursion to the top of sightly Mount Wachusett. Still another special feature will be a Sunday morning prayer service at the "Boulder" on Rollstone hill.

A registration booth will be established at the Y. M. C. A. building with a registration committee in charge. All visitors, upon reporting and registering here on arrival in the city, will be provided with handsome souvenir badges as well as programs.

Rooms for the speakers, State board of officers and conference leaders have been reserved at the Johnsonia. Just across the street from the convention headquarters.

The first meeting of the convention will be on the 22d, when a preparatory service will be held in the First Baptist church. The official opening of the convention will be that evening in City Hall. Rev. Harrie R. Chamberlin of Newton, president of the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor union, will preside over the convention.

The musical features are in capable hands. The decorations will be noteworthy.

HEBREW CONVENTION AT LAWRENCE

Members of various organizations will attend the fourth annual convention of the Associated Young Men's Hebrew associations of New England at Lawrence, Oct. 25 and 26, Sunday and Monday. The convention was scheduled for Columbus Day, but Succoth a Jewish holiday, came on the same day and thus a postponement to the 25th.

Prominent Hebrews will discuss the Y. M. H. A. movement and what has been accomplished toward Judaism in the last four years and how to improve the association.

The delegation will be welcomed by Mr. Astrog, president of the Lawrence Y. M. H. A., by the acting mayor of Lawrence and David I. Walsh. The meeting will open on Sunday with Abraham Kluback, president of the Associated Y. M. H. A. of New England, presiding. A Cabaret show has been arranged and the convention will conclude with a ball in the State armory.

The association has formed a club for this occasion called "On the Convention Club," comprising members who will take in the convention.

The Young Women's Hebrew association will also send delegates.

equipped to undertake the duties of of the office and if nominated and elected, the voters would have no cause to regret their action.

Ex-Mayor Eugene R. Stone followed and he told of his personal acquaintance with Mr. Tilden during his administration when he filled the office of City Treasurer. He had always found him, as the boy said, on the job and attending strictly to the business of the office. He had never been a seeker after office, and thus it was in his selection for treasurer. Mr. Tilden had not personally sought the appointment and no one had interceded for him, but he had selected him because he was just the man needed, and he was happy to say time had proven he had made no mistake. Mr. Tilden was in no sense a politician, and he felt sure if nominated and elected he would give the kind of administration which the city needed at this time

Mr. Tilden, when introduced, received a most cordial reception. He said that if honored with the nomination and election he would enter the office with a free hand. He would make no promises and if he could not be elected without making promises then he would stay at home.

Speaking of the tax rate he said the only way to reduce the tax rate was to stop appropriating money. If money was constantly being expended for this improvement or that improvement, then the taxes could not be reduced. He believed that Quincy had now arrived at a point where economy should be practiced in the strictest sense, and he promised if elected to exercise the strictest economy in every department. He further said that he had not personally sought to enter the race for the nomination, but it was because he had been urged to do so by a large number of business men. They were men who were not personally seeking anything for themselves or for anyone else. They simply wanted the affairs of the city conducted along the same lines, which any careful business man would conduct his own personal business. This is what he proposed to do if the voters saw fit to nominate and elect him.

Edward A. Poland of Atlantic had a good word to say for the candidate. He said that Ward Six, his own ward, was very enthusiastic for Mr. Tilden. The citizens of that ward had looked over the several gentlemen mentioned for the position and had concluded that all things considered Mr. Tilden was the man to fill the bill.

By this time Acting Mayor Whiton arrived and was introduced. The Acting Mayor stated that while he had been in office but a few days he seen the need of a strong man for Mayor next year and he believed that Mr. Tilden was just the man the citizens needed. Whoever was Mayor next year would find no bed of roses, and it needed a man well equipped, and that no mistake would be made in sendng Mr. Tilden to City Hall.

Andrew Milne also had a few words of commendation for his neighbor and hoped that Ward Three would rally to his support and give him a rousing vote at the caucuses, that the citizens of Quincy might fully understand how he was thought of in his own ward.

Before the meeting adjourned someone proposed that all in favor of Mr. Tilden should stand and with a cheer every man in the hall, with the exception of three stood.

From South Quincy the candidate went to Ward Four where a rally was held in the Finnish hall on Buckley street. The same speakers were heard at this gathering where there was also plenty of enthusiasm.

GAME OF CONVERSATION

Introduced at Parents-Teachers Association at Wollaston

The Parents-Teachers Association of the Wollaston school opened the season very auspicously on Monday evening when there was an attendance of 300 parents. The school hall was prettly decorated with nasturtiums and ferns.

The greeting was by Rev. George Bailey the president. The Executive committee reported that it had nearly completed the season's program, which promises to equal the enjoyable one of last year. The speaker at the November meeting will be Mr. Wadsworth of the State Board of Education.

In the receiving line were President and Miss Bailey, Superintendent and Mrs. Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Goodspeeed and the teaching corps of the Wollaston school.

A social hour followed when the game of "Conversation" was introduced. On each persons order were the names of eleven persons with whom they were to converse on certain subjects. Mrs. George Severance was in charge, and pleasing music was furnished by Pinkham's orchestra

Refreshments of cake and punch were served under the direction of Mrs. Carroll Bates. The ushers were girls of grade eight—Judith Page, Mildred Geddes, Helen Alden, Majorie Cole and Ruth McGrath.

LIVE SKUNK IN A BAG

Travels From Wollaston to West Quincy

A paper coke bag, which held a live skunk captive, in the hands of Hjalmar Hokinen, a West Quincy Finn was viewed with suspicion by all in City Square at midnight, and men and women breathed a sigh of relief when Hjalmar got tired of waiting for an East Milton car and decided to walk home.

Earlier in the evening Hokinen discovered the skunk in a furnace pipe in a Wollaston home. The animal had evidently crawled in through the cold air box and was nestling snugly when found.

With visions of a fat fee, and the grateful appreciation of a friend who was a naturalist, Hokinen forgot his own danger, dumped the animal into an ash barrel and later transferred it, barehande, to the coke bag. He finished his work and walked to City Square in high spirits, but after his arrival became an object of distrust.

Patrolman Olson's attention was attracted when he saw boys and girls coming from the Waseca Club dance avoiding Hokinen as he stood outside the Thompson cafe, and he was about to inquire the cause when he whiffed a strange odor and recognized the danger.

From a distance the officer engaged the man in conversation, and advised him to walk to West Quincy, and Hokinen took the advice to the relief of the crowd.

EAST NORFOLK UNION RALLY

The East Norfolk C. E. Union met in the Washington Street Congregational church Monday evening for a bi-monthly rally. It was well attended by members of the different societies. The president of the union made an earnest plea for money for the new C. E. headquarters building. Devotional service was conducted by Dr. Sneath, Ph. D., of Wollaston.

The speaker for the evening was Rev. Carl Stackman of Somerville His subject was "Big things," and he inspired the young people to attempt and do the big things for their churches during the coming winter.

The union banner was contested for as usual and won by the First Presbyterian society. The Washington street society had an attendance of 97 percent but was not eligible to compete on account of being the entertaining society.

IN GAY NEW YORK.

Fashionable Dress Worn by Notables —Military Types Insistent—Cape Lines in Draperies and Outer Garments.

Just when all the world is convinced of the necessity of thrift, fashionable modes demand a greatly increased yardage for their development. This is especially notable in dresses designed for day wear, and in dancing gowns for the girlish set.

More important toilets for dinner and evening wear, made up in expensive panne velvets, elaborate brocades, and embroidered and jetted lace, show the clinging lines that we have grown accustomed to. The laces and nets are used with considerable fullness, but their transparency reveals the svelte lines of the carefully molded under dress so that there is no trace of the silhouette a la Gretchen which meets us everywhere else.

ACCORDEON PLEATINGS.

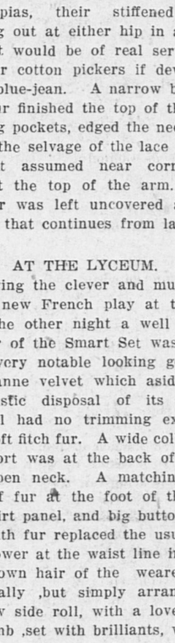

Dainty frocks designed for debutantes show their filmy, accordeon plaited skirts disposed in overlapping tunics and bound with heavy satin cords, that produce a decided hoof effect. In fact in some models narrow stiffenings are employed to hold the lace in the lines that the designer exploits. A dress of Lierre lace made up over supple white satin, had the lace panniers arranged in regular cornucopias, their stiffened tops standing out at either hip in a fashion that would be of real service to berry or cotton pickers if developed say in blue-jean. A narrow band of sable fur finished the top of the outstanding pockets, edged the neck, and topped the selvage of the lace flounce where it assumed near cornucopia lines at the top of the arm. The shoulder was left uncovered after a fashion that continues from last season.

AT THE LYCEUM.

Enjoying the clever and much discussed new French play at the Lyceum the other night a well known member of the Smart Set was wearing a very notable looking gown of rose panne velvet which aside from the artistic disposal of its draped material had no trimming except a little soft fitch fur. A wide collar, flat and short was at the back of rather high open neck. A matching wide band of fur at the foot of the narrow shirt panel, and big buttons covered with fur replaced the usual corsage flower at the waist line in front. The brown hair of the wearer was artistically ,but simply arranged in the new side roll, with a lovely amber comb ,set with brilliants, worn at the left side just where the roll curved.

In the same party a gray-haired woman wore a plain Brussels net dress made over black satin. Bands of jet spangled trimming outlined the pointed draperies, and similar bands gleamed beneath the lace in corresponding points on the corsage. Large jetted cords outlined the top of the bodice, and fell in long ends, weighted with jet ornaments, almost to the foot of the skirt.

Diamond slides were on the velvet nesk band worn, and a lavallier of the same stones, with the ear drops matching. Corsage flowers on left shoulder of silver and blue tinsel cloth.

A PREMET COAT.

A Premet coat that I saw at an opening recently would have been ideal with this costume. The coat was of green short napped plush in dull soft shade embroidered in silver in an elaborate but delicate floral design.

The lining gold and silver brocade —collar and sleeve cuff of silver fox fur. A narrow girdle threaded under the drapery box pleats of the material, was of inch wide fancy silver galoon weighted with green and silver ornaments.

REDINGOTE COATS.

The majority of this season's top coats are built on some of the many Redingote models. These have the style and dash always associated with military models, yet developed in quiet dark tones they are not too pronounced for general wear. Cloths trimmed with the plushes that so closely imitate Broadtail and Astrachan, are among the most popular styles, while braid trimmings of all sorts are lavishly employed for those garments. Velvets and plushes and all the ribbed cloths with velvet finishes are in excellent vogue making coats dressy enough for almost any occasion, yet practical for more arduous wear as well. Linings are in matching tones, vivid contrasts or figured materials brocades or printed silks. It is all a matter of fancy but for conservative wear the matching or slightly contrasting lining lasts best.

TINSEL TRIMMINGS.

Tinsel trimmings are decidedly modish, and often give just the needed relief to a too sombre effect but these like the jets now so popular, must be used with discretion or they are the reverse of attractive, for nothing looks so garish and cheap as overdone ornament, especially in metals. Braids are used in every form from the popular tailored bindings, to elaborate patterns wrought in fine soutache directly on the material. Vests collars and cuffs, braided in pretty contrasting colors are among the most successful and inexpensive garnitures for suits and costumes, if one does the braiding at home, though like all hand work such pieces are expensive to buy.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Noonan, parents of Leo P. Noonan, who made their home in Boston for many years, quietly celebrated the 38th anniversary of their marriage at their home at 185 Manet avenue, Houghs Neck, on Monday evening in the presence of the immediate family and a few friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Noonan were married in Boston, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Michael Ronan of St. James church of Boston, late pastor of St. Patrick's church in Lowell, and brother of Monsignor Peter Ronan of St. Peter's church, of Dorchester. They have made their home in Quincy since 1907.

Mr. Noonan in his younger days drove the stage coach from Milton to Boston, and for 30 years was private coachman for the late Archbishop John J. Williams of the Roman Catholi diocese of Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Noonan were the recipients of many congratulations.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB.

Wednesday evening at eight o'clock in the High school gymnasium the Quincy Young Women's Club opens the season of 1914-15 with a social. The entertainment is in charge of Miss Ruth Dahl and will consist of a short play, "Gone Abroad" with the following cast:

Mrs. Nearly Gonn — Miss Lydia Djerf
Hope — Miss Hattie Waterhouse
Faith — Miss Ruth Farmer
Mrs. I. P. Kinn — Miss Edith Mullin

Games, music and dancing will follow the play.

This will be an admirable time for those who wish to apply for membership to do so. All girls over sixteen years of age not members of either High school or Woodward Institute are cordially invited to join. Gymnasium, dramatic and other classes are held weekly. These classes are in charge of well known and capable instructors.

On the whole the Quincy Young Women's Club is a good place for girls to go and meet girls that are "worth while knowing."

Mrs. Bernard Riely of Euclid avenue is as her home recovering from the effects of an operation performed Saturday.

A THANKSGIVING STORY.

The following story shows very clearly the benefit the Associated Charities is to the community:

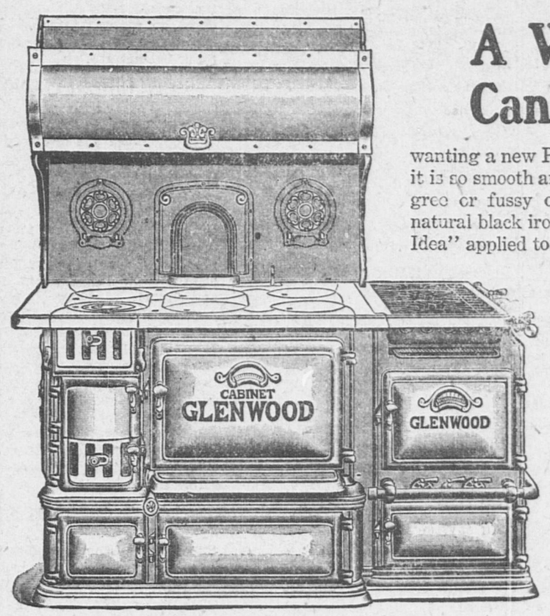

An amusing incident happened at Thanksgiving—a well known applicant for aid, known to every society in Quincy, went to a local agency to apply for a dinner. The agent who had the list made out and had consulted with the Secretary of the Associated charities said "But you know you are to receive a dinner from——— church." "Yes," the woman replied "but I am going to have company to dinner, and since the Associated Charities came it is very hard to get more than one dinner, and indeed I need two dinners."

BRIDGE CLOSED.

The public works department of the City of Boston gives notice that Granite Avenue bridge is closed to team travel until 5 o'clock Friday evening. It is expected that the bridge will be fully completed by that time.

BIG CROPS AT STATE FARM

The large number of drunks which have been sent to the state farm this fall by Judge Avery have not been idle according to reports from the farm, for just before the rain started the inmates finished harvesting the potato crop, and it was some good sized crop, for it totaled 18,000 bushels, according to the "once over" count made.

The harvesting of the corn fodder crop has also been completed, and soon the men will be set to work gathering the corn which has been left in the fields to ripen.

Usually as soon as the fall harvesting has been completed, many of the inmates, the majority of whom have been sent to the state farm for drunkenness, will be paroled, and allowed to go home.

SLIGHT FIRE ON MAIN STREET

The alarm from Box 173 at 4.14 Monday afternoon was for a lively blaze in the house at 124 Main street occupied by Alex Sawosta. The fire started over the stove and worked up though the walls to the third floor where a stiff blaze was started in the kitchen on this floor. The fire got in behind the walls and considerable cutting was necessary to get at the seat of the fire. The loss is estimated by Chief Billings to have been about $100.

SIEGEL'S PARTNER DEAD

Frank Vogel Suddenly Succumbs to Attack of Heart Trouble

New York, Oct. 20.—Frank E. Vogel, who was vice president of the Fourteenth street store, of which Henry Siegel was president, and of the defunct bank of Henry Siegel & Co., and who with Siegel was awaiting trial on the charge of grand larceny following the finding of fourteen indictments against both for alleged mismanagement of the affairs of the store and bank, died suddenly in his apartments in a hotel here.

The Vogel family physician said death was due to heart failure. Coroner Hellenstein was summoned, and after viewing the body ordered an autopsy.

The coroner said that in view of the indictments against Vogel he was ordered an autopsy to ward off any suspicion that Vogel's death was anything but natural.

JURY QUICKLY CHOSEN

Both Carman Prosecution and Defense Are Satisfied

Mineola, N. Y., Oct. 20.—"They look good to me."

With this remark, following the acceptance of the last of the twelve jurors who will try her for the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, Mrs. Florence Carman glanced toward her attorneys in the Mineola courtroom and smiled.

Curiously enough, they "looked good" to District Attorney Smith and to William Bailey, husband of the slain woman, and also probably to the other persons present, who had seen in the first day of the proceedings a full jury selected—one of the swiftest selections of a complete jury in a modern murder trial in a county where no man is supposed to be an utter stranger to the other.

LOSES $225,000 SUIT

Executor of Woman's Estate Sought to Recover From Boston Banker

Boston, Oct. 20.—Oscar M. Chandler, as executor of the estate of the late Mrs. Mary F. Colburn, has lost his suit for $225,000 against Frederick H. Prince, banker, by a verdict reported by a jury in the superior court.

Chandler tried to recover $225,000 from Prince, claiming that that amount represented securities pledged by Mrs. Colburn in speculations in stock, in which she is said to have lost a fortune. This is the third time this case has been before a jury.

BODIES OF DEAD CROWD RIVERS

Germans Lose Heavily In San and Vistula Districts

MEET REPULSE AT WARSAW

Driven Back After Reaching Within Five Miles of Capital—Russians Destroy Germans' Only Means For Transporting Big Guns—Successes Claimed by Austrian War Office

Petrograd, Oct. 20.—A newspaper correspondent at Lemberg, referring to the German losses in the attempts to cross the upper San river, telegraphs that this stream is filled with the bodies of German soldiers floating down to augment similar flotsam on the Vistula, where other German troops have met the same fate. The correspondent says none of repeated attempts to cross the San has been successful.

Several of the other forts at Przemysl are reported to have been captured, but these are not considered important, inasmuch as Przemysl already has been isolated and surrounded.

According to information from Warsaw the Russian army is not anticipating the return of the Germans to that region, from which they were lately repulsed with large losses. The German failure there is attributed partly to the inability of the artillery and infantry to follow up and support the advance guard, which approached within five miles of the city.

The backwardness of the artillery is due to the practically impassable condition of the country as a result of four days' continuous rain. The one railroad from Lowicz, forty-four miles westsouthwest of Warsaw, to Warsaw, which was the Germans' only means for transporting their heavy guns, was destroyed by the Russians. Warsaw is virtually untakeable without heavy guns.

A main action is reported in the upper Vistula region, where the Germans are attempting to march toward Krasnik and Lublin. A battle is officially reported as developing south of Przemysl, chiefly with the Austrians.

The situation of the German forces on the Russian frontier as gathered from the official sources is about as follows: The German army from East Prussia, now near Mlawa, is intercepted in its effort to pass through Plotsch to Warsaw by masking the fortress of Novo Geogievak; the Thorn-Posen forces are following the left basin of the Vistula, and have occupied the Kutno-Lowicz district, while the Silesian army is beleaguered in Ivangora and extends to San Domir.

Russians Reported Repulsed

In an official statement issued at Vienna the Austrian government declares the Russians have already lost 40,000 men in unsuccessful attempts to take Przemysl by storm.

The announcement declares that the Russians continue to lose heavily, and already have been driven back from the southern forts of the San river fortress.

WILL NOT NEGOTIATE

Botha Says South African Rebellion Will Be Suppressed by Force

London, Oct. 20.—A dispatch from Pretoria quotes a telegram sent by General Botha, premier and commander-in-chief of the Uunion of South Africa's forces, to General Hertzog, Botha's chief political opponent.

"Nobody regrets the treacherous acts of the traitors more than I," the telegram says. "There are no negotiations being carried on with the rebel leader. The rebellion can only be suppressed by force.

"The general opinion is that an immediate public repudiation of Colonel Maritz's acts by you and others mentioned in his ultimatum will do much toward reaching the results aimed at. What do you propose further?"

Villa Says Fighting In Mexico Has Ended For the Present

Washington, Oct. 20.—General Villa has informed the United States government that unless something unforeseen occurs hostilites in Mexico are at an end and that he will support any provisional government set up by the national convention at Aguascalientes.

Villa said he would not accept Carranza as provisional president, but was satisfied he would not be chosen. The general understanding on all sides has been that Carranza himself does not desire to be provisional president, wishing to be free to enter the presidential race in the succeeding election.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court next to be holden at Dedham within and for the county of Norfolk:

Respectfully libels and represents Edwin J. Foster of Quincy in said county that he was lawfully married to Fannie B. Foster now of Chicago, Illinois at Waterloo, Wisconsin on the 19th day of December A. D. 1871, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Fannie B. Foster has never lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth but the said libellant has lived and resided in this Commonwealth for more than five consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations but the said Fannie B. Foster being wholly regardless of the same at said Chicago in the month of June A. D. 1910, utterly deserted him and has continued such desertion from that time to the date hereof, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Fannie B. Foster.

Dated the thirtieth day of September A. D. 1914.

EDWIN J. FOSTER.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Norfolk, ss. Superior Court.

On the foregoing Libel, it is ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said Fannie B. Foster the Libellee, to apear before the Justices of this Court, to be holden at Dedham, within and for said County, on the first Monday of December next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper printed at Quincy in the County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of December next, and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be, by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said Fannie B. Foster an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, that the said Fannie B. Foster may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted.

By the Court,

LOUIS A. COOK, Clerk.

October 10, A. D. 1914.

A true copy of said Libel, and of Order thereon. Attest,

R. B. WORTHINGTON,
Assistant Clerk.

ENEMY FORCED INTO BATTLE

German Destroyers Bravely Faced Odds In North Sea

CRUISER OPENED THE FIGHT

British Destroyers Close In and Get Busy After Undaunted Fires at Range of Five Miles—Germans Credited With Continuous Firing Until Their Vessels Go to Bottom

London, Oct. 20.—The Post publishes a dispatch from Harwich on return to port of the British warships which vanquished four German torpedo boat destroyers in the North sea last Saturday. The dispatch follows:

"Bearing their battle honors proudly, the cruiser Undaunted led into Harwich from the North sea the destroyers which participated in the engagement last Saturday, the result of which was the sinking of four German destroyers.

"The spectacle ashore and afloat was a moving one. Sailors, soldiers and civilians swarmed onto the pier and to points of vantage, cheering the victors, as did the crews of the Fearless, which was in the Helgoland fight, and other vessels.

"Interviews with the crew of the Undaunted show that this vessel, together with four British torpedo boat destroyers, left Harwich early Saturday morning and sighted the Germans early in the afternoon. By fine seamanship the enemy was forced to fight. The German destroyers faced the odds bravely. With her big guns the Undaunted opened fire at a range of five miles. Then the smaller vessels closed in and got busy.

"Then began a running fight. While the cruiser, protected from torpedoes by her fighting consorts, devoted her attention particularly to two of the enemy's ships, the destroyers attacked the other two. The reply from the Germans was very poor in comparison. The first of the enemy's craft sank after a half hour's fighting. Within an hour and a half the battle was over.

"One sailor pays tribute to the pluck of the Germans. They fought well, he said, and kept firing till they sank. This accounts for the smallness of the number of the German survivors.

"The destroyer Loyal brought back three wounded, together with the bodies of four German men and one German officer who had succumbed to their injuries on the way.

"The wounded have been transferred to Shotley hospital, and the prisoners of war have been taken from the Undaunted and removed to barracks."

From another source it is related that a trawler sighted the German destroyers before the British flotilla came up. When the German boats saw the enemy they made frantic efforts to escape. The British ships came rushing forward at full speed and began the engagement as soon as they were near enough.

MORE THAN 300 LOST

Japanese Cruiser Sent to Bottom by Mine In Kiauchau Bay

Tokio officially announces the destruction of the Japanese cruiser Takachiho by a mine in Kiauchau bay.

This is the most important naval loss sustained by the Japanese since they began war against Germany in the Far East. Only one officer and nine men out of a total complement of 357 are known to have been saved. The cruiser was steaming through the bay to take a better position for the bombardment of the German forts.

The Takachiho was 300 feet long and 46 feet in the beam. Her displacement was 3700 tons and her speed eighteen knots. Her main battery consisted of eight six-inch guns.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

Governor Walsh has designated June 17, 1915, as Massachusetts day at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Timothy Collins, 75, proprietor of a lodging house at Boston, committed suicide by hanging.

A bronze statue of Henry Ward Beecher was unveiled in his old charge, Plymouth church, Brooklyn.

Rev. Dr. Joe F. Bingham, author and writer, died at his home at Hartford from apoplexy.

The new Catholic cathedral of St. Louis, built as a cost of more than $3,000,000, was blessed by Archbishop Glennon.

JUBILEE EDITION.

The silver jubilee edition of the Attleboro Sun, issued as a supplement to the daily edition of Sept. 30 is one of the most interesting sidelights on a town known throughout the length and breadth of the country for its jewelry factories. Full, half and quarter page ads, illustrated with trade cuts, together with resumes of the growth of the town and queries as to why it should remain one of the four towns of more than 20,000 people in Massachusetts make up the supplement.

The town is 220 years old according to the souvenir, as the land on which it stands was purchased by the first mayor of New York in 1694. A city form of government is proposed, the organization to consist of a mayor, five councilmen from wards and six councilmen at large, making the representation consisting of 31 men.

And not the least interesting of the souvenir is the insert of ten pages published in Italian for the benefit of the foreign population. Short paragraphs pointing out the benefits of the town are treated in business-like manner. The idea is entirely new with the owner and was no small factor in the many compliments paid him.

George "Feda "McKenzie of Upland road, this city is sporting editor of the paper, and another Quincy boy, Ralph Marden, was formerly connected with the Sun until a year ago when he was appointed a district man for the Pawtucket Times and assigned to Attleboro and other border towns.

STIRRING STORIES OF PLUCK, VALOR AND TRAGEDY IN THE WAR NEWS

Thrilling Episodes of the Battlefield and Unusual Incidents.

Touches of Humor Relieve Grim Picture of Europe's Awful Conflict.

EACH day's dispatches from Europe bring stories of bravery on the battlefield and calm courage in the face of death. There are also stories of unusual incidents and here and there bits of humor. Some of the best of these stories are here given:

In his account of the fighting about Charleroi the Paris correspondent of the London Chronicle tells of an interesting incident. Referring to the capture of a band of uhlans at the gates of Courtrai by a detachment of French chasseurs, he says:

"Their chief officer was found to be Lieutenant Count von Schwerin, a nephew of the kaiser. The commander is only twenty-five years old and has been married only seven months. The officer commanding the French detachment found that the count's sword was a present from the emperor himself and bore an inscription to that effect on the blade. The count's saber, belt and helmet were taken to St. Ouen and presented to the wife of the officer who made the capture. The sword was blood stained and its point twisted."

The correspondent of the London Times sends the following under a Paris date:

"Near Charleroi I heard some stories of the bravery of the French soldiers. The Germans were bombarding the city. The French troops made what amounted to a medieval sortie, but, finding the enemy in much greater force than was expected, were compelled to withdraw. The bombardment continued relentlessly, whereupon the French Turcos, picked troops from Algeria, debouched from the town and, with a gallantry which must surely live in history, charged the German battery, bayonetting all the German gunners. Their losses, it is said, exceeded those of the light brigade at Balaclava. Of a battalion only 100 men, it is reported, returned unscathed. Their bravery, however, was powerless against the German advance, which crept foot by foot through the outskirts of Charleroi to the very heart of the town.

"There in the narrow streets the carnage was indescribable. A French infantryman told me that the roads became so jammed with dead that the killed remained standing upright where they had been shot, supported by their dead comrades."

Outside an inn was to be seen the dead figure of a German officer with his head bowed over a basin and soap lather dry upon his face, where he had been shot in the act of washing.

There was another who lay across a table, while a cup of coffee which he had been in the act of raising to his lips at the moment when death found him lay broken on the ground

"Hurricane of Iron."

A traveler arriving at Paris from Charleroi was a witness of part of the fighting at that place. He said:

"I was at Foreux, fifteen miles from Erquelines. This region is covered with a thick growth of trees. From where I was stationed I could see the passing for hours of column after column of German infantry. They were subjected to a veritable hurricane of iron from the French artillery, and they went down by the dozen. Nevertheless more came forward to take the places of the slain."

Prince Dies a Hero.

Berlin newspapers are filled with stories of how prominent German officers fell on the battlefields. How Prince Frederic William of Lippe died in the fighting before Liege is described in a dispatch received from the headquarters of the German army. The prince's infantry regiment was surrounded by the Belgians under the walls of Liege, and he was struck by two bullets while standing among his men. The bullets took effect in the prince's neck, and as he fell he cried, grasping the regimental standard, "Save the flag!"

Wounded soldiers arriving at Frankfort on the Main tell how Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse, the emperor's brother-in-law, while leading his regiment during a recent battle, seized a flag from the hands of the wounded flag bearer and carried it on to victory.

Joke on Eve of Battle.

A refugee who saw some of the fighting on the Belgian frontier said the British soldiers were extraordinary beings.

"They went into battle smoking their pipes," he said.

The coolness and nerve of the British soldier on the firing line are the subject of a cable message to the Central News of London:

"The British troops went to their positions silently but happily. There was no singing because it was forbidden, but as the men deployed to the trenches there were sallies of humor in the dialects of the various English, Irish and Scotch counties. The cockney was there with quips about 'Uncle Bill,' and every Irishman who went into the firing line wished he had money to buy a little Irish horse so that he might 'take a slap at the uhlans.'

"As for the cavalry, the officers declare, their charges against the Germans were superb. They charged as berserks might have done. They gave the uhlans the surprise of their lives."

Heroes of Gumbinnen.

The St. Petersburg Novoe Vremya publishes an account of what it terms the memorable charge of the Russian horse guards at Gumbinnen in the recent fighting, in which the Russians were victorious. It says:

"The Germans held a position in a small village from which they were pouring a murderous fire on the Russian troops. Cavalry was ordered to silence the guns. The first squadron rode straight at the battery, which, firing point blank, mowed down the Russian ranks, frightfully annihilating the squadron. The second squadron followed fast and would have shared the same fate except that at the critical moment a third squadron rushed on to the enemy from the flank, sabered the gunners and routed the whole German force."

Carnage at Altkirch.

A private, Jean Martin, invalided home, tells Le Matin how the French took Altkirch, in Lower Alsace. He says:

"After whole days of maneuvering we came near Altkirch, commanded by a ridge of the Vosges. We advanced our regiment, being in the center, and our artillery was blazing away.

"When we reached the top we saw at our feet a slope covered with cultivated fields. At the foot of the declivity were station and town. What a descent that was in skirmishing order among the potatoes and beets! What music accompanied us! Bullets whistling from all sides! Grand Dieux! What whistling that was!

"We continued to advance under a hail of bullets. Then 'charge' sounded. The whole brigade dashed forward with bayonets fixed. The enemy abandoned their positions and retired. That evening we slept at Altkirch, my company being in the cemetery."

Dramatic Farewells.

Something of the pity of war's partings of families was brought home to New York with the sailing of the French Line steamship France for Havre with 200 French and Swiss reservists and a handful of French army officers on their way to the front from South America. The pier echoed with the wild abandon of Latin enthusiasm and grief. Women clung to the necks of husbands and brothers leaving for the homeland to fight against the Germans. Children stood clinging at their knees, staring dazedly about, while father and mother alternately caught them up, pressing them to their breasts. Elsewhere young men, unmarried, with silk French, Belgian and Swiss flags, rushed about the pier, cheering for the allied armies.

Near the gangway a handsome young French reserve officer was supporting his wife in his arms.

"I don't ask you to stay," she cried in English, "but—oh, oh, Jean, come back to me!"

He kissed her with set face, saying nothing, and when the insistent bugles summoned all passengers ashore he released her arms gently and then, turning from her, plunged into the crowd on the gangplank and was lost. The woman stood where she had been. Presently the man appeared on the first cabin deck. She moved to the pier rail, and so the two stood until the steamship took him away.

Oddities In the News.

Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, England's actor-manager, is serving as commander of a special squad of forty volunteer policemen recruited from among London Thespians. They are on duty from midnight to 4 a. m.

To end hostile demonstrations a German woman shopkeeper of Islington married an Englishman, and "Jenkins" has replaced "Hoggesbatt" above the shop.

After being on terms of warmest friendship for years, twenty-two out of thirty men employed by an export firm in London have left to fight in the different armies. Six are fighting for Germany, eight for France, four for Russia, three for Austria and one for England.

Bandsman Blake, the English boxer—American sporting writers to the contrary—was arrested in London for speeding his motorcycle. "I was in a hurry to enlist," he told the court. He was discharged.

Change Schmidt to Smith.

Naturalized German shopkeepers in London are taking unusual precautions against possible boycotts. The following notice posted on a bakery in Soho is being copied by other dealers:

"Two hundred and fifty dollars reward will be given to any charitable institution upon the discovery by any person of adulteration in the bread sold in this establishment.

"God bless our king and country. The proprietor of this business wishes to inform the public that he is a naturalized British subject of many years' standing and his loyalty is equal to that of any of his most gracious majesty's subjects, whom he treats and respects as man to man."

One German baker in south London whose name was "Schmidt" promptly changed it to "Smith."

Fought In Bare Feet.

Le Matin of Paris relates that on the arrival of a train bringing wounded Senegalese riflemen nearly all were found smoking furiously from long porcelain pipes taken from the enemy and indifferent to their wounds.

Though their arms and bodies are hacked by sabers, the Senegalese complain of nothing but the obligation to fight with shoes on. Before going into battle at Charleroi they slyly rid themselves of these impediments and came back shod in German footwear to avoid punishment for losing equipment.

A colonial trooper among the wounded brought to Paris from the front declared that he felt nothing when his arm was shot off by a shell until he saw it lying on the ground. Not being able to bear the thought of leaving it, as he expressed it, as "meat for the Prussian dogs," he picked it up and ran several yards with it before he was overcome.

A Human Stable.

The Cirque de Paris, where the crowd of Belgian refugees has grown to 2,500, has taken on the aspect of a human stable. The floors of the wide foyers are all covered with straw.

One of the refugees, Mme. Agnes Bourssault of Walkenraedt, in telling her story of the flight from Belgium said:

"I have lost my husband and brother, who died in the noble cause, and now you see me alone with my five children. The greatest suffering I underwent was from hunger. We could get hardly anything to eat for three days except a little stale bread."

Georges Just, a restaurant keeper, of Chenee told this story: "When we heard the Germans approach my wife and I fled across the river into Liege. Just before they entered there we left.

"Never shall I forget the sights we saw along the roadside, where multilated corpses and wounded and dying strewed our pathway."

ANOTHER FAMOUS QUINCY MAN

Another Josiah Quincy was the subject of the Hall of Fame sketch in the Boston Globe last week. Josiah Quincy, who was eminent as a statesman, as Mayor of Boston, and as President of Harvard University was born at Boston, Mass., Feb. 4, 1772, died at Quincy, Mass., July 1, 1864.

Josiah Quincy was the son of the Josiah Quincy called "Junior," and was only a boy of three years when his patriot father died at sea on the way home from England.

Young Quincy had the good training of Phillips Academy, Andover, for Harvard College, was graduated, made law his profession and settled in Boston. The people of Massachusetts, recognizing his abilities sent him to the State Senate, and then nominated him for a seat in Congress in 1809. He was then only 28 years old, and the newspapers made so much talk of his youth and urged so eagerly that a cradle be provided in which to rock him, it resulted that he was defeated.

But five years later he was elected and served for 10 important years. In 1807 he voted against the Embargo act of President Jefferson that would forbid American vessels to leave their ports. This was intended as a measure to put the country in a position to defend itself in preparation for war. Quincy had taken the right stand, as in 1809 this was repealed as "ruinous to the States, unsatisfactory to France, and ineffectual as a retaliation upon England."

Quincy also voted against the War of 1812, but when it was declared he stood loyally by the Government. The one other measure of importance he voted against was the admission of Louisiana as a State. He believed that all new States must be formed from what had been territories of the United States.

In 1822 Josiah Quincy was elected Mayor of Boston, and he instituted reforms that practically reorganized the Police and Fire departments. During his administration he established the first house of correction in Boston, the House of Reform for juvenile offenders, Quincy Market was built, and the corner stone of Bunker Hill Monument was laid by Lafayette.

In 1829 Josiah Quincy was chosen president of Harvard College, succeeding John T. Kirkland. He made some changes that were admirable, one being the refusal to protect students from the authority of the Massachusetts courts. This effected a great improvement in the discipline. While he was president Dane hall was built for the Law School and Gore hall for the University Library. The Astronomical observatory was also founded and equipped.

When he resigned from Harvard he retired to his farm and the enjoyment of a literary life. Two of the books he wrote are extremely valuable works, a "History of Harvard University" and a "History of the Boston Athenaeum."

ASSAILANTS WERE SENTENCED

William Dorcett and Frank Hosmer of Neponset, the two men whom it is alleged set upon and beat Special Officer Charles J. Nelson of Quincy while was on his way through Neponset to take a Quincy car on the night of Sept. 26, were sentenced in the municipal court at Dorchester on Monday. Dorcett was sentenced to six months in the house of correction and Hosmer three months in the same institution. Both appealed and were held in $300 each for the grand jury. Nelson had been attending a dance at Neponset and was set upon near the car barn. When found by a police officer he was unconscious. He was removed to the City Hospital where he remained twelve days recovering from a severe wound on the head.

No Pie Crust Promises

Wise advertisers never make "pie-crust" promises.

They know that to break faith with the public would be fatal—worse than throwing their money away.

That is one reason why advertised goods are more in demand.

People know that there is quality behind them.

They look on them as standards. Any dealer knows that there are more calls for advertised goods than for goods not advertised.

This is especially true if they happen to have been advertised in the newspapers which directly reach the people.

The standard of advertising is more exacting today than ever before. Advertisers are more careful of their promises and more interesting in their text and illustrations.

The world grows better.

QUINCY PIANOFORTE SCHOOL
Greenleaf Block, 1419 Hancock St., Quincy

ADVANTAGES:

1.—Better instruction and better prices cannot be obtained in Quincy.
2.—Our system is thorough and modern; our instructors are capable, experienced and up-to-date.
3.—Our pupils have the privilege of appearing in public three times a season; and know how to conduct themselves correctly and gracefully on the concert stage.
4.—Our 1st, and 2nd, year General Class lessons are worth as much as the regular piano lessons, but this year we include these lessons with the price of the piano lessons alone.
5.—The director, Mr. Hackelton, is a graduate of the N. E. Conservatory of Music, finished abroad and a leading teacher in Boston for ten years.
6.—We award certificates to pupils finishing our courses.
7.—We are presenting a limited number of music rolls to our pupils as a souvenir of our opening.

Information regarding terms, teachers, system etc., will be cheerfully given at the School, or a circular sent on request.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvah H. Pierce, nee Claffin, are receiving congratulations on the birth, Sunday morning of a son.

The public may be interested to know that the Quincy Day Nursery had the most successful Tag Day in its history September 26, taking in $550.00 in cash. The generosity of the public is greatly appreciated by the Quincy Day Nursery.

An entertainment and dance will be given at Colonial hall, Wednesday evening, under the auspices of John Adams commandery, Knights of Malta.

Tickets for the first supper of the Bethany church ladies tomorrow evening should be purchased in advanced. Probably the full capacity of the dining room will be tested.

Mrs. John F. Hunt of Bigelow street has been confined to the house by illness since Saturday.

The State and County officers of the King's Daughters organization in Massachusetts are giving encouragement and support to the enterprise in which Unity Circle of Quincy are engaged.

A most beautiful fall day after the rain. It will be a good time now to begin to harvest that crop of apples before a high wind strips the trees of their fruit. More stormy weather is indicated the latter part of the week.

Hayman Sarkin, doing business on Hancock street, has assigned to Winfield S. Patterson of Boston.

The editorial staff of the King's Daughters edition of the Daily Ledger have been encouraged by the ease with which the articles for the various departments have been secured.

Maple lodge, K. L. of H., will hold an entertainment and a basket luncheon in Protection hall on Wednesday evening. The affair will be in charge of Mrs. Mary Webster and Miss Isabelle McBirnie.

George L. Gill Rebekah lodge will give an entertainment and a harvest supper in Odd Fellows hall on Thursday evening. The supper will be served at 6.30.

Mrs. Henry P. Furnald of Newcomb street left today for Springfield, for a two weeks visit to Mr. and Mrs. William Warmington. Mrs. Furnald is the mother of Mrs. Warmington.

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Ellsworth returned today from Megantic where they have been in camp since their marriage late in September.

The Harmony auction bridge club began its winter series the first Friday in October and met with Mrs. H. E. Hardwick of Revere road. The officers elected for the ensuing year were Mrs. Rednor Coombs, president, and Mrs. Warren Rideout secretary.

John J. Phelan, father of Joseph "Fay" Phelan the well known athlete, died at his home on Ritchie road this morning after a long illness. Mr. Phelan was one of the best known members of St. John's parish and for many years directed the amateur theatricals presented for the benefit of the church. He is survived by his family.

LITTLE GIRLS SELL CANDY

To Raise Funds to Help Miss Ellingson

Two little girls of Elm street are entitled to considerable praise for their contribution to the fund for Miss Martha Ellingson of 18 Curtis street, who lost a leg at the Saville street railroad crossing. Grace Pearl Condon and Marie Singler of 33 Elm street, made fudge last Friday, and on Saturday sold it for five and ten cents at Johnson Bros. market and Thompson's cafe in City Square. This morning they brought to the editor of the Daily Ledger the large sum of $3.16 in small coin. We assure them that no gift will be appreciated more by Miss Ellingson.

Forward all money to Rev. Paul Hallin, 101 Glendale road, Quincy, who has been appointed treasurer for this subscription fund, or to the editor Daily Ledger.

QUINCY WEST

Patrolman Jeremiah Hinchon, who was operated upon at the Carney hospital, is now at his home on Miller street. He is one of the most popular officers on the force and is assigned to day duty in Quincy West.

Richard Callahan, driver of hook and ladder 2 resumed his duties at the Wollaston fire house Monday. Callahan was injured about two months ago when an auto was driven between the ladder and hose wagon on Wollaston bridge, with the result that the horses became frightened and swung to one side. The truck struck a pole and Callahan was thrown from his seat. He was taken to the Quincy City Hospital where he was a patient for about five weeks.

CITY HALL HAPPENINGS

Mayor Whiton to issue a Letter on Taxes

Mayor Whiton gave a hearing in private this morning on the complaint against Special Officer Charles J. A. Nelson who was suspended by Chief Burrell for conduct unbecoming an officer. The witnesses heard were Chief Burrell, Officers Phillips and Falion. Officer Nelson did not appear to defend the charges. Just what action will be taken by the Mayor is not known. As Nelson was only appointed for a year, and that year ends Dec. 31, it is probable that no decisive action will be taken, other than he will be given no work.

Mayor Whiton said this morning that he wished that the Daily Ledger would say to the citizens of Quincy that he is ready and willing to hear and receive all complaints, but he wanted it distinctly understood that he should pay no attention to letters making complaints that were unsigned. If the writter was not willing to sign his or her name to their communications it was useless to write them.

The Assessors went to Boston on Monday and had a long conference with the officials in the Tax Commissioners office. The object of their visit was to obtain information as to what powers they had in the matter of abatements. There is nothing relative to their visit to be given out.

Mayor Whiton it is understood is preparing a statement in regard to taxes which he hopes to be able to give to the public in a few days.

A hearing will be held in the office of Mayor Whiton tomorrow morning on the charges of Harry Levowich against Capt. McKay. The hearing will be a private one.

In anticipation of a vacancy in the near future in the clerical force at City Hall, it is understood that there have been a number of applications for the position. However the young lady who is supposed to cause the vancancy has not as yet resigned. The position is a civil service one and will have to be filled from the civil service lists.

Owing to the controversy over the site for the school lot in Ward Two, it may prevent any appropriation for that purpose being made this year. In the meantime Norfolk Downs and Squantum are coming to the front and pressing their claims for a school site. It is understood in both of these localities the residents are unanimous on sites.

NOW SENIOR CADET OFFICER

The Board of Admiralty of the Massachusetts Nautical School announced this morning that Russell C. Damon of this city had been appointed senior cadet officer aboard the Ranger. Mr. Damon is well known in this city. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Damon and was graduated from Quincy High school with the class of 1912. He entered the state branch of the naval service shortly after graduation and his advancement has been rapid. He is the only Quincy boy ever honored with the senior commission. Mr. Damon will be ranking officer of a crew of 156 cadets and three officers aboard the ship.

QUINCY ATLANTIC

Rev. Dr. Stephens will be the speaker at the revival meeting at the Atlantic Methodist church this evening. The pastor spoke last evening.

The milk thieves who have operated extensively in Atlantic turned the tables on Patrolman John Duffy by stealing the milk from the steps of his home on Hunt street while he guarded the home of his brother officer, John Halloran on Monday morning. Officer Halloran's milk was stolen Saturday and Sunday morning. He spoke of the matter at roll-call and Officer Duffy offered to keep an eye out for the thieves. Duffy kept his word but the scene of activities were transferred and when he reached home at daylight he found himself the victim of circumstances.

Alice Zita O'Connell, a well-known resident of Norfolk Downs, died at the Homoeopathic hospital, Boston, this morning. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius O'Connell and her funeral will take place from their home on Thursday morning.

Chester I. Campbell, who is seeking the Republican and Progressive nominations for Mayor opens his campaign in Squantum tonight, and the enthusiasm will be added to by a corps of Scotch pipers who will sing through megaphones some original Campbell songs. Among those announced to speak in addition to the candidate are John L. Hamilton, and Alexander Falconer. There will be red fire and in addition to the pipers the Samoset club of Wollaston will sing.

The soccer game between the Quincy and Montclair schools, scheduled for Monday, was postponed.

STILL ALARM WHITNEY ROAD

The Central Station Auto Chemical was called on a still alarm about 1 o'clock this morning for a lively blaze at the residence of Walter C. Ela on Whitney road. The fire was caused by electric wires becoming crossed in the basement, and not from rubbish barrels as first supposed. The fire made a dense smoke and when the family were awkened the house was filled to suffocation. Mr. Ela, whose right arm is still in a sling, managed to get the family out, but was unable to put out the fire or call for help by telephone as the wires had been burned o ff. Rushing into the street, he shouted for help. This aroused some of the neighbors, who telephoned the Central fire station. The firemen made a quick run and soon had the fire under control. It had burnt to the ceiling, however, and the lathing on the ceiling was on fire when they arrived. Promptness in responding only saved a bad fire.

But little real fire damage was done, although the occupants of the house got a good scare as did the neighbors who were aroused from their slumber by the clanging of the bell on the fire apparatus as it came down the street. Mayor Whiton was one of those aroused and received quite a scare when the apparatus came to a stop directly opposite his home. He lost no time in getting out to see just what the trouble was.

BATTLESHIPS THE GREAT NEED

A Washington dispatch to a Boston daily says: Battleships still hold their place as the paramount factor in warfare on the sea, in the opinion of controlling American naval authorities despite the ramrkable effeciye ness of submarines, demonstrated since the European war began. The general board of the navy is so much interested in the real tests that are now going on abroad, however, that it will withhold its recommendations as to the naval needs of the United States during the coming year as long as possible, and Secretary Daniels will not prepare his report to Congress until late next month.

In an official statement issued tonight Mr. Daniels said:

While the submarine is a most effective defensive weapon and has great possibilities of marked development in the future as an offensive weapon, it is not believed that submarines in their present state of development will decide any naval war, but that the paramount need of the present-day navy is for battleships by which the ultimate test of strength will be decided."

More battleships will probably be authorized by Congress in December.

ALLARD—AXBERG.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Boston Swedish Baptist church temple on Shawmut avenue, Boston Saturday evening, when Miss Edith Rosalie Axberg became the bride of Carl Harry Allard of Montclair. Miss Ethel Axberg, sister of the bride was the bridesmaid, and Arthur Axberg a brother of the bride was the best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. O. Backlund, pastor of the church. Over 200 friends of the bride and groom were present. The bride received many valuable gifts. A reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Allard will make their home on Harvard street, Montclair.

Adorning the walls of the Adams school building is a handsomely framed picture, the subject of which is Mt. Shasta. The picture is the gift of the Educational committee of the Quincy Women's club, the presentation taking place this morning. On Tuesday morning the pupils of the school usually gather in the assembly hall for exercises, and it was during this time that the presentation took place. Mrs. Mellen, the chairman of the committe was unable to be present, and the presentation speech was made in behalf of the committee by Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham. The gift was accepted in behalf of the school by Alfred E. Townsend, master of the school. Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, president of the Woman's club, was present and spoke briefly, telling the pupils of her visit to Mt. Shasta, three years ago. The club was also represented by Mrs. L. C. Hewson, Mrs. Fred Barnicoat and Mrs. Levi Turner. Following the presentation the pupils gave a dramatization of "The spider and the fly," the exercises closing with the pupils singing one verse of "America."

At 40 Bradford street, Monday evening, by the Rev. D. B. McLeod, M. A., George Albach Moorehead of Cambridge, and Miss Jessie Pauline Johnson, of Somerville, formerly of Nova Scotia were married.

MAYOR CURLEY TELLS QUINCY WHAT TO DO

Should Bombard Massachusetts Congressmen Frequently in Interests of a Merchant Marine

Should Educate Big Cities in the Use of Quincy Granite Paving

The first meeting of the season of the First Parish club was held Tuesday evening in the chapel of the First church, and as usual proved to be an evening of enjoyment to the large number of members and guests in attendance. As in former years the members gathered in the lower room at 6 o'clock, in business dress for a half hour's informal gathering, during which there was a renewal of acquaintances until 6.30, at which time seats were taken at the long tables laid in the chapel, where the usual dinner was served. The menu consisted of hot roast beef and all the fixings, with ice cream and cake as desert.

The head table was set across the front of the platform and at this table in addition to the President, Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson, was Hon. James M. Curley, Mayor of Boston, the speaker of the evening, Hon. Joseph L. Whiton, Mayor of Quincy; James W. Powell, president of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation; John L. Hamilton, president of the Board of Trade; Frank F. Prescott, of the Quincy Daily Ledger; Charles C. Hearn, and Samuel T. MacQuarrie, clerk of the Fore River Corporation.

Following the invocation by Rev. Mr. Hudson, the members got down to the business of the moment, which was the discussion of the dinner, which was served by members of the junior laymen.

The dinner over Mayor Curley was introduced as the speaker of the evening. His honor gave the members a very able address on "My experiences as Congressman and Mayor." The closest attention was paid to the remarks of the speaker, especially with reference to his experiences as Mayor of Boston. Many of the problems which are confronting the Hub are also confronting the citizens of Quincy.

In opening he said that it was his pleasure to represent the Quincy district in Congress for two years and that almost daily he received requests from citizens of Quincy for something. He also supposed that he did more to promote agriculture in Quincy than anyone else, and that many who had planted rose seeds had discovered later that they were potatoes.

He then spoke of the fact that for 275 years a religious institution had stood on this ground, and he was sorry that it was not possible to bring the wise heads of Europe together beneath this roof, where under its influences of the past, the present trouble on the other side might be checked. The inspiration to guide the character of men and women of Quincy that has gone out during these 275 years was inestimable and the part which it had taken in shaping of great policies.

Every city has its problems. The best way to make progress in the right direction is to give the citizens more opportunity to become familiar with the work of people in office. An organization of this character therefore is deserving of the support of every citizen of Quincy and Massachusetts. Legislative bodies he said suffer greatly from the lack of bodies of this kind, for men in public office have little opportunity to form ideas for the benefit of cities that will show results unless there is an organization like this to help shape their course.

GREAT MEN IN CONGRESS.

In the south and west it was the custom for a man to hold office in Washington as long as he achieves results. The great men in the west are not newcomers, neither are they men of one or two terms. Great men in Congress are specialists; men who know a given subject better than all others; men possessed with a superior knowledge along certain lines.

In connection with some of the big men in Congress he mentioned Underwood, Hobson, Alexander and Champ Clark, paying the latter Senator a glowing tribute. He spoke at length on the life and character of Champ Clark, and as instance of his sincerity said that after twenty years in public life he had accumulated less than $1,000 a year. With rare exception it was not possible to bring a harder worked or more honest body of men together than the present Congress.

He spoke of the great influence President Wilson had with Congress. More than any other man in the history of the United States. No longer do we find that a feeling of discontent, that a spirit of anarchy prevails in industrial centres. Not because the suffering of the unemployed is less than a year ago, but there is a prevailing idea such as made it possible for or people in 1775 to take up arms against the principal nation of the world. A great struggle without the hope of reward, but which made it possible that freedom of people and equal rights for all. Such scenes of disgrace as characterized Lawrence with one flag not the red flag with "No God no Boss" but the good old stars and stripes (loud applause.)

If President Wilson has nothing else, he has stopped those special privileges that were sapping the life of our country.

In speaking of his experiences as Mayor, he said we have been making a study of street construction, with the result that we have found that the best is paving blocks laid in grouted cement with a cement coating. The best class of paving is

A PRODUCT OF QUINCY.

A street laid in this manner will last as long as the pyramids. They will give double the service of the best wooden block that can be laid.

This is one of the great opportunities you have to interest the big cities of the country.

Then you have another great industry presided over by one of the youngest men. Mr. Powell of the Fore River shipyard. One hundred years ago a large percent of the goods sold abroad were shipped in American built ships, manned by American sailors. Today less than 8 percent carry the American flag.

We have constructed great railroads and highways to our water fronts, and have then turned our water fronts over to our competitors.

Charges of Cruelty to Prisoners Made by Both Sides and Denied.

Germany has about 300,000 prisoners of war to take care of, according to the latest reports. There have been charges of cruelty and inhumanity made against the Germans by the Russians, one dispatch stating that the tongues of some of the prisoners were cut out. On the other hand, Germany has charged equal atrocities to the allies as regards the German prisoners. The fact seems to be that both sides charge brutalities and both deny the charges of the other. The picture shows Russian prisoners under guard of a German soldier.

CAMPBELL RALLY AT SQUANTUM

Says None of the City Hall Employees Need Have Fears If They Keep Busy

When Quincy Gets Busy It Will Get Results

Chester I. Campbell, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor, opened his city campaign Tuesday night by addressing a large audience in Community hall, Squantum. The hall was crowded, attracted by Campbell's Scotch Highlanders with their bagpipes, the residents of Squantum turned out em masse to welcome Mr. Campbell.

CHESTER I. CAMPBELL.

As a campaigner Mr. Campbell is destined to outrival Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston. Mr. Campbell is filled with the "Bigger, Busier and Better" stuff and although he does not sing himself he was attended by the Campbell Samoset Boosters' chorus. While this chorus will never get any blue ribbons for its singing, it had the Campbell stamp of hustle and ginger and by the aid of megaphones livened things up in true Campbell style.

James H. Sumner, one of Squantum's best known and most active community workers, presided at the meeting. He called to the stage a number of prominent citizens of Quincy including President John L. Hamilton of the Quincy Board of Trade and Councilmen Carl E. Carlson and John R. Nelson.

Councilman A. R. MacDonald of Ward Five opened the rally. He said that Quincy needed efficiency. He said the criticism had been made that Mr. Campbell was too busy a man to be Mayor. "Campbell could accomplish more in two hours at City Hall than any other candidate yet in the field if they worked all day"— declared Mr. MacDonald.

C. G. Palmer of Norfolk Downs a candidate for the council in Ward Six, declared that Mr. ampbell was head of a company that handled more money and employed more men than the City of Quincy every year. He said the statement that Mr. Campbell only slept in Quincy and that all his interests were in Boston, was false. Mr. Campbell has his home in Quincy his children are educated in the Quincy schools, his social life and his interests are in Quincy.

A. L. Stimson spoke of Mr. Campbell as a man whom he had known for 20 years. He said that Quincy needed an executive who has character, integrity, ability and speed. Let's get Quincy on the main line and elect a man who has the speed and the ability to put it there.

CANDIDATE WITH PLATFORM

G. B. Bates Tells What He Will Do As Mayor

G. B. Bates has forwarded to the Daily Ledger his platform as a Mayoralty candidate with a request that it be published. There are five planks as follows:

"Guarantees an $18 tax rate.

"Guarantees to every home owner a lower tax bill in 1915.

Guarantees to uncover more than ten million dollars worth of taxable property, and it won't be that of the home owner.

"Guarantees more money for our schools and streets.

"Guarantees to be a member of the Board of Assessors and to stop class tax-dodging, rebating, and undervaluing.

"Guarantees a constructive and progressive administration."

Mr. Bates will speak tonight before the Montclair Improvement Association and Thursday night before the South Shore Master Plumbers Association at the Board of Trade Rooms.

TELEPHONE MEN FOR KINCAIDE

John F. Scott, commercial representative of the Telephone Company at Quincy, entertained a party of telephone men at his home on Presidents road, Braintree, Tuesday evening. The occasion was the passing of Mr. Scotts birthday anniversary. There were about thirty telephone men present and the evening proved one of general enjoyment to all. Mr. Scott was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Scott and his son John A. Scott, and there was music and refreshments.

During the evening Col. Henry L. Kincaide, candidate for congressman, was introduced as a man who had done things, and was the kind of man this district needed to represent it in Congress.

In reply Col Kincaide spoke for half an hour or more telling in his own way what he believed a congressman should do, and outlining what his policy would be if elected, which he felt sure he would be. The colonel was enthusiastically received by the telephone men and it is safe to say that he is assured of their support.

How a mere statesman must wish he were either a football or baseball player!

The railroad stockholders need not expect to get any of the prospective advance in passenger fares, as the employees haven't had their wages doubled for the last six months.

The war correspondents are bottled up pretty tight, but it is hoped they are permitted to go to the libraries and telegraph home accounts of the Napoleonic battles.

If this weather continues taxpayers will be able to save enough on their coal bills to pay their taxes by the first of January.

Educators say that boys must learn to fight and take their own part at school. They can always get practice licking the smaller kids.

In spite of the barber's fascinations as a conversationalist, safety razors grow more and more popular.

The politicians are anxiously inquiring whether the deep convictions they feel on the prohibition question would better be on the church or the liquor side.

It is foolish to despair of the future of the country while mother is turning out these glorious autumnal apple pies.

The man who bought several barrels of flour on the top of the high market for wheat, would do well to stop reading the stock reports and put his money in the postal savings bank.

PLACING SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

Too much care cannot be given by the school committee, the people and the district served, and councilmen in erecting new school buildings. Of course the main requirement should be to place the building to accommodate the greatest number to use it, in a location easily accessible in all kinds of weather.

The building should have most of its class rooms to the south and west for light, sunshine and warmth, and on level land, not exposed to wind and storms so that it can be readily heated at minimum expense.

It would seem that some one blundered badly in placing the new Adams school on the outskirts of the district where it looks to be one sided in its service. It is also badly exposed to the elements, on high elevation facing north with heating always difficult.

Now that we are to have another new building to help out the congestion at Quincy Point don't let us blunder again. Take the lot best suited to the needs of the district regardless of what pressure may be brought to bear by interested land speculators or politicians. Housing children properly should be an easy matter to those whose province it is to study school problems and the school board and parents should be competent to decide on location of school buildings.

THE BELCHER ASSOCIATION

Opens Its Season at East Milton School

The Belcher School Association of Milton held their first meeting of the season Monday evening in the school hall with an attendance of about 150, President Louis V. Gosselin opened the meeting, and the secretary's report was read and accepted. The executive committee announced that there would be five meetings of the association this year and gave the following program: The first of December the second meeting will be held and will be in the form of a musicale entertainment in charge of Mrs. Lewis Harlow. The third will be held in February when Dr. Harris Kennedy will give an illustrated lecture on the Bermudas." At the April meeting, Miss Turner, the school garden teacher, will give a talk on "School Gardens." The last meeting will be held in May and Principal Charles L. Curtis of the High school and Superintendent of Schools Frank M. Marsh will explain the courses of study at the High school.

The program for Mondays meeting was in charge of the teachers of the school and Principal Orin A. Andrews presided. The program included songs, recitations, folk dancing and reading by pupils of the school. Following the entertainment ice cream and cake were served by the following young ladies: Edith Cross, Lillian Harmon, Marion Stocker, Catherine Duggan, Lucy Bigelow, Mary Gallagher, Olive Robinson, Mary Murphy and Lela Martin.

THE ORPHEUS CONCERT

Splendid Evenings Entertainment at Alpha Hall

Alpha hall had a capacity audience Tuesday evening on the occasion of the concert of the Orpheus Male Quartet of Boston, assisted by Thomas I. Robie, humorist. The evening's entertainment started promptly at 8.15 with a popular medley by the quintet; then "Onward March" by Geibel, was sung by the quartet. A sonorous bass solo "Song of the Armourer," by Nevin, was Mr. Wharton's contribution; then readings and humorous selections by Mr. Robie. Mr. Clark the local favorite, was accorded a fine reception and responded by singing "A little love, a little kiss," by Silesu. He was recalled twice, and presented with a beautiful bouquet. A piano solo by Mr. MacFarlane was followed by "Sunset," Van de Water,, sung by the quartet. A duet "Batle Eve," Bonhesur, was sung by Mesrs. Clark and Halverson, then the "Sailors Chorus" by the quartet. Mr. Robie entertained the audience. A fine baritone solo Bedouin Love Song," by Pinsuti, was sung by Mr. Halverson. He responded to an encore by singing the "Stein Song," by Bullard, assisted by the quartet. A splendid evening's entertainment was concluded by the singing by the quintet of "Medley from the South."

John R. Nelson, Republican, Councilman Ward 6.

Alfred H. Richards, Progressive, Councilman Ward 5.

MAYOR CURLEY

War will greatly increase trade with the United States.

You have a splendid water front in Quincy and a great industry. The largest shipbuilding industry this side of New York. Here you have an opportunity to develop the repairing of vessels. We must develop the merchant marine and it we do our part we will make Massachusetts the first or second commercial centre in the United States.

What can you do to further the merchant marine? Bombard your senators and congressmen frequently, under the advice of men who know what should be done. Keep everlastingly at it, and in 1916 there will be a pay roll at the Fore River larger than the adult male portion of your city today.

SHOULD PAY WELL.

Speaking of public officers he said he firmly believed that service rendered by any individual was in direct ratio to the compensation received. You cannot expect good service from $50 a month man. If Quincy wants to secure the best men for Mayor and councilmen they must pay in proportion to the service rendered. The speakers statement that a small board of directors was better than a large board, evidently caught the audience, if anything could be judged by the applause which followed it.

The real hustling in Boston for the next four years, he said, could be traced to the opposition to his candidacy. Everybody was against him, including the newspapers, except the voters. He had pledged the people to give them an honest administration and he had kept his word, and would keep on doing so for four years. Many of the old theories in Boston had been abandoned and new ideas had taken place of the old ways of doing business. Now when the city wants to purchase anything it does it in the same manner as an individual.

He then went on to say how by buying a year's supply of coal at one time he had saved the city $80,000 and by buying flour when it was $7.25 a barrel he had saved the city $30,000. In supplies alone this year he was saving the city $18,000 a month. He was told by union labor that he could not give the lowest bidder for coal the contract because of labor trouble, but while in favor of the workingman he has given the contract just the same. He also spoke of the large saving he had made in the matter of street lighting.

A high tax rate is no invitation to a new industry to locate in your city. High tax rates and large valuations will drive away industries.

Continuing as to his plan of saving the city of Boston money, he told how he had reduced the pay rolls. Citing one example, he said that in the engineer's department he had found twelve men, and he had reduced the force to three men. They had been able to do all the work of the office, and still find time to go and see the Braves. Then in the matter of interest, the banks had been paying 2 1-2 percent on city deposits, and they said they could not increase that interest, but when it was intimated that the deposits would be withdrawn, they increased the interest to 3 per cent. In conclusion he said he was giving Boston an honest and strict observance of the law and intelligent direction. With these Boston is well on the road for the betterment of the entire American people.

Mayor Curley was given a great ovation as he completed his address and he was given a rising vote of thanks.

It was announced that he would answer questions and Mr. MacQuarrie asked if he would explain about the Ward 17 club.

In reply, His Honor said the club was formed because the growing trusts were depleting Roxbury of its industries and depriving men, women, boys and girls of their means of livelihood. He also spoke of the work the club was not doing at Christmas in providing dinners for poor children. And the club, which was known as the Tammany club, was doing an excellent work along the lines for which it was formed.

Charles C. Hearn asked in regard to the continuation of the subway system of Boston with a line to Quincy for connection for suburban patrons, to which Mayor Curley replied that eventually the subway might be continued to Fields Corner.

Before the speaker was introduced there was a short business session at which time the proposed amendment to the by-laws increasing the membership limit from 200 to 225 was taken from the table and adopted. Something like sixteen new members were admitted by the executive committee at the meeting.

At the conclusion President Hudson made some announcements as to future speakers and the meeting closed. As those present filed out to the lower room for hats and coats, they were greeted individually by Mayor Curley.

MEMBERS ONE OF ANOTHER

What a Chamber of Commerce Really Means

Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Perkins in his address to the Lynn Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting emphasized the two essential things governing the constructive work of the Chamber. The first was the spirit which a civic organization of this character disseminates throughout the entire community and second the channel through which the mechanism expresses itself. It is perfectly apparent, he said, that the mechanism needed overhauling. He referred to the remarkable public spirit enthusiasm and good feeling brought about by this constant wave which was still going on, the principle being if the need be right there is nothing so valuable as the desire of the members to have something to say. In other words, a man felt perfectly happy when he was being permitted to say something and making a good speech.

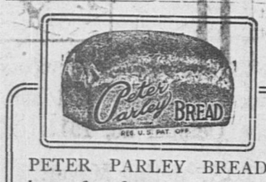

He said: "Most of us little realize the scope of work being done by the Chamber of Commerce, but all having the best interest at heart, what a big thing it is for the community. The work of the Chamber being done is simply marvelous. There has been inter-relation of all members and when the machinery was practically new, when we had to learn the related mechanism, then become harnessed together in that spirit of team work that really has existed throughout the year. The real problem before the community was the solving of the industrial questions between capital and labor, which can be solved if we enter into the right spirit by reflecting in greater measure the spirit of living together as a real community; if only one-third of the things we tried to do have been done it would have been a surprise and sufficient justification for the Chamber of Commerce for the past year."

Dr. Perkins closed with: "The Chamber of Commerce means that we, in this city, must first of all be citizens of the community and then all the problems will be one. We must learn to live together, forming a real corporation. The Chamber of Commerce means we are members one of another."

Health First

In buying food articles we must consider several things—economy, results, convenience, reliability; but the most important is Health.

Health means everything. If one gets cheated in buying dresses, shoes or bonnets it is provoking, but the harm is chiefly loss of money. In buying food articles, if imitations or poor stuffs are supplied, there is a loss of money and probably an injury to health also; and good health is beyond price.

Remember these facts when buying baking powder.

MERIT IN SUGGESTION

Mayoralty Candidates Should Express Themselves

Editor Daily Ledger.

A few days ago there appeared in your paper an article signed "A Believer in Quincy," in which the view was advanced that it was highly desirable that the conduct of Quincy's business affairs should be in the hands of a business expert, an intimation that, in the somewhat free and easy manner in which we selected our chief executives, it was quite unlikely that we would get a first-class business expert, the political game hampering the choice of the wisest citizens many times in the selection of the most desirable candidate.

The writer of the article above alluded to emphasizes the value of a Citizens' Fund for the procurement of an expert, to be an aid to the Mayor or in the administration of the city's business. It seems to me that there is a great deal of good sense in the suggestion. Whether or not the business interest will rally to the support of his proposition is an open question, but it seems to me that it is a sincere effort to find a plan by which the City of Quincy shall get full returns for its expenditures in the conduct of the City's business.

We have several candidates for the office of Mayor at the present time, and it would seem to me wise that the candidates should, each one for himself, make known his disposition to act upon the suggestion of the writer of the "Believer in Quincy" article, so that we might have some expectation that at least an Expediency Committee might give a support to the coming Executive.

GARDNER CLUB.

"The reclaiming of rubber" will be the subject of a very interesting talk which will be given to the Gardner Club of Christ Church and their friends on Thursday evening. J. H. Stedman of Braintree is the speaker of the evening. He is president of the J. H. Stedman Rubber Co., and treasurer of the Monatiquot Rubber Works of South Braintree. These two firms make old rubber into new by a patented process. If you would like to know how your old rubbers can be turned into garden hose you may find out by hearing Mr. Stedman Thursday evening.

This is an open meeting of the Gardner Club, so any man or young man sixteen or over is cordially invited to be present. Refreshments will be served and an enjoyable evening is assured those attending.

An October festival will be held in Murray hall, the vestry of the Universalist church on Thursday evening, Oct. 22. Entertainment at eight o'clock. Reserved tickets twenty-five cents. There will be sandwiches, coffee, cake, ice cream and candy for sale. Also home made ketchup, jellies and pickles.

Next week, Thursday, Oct. 29, the Quincy and Wollaston Women's Clubs combine in a Quincy day at the Pure Food Exhibition at Mechanics building, Boston. Afternoon tea will be served by a committee from both clubs. It will be necessary to buy ticket for admission to the building but club membership tickets will admit to the tea room. It is hoped there will be a large attendance of club members, not for the tea especially but to inspect the exhibit of pure food, to housekeepers and buyers of the family supplies the exhibit has much to offer.

The opera "Mikado" to be given in February under the auspices of the music committee of the Quincy Women's Club will undoubtedly be the musical event of the season. Soloists of note have been engaged for the leading parts and Mrs. John F. Hunt, chairman of the music commitee has the large chorus well in hand. The opera is to be given in the evening and not confined to an audience of women as have been former operas and plays by the club. In the cast there will be both men and women and it promises to be a fine production of this ever popular opera.

There was a good attendance Oct. 15 at the Quincy Women's clubhouse for the first meeting of the parliamentary law class under the leadership of Mrs. Electa Sherman. The classes are to be held each Thursday morning at 10.30 under the auspices of the Legislative committee of which Mrs. W. W. Whitcher is chairman. The class is not only very instructive but affords much amusement to the members in the many situations that arise that have to be settled in a parliamentary way which is sometimes complicated. The class meets tomorrow morning for the second lesson.

WOLLASTON WOMAN'S CLUB.

Tuesday afternoon at the Park and Downs church the Wollaston Woman's Club enjoyed Elizabeth Pooler Rice in her dramatic reading of "Friend Hannah," a drama laid in the time of George Third. Mention was made of the classes in parliamentary law to begin early in November to be held the second and fourth Friday mornings. The Social and Industrial Committee took charge of the donations made at the meeting and these delicacies will be distributed to the sick who are in need of them. Great preparations are making for the Hallowe'en dance, Oct. 30. Mrs. John O. Short has charge of decorations, as was the case last year, when so many enjoyed and appreciated the efforts put forth to make the club dance a success.

PICTURE PRESENTED.

It was eminently fitting that the first picture to be hung in the new Adams school building should be the gift of the Education committee of the Quincy Women's Club. This was presented at the time of the regular weekly assembly in the hall, Tuesday morning. In the absence of the chairman of the committee, Mrs. Jethro R Mellen, the formal presentation was made by Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham.

Mrs. Pinkham expressed her regret that Mrs. Mellen, who was the first to propose the gift could not be present She congratulated the pupils upon their new building and sympathized with them in the pride they must undoubtedly feel in such a school home and called their attention to the added beauty this picture of Mount Shasta would give the hall. She also reminded them that a picture should more than beautify a place. It should give a great thought; something to live by, day by day. The dignity and grandeur of the mountain tells us that "we can make our lives sublime." Rising from the surrounding plain and ever pointing upward it teaches us to "look up and not down" to grow up mentally and spiritually, influencing us to loftiness of purpose, impelling the youth to greater effort to become fine men and women, the grandest and noblest attainment in the world.

Mr. Townsend, the master, in accepting the gift spoke of the fitness of the first picture to be hung in the school, coming from the Education committee of the Quincy Women's Club. He referred to the well known psychological law that we reflect our surroundings and showed the necessity of having school buildings esthetically furnished throughout.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, president of the Quincy Women's Club was introduced and told in her entertaining manner about her visit to the Pacific coast in 1911 and of the trip from San Francisco, California to Portland Oregon, when during a whole day's journey Mount Shasta was in view. In her three months' travel she saw many beautiful things men had made but the most beautiful and most wonderful were those God made. In closing, Mrs. Smith said she was glad that Mr. Townsend, who made the choice, had selected the picture of Mount Shasta as the one to be given by the Education committee.

The pupils of grade two dramatized "The Spider and the Fly." They spoke distinctly and interpreted their parts like born actors.

The guests of the morning were favorably impressed with the courteous attention of the pupils throughout the exercises

HOME ECONOMICS.

Miss Helen Louise Johnson of Watertown, N. Y., chairman of the home economics department, General Federation, has sent out a letter which is a clarion call to every woman in America:

"The present time," writes Miss Johnson, "is one of great anxiety for many in this country. It is a time of agony for our sisters over the sea. Under the existing circumstances it has seemed right to us to urge upon club women all over the country a consideration of what the home economics department has to offer in the hope of mitigating some of the evil effects of the rapidly increasing cost of living, much of which we cannot hope to prevent. There is an increase of economic pressure upon every home in the land. Some can weather it, some can bear it, some cannot. This committee feels that it will not have administered its responsibilities until it has induced club women everywhere to realize the extreme necessity of discussing present problems of living with a desire to assist in solving these, not merely for themselves, but for other women of more limited opportunities.

"The responsibility of the household budget is almost wholly in the hands of the women. They buy the household supplies of all kinds. They generally set the standards of living. Conditions are now such that in thousands of cases the wage and salary earners can get no more. Yet the prices of the necessities of life have risen steadily for the past ten years, rapidly within the past few weeks. There is no other solution of the problem than that of learning how to live adequately, happily and well under the conditions which confront us. Waiting for something to turn up, for the ebb-tide, for a day of falling prices, will not avail. Certainly it will be most disastrous if meanwhile debts accumulate. President Wilson has wisely urged upon American women the need of curtailment and simple living. Agitation, boycotting, suspicion of producer, jobber and retailer, are unintelligent methods of meeting a situation which calls upon us for the exercise of every domestic womanly virtue. It is our great opportunity to show what women can do to prove their sanity and wisdom, or the actual prosperity of the country for a time must to a considerable degree lie in the consumers' hands.

"We ask the co-operation of the civics, public health and industrial and social departments of all clubs, and suggest that the club women arrange meetings where the buying of supplies, the adjustment of family living, the methods of proper retrenchment, and the need of setting an example in ways of simple living, may be discussed. Representatives of other organizations should be invited to these meetings and a co-operative plan be adopted whereby prices can be kept within possible limits, and guidance and cheer given to those whom economic pressure might make down or city charges. These meetings should be open to the public. We suggest that while this period of anxiety lasts, emphasis shall be laid upon the study of the family budget, or the proper use of money, the factors of value and choice, and that every effort be made to uphold and cooperate with the work of State and Federal officials, who are endeavoring to safeguard and improve our food supplies. We do not believe that it is expedient to urge new bills, food or textile legislation at this time. We do believe that it is our great opportunity to establish sincere and simple standards of living and help build up our American industries along many lines.

"This committee is ready to assist in every possible way, and it entreats all clubs to lay aside less urgent programmes in behalf of the home. Let us be thankful for our homes, for our measure of peace and security, and in being this lay aside all spirit of criticism, all rivalries, all littleness of every kind. This is not mere home economic work—it is woman's work—calling all of us to the highest services of womanhood, those undertaken in behalf of homes."

QUINCY DAY NURSERY.

The following article describing the Quincy Day Nursery is written by Miss Hilda Ericson, the 16 year old daughter of Charles A. Ericson, the Republican candidate for the House of Representatives. It is a very good description of the Nursery and will be of interest to all friends.

The Day Nursery is situated on Garfield street. It is a six roomed house, but all of these are not used for the children. The rooms that the children use are a play room, crib room and dining room.

The play room is used on cold and rainy days when the children cannot go out. In this room there is not much furniture for this would hinder their playing. They have, however, a great many playthings.

Then, there is the crib room which is used for the small children who take a nap. Here there are a great many cribs which have to be kept neat and clean.

Then too, there is the dining room where the children eat. In this room there are two long tables and one round table. Around these tables are small chairs. The tables and chairs have to be low because the children are small. There are also some baby chairs for the very small children.

Besides all these rooms, the children have a play yard which is all fenced in to keep them from running about. In this yard there are two lawn swings and a summer house, but otherwise, they have nothing to play with.

Now, I'm going to tell a little about the children. The Nursery opens for the children at 7 o'clock. Some mornings there are many children, while other mornings there arn't so many. During the morning, the children play games, swing or anything to enjoy themselves. The older children go to school. They are quite good children and are not allowed to do things that they should not do.

About 9.30 comes luncheon. It is a light lunch consisting of cake, cookies or bread. The children run for joy to get their lunch and it is a very pretty sight to see them. Care has to be taken to see that the little ones get some, for usually the older push them out of their way. After this, they play, again, until dinner.

About 12 o'clock comes dinner. When the matron rings the bell, the children run for joy. Before they go to the table, they have to be washed and combed. They also have to have clean bibs. After this is done, they go into the dining room and take their assigned places. Before starting to eat, they sing a song of thanksgiving. Then they eat. These children eat very much, probably because they do not get so much at home. When they are all through eating, they again sing the same song as before starting to eat.

Then, they sing all the Nursery songs and say all the pledges. They do this very nicely. When all this is done, they take off their bibs and all in chorus they thank the matron for the good dinner. Then, they are ready for play.

The children spend the afternoon about the same way as the morning. They also have a lunch in the afternoon consisting of cake or cookies. They have this about 3.30. They are just as happy to get it as they were in the morning. They haven't very much time left after their luncheon. Some go home at 4, but as there are so many, it is usually 6 before they all have gone. They spend every day in about the same way.

I think the Nursery is a very good thing, because mothers who go out working have some place to bring their children and can feel that they are safe. It is also very cheap, five cents a day, so that every mother can afford it. They get very good food and good care for this small amount. This Nursery is supported by the generosity of the citizens of Quincy.

STATE FEDERATION.

The active work of the Federation has begun with a great deal of earnestness and enthusiasm. Plans which have been carefully thought out during the summer have been brought to the committees for consideration and co-operation. The increasing interest in the purpose of the Federation, as well as a more sympathetic understanding of its ideals, is shown by the numerous invitations to hold conferences and meetings which have been received from clubs throughout the State.

The home economics department announces a course of five free lectures to be given in co-oeration with the New England Economics Associations,the Massachusetts State Grange and the extension service of the Masschusetts Agricultural College. (1) Home Economics, the meaning of the subject, need of educations etc. (2) Food and Food Values; demonstration in cooking. (3) Sanitation of the Home. (4) Labor Saying Conveniences, equipment for the home, with display of modern appliances. (5) Household Management, Accounts, etc.

A conference will be held Nov. 13 at North Adams, Dec. 7 at Bridgewater, and Feb. 10 at Roxbury. A literature conference will be held at Jamaica Plain on Dec. 18 and one on social and industrial conditions in Boston, by invitation of the Council of Jewish Women; on Jan. 18. Public health conference is to be held in Boston Jan. 14. The federation is concentrating its work during the month of October on its department at the Pure Food Exposition at Mechanics Hall.

The annual fall meeting of the Federation will be held by invitation of the Norwood Women's Club at Norwood Nov. 4. The morning session will be devoted to reports of the biennial, and "Prison Reform" will be the subject of the afternoon

THE NEEDLEWORK GUILD.

"If only a little brige could be thrown from the Island of Waste to the Island of Want, how both would benefit" said Lady Wolverton, when confronted by the pressing need of a certain charity. But not content with the framing of her aphorism, she proceeded at once to build the bridge of—Needlework. This was in 1883, at Dorsetshire, England, and since that time, many of these structures have united waste and want, with great and inspiring results. Lady Wolverton showed marked genius in organizing her Society, by making its machinery of such beautiful simplicity that it could be a burden to no one; and the condition of membership, only two new useful articles of clothing a year, was so small a demand that the Society became popular immediately. The elements of popularity and steady growth were in its very structure—no caste, no sect, no hampering prejudices .

The American Guild, modelled in part after the Society in England, was founded in 1885 at Philadelphia, Pa., and received a perpetual charter in June, 1896. From this beginning have sprung numerous Branches. Each Branch controls the distribution of the garments it collects. They may be given to the needy of the town, or to the charities of the nearest great city.

There is hardly a city or town where such an organization would not be a power for good. It does not supplant or in any way interfere with the work of any other society, but it is so designed that it may include and stimulate the large number in every community who do no systematic work.

There is room in it for everyone—for invalids and others with limited time and strength, for the grandmas and for the school-girls, and the good which may be accomplished by these united efforts is beyond estimate. What a blessing it must be to a weary, over-worked mother, to receive new, comfortable garments for her little ones. It is said that a mother failed to recognize her pretty baby, whom she was accustomed to see bundled in an old shawl, when brought to her in a whole new suit of Guild clothes; and also that a little boy, when given a new shirt, asked eagerly, "Is it all for me?" because up to that time, by way of a treat, he had occasionally worn one in turn with his brother.

There are many who make semi-annual pilgrimages to the garret, and return laden with cast-off garments for the poor. Some of this in self-defense; others, because they recog-

TWO GAMES IN POINT LEAGUE

Beach Point and Rocky Point the Winners.

Beach Point and Rocky Point were the winning teams in the weekly roll-off of the Washington Street Congregational church members league at the Wardwell alleys on Tuesday evening. Rev. Stephen B. Lang, the pastor, secured the high single, 105, but lost the three string total to Kay who had 280. Stage Point and Cedar Point failed to gather any points.

The match between Beach and Stage Points was one of the closest ever rolled in the city. Two pins separated the first team single, ten the second and one the third, leaving a difference of 13 in the total.

CLAN McGREGOR STANDING

Nicolls, McKenzies and Smiths Were Winners

As a result of the games Tuesday evening the standing of the Clan MacGregor league is:

	Won	Lost
Capt. McKenzie	16	4
Capt. Nicholl	13	7
Capt. Hughes	10	6
Capt. McLean	9	11
Capt. Mavers	5	15
Capt. Smith	3	13

High team total,—Capt. Hughes, 1388.

High team single,—Capt. McKenzie, 489.

High individual three string total,—Pete Dackers, 322.

High individual single, Capt. McKenzie, 122.

High averages,—Dackers 98, McLean 96, Russell 94, Nicholl 93, Raleigh 92, Stewart 91, David Dackers 90.

Only two men, Drummond and McLean tripled in the Clan MacGregor matches at the Coliseum alleys Tuesday evening, and although several high singles were made the records were never in danger.

The Nicholls crew took three out of four points from the Mavers quintette, Davidson's high single of 118 shining in the next to lowest team single made.

PHYSICIANS ENDORSE VINOL

To Create Strength and for Pulmonary Troubles.

Run-down, debilitated people, those who need strength, or who suffer from chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis may find help in these letters.

Dr. C. L. Dreese, Goshen, N. Y., says: "In cases where the curative influence of cod liver oil is needed, I prescribe Vinol, which I find to be far more palatable and efficacious than other cod liver preparations. It is a worthy codliver preparation in which a physician may have every confidence."

Dr. L. B. Bouchelle of Thomasville, Ga., says: "I have used Vinol in my family and in my general practice with the most satisfactory results. It is exceedingly beneficial to those afflicted with bronchial or pulmonary troubles, and to create strength."

Dr. W. N. Rand of Evans Mills, N. Y., says: "I want to say that I have used and prescribed Vinol in my practice and it will do all you claim for it and more."

We return your money if Vinol fails to help you. Edward J. Murphy, Druggist, Quincy.

SCORELESS TIES AT SOCCER

Two Grammar School Matches But No Points

Adams, 0; Mass. Fields, 0.
Cranch, 0; Wollaston, 0.

Two of the best games ever played by grammar school teams since soccer was introduced, resulted in scoreless ties at Merrymount park on Tuesday afternoon. The Adams failed to score against the Massachusetts Field, and the Cranch school against the Wollastons.

The addition of wings to the goals did not seem to help out any. The players exhibited fine team work and an entire absence of bunching. The passing combinations of the respective sides were strong but each time the ball was kicked out of danger by an almost impenetrable defense.

CAMPBELL RALLY

Mr. Hamilton spoke as follows:

In appearing before you tonight, I have the honor to speak for Chester I. Campbell, but I want it understood, please, that I am here entirely in my personal capacity. I am asked to tell you what I know of Chester I. Campbell, and I am told that I have ten minutes in which to do it.

Gentlemen, I can only begin to tell you of Mr. Campbell in that time. My acquaintance with him dates from 1906, when being an exhibitor at the Boston Automobile Show, as a representative of my company, I waited on him regarding the space for exhibition purposes that I wanted. I found him then, as I have since found him, —fair, equable and just. I wanted a different space than the one I was assigned, and I found him ready to do all he could, in justice to the hundreds of other exhibitors, to satisfy me.

Since that day, I have been thrown more in touch with him in both a business and a personal way, and I have found him at all times interested, willing and considerate.

In the beginning of the year 1908, in searching for a place to build, I met Mr. Campbell, and he offered me my present lot on Elm avenue. He spoke so enthusiastically of Quincy and its advantages that I purchased from him, and I owe it entirely to his interest at the time, that I have become a resident of Quincy. Perhaps some of you will call that questionable judgement on Mr. Campbell's part.

I have seen him on the floor of the Mechanics Building with a ranting horde about him, each clamoring for his attention that some large or small difficulty might be adjusted, and I have wondered at his control of himself, but he was always the same calm, just judge, allowing his personal friends no precedence over those whom he did not know, but, with a grasp of the situation in each case, adjusting those difficulties in a manner satisfactory to all and with a rapidity which showed the master mind.

I have seen him in his office directing his corps of efficient assistants without the slightest flurry or excitement. I have seen him untangle muddles which I think must have surprised even himself, and in all, ever the courteous gentleman.

His ability as an organizer extends outside the limits of our Commonwealth to the far shores of England, from where he has been invited to take charge of enterprises which demand the skill of a big man. His work in the Annual Textile Show everyone knows.

As an organizer and an administrator, his ability is perhaps best and most lately shown in the recent Rockingham County Fair. It may not be known to you, but it is nevertheless a fact, that the Rockingham County Fair Association, previous to this year has never been able to make a success financially. This year, Mr. Campbell was invited to take over the management, and in spite of the fact that the expenses of the fair were $15,000.00 in excess of any previous year, the Association came out even if they did not make a little money, even though conducting an absolutely clean show, in vivid contrast with some that had been held before. Gentlemen, there is a reason for this.

As an executive, Mr. Campbell's work for the Boston Automobile Dealers Association stands out markedly. This Association today, starting some ten or twelve years ago, with only a nominal capital, stands as one of the soundest financial institutions of New England. There is a reason for this, gentlemen, and there sits the reason. It have known Mr. Campbell personally and socially, through a large number of mutual friends, and if there is a more popular man in the automobile world, with which I am closely connected, I don't know him.

Mr. Campbell's home life is ideal, and I want to tell you that it was with the greatest difficulty that he has been persuaded to become a candidate for the mayoralty of our city. I had the honor to be of the committee which waited upon him for his decision. Each member of that Committee presented to Mr. Campbell his arguments, why Quincy needed just such a man as Chester I. Campbell. Knowing him as I do, I could see that he was weighing everything that was said most carefully. Finally, he seemed to be convinced but before he would give an answer, he rose and said:

JOHN L. HAMILTON.

"Gentleman:—There is one question you must answer, and on your reply depends entirely whether this conference need last any longer."

Someone asked, what is the question Mr. Campbell?

And this, gentlemen was the question:— ""Am I to understand that any of you gentlemen here before me believe, that I, by implication, intimation or direct word, give any of you to believe that because you come to me and ask me to be a candidate for this high office, that I am in any way bound to consider you or your advice one particle more than the advice of any other citizen of Quincy

We answered "no" each of us answered "no."

Mr. Campbell then said, ""I want it understood thoroughly that there will be no favorites when I am Mayor. The richest man in this city will receive no more consideration than the poll tax payer. Gentlemen, I repeat my question."

We again answered "no," each of us answered ""no."

"And Mr. Campbell made us all happy by saying "Gentlemen I will enter the fight, and in entering the fight I wish to be thoroughly understood again. I will tolerate no mud-slinging. Should anyone be so indiscreet in my behalf, as to attempt to besmirch any of my opponents, I shall personally ask him to refrain from speaking of me at all.

Now, gentlement, I could go on very much longer and tell you what further I know of Chester I. Campbell, I say to you that here comes a man,—a genius as an organizer, a genius as an administrator, and a genius as an executive, and I submit to you, are these three qualities not just what is needed in Quincy?

Here is a man, respected of his fellowmen, one who is not an office seeker, but one whom the office seeks, a man of honor, a man of truth, a man who is willing to serve his city, a man to whom the lines I shall read to you apply in full force as though, J. G. Holland, their author had him in mind when he wrote them, the man I conscientiously believe will be in the coming year, your Mayor. With the quotation Mr. Hamilton closed.

CANDIDATE'S ADDRESS

Mr. Campbell was greeted with wild cheering. He said in part:—

This is a new business for me. I am not a politician, and don't want any politics in my campaign. The 25 men who waited upon me, said that Quincy needed a business administration. My opponents are saying that Quincy is going to the bow wow's. It is not the past administration that has brought about his remark. It is the administrations of several years past and some citizens are now trying to put in a man as mayor who was treasurer of the city under those administrations. There is no graft in Quincy and has been none. Quincy has suffered from poor business administration.

Some of the speakers have mentioned the Rockingham fair as one of my enterprises. I had charge of the Rockingham fair this year and organized a special police force there larger than the City of Quincy's force. I also organized a commissary department for 1500 employees of the fair and also housing accommodations The daily attendance at the fair was bigger than the entire population of the City of Quincy. Do you mean to tell me that a man who can get an organization like that into working order is too busy to be mayor of Quincy. Quincy needs a busy man for Mayor.

When the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the largest commercial organization of its kind in the world, wants something done they hunt up a busy man to do it. President Hamilton is a busy man, and he has made the Quincy Board of Trade a busy organization. Who built your church here and this fine assembly hall? I bet this community didn't get this work accomplished by men who sit around idle all day. When you want something done it takes busy men to do it.

When Quincy gets busy it will get results. Then the city's debt will be decreased and the tax rate will come down. The mayor cannot lower the tax rate. Rules regarding taxation are laid down by the State, and you have to conform to those rules.

Let me tell you of a little incident in City Hall recently. It happened in the Scavenger departmnt. A man in that department was asked why bills were not sent out more promptly instead of every thirty or sixty days. The reply was that "it was the custom." This department is behind $2000 a year.

Every city department should be busy and then the city will attract manufacturers and residents. I was asked to be a taxpayer's candidate, and refused. I told them a taxpayers candidate was bound to be a failure because he could not reduce the tax rate when elected.

No one in City Hall need have any fears if I am elected no matter if he is Democrat or Republican, if he is busy. I want busy men and busy women in City Hall, and if they will do their work, that will be all I ask.

The rally closed with a brief speech by Sidney K. Smith, candidate for school committee in Ward 6 and some music by the Scotch bagpipers.

GOOD ADVICE.

The following reprinted from the second annual report of the Associated Charities of Quincy tells its own story, and shows the practical help of this organization.

Shortly after a recent election a man applied at City Hall for aid and was sent to the Associated Charities office. He was of foreign birth, ignorant, but claimed to control the votes of his countrymen. He said he had been idle several months, had a large family to support including his mother and his resources were practically exhausted and family on verge of starvation.

It developed in taking with him that he had given three months of his time before election to assist a certain politician who had promised him in return for his services a good position with the city. The politician was unsuccessful and did nothing for the man except to recommend him to the Overseer of the Poor.

It was necessary for the Secretary of the Associated Charities to show the man that aid from the city or a private society was not desirable and if obtained might injure his chance of ever obtaining political success as his opponents would use it against him. He was advised to return to the politician and ask for assistance in finding work. The man did so and the next day went to work at good wages. His political friend had helped him find a "job."

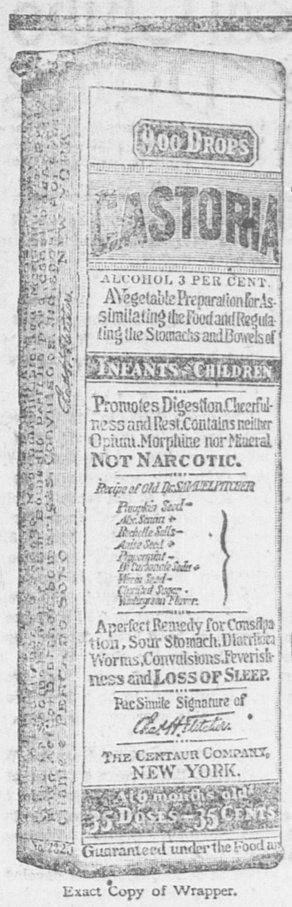

—According to the latest available figures, Pennsylvania stands fifth in the production of wood pulp and is second to West Virginia in the amount of slabs and other sawmill waste used for pulp; Maine stands third.

No Pie Crust Promises

Wise advertisers never make "pie-crust" promises.

They know that to break faith with the public would be fatal—worse than throwing their money away.

That is one reason why advertised goods are more in demand.

People know that there is quality behind them.

They look on them as standards. Any dealer knows that there are more calls for advertised goods than for goods not advertised.

This is especially true if they happen to have been advertised in the newspapers which directly reach the people.

The standard of advertising is more exacting today than ever before. Advertisers are more careful of their promises and more interesting in their text and illustrations.

The world grows better.

KEEPS CLEAR OF EUROPEAN WAR

United States Will Not Be Drawn Into the Conflict

WILSON'S NEUTRALITY STAND

Declared by Former President Taft, In Address Before American Bar Association, to Be Most Admirable —Speaks of Rock Upon Which Progressives Have "Foundered"

Washington, Oct. 21.—Dwelling at considerable length on the European war and its effect on the United States and paying a marked compliment to President Wilson for his neutrality stand, William H. Taft, former President of the United States and president of the American Bar association, delivered his address before that body.

"While we stand aghast at this awful welter of blood, destructive of the happiness of Europe," he said, "we are profoundly grateful for our splendid isolation and the freedom from entangling alliances which Washington enjoined upon the American people.

"The language of the president," he concluded, "in which he declined to be drawn into a discussion or the expression of an opinion on the complaints of belligerents, was most admirable and showed to the world that we do not intend to be drawn into this controversy in any way; that while we are willing to assist as much as possible in bringing about peace, our attitude as judges cannot be invoked until we are given formal authority, with a stipulated condition by the parties to abide by the judgment."

The former president lauded the Bryan peace treaties. The trade commission act and the so-called Clayton act were termed by the former president as the most noteworthy legislation of the year.

"The history of the common law," the speaker said in talking up the laws affecting labor, "shows beyond question that its principles were framed in the interest of the employer, and that in the inevitable and continuing issue between master and servant as to terms of service, the servant was at a great disadvantage."

Taft took a rap at former President Roosevelt, in speaking of the arguments used by those trying to secure a judicial recall.

"They were incorporated in the platform of the Progressive party," he said, "and the leader of the party has felt called upon to declare that they were the rock upon which it was founded. * * * It would appear that the party now finds, instead of being the rock on which it is founded, it is, to change the metaphor, the rock on which it founders."

President Wilson was introduced by former President Taft. Establishment of the character and purpose of the United States in the war situation was the theme of Wilson.

"You can establish the case of your client by the character, conduct and appearance of your witnesses," said the president. "So can you establish the purpose and character of a nation."

Mr. Taft, in introducing the president, pledged the association to assist President Wilson in every way "in the present serious hour."

"BEE BOMB" IN WARFARE

Invention of American Is Guaranteed to Rout an Enemy

Washington, Oct. 21.—An American inventor has been trying to sell the foreign governments, through their embassies here, a new bomb, which, he declares, if dropped from an aeroplane, would put to rout any army.

His device, he explained at one of the embassies, is to fill a large bag with bees. Because of the lightness an aeroplane could carry millions of bees, which, when turned loose, would be as effective as shrapnel, he declares.

Medicine Was Poisoned

Hallowell, Me., Oct. 21.—James E. Kelso, 76, who died suddenly on Oct. 15, came to his death through being poisoned by strychnine. It is believed that the poison was placed with murderous intent in a harmless medicine which Kelso had been taking for indigestion. The authorities are making an investigation.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

Michael Kennedy, 20, died at Pittsburg from injuries received in a football game. His back was broken.

Francis T. Thayer, 72, commander of McPherson post 73, G. A. R., dropped dead at North Abington, Mass., from heart trouble.

While playing in the yard of her home at Boston Christina Thornton, 5, was so frightfully burned that she survived but a few hours.

Because he believed the girl to whom he was engaged had lost interest in him, Fred Lamb, 35, assistant manager of a Boston drug store, took poison and died.

Five old fire bells that were used when the alarms were sounded from Boston fire house towers were sold for $224. They weighed 16,000 pounds.

nize the Divine command to "clothe the naked."

By all means, keep up these charitable attacks upon the garret! There is use for all the decent old clothes, and there are organizations to receive them; but only new garments are accepted by The Needlework Guild of America. Workers among the needy claim that a moral influence is exerted by new garments.

The Needlework Guild of America is non-sectarian.

The object is to collect and distribute new, plain, suitable garments, to meet the great need of Hospitals, Homes and other Charities, and to extend its usefulness by the organization of Branches.

The plan of work is very simple. The annual contribution of two or more new articles of wearing apparel or household linen, or a donation of money, constitutes membership in a Branch. Men, women and children may become members.

RED CROSS SEALS.

Thriugh the co-operation of the American Red Cross and the National Tuberculosis Association, it will be possible to secure Red Cross Christmas Seals in Massachusetts again during the holiday season.

The Massachusetts Anti-Tuberculosis League, 4 Joy street, Boston, has been appointed agent for the state, and they are appointing sub-agents in their territory to sell the seals.

Anti-Tuberculosis Association, Visiting Nurse Associations, Health Committees of Women's Clubs and Social Service Committees of churches are offering their services to the League with the understanding that 82 1-2 percent of the proceeds of the sale can be used in each locality for tuberculosis work, the balance going towards the expense of printing and distributing the seals and advertising matter for the national and state work.

Already some 36 such organizations have offered their services and been appointed agents, and the League is hoping that many more from all over the state will join the campaign.

It is possible for stores of all kinds, banks, news-stands and other mercantile establishments to help in furthering the cause, both by buying the seals outright for their own use on all mailable matter, and also by selling them and returning the entire proceeds to the League.

Last year 1,477,586 seals were sold in this state, and it is hoped that this number will be greatly exceeded this year. Everyone should lend a hand by either buying or selling the seals which cost only one cent each. They will not go on sale until the end of November, but organizations and stores willing to help can offer their services to the League at once.

STORY OF SIEGE OF PRZEMYSL

Russians Contemptuous of Death In Desperate Charges

TRAINED FOR FORTRESS WORK

Eleven Battalions Suddenly Mount Walls of One of Outlying Works and Fierce Hand to Hand Struggle Ensues—Searchlights Turn Night Into Day as Conflict Continues

London, Oct. 21.—The correspondent of the Zeitung Ammittag, a Berlin paper, who entered Przemysl after a four days' motor ride over unspeakable roads, reported the story of the siege of that place.

The first shots were fired on Sept. 18, the city was surrounded on the 20th, and an unbroken bombardment, with many desperate sorties, ensued until Oct. 2, when the Russians sent a white flag and demanded the city's surrender. This was refused.

The attack reached its height on Oct. 5. The Russians seemed utterly contemptuous of death, and stormed again and again. They seem to have learned much from the Japanese war, for they attacked with great skill. The men seemed especially trained for fortress work.

Hills of corpses outside of the works testify to the furious attacks they made. The Austrians estimate that 40,000 men fell, and many prisoners have been taken.

The Russians succeeded in carrying temporarily one of the outlying works. Eleven battalions succeeded in approaching these works without being detected because of damage to the searchlight and suddenly mounted the walls. The garrison retired to the casemates, from which they defended themselves with machine guns and rifles

The Russians forced their way to the casemates and a hand to hand struggle with bayonets, gun butts and hand grenades ensued. When reinforcements, which had been hastily telephoned for, arrived, the attacking party was already retiring, leaving 300 dead and wounded in the casemates and 150 corpses on the walls.

The Russians were still in contact with the fortress on one side and cannonading was in progress when the correspondent left. Rockets, light shells and searchlights illuminated the land before the fortress and the night was made as bright as day. It was a majestic sight, says the correspondent, as the troops marched out through this lighted zone.

DETECTIVE BUREAU RAIDED

Charge That Chicago Officials Were In League With Crooks

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Representatives of the state attorney's office raided the offices of the detective bureau and seized all correspondence and documents relating to crime and criminals.

This action was a part of the campaign of State Attorney Hoyne to get evidence against police officials and detectives whom he accuses of participating in the booty of criminals.

The order for the raid was issued on authority of the grand jury, which body also demanded the presence of John J. Halpin, chief of detectives, and James H. Markham, secretary of the detective bureau.

ALL HANDS ARE SAVED

Fishing Schooner Sunk Off Boston Light by Steam Trawler

Boston, Oct. 21.—Twenty members of the crew of the fishing schooner Annie Perry were rescued from drowning when that boat was sunk off Boston light following a collision with the steam trawler Surf.

The Perry was proceeding toward Boston with 30,000 pounds of fish aboard when she was struck. A heavy fog is said to have caused the accident.

The crew of the Surf, which was heading toward the fishing grounds, saved all of the Perry's men and brought them to Boston.

DR. AND MRS. CARMAN.

Woman, Now on Trial For Murder, and Husband, Also Leading Figure In the Case.

JEALOUS OF HUSBAND

Other Strong Evidence Against Mrs. Carman Is Brought Out

Mineola, L. I., Oct. 21.—Half a dozen of the links in the chain of circumstantial evidence which the prosecuting attorney believes will lead to the conviction of Mrs. Carman for the murder of Mrs. Bailey in her husband's office have been forged. He expects to complete the chain today and end his case.

The links show not only that Mrs. Carman was jealous of her husband, but that she could plan a line of action most deliberately and to the minutest detail. They also proved that she had taken her station at least once before the eventful night of June 30 at the window through which the shot was fired that killed Mrs. Bailey.

Two things stand out prominently in connection with the trial—the speed with which it is being conducted and the remarkable sang froid exhibited by the accused woman. She appears absolutely indifferent.

IRISH IN MAJORITY

Fitzgerald Says They Should Manage Affairs of the Bay State

Boston, Oct. 21.—"It is you and you only who can make this a better, bigger and busier Boston," said former Mayor Fitzgerald in addressing members of the Charitable Irish society. He declared the hope of Boston lies in the Irish Catholics of this city.

The former mayor explained that the majority of the people in Massachusetts are Irish or of Irish descent and that they should control the affairs not only of Boston, but of the state.

He advised members of the organization to train their children so that they would be fitted to rule. "We Irish Catholics must assert ourselves," he insisted.

HOSPITALS PLACARDED

Eleven In Boston Are Declared to Lack Proper Fire Exits

Boston, Oct. 21.—Building Commissioner O'Hearn has given notice that eleven private hospitals of the city are not, in his opinion, provided with sufficient means of egress in case of fire.

In accordance with recent legislation, the commission has placed on these hospitals placards on which notice is given that the building is not provided with means of egress in case of fire satisfactory to the building commissioner.

Many Killed In Train Crash

Paris, Oct. 21.—Between forty and fifty passengers were killed and eighty were injured in a train wreck at Marquise. Two trains collided, owing to the fact that a broken signal wire released the danger signal.

Federals to Quit Kansas City

Pittsburg, Oct. 21.—That Kansas City will be dropped from the Federal league and the franchise go to either New York or Cincinnati is the statement of President Gwinner of the local Federals.

Prohibition In All Russia

Petrograd, Oct. 21.—Czar Nicholas, in a telegram to a Russian temperance society, says: "I have decided to prohibit forever in Russia the government sale of alcohol."

SUPERIOR COURT.

The jury of the Superior Court at Dedham on Tuesday returned a sealed verdict for George T. Guston of this city for $400 after hearing his suit against the Bay State Street Railway Co. Guston sued for $5000 for injuries received when a trolley car derailed.

John Breen of Quincy and the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. reached an agreement for settlement of the suit of the former to recover $1000 damages for personal injuries while a passenger on a train at Quincy, March 10, 1911.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

Leo Dufour of Quincy has been petitioned into bankruptcy at the instance of five creditors whose claims amount to $776.

Municipal politics from now until the primaries, promise to be lively. A number of rallies have already been held by the Mayoralty candidate and others are scheduled. Up to the present time it has been noticed that the campaigners have refrained from mud throwing, which is a thing to be commended. Let us hope that it will so continue through the campaign.

A number of the members of the Quincy Alliance attended the neighborly meeting held by the Alliance at Rockland.

Mrs. Fred W. Austin of Saville avenue has returned from a visit in New Hampshire.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Barrett quietly observed the 10th anniversary of their marriage by entertaining a few friends at their home on Elm street Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Frank Brewer and Mrs. Charles Wilson of Bigelow street have returned from Wilton, N. H., where they have spent the summer at Mr. Brewers farm.

Not to be outdone by his neighbor Andrew Anderson of Revere road, who has made his residence attractive with piazzas front and side, George F. Spooner has nearly completed a commodious piazza on the front and westerly side of his house, which greatly improves his residence. It will probably be the scene of several piazza parties for members of the Riverside club and friends of Mr. Spooner who enjoy bridge. The piazza lights up well at night. It has a solid granolithic foundation and steps.

After leaving Quincy last evening Mayor Curley attended a reception to Prof. Frederic J. Stevenson of Dedham by the Boston City Club, Mr. Stevenson having been appointed ambassador to Argentina.

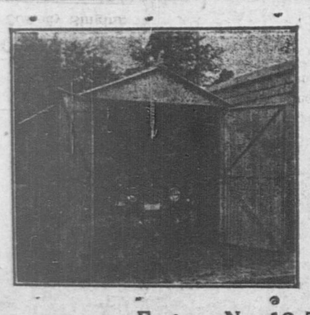

WILL OF MAYOR IS ALLOWED

The will of the late Mayor John L. Miller was presented to the Probate court at Dedham this morning and allowed. The instrument was executed on September 15 of this year, the witnesses being Ada Deacon, John H. Gillis and John D. Mackay. After making specific bequests to each of his children, and making provision for his widow, the will leaves the rest and residue to be divided equally among them. Mrs. Miller and the eldest son, Henry P., are named as executors. The petition for allowance of the will is signed by all the heirs.

MILTON.

Despondent because of the lack of work, Robert E. Turpie of Milton committed suicide by shooting himself through the head at his home on Highland street on Tuesday evening, during the absence of his wife and three children. They found the lifeless body on the floor of his room o ntheir return. Police headquarters were promptly notified and after the remains were viewed by the medical examiner the body was removed to the morgue.

QUINCY WOLLASTON

Seymour B. Scott was an usher Monday night at the wedding in Malden of Miss Louisa Forrest and Donald Brown Wyman of Somerville. Mrs. Scott was one of the young friends of the bride who assisted in serving at the reception which followed the ceremony.

Councilman Daniel Corcoran of Ward Four, candidate for the House of Representatives, and Representative Proctor of Randolph, candidate for Senator, addressed the workers at the Tubular Rivet and Stud Co. at Wollaston this noon. Councilman Corcoran in his speech asked Representative Sandberg to explain to the voters why he voted against the referendum clause on the bill calling for the abolition of party designations and against the bill providing for a half holiday for state employees. Representative Proctor spoke of the opposition of Senator Langelier to the anti-injunction bill.

POSTAL FROM MRS. ECKERT

The postal department of Austria which declared German the official language at the beginning of the war and established rigid censorship over foreign mail, has put a new regulation in force which permits only a post card correspondence.

The first mail under the new regulation from Mrs. Alice Hultman Eckert of this city, who makes her home with her husband at Fiume, Austria, was received this morning. On the cards are brief references to the car loads of wounded brought to the city for treatment in the government hospitals constructed for the purpose.

A letter several weeks ago mentioned the desire of Mrs. Eckert to leave the war zone but at the time she stated such an attempt would be hazardous because the heavily mined harbors endanger ships.

DISTRICT COURT.

Domenico Oliere was arraigned for assault at Braintree. Case continued until Oct. 21.

Edward Cummings was arraigned for violation of the dog law inasmuch that he did not keep a dog restrained after being given notice to do so. The dog was ordered killed and the defendent to pay costs.

John H. Spaulding was arraigned for assault at Braintree. Case continued until Oct. 28.

Samuel Cohen was arraigned for assault at Quincy. Case continued until Oct. 28.

Frank J. Burke was fined $10 and Charles H. Lynch $10 for drunkenness at Milton.

RESPONSIBILITY.

All persons possessing any portion of power ought to be strongly and awfully impressed with an idea that they act in trust and that they are to account for their conduct in that trust to the one great Master, Author and Founder of society. —Burke.

It is meat and drink to me to see a clown. By my troth, we that have good wits have much to answer for.—"As You Like It," Shakespeare.

Men's minds are as variant as their faces. Where the motives of their actions are pure the operation of the former is no more to be imputed to them, as a crime, than the appearance of the latter, for both, being the work of nature, are alike unavoidable.—George Washington.

QUINCY SOUTH

J. B. Sutherland has returned to his home on Independence avenue after spending a vacation of four months at his summer place on Barney River, Nova Scotia. He reports unusually good harvests in his native province, and that the place is on fire with patriotic ardor. Troops are drilling and embarking for the war and large consignments of provisions and clothing are being sent to the Belgians. Mr. Sutherland thinks the present war will have the effect of drawing Canada so close to the mother country that complete nationhood for Canada will not be again considered for generations to come. An imperial federation of all the British colonies is likely to result. The weather was turning cold in Nova Scotia when Mr. Sutherland left there, and he says it felt good to be returning to Quincy. He will resume building operations at once.

Louis Rosenberg of 40 Penn street, who was removed to the Quincy City Hospital in the police ambulance for an operation, is resting comfortably.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron C. Miller of 211 Franklin street are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter on Sunday.

A most enjoyable Hallowe'en party was given by the Misses. Shirley to the Heather Circle of which they are members, at their home on Quincy street, Tuesday evening. The guests entered by the cellar door and were greeted by a ghost, who escorted them up stairs. The house was very beautifuly decorated with autumn leaves, paper pumpkins, black cats and witches, the color scheme being orange and black. Numerous games were played in which the fates of hose present were read. A bountiful uncheon was served, and before departing, Miss Jessie Shirley told a very weird ghost story, and the pleasant evening came to a close with all singing college songs. Three loud cheers were given the Misses Shirley for their generous hospitality and the delightful evening will long be remembered by the members of the circle. The Heather Circle will meet with Miss Jean Crammond. Intervale street, at their next meeting, November 3.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Thirty five teachers of the Christ and St. Chrysostoms churches of Quincy attended the autumn meeting of the South Shore Branch of the Sunday school Union of Cohasset, Tuesday.

President H. K. Barstow, pastor of St. Stephens church, presided and the principal address of the day was by Rev. Henry Power Bull, S. S. J. E., who spoke on "Faith." Herbert F. Price of Wollaston spoke of how the activity of the Sunday School could be increased outside of the church, and Frederick C. Folsom of the Emmanuel church, Braintree, spoke of increasing its activities in the church.

The session passed a resolution stating its regrets on the resignation of Rev. R. E. Armstrong, recent pastor of Christ Church of Quincy, who is now a canon at the Episcopal cathedral at Albany, N. Y., and incorporated in the resolution its best wishes.

Rev. Frederick H. Steenstra of Wollaston was elected delegate to the board of education to take the place of Rev. Mr. Armstrong. It was voted to hold the spring meeting in the new parish house of St. Chrysostoms church, Wollaston.

The officers and executive committee of the branch as now organized are: Rev. H. K. Barstow, president; Rev. William Hyde, vice president; Rev. Allen Jacobs, secretary and treasurer; Rev. Frederick H. Steenstra, delegate to the board of education; William B. Baldwin of Brockton, Mrs. C. A. Bill of Braintree and Mrs. C. M. Chase of Quincy, executive committee in addition to the clergy.

CITY HALL HAPPENINGS

Effort to be Made to Collect Water Bills

Mayor Whiton and Commissioner Brown are going to get after people who have not paid their water bills, as will be noticed by an advertisement in another column. This advertisement calls upon all parties to pay up their water bills and also gives notice that if not paid by Saturday, Oct. 24, that on Monday the water will be shut off from all premises where bills remain unpaid.

In the statement relative to the hearing Tuesday before Mayor Whiton, on the charges against Special Officer Charles J. A. Nelson, it was inadvertently stated that Officer Nelson was not present. The officer was present and spoke in his own behalf.

The hearing scheduled for this morning before the Mayor on the complaint against Capt. Daniel R. McKay by Harry Levowich was postponed a week on account of the inability of the complainant to be present.

Tomorrow, Thursday mornng, the Mayor will give a hearing to Officer Jeremiah J. Connelly who was suspended by Chief Burrell for conduct unbecoming an officer it being alleged that he was intoxicated while in uniform.

BATTLESHIP TRIALS.

The superdreadnought New York is having its trials off Rockland, Me., and 20 or more runs at varying speeds are planned. The trials have been delayed since spring because the ship participated in the Mexican situation. The ship, the product of the New York Navy Yard is pitted against the record of 22.28 knots made by her sister ship, the Texas. She is a 27,000 ton craft and with her sister ship shares the distinction of being the largest in the United States navy. Capt. T. S. Rodgers is in command and the full complement of 1100 men is aboard.

—Authentic records show that cinders, from a forest fire in the tree tops in northern Washington this fall, were carried a distance of twenty miles.

QUINCY POINT

Hannah Moriarty, sister of Timothy Crowley of Germaine avenue, died Tuesday after a short illness. Her funeral will take place Thursday morning, services being held at St. Johns church.

The steam trawler Surf, built at Quincy, while outward bound early Tuesday morning, ran into the fishing schooner, Annie Perry, about a mile below Boston light, and sent her to the bottom The 24 men were saved by the trawler. There was a dense fog at the time.

A reception will be given at the new parsonage of the Congregational church on Friday evening.

QUINCY SQUANTUM

The Ladies Aid of the First church of Christ, Squantum, met in the church parlors Monday evening to complete arrangements for a Hallowe'en box luncheon on Saturday evening, Oct. 31. President Mrs. L. B. Titus presided at the meeting and the following ladies were selected to serve on committee: Mrs. William Spargo, chairman of the entertainment, assisted by Mrs. Matthew McGrain, Mrs. Joseph Uppling, Mrs. John Holmes, and Mrs. C. F. Carlson.

Mrs. James Hagan and Mrs. Thomas Currie will have charge of the decorating. Each lady will bring a lunch in a box or basket trimmed attractively so as to bring a big price at auction. The name of the owner must be enclosed in each basket so the purchaser may share the lunch. The entertainment will consist of Hallowe'en games.

Witches on the Wing and Goblins Grin as Halloween Celebration Comes Around Again.

Photos by American Press Association.

B-r-r-r-rew! What is that you hear through the long, dead silence of the night? 'Tis the sigh and moan of witch and goblin as they gather for their yearly revelry on All Saints' night. You'd better watch out, little boys and girls, or they'll get you! And you, maidens fair, fail not to look in the glass over your shoulder, holding the candle light just so. Lads, this is your time. Don your masks and blow your horns and make the night hideous with your noise. Staid older folks, gather around your festive boards with your Halloween decorations and get all the fun out of life you can. Halloween falls on Saturday this year, so it will be a more than usual merry occasion.

LARGE NUMBER AT SUPPER

Bethany Ladies Serve a Grand Feast

A very enjoyable supper and entertainment was given Wednesday evening by the Ladies Union of Bethany church in the chapel of the church. The tables were beautifully decorated with pink and green shaded candles and dahlias.

At 6.30 about 300 sat down to a delicious supper prepared by the following committee: Mrs. Griffiths, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Saunders, Mrs. Carleton, Mrs. Ford, Mrs. Bird, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Bishop and Mrs. McCauley. The supper consisted of scalloped potatoes, green peas, cold lamb and ham, rolls and butter, cheese, pickles, apple and squash pie, and coffee.

The tables were arranged to seat twelve at each table and every place was soon taken and under the direction of Miss Hattie Griffiths the waitresses were soon doing their part.

The waitresses were, Harriet Griffiths, Annie Jones, Laura Jones, Esther Beckford, Louise Prout, Hazel Livingstone, Susie Tytler, Edith McVitie, Frances Murray, Mary Stewart, Ethel Beal, Helen Miller, Catherine Laing, Miss Moffett and Miss Grant.

It was the first supper of the season and everyone expressed themselves as having enjoyed it very much. Supper being over, all adjourned to the chapel where a social hour was enpoyed. Miss Frances Murray presided at the piano and there was singing by the young people.

Quincy's candidate for Congress, Colonel Kincaide, is waging the greatest campaign the fourteenth district has even seen, and indications all over the district point to his election. One gets a good idea of how he is

KNIGHTS OF MALTA HOSTS

John Adams commandery, Knights of Malta, held its annual "members and friends evening" in Colonial hall on Wednesday evening with a large attendance. The program consisted of vocal solos by Mrs. F. L. Buckley, accompanied by Miss Edith Middleton. The feature entertainer was W. F. Cole, a professional, who occupied the centre of the stage for more than an hour, as a monologist and ventriloquist. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight and refreshments were served. The entire affair was under the personal direction of A. W. Coates, sir knight commander of the commandery. He was assisted by members who served in different capacities. The entertainment committee included J. W. Jacques, Albert W. Coates, R. P. Sinclair, Frank R. Melville, J. W. Lee, Robert Greer, W. Gray, J. W. Tate, O. A. Barron, W. Allison, W. Sinclair.

J. W. Jacques was floor director and the aids were W. J. Tate, William Walker. The refreshments were under the direction of a committee of past commanders and included, O. A. Barron, William Walker, George H. Packers, Frank Melville.

So Says Mayor Whiton in Reply to Candidate Bates at Montclair Rally

Candidate Tilden Heard at Squantum and Montclair

The Tilden rooters invaded the sacred precincts of Squantum Wednesday night and while they were not heralded by big pipers or a quartette, what was lost in this respect was made up in enthusiasm of the fifty voters who gathered at the home of John R. Nelson on Brunswick street.

Councilman Neison presided and in opening said that before placing his support with Mr. Tilden he had thoroughly investigated the qualifications of the aspirants for the office of Mayor, and had made up his mind that Tilden was the men who could deliver the goods. His experience as a member of the City Council, had thoroughly convinced him that a business man of Mr. Tilden's caliber was needed next year in City Hall.

Mayor Joseph L. Whiton followed, the other speakers including Edward A. Poland, ex-Mayor Eugene R. Stone, and Edward E. Palmer.

When Mr. Tilden was introduced he received a warm welcome. He did not waste a lot of time in generalities as to what he had done during all the past years of his life, but got right down to business, his remarks being short and right to the point. His statement was frank and straight forward, he said:

I believe in paying as we go, not heaping up a debt to be paid for by future generations. We must be cautious. We are a rapidly growing community and an ever-increasing population makes great demands upon the treasury. I shall try to stop unnecessary appropriations. Wisely and purposely directed, the results are bound to show. Good sidewalks and streets are demanded and must be made. To keep them in good condition is a serious problem, but I believe our principal streets should have as thorough and efficient work done on them as possible. If you entrust to my care the next year the governing of your city, believe me, I shall have the spirit and purpose of doing my duty well and truly."

AT MONTCLAIR.

From Squantum the candidate went to Montclair, where a meeting of the Improvement association of that district was in progress, and who were being addressed by G. B. Bates, who is seeking the nomination of all three

Many people stay at home from church Sunday morning, as they feel that God can wait better than the football scores.

Beer is to be taxed more heavily, but married men can always even it up by cutting down the children's milk supply.

Some campaign speakers take the trouble to get their statistics out of public documents, but persons with so little imagination will never succeed in politics.

Many motorists are just as indignant over the proposed taxing of gasoline as if they ever knew what that article costs.

The Mexicans are indifferent as to whether they are allowed luxuries like food, but they must have such basic necessities as guns and ammunition.

A word of friendly admonition should be uttered to certain candidates for political office against the furnishing of beer or other liquors at rallies. The voter who will drink at such meetings cannot help being influenced in favor of the candidate who furnishes the liquor or on whose behalf it is furnished. Booze is demoralizing to the weak voter who accepts it and is therefore a menace to our ideals of free and intelligent government. It is unworthy of an American political office to have such an influence exercised. The candidate who gives out liquor or connives at its being given is not entitled to and should not receive the support of right-thinking people, to whom the principles of American government and the history and traditions of Quincy are dear.

Let our elections be decided by reason, not by alcoholic stimulation. A word to the wise should be sufficient. If not, the light of publicity may be turned on.

THE CHURCH FAIRS.

About now the business of financing a church reaches a crisis. Contributions fell off during the summer, while the salaries went marching on. The men who could best afford to contribute, some times give the least.

The easiest and least expensive way would be for the men to pass a paper and clean the thing up. But few churches do it that way.

Work now begins on the production of great quantities of laundry bags, collar boxes, pin cushions, photograph frames, card receivers, leather desk pads, handkerchief cases, travelling sets, etc. Most of these articles are of no earthly use. But they sell. They are valuable to offer your friends as gifts who receive them with demonstrations of joyful emotion, and then cast them into the wastebasket.

You buy $1.00 worth of material, put $1.00 worth of labor into it, and then sell it for 75 cents. Great is church finance! And the mystery is that you could not, as things go, raise that 75 cents in any other way!

BRITISH FLEET ROUTS GERMANS FROM TRENCHES

Ships Get Correct Range With the Aid of Aeroplanes

INVADERS' PASSAGE TO FRENCH PORTS BLOCKED

Rumors of Bombardment of Ostend to Drive Invaders Out—Hostile Forces Alternately on Offensive and Defensive, With but Slight Gains by Either Side—Issue Appears to Depend on Battle Raging In Southwest Belgium and Northern France—Belgians Continue to Hold Their Ground Against Violent Charges—Allies Said to Be Making Another Attempt at Turning Movement—Russians Claim Big Victory

London, Oct. 22.—British warships have been ridding the Belgian coast of the unwelcome gray army, while British, French and Belgian troops have been holding in check the continuous assaults of the invaders delivered at points further inland.

Reports have bee nreceived in London that nowhere within five miles of the coast have the Germans been able to mass men in great numbers.

The moment that work begins on trenches to shelter the Germans, aeroplanes hover over the diggers, dropping explosives among them and, a more important mission, enabling the British ships to get the correct range.

Battleships and cruisers within firing distance of the shore, and especially the renamed monitors bought by the government from Brazil, quickly made the trenches uninhabitable. Reports have been heard that even Ostend has been shelled in an effort to drive the enemy out of the town.

But whether the famous watering place has been shelled or not it is generally known that very few Germans have been there for several hours. It is also rumored that Bruges, a few miles to the east, has been evacuated by the invaders.

Invaders' Plans Checked

The presence of the British warships has greatly interfered with the German plan of driving a passage to the channel ports of France straight through the allied armies. Further inland, however, the gray army has been battering violently against the defenders of the last bit of Belgian territory still held against the foe.

Desperate fighting continues about Lille, extending as far as La Bassee, and in southwestern Belgium the ruin spread by the almost hand-to-hand battling is beyond any description in words. It is one of the hardships of the French and Belgians that they are compelled to fire upon their own towns and cities where the Germans have taken possession.

The fighting Wednesday was much more concentrated than on Tuesday. From Nieuwport to Lille the hostile forces alternately were on the offensive and defensive, but the actual results gained to either of the deadlocked armies were slight except along the shore, where the British fleet has taught the invaders that not even when they reached the sea had they escaped the dangers of a flanking movement.

Halt In Offensive Movement

Elsewhere along the battle line in France and on the edges of German soil held by the French there was little except artillery duels to feature the day. The widespread attempts of the Germans to open an offensive on a long line seems to have been abruptly abandoned, while at the same time the French offensive directed against Lorraine and Alsace has also been halted. Unless an unforeseen blow is being prepared secretly, the issue seems now to depend upon the battle raging in southwest Belgium and on the hostile lines in France between Arras and Lille.

Whether the Germans have made any progress in mounting their great guns near Belfort or whether the French have further endangered the invaders' hold upon the Meuse at St. Mihiel are not revealed by the meagre bulletins that have come from the fighting zone.

As has been the case throughout the week, the Germans have striven in vain to attain positions that would enable them to push forward against Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne.

Courageous Belgian Army

British, French and native Indian soldiers have done their part in holding back the human tide, but the greatest glory belongs to the remnants of the Belgian army, lauded by Berlin and London for their heroic fighting after weeks of struggle that might well have daunted the stoutest hearted.

Behind the Yser they have held their ground against charges of the Germans that have been as determined and as persistent as any made during the whole course of the war. Wherever they have yielded ground they have regained it, and they occupy the same positions assigned to them to defend after they retreated out of Ostend and joined the British and French.

The resistance of the Belgians and the success of the British ships in clearing the coast is said to have resulted in still another attempt by the allies to make the turning movement that was previously balked by the Germans in northern France.

Allies Taking the Offensive?

Rumors are persistent that this advance has become so marked that the Germans are being driven well back of Nieuwport until they are now almost in the suburbs of Ostend. These stories cannot be confirmed, but it seems probable that today will reveal the fact that it is now the allies and not the Germans who are taking the offensive in this theatre of the war.

One of the interesting sidelights of the fighting shows that the French have unwittingly aided the Germans in securing a strong defensive position in France. It is stated that the invaders have found prepared as though for warfare a great ditch sixty miles in length, extending from Roye to Arras. This is the uncompleted Grand Canal du Nord, into which water has not yet been turned. It is so deep and so well sheltered that enormous bodies of troops can march in safety to any point on their line that is seriously menaced. Why the French did not mine this tremendous excavation is one of the puzzles of the war.

Situation In the East

In the east Russians claim a decided victory over the Germans north of the Pilitza river, but this is unconfirmed from Berlin. In the immediate vicinity of Warsaw, about Przemysl and in East Prussia, it seems fair to assume that the hostile forces have not been able to make noteworthy advances.

The bombardment of the Austrian port of Cattaro continues daily, and a portion of the Austrian fleet has now been driven into the landlocked harbor. The harbor forts are being slowly but effectively reduced by the fire of the French and British ships.

Enormous Casualties

Two interesting casualty estimates were included in the day's grist of dispatches. One of these come from Berlin, where a military experts places the losses of the allies—French, Russian and English—to date as 750,000.

The latest British casualty announcement shows that nearly one-fourth the field force sent to France has been wiped out. No recent report has come from Berlin, although until a few weeks ago losses were given out regularly. It has been impossible to get any statement of French or Russian losses at any time.

Activity In the Balkans

Much activity is manifested in the Balkans. The Young Turks, according to Rome, are trying to get the Albanians to attack Servia. Italy wonders whether or not to occupy Aviona, and is of the opinion that the "Epirotes," who are seeking control of Albania, are really Greek soldiers, disguised as irregulars.

Turkey has forbidden foreign warships to enter the gulf of Smyrna, and the possibility that Turkey may plan to start hostilities grows stronger with the announcement that two submarines are on the way to Constantinople to reinforce its naval equipment.

WAR PRIZE FOR JAPAN

Belief That She Will Retain a Slice of Chinese Territory

Will Japan retain the territory of Kiauchau, China, after it is taken from Germany? This is the question that diplomats are discussing at Washington, and many of them are of the opinion Japan will keep the possession. They base their belief on the strong popular demand that has already arisen in Japan, and it is freely predicted the Japanese government will have difficulty in downing this sentiment.

The siege of Tsingtau and the blowing up of the Japanese warships have incensed the people to such an extent that it is the opinion of many statesmen that nothing short of a big slice of China will satisfy popular clamor.

Germany's failure to reply to the Japanese ultimatum to give up its leased Chinese territory leaves the door open for Japan to keep the land as a prize of war. It is said Great Britain does not consider Japan in duty bound to give back to China for nothing the territory Japanese sailors and soldiers are trying to drive the Teutons from.

ALL UNDER SUSPICION

Austrians and Germans Are Being Rounded Up In England

Austrian and German subjects of military age who, since the beginning of the war, have been allowed their liberty in England unless they rested under some suspicion, are to be interned in detention camps.

The police in many English cities are arresting hundreds of men between the ages of 17 and 65 years and sending them to camps in different parts of the country.

This action of the government is necessitated, it is stated, because of the facilities offered German spies to enter the country with Belgian refugees on the pretense of being Belgians. No distinctions are being made.

Wealthy bankers and merchants are receiving the same treatment as are small shopkeepers and waiters. Those who failed to register or contravened any of the rules under which they were allowed to reside in their own homes are being prosecuted.

German Cruiser Emden Gets Away With Six More British Vessels

The German cruiser Emden has again been sinking British steamers, this time at a point 150 miles northwest of Cochin, British India, according to a report received by the British admiralty from Colombo, Ceylon.

She has sent to the bottom the British steamers Chilkana, Troilus, Henmohr and Clan Grant and the dredger Pomrabble, bound for Tasmania. The British steamer Exford was captured by the Emden.

The Emden up to the present time has to her credit the sinking of fourteen British steamers and the capture of three other vessels flying the Union Jack. The operations of the Emden have extended along the entire eastern coast of India from Calcutta to Colombo.

PROTEST FROM GERMANY

Alleged Cruelties by French Sharpshooters and Regular Troops

The German government has sent a formal protest to France and to neutral nations concerning alleged violations of the rules of the Geneva convention by the French sharpshooters and regular troops.

It is declared in this protest that the French have killed or mutilated wounded German soldiers; that they have fired on ambulances filled with wounded and bearing the Red Cross flag; that they have invaded German hospitals, robbed the hospital staff and stolen the hospital equipment; that they have fired on German doctors who were gathering or attending to the wounded, killing some of these medical men and taking others captive, and that they have captured a German field clergyman whom they treated as a common criminal.

AIRCRAFT BROUGHT DOWN

German Taube and Zeppelin Fall Before British Warships

The Press association announces at London that it has learned from a reliable source that the British warships which have been co-operating with the allied left wing in Belgium brought down a Zeppelin and an armored Taube aeroplane off the Belgian coast.

Whether the aircraft were completely destroyed or are prizes of war is not stated.

HOTEL MAN MISSING

Head of Boston Establishment Has Been Gone Three Weeks

Boston, Oct. 22.—C. M. Rimbach, proprietor of the Crawford House, is missing. His whereabouts are unknown by his confidential employes at the hotel, and his wife and family are also believed to be ignorant of where he may be.

Creditors of the Crawford House have called a meeting at the hotel to discuss the financial tangle, alleged to have been brought about by Rimbach's absence of three weeks.

A member of the firm of Joseph Gahm & Son, bottlers, said the Gahm company is the largest creditor and that the total liabilities are large.

Thieves Flee Without Loot

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Postoffice burglars succeeded in blowing off the outer door of the safe at Port Byron but were forced to flee before they could remove about $3600 in cash and stamps. This postoffice has been robbed on five other occasions.

RECEPTION TO MR. WALL

Ward Two Turns Out Well to Greet Him

A reception was tendered to James E. Wall Wednesday evening at the Town River Yacht Club by about 300 citizens of Ward Two. Never was a candidate for office of Mayor of the City of Quincy made to feel more at home or given a more enthusiastic greeting than that given to Mr. Wall. The hall was decorated with flags and bunting especially for the occasion.

The idea of the reception was to permit the people of Ward 2 to make the acquaintance of Mr. Wall, and to listen to his ideas on giving Quincy a genuine business-like administration.

The toastmaster of the evening was David McIntosh, and the speaking began at 8 o'clock. Many prominent citizens from the different parts of the city were called upon to make brief addresses and all spoke of Mr. Wall in the highest terms and advocated his election as the next Mayor of the City.

The toastmaster referred to the successful business career of the candidate and dwelt upon the need of a Mayor of Mr. Wall's qualifications to fill the office of Mayor during the ensuing year. He said that the time had come when the need of a man was greater than the need of a party in directing the affairs of Quincy. This was the more apparent in view of the fact that two of the leading political parties were now drafting their candidates for the office of Mayor from the Republican, Progressive and Socialist parties.

The toastmaster called on the following well known gentlemen for brief remarks, James H. Hagan of Squantum, City Councilman Carlson of Ward 6, Lawyer Arthur L. Thomas of Ward 1, W. L. Murdock of Ward 1 Attorney H. C. Levowich of Ward 2, William Robertson of Ward 5, ex-state Senator Andrew H. Morrison of Ward 3, Niel McDonald of Ward 5, A. C. Marr of Ward 2 and others including Prof. Charles R. Apted of Harvard College, a life long friend of Mr. Wall, who spoke of the sterling honesty and business ability of the candidate.

Mr. Wall, when called on to speak, said in part, that he was a voter and a taxpayer of the City of Quincy of long years' standing; that he was born in the neighboring town of Dover, and that he had been engaged in business since 1879. He believed that Quincy had a great future that efforts should be made to utilize its valuable water front; that its present neeeds are diversified industries and high grade manufacturing industries which with proper encouragement could be induced to locate here. He believed that all property in the city should be assessed fairly, fearlessly and justly, and that each and every taxpayer should be required to pay a just tax for the support of the city. If this were done it would tend to give Quincy a much lower tax rate than we have and would be a strong argument in obtaining more business people and home seekers to locate in the city.

With its natural advantages, he said there is no doubt that under a proper and efficient business administrating the City of Quincy would soon become a city of great importance, both commercially and industrially, second only to Boston.

The last speaker of the evening was Col. Henry L. Kincaide, the Progressive party candidate for Congress from this district.

At 11.30 the meting adjourned with the signing of the James E. Wall campaign song.

With these three candidates as their guests the voters of that section of the city received considerable enlightenment. Mr. Bates told the voters how he could reduce the tax rate to $18, and how there was $10,000,000 taxable property not now taxed. This property it was intimated was that of the New Haven railroad and the Fore River Co.

Mayor Whiton entered the hall soon after Mr. Bates had concluded and he immediately sailed into his argument as to reducing the tax rate to $18. This, he said, was a physical impossibility and it was nonsense to make such statesments. He also threw cold water upon the uncovering of $10,000,000 of taxable property. The Mayor had his rapid fire guns accurately trained and he riddled Mr. Bates argument with holes.

Mr. Bates tried to justify his statement at the conclusion of Mayor Whiton's remarks, but the hour was then late and many evidently having heard all they cared to left the hall.

Candidate Tilden preceded Mayor Whiton and spoke for a few minutes along the same line as at Squantum.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

One who would thoroughly enjoy a study of Japanese art should visit the art gallery of the Thomas Crane Public Library, and view the beautiful exhibit of "Examples of Japanese textile fabric in color." The minuteness of detail and the refined sentiment in color disclose the wonderful variety of technical processes and inexhaustible decorative invention of the Japanese.

The pictures are a sample of the most beautiful and successful result of industrial printing in color which which has ever been brought out. They are so realistic that if it were possible to present side by side, the material and its production, even the eye might sometimes almost be deceived.

These example have been chosen from the Musee des Arts Decoratifs de Paris,the Chambre de Commerce de Lyon and the South Kensington Museum of London, as well as the principal private collections of Paris.

Last Sunday being the 111th birthday aniversary of Thomas Crane, on Saturday and Monday ivy and periwinkle adorned the frame of his pastel portrait on the north wall of Crane Memorial hall, and a vase of rich red roses and pinks with delicate green was placed on the desk beneath.

EVENING SCHOOL.

The third week of evening schools finds conditions most encouraging. The Adams school for foreigners has made a gain each night since the opening, and notwithstanding the fewer number of foreigners in the city, the attendance is practically on a par with that of last year. The same thing is true of the Willard classes. In both schools more teachers could be used to excellent advantage if there were the funds to provide them.

In the High school conditions are better than last year, as the class of pupils in attendance is more mature. Three teachers are working here with commercial and civil service pupils, and two with pupils in drawing.

The attendance at the trade classes has been excellent and the old Adams building is a very busy place, especially on Monday and Thursday evenings. A class in naval architecture for which there was no provision and no funds, has been organized, and the expense of an instructor is being borne by the men themselves.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

A general committee meeting of Quincy High School graduates will be held at Quincy High school, Saturday evening, October 24, at 8 o'clock, when steps will be taken to organize a permanent alumni association. The temporary committee consists of Albert G. Coffin, Jr., J. Harry Hooper, Joseph H. McPherson, Carl F. Prescott, Lucien H. Thayer and Frederick D. Williams. The movement has the hearty approval of the School Committee and Superintendent of Schools

ADVANTAGES:

1.—Better instruction and better prices cannot be obtained in Quincy.
2.—Our system is thorough and modern; our instructors are capable, experienced and up-to-date.
3.—Our pupils have the privilege of appearing in public three times a season; and know how to conduct themselves correctly and gracefully on the concert stage.
4.—Our 1st. and 2nd. year General Class lessons are worth as much as the regular piano lessons, but this year we include these lessons with the price of the piano lessons alone.
5.—The director, Mr. Hackelton, is a graduate of the N. E. Conservatory of Music, finished abroad and a leading teacher in Boston for ten years.
6.—We award certificates to pupils finishing our courses.
7.—We are presenting a limited number of music rolls to our pupils as a souvenir of our opening.

Information regarding terms, teachers, system etc., will be cheerfully given at the School, or a circular sent on request.

While the School Committee voted that the eighth grades might close that the teachers might have the opportunity of taking the pupils to the Food Fair, it is found that a condition to the assurance of free tickets requires the attendance of an adult with each two pupils which effectually prevents any general attendance.

IMPRESSIONS HIS SUBJECT

Coddington School Association Opens the Season

"How quickly can he figure is no longer asked by prospective employers," said James S. Perkins, master of the Coddington school, while discussing "Impressions" before the Parents Teachers Association in the school hall Wednesday evening. "It is how does the young man spend his evenings; what are his home conditions; does he live beyond his means; who are his companions; and, if the social conditions are right he is the right man. Otherwise he is not wanted."

Moral teaching can never be reduced to a text book basis, declared Mr. Perkins. It must be taught through literature, through the story of great philanthropists, leaders of industry, institutions organized to alleviate suffering, great heroes like firemen and life savers.

The tendency of the age is toward mad materialism. We are a pleasure seeking, liberty-loving people, and because of this greater demand for moral training is made upon the public school.

Impressions are an important factor in the school life of a child. They may be divided into two classes, favorable and unfavorable. Favorable impressions are positive in nature, constructive and conducive to sound development and growth. Unfavorable impressions are negative and retard deveopment.

It is most important that the child receives favorable impressions through the school. The present system of education contains three lines of training needing special consideration; intellectual, including academic and vocational; physical, whereby it is the inalienable right of every boy and girl to be well born, that he must have a sound body to have a sound mind, since health is the basis of success in a great way; moral training, the most vital point in all work, training for loyal, upright, fearless citizenship.

Mr. Perkins in his address made many references to subjects connected with his topic, and in closing said character and citizenship must be emphasized in the public schools of America. The young man must be upright and honest and the great aim in education today is to educate for sound citizenship.

Mr. Perkins met with an enthusiastic reception when he arose to make his address, and at its close was given hearty applause. During the evening there was a short entertainment which consisted of violin solos by Miss Edith Roubound of Milton with Miss Agnes B. Ruggles of Neponset as pianist. Refreshments were served by a committee of mothers assisted by the teachers at the school.

BOTH CHOIR SINGERS

Atlantic, Miss Maude Elizabeth Read, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Read of 257 Squantum street and William Norton Stetson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Norton Stetson of Webster street.

Palms and potted plants were used as the floral decoration. While the guests, who completely filled the church, were assembling, Miss Hazel Davison played continuously on the organ, and at half past seven played Lohengrin's Wedding March as the entrance prelude to the ceremony

The ushers, Ralph M. Read of Wollaston, brother of the bride; George S. Grueby and Levi Howes of Atlantic and Coyle S. Allan of Worcester, preceded the bridal party down the aisle to the altar where they were met by the groom and the best man, and Rev. Thomas Davison the pastor of the church who performed the ceremony, the double ring service being used. The bride was given in marriage by her father Harry W. Read.

The maid of honor was Miss Margaret L. Read, a sister of the bride, while the groom's attendant was Munroe B. Stetson, a brother of the groom.

The bride's gown was of white duchess satin and chantilly lace and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a yellow messaline with overdress of blue crepe de chine and lace, and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

The flower girl was Miss Virginia H. Read, a niece of the bride, who wore a yellow crepe de chine, and carried a basket of white roses and the rings used in the ceremony. The groom's gift to the bride was a sapphire and pearl pin, and his gift to the best man and ushers were gold pen knives and chains. The bride's gift to the maid of honor was a string of Roman pearl beads and a gold bracelet to the flower girl.

A brilliant reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride at 257 Squantum street, from 8.30 to 10 o'clock, the bridal couple being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Read, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Stetson, and Mrs. A. F. Parker, the groom's grandmother.

After a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Stetson will make their home at 81 Davis street, Wollaston Park, where they will be at home Wednesdays in December.

The bride is a graduate of the Woodward Institute and the Leland Powers school of oratory of Boston, and has sung in the choir of the Atlantic Memorial church for the past eighty years. The groom is connected with the Bay State Paper Co., of Boston, and has also sung in the choir of the Memorial church for the past three years.

WEDDING AT BRAINTREE

Miss Dearing the Bride of Harrison A. Gordon

A largely attended church wedding was held at the First Congregational church, Braintree, Wednesday evening, when Miss Hildegarde Dearing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haven Dearing of Braintree, became the bride of Harrison Albert Gordon, son of Mrs. Frances Gordon of Holbrook, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Harry Grimes.

The bridesmaids were Miss Eunice Heald of Brookline, Miss Grace Wheeler of Braintree, and Miss Blanche Becker of New York. The maid of honor was Miss Frances Dearing, a sister of the bride. The groom's attendant was Charles Heald of South Weymouth. The flower girls were Miss Mary Dearing and Miss Katherine Dearing sisters of the bride.

The ushers at the church were Ralph Doble of Quincy, Sumner Thompson and Ferdon Shaw of Braintree Fred Collier of Boston, Warren Wheeler and Arthur Davenport of Braintree.

The bride wore an ivory crepe meteor with lace overskirt and castle cap. The maid of honor wore an apple green satin dress trimmed with gold lace and carried a large bouquet of Killarney roses. The bridesmaids wore watermelon pink satin gowns with black velvet, and jackets trimmed with gold lace, each carrying shepherdess crooks tied with big bows and pink roses. The flower girls wore white dresses and carried baskets of pink flowers.

The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock, and was followed by a largely attended reception at the home of the bride, 439 Washington street, where they were assisted in receiving by the parents of the bride and mother of the groom, the best man and maid of honor.

at the St. Marys parish house by Rev. Fr. Thomas R. McCoy, pastor of St. Marys parish and was witnessed by the attendants and a few relatives and friends.

Miss Helen Shannon, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Charles Carey, brother of the groom was best man. The bride was dressed in white charmeuse and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her attendant was dressed in blue crepe de chine and carried roses.

After the ceremony a reception was ehld at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Shannon of Copeland street, which was attended by about 75 relatives and friends. A buffet luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Carey left on a wedding trip to New York, and on their return will make their home at Hall place. The bride is a bookkeeper at the South Braintree Rice and Hutchins factory, and the groom is a motorman in the employ of the Bay State street railway.

MISS CANNON A BRIDE

Miss Susau Hughes Cannon, daughter of Mrs. Hannah Cannon of Newcomb street, was united in marirage Wednesday evening to Will Stevens Torrey. The ceremony took place at the home of the groom in Boston, and was a very quiet affair, being attended by the immediate families only. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Snow of Kings Chapel, Boston. Following a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Torrey will make their home at 84 Walter street, Roslindale, where they will be at home after January first.

RED CROSS DAY AT WOLLASTON

Interesting Papers at Ladies Aid Alliance

The Wollaston Ladies' Aid Alliance held its semi-monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Unitarian vestry. The afternoon was devoted to the founder and the international work of the Red Cross Society and was of unusual interest to all who were privileged to attend.

The decorations were very attractive. A large American flag occupied the center of the stage and was surrounded by the flags of all the leading nations of the world. Upon the blackboard, surrounded by the stars and stripes, in Mrs. John Litchfield's exquisite hand writing were these words from Frederick W. Faber

"For right is right, since God is God
And right the day must win;
To doubt would be disloyalty
To falter would be sin."

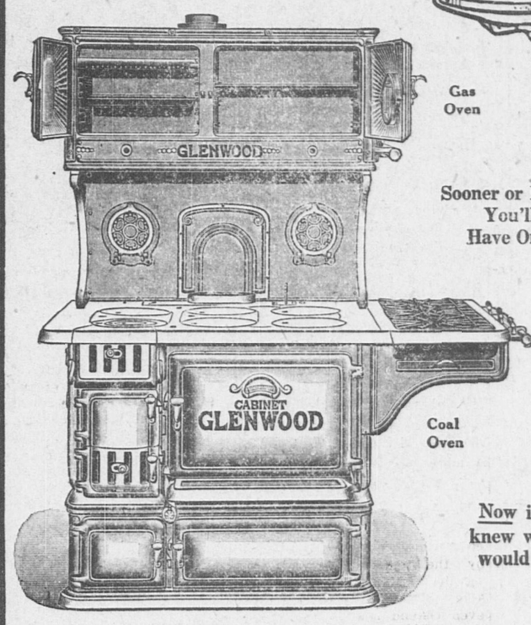

Many new members have joined so that the membership is now well into the second hundred. The meeting opened with a devotional service led by Miss Harriet Turner who had arranged the entire program. The first paper was by Mrs. Charles E. Sweet who spoke in a most interesting way of Florence Nightingale, the English pioneer nurse. Then followed Mrs. Oscar L. Baker who in her usual charming manner recited the poem "Santa Filomena." After the singing of Julia Ward Howe's Battle Hymn of the Republic, Mrs. Charles S. Adams spoke of Clara Barton, the Red Cross heroine, and Mrs. Malcolm D. Miller gave a comprehensive view of the work of the Red Cross Society in the present European war.

The society voted to meet in the vestry Thursday morning, October 29 at 10 o'clock, to sew and prepare bandages for the sick and wounded in Europe. A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Wollaston to join in this humanitarian work. Now is the time to lend a helping hand. At the close of the meeting tea was served, and a social hour enjoyed.

The next regular meeting of the Alliance wil be held Wednesday, Nov. 4, when Mrs. H. C. Needham will speak on "Some new methods in Sunday School Work."

ENDORSEMENT OF JOHNSON

Editor Daily Ledger:

The enthusiasm of the over 100 members of the Charles H. Johnson mayoralty campaign committee, shown at its meeting, would certainly dispel any idea that he had any intention of withdrawing from the contest this fall, notwithstanding the rumors sent out by his opponents.

After thoroughly examining the qualifications of the several candidates, we find that Mr. Johnson's 14 years experience in municipal affairs by far exceeds the combined experiences of all the others. His years of service in the Council, as assessor and also Chief Assessor have eminently fitted him for the position of Chief Executive of the city. His knowledge of Quincy affairs, conditions and men make him the one man who is able, by experience, to restore our city to its once normal tax rate and valuation.

Quincy is suffering from a complication of ailments politically, and this is not the time that we want a specialist in Boosting or any of the other so called specialists, but a man who is able, by his training and experience, to build from the ground up, and once again place the city among the best governed municipalities in the Commonwealth.

Last year Mr. Johnson received, practically, the unanimous nomination of the Republican party, but the desire of a number of voters of the city to have a Taxpayers' candidate deprived him of election by a very few votes. Many of the citizens, including property owners and business men are realizing their mistakes in the past and have sent most encouraging letters of endorsement from every section of the city, to Mr. Johnson and the committee.

During this campaign it should be the intention of the campaign committee to acquaint the citizens of our city of the qualifications which the several candidates have gained, by experience or otherwise, so that each voter may vote intelligently.

No thinking man would engage a plumber instead of a carpenter to build his house, because his intelligence would demand him to hire the carpenter for his experience and it is on account of actual experience gained from years of service in municipal affairs that we recommend Charles H. Johnson as a candidate for Mayor.

SPORT NEWS

The bowling team which was to have represented the Quincy Y. M. C. A. in the Greater Boston Y. M. C. A. League has dropped out because of the length of the schedule. The Lynn Association took a similar step.

The bowlers of the city, in a quandary as to who fills the requirements for the top notch class, are booming the suggestion of a thirty ball at single pins. Whether or not one can be arranged is as yet unknown. The idea is not entirely new to the localites, several who formerly held first position with fast leagues, making much talk about it last season.

The Quincy A. A. football team is being reorganized and before many weeks will announce its schedule. Several games have been booked already, the principal one being at Pawtuxet, R. I. The team representing that city have held the championship of the baby state for many years, and the only aggregation that defeated them in three years was the local combination.

Quincy High school squad continues to scrimmage with the Weymouth High boys, and most of the players are commencing to realize that old fashioned football tactics must be resorted to in perfecting a winning combination. With the material to work on, the coaches putting in every ounce of endeavor necessary and the leadership of two brilliant players, Capts. Larkin and Hamlin, to inspire them, no explanation will appease the fans who clamor for a developed fighting spirit if the teams dosen't improve.

HIGH SCORE BY JENNER

Four Bowling Matches in Wollaston Tennis League

Jenner, who annexed the city bowling championship last season, showed his first form this season while rolling Wednesday evening with the Wollaston Tennis Club at the Coliseum alleys. He opened with 101, got 99 in the second and 107 in the third, for a total of 307. Baker, Brown, Powers and Smith were the others to pass 100.

Jenner's five easily beat the bowlers captained by Estes, 4 to 0.

ITS HARD TO WORK

When Suffering from Kidney Ills. Many Quincy People Find This To Be True.

What's so hard as a day's work with an aching back?
Or sharp "stabs" of pain with every sudden twist or turn?
There is no peace from the dull ache—
No rest from the soreness, lameness and weariness. If the kidneys are disordered you can't reach the cause too soon.
Neglect is often fatal.
Weak kidneys need prompt attention.
Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills at once—
A tested and proven kidney remedy.
Quincy readers should find new hope in the following statement.
W. O. Coffin, machinist, 16 Mechanic street, Quincy, says: "I had an operation and after that was not very strong. I suffered from backache and the kidney secretions passed too frequently at night. I used a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and felt better in a week. Some time later, I again used Doan's Kidney Pills and I haven't needed any kidney medicine since."

STABBED TO DEATH

Man Who Had No Part In Quarrel Killed by a Priest

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Fr. J. B. Mullen, pastor of Holy Rosary church, stabbed and killed Thomas W. Patterson, the station agent at Hillside, a suburb, after a quarrel in which Patterson had no part.

The priest then stood on the right of way of the Illinois Central railroad, stopped a through train, and, threatening the passengers and the train crew with a knife, boarded it. He was overpowered after a struggle and locked up at Hillside.

According to Felix Scomini, the priest visited with him a number of suburban towns. Arriving at Hillside they stopped in the saloon of Tony Russo. There, Scomini said, an argument took place about the European war, which grew into a quarrel. Then the saloon keeper ejected the priest.

Mullen then returned to the railway station, where he stabbed Patterson.

MAKE BIG SACRIFICE

Senate and House Reach Agreement on War Tax Measure

Washington, Oct. 22.—Agreement on the war revenue bill was reached by senate and house conferees at a sacrifice of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 in revenue proposed to be derived. At the last moment the conferees eliminated the proposed amendments to the liquor taxes, rejecting the senate amendments to increase the tax on beer from $1.50 to $1.75 a barrel and to impose a tax of 5 cents a gallon on rectified spirits.

In sacrificing these amendments, the conferees made no substitution, the proposal to restore the tax of 2 cents a gallon on gasolene as contained in the house bill having been rejected by the senate conferees.

Munsterberg Withdraws Resignation as Harvard Professor

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 22.—At the request of the Harvard corporation, Professor Hugo Munsterberg has withdrawn his resignation, sent in a week ago, following the ultimatum of Clarence Wiener of England to cut Harvard off to the sum of $10,000,000 unless the corporation "fired" the Harvard psychologist.

Munsterberg would have nothing to say about the action of Harvard other than to confirm the report that he had withdrawn his resignation. "I sent in my resignation," he said, "and the Harvard corporation refused to accept it. That closes the matter."

STAR WITNESS IN CARMAN CASE

Testifies That Doctor's Wife Admitted Shooting

HAD REVOLVER IN HER HAND

Maid In Home of Accused Woman Tells Damaging Story of Scene When Mrs. Bailey Was Killed—Says She Was Asked Not to Tell—Conflicts With Previous Statement

Mineola, L. I., Oct. 22.—"I shot him."

Around these three words—uttered, according to Celia Coleman, negro maid, by Mrs. Florence Carman on the night Mrs. Bailey was shot to death in Dr. Carman's office—hinges the whole case of the state against the doctor's wife, now on trial for her life.

The Coleman girl took the stand and swore Mrs. Carman made that statement when she entered the kitchen with a revolver in her hand a minute or two, the negro maid swore, after the fatal shot was fired. It was apparent the state's contention is that the wife shot at her husband.

While Mrs. Carman sat rigid and immobile a few feet away, the maid told how the doctor's wife, after entering the kitchen, walked into the physician's office where the dead woman was lying on the floor. Mrs. Carman still held the revolver in her hand, the girl insisted. She had it concealed under a white shawl she wore over a kimono, according to the maid.

Mrs. Carman looked at Carman kneeling over the body of the slain woman, the girl said. The doctor's wife, still grasping the revolver, stayed in the room but a minute, according to the witness, going out by the way of the waiting room.

Mrs. Carman did not say anything more to her, the girl said, when she entered the kitchen. Asked by District Attorney Smith whether she thought Mrs. Carman had killed her husband when she said: "I shot him," the maid answered that she didn't know whom she had shot. She said that neither Mrs. Carman nor Dr. Carman said a word while she was in the office where the dead woman was lying.

Continuing, the witness said Mrs. Carman came to her room the next morning before it was time for her to get up. "She told me," testified the maid, "that she hoped God would forgive her. She told me she would take care of my little boy as long as he lived if anything ever happened to me. The she asked me not to say anything about what had happened."

Celia Coleman testified on cross examination that when she was being brought from Freeport to Mineola to go before the grand jury, Dr. Carman told her not to change her testimony and that he "would take care of her."

Mrs. Carman, she continued, gave her an extra $5 a few days after the murder. "That is for keeping your mouth shut," the witness said Mrs. Carman told her.

Frank Farrell corroborated Celia Coleman. Celia said her mistress was dressed in a flowing dark silk kimona when she passed through the kitchen a few seconds before the crash of glass and the shot. Farrell says he saw a woman so attired firing the shot.

Attorney Graham scored a big surprise on the state when he introduced a statement made by the Coleman girl in a private investigation on July 13, in which she contradicted nearly everything she testified yesterday. Graham read the statement just before adjournment for lunch.

Emotionless, stolid and absolutely impressionless, Mrs. Carman sat perfectly rigid while her former maid told the damaging story against her. Her lips were tightly drawn and she sat upright in her chair, but she did not flinch. She did not look toward the jurors once while the negro girl was talking.

"DEFENSE" BILL PASSES

Legislation Which Is Expected to Economically Aid Cuba

Havana, Oct. 22.—The Cuban senate passed the so-called national economic defense bill. This measure recently passed the house of representatives.

The most important clauses of the bill provide for the issue of a national coinage; the giving of premiums for the cultivation of tobacco; authorize the president to issue bonds for $5,000,000; provide for the relief of agricultural laborers, and consolidate the regular army and the rural guard.

GOOD RECORD AS FIRE FIGHTER

Richard J. Colbert, 51 years, president of the Firemen's Relief Association, and one of the most popular members of the fire department of this city, died at the Quincy City Hospital at 3 o'clock this morning following an operation performed Saturday evening, shortly after he was stricken with a fatal illness while on duty at the Central station.

Richard Colbert was born in Atlantic and when a young man learned the machinist trade at the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co., where he was employed for many years. When appointed a permanent member of the fire department 12 years ago he was connected with a Boston machine company.

Mr. Colbert practically devoted his entire life to fire fighting. He was a call man under the town form of government and ran with the old chemical engine, the first apparatus in Atlantic. He was connected with the department under all the fire chiefs of Quincy—John O. Hall, Walter H. Ripley, Frank C. Packard, Peter T. Williams, Amos L. Litchfield and Faxon Billings.

He possessed the courage and instincts of a born fire fighter and was always the first in a burning building. He was injured several times in the performance of his duty and several years ago sustained serious head injuries in a hot air explosion at a fire in a Wollaston house. The saying current among the men of the department "If anyone's hurt, it's Colbert," seems to have been true in every respect.

Chief Faxon Billings this morning said "In the passing of Richard Colbert, the department loses one of its most efficient men. He was always the first in a burning building and because of his activities as a member of the department his place will be hard to fill." His associates in the department are deeply affected by his death.

The draperies of mourning now at Central station in memory of the late Mayor John L. Miller will remain in memory of Fireman Colbert. His funeral will take place Saturday morning.

He is survived by his wife, mother, and two sisters, Mrs. Lawlor and Mrs. Mary Beauclaire, both of Atlantic. He was a member of John Adams aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, and Div. 17, A. O. H.

and then later in the day at Whitman and Brockton.

Tuesday noon he had a very enthusiastic rally at the Douglas shoe factory, Brockton, speaking then to over 1000. In the evening he spoke at open air rallies in Randolph, Avon and Stoughton, ending the evening at a delightful house gathering at Braintree.

Wednesday noon at Snow's shoe factory, Brockton, he was cheered to the echo while outlining his plan for more work in the shoe shops by opening up and developing the South American market with which he is familiar. The Colonel spoke in the evening at open air rallies in Brockton, after which he returned to Quincy and spoke at rallies in Wollaston, Atlantic and Town River yacht club.

Today at noon he speaks at shoe shop rallies at Brockton, and is scheduled for North Easton and Foxboro in the evening.

Quincy voters will have an opportunity to hear Colonel Kincaide tomorrow evening, as he is one of the speakers at the big rally at Music hall.

TELLS OF HIS TRAVELS

William M. Chase Was Recently in Jerusalem

The Abigail Phillips Quincy chapter D. A. R., had a most interesting entertainment at the Park and Downs church Wednesday evening, Mrs. J. K. Barber, chairman of the entertainment committee having it in charge.

William M. Chase of Wollaston gave a very instructive account of his trip through Palestine, on his recent journey round the world. He was accompanied in his travels by Mrs. Chase, a member of the chapter. He said in part:

Jerusalem is still very much the same as centuries ago if one gets away from railroad tracks and electric light poles.

The lading at Joppa is a very thrilling experience, passengers being obliged to jump from the gangway of the steamer into the arms of a giant Turk, who is standing on the gunwale of an open boat to receive them. The expression "drive like Jehn"" is heard if one rides in Palestine. Acres of the beautiful red flower called the "Rose of Shoran" relieve the somber country.

The great walls and massive gateways of Jerusalem are impressive, the streets swarming with people dressed in the costumes of our Sunday school lesson books. Illustrations of the tomb of Tabitha, or Dorcas, the needle woman, the Mt. of Olives, Bethlehem and many other places whose names are familiar to all, were shown. Many pictures of the Mosque of Omar gave a faint idea of its beauty. In the Church of the Nativity at Bethlehem a metal star in the floor marks the spot where Jesus was born.

A serious minded person cannot visit this country without the religious feeling being deepened and it was with some regret we set our faces towards Egypt.

Miss Eba M. Conney also assisted in the entertainment by giving a very clever impersonation of "Mrs. Casey at the euchre party" and several other readings.

Dr. Frank E. Dawes sang "The song that reached my heart" in a pleasing manner and concluded the entertainment by singing "Barbara Freitchie."

No Pie Crust Promises

Wise advertisers never make "pie-crust" promises.

They know that to break faith with the public would be fatal—worse than throwing their money away.

That is one reason why advertised goods are more in demand.

People know that there is quality behind them.

They look on them as standards. Any dealer knows that there are more calls for advertised goods than for goods not advertised.

This is especially true if they happen to have been advertised in the newspapers which directly reach the people.

The standard of advertising is more exacting today than ever before. Advertisers are more careful of their promises and more interesting in their text and illustrations.

The world grows better.

HEROISM, TRAGEDY AND STRIKING INCIDENTS OF EUROPE'S BIG WAR

Thrilling Story of Charge Rivaling That of the Famous Light Brigade.

Grim Realities of Battle and Touches of Humor Revealed in the News.

IN dispatches to the New York Sun and London Mail, from a point behind the British troops which the censor would not permit him to name, a correspondent describes a British charge which, he avers, excelled that of the famous Light brigade at Balaklava.

"The campaign so far," he says, "appears to have been a series of stubborn, disciplined, tactical retreats tempered with some offensive feats of extraordinary gallantry.

"One of these as it was recounted to me deserves to be put beside the most notable feats of the British army.

"The Ninth lancers seem to have repeated under almost the identical conditions the charge of the Light brigade at Balaklava.

"Since the beginning of the fighting the German artillery has been the bane of our troops during the action at ——, which is close to the Belgian frontier. Terrible havoc had been caused in our ranks by great shells from a battery of eleven guns inside a wood. By the disposal of large quantities of forage the guns had the appearance of small haystacks or something of the kind. Their first fire caused a terrible loss to our men, who approached unsuspectingly.

Like Charge at Balaklava.

"The same guns continued their fire for several hours with continuous effect, and it seemed impossible to silence their fire, when the Ninth lancers made their heroic attempt.

"They rode straight at the guns, debouching into the open and charging under a hail of melinite or lydalte from other German guns.

"I have not been able to get an accurate estimate of the distance they rode, but they reached the guns—heavy guns almost approximating siege guns in size—cut down all the gunners and put the guns out of action. Then, like their prototypes at Balaklava, they rode back and on their return fell in greater numbers still."

"Get the Guns Back!"

Another gallant deed reported by this correspondent was that of Captain F. O. Grenfell of the Ninth lancers. He was hit in both legs and had two fingers shot off at the same time. Almost as he received these wounds a couple of guns posted near by were deprived of their servers, all of whom save one were struck by the bursting of shrapnel. The horses for the guns had been placed under cover.

"We'll get the guns back," cried Grenfell, and at that, with a number of his men, in spite of his wounds, he did manage to harness the guns up and get them away.

Men who took part in the South African campaign say that the hottest firing there was childish compared with that the troops have undergone in Belgium and France.

Scene of Awful Havoc.

A fleeing resident of Chantilly tells how the British with their Maxims cut the uhlans to ribbons. He was leading off a string of horses along the road when he was held up by English soldiers.

"You had better hurry up," said they, "for those blooming Germans are just around the corner."

"I dropped my horses," he said, "and nipped off into the woods like a fox, made my way to my house, lugged off my wife and wrapped up a few belongings in a horse rug. We had a nightmare of adventures.

"We could not get into Paris, so we drove around it to make our way to Dieppe by the railway line. On the road we were again stopped by English soldiers. More soldiers were behind us, and we thought they were English too.

"'No, they are Germans,' said the soldiers. 'Scuttle around that bend, sharp.' Some scuttled, and I saw in a ditch alongside the road a few dozen English soldiers with Maxims showing their noses through the long grass.

"The Germans were a hundred yards or so away when the Maxims let out, slashing men and horses to ribbons. It was a ghastly sight. More Germans were galloping across the fields, and an aeroplane was flying overhead in a circle. It did not seem real at all.

"The English soldiers were firing as hard as they could at the aeroplane, and at the same time the quick firers in the ditch were going full pelt whenever a raiding horseman came along. Behind them artillery was firing, and as the shells tore over our heads the Tommies would cheer and shout out: 'There goes another blooming rocket! Holler, boys!' And you bet they shouted."

Cool Nerve of Belgians.

Stories of the cool nerve of Belgian soldiers under fire are being told everywhere by refugees and correspondents arriving from the battlefield in lower Belgium. The story is told of one volunteer who returned after a skirmish with uhlans and calmly announced. "Well, I killed two." Then as he filled his pipe he added:

"I hit one right there," putting his finger to his forehead. "His helmet went spinning, and I picked it up later and saw the hole my bullet had made."

Clerks, brokers and business men have been turned into fighting devils. The Belgians were not out of their uniforms for days at a time. Sleeping and eating in the trenches when they could, they became veritable vagabonds. Even when catching a few winks of sleep the men lay with their rifles on their arms ready for action.

Machine Guns In Action.

English soldiers from the front tell some wonderful stories about the terrific execution done by their machine guns on the advancing Germans.

"We take up a position on the roadside and wait for them to come," said one of these soldiers. "When they are 200 or 300 yards away we are eager to fire. Says the captain:

"'Wait a bit till I make sure they are not English.'

"He looks through his glasses and then says:

"'Let them have it, boys!'

"Off it goes, and you see fifty or sixty drop. But it makes little difference. Others come on, and then we move our guns."

Use Mirrors as Signals.

Referring to the recent unfavorable news from the East Prussian frontier, a German officer, talking with a war correspondent, said:

"Now we know how the Russians were able to escape our movements. The espionage service which they have organized is enormous. The Russians are informed of everything that is happening in the daytime by spies, who light fires that produce smoke of various colors, as suits their purpose.

"At night they signal with lights. Mirrors are also utilized for signaling when the sun permits. Once we saw a procession of Russians carrying a sacred picture, which picture proved to be painted on a mirror.

"The Russians always escaped when we had succeeded in getting them on dangerous ground."

Sentimental Side Lights.

When the British expeditionary army landed on French soil the natives went wild with joy, and women overwhelmed Tommy Atkins with kisses. A letter received at London by the wife of one of the soldiers at the front declares:

"You would have been jealous if you had seen the women, old and young, kiss us. I was kissed scores of times. The natives went frantic with joy when they saw us. The women screamed with joy as they hugged us. Many wept bitterly and then wiped away the tears and offered us small presents."

Called to military duty, a Paris painter had to leave his wife and four children almost destitute. When he told his wife of the call she said:

"Do thy duty without worrying about us. The city and state and our associations will look after us women and children."

In a letter to her husband the wife inclosed $1 out of $1.20, the total amount of money in her possession.

All of Servia is enthusiastic in regard to the coming campaign for the conquest of territory from the Austrians.

One of the most remarkable features is the ardent enthusiasm displayed by the Servian women. Many of them have taken a pledge not to love a man who has not killed at least one of the enemy.

When Lieutenant St. Aubyn, killed in the Helgoland naval battle, was buried in London his mother sent a wreath bearing the inscription:

"To my darling boy. I thank my God upon every remembrance of you."

A Reuter dispatch from Dieppe says: "A German girl spy was arrested by English soldiers on the bridge over the Oise river at Lacroix. In her possession were the plans of all the roads and bridges around Paris. She appeared to be not more than seventeen years old."

Drunk With Battle Joy.

To the Paris Matin's correspondent at Chartres a colonial infantryman, wounded at Charleroi, told his experiences in the battle.

"We marched with our African comrades against the Prussian guard," he said. "We advanced in bounds amid the humming of bullets, using every bit of cover we could. We felt intoxicated with the joy of battle.

"I couldn't say how long the action lasted. All I remember is that we fired our last shot within fifty yards of the enemy. Then it was the pitiless thrust of cold steel. It would have given us the victory, for, however intrepid and steady are the troops we fight against, there are no soldiers in the world able to resist the Turkos' bayonet charge."

Jews Brave Fighters.

A corporal and two privates of the Black Watch, one of the four highland regiments, all wounded, arriving in London from the front, were surrounded by a crowd and cheered in the west end. The corporal, telling how his regiment fought, said:

"All around us were the dead and dying. Every now and then the German shells burst, and as we peppered away at 'em we sang 'Roamin' in the Gloamin'' and the 'Lass o' Killiekrankie.'"

Somebody in the crowd asked, "What were the Jews doing?"

The highlander replied:

"Their duty. We had three with us, and bonnier and braver lads I don't wish to see. They fought just splendidly."

"Amerikanischer Roast Beef."

William Parker of St. Louis, who arrived in London from Roumania, told of interesting things he had witnessed on his journey. He said:

"When we got to Breslau the mining of the town's approaches was going on, and I had a good look at it. They were digging trenches about three miles outside Breslau and burying horrible looking bombs eleven inches in diameter, row after row, as far as I could see. They seemed to fear a Russian attack.

"From Breslau we had a slow but not uncomfortable trip to Berlin. German officers who spoke enough 'American' to make themselves understood saw to it that we got coffee and food at stations along the way.

"You must know that 'American' is now officially recognized as a language. Signs up everywhere say 'American Spoken Here.' The bill of fare no longer reads 'English roast beef,' but 'Amerikanischer roast beef.' So all along the line it's all American now, not English."

Magic of a German Hair Cut.

H. B. Elgin, Joseph B. Wingsbury and James B. Leslie, all residents of Washington, after being arrested every day in Nuremberg because of their foreign appearance, had their hair clipped and raised small mustaches according to the most approved German fashion.

"We were all arrested, as nearly as I can remember, every day for the first four days," said one of the party, "and each day it was for something different. If we stopped a street car and talked English they had us. One of us who did not know a word of German was copying a steamship advertisement concerning sailing dates one day on the street, thinking to get the information in German and get it translated at our hotel.

"That move 'fixed' him, and a soldier with bayonet and revolver escorted him to headquarters. He couldn't make himself understood and things looked rather blue for a time, but a young German, who had lived in Tampa, Fla., spotted his high crowned American hat, gained entrance to the room and got him off.

"We finally decided to do as most young Germans do, probably because they are all going to war, and have our heads clipped close and raise mustaches. Arrests were not so fequent then."

Saves Women by a Ruse.

H. H. Paneck of New York, who returned on the steamship St. Paul as a steerage passenger, told how he got twenty women out of Paris by a ruse. The women had gathered from the interior of France and were anxious to get to England, but found the trains of cattle cars crowded.

"I told one young woman to faint," said Mr. Paneck, "and she did it well. Those aboard the trains rushed out to see the cause of the trouble, and by a prearrangement the other nineteen made for the places left vacant, while I carried the fainting woman aboard in my arms."

"Woman" Spy Fooled Girl.

Miss Diana Leverick of New York, who arrived in Boston from England on the Cunard liner Franconia, told how she became acquainted with a German "woman" while on board a Mediterranean boat bound for London who proved to be a German male spy in disguise and who later was shot.

"Among the passengers was a refined middle aged German woman who gave the name of Niederhaus," she said. "She bore every evidence of good breeding and made herself very agreeable to all of us. I became very much attached to her. She was so pleasant and affable that certain peculiarities of her gait and face were unnoticed. Her hands and feet seemed a trifle large, but I liked her so well that I could see nothing strange about her, although some of the other passengers began to comment upon her.

"On the morning of our arrival in London a messenger boy came aboard crying out, 'Telegram for Mrs. Niederhaus.' The woman did not answer. Finally came an official and a squad of soldiers, and she was led away to her cabin. We were amazed when soldiers locked themselves in with her until we learned that she was really a male spy. I read about her in the London Times next day, the paper describing how 'she' was shot by the soldiers."

Proud He Was Shot.

Among the stories of the French wounded is one told of an Algerian rifleman who was taken to Noisy-le-Sec. He had a bullet in his head and insisted that surgeons operate on him immediately. Finally a surgeon took him to a drug store and extracted the missile.

Then without waiting for the wound to be dressed the Algerian grabbed the bullet and held it out proudly so that those about him could see it.

Canaries to Watch For Aeroplanes.

The newspaper La Liberte of Paris declares that cage birds, especially canaries, never fail to signal the presence of an airship or an aeroplane by giving a cry of surprise. The paper suggests that they should be used as watch birds.

SEIZURES MAY LEAD TO CRISIS

Protest Lodged With England Over Capture of Tanker

TAKEN OFF ORKNEY ISLANDS

Standard Oil Vessel Was Always American and No Question of Flag Transfer Involved—Neutral Vessel Operating Between Neutral Ports Always Exempt From Seizure

Washington, Oct. 22.—Great Britain and the United States are rapidly approaching a "show down" on the question of British seizure of American vessels, according to official indications.

One strong protest to Great Britain was lodged yesterday, and another is in prospect. The protest made was over the seizure of the Standard Oil tanker John D. Rockefeller, an American bottom, never under foreign registry, plying with petroleum between the neutral ports of New York and Copenhagen.

Her seizure off the Orkney isles, the administration felt, was absolutely without excuse because no question of flag transfer was involved. International law likewise exempts from seizure any neutral vessel operating between neutral ports.

Protest over the seizure of the Standard Oil tanker Brindilla off Ambrose channel is also imminent. The state department felt that her transfer from the German to the American flag did not come within the scope of English objection, inasmuch as the Standard Oil company—and not the German government—benefited by the transfer. She was previously owned by the Hamburg company, a Standard Oil subsidiary.

Still another prospective seizure, that of the former German vessel Evelyn, now an American registered ship, lying off Philadelphia, gave the basis for further possible shipping difficulties with Great Britain.

Acting Secretary of State Lansing conferred at length with President Wilson, presumably on the British seizure subject. At the close of the conference he declined to indicate what the outcome was to be. It was officially indicated, however, that a protest in the Brindilla incident will be forthcoming, if it is found her seizure was based solely on a question of validity of transfer to the American flag.

BOYS PLAYED HOOKEY

Kill Themselves When They Find They Created Commotion

Freeland, Mich., Oct. 22.—Delbert Woodruff and Lloyd Pierce, aged 10 and 12 years respectively, killed themselves by shooting in fear of punishment for having "played hookey."

The boys failed to appear at their homes for supper and when inquiries revealed that they had not been at school during the afternoon searching parties were organized and for three hours men with lanterns patrolled the nearby woods and river banks.

In the meantime the boys were seen hurrying toward their homes and were informed of the commotion their disappearance had caused. Ten minutes later two shots were fired. The lads were found lying side by side in front of the Pierce home. Each had a bullet wound in his forehead and a small revolver clutched in his hand.

SHOT BY HER SUITOR

Widow Attacked by Sixty-Year-Old Man Whom She Spurned

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 22.—Because she refused to marry him and go back to Belgium, their native land, Mrs. Camille Fountain, a 40-year-old widow, was shot and probably fatally wounded in her boarding house by Teosil Debisco, 60.

The woman put up a stiff fight in her house, where she was alone when Debisco called. Two bullets entered her shoulder and there were wounds on her head. Her name was placed on the dangerous list at a hospital.

The assailant escaped and the police of New England have been asked to watch for him.

YEGGS DYNAMITE SAFE

Then Burn Postoffice Building and Escape on a Handcar

North Conway, N. H., Oct. 22.—The postoffice safe was dynamited, the postoffice building burned and a store next to the postoffice fired by robbers.

Stamps to the value of $150 and about $15 in money were obtained by the thieves, who escaped on a handcar which they stole from the freight house of the Maine Central railroad. The damage done by the men amounts to about $2200.

No White House Receptions

Washington, Oct. 22.—As a result of the death of President Wilson's wife, it has been practically decided to do away with all formal receptions at the White House this winter.

Leave It in the Inkstand.

QUINCY SQUARE

Miss Helen Griffin, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Griffin of 1067 Hancock stret, who has been seriously ill at the City Hospital, as the result of a fall some weeks ago while at play, has so far recovered from her injuries as to be able to return to her home.

Nine tables were in play Wednesday evening at the weekly whist tournament of the Granite City Club. The two best scores of the evening were made by WW. O. Wellington and Hazen E. Ricker. As usual a lunch was served after the tournament.

A goodly number of advance orders have already been received for the King's Daughter edition of the Quincy Daily Ledger. Circles throughout the State are much interested in this novel enterprise of the Quincy ladies.

CITY HALL HAPPENINGS

Mayor Whiton Calls a Conference Relative to Wires

Mayor Whiton has acted promptly on the resolution passed by the City Council last Monday evening relative to the removal of the overhead wires on Hancock street, between Granite and School streets, and has invited the three companies interested, the Electric Light Co. the, Telephone Co., and the Street Railway Co., to meet him at his office in City Hall, next week to talk the matter over. The Telephone Co. already have its underground conduits laid through the street and have few if any wires above ground, other than those that run from poles to subscribers.

Harry E. Howard, Miss Edna L. Spencer and Frank J. Lewis were granted permits to speak at the Tubular Rivet works this noon and at the Fore River gates at 4 o'clock.

In an interview with Mayor Whiton this morning, he said that he wanted the citizens to understand that the door leading to his office would always be open, unless he was engaged in a private conference.

In speaking of the death this morning of Richard Colbert of the Fire department, Mayor Whiton said that he learned of his death with deep regret. That by his death the department lost a faithful and efficient member.

The Mayor has written ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston asking if he was corectly quoted in regard to his statement as to corruption and mismanagement in the city government of Quincy and if so, asking him to furnish evidence in relation to the same. The ex-Mayor's reply is awaited with interest. In a morning paper of Wednesday Mr. Fitzgerald is reported as saying that if called upon by the Mayor of Quincy to answer he would reply, giving his reasons for making the statement he did, and proving that he was correct in the statement.

Bids were opened by Commissioner Brown this morning for building the concrete and stone bridge over the river on Winthrop street, Houghs Neck leading to Rock Island. Three bids were received as follows:

Calvin H. Fletcher	$2,340 00
Samuel B. Hulton	2,592.16
William Shea & Son	2,913.88

The bids were taken under advisement.

QUINCY WOLLASTON

Brasees hall was filled to overflowing on Wednesday evening at a Progressive rally which was addressed by Charles Sumner Bird, who for two years was candidate for Governor; Col. Henry L. Kincaide, Herbert O. Cassidy, Dr. Glasier, and Mr. Huddell. Music was by the Invisible orchestra.

At the meeting of Massachusetts lodge, A. F. & A. M. at the Masonic Temple, Boston, this week the Massachusetts State flag was presented to the lodge. The speech was made by Rev. Bro. Edward Abbott Chase, the chaplain, formerly of Wollaston. A song adapted from America by the chaplain was sung. James G. Brown is worshipful master of this lodge, and James Bates the secretary.

TROUBLE OVER $20 GOLD PIECE

Detective Makes It Unpleasant for Young Man

Followed from Neponset and held in City Square by a railroad detective on suspicion of passing counterfiet money, and released when George Meade of the Mt. Wollaston mank declared the $20 gold piece in question to be the genuine article, was the exciting experience on Tuesday morning of a well known young man who is associated with a City Square pharmacy.

The story has its beginnig in the South Station where the young man boarded a Braintree train after the indicator stated it stopped at Quincy. The ticket tendered the conductor was punched before he noticed the destination. He returned it "marked by mistake," and suggested that the matter be taken up by Mr. Wright of the railroad. The young man agreed to pay a cash fare, but having only o five cent piece in his possesion he fished out a new gold piece given him a wek ago at the Granite City Club by a cigar manufacturer.

The railroad detective who sat in the rear of the train made the change. In the meantime the young man wondered how he could get from Braintree in time to report for duty at the pharmacy, but fate not always unkind brought the train to a stop at Neponset. The young man jumped off and ran for a street car and directly behind was the detective who thought the coin spurious.

The pursued and pursuer both took a Quincy car and at City Square the young man hurriedly left the car and started up the street. The detective likewise hurried along, and in front of the Hancock cemetery he accosted him and putting his hand on the shoulder of his fugitive he said he was a railroad detective.

In quavering tones the young man asked "what of it," and then the detective said: "I have that $20 gold piece." Talk of an excited nature fololwed, the young man taking the defensive and finally a happy thought struck him and he suggested the call at the bank and the detective agreed. Mr. Meade said he wished he had a hundred of them and apologies were in order.

The well known man arrived at the pharmacy half an hour late but absolved of suspicion. His experience soon became known to many friends. To mention his name would be a violation of confidence. But several people know the story.

POLICEMAN SUSPENDED

Chief Asked to Enforce the Police Manual

Mayor Whiton gave a hearing this morning to Officer Jeremiah J. Connelly, on the charges preferred against him by Chief of Police Burrell. The hearing was held in private. After the hearing the Mayor reviewed the evidence and suspended Connelly until January 1, 1915. The letter to Officer Connolly suspending him was as follows:

Jeremiah J. Connolly, Quincy, Mass.

Dear Sir: After hearing the evidence upon complaint brought against you b ythe Chief of Police, that on August 23, 1914, you were intoxicated while in the performance of your duty and in uniform, and that you did visit at least two places and partake of intoxicating liquor, I hereby notify you that I sustain the charges, and that you stand suspended until January 1, 1915.

AA copy of the finding is to be sent to the Civil Service Commission and read at roll call at the police station.

Yours very truly,
Joseph L. Whiton,
Acting Mayor

As a result of the evidence given at the hearing Mayor Whiton has reprimanded two officers who saw Officer Connelly while intoxicated and failed to report the circumstances to Chief Burrell. He also wrote the following letter to Chief Burrell which will be read at roll call tonight:

Frank E. Burrell, Chief of Police, Quincy,, Mass.

Dear Sir: At roll call, tonight, I wish you would call to the attention of every officer in your department, the fact of the rules and regulations of the manuel now in force in our Police department.

I shall expect every officer, during my term of office, to live strictly by these rules, and any neglect of duty will be met by a severe regrimand.

Yours very truly,
Joseph L. Whiton,
Acting Mayor.

THREE FUNERALS.

The funeral of John J. Phelan, a poular an active member of St. John's parish and father of Joseph "Fay" Phelan, the widely known athlete was held this morning from the home of his daughter at 37 Richie road. Rev. Fr. John J. Coan celebrated the high mass of requiem at St. John's church and music was by the regular choir under the direction of John Mahon, organist. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Hannah Moriarty, who died at Taunton, took place from her home at 41 Germaine avenue. Rev. Fr. Florence McCarthy celebrated the high mass of requiem at St. John's church and the regular choir under the direction of John Mahon, rendered the music. Burial was in new Calvary cemetery.

The funeral of Alice Zita O'Connell who died at the Homoeopathic hospital took place this morning from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius O'Connell at 17 Holmes street. A high mass of requiem was sung at the Church of the Sacred Heart by Rev. Fr. John P. Cuffe, pastor and music was by the regular choir. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

WHERE HE MONEY GOES.

The question is often asked by contributors toward the work of the Quincy Associated Charities if the money goes for salaries or relief purposes. Money given to be used by the Secetary is always used as specified by the donor. A report is always returned and also vouchers when desired. A special relief account is kept by the Secretary and money given in this way reaches the family with the least possible publicity conserving the family self-respect.

The Associated Charities is a clearing house for all the social workers of the city. It savxes time and money, investigates carefully and advoids duplication in charity work. It encourages thrift and self-respect.

Have you contributed money or clothing this fall to help along the winter's work?

EPENDED NEARLY $500.

Frank Fssenden Crane of this city, who sought the Republican nomination from the 14th district and lost out to Harry Howard of Brockton, expended $455.91 acocrding to a statement of his expenditures filled at the office of the City Clerk today. The biggest item was traveling expenses which totaled over $200.

Miss Irene Corbett favored the company with two vocal solos, sweetly rendered. Miss Julia McGilvray and Miss Mollie Avery played two piano duets, and they were loudly applauded. A number of ladies from George L. Gill Rebekah lodge gave a farce entitled, "A Tipsy Pudding." All of the participants deserve considerable credit. It was very entertaining. A bean bag contest created great rivalry. Mrs. Annie Pushee received first prize and Mrs. Beatrice Marnock, the consolation. Dainty refreshments of cake, sandwiches, tea and candy were served.

QUINCY: a Beautiful and Attractive City in Which to LIVE—a Most Advantageous City in Which to Do BUSINESS.

URGES TAXPAYERS TO PAY THEIR BILLS

City Has Large Outstanding Loans in Anticipation of Taxes of 1914

Says Number of Complaints Are Not Justified

Editor Quincy Daily Ledger:

Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to publish the enclosed letter, for the benefit of the taxpayers of the City of Quincy?

Certain complaints having come to me since I took office in regard to our taxes and assesments, I deemed it my duty to go to the Tax Commissioner's office in the State House and get the proper instruction.

I find the duties of the Assessors are set forth in the following letter of instruction, issued to them by the Tax Commissioner of the Commonwealth:

To the Assesors of the cities and towns of Massachusetts.

Gentlemen: I wish to call your attention to the provision contained in Sec. 73, Part 1, Chap. 490, Acts of 1909, in the following language, namely: "A person shall not have an abatement, ... unless he has brought in to the assessors the list of his estate as provided in section forty-one."

It is plain that this provision applies in every case in which the assessors receive an application for abatement pursuant to the provisions of Sec. 72 of said Part 1. When the assessors refuse to make an abatement on such an application, the county commissioners, in case of an appeal, are placed under a still more stringent provision. This is contained in Sec. 76 of said Part 1 in the following words: "If the list ..... was not brought in within the time specified in the notice.....the tax shall not be abated unless..... there was good cause for delay....."

The superior court is bound by the same provision, as shown in Sec. 77 of said Part 1, in the following words, "subject to the same conditions." These conditions and limitations have been recognized by our courts and particularly in the case of Sears v. Nahant, 205 Mass. 558.

It is true that under the provisions of Sec. 72 of said Part 1 a tenant, under obligation to pay the taxes, may apply for an abatement, and under the provisions of Sec. 73, may have it, although his list was not seasonably brought in, and it is also true that Sec. 41 of said Part 1 contains the following language: "..... and may or may not require such list to include their real estate which is subject to taxation in that city or town."

In considering the provisions of Chap. 517 of the Acts of 1909 it might at first sight seem that a difference is made between abatements on personal taxes and those on real estate taxes: yet I think this is more apparent than real because, while Sec. 2 say: "..... no abatement shall be made of a tax assessed upon personal estate until the list..... is in the possession of the board of assessors."

Sec. 3 also has the following language: "..... or who causes an abatement to be made otherwise than is provided by law, ..."

It seems to be clearly provided by General View of Harbor and City of Dunkirk, France, Which Germans Planned to Take In Drive to Calais.

Dunkirk, in the northwesternmost part of France, was the objective of the German forces operating in that territory. The city is fortified and has about 60,000 population. It is a thriving seaport, with a modern harbor. From this city it is forty-five miles across the English channel to Dover, England. The plans of the German general staff apparently called for the capture of Dunkirk and then the taking of Calais, which is only twenty-two miles across the channel from Dover. Dunkirk was first surrounded by walls in the tenth century.

CAMPBELL IN WARD TWO

Speakers Term Him the Man of the Hour

The Chester I. Campbell forces with their orators, boosters chorus and Scottish bagpipers invaded Quincy Point Thursday evening and a rousing rally was held in the rooms of the Waseca Social club. Over 300 citizens of that section crowded into the upper hall of the club and enthusiastically cheered Mr. Campbell and the other speakers. Prior to the opening of the rally the Campbell forces in a dozen motor cars toured the district with the Scotch pipers in the van playing their popular native airs.

All of the speakers termed Mr. Campbell as the "Man of The Hour" and urged the voters that it was necessary to elect a man of his type to awake "slumbering City Hall and inject some life and business organization into it." The several speakers scoffed at the promised reduction in taxes as proposed by candidates opposed to Mr. Campbell.

John Hendry was the chairman, and the speakers were A. L. Stinson, Alexander Falconer, John L. Hamilton, Alexander Cowe and Candidate Campbell.

ANNUAL FAIR OF LUTHERANS

Swedish Costumes and Flags Conspicuous

The annual fair of the Swedish Lutheran church opened in Faxon hall Thursday evening with a capacity house. The speech of welcome was by Rev. Leander K. Hokenson, pastor who is in general charge of the affair.

A good percentage of those present on the opening night were children and many wore the national Swedish costumes which were outgrown by their parents some years ago. American and Swedish flags were a conspicuous part of the decorations. The tables, arranged about the hall are liberally supplied with goods of all description, and Swedish signs are displayed telling of the articles for sale and the purposes to which the proceeds will be directed. The committees, excepting the ice cream which includes 12 people, are made up of six people two to serve each night.

FIRE AT QUINCY WOODS

Cottage Blaze Was Probably Incendiary

The alarm from Box 18 at 9.26 Thursday night was for a fire in a small summer cottage in Quincy woods near the corner of Sea and Palmer streets. The cottage was burning briskly when discovered and by the time the department arrived was burning fiercely. There was but little in the cottage, as the family had gone away for the winter. It was a small affair, evidently built of old boxes and tarred paper, and strictly for summer use. The indications were that the fire was of incendiary origin, and Chief Billings has notified the State fire marshal who is expected today to make an investigation. The loss will be less than $100. Chief Billings was unable to get the name of the owner of the cottage at the time of the fire.

DISTRICT COURT.

Charles Munger was fined $10 for breaking street lights at Milton.

Frank Bullock was fined $10 for drunkenness at Weymouth and James Gallagher $10 for drunkenness at Quincy.

CITY HALL HAPPENINGS

Work on Hancock Street Will Now be Rushed

Commissioner Brown said this morning that the cause for the delay on Hancock street was the non-arrival of the curbing which had been ordered some time ago. He had received word however that the curbing would probably be delivered today, and that work would be commenced immediately.

The Commissioner says that the sub grading of Winthrop avenue has been commenced and that he expects to start work on Huckins avenue, Squantum, immediately.

A letter of Mayor Whiton relative to taxation will be found in another column.

CARE OF TREES.

An item in the report of the opening of the season of the Quincy Women's Club which possibly did not catch the eye of the reader should, we believe, be given further publicity. Mrs. Mackay for the forestry department of the club announced that $2200 had been expended by our citizens in the care of their trees.

This we think is remarkable. The expenditure of so large a sum shows much individual interest in civic welfare and a love of trees that we did not suppose existed in our city except among a few, but figures speak and $2200 is a goodly sum. The work is to continue so that most of the trees on private places and along the roadside will be saved to future generations.

THE UNFIT IMMIGRANT.

Many people express the fear that the close of the war is going to bring to this country a stream of cripples and sufferers from ailments contracted during the war.

The present laws exclude any immigrant, who by reason of physical or mental defect, may seem unlikely to earn a living. Having enacted this necessary statute, the government skimps on the facilities necessary to enforce it.

Five thousand immigrants often pass through Ellis Island station at New York in a day. Predictions are made that new routes through the Panama Canal will bring a horde to the Pacifice coast. When the war is over the opportunities of America will appeal to many men whose jobs are gone and whose homes are destroyed. If they have willing hands and strong arms, there will be work for them to do here.

The immigrant, even when physically strong, is a pathetic picture. He has the idea that America is the land of easy money. He leaves some comfortable enough peasant cottage with his meager savings of a life time. He exchanges the healthful open air of his farm at home for the damp odors of the mine, the stifling air of a factory, and the congested life of the tenement. In a year his ruddy face turns pale. He pays commissions to sharpers of his own race for his job, and may have less to eat than at home.

If he also brings the seeds of diseases and weaknesses incurred in war, his lot will be miserable indeed. He is likely to become a public charge. At home, ties of friendship and charity would enable him to subsist.

When the war is over, the keepers at our gates will need every facility to enable them to discover and exclude the unfit. It would be far more just and merciful, if examinations could be made on the other side, to save these poor people a fruitless and costly trip. It would be better still if means could be found to persuade them that gold is rarely picked up on our public streets.

INVADERS ARE CHECKED BY BRITISH FLEET

Positions Easily Shelled by Guns From Warships

FURIOUS FIGHTING IS REPORTED AROUND YPRES

Dispatches From Amsterdam Claim German Troops Have Been Driven From Middelkerke, Near Ostend—Battle Rages Along River Yser but Nowhere Have British, French and Belgians Been Forced to Give Ground—Night Attack by Kaiser's Men Repulsed by Masked Batteries of Allies Which Powerful Searchlights Failed to Reveal—Both Russians and Germans Claim Decisive Victories Near Warsaw

London, Oct. 23.—Reports from Amsterdam which are regarding as authentic, indicate that the destructive fire of the British fleet in action off the Belgian coast has cleared the invaders out of Middelkerke, about five miles southwest of Ostend.

This is not confirmed by the official French statements, but the numerous dispatches which commend the effective firing of the fleet make it seem probable that the enemy has been pushed back as far as Mariakerke, almost a suburb of Ostend.

The German positions at Middelkerke and Mariakerke are easily raked by the shells of the fleet, as both the resorts stand upon low dunes, with no protection from the sea.

The fighting has been intense all day from the North sea as far as La Basse in France, but it has been along the narrow strip of dunes facing the sea that the most signal success appears to have been won.

Long-Range Guns on Warships

The British warships engaged in the land battle, said to number eleven, are all supplied with guns of greater range than any thus far brought into action by the Germans. Apparently there have been a few casualties on board the fleet, but the damage done has been slight, although Berlin messages claim that one torpedo boat was put out of action by German artillery. This is not confirmed by the admiralty at London, who insist that practically no damage has been inflicted upon the fleet. The monitors mentioned Thursday continue to bear the brunt of the attack, their shells creating havoc in the German trenches.

Belgian Troops Are Heroes

Along the line of the river Yser the battle rages with the same intensity as for the last few days, but nowhere have the Belgians, the British marines and the French been forced to give ground. Once more the remnants of the Belgian army have proved themselves heroes. Their renown has now reached Petrograd, which adds enthusiastic praise to that already given the troops of King Albert in Paris, London, and even Berlin.

In the little corner of their native land that they still possess, they have repulsed superior numbers day after day. Reinforcements have now reached them, chiefly French troops, and it is the general opinion here that the Germans have succeeded in overrunning all the Belgian territory that they can ever conquer. From now on, it seems probable that the invaders will be steadily pushed back from western Belgium, although it will probably require months to force them out of the central and eastern sections of the ruined land.

Furious Fighting Inland

On the battle lines inland from the North sea the fighting has been furious, especially between Ypres and Menin. Here the Germans attempted one of their favorite night attacks, aided by powerful searchlights which illuminated the trenches of the allies. But the assault had been anticipated and masked batteries that the searchlights did not reveal, did terrible execution. It was treacherous ground for battling as the dykes had been opened and the continual rains had converted the low country into an almost continuous swamp. Both the French and German claim to have made advances near Ypres, but the weakening of the German lines near the coast ought to compel a falling back here before the week ends.

Drawn Battle About Lille

About Lille the battle seems indefinitely drawn. More troops are massed in this region than at any other place along the battle lines. German reinforcements have been hurled into the fighting here, and Berlin claims that in several villages about Lille the allies have been compelled to retreat and that the British have lost several machine guns. Paris, on the contrary, insists that a wedge has been driven for two miles into the strong positions of the enemy and that elsewhere the German assaults have been checked. The losses of the Germans in the fighting from Warneton to La Bassee are said to have been appalling.

Elsewhere along the battle line, now extended until it stretches for fully 400 miles, no great advantage appears to have been won by either side, although vicious attacks have been delivered at many places, near Albert and Arras on the German right wing; about Craonne and in the forest of Argonne on the centre; and in the Meuse and Woevre districts on the right.

Report of Russian Victory

In the east, although silence continues to emanate from Berlin, the Russians now appear to have won a considerable victory about Warsaw. The Seventeenth and Twentieth German army corps are said to have been terribly depleted by the Russian artillery and infantry, while thousands of the invaders who had hoped to be within Warsaw four days ago are now reported as retreating in considerable disorder toward the German frontier.

To the north the Germans have once more taken the offensive and are moving again against the fortress of Ossowetz, which they battered in vain before being driven back into East Prussia. Premysl still seems to be enduring a bombardment, but for many days this has been only one engagement on a long battle line that stretches many miles to the north and south. This battle seems to be swaying back and forth, the Russians winning one day and the Germans and Austrians the next. Probably many days more must pass before the outcome will be clear.

Still further south, the Russians appear to be meeting with reverses at the hands of the rejuvenated Austrians. They have been driven out of Hungary and now a strong force of Austrians appears to be pushing the invaders out of a considerable part of the province of Bukowina, which has been for many days completely controlled by the Russians. Vienna claims that the Russians have been driven out of Czernowitz, the capital of Bukowina, and that they are in retreat toward the Russian frontier.

German Official Statement

An official announcement issued from chief headquarters at Berlin says:

"On the Yser canal heavy fighting is still in progress. The enemy was reinforced by artillery fire from the sea at a point to the northward of Nieuwport, but in the engagement a British torpedo boat was put out of action by our artillery.

"Fighting continues west of Lille, and here also our troops have assumed the offensive and have repulsed the enemy at several points. The English have lost several machine guns.

"No decision has yet been reached in the eastern theatre of the war.

"In the northeastern war theatre our troops are pursuing the retreating enemy in the direction of Ossowetz (Russian Poland). Several hundred prisoners and machine guns were taken.

"Near Warsaw and elsewhere in Russian Poland, after several days of battle, nothing decisive has been reported. The situation is still in a state of evolution.

battle, no fighting was reported yet. The situation is still in a state of evolution.

"Fierce attacks from the direction of Toulon heights, south of Thiaucourt, were repulsed with heavy losses to the French.

"The fact is, the British admiral commanding the fleet off Ostend wanted to bombard the town, but finally was persuaded by the Belgian authorities to abstain."

HAVE SCOTTISH BASES

England Alarmed by Discovery That Germany Has Secret Oil Stores

Passengers arriving at New York on the Adriatic report that England is alarmed over the discovery that the Germans have secret bases for their aircraft in Scotland.

They say that posters are displayed in all of the Scotch towns which offer a reward of $500 to anyone who gives information to locate any place in Scotland which is being used by the Germans as a store of oil and petrol.

It was said that the government is in possession of authenic information showing that the Germans, long before the war was even talked of, laid out operating bases for their aircraft in certain parts of Scotland, but that it has so far been impossible to locate these.

COUNT VON MOLTKE

Kaiser's Chief of Staff Is Reported to Be Dying

REPORT VON MOLTKE DYING

Chief of German General Staff Has Affection of the Liver

A private letter received in Amsterdam from a high official in Berlin says Lieutenant Count Helmuth von Moltke, chief of the German general staff, is dying, according to the Exchange Telegraph's Amsterdam correspondent.

"Everything," the correspondent adds, "is being done to keep the news secret. General von Moltke is suffering from an affection of the liver. The cure he was undergoing was interrupted in July by the German mobilization. He has now had to leave Emperor William's headquarters, General von Falkenhayn, the Prussan minister of war, being left in charge.

"Many German officers ascribe the check to the German advance to the forced retirement of General von Moltke."

JAPANESE WARSHIP READY

Is Waiting Outside Honolulu Harbor For German Craft

Just outside the three-mile limit, her searchlights constantly illuminating the entrance to Honolulu harbor, the Japanese battleship Hizen is keeping patrol while anchored in the roads the German warship Geir awaits the verdict of port officials as to how long she may remain in the harbor for repairs.

While the port officials have been uncommunicative regarding this time allowance, two reports have gained credence. One is that the repairs will be completed within a few days when she must leave port and face her enemy lying in wait without or be interned for the remainder of the war. The other is that the officers of the Gier may ask permission to send to the mainland for necessary engine equipment. In this event her overhauling would require at least a month.

GERMANY RELEASES JAPS

Have Been Detained In Berlin Since Beginning of War

Germany has released several more of the Japanese detained in Berlin at the beginning of the war, the state department at Washington advised the Japanese embassy. Upon their release the Japanese were escorted to Switzerland by one of the secretaries of the American embassy in Berlin.

Ambassador Gerard cabled it was necessary for him to feed the Japanese at the embassy because the German restaurants refused to serve them. He has been asked on behalf of Japan to renew his efforts for the release of Japanese still held in East Prussia.

SIX SUSPECTS ARRESTED

New Haven Officers Take Men Thought to Have Robbed Store

New London, Conn., Oct. 23.—Six men in a touring car, were arrested here at the point of revolvers, on suspicion of being connected with the robbery of a store at Providence, R. I.

At police headquarters the men gave their names as L. E. Maynard, R. W. Staley, Burnside McCullen, Albert Percival, J. F. Brady and Michael Devlin. About $675 was found on them. As they entered the station house Staley drew a revolver and pointed it at an officer. He was immediately covered by half a dozen revolvers and disarmed. In addition to the money found on the men they had a large quantity of postage stamps and money orders.

There have been postoffice robberies with safe blowing in half a dozen towns in Connecticut, and in New Haven last Friday night eight safes in as many stores were broken open. All the stores were within 300 feet of police headquarters there.

URGES TAXPAYERS

law in Sec. 73, above mentioned, that a person shall not have an abatement unless he has brought in to the assessors a list of his estate as provided in Sec. 41 and I find nothing in any of the above quoted statutes or elsewhere which seems to me to warrant making any distinction in this respect between taxes on account of personal estate and those on account of real estate. I think it is true that the assessors throughout the state have of late years been very careful not to disregard this provision as relating to taxes on acount of personal property.

The practice, however, with regard to taxes on acount of real estate has been less strict, and I am bringing the matter to your attention in order to advise that, in my opinion, no abatement should be made pursuant to the provisions of Sec. 72 and the following sections of Part 1, Chap. 490 Acts of 1909, on account of taxes, whether on personal estate or real estate, unless the list of the person in question is in the possession of the board of assessors.

Yours truly,
William D. T. Trefry,
Tax Commissioner.

I do not for one moment doubt that there have been some assessments raised in different parts of the city, which seem to be excessive, but there have, however, been a number of complaints which I find were not justified. The Board of Assessors under the law are unable to make any abatements unless a statement is filed, which you can readily see by the letter from the Tax Commisioner above.

Those of the citizens who are familiar with municipal government (and those who are not should become familiar with the same) will know that there are large loans made at the beginning of the year in anticipation of taxes. At present these amount to $475,000. I might state that taxes are coming in slower this year than ever before. The duty of an Executive of this city is plain, if he lives up to his oath of office, which I am in duty bound to do painful though it may be these notes or bonds fall due during the year, and as I have stated before, the taxes are not coming in fast enough to meet the same, which causes renewals.

I want the taxpayers to thoroughly understand that even 1914 personal and real estate taxes, after 14 days from date of bill, after issuing a summons, can be forced the same as poll taxes of the same year. Of course the law provides in extreme cases of poverty and other special conditions, where exceptions can be made.

The citizens of this city have probably heard the word "bankrupt" used in speaking of the condition of our city. I want to assure everyone living within our bounds that such is not the case. In fact as far as our city's becoming bankrupt such a thing is impossible, as everyone well knows that every piece of real estate is collateral against all loans. Our assets, however, from a financial point of view, greatly exceed our liabilities. We may be temporarily embarrassed by not collecting our taxes, but as far as a bankrupt condition is concerned, we are far from that.

I wonder if the people of Quincy realize that we have outstanding previous to 1914, $128,000 in uncollected taxes. You can all readily understand how necessary it is for these bills to be paid.

In brief about the present situation, I will say that no abatement can be made unless statements are produced. In fact the Board of Assessors lay themselves liable to any other procedure in abatements, and I do pledge myself to assist the taxpayers and the Board of Assessors in every possible way that it is legal for me to do. The city must have the taxes paid, and as the Chief Executive of this city at the present time, I have no other methods to pursue than to instruct the Tax Collector to immediately collect the bills outstanding, at least previous to 1914.

Hoping every citizen will understand my position and also the position of the city, and will be able to come forward and pay his taxes, especially those overdue.

Joseph L. Whiton.

COUGH TWO YEARS OLD

Yields to Vinal. Read Why.

Strong vigorous men and women hardly ever catch cold; it is only when the system is run down and vitality low that colds and coughs get a foothold.

Now isn't it reasonable that the right way to cure a cough is to build up your run down condition again?

Mrs. D. A. McGee of Waycross, Ga., says: "I had a chronic cold and cough which kept me awake nights for two years and I felt tired all the time. Vinol cured my cough and I feel stronger in everyway."

The reason Vinol is so efficacious in such cases is because it contains in a delicious concentrated form all the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil, with tonic, blood building iron added.

Chronic coughs and colds yield to Vinol because it builds up the weakened, run-down system.

You can get your money back any time if Vinol does not do all we say. Edward J. Murphy, Druggist, Quincy.

REDUCE DEBT EACH YEAR

Says Candidate Tilden at Norfolk Downs

A home rally in the interest of Henry F. Tilden, Republican candidate for Mayor, was held Thursday evening at the home of Edward A. Poland at Norfolk Downs. Mr. Poland presided at the meeting and there were about forty gentlemen present.

The speakers were Candidate Tilden, ex-Mayor Eugene R. Stone, Acting Mayor Joseph L. Whiton, Councilman Herbert G. Beeman and John R. Nelson, T. L. D. Gurney, and Edward E. Palmer.

Candidate Tilden in his remarks said in part:

The influential men who have drawn me into this contest I believe are honest of purpose. Now if this is so, they can have but one object to attain and that is the welfare of this city. They think or know I have the ability and honest endeavor to do that which would be of benefit to the majority of our citizens.

I propose to do it. I can and will devote my entire time to its affairs, and if I find things are not as they should be, I will certainly correct them. I believe this community is too large for a man, no matter how smart he may be, to give one-tenth of his time to this work and have it done properly. He must constantly have his eye upon supervision, select the most able men for the places to be filled, and then see that they attend to their duty.

In my opinion a man cannot go into this office if he has made promises to any of his supporters and do the right thing, and the only promise I have made, or will make, is to get efficiency or economy. Of course everyone knows we must have improvements, but do not improve so fast you will make your city run behind. Keep ahead of the game, and if possible reduce the debt each year."

HANGAR WAS BURGLARIZED

Thursday afternoon Stanley Atherton, the aviator inventor, discovered that his hanger on the old Aviation grounds at Squantum had been entered by burglars. The lock had been forced from the door and parts of an aeroplane to the value of $250 are reported missing. Among the missing parts are two eight-foot propellers, and parts of an eight-cylinder motor and six heavy rubber-tired rimmed wheels, such as are used on the bottom of the aeroplane to land with. Two of these wheels were taken from the machine.

Mr. Atherton told the police that he can readily identify his property as there are but few articles of their description in this country. Mr. Atherton, who lives in Randolph, came to Squantum on Thursday for the first time for several days. In addition to the parts of the flying machine that had been taken were a number of tools which are missing. It would be a very easy matter for a burglar to visit the hangar, as he could readily reach the field by boat from the Neponset side of the river without attracting much attention.

The proceeds last year went to charity and it is planned to use this years profits for the same purpose.

OCTOBER FESTIVAL

Farce Presented--Packing the Misson Barrel

The "young" ladies of the Universalist church entertained a large number of people in Murray hall, Thursday evening by giving a unique October festival. Mrs. Robert G. Read was chairman and she was assisted by Mrs. John F. Hyland in charge of the entertainment, Mrs. T. A. Addison the refreshments, Miss Annie Hobart, candy, Miss Marcella Souther, preserves.

Considerable time had been given to details and when the people arrived they were agreeably surprised. Small tables were arranged about the hall, in cabaret style, giving a festive appearance. The young ladies who served at these were Ruth Burleigh, Alice Parmenter, Reta Stoddard, Bernice Stoddard, H. Louise Prescott, Elizabeth Reed, Margaret Hogan and Miss Young. The menu consisted of sandwiches, coffee, cake, ice cream, etc.

The entertainment consisted of a trio selections by Miss Walker and Miss Martha Hanson, violinists, with Mrs. Cutter at the piano. Soprano solos by Miss Rebekah Andrews of Gloucester and Miss Edith Hyland of Woliaston, piano duett by Max Pinkham and Miss Katherine Reed, bass solo by John E. Greene, violin solo by Miss Walker, singing by Miss Hyland, Miss Barston, Miss Katherine Reed and Miss Anna Weston, readings Mrs. A. B. Root of Jamaica Plain, and a farce entitled ""Packing the Mission barrel."

The "young" ladies in the farce were Mrs. J. W. Lombard, Mrs. C. H. Green, Mrs. Emily Blake, Mrs. James Harris, Mrs. Jennie Houlton, Mrs. J. F. Hyland, Mrs. R. G. Reed, Miss Alfretta Hanson, Mrs. Irving Hyland and Miss Katherine Reed. They were just as much at home on the stage as ever and no prompting was required. The audience greatly appreciated the hits. John gladly donated his fishing suit, Mark his long pants and Mary her crochet gloves and soon the mission barrel was packed.

It was nearly eleven o'clock when the festival was over and everybody went home happy. The proceeds were very good.

ALL GRADUATES ARE INVITED

A general committee meeting of Quincy High school graduates will be held at the Quincy high scohol, Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock, when steps will be taken to set in motion the machinery for a permanent alumni association.

Representative delegations from the classes for nearly a dozen years back will attend, and other graduates known to be interested have been invited. Invitations have also been sent the Superintendent of Schools, head master of the High school and members of the School Committee.

The meeting will be called together by the acting chairman of the present committee and the election of a chairman and clerk will be in order. The meeting will be thrown open for such discussion and transaction of business which those present see fit to offer.

It is hoped by its sponsors that the meeting will result in the appointment of a number of committees to consider the several phases of an Alumni association and report at a mass meeting when the Association will be officially organized.

Suggestions from any graduate will be gladly received and presented for consideration at Saturday's meeting if the same are sent to J. Harry Hooper, secretary of the committee, 112 Beach street, Wollaston.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL SOCCER.

Lincoln 8; Gridley 2.

Hancock 0; Montclair 0.

The Lincolns overwhelmed the Gridleys Thursday afternon. The game was a runaway from the start. The Montclair and Hancock games were scoreless ties.

GAS EARNINGS LARGER.

The September returns of the Citizens Gas Company show a big increase in earning. In September 1912 they were $3,601, the next year $4,635, and this year $6,696. The Newton Gas Co. shows a loss from $9,718 to $6,156.

OPEN RALLY AT SHIPYARD

Edward P. Powers, one of the mayoralty candidates, and Harry P. Levowich, a enthuniastic Wall supporter, clashed at the open rally at Fore River shipyard this noon.

Mr. Powers had just finished his speech, in which he stated Mr. Wall had said he would rather be a selectman of Seagirt than an official of the city of Quincy, when Attorney Levowich asked why it was Col. Kincaide followed Wall around, and if he wasn't going to vote for him.

Powers replied Col. Kincaide had his choice and had not declared himself in municipal politics. The debate between both then waxed warm, and the crowd applauded Powers to the discomfiture of Levowich.

Essay on Shoes.

Shoes come in pairs.

They go the same way except in the case of solo legged persons.

Horseshoes are signs of good luck except when planted in the middle of one's person by the accompanying horse.

In former times we wore shoes as seldom as possible.

Our feet were about four stubs stubborner than the stubborn glebe that Mr. Elegy Gray writes about.

In the gentle springtime when we first divorced the leaky winter boots that had grown irksome the southern exposure of our farm feet was of about the consistency of patent leather.

In June it resembled horn.

In September harveyized steel had nothing on our hoofs.

Between barefoot days when we attended Sunday school, circus or some other devotional exercise we wore congress gaiters.

The congress gaiters (one of ours is now on exhibition in the Smithsonian Institution) had an elastic gore on each cheek.—Indianapolis Star.

Taught by Example.

Mrs. Mordecai Hammerfest turned pale as her husband entered the dining room for breakfast.

"Mordy," she gasped, "do you—don't you feel well?"

"Perfectly," he replied in seeming surprise.

"But—but you are in your"—

"Tell me something I don't know. Pass the butter, please."

She passed the butter, remarking nervously, "But, Mordy, dear, as you came in I saw you didn't have any shoes on."

"Well, what of it? Your hair is in curl papers, isn't it?"

"Why—y-yes."

"And you have on a wrapper."

"Yes."

"Very well, then."

And he went on eating his breakfast in silence except when he asked her to pass the butter. Then he went upstairs and finished dressing, and the next morning and on succeeding mornings she reported for breakfast in regular clothes.—Boston Journal.

Changing Matter.

"Can the diamond be destroyed by intense heat?" asks a reader.

Yes. Any substance known can be vaporized in the fierce heat of the electric furnace. The word "destroyed" should not have been used. Diamond is chemically pure carbon—that is, lampblack—and the same quantity still exists after the diamond has vanished. Man is now able to destroy the form of all matter known to chemists—that is, matter disappears as matter, only to resolve back into its primordial electrons. These are pure electricity, and nothing else exists. These man cannot create nor destroy. All that any human can create is a thought that had not been created before. But this is a theory, for all thoughts may be eternal. But here one must stop, for our minds cannot think of the meaning of the word eternal.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

Burns' Cottage.

The Burns cottage at Ayr is under the charge of trustees, who purchased it in 1881 from the Ayr Shoemakers' incorporation for the sum of £4,000. The birthplace of the poet had up till that time been in use as a public house. The trustees abandoned the license and after a time removed a hall and other extraneous buildings which had been added to the premises and restored the cottage buildings as nearly as possible to the state they may have been in in Burns' time. A new museum was built at the northeast corner of the grounds. Most of the relics were removed to the museum, which now contains a priceless collection—a first or Kilmarnock edition of the poet's work, for which £1,000 was paid, and Burns' family Bible, acquired at a cost of £1,700.—London Answers.

Beef In Boston In 1740.

A writer in the Yale Review, who notes that in 1740 beef could be bought in Boston at 12 cents a pound, seems to imply that that price was all it was worth. "Invariably a steak for dinner was heralded by the vigorous pounding with the potato masher wielded by the stalwart arm of the cook." The meat, in fact, often came, he tells us, from the carcass of "a cow that no longer gave milk or a bull that had lost its bloom."

GRIEVANCE OF MR. GEDDES

Tells How the Assessors Increased His Valuation

Editor Daily Ledger:

In your issue of Oct. 20th you printed a list of tax rates with Quincy below the average.

Now, Mr. Editor, I would like to ask if the Ledger is in league with the present city officials to smooth out Quincy's tax tangle. Will you please make out my rate and print it in your paper. I have always stood for the Daily Ledger, and I am sure you will use me right. In 1913 my taxes were $73.47 on a valuation of $3,100. On the same property, without any improvements in 1914, the taxes are $91.58. This is on a house that I paid less than $2,700 for in 1910, and I have spent less than $3. in improvements.

Now Mr. Editor please tell me my rate.

Edward H. Geddes,
21 Bedford street.

The editor wishes to assure Mr. Geddes that the Daily Ledger is not in league with city officials. Your tax rate is the same as all other taxpayers, namely $22.20. The increase in your assessed valuation appears rather stiff, from $3,100 to $4,100 over 33 per cent. We have no personal knowledge of the proper valuation of your property.

Taxpayers should remember that the tax levy of 1914 is $35,500 larger than in 1913, and that naturally tax bills would be larger regardless of the valuation or tax rate. If there was no increase in valuation this year, the rate would have been $1.00 more than last year or $24.70. As a matter of fact the tax rate is $22.20, or $2.50 less.

After all, it is more creditable to Quincy to have a tax rate of $22.20 WHICH IS BELOW THE AVERAGE of Massachusetts cities, than the rate of 1913 which was the HIGHEST city rate in Massachusetts.

TEACHING IN PORTO RICO

Albert Coffin, Jr., who was appointed a school teacher in Porto Rico by the Department in Insular Affairs is located in the suburbs of San Juan and writes that he is pleasantly situated.

Mr. Coffin is a young attorney of this city. His name was placed on the list of eligible candidates for teachers positions at Washington, D. C., last summer. Most of the teachers in Porto Rico since education became a factor in the development in the island have been from England. The prospects of war in early fall prevented many returning from there to resume their duties. The Board of Education of Porto Rico asked that the United States list be opened to their department, and Mr. Coffin was one of 15 appointed from New England to the vacancies.

AGAINST THE LAW.

Charles W. Dill of Wollaston, an ardent Progressive was instrumental in giving the Republicans who passed the law forbidding the use of the American flag for political advertising, a taste of their own medicine on Thursday.

While in that city on a business trip he saw banners bearing the names "McCall and Cushing" featuring the flag flying across Main street. He brought it to the attention of the police. They looked up the Republican law which makes it illegal to use the flag attached to such banners and put it before the Republican committee members. The big flag was hauled in, the banners detached and later flung to the breeze without entanglements.

Here Is Good News for Stomach Victims

Some very remarkable results are being obtained by treating stomach, liver and intestinal troubles with pure vegetable oils, which exert a cleansing, soothing and purifying action upon the lower bowels, removing the obstructions of poisonous fecal matter and gases and preventing their absorption by the blood. This done, the food is allowed free passage from the stomach, fermentation ceases and stomach troubles quickly disappear.

George H. Mayr, for twenty years a leading Chicago druggist, cured himself and many of his friends of stomach, liver and intestinal troubles of years' standing by this treatment, and so successful was the remedy he devised that it has since been placed in the hands of druggists all over the country, who have sold thousands of bottles.

Though absolutely harmless, the effect of the medicine is sufficient to convince any one of its remarkable effectiveness, and within 24 hours the sufferer feels like a new person. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy is now sold here by Clyde T. Cox and druggists everywhere.

Y. M. C. A. ACTIVITIES

Hallowe'en Social Is Planned and Other Good Times

Did you hear Rev. Mr. Willmott last week in his talk in the Association hall? If you didn't you missed a treat. These Saturday morning meetings are held at 9 o'clock sharp, and all boys whether members of the boys' division of the Y. M. C. A. or not are welcome to attend. The speaker this week will be Rev. Joseph Walther of Wollaston.

Do you know about the Boys' Cabinet in the boy's division? It holds meetings frequently and decides what the activities of the whole division shall be. It is composed of the boys' secretary and seven fellows who are chairmen of the different committees. Are you on a committee? If you are tell others about it.

The H. O. club has a large number of members in our boys' division. Glad to see the way the boys have taken hold of this new club. Any boy who complies with the rule of the club may become a member.

The many friends of Frank Morrison and Marshall McMillian will be pleased to hear they are fast recovering. They would be glad to have the fellows come and see them and to hear about the good times we are all having this year.

A Hallqwe'en social is planned for Oct. 31 in the gym. The social committee are expecting a large number of fellows that night so come and join the crowd. The gym is to be decorated and the fun commences at 7.30 so don't miss this for the world.

Ping-pong-tournament starts soon. Get your name in fellows and see what you can do. One of these tournaments are planned for each month.

Bible classes start soon. The committee wants to have this year the best ever so get busy and sign up.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT.

Announcing a conference on "Industrial Development and Foreign Trade Extension," to be held on Friday, October 30 at the Copley Plaza, Chairman Alfred W. Donovan of the State Board of Labor and Industries today called attention to the fact that Massachusetts leads all the other States in the establishment of an industrial development bureau. The Bay State, Mr. Donovan says, is the first of the States to go after foreign trade as a State.

The Copley Plaza conference, one week from Friday, will do something more than "discuss" opportunities in the way of foreign trade extension. Men really interested will be given specific information: will be told "how."

WHIST AND DANCE.

Quincy lodge of the Skandinavian Brotherhood of America held a whist on Thursday evening which was well attended. There were 20 tables in play at the whist party and souvenirs were awarded to Peter Logan, Siegried Dalby, Otto Lundquist, Mrs. Leonard, Johnson, Mrs. Gunnar Olsen Miss Annie Constandt. Music for dancing was by Carl Bastin and Dagma Nelson. Refreshments were served. The committee in charge was Conrad Olson, Alex Glandt, Alex, Anderson, Gust Brunstrom, Charles Bastin, Hjalmar Nijman, Nors Glandt, Mrs. S. Cedarstrom, Mrs. Olson and Swan Cedarstrom.

WANTED FOR LARCENY.

William J. Haddow, 19 years, a Quincy carpenter, was arrested while at work in a new house on Revere road Thursday for the police of Rumford, Me. Haddow it is alleged stole a diamond ring while employed in that town a short time ago. When taken into custody by Capt. McKay and Inspector Goodhue he was somewhat surprised. The police say the young man had in his possession a one and a quarter carat diamond which he confessed with was the ring he was charged with stealing. He was turned over to A. J. Landry, sheriff of Rumford county, who accompanied them, and was taken back for trial.

LEGEND OF THE TEAPOT.

Origin of the Beverage as the Tale Is Told In China.

The Chinese claim to be the first users of tea as a drink, and how it originated is told in a pretty little legend that dates from 2,000 years before the coming of Christ.

A daughter of a then reigning sovereign fell in love with a young nobleman whose humble birth excluded him from marrying her. They managed to exchange glances, and he occasionally gathered a few blossoms and had them conveyed to her.

One day in the palace garden the sweethearts met, and the young man endeavored to give her a few flowers, but so keen was the watchfulness of her attendants that all she could grasp was a little twig with green leaves.

On reaching her room she put the twig in water, and toward evening she drank the water in which the twig had been kept. So agreeable was the taste that she even ate the leaves and stalks. Every day afterward she had bunches of the tea tree brought to her, which she treated in the same way.

Imitation being the sincerest form of flattery, the ladies of the court tried the experiment and with such pleasing results that the custom spread throughout the kingdom—and the great Chinese tea industry became one of the greatest businesses in the world.—London Tit-Bits.

PAINT THE SCREW HOLES.

Then You Can Use Them Over and Over Again Without Trouble.

Many persons experience considerable difficulty in getting screws to hold in screen doors and other movable conveniences which are put up and taken down frequently and which are held in place by screws. The holes occupied by the screws become worn, and the screws are often quite loose, causing doors to sag and be otherwise out of proper order.

Bits of paper, strings and small pieces of wood are used to partially fill up the holes so as to cause the screws to be tight, but these work out and cause great annoyance, and a better method is greatly desired.

A coat of paint on the inside of the screw holes is the most satisfactory remedy for such an annoyance.

When screws are removed paint the holes with a small pencil brush or a bit of cloth twisted and dipped in the paint. When the paint fills the creases made by the threads on the screw and thoroughly dries the screw will fit tightly the next time it is thrust into the cavity. The painting should be done each time the screws are removed, and it will protect the wood as well as make the holes ready for the readjustment of the door or other object which has to be changed quite often.—Philadelphia North American.

A Quaint Old Clipping.

From an old scrapbook, under the date of Oct. 25, 1791, is the following:

A young Fellow, of the City of Bristol, being in London lately, was, out of Curiosity, led to see the Lunatics at Bedlam. His first Approach was to the Cell of a poor Man, to whom he addressed himself thus—"So ho! what brings thee here?" The miserable Object remaining silent, he repeated his Question, and was answered only by a Languishing Look, which so enraged the Visitant, that he immediately spit in the Man's Face through the Grate. This caused the Lunatic gently to wipe his Face wit a Whisp of Straw, and raising his drooping Head, he made this calm, sage and sensible Reply—"I am here, Sir, because God deprived me of that Blessing which you never enjoyed."

Habits.

Imagine Hercules as oarsman in a rotten boat; what can he do there but by the very force of his stroke expedite the ruin of his craft? Take care, then, of the timbers of your boat and avoid all practices likely to introduce either wet or dry rot among them. And this is not to be accomplished by desultory or intermittent efforts of the will, but by the formation of habits. The will, no doubt, has sometimes to put forth its strength in order to strangle or crush the special temptation. But the formation of right habits is essential to your permanent security. They diminish your chance of falling when assailed and they augment your chance of recovery when overthrown.—John Tyndall.

Rapid Sightseeing.

Europeans are wont to talk of Americans who rush through Europe with a guidebook in one hand and a railroad timetable in the other, but an Englishman overheard on a Fifth avenue bus the other day was in a class by himself for speed.

"I've been up to the Metropolitan museum," he volunteered to a seatmate. "Bally fine place, but big. Took me an hour to see everything in it."—New York Tribune.

Caustic.

He had refused to buy her a new dress, yet she made no complaint.

"You don't call me a brute any more," he said tauntingly.

"No," she replied; "the brutes have been maligned too much already."—Boston Transcript.

Placing the Blame.

COUNSEL GIVES DEFENSE PLANS

Will Prove Unknown Man Killed Mrs. Bailey

CROWD AT CARMAN TRIAL

Prosecution Rests With Rebuttal Examination of Frank Farrell—Judge Refuses to Dismiss Case on Motion of Defendant's Attorney—Defendant on the Witness Stand

Mineola, L. I., Oct. 23.—"We'll prove that a man murdered Mrs. Louise Bailey."

With these words Attorney Levy, counsel for Mrs. Florence Carman, outlined the exact defence he will make to save the beautiful wife of the Freeport physician from the electric chair. He admitted that he could not give the identity of this man-murderer of Dr. Carman's patient, but asserted ability of the defence to prove beyond a doubt that the hand which shot through a window in Dr. Carman's office was a man's.

Levy began his outline of the defence's case shortly before noon. The prosecutor had rested with rebuttal examination of Frank Farrell, a wanderer. Judge Kelby denied a motion to dismiss the case, made by the defence on the ground of insufficient evidence.

The defence's first witness was a negro stenographer, who had taken down the testimony of Celia Coleman, Mrs. Carman's negro maid, at a private hearing on July 13. The Coleman girl's version of events on the night of the murder, as given them, differed materially from the story she told at the trial.

The presentation of the testimony of the defence will include a denial of all the maid, Celia, told the jury of what happened on the night of June 30, when Mrs. Bailey met her death in the office of Dr. Carman.

A great crowd was present yesterday afternoon, jamming the corridors leading to the courtroom. The crowd swayed and pushed and struggled in an effort to see Mrs. Carman. Every available inch of space inside the courtroom was taken up.

Judge Kelby denied a motion to quash, and Attorney Levy then began the opening argument for the defence.

"Not only do we propose to show that Mrs. Carman is guiltless," said Attorney Levy, "but we will prove that the murder of Mrs. Bailey was committed by a man whose identity we have been unable to establish. It is not necessary under the law for us to prove that another did the shooting in order to clear Mrs. Carman; but we intend to do it, anyway."

At the usual hour of adjournment Mrs. Carman took the stand and told her story of the murder which was in part as follows:

"Early in the morning of June 30, 1914, I went to New York. I spent the day shopping. I returned to Freeport with a headache on a train at 6 o'clock.

"As soon as I got home I took off my coat and went to the supper table. I answered the front door once. I admitted a man I did not know. After supper I went right up to bed. I was ill. I heard Elizabeth playing the piano. I told her to stop. Soon after I heard a shot and some commotion down stairs. I sat up and put on my kimona. I went down stairs into the pantry room. I could not see the office. The door was closed. I heard the doctor talk there, and I went back up stairs, thinking everything was all right. Soon after, Mrs. Powell came up and told me that some woman had been shot in the office. The reason I did not go into the office was because Dr. Carman told me never to go into the office after we had the difficulty with the nurse. We also had difficulties about the office on other occasions.

"The last time I ever saw Mrs. Varance, the nurse, was in the office when I slapped her face. Dr. Carman and I had several spats over Mrs. Varance. On the night I slapped her face I saw her first in the waiting room. Later I looked in, but she was not there. So I went out in the yard and looked into the doctor's office through the window.

"I saw them talking. Then Dr. Carman peeled $20 from a roll he took from his coat and gave it to the nurse. They talked some more, and Mrs. Varance kissed the doctor. Then I rapped on the window and went in. I said to the nurse: 'This is a nice way for a married woman and a married man to act.' Then I said to the doctor: 'So this is where your money goes.' Then I demanded the money and got it.

"I told Mrs. Varance never to come to the house again. After it was all over, Dr. Carman told me if I came into the office again he would leave me and break it all off."

Nineteen Democrats In Family

Washington, Oct. 23.—President Wilson congratulated J. E. Duckworth of North Carolina, mountaineer, on having been the father of twenty-five children and having voted the Democratic ticket for sixty-five years. Duckworth told the president he had eighteen sons, and nineteen Democratic votes in his family.

MISS ELIZABETH VARANCE

Attorneys for the prosecution seemed quite satisfied that the story of Miss Elizabeth Varance, a nurse, established with sufficient definiteness Mrs. Carman's inflammable temper and left it to the jury to deduce the conclusion that a woman once so aroused by jealously could be stirred again to even a higher pitch, such as was the case on June 30, according to the prosecution's contention.

TURK SHOT BY BOY

Lowell Lad Claims Self-Defense; Victim Says Attempted Holdup

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 23.—Calboy Ailie, aged 42, a Turk, was shot twice and probably fatally wounded in the Mountain Rock picnic woods by Ghvout Moorabian, a 16-year-old boy.

The story of the boy, who lives at 8 Dutton street, was that he had never seen the man before till they met by accident in the woods; that the man then tried to attack him and that he shot in self-defense.

Ailie claims the boy tried to hold him up. He got one bullet in his shoulder and another in his chest. He was taken to a hospital, and Moorabian was arrested by Chief Provencher of the Tyngsboro police.

WILSON RECEIVES PROTEST

Governor Ammons May Send Militia to Colorado Strike Zone

Washington, Oct. 23.—A protest from officers of the United Mine Workers of America against the reported intention of Governor Ammons to send the national guard into the Colorado strike zone was received by President Wilson and referred to Secretary Garrison.

Governor Ammons, replying to Secretary Garrison's previous inquiry about reports that the guard was being reorganized to take the place of federal troops, said a cavalry rifle team returning from a rifle competition probably gave rise to the story.

Two Killed In Battle With Robbers

Blaine, Wash., Oct. 23.—Two men were killed and several wounded in a battle between a posse composed of Canadian and American deputy sheriffs, customs officials and immigration inspectors and five outlaws supposed to have robbed the First National bank of Sedro-Woolley, Wash., of $30,000 last Saturday, when they killed a boy while firing at citizens on the street.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

General Brayton Ives, veteran of the Civil war and for many years a prominent figure in the New York financial district, died at his country home in Ossining, N. Y., aged 74.

Helena Downs, 8, and Fred Odione, 2, are dying as a result of automobile accidents at Portsmouth, N. H.

Five men wanted for the robbery of a hotel in Terre Haute, Ind., of $1435 in cash and two watches were arrested at Indianapolis after making the trip from Terre Haute in a high-power automobile.

Orifice M. Gracey of Boston was elected supreme commander, and D. I. Robinson of Gloucester, supreme prelate of the Knights of Malta at Hartford.

BIG INCREASE IN VOTERS

Now 7000 on Lists of the State Election

The total number of registered voters on the list for the State election as compiled by City Clerk is 6,942, an increase of 344 over the number on the lists at the State election in November, 1913. The total number of female voters at present is 48.

It will be seen by the following table that precinct one of Ward Two is the only precinct of the city to show a loss, having 21 less. The largest increase in registered voters was made by precinct two of Ward One, the gain in this precinct being 71. The second precinct of Ward Five comes next with an increase of 58 and precinct two of Ward Six with a gain of 53.

The following table gives the total number on the voting lists by precincts for the State election in 1913 compared with November 1914:

PLEA FOR FUNDS.

The Boston Traveller of Wednesday says:

"With cries for help coming from the stricken peoples of Europe, with the duty of aiding the Red Cross, with the pinch of hard times every man and woman who has much or little is sorely burdened in these trying times. But let us all remember, while doing all we can in every direction, that charity begins at home. If men and women are suffering in Boston, let us see to them first; then let us do our share, however much or little it may be, for those beyond our borders."

This applies qually well to our city. In all probability men and women will be suffering in Quincy, before the winter is over. The Associated Charities are sounding a note of warning and making an urgent plea for funds urging people to subscribe, urging subscribers who can afford to do so to increase their subscriptions. Remember charity begins at home.

The Footlights' Glare

KINCAIDE THEATRE.

"Good Show" is the verdict of two large audiences who on Thursday enjoyed the bill offered for the week end at Kincaide Theatre.

The Elizabeth Trio are three funny fellows who certainly can sing, and they know how to make folks laugh, too. Harold Brothers are excellent equilibrists and do many difficult feats with apparent ease. Grace Lavelle proved a very pleasing entertainer and her songs made a hit. Al. Wild is an exceptionally good comedy artist and well deserved the storm of applause he received. The Million Dollar Mystery, animated cartoons, and other pictures were all very interesting.

Coming Monday are the following attractions: Oriole Trio, High class songsters; Owen Sisters & Harper, colored comedians; Helen Primrose, character comedian; Clark and Sullivan, singing and talking funmakers; Ben Bolt, a stirring feature picture in three reels; The Beloved Adventurer and the Pathe Weekly.

TREMONT TEMPLE.

There are just two weeks more of the engagement of Gabriele d'Annunzio's colossal accomplishment, "Cabiria," at Tremont Temple, Boston, after this week. Those who have not yet witnessed this stupendous photo-spectacle should not let this opportunity pass them by. The engagement of "Cabiria" at Tremont Temple has been one of the most remarkable in many ways, in the history of amusements in Boston. More people have probably seen the performance than any other of its character ever presented in Greater Boston. There is no doubt that more, many more, have seen it two and three times, and even oftener, than have ever before been sufficiently interested and impressed with a public exhibition to see it after the first time. "Cabiria" possesses an indescribable fascination that to many is irresistible, hence the frequent observations of this tremendously and intensely interesting picture. There is no doubt but "Cabiria" could continue its present engagement indefinitely but a long chain of New England bookings claim it, hence the termination of its stay in Boston.

WILBUR THEATRE.

The quaint sayings of William Hodge in "The Road to Happiness," now in its seventh week at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, constitute a regular encyclopedia of wit, wisdom and humor. The four acts fairly bristle with his homespun epigrams on cheerfulness and charity of spirit. Here are a few of them, picked at random:

You can't control a woman's heart with a sledge-hammer.

Laughter on the lips makes sunshine in the heart.

Let's take it easy now. If we start slow, we won't be so tired when we get where we're goin'.

Let 'em roast. While they're roastin' me they're lettin' somebody else cool off.

What difference does it make who has all the money, so long as everybody's happy? Cheerfulness is better than money. You might lose your money, but you can keep on bein' cheerful, if you only keep up hope.

You know our post- master carried a letter of mine around with him for two weeks once. He believes that what you don't know won't worry you.

If a girl is bad you don't have to tell people. They'll find it out before the girl does. If anybody in this town runs a sliver in their finger, old Ben Hardcastle will accuse him of stealing a board walk.

Squeeze your mind and press on your heart and see what your tongue will do.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

There seems to be no doubt that dainty Frances Starr has completely captured Boston theatregoers in her engrossing impersonation of Gabrielle Jannelot in "The Secret" which is current at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston. Both press and public have been unanimous in endorsing her rendition of this wonderfully complex role and it has been the consensus of opinion that she has never appeared to such advantage. In "The Rose of the Rancho" her admirers saw her as a beautiful, more or less harum-scarum Spanish Creole girl of the old days in California. In "The Case of Becky" she was revealed as beautiful young woman with a dual personality. In Eugene Walter's "The Easiest Way" she had the role of a girl helpless of New York's Great White Way. In "The Secret" she rises to heights which she did not scale in any of these, for the character calls for nearly everything which a great actress should possess and Miss Starr, according to her critics, meets its every requirement. "The Secret" is a three-act play from the pen of Henri Bernstein who wrote "Samson" in which William Gillette starred so successfully, but whose greatest achievement was undoubtedly "The Thief." Miss Starr portrays the role of a girl brought up in the highly sophisticated society of the fashionable French city, Deauville, whose mind is poisoned by an all-consuming jealousy; she cannot endure to see others contented and smiling unless this happiness is due to herself and her influence. She is a beautiful, charming, lovable woman, idylically happy in her married life and possessing youth, social prestige and all that ease and luxury that attend a woman in her situation of life. She is jealous only of happiness. That a woman endowed by nature with such gifts as she possesses has it in her power to work infinite havoc in the lives of about her, it is needless to say. A typical Belasco cast is seen in the support of Miss Starr.

CORT THEATRE

Oliver Morosco's international triumph "Peg O' My Heart" celebrated the fiftieth performance of its engagement at the Cort Theatre Monday night. All Boston and suburbs are flocking to the beautiful Park Square playhouse. "Hank," the well-known writer recently reviewed "Peg" in this style: "Whist! All me laddybucks. Say, have you seen "Peg O' My Heart?" She's the sweetest colleen! No truer mate could be had for a bye; sure an' you're lost when ye look in her eye. Hair like the gold of a mid-summer sun; heart of an angel— and shure she is wan. If a new resolution ye'd start, make up your mind to see "Peg O' My Heart." She is a bit of a miss, chocks like an apple, and mouth made to kiss. Goes over to England across the gray sea, where they inform her a lady she'll be. Then the poor darlint gets sneers from a dude, hears the great ladies describe her as crude; everyone picks on the poor colleen, so, back to her daddy she says she will go. But a foine lad with a laugh an' a smile looks her in the eyes an' she stays for awhile. He calls her Peg with a voice that is merry— bit of a divvil he is too, is Jerry. Och, then, begorra the trouble comes croppin', Peg and her Jerry one night go a' hoppin' off to a dance for to shake a foot and leg. Dyin' for fun is our darlint young Peg. Neither return till the break o' the day, then, wurra, worra, the divvil's to pay. But, as we know right away, from the start everything ends well for Peg O' My Heart.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

No more powerful, more effective warning has ever been preached against the grave dangers lurking in the feminine folly for dress than in "Today," George Broadhurst and Abraham Schomer's terribly intense drama of New York life which is in the second week of its engagement at the Majestic Theatre. A cast approaching nearer to the designation "all-star" than has been seen in Boston for a long time is presented. To start with there is a trio of stars Edmund Breese, Madame Mathilde Cottrelly and Marie Wainwright. In addition there is Ethel Valentine, Teresa Maxwell-Conover and Bernard A. Reinold. "Today," was Broadway's biggest dramatic hit of last season where it run for a whole year. Boston playgoers who have filled the Majestic to its capacity at each performance have been wrought to a pitch of speechless expectancy and quickening pulse. It is a tragedy in a modern setting, a narrative of the moral decay of a young wife whose lust for gaudy tinsel and a mad desire to gratify social ambitions temps her to betray trust reposed in her by an unforgiving husband. The distracted husband in the capacity of a real estate agent visits the apartments of a woman whose visitors are very generous. He finds his wife's pictures among the decorations. He makes an appointment and when the woman comes he kills her.

The big climax comes two minutes before the fall of the final curtain when the audience is held spell bound by the realistic presentation of the tragedy enacted upon the stage.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

"Wanted $22,000" that brilliant and sensationally surprising play by a New England author, Albert E. Thomas, is in its fourth triumphant week at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston. To miss this drama combining suspense, thrills and unexpected climaxes is to overlook the best entertainment Boston has applauded in years. Such is the brilliance of the company that three of its members, Ernest Glendinning, Forrest Robinson and William Courtleigh, have been chosen by Julia Arthur (Mrs. Cheney) to support her in the production of "Mercedes" for charity, early in November at the Plymouth. A single matinee performance will be given of this classic by Thomas Bailey Aldrich. The matinees which are always crowded for this production, are given Thursdays and Saturdays. Mail orders are given immediate attention. They should be made payable to Fred E. Wright.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

With next week comes a play that at its first appearance in England and America, carried press and people off their feet. No play within recent years ever received the notices that "Madame X" did. The reason is very simple. A theme whose appeal comes home to every man, woman and child is its central motive, and it teaches as only a strong play can, the redemption of an erring soul through maternal love. The plot of Madame X begins with a separation between husband and wife. The wife, who incurs the suspicions of her husband through thoughtless conduct, is proud and wayward and ends by confirming them. Her husband is a hard and determined man, and her appeals to be allowed sometimes to see her litle boy whom she adores, are disregarded. As Madame X, Miss Young is sure to repeat the great success which she achieved in the character two years ago. Besides Mr. John Craig the cast includes William Carleton, Dudley Hawley, Alfred Lunt, Al Roberts, Marion Tanner, Mabel Cord and has the whole strength of the company in support.

SHUBERT THEATRE.

New York's Winter Garden annual revue, "The Passing Show of 1914" comes to the Shubert Theatre, Boston, on Monday, Oct. 26th. Like its predecessors, this new show is described as being a huge, whirling conglomeration of fun, farce, comedy, spectacle, extravaganza and travesty. In this new revue, there are two acts and thirteen scenes, a swiftly moving frolic, bewildering in its surprises. This new show has proved the biggest success that has been produced at the famous Winter Garden. In "The Passing Show of 1914" everything is new but the runway. When these Winter Garden shows come along we seem to enter into the frisky frivolities of life with undreamed of interest and fervor. In their way, these shows are inimitable. They have a brand of fun all their own. Yet, in calling the Passing Show a revue, they do not belie their title,—for a good part of the entertainment is given over to parodies of the more important dramatic successes of the season. One writer has said that "The Passing Show of 1914" outshows anything of its kind ever seen in New York.

GRAND OPERA

The phenomenal success of the Boston Theatre Opera Company, particularly from an artistic standpoint, has attracted the co-operation of a number of public spirited citizens to the extent that the management is now pleased to announce a substantial reduction in the price of seats below the already nominal scale which has ruled since the opening. This reduction will mean that two dollars will be the highest price charged while twenty-five cents will be the lowest, thereby furnishing opportunity of hearing grand opera for even less than is ordinarily charged for light and comic opera. A number of genuine novelties have been arranged for the coming week. To begin with, Monday evening, "La Favorita" will be offered for the first time by any permanent opera company in Boston. It will be repeated at Wednesday matinee. Miss Blanche Hamilton Fox, the powerful mezzo soprano will sing the part of Leonora and Millo Picco will sing the part of Alphonso. Wednesday evening and Saturday matinee Puccini's "La Tosca" will be given for the first time in Boston at popular prices. "Otello" will be given Tuesday evening with Kristoffy, Sapin, Castellani, Corradetti, Vanni and di Biasi as the soloists. Ramon Blanchart, the popular baritone of last season at the Boston Opera House, will sing Thursday evening in "Un Ballo in Maschera" and Miriam Ardini, the sweet voiced soprano who has become a favorite with attendents of the present opera season will sing the part of Oscar, the page. Friday evening, "Cavalleria Rusticana" will be produced with Miss Gentle, the Pacific Coast Soprano; Miss Sapin, Gallazzi and Sacchetti to be followed by "I Pagliacci" with Dora Di Phillippe as Nedda, a part which she has portrayed in leading opera companies throughout the world; Picco, Castellani, Giuliani and Silva will appear on this evening. Another popular opera will be produced Saturday evening when "Lucia di Lammermoor" will be given with Miss Ardini in the part of Lucia and Miss Renis as Alice and Sacchetti, Gallazzi, Giuliani and di Biasi.

SQUANTUM WEDDING.

Margaret Veronica Allen, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Allen of Bay street, and James Joseph Loughan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Loughan of Squantum and Roslindale were united in marriage Wednesday morning at nine o'clock at the Sacred Heart church, Atlantic. Rev. John Cuffe officiated.

The bride was charming in a gown of white panne satin and silk Spanish lace. Her veil was made with dutch cap effect and fastened with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, bride's roses and orchids.

The bridesmaid was Frances Allen, sister of the bride, who was attractively dressed in pink silk poplin with thread lace, hat of pink, trimmed with white and pale gray ostrich tips She carried pink roses. The bride was given away by her father. The bridegroom was attended by his brother John P. Loughan. The ushers were Charles P. Maloney of West Roxbury and Harry Tobin of Jamaica Plain.

Miss Alice McDermott of Boston who played the organ was a personal friend of the bride.

After the ceremony, personal friends and relatives attended a wedding breakfast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Loughan, Bellevue avenue. A reception followed at the home of the bride near by. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Allen and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Loughan assisted the bride and groom in receiving.

The popularity of the young couple was shown by the many beautiful gifts of silver, cut-glass, pictures, mirrors, clocks and money.

The bride's travelling dress was a three-peice costume of tete ne negre chiffon velvet with hat to match.

Upon their return from a honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Loughan will be at home to their friends on Sycamore street, Roslindale.

All those desiring to be sure of one or more copies of the King's Daughters Edition of the Quincy Daily Ledger will do well to send in their orders in advance as the 8000 copies to be printed are fast being spoken for.

ASKS RELEASE OF BRINDILLA

Protest Lodged by United States to Great Britain

CARGO OF ILLUMINATING OIL

Britain's Contention Is That Oil Can Be Used to Propel Airships and Submarines—Tank Steamer John D. Rockefeller Ordered Released by England—Viewpoint of America

Washington, Oct. 23.—Protest against British seizure of the Standard Oil tanker Brindilla at Halifax was made by the American government to Great Britain through Ambassador Page in London. This protest, the second of its kind in two days, contained also a request for immediate release of the vessel.

Secretary Lansing said the American protest, made through Ambassador Page, was similar to that lodged against seizure of the John D. Rockefeller, bound from Philadelphia to Copenhagen. He stated that the Brindilla also was plying between neutral ports—New York and Alexandria, Egypt—and he was satisfied that even though there had been a change of registry from German to American, the ownership was continuously American.

The cargoes of both the Rockefeller and the Brindilla contained illuminating oil, which has not been specifically declared contraband in any list to the state department by Great Britain, although officials here believe Great Britain regards that oil as covered in the general prohibition against "fuel."

It is the British contention that illuminating oil can be used for propelling Zeppelins, submarines and torpedo boats. Quantities shipped to Copenhagen raised suspicion that the oil might find its way to the German naval and aerial base at the Kiel canal.

The viewpoint of the United States is that this would be a matter for England and Denmark to adjust, especially since an embargo on the exportation has been declared by Denmark, according to the understanding of state department officials.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, conferred with Lansing concerning the various seizures of the oil ships. Lansing said later the American consul at Halifax had experienced some difficulty in interviewing the captain of the Brindilla to obtain facts of her seizure, but that the British ambassador had promptly adjusted the incident.

No complete report has been received at either the British embassy or the state department of the circumstances under which a third tank steamer of the Standard Oil company—the Plaluria—was seized, but it is believed another protest will be made, as the facts in her case are reported to be similar to that of the John D. Rockefeller.

Great Britain ordered release of the Standard Oil tanker John D. Rockefeller, seized by the British off the Orkney islands, according to a dispatch to the British ambassador transmitted to the White House. The explanation stated merely that the vessel had been seized because it was "consigned to order."

Great Britain is determined to stop absolutely all shipments of petroleum which may reach Germany through neutral European powers, it was stated at the British embassy. Convinced that the great mobility of the German army is due to its use of automobiles, it was declared that the shutting off of the supply of petroleum is more important than a food blackade.

A prize court writ was served by the marshal of the British admiralty on the American-tank steamer Brindilla, which was seized and taken to Halifax as a prize of war by a British cruiser last Sunday.

The writ charges that the transfer of the steamer from German to American registry was not bona fide and that the ownership of the Brindilla is still German. The owners are given seven days in which to file a defence.

QUINCY YOUNG WOMENS CLUB

With an attendance of over 250 girls, the Quincy Young Women's Club began their season Wednesday evening. Miss Minnie Packard, president of the club, presiding over the business meeting, welcoming both the old and new members. Miss Goodwin of Barookline, a paid worker was introduced and was welcomed very enthusiastically. The social part of the program in charge of capable Miss Ruth Dahl was then in order. A short play entitled "Gone Abroad" was presented with the following cast:

Mrs. Nearly Gonn, Lydia Djerf
Hope Hattie Waterhouse
Faith Ruth Farmer
Mrs. J. P. Kinn, Edith Mullin

The play was admirably acted by all the girls. Miss Dahl and Miss Goodwin then introduced some new games and everybody got acquainted. Refreshments were served and the evening closed with dancing.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

Rec. Benjamin A. Willmott will be the speaker Friday evening at the mass meeting at the Christian Endeavors of Massachusetts at Fitchburg. Several of the Quincy societies will be represented.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Charitable Society will be held Monday, Nov. 2, with Mrs. E. G. Pratt of Hancock street.

The Hospital Aid Association will meet next Thursday at 2.30 with Mrs J. Emery of Adams street, instead of Mrs. Sturtevant as previously announced.

Circle Daughters of Viking, C. F. of A. held a dancing party in Alpha hall Thursday evening which was attended by members and friends from this city, Boston and vicinity. Music was by Hamilton's orchestra. The affair was in charge of a committee including Miss Olga Lundquist, Miss Alice Loddengaard, Miss Alice Helquist, Mrs. Hannah Peterson.

Friends of Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard will be pleased to know that in the King's Daughters edition of the Daily Ledger, she is to tell some of her interesting experiences while in California last winter.

There was quite a decided change in the weather this morning from that of the past few days, and the indications are that warm summer like days will be few and far between the balance of the season. Continued pleasant weather is indicated for Saturday while showers are predicted for Sunday.

The Christ Church choir boys will be entertained by the members of St. Margarets Guild at a Hallowe'en party in the parish house on the evening of Oct. 27. The program will include an entertainment, dancing, games and refreshments. The committee is headed by Miss Mildred Smith, and she will be assisted by Miss Margaret Clark, Miss Anna McLean and Miss Lizzie Ross.

The costume party of St. Margarets Guild, one of the pleasantest times held during the winter season will take place in the parish house on Nov. 3. Miss Cora Barnicoat is chairman of the committee having the matter in charge.

Wonder how many of the 146,000 persons who have dodged the income tax reside in Quincy.

The next few weeks will be busy ones, especially for those seeking nomination to municipal offices. The state candidates are having their busy season just now and the spellbinders are appearing nightly throughout the state.

In municipal affairs there was never more enthusiasm that this year. There are many candidates in the field, especially seeking the nomination for Mayor and there are some who are out for the position that will not enter the caucuses but will go on the ballot as tax payers candidates or some similar caption.

QUINCY POINT

All people at Quincy Point are cordially invited to the reception to be given this evening by Rev. and Mrs. S. C. Lang of the Washington Street church.

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Edward J. Fegan, candidate for mayor on the Democratic ticket, filed his papers this morning with City Clerk Crane. The papers bear the names of over 170 citizens and include Republican and independent citizens signatures.

On Thursday evening he was tendered a reception at the Manet Club by the members. The special guests were the members of the Quincy Adams Social Club. After a splendid musical program Mr. Fegan was called upon.

In speaking of the question of taxation the candidate said the real issue before the people today is taxation. I am not one of the number who are disposed before election to make promises which, however attractive in making political capital, are impossible of realization after election.

I have however adopted, upon this burning question, a safe and sane policy. I am promising neither a higher or a lower rate, much less a fixed flat rate of $18 per thousand, realizing that I could not do so with absolute certainty of success, inasmuch as this question is absolutely in the making of the City Council.

What I am pledged to secure, however, is proper valuation throughout the city and where today property is under valued to bring it to its true valuation, and where it is overvalued to bring it down to its true valuation, —thereby equalizing assessment. I also pledge, if elected, to make the tax bills as small as possible under an administration working in perfect harmony and in conjunction with a City Council, the watch words to be 'economy, consistent with efficiency."

Mr. Fegan stated that he favored the submission, on referendum to the voters, the questions of the depression or elevation of railroad tracks, being of the belief that the people are qualified to say which method of abolition of grade crossings are for the best interest f Quincy and its citizens.

He announced that he was in perfect sympathy with the slogan "Boom Quincy," and it could be boomed no more effectively than by patronizing home talent, home industry and the home market and in this connection he said he was a firm believer in Quincy girls for future vacancies in Quincy schools when they possess the qualifications.

BRAINTREE BOY MISSING.

The parents of Raymond J. Cury, a 15 year old Braintree boy have reported to the police that he has been missing since recess at school eWdness morning, and although there has been a search no trace of him can be found. His bicycle has also disappeared from his home.

The boy has often expressed a desire to visit relatives in New York, and he has remarked that he would be in New York before the summer was over. The boy's relatives in New York have been notified but nothing has been heard from them up to the present time.

The boy is short for his age. He has light hair, and his general complexion is light. He wore a blue Norfolk jacket, short trousers, black stockings and low tan shoes, with rubber soles and heels. His necktie was green. He also wore a blue cap, which was conspicuous by a large patch made over a hole, that had been burned in it.

The Braintree police have communicated with the police of surrounding towns, with Boston and New York.

A Mistake Avoided.

"I say, old chap, I'm in shocking luck. I want money badly and haven't the least idea where I can get it."

"Well, I'm awfully glad to hear that. I thought perhaps you had an idea that you could borrow from me."—Sydney Bulletin.

QUINCY WEST

John J. McDevitt, the suspended Senator from the First Norfolk district, is stumping northern New York in the interest of William Sulzer, candidate for governor in the State of New York. This became known this morning when daily papers from Troy N. Y., were received in which reference was made to McDevitt. The item speaks of "Senator" MvDevitt and of the active work he is putting into the campaign. McDevitt is attending school at Albany, N. Y., and in the meantime is connected with the granite business.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hussey of the Furnace Brook parkway are today observing their silver wedding anniversary. Both were born in Quincy West and are highly esteemed by neighbors and a large circle of friends Music will be a feature of the entertainment.

QUINCY ATLANTIC

The Methodist church revival continues through the coming week, up to Nov. 1, closing with a sermon by Rev. Dr. Bronson, district superintendent, Sunday evening, Nov. 1, Rev. Blackett, Baily, Parkinson, Potter and Chaffee will preach durin gthe week. These series of meetings have been productive of great good in Quincy Atlantic.

Mrs. Leila O. Pierce, for several years a clerk in the water office at City Hall, has been transferred to the office of the Commissioner of Public Works, to take the place of Miss Ada M. Nightingale, whose resignation takes effect in a few days.

Elna Olsson of Webster street was operated upon for an abscess on her leg, following rheumatic fever, at the Children's Hospital in Boston Tuesday night and is reported slightly improved.

Mrs. Picket who has been confined to her home on Botolph street with illness, is better.

Rollin Gilbert is able to resume his work having been seriously ill at his home for several weeks past.

BALL PLAYERS BOOST KINCAIDE

Quincy's candidate for Congress, Colonel Henry L. Kincaide, on Thursday received assurance of support from Olaf Hendriksen, onfielder of the Red Sox American League Ball Team. Hendriksen is a voter in Canton. He wrote the colonel "I am admiring the fight you are making for Congress. It shows the true pennant winning spirit. I believe the boys will come out for you solidly and you can certainly count on my vote."

Walter Snell, the Red Sox American League catcher, is doing his best to land the Colonel in Congress, having taken the stump for him and had a prominent part in several enthusiastic rallies.

Thursday night at North Easton and Foxboro Mr. Kincaide was more than pleased with the reception he received. having large audiences in both places and great interest being shown by all Among other points of vital interest the Colonel discussed was government regulation of food prices. He believes there should be a law to regulate prices of the necessities of life when attempts are made by greedy corporations and trusts to amass unreasonable profits at the expense of the people. Such a law would have saved us from $8.00 flour, 8c sugar and other boosted prices in America because of war in Europe. Colonel Kincaide says he will introduce such a bill into Congress within one month from his arrival there.

QUINCY SQUANTUM

That the municipal campaign is on in full blast was evidenced last night at the house party tendered to James E. Wall at the residence of Mr. Carl E. Carlson of Ward 6. Many men prominent in the civic life of Quincy expressed their views on the mayoralty situation. Mr. Wall gave a short and concise speech telling what he hoped to accomplish for Quincy if elected Mayor. He dwelt upon the inequalities of taxation, the lack of development of our magnificent front, the need of more industries in the city, and the methods by which he hoped to induce new industries to locate here. Other speeches were made by Timothy F. Callahan Councilman Carlson, William Robinson, Frederick E. Brooks, Neil McDonald and others. During the evening selections were rendered by a young ladies' orchestra. Refreshments were served.

Invitations were sent out today to all candidates for Congressman in this district, State senator and Representatives from Quincy, and city candidates for mayor, councilmen at large, and councilmen and school committee candidates from Ward 6 to attend the non-Partisan night of the Squantum Improvement association in Community hall, Squantum, next Tuesday night.

MILTON

Milton High won from Arlington High on Wednesday 6 to [illegible] Weymouth defeated Watertown 34-9.

While motoring in Rhode Island this week Miss Dorothy Forbes of Milton lost a diamond bracelet valued at $1,500.

A boyish prank cost Chester Monger a Milton milkman, $10 in the District Court this morning. Monger was brought in by Patrolman Higgins of that town on a charge of breaking street lights. The patrolman testified that he had driven his milk team under a street light and after a dozen attempts succeeded in breaking the light with a whip. Judge Avery questioned the young man briefly as to his purpose and the answer was "He didn't know." The fine was then imposed and paid.

Fred Loring Bayley, a well known Weymouth business man and prominent in Masonic circles, was united in marriage Wednesday to Miss Sadie Sprague Bailey of Milton, the ceremony being performed by Rev. George A. Gordon. Miss Margery Boylston of Milton was the maid of honor and Clifford G. Boylston of Milton was the best man. The bride formerly resided in Mansfield, but recently came to Milton. Following the wedding ceremony a wedding supper was served at the Copley-Plaza. After a brief honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Bayley will reside in Weymouth.

Milton High tried to cancel its game with Quincy today because of injuries.

Miss Dorothy Forbes, the expert Milton reinswoman and rider of jumping horses, has decided not to go to the St. Louis horse show next week to ride the hunters of Charles E. Perkins of Iowa.

The Progressive party rally in Alpha hall, Friday evening was addressed by Joseph W. Walker, party candidate for governor; Col. Henry L. Kincaide, congressional candidate, H. O. Cassidy, representative candidate and Russell Kennedy, candidate for secretary; Annie Tillinghast, president of the Progressive Equal Suffrage Association. Edwin T. Reade of Squantum, who lost the nomination to Colonel Kincaide ,presided.

The attendance was not large but it made up in volume what it lacked in numbers when Col. Kincaide arose to speak. Col. Kincande announced that he had not endorsed and did not propose to endorse any of the mayoralty candidates notwithstanding what anyone may say or choose to publish. THEIR SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hussey Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hussey, respected residents of West Quincy, observed their silver anniversary at their home on Furnace Brook Parkway, Friday evening and were tendered a reception by 75 relatives.

Both were born in West Quincy and educated in the public schools. They were married at a nuptial mass in St. Mary's church, the ceremony being performed by the late Rev. Fr. Francis Friguletti. Mrs. Hussey was Margaret E. White, oldest daughter of the late James N. White, and Mr. Hussey was the son of the late John F. Hussey. They have always made their home in West Quincy and are parents of Richard A. Hussey, the male soprano vocalist, and Miss Catherine C. Hussey, an educator in the Cambridge school.

A musical program was furnished during the evening, consisting of solos by Mrs. Mary Francis White Murphy, a sister of Mrs. Hussey, and piano and voice selections by the Misses Belle and Lillian McGilvray. Mr. and Mrs. Hussey also rendered a duet. A catered supper was served by Burleigh and Martin. They were the recipients of many presents and well wishes.

There will be special music at Bethany church on Sunday at both services The pastor will preach the third sermon on the Lord's prayer, "Hallowed be Thy Name." In the pleasant Sunday evening service he will lecture on "The Foe of Injustice."

NEW PARSONAGE INSPECTED

Rev. and Mrs. S. C. Lang Give a Reception

The reception to Rev. Stephen C. Lang, pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church, and Mrs. Lang, which took place Friday afternoon and evening, was an event of more than ordinary interest in the history of the church, for in addition to giving the parishioners of the church an opportunity to greet their pastor and his wife in a social manner in their home, it afforded the parishioners in general their first opportunity to inspect the new parsonage, which they have just provided. It is the first time in the history of the church that it has had a parsonage and they are to be congratulated on the accomplishment of something long desired.

The new parsonage, which is located at 81 Edison Park, therefore was the scene during the afternoon and evening of a large gathering of the church people. Those who, by reason of other engagements were unable to be present in the evening were present in the afternoon, while those unable to be present in the afternoon were present in the evening.

The reception was entirely informal, and was all the more enjoyable to the large nmber who participated. There was no special program arranged, the affair being one more especially where the parishioners met in an informal manner to exchange greetings and become better acquainted.

Light refreshments were served both afternoon and evening. In the afternoon Mrs. Arthur B. Foster and Mrs. John Hendry poured and Miss Frometta Sheppard served. In the evening the pourers were Miss Ella M. Freeman and Miss Margaret L. Thomas, while Miss Clara Bushnell and Miss Cora Barnes served.

Among those present were Mrs. Lang's sister, Mrs. Ralph Porter of Pawtucket, who helped receive; Mr. Lang's mother, Mrs. Raymond Lang of Boston, and two brothers, Matthew and Gerhardt, of Boston.

The new parsonage has nine rooms and makes a very attractive home. Only a small mortgage remains on the property.

SOCIAL CLUB DANCE.

The Quincy Adams Social club held its third grand dance in Alpha hall on Friday evening. Friends from Quincy made up a great part of the attendance and others were present from Malden, Medford, Holbrook, Dorchester, Brockton. Weymouth, Braintree.

Col. Kincaide, the special guest of the evening was late in arriving. He was given an enthusiastic reception.

Henry Sullivan was floor director and Eben Kerr was the assistant. Premo Cappiferri was chief of aids and he was assisted by David Curtin, George Doyle, Harry Brown, Charles F. Neagle and Fred Johnson.

MR. JOHNSON IN WARD TWO

Goes Into Details on Taxation Question

A well attended rally in the interests of Charles H. Johnson for Mayor was held last evening at the clubhouse of the Town River Yacht club. T. L. Williams presided and spoke briefly. The speakers included Candidate Johnson, Isador Abrams, A. L. Whitman, Chrales A. Eriscon and others.

Mr. Johnson was in fine trim and made a telling address, stating frankly his position as a Candidate. He said that last year he accepted the Republican nomination and made a creditable fight, supported by a large number of honest, straightforward men, but the late Mr. Miller, being well-known in Wards Three and Five, got such large support in those two wards, that he was elected. "Let me remind you, however," said Mr. Johnson, "that I carried Ward One, Ward Six was very close, and I lost your own ward by only 14 votes. My total vote showed clearly that a large number of taxpayers believed in me and wanted to give me a chance to show what I could do.

There has been no change in their sentiment toward me. Shortly after I had announced through the public press that I would be a candidate again, a certain ex-Mayor felt the pulling of his former office-holders and he got so far with his candidacy as to hire headquarters, but no further. Then came the sudden announcement of Campbell's candidacy. About the same time a self-appointed committee of four or five residents of Ward One waited on Mr. Tilden and induced him to enter the field.

Since then every effort has been made to induce me to withdraw, but I am in the fight to stay. Although only a plain, commonplace citizen, I have a good share of fighting blood coursing through my veins. I now appeal to my friends to place me in nomination, for it is plainly evident and a Republican can win at the polls this year. The tax situation is serious. I can and will relieve the conditions that exist if given power by the people to carry out my plans."

Mr. Johnson gave a concise statement of the workings of the different departments of the city government particularly the taxation question and was listened to with marked attention. It was evident that he was master of his subject and had definite plans in mind if elected Mayor. He stated that he would give similar talks all over the city before caucus day and confine himself strictly to the issues and not to a discussion of the other candidates He boldly declared that he was going to be nominated and that his one Republican opponent, Mr. Tilden, would support him after the nomination was made.

Miss Mildred E. Geddes was taken ill at the Wollaston school Wednesday and is threatened with appendicitis, she is under observation of a trained nurse at her home on Standish avenue.

SOMETHING WILL BE DOING

When Both Editors Are Elected to City Council

Probably the Mayoralty campaign will now sink into insignificance, as did the State campaign, because two editors of local newspapers are rival candidates for Councilmen at large. Frank F. Prescott and Alfred N. LaBrecque are both in the field. The former was first to enter, and the latter was one of the signers of his nomination papers. Later Mr. LaBrecque thought it was a grand opportunity to give Mr. Prescott a hustle, so he also took out papers, and will file them today before the time limit expires.

Mr. Prescott has promised to sign the nomination papers of Mr. LaBrecque upon presentation, so that really it is a good-natured contest. As five men are to be nominated by the Republicans, it is possible that both may be nominated and elected, and then there may be something doing in the City Council.

Mr. Prescott will probably tell the voters that he is the King Booster of Quincy; that he has put Quincy on the map especially during the last few months; that he pulled off a big stunt when he made a success of the Quincy production of "Along Came Ruth;" that he has presented many figures comparing the cost of different departments of the city of Quincy with other Massachusetts cities of about the same size that are of value; that he is familiar with the City Charter, and the business of the City Council; that he was born in Quincy and has been a taxpayer since 1886; that he is a believer in Quincy and a defender of her good name.

Other achievements of Mr. Prescott might be mentioned. His first school teacher was Miss Julia E. Underwood, and when she reached her 50th anniversary as a teacher, it was Mr. Prescott who planned a celebration and presented her a purse of $300; later he won for Miss Underwood the Herald trip to the Portland, Oregon, Exposition, which was the event of her life. On the 50th anniversary of the departure of the Minute Men of 1861 it was Mr. Prescott who arranged at a few days notice the grand celebration at City Hall. Another 50th anniversary in which he was prominent was when the Masons observed the anniversary of Francis P. Loud and other members recently. He is also an ancient Odd Fellow and identified with several other Quincy organizations. In appreciation of favors extended to the volunteers during the Spanish war, he was elected an honorary member of the United Spanish War Veterans. The reception given to Co. K upon its return from that war will long be remembered. Mr. Prescott does not believe in reckless city expenditures, and is a advocate of a reduction in the city debt. Not until then will taxes be reduced.

HONORS TO FIREMAN COLBERT

Chief Billings Heads the Delegation of Firemen at His Funeral

Hibernians, Eagles and Elks Also Attend

The funeral of Richard J. Colbert, considered the senior member of the Quincy fire department, was held this morning from his home at 2 Garfield street. A large delegation of permanent firemen and members of the Firemen's Relief Association, under command of Chief Faxon Billings, as well as delegations from Div. 17, A. O. H.; John Adams Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles; and Quincy lodge, B. P. O. E.; organizations with which he was affiliated were present.

The high mass of requiem at St. John's church was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Walter A. Quinlan. The Gregorian chant was rendered by the regular choir under the direction of John Mahon, organist, with Miss Eva Rice and Mrs. Mary Burns King as the soloists. Among those at the mass were former Chief Amos L. Litchfield, Capt Daniel R. McKay and Inspector Alfred W. Goodhue of the police department and Representative Michael T. Sullivan.

The firemen present formed two lines reaching from the top steps of the church to the sidewalk through which the casket was borne by Lieut. John C. Faircloth, Capt. James C. Gallagher of Hose 4, William Carroll and Myles Creamer of auto combination 1, Michael J. Barry, assistant superintendent of fire alarm wires; James Connell, chauffeur of tractor engine 1. The men formed a similar line as the body was carried from the church to the hearse when the age of the deceased was sounded on the fire alarm signals of the city.

The delegations escorted the funeral procession to St. Mary's cemetery where the interment took place. The grave was entirely covered with floral remembrances from organizations, relatives and friends.

Perhaps the czar is delaying the capture of Berlin until he can find a new name for it.

All the nations are willing to disarm, provided the other powers do it first.

It seems rather a waste of time for the war offices to issue daily bulletins as those they got out last week would fit just as well and be equally truthful.

Great efforts are being made to persuade the women to wear cotton dresses. The society people would fall in with the idea more readily if cotton goods cost more money.

Any man who tries to raise a garden knows that the most vital principle of this department of scientific agriculture is having a stout man with a big club on hand moonlight nights at this time of year.

DYE STUFFS.

One of the incidents of the war situation is the difficulty American factories are finding in securing dye stuffs. The result will be an effort to make dyes in this country. Probably there will be some improvement in this very important branch of textile industry.

It is remarkable what poor work in the use of imported dye stuffs, and in the colors of imported goods, has been accepted in the past. Every man realizes how badly the average negligee shirt holds its color. It seems to make little difference whether the material is expensive or not. Often half a dozen washings fade the shirt so much that it looks old and worn out. Women of course find similar trouble in many kinds of their clothing.

A manufacturer of textiles was asked why he did not take more pains to turn out fast colors. He laughed at the question, and admitted that it would cost but a trifling fraction of a cent a yard more to use colors that would be practically fast. "But who would buy them?" he asked.

He went on to say that the only people that seem to have a desire to get fast colors are those who can afford to throw away clothes long before they are worn out. Probably some manufacturers do not like to make colors too fast It would encourage people to wear clothes too long. That would hurt trade.

The demand for better coloring of textiles has had much to do with the spread of recent years of the arts and crafts movement. These workers dug up the dye books of their grandmothers, when fabrics were often woven and colored at home, and when material was made to wear. They tested fabrics with long exposure to sun and rain, and produce colors that stand. They use vegetable dyes to a large extent, which are usually less harsh than chemicals and which blend into each other with more beauty.

In so far as American mills under present war conditions are experimenting with new dyes, they will find that firm colors will be appreciated by a growing number of people.

FRENCH AGAIN IN POSSESSION OF ALTKIRCH

City Is Carried at Points of Soldiers' Bayonets

BRILLIANT FEAT OF ARMS IN ALSACE

Conquest of Alsace Uppermost In Minds of French People Since War Started and Advance Upon Mulhausen Is Causing Enthusiasm at Paris—Fighting on Belgian Border Is Game of Give and Take, Invaders Making Gains at La Bassee and Allies Advancing Near Armentieres—Germans Driven From Warsaw to River Pilicia With Loss of Many Prisoners, Guns, Ammunition and Supplies

London, Oct. 24.—While the crucial battle line in southwestern Belgium remains practically unbroken, despite desperate attacks all day by the now desperate Germans, the French have once more made one of those brilliant strokes so characteristic of the nation and so well calculated to spur the patriotism of the people.

Alsace, one of the "lost provinces," nominally German territory, but almost as dear to the French as Paris itself, has again been the scene of a brilliant feat of arms by the French army.

Altkirch, the important little city on the road to Mulhausen, has again been taken by the French.

Carried at Point of Bayonet

The news of the taking of Altkirch is contained in a scanty bulletin from Paris which states that the city was carried at the point of the bayonet.

The conquest of Alsace has been uppermost in the minds of a big proportion of the French public ever since the war started, and this new advance upon Mulhausen, the capital city, is undoubtedly causing enthusiasm in Paris and Bordeaux. Early in the course of hostilities Altkirch was captured by the French troops under General Pau, but they were later forced to retire.

Since then the German force of occupation has been materially reduced in order that the empire should throw every possible reinforcement upon its threatened northern line, and the French have taken advantage of the opportunity.

The capture of Altkirch is apparently a part of the French tactics to head off the threatened attempt of the Germans to invest the fortress of Belfort. Any such attempt will be impossible with the French in Alsace menacing the German lines of communication.

Give and Take In Belgium

At the great fighting points in southwestern Belgium and northern France it is evident from official statements that it has been a game of give and take, with little real advantage to either side.

In the battle for the possession of Lille the allies have lost ground at La Bassee, thirteen miles southwest of that city, but they claim to have made a compensating advance at Armentieres, about the same distance to the north, where an advance is of the most importance, as it carries the allies nearer the Belgian line.

German Attacks Heavy

German attacks were unusually heavy during the day all along the line between the sea and Nieuwport and the canal at La Bassee, in the region of Arras, and in the valley of the Somme. The allied troops gained what the official war office report calls "partial successes" in Santerre, in the region of Verdun, and in the region of Pont-a-Mousson on the French right, where affairs have been stagnant for several days.

A verbal note given out in Paris before the issuance of the afternoon official report drew attention to the great progress made since the end of last month, when the bulk of the French forces was resting in the Oise near Compeigne, while what forces were in the west had scarcely passed the Somme near Amiens. Yesterday the fighting was on a front prolonged some 125 miles and reaching into Belgium.

In Russian Poland

In Russian Poland, in the battle on the river Vistula, from Warsaw south to the river Pilicia the Russians would seem to have scored an important victory.

Every indication points to a complete defeat of the German army that has been so persistently trying to cross the Vistula. Dispatches from the front describe the retreat as rapidly turning into a rout.

The Russians report that they have captured a large number of prisoners, with immense quantities of guns, ammunition and supplies. The only disquieting feature is that up to this hour the retreating German army seems to have retained its entity, and to be able at any time, when it reaches a selected position, to entrench itself and start another seige battle like that of the river Aisne.

Austrians Eating Horseflesh

The apparent shortage in the supply of cattle is causing the consumption of horseflesh to rapidly increase. Five hundred horses brought into the Vienna market on Monday sold for from $20 to $50 each.

Since the beginning of the month the prices of eggs and butter in Vienna have risen tremendously, placing them far beyond the reach of the poorer classes. Hungary is now the sole source of the egg supply. The peasants are making enormous profits also from other products.

SINKS THIRTEEN SHIPS

German Cruiser Karlsruhe Active Against British Merchantmen

A dispatch from Teneriffe, Canary islands, to the London Daily Mail, under date of Thursday, reports that the German cruiser Karlsruhe has sunk thirteen British merchantmen in the Atlantic.

The news of the Karlsruhe's exploit, according to The Mail's correspondent, was brought to Teneriffe by the German steamer Crefeld, which arrived there with the crews of the British steamers Strathroy, Maple Branch, Highland Hope, Indrani, Rio Iguassu, Farn, Nioeto, Maria de Larrinaga, Cervantes, Carnish City, Pruth, Condor and Lynrowan, all of which were sunk by the Karlsruhe. The Crefeld was accompanied into port by the German steamers Patagonia, Rio Negro and Asuncion.

A later message states that over 400 men of the crews are prisoners, and that the merchantmen were mostly sunk in the Atlantic. The ships were mostly engaged in the South American trade, and their total tonnage was about 60,000.

GERMANS LOSE 200,000

Russian Official Bulletin Report Them In Complete Rout Before Warsaw

The general staff in an official bulletin just made public says that the German forces are in full retreat from the vicinity of Warsaw. At several points, it is stated, the retreat has taken on the proportions of a complete rout. Many of the German heavy guns have been mired and captured by the pursuing Russians.

So precipitate has been the German retreat that they have been forced to abandon their wounded and large quantities of hospital stores. The crack German corps have been terribly decimated by the Russians, who attacked from front and flank. Russian cavalry is harassing the retreating army, taking numerous prisoners.

The reports reaching military headquarters from the front say that the total losses of the Germans—killed, wounded and prisoners—in their operations in Poland to date number 200,000. Fighting is still in progress along the line of the Vistula and is constantly increasing in magnitude.

HAWKE LOST 492 MEN

No Hope That Any of Cruiser's Missing Men Are Saved

A list of casualties among the crew of the British cruiser Hawke, which was sunk recently by a German submarine, shows that two men were killed and that 494 are missing.

These figures are contained in a list issued by the admiralty. It is feared that the men reported as missing must be regarded as having been lost when the vessel sank, according to the admiralty's statement.

Previous reports showed that of the crew of 569 officers and men, fifty-two men were saved by a trawler and twenty-one others were picked up from a raft on which they had escaped from the Hawke.

BUILDING FAST LIGHTERS

Germany Has Thirty Under Way to Carry Troops to England

Two shipyards at Kiel, the Germania and the Howaldt, are building thirty armored lighters capable of carrying 500 men each and traveling at the rate of nine miles an hour, to proceed to the river Scheldt should eventualities permit the landing of German troops on the coast of England.

Furthermore, it is asserted that three of these lighters are completed and already on their way to the Scheldt. The Germans are building a shed in Schleswig for two large Zeppelins.

FRENCH SENATOR KILLED

Wounded Aviator Decorated on Field of Battle

France has lost on the battlefield one of her best known amateur aviators, Dr. Emile Reymond, president of the National Aviation commission and a member of the French senate. The Havas Agency gives the following account of his death:

"There has been a very violent combat in the region of Verdun, following an attack by the French to rescue one of their aviators, senator Emile Reymond, who was wounded while reconnoitering, and fell between the lines. The aviator was finally rescued, and when brought back to the ambulance was able to give a full and clear report of his observations. Afterward he was decorated with the insignia of the Legion of Honor by the general in command, in the presence of Minister of Justice Briand. Then he died.

"Senator Reymond already has been mentioned in the orders of the day for intrepid exploits in the air."

IS FOR SAFETY FIRST

German Liner Cecilie to Keep Inside Three-Mile Limit

Washington, Oct. 24.—Captain Charles Polack, commander of the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie, will confer with Acting Secretary Roosevelt regarding the details of the proposed transfer of the big ship from the exposed harbor at Bar Harbor, Me., where she now lies, to the sheltered waters of Boston bay.

The captain wants to consult the hydrograhic offices with a view of laying out a course between Bar Harbor and Boston that will not at any point lie outside of the three-mile limit.

He is said to be convinced, however, of the sufficiency of the assurances given by the British government to the state department that no attempt would be made by any of the British cruisers to interfere with the Kronprinzzessin Cecilie during this short voyage.

The ship probably will be started on her voyage next week under the convoy of the torpedo destroyer Sterrett and the custody of a United States marshal.

MASKED MEN RAN AWAY

Demanded Money of Employe of Factory at South Walpole

Foxboro, Mass., Oct. 24.—North Foxboro was alarmed by the report that three armed and masked holdup men were in the vicinity.

A little way over the line in South Walpole one of the employes of the F. W. Bird company was held up at the point of a revolver in the emery mill. The other hands finished work early. About 6 as the workman, who is an overseer, was preparing to leave and when nobody else was in the building as he supposed, the electric lights were suddenly flashed off.

In the darkness, as the man neared the switch to turn on the lights, he was confronted by three men, who wore black masks and were armed. They demanded his money, but by some ruse he gained time to switch on the lights and at that the trio disappeared hastily. It was pay day at the plant.

WILL PROTEST SEIZURE

United States to Demand Release of Standard Oil Ship Platuria

Washington, Oct. 24.—The United States has decided to formally protest to Great Britain against the seizure of the Standard Oil ship Platuria, demanding her release from British detention at Storoway, a port in the Lewis islands, Scotland.

The protest, which is identical to that led in the case of the Brindilla, held at Halifax, will go forward to Ambassador Page at London. The Platuria, which, like the Brindilla, carried illuminating oil, was similarly bound from one neutral country to another—the United States and Denmark—and had changed her registry from German to American, although her ownership was always American.

CLUB MEETING SHOWER

The Billiken Club of Atlantic has begun another season of good times. The members at the first meeting were entertained by the president, Miss Julia Barber: the second meeting was held at the home of Miss Mary Farrell, where arrangements were made for a luncheon and useful shower for one of the club's most popular members, Miss May Buckley, who happened to be absent that evening. The plans were successfully carried out Thursday evening at the home of Miss Edna Robinson, Billings road, Norfolk Downs; and Miss Buckley, expecting to attend a regular meeting of the club, was most pleasantly surprised.

The dining-room was artistically decorated with the beautiful colored October flowers, leaves and fruits. The luncheon served was also suggestive of the autumn season. Many were the gifts, both beautiful and useful, that Miss Buckley received, and complete was her surprise, as there was no evidence whatever of a "shower" for the articles were concealed beneath the table and at the appointed time drawn to her place by ribbons. The party given Miss Buckley was in recognition of Miss Buckley's engagement to an Atlantic young man, Mr. James Fay.

Those present to extend best wishes to her were, Mrs. Helen Curtin Moore, Mrs. Louise Hinckley Welton, Mrs. Ardelia Barber Merrill, Mrs. Florence Hill Schackley, Mrs. Georgiana Priest Klugg, the Misses Edna Robinson, Cora Harding, Julia Barber, Mary Farrell, and Ethel Robinson.

In its few years of existence five members of this social club have already entered the state of matrimony and many have jokingly suggested the name of the club being appropriately changed. The next meeting of the club is to be held at the home of its treasurer, Miss Cora Harding, and plans are to be made for a busy year.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT.

One of the prettiest affairs of the season was the luncheon given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. John Lummus Merrill of Wollaston October sixteenth, in honor of the engagement of Mrs. Merrill's sister, Miss Julia Arnold Barber, daughter of Everett Arnold Barber of Atlantic, to Rev. John Louis Garland, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Southport, Conn.

Covers were laid for fourteen, and the table was beautifully spread, sunburst roses being the floral decorations. At each place were announcement cards attached to a rose, and the guests were each given a toast composed for the occasion. A dainty luncheon was served, the color scheme of yellow being carried out in the delicacies as well as in the decorations.

Those present to enjoy the festivities were Miss Barber, Mrs. Merrill, Mrs. Charles Kimball Hogan, Mrs. John Francis Davidson, and Misses Bernice Renfrew, Sadie Kyle, Lydia Randall, Marion Reinheart, Helen Hunt, Cora Harding, May Buckley, Ethel Robinson, Mary Farrell, Edna Robinson. Later in the evening Dr. Merrill arrived accompanied by Mr. Garland and Mr. Barber to greet the guests.

The date of the announcement of Miss Barbar's engagement was also the bithday and thirtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. Barber, as well as the third anniversary of his elder daughter (Ardelia's) engagement to Dr. Merrill; so hearty congratulations and good wishes prevailed.

Miss Barber has lived in Atlantic seventeen years and is a graduate of the Quincy High school, class 1907. Mr. Garland is a Drew man and is now taking an advanced course at Yale Divinity schoob While studying at Boston University Mr. Garland was pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in Atlantic.

BAKED BEANS FOR SATURDAY

Made fresh every week and only the best materials obtainable are used. For instance we could use pork that cost $18 for two hundred pounds, but we don't—the pork that is used to make Barnard's Beans costs $25 for two hundred pounds—some difference—yet nothing is too good for Barnard's—whether it be bread, cake or beans. Then again our beans cost us a little more than the common beans and they are left to soak overnight, then washed thoroughly before using. We would Madam, like you to watch us prepare our beans—just for fun, say—you know the old saying "Seeing is believing." Yes, they cost

TWO RALLIES FOR CAMPBELL

Candidate Speaks at Houghs Neck and Montclair

Rallies in the interest of Chester I. Campbell for Mayor were held at Houghs Neck and Montclair Friday evening. Both rallies were well attended. The speakers at Houghs Neck aside from the candidates were William M. Prime, Alex. Cowe, Mr. Stinson and John L. Hamilton. Mr. Prime devoted his time to a characteristic sketch of the candiadte, Mr. Cowe spoke from the labor end and said that organized labor was able to stand on its record and asked favors from no candidate. All of the speakers were followed closely and freely applauded.

F. J. Kessler presided at the meeting at Montclair and the speakers were Candidate Campbell, Councilman Charles W. Bailey, and A. L. Stinson. The hall was well filled with residents of the Montclair section as well as quite a few from Wollaston.

SUPPLIES BEING RUSHED

Ammunition and Provisions Are Sent to Philippines

Washington, Oct. 24.—While war department officials are unanimous in agreeing there is no extraordinary excitement over the far eastern situation, they agree that the Philippines are being armed and provisioned rapidly. In part the reason for this is a comprehensive armament plan sanctioned by congress, but a high official of the army general staff admitted the far eastern question lends some background to the activity.

Ammunition, which two years ago was insufficient for one day's brisk fighting in the islands, has been replenished. Just how much is now on hand the general staff would not divulge for military reasons. Corregidor fort, a strong defensive point on the island coast, is understood to be undergoing heavy provisioning.

The chief complication the far eastern problem has lent thus far in the islands is in the harboring of unneutral vessels, many of which, it has been suspected, sought to use the Philippines as a base of supplies for vessels at sea.

The armament plan of the islands, as outlined by a staff officer, is that the islands shall be so strongly equipped that they may withstand an assault until such time as the navy can arrive and use the islands as an offensive base.

MONARCHISTS BEATEN

Uprising In Portugal Is Suppressed by Troops

Lisbon, Oct. 24.—The monarchists of Portugal made attempts the nights of Oct. 20 and Oct. 21 to effect uprisings. There were outbreaks at various places, especially in the northern part of Portugal, which for a time was cut off from telegraphic communication with Lisbon.

A sharp conflict took place at Mafra between 100 civilians and Republican troops. The civilians were led by a lieutenant, who seized the arsenal. The troops were victorious. An insurgent band, numbering 200 men, was pursued to the mountains.

Portions of the railroad track at Santarem and Mafra were torn up and trains were derailed. A colonel and two sergeants were arrested at Santarem, and numerous monarchists were taken into custody in Lisbon.

STOLE DADDY'S PANTS

Daughter of St. Stephen Farmer Also Took His Horse and Wagon

Calais, Me., Oct. 24.—Sheriff S. E. Woodman and Deputy Sheriff Kelsey are up against it here, for they have been appealed to by a St. Stephen farmer to find his daughter, who ran away attired in her father's trousers and driving his horse and wagon.

It was some time before the farmer could be induced to swear out a warrant for his daughter's arrest, but he wanted the girl and rig and his trousers too badly to hold out very long on this score.

TWO MATCHES ELKS LEAGUE

Four teams rolled in the Elks league matches at the Wardwell alleys on Friday evening and the scores made were a big improvement over those of the opening matches a week ago. Fitzgerald, rolling with the team captained by Dr. Maloney, got 114 for high single and a total of 309. Others came across the century mark with flying colors.

Capt. Hanson's team and Dr. Maloney's split the points, the former taking the second single with the high team single of 483 and the total, while the latter crew got the first and third singles.

MR. WALL WELL RECEIVED

Speaks at Nonpariel Hall in Ward Three

About 150 voters of Ward Three assembled in Nonpariel Hall last evening to greet Mayoralty candidate James E. Wall. The presiding officer was Mr. Martell.

Mr. Wall briefly outlined his views on the proper manner to conduct the affairs of the city. He took no issue with any of the other candidates, but confined his remarks to what he hoped to accomplish for the good of the city if elected Mayor.

As in his former speeches, he insisted on a just and equitable assessment of taxes, development of our water front, inducing new industries to locate in Quincy, better transportation facilities and better streets and sidewalks.

Other speakers included Mr. Martell Mr. Arthur, Mr. McDonald, and others

At the conclusion of the speaking those present were given the opportunity to meet Mr. Wall personally which all took advantage of.

CLOSE CALL AT MILTON

Quincy High Wins by Score 10 to 6

The football elevens of Quincy High and Milton High clashed on the Cunningham field Friday afternoon in one of the hardest played games of the season and Quincy won 10 to 7.

A drop kick from the 35-yd. line by Hamlin gave Quincy its first three points and an end run by Larkin netted the touchdown. Milton's score resulted from Sprague's interception of a forward pass and a run half the length of the field.

Quincy lost two chances to score when incompleted forwards, attempted when the time was short, went behind the goal posts and Milton was given the ball on the 25-yd line.

The game was one of close formations the first three periods and the last was devoted to forwards by both teams. Little success followed the attempts, opposing players springing from unexpected places and spoiling the catch.

Quincy started off with a rush and through line plunges carried the ball within scoring distance where the ball went over the goal line on a throw and was given to Milton. They rushed the ball back through a strong defense by Quincy and finally were forced to punt. This occured during the game several times and featured Bogan, Jepson and Hamlin in remarkable catches and fine runs.

Hamlins drop came when it commenced to look as though Quincy, though able to penetrate Milton's line with ease, might not be able to perfect plays enough to send the ball over. The pass was perfect and the line held. He booted the ball and it sailed high in the air, making a pretty arc over the bar and splitting the posts.

Quincy then went back into the game determined to win and after a series of all kinds of plays Larkin shot around the end, crossing the line on the extreme boundary. He kicked out and Hamlin made a fair catch but the goal was not kicked.

Sprague's interception of the forward was a complete surprise and he dodged four men before crossing the line. He was underway again in the last period but an offside play brought the ball back.

Reiser, suffering from injuries went in the second period and Robertson fell semi-conscious from exertion in the final period. He went back after treatment Bogan, Larkin, Hamlin played a brilliant game for Quincy. Jepson plugged his way through the Milton line and individuals on Quincy's line were conspicuous.

The game was witnessed by nearly 100 Quincy High school students who sang and cheered under the direction of Reggie Gay, Willard Crocker and "Shauneen" Shaughnessey. The royal rooters surpassed the Milton supporters in number and when they trooped from the car line to the field they looked like excursionists. All were singing and cheering and this continued throughout the contest. Milton mustered a faint reply. The summary:

HARDWICK HOLDS RECORD.

After all of the football men have taken the strength tests at Harvard, the record made by H. R. Hardwick, a Quincy boy, in the early fall continues unbroken. None of the men examined by Dr. Sargent have come within 100 points of equalling it. O. G. Kilpatrick whose total of 1349 was the highest recorded until Hardwick beat it, did not take the test this year. Hardwick's mark is 1381, and beats that of Kilpatrick by 32 points.

WILL TAKE OFF HIS COAT

and enkindled an enthusiasm that resulted in some cheers and mighty applause.

Mr. Cassidy brought out the record of the present representative from the Sixth Norfolk district.

Colonel Kincaide after his announcement launched into a discussion of the needs of the Fore River shipyard. He said the success depends wholly on the ability of the great establishment to secure work and it is a fact it is now running with a small force. I am informed from reliable sources that in the past six weeks at least 1600 men have been laid off and only 2200 are working there when there should be 5000. When here is depression in the Fore River shipyard there is also depression in business. As a busines man I want to see it going at full speed.

The present congressman has not given the company the support it is entitled to . The men of Quincy should consider the situation and decide whether or not it will be necessary to send a man interested in the city or a politician again. It even travels back to City Hall and means a greater or less tax.

When elected to congress as I expect to be, my coat is off for the ship works and the waterfront and I will be on the job to see we get what is needed. I believe in the merchant marine, the time for it arrived years ago. I advocate ship subsidy, a revision of the antiquated shipping laws and I am heartily in favor of a change of ship registration laws.

Col. Kincaide said he believed in the exemption from all Panama canal tolls for United States ships. It all revolves back to Quincy and its shipyard he said, and with these laws now in full force the voters should see they elect some one interested in their city.

Big business and small business must and ought to be protected by the National government. Vital interests come down to the question of the cost of living. The Underwood tariff law reduced duty but it is also a fact that no man or woman can point their finger to any necessity of life that can be purchased at any less cost. The return of the Republicans means the returns of the Aldrich tariff and more unsettled business. The government should regulate prices.

Colonel Kincaide then spoke of his southern trip and how the beef interest of this county secured control of the European market while operating from South America, and said as long as trusts are permitted to exact unreasonable prices we will have to pay them.

He spoke of planks of the Progressive platform he favored, old age pensions and others and closed with a strong appeal for the support of the local voters so the city can have a representative in the district.

Candidate Walker's address was preceeded by orchestral music by Wollaston young men. He spoke of the ideals of the Progressive party, pointed out why they should be realized. He said the party opposed monoply and that it knows a protective tariff is necessary and means work and business.

DECLINES TO SEE COMMITTEE

Wilson Refuses to Aid Cotton Belt Congressmen

ADJOURNMENT IS BLOCKED

Southern Members Determined to Continue Obstruction Tactics Until Legislation Designed to Help Their Part of Country Is Passed—Will Prolong Sessions Indefinitely

Washington, Oct. 24.—With congress tied up by lack of a quorum in both houses, cotton belt senators and representatives made a vain appeal to President Wilson for aid to compose the situation by securing cotton relief legislation and clearing the way for the long-delayed final adjournment of the session.

After again blocking adjournment by obstructive tactics, the cotton relief supporters went into conference late in the day and decided to appoint a committee to wait upon the president. The president, however, when asked for an interview, stated he would be busy with an important state department conference until he left Washington at midnight and would therefore be unable to meet the committee.

The subsequent departure of the president for Pittsburg, where he will address a Y. M. C. A. celebration, brought to an end talk which developed during the day that extraordinary conditions, under which congress found itself unable to adjourn, might be met by the president proroguing congress.

All efforts of Democratic leaders to secure an agreement to adjourn failed, and southern members who still remained to fight were determined to continue their obstructive tactics until legislation designed to aid the south could be passed.

Opinion was general that this would prolong the session indefinitely, certainly until after the elections, though administration leaders planned to continue efforts for an adjournment or a recess until after election.

TWO TERRIBLY MAIMED

Teacher and Pupil In Lowell School Lose Limbs

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 24.—The explosion of a tank of oxygen in the basement of the vocational school critically injured Clarence E. Lesuer, an instructor in the automobile repair department, and John H. Kenney, a boy pupil. Kenney's left arm and left leg were blown off. Lesuer lost his right hand and was otherwise lacerated and burned. Both victims are on the dangerous list at the hospital.

Nearly all the pupils in that department of the school had left the building when the explosion occurred, and Lesuer and Kenney had gone to the basement to do some welding after school hours. The cause of the explosion has not been determined, but it is supposed that a gas flame came in contact with the pressure tank.

The school is conducted by the city in an old structure on Broadway, formerly known as the Mann school. The explosion wrecked the lower part of the building, blowing out the windows, the basement partitions and a stairway.

DEPENDS ON CARRANZA

Hope He Will Abide by Acts of Mexican National Convention

Washington, Oct. 24.—The Mexican national convention at Aguascalientes is still in session, according to official reports to the state department. Only routine business is being transacted while the delegates await the return of General Felipe Angeles, who has gone south to invite the Zapata delegates and Generals Obregon and Blanco, who had gone to Mexico City to convince General Carranza of the futility of questioning the authority of the convention.

The delegates are hopeful that the entire situation will be adjusted satisfactorily soon, though officials here believe peace in Mexico depends not so much now on the acts of the convention as Carranza's willingness to abide by them and avoid armed conflict with General Villa's forces.

Boy Is Held Without Bail

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 24.—Ghvont Meordan, the Armenian schoolboy, who is alleged to have shot and killed Ziffo in Tyngsboro was arraigned in the local court on a charge of murder and was held without bail until Nov. 6. Being under 17 years of age he will be tried at the regular juvenile session of the court.

"Had Been Son of Roosevelt"

Chicago, Oct. 24.—David A. Wilson, who admitted that he had written a letter to Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of President Wilson, proposing marriage, was taken to the state hospital for the insane. Wilson told secret service operatives who arrested him that "he had been a son of Roosevelt."

Receiver For Toledo Railroad

Columbus, O., Oct. 24.—Federal Judge Killetts appointed W. L. Ross receiver of the Toledo, St. Louis and Western railroad on the application of creditors. Ross is president of the company.

BRAINTREE

James Dreghorn of Hancock street has been appointed sexton of the South Congregational church.

John Noonan, superintendent of the South Braintree car barn is enjoying his vacation.

Charles Edward Cullinan of Hall avenue and Edward MacDonald of Colbert avenue are spending a week with friends in New York city.

Mrs. Annie Kelley, son John and daughter Gertrude, have returned to their home after a summer spent in the White Mountains.

Rev. E. O. Dyer a former pastor of the South Congregational church and now living in Chester, Conn., was in town Sunday and attended divine service at his former church.

Miss Lucretia Hatch the librarian at the Thayer public library has moved from Sherbrooke avenue and taken a room at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker on Washington street.

Israel P. Weston of Central avenue while taking a flash light picture at his home Tuesday was burned about the face and his eyebrows singed off. Dr. F. H. Merriam who attended him said the young man had a narrow escape from losing his eyesight.

Richard Sanborn and Royal Belcher attended the forty-ninth reunion of the 3rd Mass. Cavalry association which was held at the Quincy House, Boston, on Monday. The business meeting was held at one o'clock and was followed by a most enjoyable banquet.

Rev. and Mrs. Tyler E. Gale of Hancock street, Miss Ada Burrell and Henry P. Whitman of Pond street attended the convention of the American Missionary Association at Providence, R. I., Wednesday. Mr. Whitman is a life member of the association.

Thursday evening the members of Amana Rebekah lodge held a rehearsal of degree work in I. O. O. F. Next Thursday evening the members will attend in a body the motion picture St. Elmo which is to be shown at the Town hall on that evening.

Court Autumna No. 9, Loyal Knights and Ladies will hold a public installation in Odd Fellows' hall next Thursday evening. The installing officers are Imperial Herald W. C. Hinkley and Imperial Page Mr. Brown, both of Somerville.

The Thimble Club, connected with Amana Rebekah Lodge No. 96 are to hold an all day sewing meeting in I. O. O. F. hall next Tuesday. The ladies plan to meet at ten o'clock and expect to get many articles ready for the sale which they plan to hold in December.

The Penniman school hall was packed to the limit Wednesday evening at an entertainment under the direction of the teachers to raise money for the payment of a victrola. About seventy dollars was netted and added to the money on hand. The surplus money after buying a few records will be for the children's playground. Much credit is due the young people who took part in the entertainment.

Miss Maude Creswell has resigned her position in the office of J. F. Shephard & Sons Inc., to take effect November first.

Mrs. T. H. Emerson of Bellevue road was severly burned about the hands when a pot of hot fat was accidently overturned at her home the early part of this week.

The Teachers Association of Braintree held a book social at the Jonas Perkins school Thursday evening. The social was for teachers only and each teacher wore some article to represent the name of a book. Each teacher had a guess at each makeup and the person making the most number of correct guesses received a book as a prize. Selections on the new victrola were enjoyed after which a luncheon was served. Dancing followed the repast and the evening was a very pleasant one.

A whist party with thirteen tables in play was held in K. of C. hall, Wednesday evening under the auspices of Ladies Auxiliary No. 13, A. O. H. Souvenirs were presented to Mrs. Bessie Desaulnirs, Miss Belle Frazier, Mrs. Nellie Snow, Mrs. Dennis Reardon, Robert J. McClellan, Thomas E. Burke, Leo Tracey and Stephen Levangie. The committee in charge was as follows: Mrs. T. F. Croke, Mrs. D. R. Buchanan, Mrs. Edward J. Hughes, Mrs. Lucy McGaughey, Mrs. Patrick J. King, Mrs. Daniel Ryan and Mrs. Sarah Silver.

The first meeting for this season of the Pine Tree Club was held in Delta hall, Thursday evening and plans for the coming meetings were talked over. A social time was enjoyed and refreshments of sandwiches, doughnuts and sweet cider were served. The annual election of officers was postponed until the November meeting. The commitee of arrangements were: Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. John N. Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Loring and Miss Annie Hale.

YOUNG BARRY RETURNS.

Raymond J. Barry, the 15 year old Braintree boy who was reported as missing, and for whom the Braintree police were requseted to search, is safe at the home of his aunt in Millis. A message received from his aunt, Mrs. Holder, states that the boy rode to Millis from Braintree on his bicycle. He told her that he wished to visit the grave of his mother in a cemetery at Woodville, and that after placing flowers on his mother's grave he rode to Millis. He will return to the home of his adopted parents in Braintree today.

MASQUERADE OF THE W. Y. C.

Prizes Awarded to Gentlemen and Ladies

The annual masquerade party of the Wollaston Yacht club was held Friday evening at the clubhouse, Wollaston beach, and was attended by about 75 couples. The costumes of the participants were varied and very attractive and the judges had a hard time to decide who were entitled to the prizes. In fact they required the masqueraders to march past them several times, before they fully decided. One of the most striking costumes was that worn by Charles E. Decker who is covering the Fourteenth district in the interest of Col. H. L. Kincaide. Mr. Decker wore a white duck suit on the back of which was an appeal for Col. Kincaide.

Following the dance Mr. Decker entertained some fifteen of the party at his home, where refreshments were served and speeches made in the interest of Col. Kincaide. The prize winners at the masquerade were as follows:

Ladies first, Miss Edith Woodward.
Gentlemans first, Roy E. Woodward.
Ladies second, Mrs. H. S. Fowler.
Gentlemens second, H. S. Fowler.

In the party entertained by Mr. Decker at his home were, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. R. Gardiner, Mr. and Mrs. Danforth, Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Soderburg, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Barry, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bowker, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Houghton.

DISTRICT COURT.

Mitchell LaLund was sentenced to three months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Quincy.

James F. Duffy who was arraigned for neglect of family at Weymouth, was ordered to pay $5 a week.

Kenneth Holbrook was fined $25 for failing to stop his automobile when ordered by an officer at Weymouth.

QUINCY WOLLASTON

A Saints day service will be held at St. Chrysostom's church at ten o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Girls Friendly Society of St. Chrysostoms is to have a Hallowe'en party Tuesday night in the parish home to which each member may invite one guest. There will be games, refreshments and plenty of fun.

Mrs. George E. Rundlett of Safford street picked a pint of lucious ripe raspberries Wednesday. The berries were larger and more thickly clustered than those gathered in June.

At the autumn meeting of the South shore branch of the Sunday school union at St. Stephen's church, Cohasset this week, it was voted to hold the spring meeting which comes in May at St. Chrysostom's church Wollaston.

The Walther men's class meets in the Wollaston Baptist curch Sunday at.15. Prelude "Crime and Criminals," Prison Reform Sunday. Regular lesson "Jesus and Judas or The Best Man and the Worst. Great chorus of men. Interesting discussions. A hearty welcome. All men invited.

At the Wollaston Baptist church Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther will preach upon the "Lessons fro mthe Book of Ecclesiastes"; evening: "The Great Race." The large chorus choir will sing at both services under the leadership of musical director, Amos D. Albee. A hearty welcome will be extended to all and those who have no other church home are cordially invited to attend this strong and growing church.

A large crowd gathered in the vestry of the Wollaston Methodist church Wednesday evening for a harvest supper. Mashed potatoes, cabbage, corned beef, beets, jelly, celery, squash and pumpkin pie and cheese were served by Mrs. Morgan's class of girls as waitresses. The committee in charge of the supper were Mrs. H. B. L. Dimmick chairman, assisted by Mrs. T. N. Lane, Mrs. Atwood, Miss Enerle Mrs. Scott, and Mrs. Cornell. The evening was pleasantly spent in games and social intercourse.

"Today, we are men" will be the theme of Rev. Mr. Bailey's sermon on Sunday evening, in the Methodist church, being the second in a series of six "Real evolution."

Joseph Cilley died suddenly October 22 following an operation at Nottingham, New Hampshire. Mr. Cilley was graduated from Adams Academy class of '98 and during his school days made his home with his cousin Mrs. Mary True Taylor of Newport avenue, Wollaston.

Mrs. Mary True Taylor of Newport avenue, was called Friday to Nottingham, New Hampshire because of the death of her cousin Joseph Cilley.

The Wollaston Congregational church held its first social Friday evening with Mrs. N. G. Nickerson the chairman of the committee, in charge assisted by the young people of the Christian Endeavor Society. After the supper an enjoyable entertainment was given and a play entitled "Mrs. Pipp's Waterloo" was presented by four ladies.—Mrs. Richard F. Prunter, Mrs. Walter Weld, Mrs. Charles E. Hathaway, Mrs. Frank Berry. It was under the direction of Mrs. Charles E. Hutchinson. About 200 were present during the evening.

THE NOON ALARM.

The alarm from Box 161 at 2.30 this noon was for a grass fire near the Norfolk Downs depot.

Through an error in counting the box the central station apparatus counted the box as 16 and went to Houghs Neck.

QUINCY WEST

The members of St. Marys Guild held a Hallowe'en party at the home of their president, Mrs. S. B. Little on Crescent street on Friday evening. The entertainment committee was in charge of the decorations which were of the season, the games and fortunes.

The Hallowe'en reading was by Miss Anna McGilvary, and vocal solos were by Miss Celina Belliveau. Refreshments were served by the hospitality committee in charge of Mrs. William Callahan. At the close of the evening favors were drawn from a Jack Horner pie. Prizes for best scores in the games were awarded to Mrs. Arthur Roberts, Miss Helen Elcock, Miss Mercedes O'Brien, Miss Sadie Monahan, Miss Celina Belliveau.

Enoch D. Fuller of Quincy West was initiated into the Delta Tau Delta Fraternity at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., on Friday evening. Delta Tau Delta was founded at Bethany College, West Virginia, in 1859, and established at Wesleyan in 1902. This fraternity now has 56 chapters in as many colleges and universities, and a total membership of 11321.

By a change in the train service on the Granite branch of the New Haven which goes into effect at midnight Sunday, the train from Boston for West Quincy now leaving at 11.14 A. M., will not leave until 11.25, and will arrive at West Quincy at 11.55. On the inward service, the train now leaving West Quincy for Boston at 12.44 P. M. will not leave until 12.53, and will arrive in Boston at 1.22. This train makes stops at Atlantic at 1.04 instead of 12.57 as now.

CITY UNION MEET MONDAY

The City Union of the King's Daughters will be entertained on Monday by the Charitable Ten of the First Parish church. The business meeting will be at 5.30 and the evening session at 7.

Deacons B. F. Thomas, Herbert Tucker and John LaTour of Memorial church were delegates to the Suffolk South Association of Churches in Village church, Dorchester Wednesday.

The Ladies Benevolent Society of Memorial church hold their annual harvest supper Wednesday evening on the vestry. This supper has always been popular and the ladies have plans for a large gathering.

Much anxiety has been felt for Elna Olsson youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Olsson of Webster street who was taken to the Children's hospital last Tuesday and went through a critical operation of the knee as the result of several weeks of rheumatic fever.

Miss Omie E. Carter of Atlantic sailed last week from New York for England and from there sails for Tura, Assam. Miss Carter who is a nurse goes under the Student Volunteer Movement and will be a teacher and hygienic instructor at the compound.

Robert Moore of Billings street was suddenly taken ill with an acute attack of appendicitis while hunting in the Northern part of the Maine woods on Wednesday. Charles French of Atlantic was accompanying Mr. Moore and on getting the advice of a physician the party started at once for Boston and had him taken to the Boston City Hospital, where he was operated on Thursday morning. Mr. Moore is suffering considerable after the long trip but his case is not dangerous.

Mrs. Sarah Butler of Atlantic street has gone to Manchester, N. H., to attend the funeral of a nephew who died there this week after a critical operation.

Mr. and Mrs. William Geekie are the guests of Mr. Geekie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Geekie of Atlantic street, while they are moving their furniture from Providence, R. I., to Savin Hill.

Ladies are invited to call at Foy's Adams Market Friday and Saturday and be served with Mapleine Dainties free of charge, a real treat.

QUINCY SOUTH

The City Council on Legislative Matters and the Selectmen of Braintree will perambulate the boundary line between Quincy and Braintree next Thursday. This in accordance with the law which requires that the line shall be perambulated every five years. It is mainly to see that the bounds between the two places are in position.

The vestry of the First Presbyterian church on Water street was crowded Friday night by music lovers gathered to hear the concert given by a quartette of well known Boston vocalists. Messrs. Daniels and Singer, Miss Mary Alexander and Mrs. Margaret Tanner. James Preston, organist at the church, who was the accompanist of the evening gave a short recital. The program included, solos, duets and four part arrangements. Most of the songs were Scotch. The decorations were potted plants, palms, and ferns.

Rev. J. A. Matheson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will attend the New England synod which opens at Providence, R. I., Tuesday and continues Wednesday and Thursday.

Miss Anna R. Grossman and Miss Sadie Berman will represent the Quincy Y. W. H. A. at the convention of the associated Y. M. H. A. and Y. W. H. A. to be held at Lawrence Sunday and Monday.

REPUBLICANS HAVE MANY CANDIDATES

Including Four for Mayor and Nine for Councilmen at Large

Other Parties Have Rivals for the Mayoralty

The time for filing nomination papers for candidates to be voted for at the Municipal primaries expired at 5 o'clock Saturday night and a glance at the list shows some interesting contests. For instance for Mayor there are four gentlemen seeking the Republican nomination, two the Democratic and two the Progressive Of the candidates seeking the Republican nomination, one is also seeking the Democratic nomination, Progressive nomination and one the Progressive nomination.

For Councilmen at large there are nine candidates seeking the five places on the Republican ticket, none on the Democratic and two on the Progressive. Councilman Gilliatt is a candidate for both the Republican and Progressive nominations.

For School Committee at large there are two candidates seeking the Republican nomination but no Democratic or Progressive candidates.

For Ward Councilmen there are also several contests. For instance six Republicans are seeking the three positions in Ward One, one in Ward Two, two in Ward Three, four in Ward Five, and five in Ward Six. The Ward Four Republicans have placed no one in the field.

Among the Democrats there are two seeking the nomination in Ward One, four in Ward Two, two in Ward Three, five in Ward Four, none in Ward Five and three in Ward Six.

Among the Progressives in Ward One, there is one candidate seeking the nomination, and it might be mentioned that this gentleman has also filed Republican and Democratic papers.

For School Committee from Ward Six there are three seeking the one position, but no papers have been filed for the position in Ward Four. The Democrats have filed one paper in Ward Four and one in Ward Six.

German Submarines Have Proved Deadly to English Warships In the Conflict For Supremacy of the Sea

The submarine exploits in the war by the German navy have so far been the most spectacular and most disastrous of the naval end of the great conflict. England has lost nearly half a score of warships from the attacks of the German submarines. The accompanying diagram shows the interior arrangement of a submarine. The top illustration shows some of the great guns on one of the British battleships.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION TO BE ORGANIZED

Preliminary Committee Encouraged by Large Attendance of High School Graduates

Mass Meeting Is Planned for Wednesday Nov. 18

It was the pleasure of many graduates of the Quincy High school to return to the school Saturday evening and occupy seats as of yore behind a desk. The large class room at the left of the main entrance was filled. The oldest class represented was the F. F. F's. or class of 1877. Every class from 1905 to date was represented, and one family, some three miles from the High school, had three at the gathering representing each a different class.

The meeting was called to take the preliminary steps to organize an Alumni Association. Interesting talks were offered by Headmaster Collins, Paul R. Blackmur, Lucien H. Thayer, Frederick M. Atwood, Miss Dorothy Fay, Miss Gertrude E. Allen, Miss Marguerite B. McCarty and others.

J. Harvey Hooper was elected temporary chairman, Carl F. Prescott secretary and Joseph H. McPherson treasurer.

After the discussion the following special committees were nominated from the floor and elected.

Committee on organization, bylaws and constitution,—Head Master Collins, Lucien H. Thayer, Dorothy Fay, Paul R. Blackmur and Joseph H. McPherson.

Committee on program for mass meeting Nov. 18,—Gertrude E. Allen, J. Harry Hooper, Sidney L. Crane, Carl F. Prescott and Frederick M. Atwood.

Comittee on Nominations for officers of association,—Frank F. Prescott, Theodore H. Corey, Bessie M. Brooks, Richard Larkin, J. Eleanor Whittemore, Ira M. Briggs and Dorothy Packard.

Committee on Publicity and Finance —William C. Edwards, Ethel R. Humphrey, Russell T. Bates, Marguerite B. McCarthy, Harold E. Marsh, Louise B. Wilson and Charles A. Kendall.

Others present besides those on the committees were: Dorothy Y. Harvey, George V. Shirley, William A. Weeden, Katherine A. McDonald, Edward Lee Brooks, Marjorie Young, Daisey H. Brooks, Marian F. Cahill, Marion B. Clark, Gretchen Young, Ralph W. Prout, Samuel C. Prout, James H. Jenkins, Harry S. Burr, Marjorie Snow, Rhita M. Keith, Florence Crowell and Dorothy Kitson.

All the committees will hold meetings this week and are enthusiastic over the organization of a Quincy High School Alumni Association. All graduates are invited to the mass meeting to be held at High School hall Wednesday evening, Nov. 18. It is probable that one of the principal aims of the association will be to foster athletics, but above all to create a loyal spirit toward the Quincy High along all lines.

REBUILDING OF HANCOCK ST.

Will Have First Class Paving Construction

Work was commenced this morning setting the sidewalk curbing on the east side of Hancock street, between Granite and School streets. The street is to be built in the same manner as Mayor Curley told the First Parish club last week, the City of Boston experts had reported was the best method of street building, and which would last as long as the pyramids. That is paving block laid on a grouted concrete base, and the top of the blocks washed with cement. While this makes a perfectly level street, it is not a slippery street in winter, as level streets usually are, as the cement washing furnishes a surface on which horses can find a footing.

NOVEL WORK FOR FIREMEN

Called Out to Rescue Horse Stuck in the Mud

The members of the fire department were called out Sunday morning to rescue a horse belonging to E. B. Holmes, who had become stuck in the mud in the marshes between Coddington and Newcomb streets and had sunk nearly out of sight. The horse was grazing in the meadow and evidently had tried to cross a small brook where he stuck in soft mud. Neighbors tried to get the animal out but were unable to move him. Chief Billings was then caled upon for help, and it was not until after considerable hard labor that the firemen and men who gathered succeeded in rescuing the animal. Even then it was necessary to dig a trench on either side of the horse and then place a sling under him. Then a block and tackle was rigged and he was hoisted out to terra firma.

LAUNCHING.

The freight steamer Edward Pierce, built for the Crowell Thurlow Steamship Co. of Boston was launched at the Newport News shipyard Saturday, Miss Mary Bradford Pierce a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pierce acting as sponsor, and Miss Alice Thurlow, daughter of Capt. Lewis K. Thurlow of the firm was the maid of honor. The vessel will ply between Hampton Roads, Boston and other New England points. The launching of the Edward Pierce aids another first class steamer to the merchant marine service.

A New Yorker is said to have dropped $75,000 in betting on the ball games, but if the stock market had been open, he might have lost even more.

As nothing is too good for the world's baseball champions, the Boston ball team was no doubt treated by reckless and extravagant friends to a baked bean supper.

If the kings of Europe could hear the member from Podunk give his eloquent address on the crime of war, they would probably quit at once.

ON THE SIDE STREET.

Many retail dealers, in starting a a new store, take the utmost pains on the question of location. Persons are often deputed to count the number of people passing on certain streets, to determine what location would be the best. As a result, rentals in the center of any business district are high.

Newspaper advertising makes it possible for the man on the side street to compete on equal terms. People enjoy going a few steps out of the day, on the track of a bargain. They are pleased to be able to boast to their friends that they saw Blank's advertisement in the Daily Ledger, and found just around the corner good values for only a little money.

"You see," they add, "he saves a lot on his rent, and can afford to sell cheap. I watch his advertisement every week. Almost always he has something that pays to buy."

The advertiser on the side street can not expect to beat out the man on the main street who advertises. But he has every advantage over the non-advertiser in the central location.

LABOR AND INDUSTRIES.

The editor of the Daily Ledger has accepted an invitation from Gov. Walsh to attend the conference on Friday at the Copley Plaza Hotel given under the auspices of the State Board of Labor and Industries.

The Comonwealth of Massachusetts has within its borders more than twenty-five thousand factories, mills and workshops. The Commonwealth has also thousands of able-bodied men and women skilled in the arts and crafts, many of whom are at present unemployed. This condition is but one indication of the general demoralization in the business affairs of the world resulting from the European war and other causes.

The Governor of Massachusetts with a full realization of the world-wide conditions now existing, has called upon the State Board of Labor and Industries, the legally organized authority for the protection of the interests of labor and industry in this Commonwealth, to meet these conditions without unnecessary delay.

This department, on the advice of His Excellency, has called a conference of the manufacturing and laboring interests of the Commonwealth for the purpose of devising ways and means by which we may take advantage of the opportunities now presented to the people of this great industrial community.

ALLIED LINES ON RIVER YSER ARE SMASHED

Heavy Blow to Defenders of Scrap of Belgian Territory

GREAT BATTLE EXTENDS FOR ABOUT FIVE MILES

Defeat In Conflict Now Raging May Mean Disaster For Either Cause—Invaders May Not Only Take Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne, but May Cut Off Allies From Sea If Progress Continues—Southwestern Belgium Principal Point of German Assault—British Fleet Believed to Be Busy—Kaiser's Lines In France May Be Weakened to Ward Off Invasion of Silesia by Russians

London, Oct. 26.—Across the Yser river just west of Dixmude the Germans are throwing troops by thousands in a desperate effort to pierce the allied lines.

Reinforcements have been sent to the front from all the garrisons of Belgium and from cities far inland in Germany, indicating that a supreme attempt is being made to smash a way to Dunkirk regardless of the risk involved.

Although no details of the forcing of the Yser are yet available, it is probable that the stream was crossed at Caeskerke, a village about a mile and a half from Dixmude.

Evidently the advances made by the allies just east of Nieuwport and near Langemarck have been halted by the break in their lines where at last the sturdy Belgian defense has been broken down.

Fighting is furious all the way from the sea to Arras in France, but for the moment the most important battle line seems to be that which extends from Dixmude to Pervyse, a distance of about five miles.

Of Vast Importance

It is to this section that reinforcements are being rushed by both the Germans and the allies, in the belief that here may be waged the conflict that will determine whether the western lines will be thrown back into Belgium or advance so that the invaders may have a fairly straight line from Roye to the sea.

If the Germans can continue their progress they will not only be in a position to batter down the forts of Dunkirk and to sieze Calais and Boulogne, but they may also cut off the Belgians, British and French between Dixmude and the sea. The danger of such a situation has been long foreseen by General Joffre and Sir John French, and unquestionably fresh troops by thousands are being dispatched to the front.

It is probable that the Indian native troops, hitherto unused in the fighting, will be rushed into the menaced region.

Germans Occupy Roulers

Roulers, captured several days ago by the Belgians, has been abandoned to the Germans, according to an unofficial but seemingly reliable report from Oestburg. Ypres, however, where the British appear to be holding back the German invasion, remains in the possession of the allies.

The fine weather of the past few days has been succeeded by days of driving rain which is slowly converting the lowlands of West Flanders, where the fighting is most acute, into swamps and shallow lakes. Trenches are again waist deep in water, and the suffering of the Germans is said to be especially severe, as the majority of the troops seem to have only recently reached the fighting zone from Berlin and from Belgian towns and cities where they have been employed for weeks in garrison work.

Aim of Germans

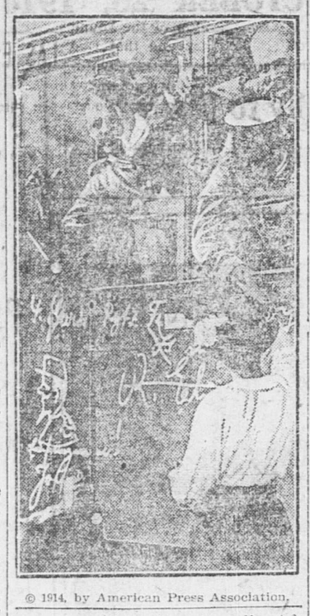

The German assault is apparently concentrated in southwestern Belgium, for elsewhere along the tremendous battle front they have made no progress and delivered but few attacks. The French are once more active in the regions north of Soissons and Craonne, where the German positions are stronger than anywhere else, but where their forces have been greatly reduced to send men to the Belgian scene of operations. Slight advances have been made by the British north of Soissons and by the French on the heights of Craonne.

On the Meuse the French are pressing forward so uninterruptedly that they are each day making it more difficult for the Germans to hold their position at St. Mihiel. The French have been able to mount heavy artillery which commands the road from the Rupt de Mad to St. Mihiel, one of the chief thoroughfares over which the invaders are receiving ammunition and provisions.

Little has been heard of the British fleet off the Belgian coast. Presumably it is still keeping the enemy away from the shore between Nieuwport and Westende and preventing the Germans from mounting heavy guns about Ostend. Heavy firing, continuous from dawn to darkness, can be heard from faraway points on the Dutch coast.

ON WAY TO THE FRONT.

Germans, Smiling and Happy, as They Leave Home For Battlefield.

In Alsace, according to a dispatch from Switzerland, the French advance north of Altkirch is sweeping onward from Thann and over the Vosges passes as far north as that leading to Ste. Marie aux Mines.

The success of the Russians about Warsaw may prove a determining factor in the fighting on French and Belgian soil. Apparently the Russians have been able to drive the Germans well toward the boundaries of Posen and Silesia, and everything indicates that the fighting may soon be carried into German territory.

Much depends upon the battling between Ivangorod and Radom, many miles to the south of Warsaw, where a combined army of Austrians and Germans are striving to hold back the advance of the Russians. If this defense can be broken down, it seems impossible that fighting will long continue in Russian Poland.

Invasion of Silesia Feared

An interesting theory, in case the German and Austrian defense can be broken down, has been advanced in London concerning the effect of the Russian campaign. The natural result of victories at Warsaw and Ivangorod will be to carry the hostile armies into Silesia, where are the richest mineral resources of the German empire. Here, too, are the enormous estates of the military caste who have been generally blamed for bringing on the catastrophe. General von Bernhardi is but the most illustrious of the militarists who have estates in Silesia, and it is believed that their influence with the kaiser is so strong that they will insist upon weakening the lines in France to ward off an invasion of Silesia.

Little news is obtainable from the fighting in Galicia, where the Austrians are more than making up for their weakness in the early days of the war. Battling is desperate along the San river and about Przemysl, with no apparent advantage to either of the struggling armies.

An attempt of the Austrians to cross the Carpathians and to undertake offensive operations against the Russians has seemingly beeen repulsed not far from Stry.

Austrians Bracing Up

Everywhere in the east the Austrians seem to be having greater successes than the Germans. The Montenegrin army, which had made considerable progress into Bosnia, has now been forced back to the frontier. The menace to Serajevo, approached by both Montenegrin and Servian troops, now seems to have been wholly removed.

Nothing in the whole course of the war has been more astounding that the weakness of the Austrian armies in the first few weeks of war and their sudden development of strength at a moment when it seemed as though they could no longer be of the slightest service to Germany.

SUNK BY GERMAN TORPEDO

Crew of Japanese Cruiser Sings as the Vessel Goes Down

It has been definitely learned that the cruiser Takachiho, reported at first to have been blown up by a mine, was torpedoed and sunk by the German torpedo boat S-90, which was subsequently beached to escape capture.

The crew of the S-90 escaped to neutral territory with important documents which the boat had been ordered to get through the Japanese blockade.

The crew of the Takachiho sang the Japanese national anthem as the vessel went down. The last sound heard as the cruiser disappeared was the voices of men.

RUSSIAN SUCCESSES

Petrograd Reports Defeat of German and Austrian Forces

Germany's army of invasion which attempted to besiege Warsaw has been driven forty miles west of Warsaw, according to an official announcement by the general staff at Petrograd. The czar's troops have resumed a vigorous offensive movement all along the battle line. Desperate attacks by the Austrians to force the passage of the San river have been repulsed by the Russians.

A large Austrian force has been defeated south of Przemysl. The Russians captured thousands of prisoners and took many cannon left on the battlefield by the Austrians when they fled.

The czar's advance columns have crossed the Vistula river above Ilianka, and are now pursuing the Austro-German forces which had attempted to bar the passage of the stream.

RAMMED BY DESTROYER

German Submarine Cut In Two by Britisher's Daring Act

The British destroyer Badger, cruising near the Dutch coast, scouting to prevent any surprize to the monitors and light cruisers which have been raking the German lines in Belgium, was attacked by a German submarine.

The submarine appeared close to the destroyer and Commander Freemantle of the Badger swung his vessel to meet her bow on. With her engines driving her full speed ahead the Badger crashed down on the submarine, which was just awash, and cut her almost in two before her crew could launch a torpedo.

The submarine sank immediately, and the Badger, whose bows had been badly crumpled up by the impact, returned to her base without difficulty.

PLAN TO SEIZE CANADA?

Bernstorff Says It Would Not Violate Monroe Doctrine

Germany's right to land troops in Canada, if possible, and thus secure at least a temporary foothold on the American continent, was upheld by Count von Bernsdorff, German ambassador at Washington, who declared this would not be a violation of the Monroe doctrine.

The ambassador suggested that, a Canada was sending soldiers to Europe to fight against his country, the United States should not consider it in any sense an infringement on the Monroe doctrine if Germany should land an armed force on Canadian soil.

Discussing his note of Sept. 3 to the state department at Washington, explaining the attitude of the German government toward the Monroe doctrine and giving assurances that Germany was not contemplating any South American colonization scheme in event of victory over the allies, von Bernstorff said that only South America was referred to at that time, because there had never been any question as to the possible German attempts to seek colonization in any other part of the American hemisphere.

AS TO NEUTRAL CARGOES

England Is Ready to Free Oil Ships Under a Guarantee

A scheme which promises to solve the problem concerning the shipment of contraband cargoes to neutral ports has just been outlined to the United States government by Great Britain.

It guarantees that cargoes protected by the American flag will not be seized provided it is shown that they will not eventually reach Germany. It is proposed that the United States ask Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden to make such a guarantee.

PEACE BY CHRISTMAS

Pope Said to Be Bending His Efforts In That Direction

According to reports circulating in the Vatican, the pope is redoubling his efforts to find some solution to allow peace to be concluded by Christmas.

Consequently the pontiff is endeavoring in all possible directions through the many channels which the Catholic church possesses to bring together all forces to accomplish this great work.

BECAUSE OF "POOR HEALTH"

Reason Given For Retirement of Von Moltke as Chief of Staff

Advices received at Geneva confirm the report of the retirement of General Helmuth von Moltke as chief of the German general staff.

His resignation is said to have been offered because of poor health. His successor has not been appointed.

Maxine Elliott Goes to Front

London, Oct. 26.—Maxine Elliott has given a motor ambulance to a hospital corps in France and expects to go to the front within a few days. She will be the first American actually enlisted for Red Cross work on the firing line.

GOV. WALSH IN CITY SQUARE

Opens His Campaign for Re-election Here

Gov. David I. Walsh, and Lieut Governor Edward J. Barry, candidates for re-election, and Richard Olney, 2nd, of Dedham, Democratic candidate for congress from the 14th district, were the speakers at an open air rally in City Square this morning. Their audience of about 150 included men of all shades of political opinion. Edward J. Parker presided.

ago. He made a strong personal appeal for the support of the entire Democratic ticket.

He said the only way a man can show his gratitude to a public servant is the way he marks his ballot on election day. The public official he said is the servant of the people and the most important branch of government is the legislature. Before you mark your choice for governor, he said, and you know I am interested in that mark, mark the name of honest men who seeks the other offices.

Representative Michael T. Sullivan he said, has been true and loyal to the principles of his party and a warm advocate of all humanitarian measures. I cannot too highly commend his service. The other candidate (speaking of Councilman Corcoran who seeks election in the Sixth Norfolk district) I do not happen to know but I assume he is conscientious because he is pledged to the same interests of Democracy. I would like to see Richard Olney go down to Washington he said to cheer President Wilson and encourage him carry out his principles during his next term of office.

There are no issues in government today except one. I don't care what a man's party belief is, in the last analysis there are two theories about running this government. Some honestly believe the best way is to legislate so as to make hapy and prosperous the wellto-do, on the belief that it will go down into the masses of the people and they will be prosperous and happy; the other view is to make the masses happy and that they will reach up and make the rich properous and happy.

The public official is the servant of the people, the people are not servants of the public official.

I suppose, remarked the governor wearing his earnest smile, you will permit me to talk about myself and I suppose you are asking what I have done. Time will not permit a review of tremendous progress made in my term of office. During the past 10 months I have realized all the power and influence I possess came from the people. I have tried to work and fight for them. Not only by messages have I urged their cause but also by going into committee rooms to plead for what I believed was right and when some people criticise I say I was elected to act and plead for the people who could not attend legislative hearings at the State House.

I have had an oportunity to remove a great injustice done the working people in amending the workingmen's compensation act which now provides a death payment of $4000 instead of $3,000, an increase in benefits so that now an injured man receives two-thirds instead of one-half during a period of 500 instead of 300 weeks. The change adopted Oct. 1 now gives the workmen 60 cents on the dollar expended instead of 37 cents.

I have tried to be a free man. I have not been entangled by corporate interests, and I am the first governor who does not possess wealth. He asked that all vote for the principles and not the man, and was given three cheers.

Lieut. Gov. Barry introduced by the governor, heartily endorsed the Walsh administration and pointed out that his Republican opponent on Saturday night attempted to inject a racial issue into the campaign which died 100 years ago. He referred to Mr. Cushing's stated oposition to appropriations for sectarian purposes. He spoke of the change in the administration of state institutions and in closing said his Republican opponent was as insincere in his opposition as he is in all other principles he claims to possess. He has never favored any legislation aimed to help the ordinary man, woman or child of the commonwealth. He was likewise cheered.

Richard Olney said he supported the Wilson administration, and said it was his minority report as a member of the legislature which brought about an increase of from five to eight dollars as the minimum wage for women and girls. He pleaded for the support of the voters.

CRAIGHILL APPOINTED.

Lieut.-Col. W. E. Craighill, of the United States Engineers office, who was in Quincy last summer in conference relative to the widening and deepening of the channel of the Weymouth Fore river has been detailed permanently as United States district engineer for this district, succeeding Col. John Mills who has been transferred to Newport, R. I. Boston authorities are much pleased with the appointment of a permanent officer to this district who will give his time to the study for the development of harbors and rivers in eastern Massachusetts.

Among Our Churches

FIRST PARISH.

Rev. A. L. Hudson preached a strong and inspiring sermon Sunday morning on "The leadership of Jesus" urging all to greater loyalty but in a practical way as followers and in the deepening of Christian faith. This is, he said, the greatest need of our time, and liberal Christians ought to take the lead in their passionate devotion to the name, the life and the teaching of the Master. Only thus can the authority of the moral law be restored in Christian lands, and peace and righteousness prevail.

In the afternoon Mr. Hudson spoke to the Young People's Religious nion on "Beginnings and developments in the First Parish," this being a part of the general observance of the 275th anniversary.

On Saturday evening of this week the young people of the First Parish will give a Hallowe'en party in the social rooms of the chapel.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. B. A. Willmott continued Sunday morning his sermons on the Lord's Prayer, his special theme being "Hallowed be Thy name." He prefaced it with a talk to young people on "A rare girl," which gave good advice.

Music was a feature of all the services. In the morning the children's choir of 60 voices returned from their vacation and sang "Jesus Lord accept my prayer" as the response to the prayer. Mrs. Charles Sampson continues as director. The regular church choir under the direction of Mrs. Moore was assisted by Miss Edith Roubound, violinist, and Miss Frances Murray, pianist and the trio for organ, violin and piano—"Meditation"—was much enjoyed. The anthem was "Hark, hark, my soul—Shelly," with solos by Miss Florence Sabean and Mrs. Moore. The Girls' choir of 35 voices sang "Ave Maria."

Mrs. Moore sang an obligato solo with piano and organ acompaniment, and the offertory was by Miss Agnes B. Ruggles organist and Miss Murray pianist. In all, over 124 different persons took part in the musical numbers at the two services.

The church was crowded at the evening service, and the pastor handled his subject—"The foe of injustice," fearlessly. He severely criticised "the system" in the industrial world.

Several were propounded for church membership at the communion next Sunday.

Miss Addie Park, superintendent of the Beginners department of Bethany Bible School, was in charge of the new class for little children and taught the lesson. Six little folks joined the new class which meets in the ladies parlor during the time of morning church service. The class was formed so that parents who have been kept at home from morning worship because of little children, may now attend church while their children are being cared for and taught the lesson of the day.

The Intermediate Junior and Primary departments of Bethany Bible School had a union opening exercise with Harry S. Bates in charge. There were very few empty chairs and many of the classes had every member present. The attendance for the whole school was 448.

The Christian Endeavor Society had a very interesting meeting as usual, there being present 28 young men and 24 young ladies.

SWEDISH BAPTIST.

Strong services were held at the Swedish Baptist church Sunday. The pastor took for his text of the morning, Dan. 6:10. Pointing out how Daniel was a man with lofty aims—that is, to keep clean. A man practising much secret prayer and always in an open confession to his God. These characteristics of Daniel helped him all through life. He kept undefiled in a wicked city, and won glorious victories over his enemies, and was greatly rewarded for his costly victories. If we had to pay and suffer more for our religion we would esteem it higher.

The evening subject was: "Christ in the hands of sinners." It strongly applied to present day life.

At the C. E. meeting the subject discussed was the Christian and the ballot under leadership of Roger Nelson, and proved very interesting and beneficial.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

The men's mission held the past week at St Mary's church came to a close on Sunday afternoon with solemn and inspiring services. Upwards of 1000 men attended and participated in the prayers and ceremonies which included the reception of blessings, the bestowal of blessings on religious articles, Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament, the saying of prayers, and the singing of the hymn to the Holy Name.

Father Mackin of the Dominican order, one of the two who conducted the mission, officiated at the closing services. He gave a short sermon exhorting the men to continue life guided by a strong and steadfast faith and then extended the Papal blessings.

Rev. Fr. Thomas R. McCoy, pastor, officiated at the Benediction. He was assisted by Rev. Fr. William J. Duffy, assistant pastor. During the last three days of the mission it is estimated that fully 2500 attended confession and received holy communion.

Father Mackin left during the afternoon for Providence, R. I., where he started a mission in the evening, and Father Wildenberg, master general of the order, is at Ticonderoga, N. Y., having left West Quincy Friday afternoon.

HALL PLACE M. E.

At the Sunday morning service at the Hall Place M. E. church the pastor Rev. P. S. Neldon preached from the text Matthew 7:21-23. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in Thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me ye workers of iniquity."

The Epworth League devotional service was led by the first vice-president, Miss Hilda Francis on the subject, "How can I win my friend to Christ?"

The pastor took for the subject of his evening sermon "Neglect," his text being "How shall we escape, if we neglect to great salvation?" Hebrews 2-3.

A meeting of the official board is called for Monday evening in the vestry.

Wednesday evening the Queen Esther Circle, will meet at the home of Mrs. F .W. Fuller to sew.

Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7.30 followed by choir rehearsal.

Friday evening teacher-training class will meet at the parsonage at 7.30 The Bible study class will meet at the parsonage Friday evening at 8.15.

On Saturday evening the Epworth League will entertain the Epworth Leagues of Wollaston, Atlantic and Neponset at a Hallowe'en social in the vestry.

Sunday, Nov. 1, will start the "Win-My-chum" campaign. The pastor will preach both morning and evening. The Epworth League service will be in charge of D. H. McNeill. Monday evening the pastor will preach. Tuesday evening a visiting pastor will preach. Wednesday evening, Rev. Mr. Sayre of Houghs Neck will preach Thursday evening, Rev. P. S. Neldon will preach. Friday, Saturday and Sunday the gospel team of Boston University will have charge of the services.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL.

Dr Sneath preached Sunday morning upon the topic, "Jesus, an exampie of a successful business man." Mrs. Smith sang very effectively "I waited for the Lord."

The Cradle Roll of the church will hold its annual party on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. George H. Murray, 395 Newport avenue. Mothers, and children under five years of age, are cordially invited.

On Thursday evening at the midweek meeting the regular preparatory service for the next Lord's Day communion will be held. Dr. Sneath will speak upon the topic, "Home blessings which may ours through Christ."

The Ladies Benevolent Society will hold an all-day meeting on Friday in the church vestry.

PARK AND DOWNS.

The morning service on Sunday by Rev. William B. Ayers was an intimate, helpful talk to the people bringing out plain, forcible truths that all could profit thereby. He demonstrated that the lack of spirituality and devotion to one's church is what is preventing the growth of the church today. That if a man gave the same devotion to the church that he does to his business, the church would show greater results in growth. This was one of many pointed truths. The lesson was one that gave food for thought, also self examination.

At the close of the morning offering,—a little child, Elizabeth Chase, dressed in white, walked up the aisle to the Chancel bearing a basket decked with flowers and containing the sum of $25, the semi-annual gift to the church from the primary dept. of the Sunday School.

This department contains 104 children—under the leadership of Mrs. James A. Boone, primary superintendant. This department has grown and sent 57 children up into the senior classes. The little girl, only four years old made a very pretty speech of greeting to the church on behalf of the Primary school.

The Sunday evening sermon at this church was the 7th in the powerful series on "Great lessons from the war." It constituted a review of the rise and development of the races of Europe and from the incidents of history some splendid and powerful lessons were pointed out. It is a great mistake to miss these lectures, as people are losing a rare treat, and also the fine music as rendered by Miss Emily Bjorkman organist, the Vested Choir and Arthur F. Capen, soloist.

On Friday evening, Oct. 23, the men of this church formed a men's organization to be known as the "Men's Forum of the Park and Downs church." The organization is to meet on the first Friday of each month at 6.45 P. M. At that hour supper will be served and a program will follow. The organization was launched amid much enthusiasm and good fellowship. At the close of the meeting dainty and delicious refreshments were served.

On Friday night, Oct. 30, the "Womans Guild will give a supper and "Hallowe'en entertainment.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

A good sized audience attended the Sunday morning service. The pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther, took for his subject, "Lessons from Ecclesiastes." This book in the Old Testament, is thought by many to be a very doleful one, but the sermon was by no means a doleful sermon, but was full of power and inspiration. Many a helpful lesson was brought to the minds of the young, as well as the older people.

Among other lessons, was that of vanity of human courses, that of putting one's time and strength to the seeking of pleasure and the gaining of great wealth for selfish purposes, and at last find that all is "vanity, vanity." Apart from God, there is no real solid peace, joy and satisfaction.

There is no time like the present, to do good, it is a sin to always be looking back, there was never a time as great as the present, full of advantages, and full of opportunities, to both young and old. "What our hands find to do, let us do with our might."

The Sunday school followed the morning service with over 300 present There were new ones added and our school is steadily growing.

The Junior Endeavor meeting was in charge of Mrs. Joseph Walther; subject "Good leaven in our lives."

Y. P. S. C. E. held its regular meeting with Miss Grace A. Schermerhorn as leader; subject "The Christian and the ballot."

The pastor took for the subject of the evening lesson "The great race." The chorus choir rendered selections both morning and evening.

Thursday evening at 7.45 the monthly covenant meeting of the church will be held in the chapel. Subject: "Our church covenant"—"Points that impress us." Let every member who can be present.

The Massachusetts Baptist anniversaries will be held this week Oct. 27, 28 and 29, with the First Baptist church of Pittsfield.

A fair for the benefit of the Boston Baptist Bethel, will be held Oct. 27, 28 and 29, in Tremont Temple.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

The beautiful weather brought out a large congregation to the morning service of worship. Mr. Elmo D. Macurdy, the soloist, rendered in a most pleasing manner two solos. The sermon by the minister was on "Minding little things" from the text "He that is faithful in a very little is faithful also in much; and he that is unrighteous in a very little is unrighteous also in much"—Luke 16-10.

At the close of the sermon Miss Harriet Turner, president of the Ladies Aid Alliance, made an earnest plea for money and clothes for the Belgian refugees.

A Sunday school teachers' meeting will be held in the vestry Wednesday evening, Oct. 28, at 7.30 o'clock.

An interesting program has been prepared for the annual meeting of the Norfolk Conference of Unitarian churches to be held in the Channing Church, corner Dorchester avenue and East Cottage stret, Dorchester, Wednesday, Oct. 28, at 10 A. M. A large delegation is expected from Wollaston

The biennial fair of the Ladies Aid Alliance will be held next month..

The Ladies Aid Alliance will hold an all-day sewing meeting in the vestry Thursday, Oct. 29, starting at 10 o'clock, to work for the Red Cross and the Belgium sufferers. Germantown yarn of dull brown or grey to knit bands, woolen material for children's petticoats and sheets for bandages are suitable things to bring. All the ladies of Wollaston are invited to join in this great humanitarian work. Each lady is asked to bring a box lunch. Tea and coffee will be served by the society.

Mrs. Carl G. Horst is the secretary and Mrs. Samuel A. Eliot of Cambridge the President of the Unitarian Ministers' Wives Association recently organized. Their next meeting will be held November 13 in the South Congregational church, Boston.

The beautiful new Second Church of Boston, corner Beacon and Andubon circle will be dedicated Sunday, Nov. 8, at 4 o'clock. The church will have a vested choir of eighteen voices.

Do not forget, ye members and friends of the Wollaston Unitarian church, that a Donation Party for the benefit of the Quincy Day Nursery will be given Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 4, in Bethany Chapel. Money and provisions are gratefully received. Donations should be left before 3 o'clock.

The Rev. Philip S. Thatcher will be installed as minister of the First Unitarian church in Hyde Park, Friday evening, Oct. 30, at 7.30. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. William Lawrence Sulivan of New York, author of "The Priest," Leters to the Pope" etc.

Rev. Carl G. Horst today attended the monthly meeting and luncheon of the Ministerial Union at the Boston City Club. The Rev. Samuel M. Crothers, D. D. gave the address on "The Ministers in war time."

Week-day services at 12 o'clock in King's Chapel begin Monday, Nov. 2, and will continue until Easter. As in previous years the organ will be played for ten minutes at the beginning, after which a twenty minute service, including a short address, will be conducted by a minister of the Unitarian or some sister denomination. The service on Saturday is musical in character.

ATLANTIC METHODIST.

At the Atlantic Methodist church Sunday morning the pastor took for his theme "The consecration of Youth;" Text, 1 Sam. 3-10. It was decision day and the fourth Sunday of the series of revival meetings. The speaker took the ground that God wanted the consecration of the young people of this country and that God adapts himself to the ability of childhood. Consecration implies doing. It implies work. Consecrated youth means consecrated old age. The reason we have so few consecrated old people is because we have so few consecrated young people wholly devoted to God.

At the close of the sermon on decision several responded to the call. A training class was organized which means future membership.

Mrs. Carrigan from Newton addressed a children's mass meeting at 3.30.

Rev. Noble preached the evening sermon with good effect.

The revival services will continue through the coming week. Boston pastors will fill the pulpit each evening. The meetings closing next Sunday at the evening sermon by Dr. Dillon Bronson.

SPIRITUALIST SERVICIES.

The Spiritualist services were conducted by Dr. Hubert Le Roy Clough. The afternoon subject was "Broad mindedness. Evening subject, "Faith, love, hope and charity and a good temperance talk. Dr. Clough's discourses have been attended by a large and attentive audience and the society hope to have him with us soon again.

Looking Down From High Places.

Why do you feel giddy when you look down from the top of the house or even from the upstairs porch? Just because it's so high, eh? That's true, but it's only half the answer. You know, of course, that your power to keep your balance on your feet depends largely on your vision or sight. When you walk in the dark you stumble and bump against things because you are not used to walking without seeing. It's the same when you are away up above the ground and cannot see familiar things in their familiar places. Your eyes play you tricks, you seem to lose your balance, and your head feels giddy and your steps are uncertain. If you practice long enough you can learn to walk without seeing, but until you have learned that lesson be careful when you climb to high places.—Wisconsin State Journal.

Scott Liked Work Pressure.

Scott, who was poet, novelist, lawyer, too, would have been greatest of all as journalist. Listen to this from his journal for Feb. 15, 1826: "Yesterday I did not write a line of 'Woodstock.' Partly, I was a little out of spirits. * * * Partly, I wanted to wait for some new ideas. * * * Partly, I was a little too far beyond the press. I cannot pull well in long traces, when the draft is too far behind me. I love to have the press thumping, clattering and banging in my rear. It creates the necessity which almost makes me work best. Needs must when the devil drives," * * * There is the very spirit of journalism, and that devil surely is the printer's devil!—London Standard.

Do You Know?

Most people are fond of good puzzles, and many are not entirely happy until they have solved them, but the man who resolves not to go to bed until he has found a divisor without a remainder (other than 1 and itself) for 1,111,111,111,111,111,111 will be able to earn a good living afterward as a sleepless wonder, for nobody in the world yet knows whether that number has a divisor or not.

Songs of a Nation.

Andrew Fletcher, a Scotch writer, who died in 1716, wrote to the Marquis of Montrose, the Earl of Rothes and others, "I once knew a very wise man that believed that if a man were permitted to make all the ballads of a nation he need not care who should make the laws of a nation."

Impossible.

Insurance Agent—It was you who set the house on fire with your alcohol lamp. Tenant—Me? Not on your life! In the first place, I haven't got a lamp, and in the second place I'm a lifelong member of the Temperance league.—Journal Amusant.

A Nice, Polite Man.

"There's some good things in town this week," said the girl who was hinting for an invitation to the theater.

"Well," responded Mr. Grouch, "I ain't one of 'em."

Breakfast Table Talk.

Mrs. Hasche (to new boarder)—How did you find your steak this morning, Mr. Jobson? Jobson—Oh, quite easily; I'm a detective!—London Answers.

AS FILIBUSTER BREAKS DOWN

Second Session of Sixty-Third Congress Ends

LASTED NINETEEN MONTHS

But Fifty Members of House at Wind-Up, While Senate Adjournment Was Most Undemonstrative In History—Relief For Cotton Growers to Be Considered In December

Washington, Oct. 26.—After nearly nineteen months of continuous session since the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson, the Sixty-third congress adjourned its second session after a collapse of prolonged efforts to procure relief legislation for cotton growers.

Leaders in this movement agreed to adjourn, however, only on the condition that pending cotton relief measures would have right of way in the house when congress reconvenes, Dec. 7.

Not more than fifty members of the house and less than a quorum of the senate were present when the gavel fell on adjournment without day.

While the senate was winding up executive business, Speaker Clark arose at his desk in the house and, facing the scattered attendance on the floor, said:

"This is the longest and most laborious session that congress ever has known. I congratulate you most heartily on being able to adjourn at last. I wish to thank every member of the house, Democratic, Republican and Independent, for uniform courtesy shown to the speaker. Now, in the language of 'Tiny Tim,' 'God bless us every one.'"

The senate adjournment probably was the most undemonstrative in its history. Democratic leaders and a few Republicans were sitting behind closed doors confirming nominations when word came that the house had carried out the adjournment resolution.

Senator Kern at once moved to open the doors. When this was ordered Senator Swanson, presiding in the absence of the vice president and President Pro Tempore Clarke, announced that the senate was adjourned.

In announcing the abandonment of their filibuster for cotton legislation, Senator Hoke Smith and Representative Henry told the senate and house it was apparent that no quorum could be procured for consideration of cotton legislation at this time, and that further filibustering might injure chances of ultimate success. Smith introduced a bill for a $250,000,000 government bond issue to buy cotton, and declared:

"We have done all we could for the suffering people of the south. We have had our day in court for this session and I would have no excuse for further filibustering at this time. I shall feel that I have done my duty by simply voting against this adjournment resolution."

The house adopted a resolution authorizing the appointment of a commission to investigate cotton conditions in the south and report possible measures for federal aid by Dec. 15.

FRENCH'S SUCCESSOR DEAD

Douglas Was Head of British General Staff and Army Council

London, Oct. 26.—General Sir Charles W. H. Douglas, chief of the imperial general staff and first military member of the army council, is dead.

He was appointed chief of staff of the British army on April 1, last, following the resignation of Sir John French, the present commander of the British expeditionary force on the continent.

Douglas was born in 1850 and had served in all Great Britain's wars since the Afghan campaign of 1879. He had been inspector general of the home forces since 1912, when he was made chief of the general board.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

Dominick Gebeau, 47, was struck by a locomotive at Taunton, Mass. His right leg was cut off.

John F. Curran, 61, a member of the Worcester, Mass., fire department for twenty-two years, died as a result of injuries he received several years ago.

Choosing to die rather than to live owing $30 to his best friend, John Catsaver of Boston, 66, committed suicide by shooting.

Edwin D. Osborne, principal of the Winthrop, Mass., high school, fell out of an apple tree and was probably fatally injured.

Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, D. D., of Boston, in a digression from the text of his sermon declared that there had been discovered in his congregation a number of white slavers who had tried to steal away some of the younger girls of the church.

Mrs. Luke Pelleter was struck at Lawrence, Mass., by an automobile owned and driven by Dr. C. J. Burgess, and died from her injuries.

Alfred Mondino, 8, received injuries from which he died when struck by an automobile at Boston operated by Richard E. Peters.

ENJOY GREAT PRIVILEGES

Some Employes of City of Boston Get Their Rent Free

Boston, Oct. 26.—Several employes of the city are given the use of houses owned by the city as a special mark of favor, while some of are furnished free of charge with electric lighting, water, heating, telephone service, according to a report which the finance commission has sent Mayor Curley.

The commission stated that in addition to receiving all of these things free as a supplement to a $3000 a year salary, one of these city employes has the use of a city auto, has access to a city conservatory, and has his cows and chickens cared for by city employes.

Not only is this true, the commission states, but the wife of this man, who is Leonard Ross, general superintendent of the cemetery department, declared to a representative of the finance commission that the city should pay for the services of a maid in her home.

FIFTY KILLED BY STORM

Damage From Cloudburst In Texas Will Reach Half a Million

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 26.—Twenty-five persons drowned in the city proper and fully as many in adjacent territory, 300 houses washed away and a property loss of $500,000 are the results of a cloudburst in this city.

The principal damage was done by Alazan creek. Residents along its banks did not have sufficient warning to get away from danger and in several instances entire families were drowned.

EXTERMINATION FEARED

More Than Six Thousand Pheasants Bagged In the Bay State

Boston, Oct. 26.—With the pheasant hunting season just half gone, sportsmen throughout the state are concerned lest the pheasants in the state be practically exterminated before the season ends.

The returns indicate that over 6000 pheasants have been killed, but it is claimed this is only a tithe of the actual slaughter, and that thousands have been killed on which no returns were ever made.

Two Men Burn to Death

Nashua, N. H., Oct. 26.—Charles Conlon and James Telly were burned to death in a fire which partly destroyed a second-hand furniture store kept by Patrick Conlon. It is supposed the men went into the building to sleep after the store had been closed and that a smouldering cigar started the blaze.

Strangled by Metal Cap

Boston, Oct. 26.—Fred H. Armstrong, 47, of Revere, took a glass for a drink of egg and milk, into which someone had accidentally dropped one of the small metal caps used on soda bottles. When he drank the cap stuck in his throat and he strangled to death.

Treaties With Portugal Ratified

Washington, Oct. 26.—Two treaties with Portugal were ratified here. One extends for five years the special arbitration treaty and the other is a peace commission convention.

Italian Depositions Refused

Boston, Oct. 26.—The full bench of the supreme court refused to allow depositions of witnesses in Italy to be taken for use at a hearing before the industrial accident board.

BASKET BALL AT HIGH SCHOOL

The basket ball team of the Quincy High school will play this season as members of the Interscholastic league and it is the hope of the managers, coaches and players that they will surpass the showing made last year in the league.

Their opponents will be Wellesley, Reading, Winthrop and Revere, and if the rivalry which existed last season continues this winter, snappy contests will be played.

Only two actual veterans of last year's champion team are available—Willard Crocker and Hamlin. Others who played part of the season are "Wet" Browne, Larkin, and Crosscup.

The call for practice will be sounded within a few days.

The schedule is as follows:

Jan. 5	Wellesley at Quincy.
8	Reading at Reading.
12	Winthrop at Quincy.
15	Revere at Revere.
20	Mansfield at Quincy.
26	Weymouth at Weymouth.
29	Wellesley at Wellesley.
Feb. 3	Open.
9	Revere at Quincy.
12	Quincy at Brockton.
16	Reading at Quincy.
19	Weymouth at Quincy.
22	Brockton at Quincy.
26	Quincy at Winthrop.

A QUINCY REPORT

Fully Corroborated and Easily Investigated.

Do you need a good kidney medicine? Then read the reports in these very columns of Quincy persons cured or benefited with Doan's' Kidney Pills. You won't have to go far to find out if they are true. This Quincy case is an example. Others will follow.

Mrs. R. A. Neil, 40 Edison Park, Quincy, says: "My hands and ankles swelled. I was worse at night after I had done a hard day's work. I used several remedies, but they did me little or no good. My husband brought home a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and I began taking them. I could see an improvement right away. Doan's Kidney Pills got my kidneys acting right and the swelling went down. I wasn't so nervous and felt better in every way. I now keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house and consider them a fine family medicine."

BIDS OPENED AT NAVY YARD

Bids were opened by the Navy department at Washington Saturday for the construction of shipbuilding ways and appurtenances at the Charlestown navy yard. Five Boston firms submitted bids, the lowest being George T. Rendel Company.

The Charlestown navy yard was the lowest bidder for the supply ship which the government is to build, but work on the ship has been delayed because it was necessary to build shipbuilding ways at the yard before work could be begun on the vessel. The Rendel Co. bid was $55,666. The contract will probably be awarded inside of ten days.

HYGIENIC SCIENCE A FEATURE.

The hearty good-fellowship heretofore prevailing bewteen those old friends Dirt and Disease is beginning to show signs of "cracking" under the strain of the thoroughgoing hostility evidenced by the 62,000 members of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, who have sponsored the great Domestic Science and Pure Food Exposition this month in Mechanics building, Boston. Besides devoting generous attention to domestic science and pure food, this exposition delivers a broadside of ocular and aural shrapnel at the well-known enemy Dirt, with the frankly avowed purpose of wiping it off the map of the American family.

The health department of the city of Boston, for instance, has set up a cluttered, disorderly and filthy back yard. And right along side, a spick-and-span sample of the approved variety, with such telling effect, that he who even glances may read, reflect and inwardly cogitate. They show, moreover, no less than twenty actual photographs of unclean stores. And in shining contrast, a real model store, completely equipped, sterilized, swept, dusted and shampooed.

By word of mouth, in lectures, and demonstration, the necessity for cleanliness in all domestic operations, from heating the baby's milk down to washing the family cat and polishing the fire-dogs on the family hearth, is convincingly brought home to the thousands of visitors to the exposition. Sanitary methods in the preparation of all kinds of foodstuffs and approved hygienic methods of heating, ventilating, and even furnishing the home is exemplified in many exhibits and by various lecturers. Even the Boston fire department plans to show the enormous fire hazard lurking in the otherwise harmless bit of news or wrapping-paper, carelessly thrown in the cellar or dropped by the wooden kitchen steps. In short, the campaign for cleanliness of a permanent, rather than a spasmodic nature, will be tremendously advanced by this exposition, to which the clubwomen of New England are flocking in large numbers.

Oct. 29 is Quincy club women's day and in the afternoon members of the Quincy and the Wollaston clubs serve tea and act as hostesses to the visiting club women.

LUTHERAN FAIR A SUCCESS

Musical Program on Closing Night at Faxon Hall

The annual three day fair of the members of the Swedish Lutheran church closed in Faxon hall on Saturday evening with an attendance that crowded the hall. The program included remarks by Rev. Leander Hokenson pastor of the church, piano solos by Miss Hannah Sandberg, piano duets by Misses Esther and Hilma Viden, and piano solos by Miss Emma Witting.

Those present gathered about the booths and tables and purchased from the large variety of useful and fancy articles for sale. One of the most interesting of the tables of the evening was that of the Sunshine league in charge of Mrs. Leander Hokenson and Miss Anna Viden, the feature of which was the quilt composed of 54 squares worked by the members of the league.

The vegetable table, on which was exhibited prize farm produce of East Braintree, was in charge of G. A. Nelson and John Gustafson. Conrad Branstan of this city, formerly of Brockton, was the Gypsy fortune teller of the fair.

Special awards were made to Anna Johnson of Atlantic, Eric Ericson, A. S. Meade, Mrs. Andrew Carlson, J. Borgvall, Carl T. Nelson, Adolph Johnson, Henry Hokenson, Mrs. C. O. Johnson, Mrs. P. Swanson, Mrs. Eric Eckblom, Mrs. John Lawson, Mrs. Mary Barnstedt, Mrs. Anna Coleman, Mrs. Matilda Anderson, Mrs. A. C. Bjorkman.

Six little girls who were dressed in Swedish national costumes, and were awarded special prizes for their efforts, were Jessie Johnson, Clara Tornquist, Edna Viden, Karin Nelson, Anna Eckblom, Jennie Hallstedt.

During the evening Senator Langelier and Councilman Charles Ericson, candidate for election, were present for a short time. The affair, one of the most successful held under the auspices of the church, came to a close shortly before midnight.

NEWS ITEMS FROM MILTON

At the First Baptist Church Sunday morning Dr. P. H. J. Lerrigo, New England District Secretary of the National Baptist Missionary Societies and formerly missionary to Alaska and to the Phillipines preached. Dr. Lerrigo spoke about his four convictions in regard to missionary work.

A quartet consisting of Olive Bishop, soprano; Alice Beattie, alto; James Lewis, tenor; James H. Leatherbee, bass, gave several selections. At the Woodsum Class, Dr. Lerrigo gave a very interesting talk on "My Alaskan Experiences." he topic of C. E. meeting was "The Christian and the ballot," led by Melbourne I. Jones. In the evening the pastor, Rev. J. Hamilton Woodsum preached on "What we are and what we ought to be."

The Academy football team defeated the Volkman school team Saturday afternoon on the Academy's gridiron by the score of 9 to 7. The game was very hotly contested. Felton made the touchdown and Brewer kicked a goal from the field for the home team.

The Woodsum Class of the First Baptist church will hold their monthly social this evening in the vestry of the church. Daniel A. MacKay, a prison missionary in this part of the state, will address the men. Mr. MacKay has spoken to the club on two previous occasions and is a very forceful speaker.

Much effort is being used by several members of the senior class of the High school to form a school paper. It is expected that in a few days the editorial staff will be announced and some real work started.

Michael Barry of Adams street, the well known builder of East Milton is confined to his home with a severe illness.

Ex-Representative John J. Gallagher of Adams street is having a dwelling constructed on Church street.

An active campaign for Henry L. Kincaide for Congress is being waged in this town.

A Democratic rally will be held this evening and a Republican rally Friday evening.

SUBSTITUTION.

The imitator is like the counterfeiter. He enters the field of business with a cheaper, lower grade article of merchandise, made as a substitute for the genuine, and generally sold at a cheaper price, arguing, as usual, that it is "just as good." The dealer is persuaded to handle it on glowing promises of enormous profits—much larger than the regular legitimate profit which is made on the genuine article. The imitator succeeds in playing upon man's natural avarice, places his goods on sale with the dealer, and instructs him to take advantage of the public by substituting the false article for the genuine at every opportunity. You can be pretty sure that whenever you ask for a well-known product and the dealer tells you he has something else that's just as good, or even better, the dealer is going to make a greater profit on that article than the one you call for, and in nine cases out of ten you will get a much inferior article.

Some buyers are easily imposed upon and this encourages the "get-rich-quick" schemers to increase their substitutions. This also discourages the legitimate manufacturer who is putting out articles of merchandise that represent behind it value to the consumer. Where a man has devoted years of his life in perfecting an article that he knows cannot be excelled in quality; where he has spent thousands of dollars in advertising his goods; and where these goods have been giving universal satisfaction for a long time, great injury results by permitting substitution to rob him of his market and at the same time rob the consumer by selling him a doubtful article at practically the same price.

There is no law through which such evil practices can be stopped. The sole remedy is for the legitimate manufacturers to ask the public direct not to patronize dealers who try to substitute a different brand of goods for the kind wanted. All first class dealers know that it is poor business to try to substitute something else for the article wanted.

There is a Certain-teed dealer in your locality who will be pleased to give you further information about our goods and will quote you reasonable prices. If the goods are made by us, remember—we stand behind them.

CARMAN MURDER JURY DISAGREES

Deliberated Over Testimony More Than Thirteen Hours

TEN FAVOR HER ACQUITTAL

Alleged Slayer of Mrs. Bailey Said to Be on Verge of Complete Physical Breakdown—Release Under Bail Probable, but She Is Unlikely to Be Tried Again

Mineola, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Twelve men, sitting as a jury, came into the supreme courtroom here Sunday and announced that they had been unable to determine whether Mrs. Florence C. Carman, wife of Dr. Edwin Carman of Freeport, on the night of June 30 last thrust a revolver through a shattered window pane in the physician's office and shot and killed Mrs. Louise Bailey, a patient who was standing there.

The jury deliberated more than thirteen hours. On the final ballot, ten jurors favored acquitting the defendant and two held out for finding her guilty of murder in the first degree as charged in the indictment.

Justice Kelby, after saying he was sorry no verdict could be reached, thanked the jury for its attention to the evidence and then discharged it.

Foreman Ludlum, in discussing the deliberations of the jury, said five ballots were taken. On the first ballot the jurors stood nine to three for acquittal. On the other four ballots the vote was ten to two. One of the two jurors who held out for conviction was James H. Aston, who said while being examined as a talesman that he would not want his wife to install a "mechanical eavesdropper" in his house without his knowledge.

As far as the state is concerned, it is unlikely that Mrs. Carman ever will be brought to trial again. Before the jury came in District Attorney Smith said if it stood even eight to four for acquittal it was improbable that he would bring the defendant to the bar again.

Attorneys for Mrs. Carman will make an application to have her admitted to bail. Such a motion will not be opposed by the district attorney.

The defendant is on the verge of a complete physical breakdown following a collapse in the courtroom after the jury was discharged. It was said at the Nassau county jail that Mrs. Carman had been crying constantly ever since she was brought back to her cell.

It is considered probable that a $20,000 bail bond will be accepted for Mrs. Carman. Dr. Carman said he was prepared to furnish $100,000 if necessary. He also said it had not been decided whether another trial would be asked for his wife. Personally, he said, he thought she would demand vindication. Any decision as to action, he added, rested with Mrs. Carman's attorneys.

The charge of Justice Kelby was generally remarked upon as being absolutely fair to Mrs. Carman and to the state. He described three degrees of the crime charged, murder in the first, murder in the second and manslaughter in the first degree.

He told the jurors they were there to get at the truth and nothing else. It was in their province, he said, to determine which part of the evidence as given was the truth, and they could accept all or part of that given by any of the witnesses. If they thought any of a witness' cerdibility was doubtful they could reject the entire story of the witness or accept only such as they thought was true. He charged that the burden of proof was on the prosecution and not on the defense to prove that the defendant was innocent.

ROPE ABOUT HER NECK

Woman's Body In Lake Furnishes Worcester With a Mystery

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 26.—A woman's body was found floating in Lake Quinsigamond with one end of a four-foot rope tied tightly about her neck and the other end looped as if it had been tied about a stone.

The body was badly decomposed. The police thought the woman must have been between 40 and 50 years of age, with attractive features. The clothing she wore was of good quality.

The police are inclined to believe the woman was either a victim of foul play or had herself tied the rope about her neck and committed suicide.

Death In Auto Collision

South Deerfield, Mass., Oct. 26.—Herbert Cary, 35, of Colrain was instantly killed here when his automobile turned turtle as a result of a head-on collision with another car, pinning him underneath.

Duke of Teck In Hospital

London, Oct. 26.—The Duke of Teck, brother of Queen Mary, who was invalided home from the front suffering from gastritis, was visited by the king and queen in a private hospital in London.

Maryland's Governor Ill

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 26.—Governor Goldsborough was operated upon here for appendicitis. No complications are expected.

MANY RALLIES THIS WEEK

Joint Meetings at Squantum and in Other Wards

All the candidates for Mayor at the city primaries Nov. 10, will be guests of the Squantum Improvement association Tuesday evening at the Community House. Each candidate is to be allowed ten minutes to tell why he thinks he should receive the nomination. A similar meeting is to be held at the Wollaston Yacht club house next week. By having all candidates present at the same meeting the voters have a better opportunity to size up the men seeking the nomination.

All of the Mayoralty candidates have arranged for rallies this week in the different wards of the city, and if the citizens are not educated up to who is the right man, then it is their own fault.

Never in the history of municipal elections has there been so man seeking the nomination as this year, and in addition to this there are three gentlemen who will enter the race at the City election by nomination papers. It will be seen therefore, that in the ordinary course of events there will be at least six names for Mayor on the ballot at the Municipal election, and if the voters do not attend to their duty and vote at the election it will be their fault if some man is elected to the office not generally desired.

NEARLY 12,000 POLLS IN CITY

Gain of 719 Was Largely in Quincy Point Ward

Of special interest at this time is the report of the Assessors in relation to the number of assessed polls in the city. The number given at the time the tax rate was announced was all that were returned by the Assistant Assessors. Since that time and up to the close of registration a large number have been assessed, so that the total number of assessed polls today is 11,894.

The number by precincts is shown by the accompanying table. It is interesting to note by this table that the precinct having the largest number of assessed polls in precinct two of Ward Two. This includes what is known as the Bigelow Park district, and shows how fast this precinct is growing and bears out the claim of the need of a new school building in that section.

	1914	1913	Gain
Ward One, Pre. 1,	908	884	24
Ward One, Pre. 2,	1269	1276	*7
Ward Two, Pre. 1,	984	899	85
Ward Two, Pre. 2,	1320	1003	317
Ward Three, Pre. 1,	1103	1039	64
Ward Three, Pre. 2,	1054	1022	32
Ward Four, Pre. 1,	717	718	*1
Ward Four, Pre. 2,	1037	1013	24
Ward Five, Pre. 1,	944	933	11
Ward Five, Pre. 2,	936	865	71
Ward Six, Pre. 1,	864	838	26
Ward Six, Pre. 2,	713	685	28
Total	11,894	11,175	719

* Loss.

It will be seen by the above table, that but two of the twelve precincts of the city show a loss, precinct two of Ward One showing a loss of 7 but continues the largest, and precinct One of Ward Four a loss of one. However these do not affect the wards for all wards show increases.

The precinct to show the largest increase is precinct to show the largest increase is 317. Precinct two of Ward One comes next with an increase of 85. In Ward Three, precinct one shows a gain of 64 and precinct two a gain of 32. In Ward Four precinct two shows a gain of 24. In Ward Five, precinct one shows a gain of 11, and precinct two a gain of 71. In Ward Six, precinct one gains 26 and precinct two 28.

The gain in precinct two of Ward Two is somewhat remarkable. The total increase in the city over 1913 is 719.

YOUNG MEN HEARD FROM.

Edtor Daily Ledger:

I would like to ask the members of the committee of the Progressive party of this city the reason that we young men of Quincy were not admitted to their rally Oct. 23 in Music hall. I went to attend the rally and was told that I could not enter.

If a group of young men try to get into a place like this to start rowdyism, and they are refused admission, it is different, but if a young man goes to the door in a polite manner, as I did, and am told I cannot enter I do not think it is fair. We young men in a few years will be voters and I think we should be invited to these rallies instead of being turned away.

RIVADAVIA TO SAIL NOV. 23

Officers to Give a Brilliant Party Nov. 13

The farewell party of the officers of the Argentine dreadnought Rivadavia will be given aboard the ship on the afternoon of Nov. 13, ten days previous to the sailing of that ship for the dry dock at the New York navy yard where it will be made ready for its run to Buenos Aires, its home port.

Gov. David I. Walsh, Mayor James M. Curley, Ambassador Naon who represents Argentine at Washington, D. C. naval officers and officials of the United States, representatives of the Fore River Ship Building Corporation where the ship was constructed, men prominent in public life, and residents of this city will be the honored guests of the day.

The affair will probably be the most brilliant event that has taken place in the state in years, and will easily surpass the receptions held aboard United States ships. The invitations have been issued and already the ship is being made ready for its gala farewell.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

Early Sunday morning while taking his first lesson as a chauffeur, a man guided his auto up the Chestnut street hill near Faxon hall, but at the top he got rattled and the machine swerved to the left, mounted the high curbing, and dashed into the fence on top of the wall in front of the residence of Frank Gilbert. The fence was demolished. Fortunately that was about the extent of the injuries.

Three questions are to be submitted to the voters at the State election. How many voters know anything about them?

The King's Daughters edition of the Quincy Daily Ledger to be issued the 11th of November will be a Woman's edition throughout as all the contributions are to be made by women. The men of the City will be interested to see what women can do in this line of work. City politics from a woman's point of view will be of special interest.

The first of the series of entertainments being arranged by the entertainment committee of Quincy lodge of Elks for its members will be held at the meeting of Nov. 10. The entertainment will be held in the lodge room at Colonial hall, after which refreshments will be served at the club house on Foster street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Penniman and Mr. and Mrs. E. Frank Mitchell returned Saturday afternoon from a weeks visit to White Plains, N. Y. The trip was made both ways by automobile. Mrs. Stephei Penniman who has been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. James B. Pollock, in White Plains, N. Y. returned with them for a few weeks visit in Quincy.

The committee on entertainment appointed by Em Commander John Morgan of Quincy commander, K. T. will make its report at the regular conclave tonight and it is reported that they have something interesting to offer.

Although none of the Quincy lodges of Odd Fellows participated as a lodge in the Odd Fellows' parade in Boston on Sunday, delegations from Quincy and Wollaston were present. The encampment members were assigned to Mt. Sinai encampment and the lodge brothers paraded with any lodge desired, most of them however parading with Neponset lodge.

The Massachusetts Christian Endeavor Union, which closed its session in Fitchburg on Saturday voted to hold its next convention in 1916 at Salem. The convention brought an attendance of 2000. At the evening session Carle R. Hayward of Quincy conducted the devotional exercises.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sterling, daughter and two sons of Kittery, Me. who have been spending the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Osburne Rogers of Hancock street, returned home today. They made the trip to and from Kittery by automobile.

QUINCY WOLLASTON

Eugene Sanders of 292 Beale street has returned from Vermont, where he was superintendent of a large farm during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Andrews of Norfolk street are leaving this week for California, where they will spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Stebbins, nee Mitchell, of Bromfield street are receiving congratulations on the birth Saturday of a daughter.

Thomas E. Husband is reported to have purchased the estate at 190 Belmont street, Wollaston consisting of a frame house and 3666 square feet of land, from Ralph J. Evans. The assessed value of the estate is $2,975. The price paid is said to have been above that amount.

NEW CHARTER FOR WEYMOUTH

Weymouth evidently is not satisfied with its present form of government, for following the lead of some other towns, through its Citizens association, it is about to begin an investigation of the various forms of government in vogue in the country. The town manager and commission form of government will be especially looked into and investigated wherever they are in force, and the best features will be embodied in a bill to give Weymouth a new charter. The promoters of the scheme will hold a special meeting tonight at which town officials, officers and members of local improvement societies and the general public are invited.

CITY HALL HAPPENINGS

A Rush Now to Pay Water Bills and Taxes

In accordance with the warning issued by Mayor Whiton and Commissioner Brown in their notice to water takers advertised last week, that work would begin this morning shutting off water from all premises where water bills remained unpaid, the Commissioner started out six gangs of men this morning shutting off water. The advertisement however had the effect of starting up quite a number of delinquents, and on Friday the receipts for water by the City Treasurer amounted to $800, and on Saturday when the office closed at noon the receipts for water were $400. Today there has also been quite a rush at the City Treasurer's office to pay water bills.

The appeal of Mayor Whiton to the citizens to pay their tax bills has also had good eeffct for there was quite a rush at the office of the Tax Collector all of the morning by citizens to pay their taxes.

ONE WITHDRAWAL.

Fred D. Williams, a popular pharmacist of City Square who filed papers for the nomination of councilman-at-large on the Republican ticket, announced this morning that owing to pressure of business he will not be able to continue as a candidate. Mr. Williams will therefore file his withdrawal this week. The news of Mr. Williams' withdrawal will be received by the young men of the city with regret. It was at a meeting of young men that he was asked to become a candidate and the indications were that he would be one of the successful aspirants.

ORIGIN OF THE CURFEW.

The Cover Fire Bell Was Rung Way Back In King Alfred's Time.

What is the curfew? Its etymology carries its history with it. The word comes from the French couvre-feu (cover fire), a bell tolled at evening as a signal to the inhabitants to cover fires, extinguish lights and retire to rest. It is erroneously said to have been instituted in England by William the Conqueror as an arbitrary bit of tyranny, and the nursery historian has waxed sentimental over the wrongs of the conquered Saxon, and conjured up pictures that must be balm to the downtrodden Celt. Even Thomson tells us:

The shivering wretches at the curfew sound
Dejected sunk into their sordid beds.

But the couvre-feu was known before William's time, both in England and on the continent. He did, indeed, issue an edict on the subject, and although this edict may incidentally have helped to put down the Saxon beer clubs, which were hotbeds of political conspiracies, its primary aim was as a precaution against fire. That danger was an ever present one in those days of chimneyless wooden houses.

The ancient city ordinances of London abound in stringent fire regulations. None of them, however, was more effective than the "cover fire" bell, which as far back as the time of King Alfred was rung in certain places in England. William's edict rendered compulsory an ancient custom. But it was a wise legislative act and not a bit of arbitrary tyranny. We find plenty of early traces of the custom or its equivalent, as, for instance, the blowing of a horn at the market place in continental Europe.

WORLDS OF THE UNIVERSE.

All Might Be Annihilated and Not Affect the Solar Systems.

I am asked, "Are distant stars which shine by their own light visible only, or are worlds like our earth visible by reflected light?"

Go out to Neptune, our own last local world in our modest solar system; turn around, look back this way; then you must have a large telescope to see the earth. Only the sun of all bodies in our solar system is visible from space deeps. And it looks like the point of the finest sewing needle from stellar distances.

Thus from space depths only suns at terrific heat are visible in any telescope, even the largest that can be made. Then all worlds are invisible and unknown. The earth and man are both totally unknown to people on worlds revolving around any of the hundreds of millions of other suns, if there are such worlds and inhabitants.

Imagine that there are 1,000,000,000 suns, each surrounded by eight worlds like those revolving now around our sun. Then if an accident suddenly annihilated the 8,000,000,000 worlds, people and all, the accident could not even be noticed. The suns would all move on with velocities in between four and eighty miles per second precisely as if there had been no accident. Thus if there are intelligences in the depths of the sidereal universe they have not heard of man nor his infinitesimal world—the earth.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

A Ten Years' Penance.

It is happily seldom that the revenge of a disappointed husband takes quite such an extreme form as in the case of the man whose will ran thus: "When I remember that the only happy times I ever enjoyed were when my wife sulked with me, and when I remember that my married life might, for this reason, be considered to have been a fairly happy one because she was nearly always sulking, I am constrained to forget the repulsion the contemplation of her face inspired me with and leave her the sum of £60,000 on condition that she undertakes to pass two hours a day at my graveside for the ten years following my decease, in company with her sister, whom I have reason to know she loathes worse than she does myself."—London Tit-Bits.

Easy Dusting.

Mrs. Florin had a new maid, and one morning as she entered the library she was somewhat surprised to find the girl seated in one of the chairs with her hands folded.

"What!" cried the mistress. "Here you are sitting down! Why, you were sent in here to dust the room!"

"Yes, ma'am," was the girl's reply, "but I've lost the duster, and so I am sitting on each of the chairs in turn."—Harper's Magazine.

Victimized by Changing Times.

"Now, then, Cousin Emma, let me give you a bit off the breast."

"Yes, please, I should like to taste that, for in my young days they always gave it to the grownups, and now they keep it for the children, so I've always missed it."—London Punch.

Not a Party Man.

"Is your husband a confirmed party man?" asked the smiling candidate.

"Laws, no! He's quit dancin' and don't even attend his lodge reg'lar," answered Mrs. Wayback.—Dallas News.

Greatness.

Genuine greatness is marked by simplicity, unostentatiousness, self forgetfulness, a hearty interest in others, a feeling of brotherhood with the human family.—Channing.

No disguise can long conceal love where it is nor feign it where it is not.—Rochefoucauld.

QUINCY POINT

The Fore River Soccer eleven downed Charlestown Saturday afternoon at Charlestown two goals to one, in the Boston and District League. This was the first defeat sustained by the Sullivan Square eleven this year. All scoring was done in the second half.

REAR AXLE OF AUTO SNAPPED

Fred Zoller of the Granite Shoe Store escaped being a principal in an auto accident on Sunday evening by stopping his machine in City Square just as the rear axle snapped. He was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Mary J. Zoller.

Both had spent the afternoon and evening autoing and passed through City Square about 10 o'clock. Mr. Zoller became suspicious that all was not well when his engine seemed to have lost its driving power. He brought the machine to a stop and phoned the Central garage for assistance. Charles Hodgkinson responded and discovered the broken axle. The rear of the machine dropped to the street on the street railway tracks blockading several cars for the time being. The report quickly spread that an auto and car had collided and several hundred gathered. The machine was towed to the garage.

Putting It on the Map.

Captain Cook shows in his "Voyages" how some of the mouth filling place names on maps are evolved. "Off New Zealand there is an island called by the natives 'Matuaro.' One of my officers, having asked a native the name of that isle, the latter replied, 'Kematuaro,' putting 'the' before the name, as is the custom. The officer, hearing the sound imperfectly, repeated his question, whereupon the native repeated his reply, emphasizing it with the word 'oela,' which means 'indeed.' So in the logbook Matuaro was transformed into 'Kumettiwarroweia.'"—London Globe.

He Rivaled Cicero.

Quintus Hortensius, the Roman orator, would have come down in history with great fame had any of his speeches been preserved. He died in the year 50 B. C. He was a soldier and statesman, and his mentality can be judged from the fact that he was a rival of Cicero.

His Future Assured.

"I don't know what to do with that kid of mine."

"Is he disobedient?"

"Not exactly. But whenever I tell him to do a thing he wants to debate the matter a long time."

"He will grow up to be a senator."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HOW LARGE A PLURALITY

Success of Quincy Candidate for Congress in Sight

Colonel Henry L. Kincaide, Quiny's candidate for Congress, returned late Saturday night from a tour of the Fourteenth district, calling at party headquarters in the different towns. Everywhere encouraging reports were received and the Colonel says that his election is assured, the only question now being by how large a plurality. He will speak this week in every section of the district, and the great campaign he is waging will be kept at full speed until midnight next Monday.

COURT HOUSE TO BE CLEANED

One more try is being made to remove the acid stains from the front of the Court building. Some six months ago John C. Murray, chairman of the Board of Health, who is also a well known granite man, applied some of his preparation to the front of the building. Mr. Murray claimed that he could remove the rusty acid stains and that the liquid he used was perfectly harmless to handle. To prove this he took some of his preparation and rubbed it over his hands.

The preparation previously used by Mr. Smith was hydrofluric acid and was dagerous stuff to handle, and almost ruined the granite.

As noted, Mr. Murray applied some of his preparation to the front of the building six months ago and the spot today is as bright and clean as when originally applied. Evidently it does the business. This morning Mr. Murray commenced work erecting a staging on the front of the building and as soon as this is in position he will start in active work cleaning the building.

THROWS AWAY HIS CRUTCHES

Almost a Miracle Worked at Mission Service

Crippled from the effects of an accident so that he has been obliged to use crutches the past seven years, and suddenly restored to health so that he discarded them and walked from St. Marys church unassisted to his home to the wonderment of many friends, is the unusual experience of John Doyle, a quarryman of West Quincy.

The restoration took place in St. Marys church Saturday afternoon after Father Mackin, one of the Dominican Father's directing a two weeks mission saw the condition of Mr. Doyle and asked if he couldn't stand.

"I don't know" was the answer.

Father Mackin replied "Try," and to the surprise of himself and about 100 others in the church he stood up and walked unassisted from the church and to his home.

Mr. Doyle is a 45 year old resident of 140 Cross street and seven years ago was struck by a wire guy which snapped when a big derrick toppled down at the Hitchcock quarry. Partial paralysis of the left side developed and for nearly a year he was in bed. Since then he has been undergoing treatment and a short time ago he felt a slight sensation in the right leg.

On Saturday afternoon he hobbled to the church and prayed for restoration to health. As though his appeal was answered it suddenly came. Overjoyed he reached home without any assistance and his family were so astounded that his son James Doyle, employed at the Quincy telephone exchange nearly swooned with joy while the rest could hardly believe their eyes.

"Fathers walking," cried one, as he stepped onto the path leading to the door and with welcome shouts they gathered about their father who has been unable to walk for seven years without crutches. Some were babes when the accident occurred and they looked with wonderment and awe as he stepped to his wife's side.

The news of his recovery spread through the entire city and at the church on Saturday evening thousands who knew him stopped at the sight of him walking without support. That night and all day Sunday he mingled freely with the people of that district.

Mr. Doyle overjoyed at his recovery said he seemed queer to be walking again. He had made the mission in hopes of regaining the use of his leg and said he felt that he had found favor with God.

Thousands have congratulated him, thousands others, wonder. As Richard Harding Davis in writing about the destruction of the Cathedral at Rheims by the Germany army steps in speaking of the preservation of waxen sacred images when metal and lead was nothing but a molten mass, "call it what you will, a miracle, or whatever else you may care to, the fact remains that it happened."

Mr. Doyle was among the thousand that attended the closing service of the men's mission at St. Mary's church Sunday afternoon.

The City Union of King's Daughters meet this afternoon in the chapel of the First Parish church.

GENERAL ALARM FIRE AT SQUANTUM

COUNCILLOR GUY WINS APPLAUSE

Says He Likes Work on Beacon Hill and Governors Council Likes Him

Attorney General Recalls Grade Crossing Fight

Memories of the fight on Beacon hill during the last session of the Legislature over grade crossings were refreshed at the Democratic rally in Music hall on Monday evening when Attorney General Thomas J. Boynton said a committee from this city, brought the decree calling for abolition by elevation to his office and gave him to understand that all parties were entirely agreeable to the decree and all it needed was the signature of the Attorney General before it would be signed by the railroad and city officials. They being important parties and in accord as he believed, he signed it.

The statement, in keeping with the representations made by Representative Sullivan during his fight to overturn the decree in the House, and after his efforts were thwarted in the Senate was beyond doubt the spiciest political statement made at a local rally in years.

Nearly 350 were in Music hall when Attorney General Boynton made his speech; and fully 100 had left but others came in during the time and enthusiasm ran high.

The earnest plea of all speakers was for support of the national administration. Edward J. Parker presided and among the speakers was Councillor Charles W. Guy whose election last year caused a revolt in Republican circles; former congressman Joseph O' Connell, who represented this city when it was in the 10th district; Richard Olney 2nd, of Europe Fast Becoming One Great Hospital, As Well as Graveyard, as Result of War.

Europe is fast becoming one great hospital as well as a graveyard. Thousands have been killed, and scores of thousands have been wounded. The picture shows an English army ambulance at Amiens, France. An injured soldier is being helped out of the conveyance. He had been shot in the battle of the Aisne. He refused to be carried into the hospital on a stretcher. "They may carry me out of the hospital," said he, "but I'll walk in." Later they did carry him out, dead.

PRAISE FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Candidate Campbell Believes in Co-operation

By far the largest and most enthusiastic gathering that Chester I. Campbell had the privilege of addressing in his campaign for the Republican mayoralty nomination thus far, greeted him Monday evening in Franklin hall, Franklin street, which is the home and stronghold of Candidate Tilden.

Candidate Campbell said in part:

"Co-operation is an unknown quantity in the conduct of our city government. Instead of being one big, happy family, all pulling together for the common good, it has been every man for himself, and as a result there has been a very low standard of efficiency, if any at all.

"If I have the good fortune to be elected, and all of the signs point to it, there is going to be a happy family in City Hall. From the chief executive down to the lowliest laborer there is going to be the heartiest kind of co-operation. Co-operation pays.

CO-OPERATIVE BANK STUDY

A System of Saving That Is Very Popular

Hardly anybody, except brokers or burglars, or sons-in-law, can expect to make a fortune in a single day. The safest and surest way for most people, including Rockefeller and Carnegie, is to begin their fortunes in the good old way, by making small savings out of modest incomes while they are young.

The Co-operative Bank is one of the best known agencies for helping and encouraging young investors. There are many hundreds of Quincy people who are quite familiar with co-operative methods, but there is also a new crop of young men coming upon the stage every year—fellows who are earning fair wages, and who ought to begin a course of systematic saving at once. For the benefit of such persons a short re-statement of co-operative methods may be worth while.

Co-operative shares are a dollar a month—which means that for every share that you own you pay into the

COLDEST DAY OF THE SEASON

The temperature at noon today was 46 degrees. While not the coldest October day on record, it is the coldest day at noon since May 13, when the noon temperature was 43 degrees. The coldest October day in 1913 was Oct. 14 when the noon temperature was 43 degrees. A year ago today the noon temperature was 65 degrees. In addition to the low temperature there is a high cold wind which makes it seem colder than it really is.

SUMMER COLONY WAS THREATENED

Cottages of Paul Hersey and Joseph Gregory Destroyed and Hoag Cottage Damaged

High Wind Was Prevailing at the Time

Two cottages were destroyed and a third gutted by a fire this morning in a thickly settled colony of summer cottages at the Bayside, Squantum. For a time the fire threatened to wipe out the whole section, and the Chief on his arrival sounded a general alarm. It was a long run which the general alarm gave the horse drawn apparatus. The Central station went down Hancock street, thence through Beach street to the boulevard where a good road was found.

Through a misunderstanding as to the exact location of the box, hundreds of automobiles which hastened to Squantum on the general alarm climbed the hill on Huckins avenue and thence turned into Bellevue avenue and went back to Squantum street. The apparatus however kept straight down Squantum street to near the end of the car line. The fire was in the

Some one asks what the ball players do through the long winter. Well, some of them are helping the college boys get their A. B. degree by coaching the ball team.

The only trouble about the various peace plans in Mexico is that none of them provide for the extermination of the entire population.

No wonder the middleman is able to make a big profit, when he is smart enough to force down prices on the farmer, and raise them on the consumer at the same time.

NO LICENSE VOTES.

The annual meeting of the Citizens No-License League will be held this evening at 8, at the Y. M. C. A. building. It is important that new life should be put into the campaign this year because figures in another column today show that the Yes vote has been much larger that last two years than ever before, while the No vote is not up to the record.

It is a fact however that the No vote made a larger gain last year than did the Yes vote. With 5,415, voters at the polls, there were 3,315 No and 1803 Yes, a majority of 1512. However Quincy majorities have run as high as 2,227 which was in 1907 From that year until 1912 there was an annual drop, but the fall was checked in 1913 and the majority against license should show another gain this year.

In 1913 every precinct of the city with the exception of precinct one of Ward Four gave a majority for No and even in this precinct the majority for license was only 21. The temperance people in this precinct should see to it this year that it enters the No column with the other precincts of the city.

EXTRAVAGANT CLAIMS.

It is often said of children, who take more food upon their plates than they can possibly eat at that time, that their eyes are bigger than their stomachs. This same saying can well be applied to many political writers, in reporting attendance at rallies held in the interest of their particular candidate.

This has been particularly true of late where great claims of big attendances have been made. They however fool few people. It is all nonsense, and does little good, to claim an audience of 300 at a hall in which, if packed like sardines in a box, it would not be possible to get half that number inside the doors.

People who are familiar with these halls know immediately that the statement must be false, and naturally are led to believe if a false statement is made in one instance it will be made in other claims about the rally, so that in the end, the party it was intended to boost losses.

One may fool some of the people part of the time, but they cannot fool all of the people all of the time. It might be added that the claims of large audiences to not apply to any particularly candidates for they are all guilty, although some more so than others.

WITHSTAND ATTACKS OF INVADERS

Allies Obstinately Oppose Attempts to Advance

MORE THAN STUBBORN DEFENSE ENCOUNTERED

Little of Decisive Nature In Way of Victory or Defeat For Either Side, Despite Germans' Furious Charges and Awful Sacrifice of Men—Nieuwport Practically Destroyed by Invaders' Big Guns—Military Experts Think Human Beings Cannot Stand Frightful Butchery Much Longer—Street Fighting, With Advances From House to House, Characterizes Fighting In Northern France

London, Oct. 27.—Frustrated in their effort to batter through the allied lines after crossing the Yser, the German host in Belgium has brought up some of the great howitzers that smashed the forts at Antwerp and are shelling the town of Nieuwport, where the French and British are massed in force.

Again and again Monday the invaders made violent attempts to seize crossings of the Yser nearer the mouth of the stream than those which they captured Sunday, but the sole result of their furious charges was a horrible sacrifice of men.

Considerable optimism has been aroused in London by the latest official statement from Berlin, which admits that the hostile lines between Nieuwport and Dixmude were stubbornly held against the German assaults. As the German statements have carefully refrained throughout the course of the war from admitting setbacks, the mere statement that a stubborn defense has been encountered will probably result in the discovery a few hours hence that the losses of the invaders have been appalling.

Falling Back on Great Guns

Everything indicates that the Germans, at last convinced that they can make no further progress without losses that will seriously cripple their operations, have fallen back upon their howitzers and their great guns to hack a way through the defense.

Two of the enormous howitzers that smashed the forts of Liege, Namur and Antwerp are reported to have arrived at Bruges, together with ten 28-centimetre guns. These will probably be rushed to the front as quickly as possible, although the roads are so deep in mud that the guns may not be able to reach the fighting zones before a decision is won.

According to the Berlin statement, enough big guns have been put into position to offset to some degree the destructive fire of the British flotilla off the coast. Three of the British warships were struck by shells and the vessels left the Belgian coast and steamed westward until they could not be seen from the land.

Nieuwport Probably Destroyed

Nieuwport, bombarded Monday by the Germans, must have been practically destroyed, as it is a small place with only 3500 inhabitants and its ancient fortifications were razed a half century ago. There were some interesting old houses in the town, a cloth house of brick that had endured for more than four centuries and a gothic church of some interest to architects.

The principal damage must have been done to the locks on the important canals from Furnes and Ostend which enter the Yser at Nieuwport.

Dixmude, ten miles distant from Nieuwport, has been destroyed by the fires which swept through the town after the explosion of German shells, and presumably the towns between Caeskerke, Pervyse and Rampscappelle, are blackened ruins, like so many of the formerly peaceful Belgian towns and cities in the east and north. Roulers, southeast of Dixmude, taken and retaken four times by the hostile forces and now held by the Germans, is an unrecognizable mass of ruins.

Near Ypres, where desperate fighting has been waged hitherto, the troops remained Monday almost inactive in their trenches, apparently waiting for the main battle nearer the coast to come to an end.

Butchery Must Soon End

Military experts in London believe that the battle between Dixmude and Nieuwport cannot drag on to such an intolerable length as has the contest in France. The open character of the country makes it impossible for either the allies or the Germans to find adequate shelter from attacks and in the ten days of warfare on this short line the losses have been much more appalling than those of any previous engagements of the war.

Reinforcements are rushed to the front by both hostile armies to fill up the terrible gaps in the lines, but human beings cannot much longer stand up to the frightful butchery.

As the German casualties are believed to be much heavier than those of the British, French and Belgians, it is believed that the invaders will soon have to abandon their effort to smash through to the French channel ports.

Night Attacks Resumed

About Lille the Germans have begun once more to resort to night attacks. From Berlin it is claimed that advances have been made west and southwest of Lille. Paris, however, reports that the allied lines held firmly between Armentieres and Lille to the west of La Bassee and of Lens, so that the progress of the invaders must have been slight. A French attack east of Arras, directed along the coveted railroad lines leading to Douai and Valenciennes, was repulsed by the Germans.

Throughout this densely populated region of northern France the casualties have not been so heavy as in the Belgian battling, as the troops have been able to shield themselves in houses. Street fighting, with advances from house to house, have characterized the clashes in scores of towns and cities, especially in the French departments of Nord and Pas de Calais, and the damage done can hardly be effaced in a decade.

German Casualties Placed at 750,000

A dispatch, which purports to represent the views of a German newspaper, says that German losses in the war are thus far estimated at 750,000. That they are so high is improbable, but it is significant, perhaps, that the German official dispatches have not for nearly a month given any estimate of total losses.

No reliable news comes from the eastern theatre of hostilities. Essad Pasha is renewing his activities in Albania, and may furnish some excuse to get Italy into the war. China and Japan are involved in difficulties, but it is very doubtful that China will go too far toward offending the Japanese.

BELGIANS FACING FAMINE

7,000,000 Near Starvation as Food Supply Is Cut Off

Nearly 7,000,000 people in Belgium face famine unless they receive help from the outside at once.

The American minister to Belgium, Brand Whitlock, says that less than two weeks' supply of food remains in the cities, while conditions in the country districts are even worse. Though Germany has seized the food in some cities for her soldiers she still disclaims responsibility for feeding the Belgians.

Whitlock has had only peasants' black bread for two weeks and the supply of that is short. One hundred soup kitchens are feeding over 100,000 of the needy in Brussels. Families formerly rich are bankrupt. Noblemen may be seen slipping into the soup kitchens.

The factories are closed. Many stores remain open, but have no business. The street cars are being operated, but the railway train service has been suspended. The supplies of coffee, tea, flour, rye and salt are practically exhausteed.

BRINDILLA RELEASED

Oil Steamer Taken to Halifax Given Up by British Government

The British government, satisfied after an examination of the innocence of the destination of her cargo, has ordered the release of the American oil tank steamer Brindilla, which will be permitted to proceed to Alexandria. The question of the transfer of the vessel from the German to the flag of the United States will not be raised by the British government.

The Brindilla, which was carrying a cargo of illuminating oil, was seized by the British cruiser Carona and taken into Halifax on Oct. 19.

TAKE "BLOOD TOLL"

French Girls Gladly Pay Ghurkas' Price For Seeing the "Kukri"

Bandaged fingers mark the path of the Ghurka regiment through friendly and admiring France, and the "victims" of the blood lust of the famous little fighters from Nepal are the French women and girls.

France cannot make too much of Britain's dusky warriors and soldiers, civilians and girls all want to see the kukri, or wicked looking knife which the Ghurka prefers to a bayonet.

The Ghurkas, however, have their own customs, and it is against their religion to draw the weapon without drawing blood. This apparently insurmountable difficulty is overcome when the curious allow a slight cut to be made on their fingers, in order to fulfill the letter of the law. There is no lack of volunteers, and a bandaged finger is quite popular among the French girls.

Steamer Sunk by Mine

The steamer Admiral Ganteaume was sunk by a mine just outside Boulogne harbor. About twenty or thirty persons were drowned owing to the panic which prevailed as the passengers were being transferred to the steamer Queen, which rushed to the assistance of the sinking vessel. Most of the passengers were peasants.

SCHOOLGIRL STRANGLED

Brutal Crime Revealed by Discovery of Her Remains

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 27.—With scarcely any clues to aid them detectives are attempting to discover the identity of the slayer of 15-year-old Hazel Macklin, victim of one of the most brutal murders in the history of northern Indiana.

The body of the girl, who disappeared Aug. 19, was found in a vault at Island park, a picnic park, one mile from the city. She had been strangled with a piece of her underclothing, which was knotted about her throat. Her clothing had been partly torn from her body and several scratches and scars showed she had battled desperately for her honor.

Matured beyond her age and unusually pretty, the Macklin girl was a favorite among other high school students and at the Sunday school of the Westminster Presbyterian church. She lived with her uncle, her father and mother having separated.

HAD EIGHT RIBS BROKEN

Indications That Insane Patient Met Death by Throttling

Boston, Oct. 27.—Charles R. Brown, insane patient at the Pierce farm, met his death by strangulation, in the opinion of Medical Examiner Leary, who testified to that effect at the trial of Henry Lee, indicted for manslaughter in connection with the case.

Dr. Leary testified that he found eight broken ribs in Brown's body and that a bone in his throat was also broken. Assistant District Attorney Lavelle said in his address he would show that Brown came to his death "by throttling."

Brown's death occurred Oct. 8 and the investigation by the police and district attorney's office was speedy. Lavelle called eleven witnesses for the government. Five of them were women.

CARRY OUT SUICIDE PACT

Young Man and Woman Take Own Lives In a Casket Garage

Milwaukee, Oct. 27.—Beside a truck in the garage of the Milwaukee Casket company, Alma Leopold, 17 years old, and Fred Oehler, her sweetheart, carried out what the police believe was a suicide pact.

Employes broke down the locked doors of the garage and found the girl's body, a bullet wound in her head, lying beside the truck. Sitting in the front seat of the truck, one lifeless hand still gripping the wheel, they found Oehler, who was an employe of the company. There was a powder-scarred bullet wound on the right side of his head. A revolver and a bottle of poison lay at his feet.

TICKET FOR STATE ELECTION

Plenty of Candidates and Three Questions

In order to vote the complete ticket at the State election Nov. 2, a voter will be required to make fifteen crosses. These include twelve crosses for various state officers, and three for proposed amendments, which are submitted to referendum.

The voter will find plenty of candidates for the several offices from which to make his choice. For instance for the offices of Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary, Treasurer, Auditor and Attorney General there are candidates for the Prohibition, Republican, Socialist Labor, Socialist, Progressive and Democratic parties, six in all for each office.

For Congressman from the Fourteenth district there are four candidates, Republican, Progressive, Socialist and Democrat.

For Councillor there are three, Democrat, Republican and Progressive; and for senator from the First Norfolk district two, Republican and Democrat.

For Representative in the Fifth district there are two, Republican and Democrat, and in the Sixth district three, Democrat, Republican and Progressive.

For County Commissioner there are two, Republican and Democrat.

As noted, there are three constitutional amendments. The first is the acceptance of the act relative to vacations for laborers employed by cities and towns. This act provides that all persons classified as laborers, or doing work of laborers, and regularly employed by cities and towns for more than one year shall be granted a vacation of not less than two weeks during each of their employment without loss of pay.

The second amendment is relative to making Saturday a half holiday, without loss of pay, for laborers, workingmen and mechanics employed by or in behalf of the Commonwealth and otherwise to regulate their employment.

This act, which is Chapter 668, does not directly affect Quincy, as it provides that all laborers, workingmen and mechanics employed by the Commonwealth in any capacity, or by any officer, board or commission on behalf of the Commonwealth shall be given a half-holiday on every Saturday of the year without loss of pay. It also provides that all work by laborers, workmen or mechanics employed by the Commonwealth, board of commission shall be on a day-work basis. It might be added that this refers to those employees who have been certified by the civil service commission and whose services can be dispensed with.

Th third amendment is that relative to party enrollment and as explained in the Daily Ledger of a recent date would do away with party enrollment as now in force at primaries.

If the amendment is accepted the names of candidates of all parties will be printed on one ballot, although in separate columns. If however a voter marks a cross, under this new form of ballot, against a Republican for one office and against a Democrat or Progressive for another office the ballot is void and will be thrown out. The hanger-on about the voting places, under the proposed amendment however will be ignorant when a voter enters behind the rail to vote, what party ticket he votes.

FINDS RIVAL STALLED

Col. Kincaide Does Good Samaritan Act

The Dedham man who is making the run for Congress in the 14th district, will have rather fond recollections of a trip to Quincy the first of this week, when the machine in which he was riding became stalled high and dry on one of the main thoroughfares. The chauffeur on examining the tool kit, (visions of conspiracy came to his mind) found the most important one or the necessary tool was missing It began to look as if the party were good for all night, when in the distance was seen approaching the next Congressman from the 14th district, Henry L. Kincaide. And the Colonel in his ever true sportsmanship spirit, went to the assistance of his rival. The former was towed some distance, gotten out of his difficulty and safely started for home.

One must step along lively to follow the activities of Co. Henry L. Kincaide, who looks more and more each day to all the people as the next Congressman from the 14th. Monday a greater part of the day was spent in Brockton where many people had an opportunity to see and hear him. At noon a rally was held at the shoe factory of E. E. Taylor & Co. at Montello, where some 200 employees gave strict attention to the few remarks the Colonel was able to make in the brief time that was alloted him. He defined his platform and what benefits he hoped to obtain for the workingman, at the conclusion of which he was loudly applauded and many pressed forward to shake his hand.

On leaving the above place he had occasion to pass the W. L. Douglas factory in front of which many of the employees were still gathered after listening to a rival candidate. The Colonel while intending to go by was loudly cheered and asked to stop. On stopping he learned of an interesting event that had just taken place. A warm Kincaide supporter and able speaker had brought to a standstill a machine load of speakers for the rival candidate single handed.

It all happened in this way, the Kincaide speaker who had a pre-arranged plan to speak to the employees was first on the scene, and naturally got the attention of the crowd. The rival party on appearance failed to attract any, and feeling a little vexed accused the other of a frame up. This was too much for the Kincaide man, who answered in such a way as to entirely silence the accusers and win the hearty applause of the crowd.

In the evening the Colonel was accorded a large rally at Brockton, leaving for a second rally at Holbrook at 8.30 ,and winding up with an address to the car men at Electa hall, Quincy at 9.30.

Colonel Kincaide has the following engagements for the evenings this week.

To night at North Weymouth at 8 o'clock and Hyde Park at 9 o'clock.

Wednesday evening—Avon at 7 P. M., Rockland at 8 P. M., East Weymouth at 9 P. M., Norwood at 9.45 P. M.

Thursday—Sharon at 7.45, Foxboro at 8.30, Houghs Neck at 9.45.

Friday—North Abington and Dedham.

Saturday—Rallies at Brockton.

The Knights of King Arthur of Bethany church will hold a Hallowe'en party Friday evening.

THE WHITE DEATH

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

In 1850 Mlle. Antoinette Garnier, named for the ill fated queen of France who lost her head on the guillotine, was one of the most attractive of the younger girls of New Orleans. The Crescent City was in those days one of the gayest cities, if not the gayest, in the United States. Being a city of the French, it contained a number of emigres of the revolution whereby the Bourbon kings lost the throne, and they were of the noblesse, some of them having the right to titles that they did not use. New Orleans socially was delightful, but more foreign than any other American city.

Edwin Wentworth, a young northerner from the state of Maryland, went to the Crescent City to spend a winter, attracted thither by the reports of the unique social life. Having letters to the "best" people, he was invited everywhere. He met Mlle. Garnier, and a love affair ensued. It was arranged that when the spring came on they should be married and both go north to the groom's home.

In those days there was frequent intercourse between New Orleans and France. While desirable persons came out to the new world to make homes for themselves, occasionally one would come whose absence would have been preferable. Among these was Antoine Le Voisier, a duelist who had killed so many opponents that he had acquired the sobriquet of the White Death.

One evening at a cafe young Wentworth saw him, asked who he was and on being told remarked in a voice loud enough for Le Voisier to hear that the authorities of Louisiana should ship the fellow back to France. The result was a challenge. If Wentworth had come from Massachusetts or any northern state he might have declined it. But, hailing from a border state, in which dueling had not entirely died out, he felt compelled to fight. He was rash to have made the remark in the White Death's hearing and rash to go on the field with one who had fought twenty duels and killed ten men. Wentworth was entirely unskilled in the use of weapons, and there was no time to learn how to use them.

The result was that he went out to meet his antagonist, and another murder was done.

Mlle. Garnier was so crushed by the tragedy that for awhile her life seemed to be in danger, and as she recovered her strength she showed signs of mental derangement. The social world saw her no more, and so rapid are the changes in the world of fashion that in a few months her place there seemed to have been filled and she forgotten.

It was not long after Wentworth's murder that the cholera visited America, and New Orleans was not immune from its devastations. But it seemed that nothing could even temporarily obliterate the people's desire for amusement. A masked ball was given in a large hall, and, although it was not an affair to call out fashionable society, especially at such a time, many of the bon ton went there to divest themselves of the gloom surrounding them.

The contrast within and without the hall was a fearful one. Within was a dance of life, without a dance of death. But the death from without broke in among the merrymakers. A figure entered the hall dressed in white flowing robes, the mask as white as chalk, with great hollow eyes, a grinning mouth and rotten teeth. It advanced to one wearing a Louis XV. costume and stood staring at him. The merriment ceased, and all eyes were bent on the two figures. The Louis XV. figure took off his mask and displayed the features of Le Voisier.

The reason for his unmasking was apparent. He had seen himself confronted by one dressed as the White Death and was desirous to avenge the insult.

"Whoever you are who has offered this affront you shall pay for it," he said.

"I am the White Death."

"Meet me in an hour in the wood," replied Le Voisier, referring to a wood on the outskirts of the city where duels were fought.

"Not without a reason. For me (the White Death) to confront you, the White Death, is no insult. Take that!"

He struck Le Voisier with the back of his hand, drawing a drop of blood, which seemed to come from a ring he wore on his finger. Le Voisier paid no attention to the blow other than to say that if his antagonist was satisfied he was; that he would expect to meet the person who had insulted him as soon as they could reach the wood; then, turning, he started for an exit.

It was noticed before he had taken a dozen steps that he staggered, and before he reached the door he fell The specter followed him and stood over him, looking down upon him. Le Voisier writhed in agony, but kept his eye fixed on his other self, the White Death. Presently the latter removed his mask and exposed the features, not of a man, but a woman. Some there were who recognized her as Mlle. Garnier, though she was much changed from the beauty she had been before her lover's death.

"You are no longer the White Death," she said to the dying man. "I have taken your place to avenge your last victim. This ring is more powerful than any weapon of yours. It contains a deadly poison."

DREW MONEY AND WAS ROBBED

Relieved of $350 Near Shipyard Arrest Made

Mohammed Mouse of 64 Winter street, while returning from a Syrian bank in Boston late Monday evening, was set upon by three men in the woods between Quincy avenue and Winter street, as he was on his way home, and robbed of $350 which he carried in a leather belt.

There were two men with him at the time of the attack, but they were so frightened that instead of rendering any assistance they ran away, leaving Mouse to fight off his assailants alone as best he could. After relieving him of his money, the men departed, leaving him wounded on the road. He made his way home as best he could and notified the police, who found his condition such that it was advisable to remove him to the City Hospital. As the patrol wagon started for the hospital, Mouse saw two men on Winter street whom he declared where the two that had robbed him.

The police officers jumped from the patrol wagon and placed the two men under arrest. They stoutly denied that they were the parties and claimed to know nothing either about the assault or robbery. They were however locked up, charged with robbery. They gave their names as Abdul Hassan and Modile Abdul, and claimed to live on Winter street.

Mouse face and head were a mass of bruises, and one hand was badly bitten and one ear almost torn off, showing that he had put up a desperate fight before being relieved of his money.

Mouse was able to appear in court this morning but his head was pretty well bandaged up, and he looked to be in considerable pain. The two defendants. Hassan and Abdul were arraigned for robbery. They entered a plea of not guilty and the cases were continued until Saturday under $1000 bonds.

SUBMARINE ILLUSTRATED

Daily Ledger Commended for Its Pictures

One of the most interesting half ones which has appeared in connection with the European war had a prominent position on the front page of the Daily Ledger on Monday evening. The cut was that of a cross section of one of the German submarines which have proved deadly to English warships in the conflict for the supremacy of the sea. Many have complimented the Daily Ledger on its pictures.

And to make Mondays illustration more interesting, the plan is somewhat similar to the submarines now under construction at the Fore River shipyard for the United States government. Experts say that there is but little difference in the interior of the Kaisers underwater fighters and those of our own navy.

Submarines have been constructed at the shipyard since they were perfected, and despite the outspoken condemnation of naval experts. The demonstration of their efficiency which has caused a loss of half a score of warships to Great Britain set aside treatises on that score and they are now accepted as the strongest defense available, and naval experts now say that a submarine flotilla convoyed by a modern dreadnought is invaluable to any country.

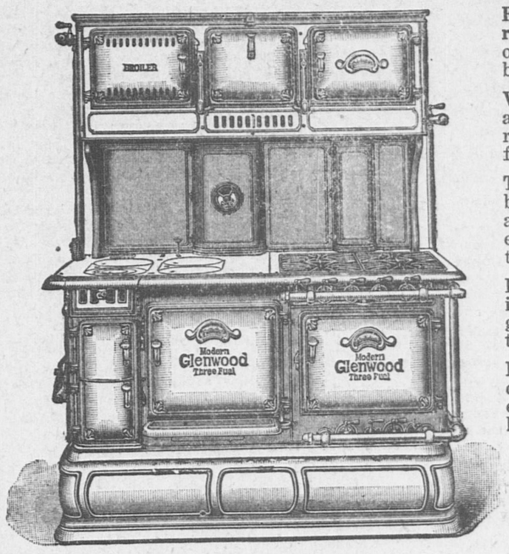

Virtue of Peanuts.

The oil of the peanut has a quieting effect on the pneumogastric nerve, the largest nerve supplying the stomach. Many nervous persons who like peanuts and do not know why, like them for this reason. They quiet the nerves of the stomach. These persons should eat a few fresh roasted peanuts after each hearty meal, as many nervous conditions are due to an irritation of the pneumogastric nerve, and the peanut oil acts as a sedative to this nerve. Of course the nuts must be crisp and well chewed and not too many taken. To get the best sedative effect a handful of the hot peanuts should be eaten just before retiring. This presupposes that the powers of elimination are in good repair. The peanut, a member of the pulse family, is nutritious and would clog the system if not eaten correctly, as it is almost equal to meat.—Philadelphia Ledger.

ICAMPBELL

"Take for instance the School Board, which is one of the most efficient organizations of its kind in Massachusetts. Did you ever know of a single instance where the Mayor of this city was working in perfect harmony with it? On the contrary they have been antagonistic even Without it there can be no organization that is worth a snap. though this department is completely out of the jurisdiction of the Mayor.

"Constant bickering and antagonism on the part of the Mayor hasn't helped the efficiency of the school system. But thank heavens the public have chosen well, and despite the ill will of our chief executives and members of the City Council, the school system in Quincy is a highly efficient one, and the school board could not be improved on. When I am Mayor of Quiucy I am going to do everything within my limited power to assist the School Board. I will co-operate with them at every opportunity that presents itself.

"It has been called to my attention that the Water department run behind $40,000 during the past year. What was the cause of it? Was this department running at its highest state of efficiency or did it lack co-operation, organization and system? I am inclined to believe in the latter reasons.

"Every citizen here has in mind some street or road in Quincy that has gone to rack and ruin because of the lack of attention. This is due to a lack of co-operation in the Street department. Good roads are built and when they begin to wear the men who are paid to report such matters are out of sympathy with the head of their department or fail utterly to co-operate with him, and the result is that a good road becomes a very bad one in a short time. If the Street department was thoroughly organized, and was a harmonious machine, with everyone pulling together, there wouldn't be any need of such conditions. If there was co-operation in that department the road would have been carefully watched, and when it first showed signs of excessive wear it would have been repaired before it had gone too far. It is only another instance of the need of a business administration.

"Something like $800,000 is disbursed annually in Quincy yet I find that there is no systematic method of purchasing goods for the city. Is it any wonder that the city debt is climbing with such a state of affairs existing? Think of the money that could be saved for Quincy with the installation of some system in this department. If I am elected Mayor I promise you that the first things that I will do is to appoint a highly efficient purchasing agent, who knows how to buy things at a cost that any merchant pays. Believe me there will be some system, organization and co-operation in this particular deparement when I am the chief executive of the city.

"The more I delve into the affairs of our city government the more I become convinced that there is a good ten hour a day job waiting for me in the Mayor's office. If the work can't be done in a ten-hour day I will be on the job fifteen hours if necessary.

"My opponents say that I am too busy a man to devote the time necessary to conduct the affairs of the city. That is a confession on their part. They admit that I am qualified to run the job, but claim that I haven't got the time to spare. They were never so mistaken in all their lives as my private business organization is so perfected I am at liberty to give Quincy my whole and undivided time if it is needed for an economical, efficient, business administration."

Alexander Falconer was the chairman of the meeting. He introduced A. L. Stinson, who gave one of his characteristic forceful talks.

Alexander Cowe gave an interesting talk on his reasons for supporting Mr. Campbell, John L. Hamilton told of Mr. Campbells business capacity and urged that he be allowed to give Quincy some of it. Charles W. Bailey, said that it was in the charter that the executive powers were invested with the Mayor, and for that reason a man of Mr. Campbell's type should be elected for as far as he could observe he was the only candidate in sight with executive ability.

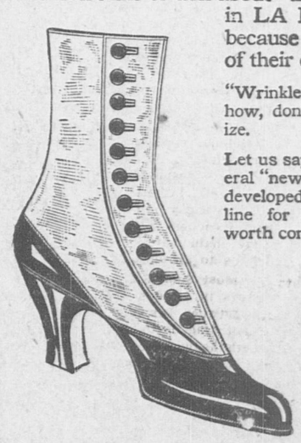

DISTRICT COURT.

Margaret Kelley was sentenced to one month in the house of correction for drunkenness at Quincy.

Abdul Hassan and Modene Abdul were arrainged for robbery at Quincy. Cases continued in $1000 bonds until Saturday.

—Throughout the National forests the rangers are posting the roads with permanent guide signs which tell distances and directions, especially at forks and cross-roads. The signs are usually put up in the winter when other work tends to be light. On some forests the rangers go on snow-shoes, dragging loaded sleds and nail the signboards to the roadside trees.

QUINCY HIGH REVERE HIGH

Quincy High school faces Revere at the Merrymount oval on Friday afternoon and expects to present a much stronger offense than they have exhibited this year. New plays are being perfected to supplement the mass formations.

One of the most encouraging signs is the enthusiasm of the players which has been communicated to the student body. The first manifestation of the school support was at Milton on Friday when nearly 400 attended the annual clash of Milton and Quincy.

Parodies to the air of "Sit down you're rocking the boat" and other popular songs have been learned, and will be sung under the direction of Reggie Gay, cheer leader.

DiSenso will probably be pulled from the squad for a few games and Gilliatt and Arthur substituted in his place.

NEW TEAM IN LEAGUE

Treasurer's Office Win in Shipyard Bowling

Three matches in the Fore River league were rolled at the Coliseum alleys Monday evening and there was plenty of enthusiasm but light pinfall. The team representing the Treasurer's office at the shipyard made its debut and incidentally was party to one of the most spectacular matches of the season.

The Treasurers office team had the N department as opponents and took the first string by three points, while they added 18 more as a result of the second string. The third string was a tie and the total gave the maiden rollers three more than the N department boys and the entire four points.

DON'T IMPOSE ON YOUR NEWSPAPERS.

Political candidates who do not use the advertising columns, should not expect the newspapers to report in detail all their little rallies.

Advance publicity for entertainments, dances, campaigns etc., is advertising, and newspapers should be recompensed.

Don't send printed programs (printed out of town) to the Daily Ledger, just to get an advance notice. It is like waving a red rag in front of a bull.

We appreciate invitations to entertainments and gatherings, but free advertising should not be expected in advance even if a ticket is sent.

Be loyal to your friend, the newspaper, and see that it is given fair play.

QUINCY GIRLS DEFEATED.

The East Boston Girls team defeated the Quincy Girls bowling club team at the Wardwell alleys on Monday evening in an interesting match. The visitors garnered all the glory, the high single, 95, being made by Miss Backman and the high total, 254, going to Mrs. Walsh. Mrs. Moran, anchor of the local quintette, who missed equalling the worlds recod a week ago was unable to pass the 83 mark. Another match will be rolled next week.

AN INDIAN MARATHON.

Remarkable Speed and Endurance of a Noted Mohave Runner.

In the early days of Ehrenberg, Ariz., a man was frightfully burned by kerosene. There was no physician and no drug store in the town, and so a noted Mohave runner who lived near by was hastily engaged to run to Fort Yuma, a government post directly across the Colorado river from the present town of Yuma.

The distance from Ehrenberg to Fort Yuma, as the crow flies, is sixty miles. By the shortest trail that the Indian could take it was at least seventy-five miles, and he had to swim the river once each way. The Indian was to get $10 for the trip and $10 additional if he returned in twenty-four hours. He prepared quickly for the undertaking and disappeared down the trail.

Within twenty-four hours he was back in Ehrenberg, bringing with him the packages of medicine for which he had been sent. Each package bore the labels of the Yuma dispensary. There was no living being along the trail between the two places from whom he could have obtained any assistance whatever. That Indian ran 150 miles in less than twenty-four hours over a barren, stony desert, interspersed with deep, dry gulches and ravines, in and out of which he was forced to climb, and in addition he swam the Colorado river twice.

When he got his $20 he bought some of his favorite food, crawled into the shelter of some mesquite trees, ate and slept alternately for two days and then reappeared in perfect condition.—From A. M. Welles' "Reminiscent Ramblings."

A TRAGIC EXPERIMENT.

How a Husband Tried to Cure His Wife's Fear of Pythons.

Concerning pythons, the following is a true story: A young lady in England for a long time resisted her lover's entreaties to go out to India with him as his wife. She had a horror of the wild animals she believed she might encounter there, especially serpents. At length, however, after he had issued a sort of ultimatum, she consented to accompany him. She did not, however, leave her fears behind her and lived in constant terror of some day meeting what she so intensely feared. Her husband did his best to laugh her fears away, but without avail. Then he resolved to try more drastic means.

A huge python was killed in the neighborhood of his bungalow. Without telling his wife anything about it he ordered the reptile to be brought into the drawing room and coiled up as if asleep on the hearth rug. Then he went out and called his wife, telling her to go into the drawing room and that he would join her in a few minutes. Soon after he heard a dreadful scream. "That will cure her of her fear of serpents," he smiled to himself and purposely delayed his entry. When at last he went into the drawing room he saw his wife lying dead on the floor, and coiled around her was another huge python, the mate to the one that lay dead on the hearth rug.—St. James' Gazette.

Jewish Flags.

The Zionists adopted a flag made up of a white ground with a blue horizontal stripe on each side and the shield of David in the center.

In reference to the direction from the book of Numbers, "Every man of the children of Israel shall pitch by his own standard, with the ensign of their father's house," the Midrash explains that the emblems and colors corresponded to the twelve precious stones set in the breast plate of the high priest. The colors for the different tribes were as follows: Reuben, red; Simeon, green; Levi, tricolor—white, black and red; Judah, sky blue; Issachar, black; Zebulyn, white; Dan, blue; Gad, gray; Naphtali, wine color; Asher, pearl color; Ephraim and Manasseh, jet black; Benjamin, all the above colors combined.—Philadelphia Press.

The Pipe of War.

There is hardly a country in the world where the pipe is not smoked in one form or another. In many villages of the northwest provinces of India are to be found public hookahs for the use and comfort of travelers. Every one has heard of the North American's pipe of peace. General Blucher's pipe smoking was of a very different character. He appointed a man to the post of "pipe master," whose duty it was to fill a long clay pipe and hand it to the general before every engagement. Blucher would then enjoy a few puffs, give back the pipe and gallop into the firing line.

The Cleverest.

Willy—You see, it was this way. They were all three so dead in love with her and all so eligible that to settle the matter she agreed to marry the one who should guess the nearest to her age. Arthur—And did she? Willy—I don't know. I know that she married the one who guessed the lowest.

Two Views.

"I put my reliance in the wisdom of the plain people," said Senator Sorghum.

"But suppose the plain people do not happen to agree with you?"

"Then I refuse to be influenced by the clamor of the thoughtless crowd."—Washington Star.

Poor Papa!

"I am not at all certain," said the father, "that my daughter loves you sufficiently to warrant me in intrusting her to your keeping for life."

"Well," replied the young man, "perhaps you haven't had the same advantages for observing things that I have."

COUNCILLOR GUY

Dedham, candidate for Congress from the 14th district; John H. Shea of Milton, last year a candidate for the Democratic nomination of Senator; Attorney James Kehoe of Boston; George W. Hubbard, a Brockton shoe workers leader; Representative Proctor of Randolph, who is opposing Senator Langelier for reelection; George W. Anderson, recently appointed district attorney by President Wilson; and Representative Michael T. Sullivan, and Councilman Daniel T. Corcoran, candidates for the Legislature.

Charles W. Guy, armed with his peach colored campaign placard made his first speech in 30 years. He said his last was when Ben Butler was chosen, and he allowed he probably wouldn't make another in 30 years.

He started business with Charlie Howland telling him he could make a go of it, and said the good Father Francis gave it his blessing, and spread as it were, the mantle of charity over it all. "I prospered" said Mr. Guy, "and now my son-in-law runs the business." He told of life on the farm in early boyhood, and mentioned the patches he wore on his clothing, mostly his trousers, and thanked the Republicans, Progressives and Democrats.

Pointing to his card where there is a fac-simile of a letter from Gov. Walsh high praising him, Mr. Guy said Gov. Walsh is the finest Governor we ever had. Some say "but his religion!" but I never knew what it was. Might be Unitarian or Congregational. He never told me. Now Eddie Barry, who is lieutenant governor, the smartest lawyer in the state, told me his religion, first thing he did tell me.

Folks all said when Charlie Guy got to the Council he would pardon every one in State Prison, but he didn't do it. Councillor Alexander McGregor, a stanch Republican, said I am all right, and that I am honest. Well, anything that's right is right, and anything that isn't aint, that's all there's 'bout it. Abe Lincoln was the best Democrat we ever had and most of his generals were Democrats too. So's Wilson is a good Democrat, and and so are his helpers.

Mr. Guy, who is 70 years, old said he didn't drink or smoke but that he enjoyed the work. He said "I like the Council and they like me. I have to work a little for my money, but i thank you for the privilege of getting it." Prolonged applause.

The Attorney General said: "As Attorney General during the past year I have refused to be awed by corporate greatness, or impressed by corporate wealth. In the interpretation and administration of the laws there are many opportunities to twist the law this way and that and to resort to technicalities. Where some Attorneys General might have twisted the law in the interest of big aggregations of capital, have used technicalities to serve the big corporations and have neglected the cases which bore on the wealthy, I have endeavored to look at law matters from a human angle and have always been concerned with obtaining the greatest good for the greatest number.

Representative Michael T. Sulivan viciously attacked the record of Edward J. Sandberg and stated he had deliberately violated the confidence reposed in him by the district

Charles W. Proctor accused Langelier of stealing the Progressive nomination and then refusing to give it up. He proceeded to flay his labor record and votes against other measures.

It was the first speech of Councilman Corcoran before a large and enthusiastic crowd and he warmed up to the occasion. In his remarks he said his position had been questioned by a number of citizens as to where he stood on the abolition of grade crossings and as to whether or not he would favor a foot bridge across the tracks at Norfolk Downs.

In reply he said he was unalterably opposed to allowing the passage of people at grade, and favored the careful study of the grade crossing proposition. He said he was prepared to say he would favor a sane, safe, sensible, depression plan, because he believed depression better than elevation from the standpoint of physical Quincy as well as to uplift the value of land along the railroad tracks, developed or undeveloped. The question of cost should have an important bearing on the settlement of the question.

TRIP THROUGH WONDERLAND

City Union of Kings Daughters Enjoy Travel

About 100 members of the Kings Daughters and a few friends enjoyed a rare evening Monday night when the City Union of Kings Daughters were guests of the Charitable Tens Society of the First Parish church in the Unitarian chapel.

At the brief business meeting at 5.30, Mrs. Harry Stevens of Wollaston presided and was re-elected president with Miss Florence Sabean as secretary and treasurer. It was voted to have a roll call later.

At 6 o'clock a salad supper was served in the dining room by Charitable Tens, there being four or more kinds of delicious salads served with rolls. Cake, pies and coffee completed the feast.

Returning to the chapel there was a very interesting program, which opened with a hymn. Rev. A. L. Hudson read the Scripture and offered prayer. During the evening a quartette from Unity circle sang three selections. They were down for only two, but so popular were they that there was an encore. They sang "I'm but a stranger here." "Shandon bells," and "Little Pappoose." Mrs. I. W. Sneath of Wollaston gave a memorial address in tribute to a personal friend, Mrs. Mary Lowe Dickinson, the founder of the Kings Daughters, who died June 8, this year. She was a gifted woman and elevated the literature of the order.

Miss Beulah Collett sang two beautiful solos:—"Absent" and "Good night, little girl, good night." Miss Emma Savil read the poem entitled "Coming."

Mrs. Victor E. Miller of Unity circle, who will edit the Kings Daughters number of the Quincy Daily Ledger, November 11, told of her plans and asked co-operation both in subscriptions and advertising. Indications point to a grand success.

The treat of the evening was the illustrated lecture by Mrs. Arthur Ropes of Wollaston on the Wonderland of America." With Mr. Ropes at the lantern, the beauties of Yellowstone Park and the Yosmite were admirably presented and delighted the audience. The coaches, the hotels, the geysers, the craters, the scenery, the bears, the waterfalls, the formations, etc., etc., were illustrated, the colored slides being loaned by the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific R. R. Companies.

The following circles were largely represented: Whatsoever of Wollaston, Reapers of Christ church, Unity of Quincy, and the Charitable Tens.

LAND COURT.

To Mary E. Nightingale, Mary A. Desmond, Abe Lahage, William M. Prime, Esther F. Gesmer, Meyer Gesmer, Mary A. Gerrior, Preston P. Kittredge, Edwin Kittredge and Henry P. Kittredge of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, and said Commonwealth; any heirs, devisees, or legal representatives of Jeremiah T. Fenno, late of Milton, in said County of Norfolk, deceased; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Emma F. Taylor and Elizabeth A. Thurlow, of Boston, in the County of Suffolk, and said Commonwealth, to register and confirm their title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated on Germain Avenue, formerly known as Madison Avenue, in said Quincy, and comprising lots numbered 196, 197, 198 and 199 as shown on a plan entitled Plan of lots belonging to the Quincy Park Land Company situated in said Quincy, dated October 10, 1895, McClintock & Fields, Surveyors, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Plan Book 17, Plan 798, bounded and described as follows:—

Northeasterly on lot No. 195 on said plan 100 feet; Southeasterly on said Germain Avenue 80 feet; Southwesterly by lot No. 200 on said plan 100 feet; and Northwesterly by land of owners unknown 80 feet. Containing according to said plan 2000 square feet of land, more or less.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the second day of November A. D. 1914, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this ninth day of October in the year nineteen hundred and fourteen.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Superior Court. Norfolk, ss.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court next to be holden at Dedham within and for the county of Norfolk:

Respectfully libels and represents Edwin J. Foster of Quincy in said county that he was lawfully married to Fannie B. Foster now of Chicago, Illinois at Waterloo, Wisconsin on the 19th day of December A. D. 1871, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Fannie B. Foster has never lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth but the said libellant has lived and resided in this Commonwealth for more than five consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations but the said Fannie B. Foster being wholly regardless of the same at said Chicago in the month of June A. D. 1910, utterly deserted him and has continued such desertion from that time to the date hereof, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Fannie B. Foster.

Dated the thirtieth day of September A. D. 1914.

EDWIN J. FOSTER.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Norfolk, ss. Superior Court.

On the foregoing Libel, it is ordered that the Libellant give notice to the said Fannie B. Foster the Libellee, to apear before the Justices of this Court, to be holden at Dedham, within and for said County, on the first Monday of December next, by causing an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, to be published once in a week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper printed at Quincy in the County of Norfolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of December next, and further, by sending through the mail, as soon as may be, by a registered letter addressed to the last known residence of the said Fannie B. Foster an attested copy of said Libel, and of this order thereon, that the said Fannie B. Foster may then and there show cause why the prayer of said Libel should not be granted.

By the Court,
LOUIS A. COOK, Clerk.
October 10, A. D. 1914.

AWFUL CARNAGE AMONG TROOPS

Terrible Picture Drawn by Newspaper Correspondent

MANY ARE DYING UNNOTICED

Reckless Adventures by Armored Trains and Airmen In Belgium—Shell Fire, Dynamite and Ambuscades Have No Terror For Them—Machine Gun Master In Great War

London, Oct. 27.—The correspondent of the London Daily News, who has been in an armored train to the banks of the Yser, gives a good description of the battle in the northwest. He says:

The battle rages along the Yser with frightful destruction of life. Air engines, sea engines and land engines death-sweep this desolate country vertically, horizontally and transversely.

Through it the little frail human engines crawl and dig, walk and run, skirmishing, charging and blundering in little individual fights and tussles, tired and puzzled, ordered here and there, sleeping where they can, never washing, and dying unnoticed.

A friend may find himself firing on a friendly force, and few are to blame. Now a bridge blown up by one side is repaired by the other; it is again blown up by the first, or left as a death trap till the enemy is actually crossing.

Actions by armored trains, some of them the most reckless adventures, are attempted daily. Each day accumulates an unwritten record of individual daring feats, accepted as part of the daily work. Day by day our men push out on these dangerous explorations, attacked by shell fire, in danger of cross-fire, dynamite and ambuscades, bringing a priceless support to the threatened lines.

As the armored train approaches the river under shell fire, the ear cracks with constant thunder of guns aboard. It is amazing to see the angle at which the guns can be swung. And overhead the airmen are busy venturing to get some small fact of information.

We used to regard the looping of the loop of the Germans overhead as a hare-brained piece of impudent defiance to our infantry fire. Now we know it means early trouble for the infantry.

Beside us, as we crawl up snuffling the lines like dogs on a scent, grim trainloads of wounded wait soundlessly. Further up the line ambulances are coming slowly back. The bullets of machine guns begin to rattle on our armored coats. Shells we learn to disregard, but the machine gun is the master in this war.

Now we near the river at a flat country farm. The territory is scarred with trenches and it is impossible to say at first who is in them, so incidental and separate are the fortunes of this riverside battle.

The Germans are on our bank enfilading the lines of the allies, trenches. We creep up and the Germans come into sight out of the trenches, rush to the bank and are scattered and smashed. The allies follow with a fierce bayonet charge.

The Germans do not wait. They rush to the bridges and are swept away by the deadliest destroyer of all, the machine gun. The bridge is blown up, but who can say by whom?

Quickly the train runs back. "A brisk day," remarks the correspondent. "Not so bad," replies the officer. So the days pass.

VICTIM WAS ROBBED

Three Arrests In Connection With Murder at Worcester

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 27.—Louis Indecello, his wife, Jennie, and Auise Demarco were arrested here as they were about to board a train for Boston, because they were acting suspiciously.

Later investigation showed that Michael Perno had been killed by three shots in the back and thrown out of the window at the home of Indecello, after being robbed of his money belt containing $120.

Indecello was then held on a charge of murder and the others as material witnesses.

CAMPAIGNERS BADLY HURT

Bursting of Tires Results In Serious Automobile Accident

North Adams, Mass., Oct. 27.—Secretary of State Donahue, Senator Mack of North Adams and Thomas Riley of Pittsfield, candidate for county commissioner, were severely injured when they were hurled from an auto in which they were riding to attend a rally at Adams.

Donahue has a dislocated left shoulder and a broken left arm. Riley's condition is serious, as it is feared he has a fracture of the skull, and shortly after he was taken to a hospital a priest was called and his sister and wife summoned from Pittsfield. Mack sustained a broken left arm.

Morton H. Burdick, candidate for congress, Representative Hall, John O'Hearn, a Pittsfield newspaper man, and Harry Robinson, the chauffeur, also sustained injuries. The accident was caused by the bursting of two tires of the automobile.

RED FLAG MUST GO

Law Against It Upheld by Massachusetts Supreme Court

Boston, Oct. 27.—The constitutionality of the law which prohibits the carrying of a red flag in parades was upheld in the decision of the full bench of the supreme court of Massachusetts in the case of John Karnoven, arrested at Fitchburg for carrying a red flag in a Socialist parade.

Chief Justice Rugg, in his report, declared that the statute included all flags, the dominant color of which was red, and quoted dictionaries as to the "revolutionary and terroristic" associations, historically, of the red flag, adding that the law "cannot be said to interfere unreasonably with the liberty of a citizen."

OLD AND PENNILESS

Flower Admits Fraud After Evading Arrest For Years

New York, Oct. 27.—Dr. Richard C. Flower, promoter of mining enterprises, who, after being indicted here on a charge of larceny growing out of his transactions, evaded arrest from 1903 until he was caught in Toronto a few days ago, pleaded guilty to the indictment charging him with grand larceny. He was remanded until Oct. 29 for sentence.

Broken in health, old and penniless, the man who is said to have made millions through mining swindles, declared he did not care to fight conviction any longer.

CRACK A NEW SAFE

Burglars Break Into Postoffice and Get $1500 Worth of Loot

West Warren, Mass., Oct. 27.—Burglars broke into the West Warren postoffice and robbed the safe. Fifteen hundred dollars in stamps and coin was taken. The safe was a new one, bought a week ago because of the prevalence of robberies.

A week ago Sunday the safe in the Warren postoffice was blown and $150 in money and stamps taken.

WINS SUIT FOR $15,000

Damages Awarded Man Who Lost an Eye In Fuse Blowout

Dedham, Mass., Oct. 27.—For the loss of his right eye, Wilfred W. Davis of Brookline was awarded $15,000 damages by a jury in his suit for that amount against the Boston Elevated.

Davis was waiting for a car when a passing car blew out a fuse, particles of molten metal striking him.

Arkansas Negro Lynched

Newport, Ark., Oct. 27.—A mob lynched Howard Davis, a negro, a few minutes after Davis shot and killed City Marshal Payne. Two other negroes were pursued by a mob bent on lynching them.

Snowstorm In Michigan

Cadillac, Mich., Oct. 27.—Northern Michigan was visited by the first snowstorm of the year, the temperature dropping from 70 to 30 degrees in less than twelve hours.

MRS. CARMAN IS RELEASED

Alleged Slayer of Mrs. Bailey May Never Be Tried Again

$25,000 BAIL IS FURNISHED

Husband Is Absent as She Is Taken to Brooklyn For Action by Supreme Court—No Opposition to Her Release and She Returns to Her Home at Freeport

New York, Oct. 27.—Mrs. Florence C. Carman, who was on trial in Mineola all last week for the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, was released on $25,000 bail by Justice Kelby in the Kings county supreme court in Brooklyn. Accompanied by her attorneys, she started immediately for her home in Freeport.

Mrs. Carman had completely recovered from her disappointment when the jury announced its failure to reach an agreement on her guilt or innocence of the shooting of Mrs. Bailey. She motored from the jail at Mineola with Sheriff Petit. The sheriff escorted her directly to the chambers of Justice Kelby, Attorneys Levy and Uterhart, who assisted John J. Graham in the trial, accompanying them.

Within a few minutes Mrs. Carman stepped from the courthouse, free to return to her home. She was driven directly to her home at Freeport, where Dr. Carman, her father and mother and daughter awaited her.

Neighbors of the Carman family signed the bail bond on which Mrs. Carman was released. They are Ernest Randall, a merchant, and Smith Cox, a coal dealer.

District Attorney Smith represented the state in the proceedings before Kelby, but made no opposition to the granting of bail. It was evident Mrs. Carman did not believe there would be any opposition to her release, as she carried a bag containing her belongings from the jail with her, and was prepared to go direct to her home.

It is generally understood that she will not be tried again and that the case, so far as the state is concerned, is closed.

Dr. Carman did not make the trip to Brooklyn with his wife. Neither was he present when she was admitted to bail.

Before the party left the courthouse Levy said it was probable he would demand a new trial for his client in order that she might be vindicated. Mrs. Carman has maintained ever since her arrest that nothing short of a complete vindication would satisfy her.

PAUPERISM DECREASING

Encouraging Report From United States Census Bureau

Washington, Oct. 27.—Pauperism is decreasing in the United States, according to a census statement. "The ratio of almshouse paupers to population has steadily declined at every census since 1880," the census bulletin declared.

One-third of the paupers in almshouses in 1910 were under 55 years of age, and one-third 70 or over. The males outnumber the females two to one. Preponderance of paupers of foreign birth was also cited.

The ratio of pauperism among negroes and whites is about equal, population considered. It was also declared that the almshouse is rapidly becoming merely a temporary shelter, instead of a permanent home.

NO EXTRA SESSION

President Will Confer With Senators Concerning Legislation

Washington, Oct. 27.—President Wilson says he is not now thinking of calling for an extra session of congress in November, or after March 4. He declared that shortly after election he will call into conference some leading senators to map out the legislative program of the winter session.

His belief is that it will take until February to dispose of appropriation bills. Then bills already passed by the house, or demanding early attention by reason of their importance, will be considered in the order of their importance.

KILLED IN HIS HOME

Police Say Alleged Slayer Was Attentive to Victim's Wife

Leominster, Mass., Oct. 27.—John Joseph, 41, was shot and killed in the kitchen of his home. The police arrested John Roeero, 25, on a murder charge. He was captured only after being chased for over half a mile.

According to the story told the police Roeero has been attentive to Joseph's wife. Joseph quit his work earlier than usual. On going to his home he found Rogero there. Roeero is said to have fired the shot that killed Joseph as the latter was upbraiding him.

"Is your husband a confirmed party man?" asked the smiling candidate.

"Laws, no! He's quit dancin' and don't even attend his lodge reg'lar," answered Mrs. Wayback.—Dallas News.

FIRST SNOW OF THE SEASON

The showers promised for Saturday and Sunday arrived last night. The weather was moderately mild all day Monday which continued into the evening. During the night however the wind freshened considerable and the temperature dropped and with the dropping temperature came rain. It was in the early morning that the rain came and it fell good and hard for some time, and the high wind which accompanied the rain whistled around the corners, a reminder that winter is near at hand. The storm abated along about daylight but the chill in the air continued. Between 7 and 8 o'clock there was a little snow Continued stormy weather is predicted for today with clearing weather tonight, but with cold northwest winds

QUINCY WOLLASTON

A pleasing concert was given at the Wollaston Congregational church Monday evening by the Ladies Mozart quartet of Boston. The program included several selections by the quartet and songs by Mrs. Bertha Putney Dudley and Miss Mabel Banks Wilson. Part two of the program included a musical sketch, entitled "Aunt Bridget from Paris" which was written especially for the quartet by Erastus Osgood. While the talent in the sketch was all right the acting did not fully measure up to expectations. There was an attendance of about 150 present and the concert was greatly enjoyed.

Merrymount lodge, Knights of Pythias, has outgrown its present quarters and will meet hereafter in Colonial hall. The opening meeting will be held Wednesday evening when the rank of page will be conferred on two candidates.

The Wollaston Y. P. R. U. will hold a Hallowe'en dance in Alpha hall, this evening. This is the first of a series of five social evenings. The matrons are Mrs. Carl G. Horst, Mrs. Frank A. Page, and Miss Simmons.

CITY HALL HAPPENINGS

As usual on Monday evenings, the offices of the City Clerk, City Treasurer and Tax Collector were open from 7 to 8 o'clock.

In the City Clerks office the Registrars of Voters were busy looking over nomination papers for the City primaries. At the office of the Treasurer, City Treasurer Curtis was busy taking in money for water bills Although there were six gangs out Monday shutting off water, there were some delinquents who were of course not reached, and many of these lost no time in coming to City Hall and paying up, thus saving themselves $2 which it would cost them to have the water turned on again, in addition to the amount of their water rate. The Water office was also open Monday evening so that Miss Gavin the chief clerk could be consulted in case there was anything about the water bill that wanted explanation.

In the Tax Collectors office, Collector O'Hara and a clerk were busy taking in money for tax bills. Although many are far from being satisfied with their tax bills this year, the appeal of Mayor Whiton to the citizens to pay up, had good effect. The taxpayers have come to realize that but little can be done this year in the way of adjustment, and they are looking forward to the man who shall occupy the Mayors chair next year to right valuations and make them more just.

CANDIDATE McCALL COMING

Will Speak at Music Hall Tomorrow Night

A large attendance is assured at the Republican rally to be held in Music hall Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Republican City Committee. A good array of speakers are announced among whom are Hon. Samuel W. McCall, Republican candidate for Governor; Harry Howard, candidate for Congressman; Guy A. Ham, candidate for Councillor; Louis F. R. Langelier, candidate for Senator; Charles A. Ericson and Edward J. Sandberg, candidates for Representatives, and John F. Merrill, candidate for County Commissioner.

GENERAL ALARM

nest of cottages directly in the rear of the Squantum Inn.

The first alarm, sounded at 10.03 from Box 83, called the apparatus at Atlantic, and the auto combination and tractor steamer from the Central station. When Chief Billings, who rode to the fire on the auto chemical from the Central station, arrived at the scene, he found three cottages of the group on fire, and with a 35 mile wind blowing off shore, threatening to spread the fire to the other buildings, he deemed it wise to summons more help. At 10.18 a general alarm was sounded, and brought the apparatus from Wollaston as well as Combination No. 1 and Combination, Hook and Ladder No. 1 from the Central station. By the time they arrived however the fire was under control, and Chief Billings sent the extra pieces of apparatus from the Central station back to quarters. A few minutes later the tractor steamer was sent back, and by 11.30 all of the apparatus was homeward bound.

It gave the tractor steamer the longest run which it has had since it went into commission. Driver James Connell was driving the apparatus and he sent it through City Square at about a twenty-mile gate, which it will be readily realized was considerably faster time than the three horses formerly attached to the apparatus made. Another advantage was that there were no tired horses at the end of the six mile run from drawing a five-ton piece of apparatus.

The fire was confined to the Standish avenue cottages and started in a partially completed cottage owned by Paul Hersey, which for the past two years is said to have been used for the storage of paints and varnishes. The building was burned down to the foundation and the loss is estimated at about $800.

The cottage home, permanently occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gregory, on the next lot, took fire and met the same fate. The cottage was valued at $1,100 and furniture fixtures and jewelry destroyed are estimated at $1000.

The next cottage house, owned by John Hoag, and unoccupied at present, was burned on one end only, but was gutted inside. That loss is estimated at $500.

When the fire in the cottage of Mr. Hersey was discovered by Mrs. Ella Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory, it had completely eaten out the centre of the house. She summoned Herman Berghaus of the Squantum Inn who sounded the alarm and stated afterward that the Atlantic apparatus made the run in seven minutes flat.

As the bells and whistles on the circuit signalled the call for assistance, the flames from the Hersey house communicated to the Gregory house, and when the Atlantic apparatus arrived both houses were roaring furnaces, and the third had commenced to catch. Several lines were laid into each cottage, but the Hersey and Gregory cottages were doomed. Water prevented the destruction of the Hoag cottage.

The high wind which swept across from Squaw Rock and the bay fanned the flames and carried sparks and glowing embers into the very centre of the Bayside colony. The need of more men became apparent shortly after Chief Billings arrived, and without hesitancy he sent in the general. The valiant work of the men on the scene however had such wonderful results an all-out was possible at 10.35.

A rigid investigation as to the start of the fire will probably be made. According to what was stated by people who gathered there, Mr. Hersey said he had been in the house half an hour before the fire was discovered. He is said to have remarkd that h had been smoking and that lighted tobacco probably caused the blaze.

Four year old Freddie Gregory and three year old Adelaide Perkins were carried from the Gregory home by Mrs. Perkin, none the worse for their experience. Both were in the kitchen when the fire broke out.

The young men living in the community formed a fire brigade and took what furnture they could from the Gregory and Hoag homes. A falling roof put an end to their efforts. The young men were Edward Carlson, Harry McCarthy, James Allen, Joseph Rouleau, Herbert Riley and Ernest Goreham.

QUINCY POINT

Sunday evening the Christian Endeavor Society of the Washington Street Congregational church planned an attendance campaign beginning netx Sunday and ending with the first Sunday in January. The society was divided into two teams the Crimson, with Mrs. S. C. Lang as captain and the Blue with Homer Melville as captain. The committee in charge of the campaign is Mrs. C. McNeil, Zelma Thayer and Herbert Lawrence. It is expected that the attendance Sunday evenings will be greatly increased during these two months, and that finally the membership will be helped. The young people were enthusiastic and each took up the plan with a determination to make their team win. The losing team will give a social to the winning team in January.

The alarm from Box 72 at 3.20 Monday afternoon was for a grass fire off Winter street, near the woods. There was no loss.

bank one dollar a month, and you may own any number of shares, from one to twenty-five, which latter number is the limit for any one person. These shares "mature," as it is called, when they become worth $200 each, which takes about twelve years. That is to say, if you have been carrying five shares (five dollars a month,) the bank will, at the end of twelve years pay you $1000 in clean cash.

In the meantime, of you get tired of the scheme, and conclude that you will never have any use for savings, you can withdraw your deposits with a very moderate loss of interest. This is rarely done, however, as the habit of saving becomes easier with practice, and the fascination of the growing pile in the bank increases as the goal becomes nearer.

Moreover, if at any time you have a special temporary need of money, you may borrow your own deposits at the regular rate of interest without losing your standing as shareholder, provided you keep up your regular monthly payments—a most admirable feature.

Then there is a class of investors who are not exactly young fellows; men whose incomes allow them to carry a good many more than five or ten shares, but who prefer the co-operative shares to anything else as a safe and reasonably profitable investment. They do not have to grab the morning paper with feverish haste before they get their collars buttoned to see if their co-operative shares went up or down over night. They are dead sure that those shares will be worth a trifle more tomorrow morning, and every succeeding morning, than they were the day before.

Such investors plank in their $25 a month, which means a $5000 lump when the shares mature. Our bank has customers who never come to Quincy, but who send along their monthly $25 like clockwork; and we have Quincy depositors of the same class, who carry their twenty-five shares here, and a like amount in quite a number of neighboring co-operative banks, thus showing the preference of many shrewd and careful investors for the co-operative system over everything else.

Another equally important function of the co-operative is to assist and encourage home-builders. Space will not allow going into this matter in detail, but the gist of it is that any shareholder can borrow money on his home, either complete or to be built according to plans submitted, at the rate of $200 for each share owned; that is, a person owning five shares can borrow $1000 on desirable property, and under certain reasonable conditions. Any person desiring to own a home, and not yet seeing his way clear for such a venture, should call at the bank in the Adams building, where Treasurer Frank A. Reed will cheerfully explain all details, and everyone intending to take shares in the new series which is issued Nov. 4 should give notice at once, as it is an advantage for the shareholder to make his first payment on the day of issue.

Lincoln, 2; Willard, 0.

Washington swept the Hancocks of Merrymount Park Monday evening and scored 12 points through hard playing. During the first 14 minutes of the first period neither side scored. Washington then found the weak spots and made three goals. The second half they piled up nine more. The Lincoln-Willard contest was a close, hard fought game from the start.

The alarm from Box 39 at 10.10 Monday night was a false alarm.

At the closing session of the Young Men's Hebrew association convention at Lawrence on Monday, Miss Anna Grossman of Quincy was elected recording secretary of the newly organized Young Women's Hebrew association.

Abigail Adams Lodge No. 11, I. C. of A. is to hold a whist party in Dohles' hall next Tuesday evening.

An intoxicated man is thought to have sounded the false alarm from Box 39 at Plain and Liberty streets at 11.07 Monday evening which brought about the snapping of the rear axle on the auto of Chief Billing's just at it stopped at the box. In the machine were Chief Billings and Driver Richard Williams. The car was towed back to the Central station by the auto combination, and this morning was sent to the repair shop. It was put back in commission about five minutes after the first Squantum alarm sounded. The man at whom suspicion points was one of a party of slighly intoxicated men said to have been on their way home from a rally held in that vicinity in the interests of a candidate for political honors. Whether or not sufficient evidence has been gathered to warrant his arrest is not known.

Rev. G. W. Blackett preached last evening at the revival services at Atlantic Methodist church. Rev. G. M. Bailey is announced for tonight, and Rev. George H. Parkinson for tomorrow evening.

Charles Rhines, 55 years, well known in the Atlantic section, was found suffering from serious injuries in a barn on Walnut street this morning and was removed to his home on Old Colony street. Dr. M. T. Sweeney found severe bruises about the face and body, and an injury to the left arm and sent him to the Quincy City Hospital in the police ambulance. How Rhines sustained the injuries has not yet been ascertained by the police. He is said to have made some mention of an assault committed within a few days. That story howt ever fails to tally with his condition last night when seen by a Quincy patrolman. The police believe the injuries were sustained between Monday evening and this morning Rhines is resting comfortably.

At the Atlantic Methodist revival on Sunday eleven united with the church.

QUINCY SQUANTUM

All of the candidates for Mayor as well as candidates for the City Council have been invited to speak tonight at a meeting to be held by the Squantum Improvement society. The meeting will be held in the new Community House and each Mayoralty candidate will be allowed ten minutes in which to set forth his reasons why he should be nominated. It is probable that all the candidates who have filed nomination papers will accept the invitation. A similar meeting will be held by the Wollaston Park Improvement association next week Thursday evening at the Wollaston Yacht club house.

MAYOR WHITON DEMANDS AN APOLOGY

NO FOUNDATION FOR GRAFT CHARGES

Mayor Whiton Writes a Sharp Letter to John F. Fitzgerald of Boston

Will Not Stand For the Slanderous Remarks

Mayor Whiton received a letter from ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston on Tuesday, in reply to a letter from Mayor Whiton, asking if the published statements attributed to him about graft and mismanagement, in the City of Quincy were correctly reported, and if so demanding proof. The ex-Mayor while admitting that he uttered the statement, attempted to justify himself by reference to the report made by Expert Accountant Morse during the administration of ex-Mayor William T. Shea. The excuse was rather a lame one, and called for a volley of hot shot from Mayor Whiton which was embodied in the following reply sent to ex-Mayor Fitzgerald today:

Executive Department,
Quincy, October 28, 1914.

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:—Your letter of October 26th received, in reply to mine of an earlier date. I judge the remarks which you admit you are responsible for, were made on the authority of a newspaper "quotation." The name of the newspaper not being given.

As a matter of fact no special committee of the City of Quincy has ever reported a defalcation amounting to $92,051, or any other sum.

Back in 1910 Edwin S. Morse & Co., auditors, examiners, and accountants, examined the city finances, and from whose report I will quote you:

"You will thus clearly see that the present condition of the finances of your city is largely due to the careless manner in which the business of your city has been conducted in the past, and the easy-going manner in which accounts were kept until recent years. We do not believe that it is a condition which can be properly attributed to any particular earlier administration, but as merely a growth of the time before more careful accounting was considered necessary, and while no system is perfect, it is a fact that we have found little difficulty in arriving at accurate conclusions during the past two or three years. The greatest difficulty being found in years previous to that time."

Your accusations of mismanagement may possibly be true, and apply in a measure to all municipalities including Boston, but your slanderous remark in regard to graft is one that we will not stand for.

You apparently made the statement for political reasons, and for your information let me advise you that this city has been governed by Democrats as well as Republicans. Your remarks therefore as to graft and disrespect to our city were wholly without foundation, and for which I shall be glad to accept your apology.

Yours very truly,
Joseph L. Whiton,
Mayor.

Mr. Fitzgerald's letter was as follows:

Boston, Mass., Oct. 26, 1914.

Mr. Joseph L. Whiton, Acting Mayor of Quincy, Mass.

My Dear Sir:— In answer to your letter my statement was as follows:

"If I were to reply in kind to Mr. Cushing, I might find many examples of graft and mismanagement of finances in cities and towns which have been under Republican rule for many years. For example, Revere, Quincy Brookline, Taunton, Watertown, Hull and Norwood, and others which I might mention, are instances where either municipal corruption or mismanagement has been exposed within the past few years and in some of which men who stood high have been sent to jail."

My reason for bringing in Quincy as an instance of mismanagement, was in the following newspaper report of the findings of the committee of the Quincy City Council:

NEWSPAPER QUOTATION.

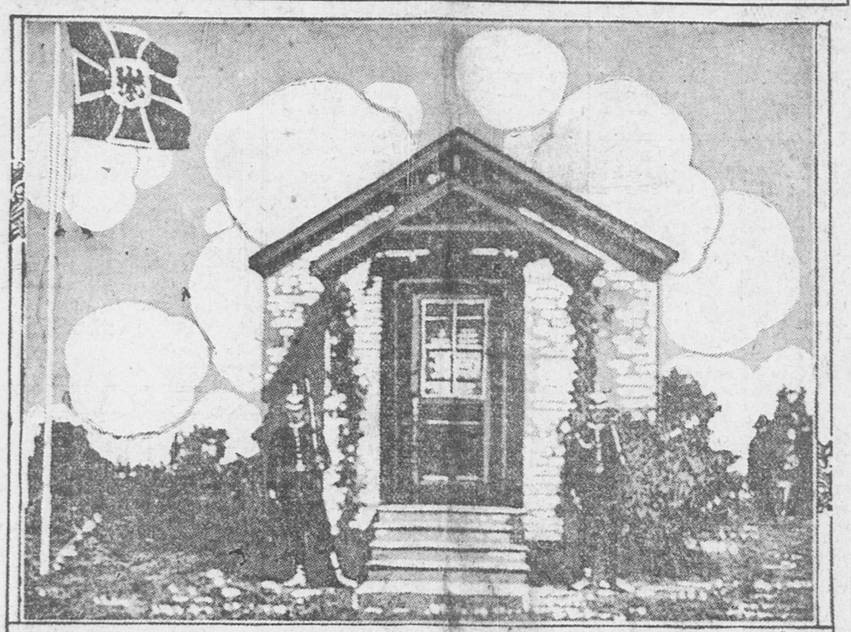

"Find $92,000 Shortage in Quincy Fund. Defalcations amounting to $92,051, have been discovered in the finances of Quincy by a special committee which has just reported to the City Council. The apparent losses are traced to errors in bookkeeping, and no actual disappearance of the city's funds was brought to light. The investigation was conducted in co-operation with the heads of departments. The committee recommended that the deficiencies be taken care of, so that they will not continue to be a permanent burden. The discrepancies found are as follows:

Assessor's Department	$33,853
Tax Collectors Department	8,435

Kaiser Wilhelm's Portable Bullet Proof House He Uses at the Front; Emperor and General Staff.

Photos by American Press Association.

The German kaiser makes his field headquarters in a portable asbestos and bullet proof house, shown in one of these pictures. This structure is equipped with all the comforts that it is possible to provide in the field. A strong guard is maintained constantly around the headquarters, and no one is allowed to come within a certain distance unless authorized. The emperor still maintains a general staff of nearly 300 officers, who are shown in the other picture around their leader. It has been reported that the kaiser is taking every precaution against assassination while at the front.

CANDIDATES HEARD AT SQUANTUM

Seven of the Mayoralty Men Speak Before Improvement Association

Six of Them Said They Were Sure of Election

Seven candidates seeking the office of Mayor, were arrayed together on the platform at the open meeting of the Squantum Improvement association at Squantum Tuesday night. In addition to the candidates for Mayor there were most of the candidates for Councilmen at large, the candidates for the City Council from Ward Six, candidates for school committee, congressman, senator and representative.

The meeting was held in the new Community House, and although it was a little late in starting there was plenty of enthusiasm once it was in progress. All of the candidates for Mayor were heartily welcomed, and each received about the same amount of applause. Of the seven candidates, for Mayor six stated that they were sure of election. The seventh man, Henry F. Tilden did not make any claims for election, but said that if the people wanted him he would be elected.

G. B. Bates came down with his arm full of signs, one of which was a reproduction of the table issued by the City Auditor, telling how much of every dollar collected was expended for interest, debt, etc. The second gave his platform.

These were placed on the wall back of the speakers and their appearance raised some protest. Rev. Mr. Davison speaking for some of the members of the association, stated that they would make it appear that the association favored one particular candidate while such was not the fact. Applause greeted his remarks and several shouted "Take them down."

In fact a motion that they be removed was made and seconded, but the chairman rather hesitated to put the motion. Mr. Bates said if they were not wanted he would take them down, at which a spectator shouted "go ahead and do it." Finally after some of the speakers said that they did not object they were allowed to remain.

John R. Nelson presided and ten minutes were allowed the speakers until the list of candidates for the council were reached when the limit was cut to five minutes.

Richard Olney, 2d, was the first speaker. He said that up to a few weeks ago he had been president of the Dedham Improvement society. He said that he was not going to talk on

This is the season for the husking parties. Red ears supplied at the corner grocery.

Some one asks what become of the girl who used to wear a warm scarf around her neck in cool weather. Well, just now she is wearing low necked dresses on the street and stopping into the druggist to buy some cough cure.

Some journalists headed up the reported destruction and fall of Antwerp bigger than the world's series ball game of the day before, but evidently they had not been in newspaper work very long.

Many people approve so heartily of the work of the Red Cross for war sufferers that they are willing to put in a nickle when the hat is passed.

If the man who edits the agricultural papers telling the farmer how to do things is real pleasant, the farmer may pick him up and give him a ride in his automobile.

FREEDOM OF DEBATE.

Many people say that money can buy anything. You can order a court decision or an election, just as you buy a suit of clothes. They say newspaper support is for sale on basis of advertising space. Also that college professors see a new light in matters of economics when donors come around with liberal views about endowment funds.

Maj. Wiener, an English graduate of Harvard, has just told that university that it will miss a gift of $10,000,000 from his estate, if it continues to harbor Prof. Munsterburg, who has been making such bitter attacks on the allies in the European war.

There are some things money can't buy. Even the most pathetic little rag of a country newspaper may have as much independence as the millionaire publisher. The editor's desk may be a dusty catchall of musty papers, his office unswept, his type battered. But that smoochy sheet where he speaks his editorial opinion is the one square foot on the planet where he is lord and master. Cash is no equivalent for his individuality. And the country editor has no monopoly of this independence.

Similarly a college plant and equipment may be a joke. The half-paid faculty may be rusty, seedy, threadbare. Or it may be an institution hoary with age and rich in art and architecture, yet needing millions to enable it to cope with modern life. Whatever the institution, it almost invariably cherishes its aloofness from the world of dollars and barter. It is one free spot where all opinions can contribute to the search of truth as the final standard of value.

The American people do not seem to sympathize much with Prof. Munsterburg's point of view. That is immaterial. Few of them would care to discipline him by depriving him of his job. It would have too obvious encouragement to the many interests that would find college opinion useful in their business.

FRENCH CLAIM ENEMY FORCED OVER FRONTIER

Said to Have Already Seized Several German Towns

MOVEMENT TO TAKE ALSACE AND LORRAINE

Solitary German Possession on River Meuse Seems Nearly Cut Off—Terrible Gaps In Invaders' Lines at Battle of Flanders Filled by Ten Thousand Austrians Rushed to the Front—British Flotilla Enables Allies to Move Forward Toward Ostend—Most Appalling Butchery of War Continues Along Yser River—Positive Orders From Kaiser That Calais Must Be Taken—Arras Is Blotted From the Map

London, Oct. 28.—Another section of French territory was freed of invaders when a French army, advancing in a northeasterly direction from Nancy, drove across the border into German Lorraine the hostile forces which had weeks ago seized their advanced positions under the watchful eyes of the kaiser.

No news since the Germans began their retreat after the battle of the Marne has so thrilled Paris as this announcement.

Frenchmen recalled that Tuesday was the anniversary of the capitulation of Metz in the Franco-Prussian war. Forty-four years after that unhappy event in French annals, German troops have been driven back in the direction of the lost city, an augury for the future that is being widely commented on in Paris.

Evidently the thousands of reinforcements that are being thrown into Belgium by the Germans have not made it necessary for the French to strip their lines in the east as relentlessly as have the Germans.

Germans Further Endangered

The advance from Nancy to the frontier has again seriously endangered the hostile force that is holding St. Mihiel on the right bank of the Meuse. With artillery commanding the road from St. Mihiel to Thiaucourt, and with Tuesday's offensive movement out of Nancy, the solitary German possession on the Meuse seems nearly cut off. The Berlin dispatches which speak of the isolation of Verdun and the expected fall of that stronghold are deemed incredible romances among military experts of Paris and London.

That the French movement to retake the lost provinces of Alsace and Lorraine is not a mere feint to compel the Germans to withdraw pressure against the channel ports is indicated by the fact that to the southeast of Nancy French troops are well within German territory in considerable strength at five or six widely separated points; that they have already seized several German towns near the boundary, and that the German garrison in Strassburg is busily engaged in preparing that formidable city for a possible siege.

The Battle In Belgium

In the meantime the conflict in southwestern Belgium, generally defined as the battle of Flanders, is raging with the same fury that has characterized the fighting for the last ten days. The importance of this smashing assault by the invaders is indicated by the arrival of at least 10,000 of the finest Austrian troops, the majority of them mountaineers from the Tyrol, who have been rushed to the front to fill the terrible gaps in the German lines.

Practically all of the Bavarians who had been engaged with the French on the Alsace boundary have been battling in Belgium for days, but in spite of these reinforcements the allied lines have not only held, but they have even begun to pry back the invaders.

The sluggish Yser, choked with bodies, has again been the scene of the most dangerous fighting. The British flotilla has reappeared on the coast and has enabled the allies to move forward a considerable distance in the direction of Ostend.

Terrible Slaughter

Near blackened Dixmude, where the invaders succeeded in forcing a crossing of the Yser, they have been held in their places, backed up against the river by the gallant little Belgian army. Hour by hour the butchery continues, the most appalling of the war, but although it seems impossible that it should last longer, both the Germans and the allies find it possible to throw reinforcements steadily into the embattled lines.

A few miles to the east the allies were able to push forward slightly toward Roulers. The British losses here and just across the boundary in France are said to have been frightful, but it is also maintained in London that the Germans have been losing more heavily, while at the same time they are being forced to give ground.

Many Unconfirmed Rumors

More rumors reached London Tuesday than in any previous day this month, but most of these could not be confirmed. One of these reports insists that the kaiser had given orders that Calais must be taken, no matter at what cost of lives. The cost has already been more than Germany can well afford to pay, and nowhere have they been able to make progress for the last forty-eight hours. The allies have now been able to "dig themselves in" with surprising skill, considering the flatness of the country, and it is the general opinion that the drive against the channel ports cannot be pressed much longer.

Little progress appears to have been made by either hostile force upon the line running north and south from the Belgian boundary to Roye, the nearest town to Paris still held by the Germans. From Berlin come dispatches which state that a considerable advance has been made in the direction of Arras, while press messages to London claim British progress to the east of Arras.

About all that is certain is that Arras has been practically blotted from the map by the artillery fire of the hostile armies. Days ago it was learned that the famous Hotel de Ville, one of the finest examples of its kind in France, had been destroyed, and now it is stated that the Krupp guns which continue to bombard the city have completed the ruin done in the last few weeks.

All Sides Claiming Victory

In the east, it is hard to say what is happening, for the only respect in which the official reports of the contending nations agree is that the other side is lying.

Germany says that Warsaw is menaced by the German advance, while Petrograd asserts that the Russians have driven the kaiser's men fifty or 100 miles to the west and are pushing them either to Berlin or into the sea. Austria claims victories, and Russia makes counter claims regarding the operations in Galicia.

From such place-names as are given in the dispatches, however, it does not appear that much change has been made in the battle lines. Fighting is again going on near Przemysl. The Servians have been defeated in Bosnia.

Albania is again becoming a centre of interest. Italian sailors are said to have occupied Avlona, and Greek soldiers are entering the Epirus. What will happen, or what may happen, can only be matters of conjecture. Anything is possible.

Germany denies that plans are under way for an attack on Italy.

Fully 400,000 French soldiers are wounded and are now in hospitals, according to a Berlin estimate. Another dispatch figures the German losses at the present time as 10,000 a day, and a Russian report says that Austrian wounded number at least 300,000.

CHURCHILL ATTACKED

Efforts to Hold Him Responsible For Failure at Antwerp

The enemies of Winston S. Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, are making the most of the futile attempt to relieve Antwerp and the consequent loss by internment in Holland of 2000 marines and naval volunteers.

Led by the London Morning Post and some members of parliament, the pack is in full cry, aiming evidently to humiliate Churchill and to tie his hands for the future.

This attack on Churchill, launched at a time when England most needs solidarity, has gained momentum, despite semi-official statements that Churchill can in no wise be held responsible for the Antwerp disappointment, since he is only technically supreme in naval affairs and since the entire cabinet is responsible for his acts.

Esther F. Anderson to the Evening High school.

Charles Thompson to the Evening Drawing school.

Esther Lyman to the Evening Dressmaking school.

Samuel Crosby to the Evening Industrial school.

Frederick V. Kolb to the Evening Industrial school.

William S. Cleaves to the Evening Industrial school.

NEW SCHOOL SITES.

A delegation was present from Norfolk Downs Improvement association relative to sites for a school lot in that section, and a letter was received from the Squantum Improvement association enclosing plans of proposed sites and requesting the approval of the School Committee. The committee voted to view the sites.

HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNI.

The Quincy High Alumni association was granted the use of the hall in the High School for a mass meeting, Nov. 18.

NEW CLASSES.

The matter of the establishment of one or two classes for slow or retarded pupils was considered and referred to the superintendent.

SCHOOL FINANCES.

The superintendent reported as to the condition of the evening schools and finances, and it was voted to send a communication to the City Council stating that the committee would be $2,000 short in its appropriation for salaries, and request that action be taken on the matter which was called to the attention of the council some weeks ago.

Also to request that the receipts for tuition, etc., be placed to the credit of the School department.

The financial statement to date was reported as follows:—

NEW COMMANDER.

Capt. W. R. Rush, U. S. N., who commanded the American landing forces at Vera Cruz, was relieved of the command of the battleship Florida on Tuesday and assigned to command the Boston Navy Yard, succeeding Capt. DeWitt Coffman, who goes to the Naval War College, preparatory to commanding the third division of the Atlantic fleet, in succession to Rear Admiral Beatty.

The name of Captain Rush figured in the stories of the investment of the Mexican port and all have high tribute to his courage.

One of the most eloqretn tributes was paid the youthful commander by Edward A. Gisburne of this city who lost his leg in the first day's fighting. He was ashore with the first party and when he returned to this city he told how Captain Rush, with the sniepers bullets falling all around him stood his ground, unmindful of his danger and exerting every effort to protect his men from the hidden attack and withheld for the time being the orders to fire although men actually begged for them.

SCANDINAVIAN REPUBLICANS

Vote to Endorse the Republican Candidates

The Scandinavian Republican Club held its annual election of officers in Electa hall on Thursday evening, voted to support Republican nominees and were addressed by several candidates. Edward J. Sandberg was re-elected president. The other officers chosen were August N. Weeden, vice-president; G. R. Blomquist, secretary-treasurer; Nils Linquist, John Golbranson, John S. Johnson, Eric Carlson and the three officers, trustees.

The speakers were Senator Langelier, Harry Howard, candidate for congress; Representative Sandberg and Councilman Charles Ericson, candidates for the House of Representatives; Col. A. L. Whitman, Edward Rosendahl of Brockton, and Axel E. Zetterman, president of the Swedish American State Club.

Among those present was James Harry Slade, candidates for council from Ward One.

Senator Langelier denied the charges made by his Democratic opponent and said they were so indefinite, he doesn't mention the time connected with the instances that make up the charges, and that being unable to produce records to bear out his statements his opponent built a platform of insinuations.

Representative Sandberg said he had been of service to the people of his district, and he explained his stand on the bills on which he had been attacked. He said he opposed the referendum because questions on the ballot were neglected by the voter. In speaking of the anti-injunction bill he said strikes had been conducted peaceably in Quincy without the bill, and if it were enacted organizations such as the I. W. W., could take advantage of it and abuse privileges.

Candidate Howard favored a protective tariff and pledged his interest to New England industries and people.

Candidate Ericson said his record as a councilman showed he had been of value to the people, and that was the reason he had been given the nomination and that he expected to win.

A harvest supper will be served by the Woman's Guild of St. Chrysostom's church Thursday evening at 6 o'clock.

What Local Clubs are Doing

News of Women's Clubs is a feature of the Daily Ledger every Wednesday. Secretaries of organizations should send notices of club activities, to reach the Club Editor not later than Tuesday night to insure insertion the ne t day.

Tomorrow is Quincy day at the Pure Food fair at Mechanics building Boston. Members of the Quincy Women's Club and the Wollaston Woman's Club are to serve tea during the afternoon and a large attendance isanticipated from Quincy. Club membership tickets will admit to tea room.

The parliamentary law class conducted by Mrs. Electa Sherman under the auspices of the Legislative committee of the Quincy Women's club meets tomorrow morning at half past ten for the third lesson. The classes are largely attended and are proving not only very instructive but enjoyable in many ways.

* * *

Mrs. J. Henry Emery of Adams street opens her house tomorrow afternoon for the October meeting of the Hospital Aid Association.

* * *

The most notable meeting of the season of the Wollaston Women's club is probably that of next week Tuesday which will be an evening meeting in Wollaston school hall with John Kendrick Bangs as the lecturer. His subject will be "Salebrities I have met." Friday night the Home Economics committee, Mrs. Short, chairman, is to hold a Hallowe'en dance at Alpha hall.

* * *

No meeting of the Ladies Benevolent Society of the Wollaston Congregational church was held today as members were interested in attending the annual meeting of the W. H. M. A. at Park Street church, Boston. An all day meeting is to be held however on Friday beginning at 10.30 A. M. Mrs. Rufus B. Tobey will be the leader

* * *

Next week Wednesday's meeting of Quincy Alliance in the parlor of the First Parish church is to be a "Cheerful Letter" meeting with Miss Anna E. Wood of Boston as the speaker. Now that members are becoming used to it they rather like the change of day of meeting.

* * *

Bethany Women's Union meets in the chapel next Wednesday at eleven o'clock. There will be luncheon at 12.30 followed by a business meeting. At the three o'clock session Mrs. F. W. Crane will lead the devotions, the speaker will be Mrs. Robert R. West and the soloist Miss Florence Sabean.

* * *

"The child in its helplessness," is the subject of the meeting next Wednesday of Wollaston Auxiliary Woman's Board of Missions, with Mrs. E. S. Tenney in charge of the meeting.

* * *

Mrs. H. C. Needham is to speak on "Some new methods of Unitarian Sunday School Work," at the meeting next Wednesday afternoon of Wollaston Alliance in the Wollaston Unitarian vestry. Tea will be served. The fair is to be held Nov. 18.

Monday afternoon Mrs. George G. Saville is to give her entertaining talk on English ballads at the Women's clubhouse for the benefit of the Visiting Nurse fund in which so many club women are interested. The talk will be illustrated by songs by Miss Catherine Saville, with Mrs. Joseph Evans at the piano. Mrs. N. S. Hunting and the Visiting Nurse committee of the Quincy Women's Club are receiving subscriptions for the recital.

Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution are to have a Hallowe'en party Saturday evening, beginning at seven o'clock, at the birthplace of President John Adams to which they may take a friend. Men are also invited. On the regular meeting day Monday Nov. 2 a luncheon is to be served at 12.30 at 25 cents each, followed by the regular meeting in the afternoon. It will also be donation day for the caretaker and members are asked to contribute.

* * *

The Quincy Young Women's Club has secured the services of Miss Ferguson of Atlantic as teacher of Physical training. Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney of Wollaston has consented to serve as in past years as dramatic teacher. Dressmaking and embroidery classes will also be held. The classes will be held from 8 to 9 P. M., and will be followed by a social hour in the High school gymnasium. The membership of the club is unlimited and all girls are welcome.

QUINC YWOMEN'S CLUB.

There was a good attendance Tuesday at the clubhouse for the art afternoon of the club.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith president called the meeting to order and the usual reports were given. Among the announcements was the forming of a class in making lamp and candle shades. Mrs. Walter E. Reid, Jr., who has the class in charge showed samples of shades and showed how they could be made to correspond with the house furnishing. The ladies were much interested and a large class will probably be formed.

Mrs. W. W. Whitcher told of the interest in, and success of the parliamentary law class which meets Thursday mornings at 10.30 at the clubhouse.

Everyone was invited to attend an all day sewing meeting Thursday at the Wollaston Unitarian vestry to sew for the Belgian sufferers. Materials money etc., were solicited. A Belgian couple acquainted with Belgians now in London would see to the personal distribution of the contributions.

Mr. H. H. Kitson of the Civics committee had a word to say of the work of the children's gardens, 2000 children purchasing seeds. It was the most successful summer of children's gardens and the exhibit at City hall was the finest ever held, while the Quincy exhibit at Horticultural hall was the best in the state. The annual assembly to raise funds for civic work will be held Nov. 27, the night after Thanksgiving.

Mrs. John D. Mackay for the Forestry department exhibited bottles of insect pests found on the trees. At the last meeting she announced that $2200 had been expended on the trees of the city by individual owners to which was now added $500 for work done this fall. Mrs. Mackay said the State Forestry department had adopted the Quincy idea for carrying on the work and had divided the state into sections with a state forestry man over each section. Mr. Hammel had been assigned to Quincy. His services were free to any one for consultation about their trees.

Mrs. Hunting for the Visiting Nurse committee asked the patronage of those present for the "Old English Ballad" afternoon at the clubhouse, Monday at three o'clock for the benefit of the Nursing fund. Mrs. George G. Saville would give an interesting talk on the ballads, illustrated in song by her daughter Miss Catherine Saville with Mrs. Joseph Evans at the piano.

Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann told of the enthusiasm at the opening meeting of the Young Women's Club, over 75 attending. Classes begin Oct. 28 in the High school gym.

The musical program for the afternoon was especially enjoyable consisting of violin solos by Mrs. Adelaide Thomas Sutherland. She played exquisitely "Andante" by Wieniawski and "Berceuse" and "Mazurka" by Moszkowski.

Mrs. T. Ray Blanchard chairman of the Art committee introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Roger Noble Burnham instructor of modelling at Harvard University, who spoke on Sculpture.

He showed the steps to go through to produce the finished statue. With an easel he illustrated in clay and plaster. He told how large models were easily constructed by mechanism from small ones; how after the figures were modeled in plaster they were sent to the foundry to be cast in bronze or other material. He described the bronze work of today and that of ancient times, and of cutting marble.

Mr. Burnham was very much enjoyed. There was an informal talk after the lecture when questions were asked and answered adding to the information of the listeners.

The lecture will doubtless add to the interest already manifested by those to enter Mrs. Kitson's class in sculpture, which is forming under the auspices of the art committee of the club.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, Mrs. Frank J. Moore of the Quincy Women's Club, Miss Florence Olney of the Wollaston Woman's Club, members of the music committee of the State Federation had charge of the music department exhibit last week at the Pure Food exposition at Mechanic building, Boston, assisted by members of the Quincy club.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham Mrs. George L. Badger, and Mrs. Herbert W. Pinkham attended the presidents conference of the State Federation, Saturday afternoon in Paul Revere hall. Boston. Education was the subject. Mrs. W. S. Pinkham represented the education committee of the Quincy club in the absence of the chairman Mrs. Mellen.

JUNIOR FRIDAY CLUB.

Junior Friday Club began its season Monday afternoon meeting with Mrs. Walter E. Burke of Adams street Several members were out of town so there was not a full attendance but guests of the hostess made up a goodly number.

This year's officers are Presidetn—Miss Etta Marsh Prescott; vice president—Miss Clara Leavitt Baxter; secretary and treasurer—Mrs. William H. Whitney; program committee—Miss Prescott, Miss Baxter, Miss Abigail Baxter Wood, Miss Georgiana Cushing Lane and Mrs. Alfred P. Thompson.

The club enters new fields of study this season taking up that interesting but little known country South America and it promises to be very interesting.

The president presided at the meeting and was also in charge of the program which consisted of a historical sketch and conquistadores.

The next meeting will be with Miss Prescott with Panama as the subject and Mrs. Arthur W. Hall as chairman of the program.

THE NEXT BIENNIAL.

The decision of the board of the General Federation that the Biennial of 1916 be held in New York city is very pleasing to club women, although the other invitation to Atlantic City was gratifying and the women of the country would have enjoyed a meeting there. However, New York city is the Mecca toward which all women turn, and the Biennial of 1916 will be attended by very many thousands who will be anxious not only to be a part of that great meeting and to partake of its advantages, but to visit New York. The naming of Miss Mary Garrett Hay as chairman of the local biennial board is proof that the arrangements will be as perfect as possible. It seems particularly appropriate that the meeting be held in the home of the honored club, Sorosis, the home also of Mrs. William Tod Helmuth, president of the Pioneer Workers and beloved by every club woman in the country. From now until the Biennial time, in 1916, plans for the greatest meeting ever held by women will be formulated and carried out. New York city will be ready to welcome the thousands upon thousands, of delegates and guests who will gather here. The announcement that the programme of the Biennial will be in charge of Mrs. Frances D. Everett of Illinois will be received with ensthusiasm as she is well known in every State in the Union for the excellence of her work.

STEEL GARAGES.

Charles W. Gould, one of the most popular business men of this city and widely known in atuomobile circles throughout the state is one of the first to undertake the construction of portable steel garages. Mr. Gould has been operating in the auto field in this city the past ten years, his headquarters being on Adams street. His new product will be manufactured in the factory at 12 Tirrell court where he has taken over the entire third floor of the building.

The garages are to be of sheet metal four sizes, and fireproof, and comply with the requirements of the Fire Hazard Commission.

The designs are very attractive. The entrance is through a double door and the roof has a slight patch. The exterior can be given a brick stucco, rock face or clapboard appearance.

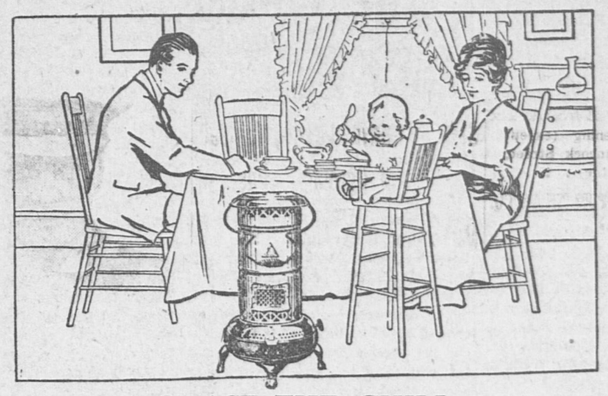

Mr. Gould at present employs a small corps of workmen but the fact that he is operating in one of the most extensive fields in the state argues that it is only a question of a few months ebfore his new establishment will be one of the most active industries in the city.

FIND PETTY GRAFTING

Probers Say It Is Going on In Massachusetts State Work

Boston, Oct. 28.—Eight recommendations are made by the state commission on economy and efficiency to Governor Walsh to stop the petty graft that the commission says is going on in several of the state departments.

Padded expense accounts, the expenditure of state funds for personal expenses and irregular expense accounts are among the things mentioned. The report is made in response to a request from the governor.

VERY PROMPT FIRE RELIEF

Squantum People Present a Purse of $90

Squantum showed its fine spirit of co-operation among its citizens' Tuesday, when within ten hours after Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gregory of Standish road were burned out of their home, $90 collected by a citizens' committee, was presented to the couple. This is the first payment of a subscription of $136 which was donated by Quincy citizens.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory and their daughter Mrs. Ella Perkins are very well known and very highly respected in the entire community. Tuesday when the fire broke out in the Paul Hersey house, Mrs. Perkins was in her home adjoining with two small children. She had barely time to get them out of the house when the Gregory home was a mass of flames. All their furniture, clothing and even their money was in the house and was destroyed. They did not carry a cent of insurance.

When this fact became known James H. Sumner, Joseph Allen and the Rev. T. W. Davison immediately formed themselves into a committee to raise funds to meet the immediate needs of the family. The paper was circulated at the big non partisan rally of the Squantum Improvement association in Community hall, and most of the candidates for office donated generously. Squantum people have every reason to feel proud of their quick and generous response to one of their neighbors who suddenly found themselves in need.

CLAN MacGREGOR BOWLING

Teams of McKenzie, Nicoll and McLean Win

The Scotsmen were out in force at the Coliseum alleys Tuesday evening to witness the regular Clan MacGregor matches. The standard set was high in most cases and several pretty contests developed.

The McKenzies defeated the Hughes crew 4 to 0. Hunter of the winners got 104, McKenzies 107, Drummond two singles of 104, and Neil, the only one of the losers who tripled, 314, high total of the evening.

CANDIDATES HEARD

party issues but on improvement societies, and the work they were doing. In connection with this he told what the government was doing to promote agriculture and closed by telling what he had done as a member of the special commission of Gov. Foss on the minimum wage question.

Daniel F. Corcoran, candidate for Representative, said that the people were entitled to know the views of candidates for representative. He felt that the district was entitled to more improvements than it had received, and if elected he would work for these. In connection with these he mentioned the development of the water front, the extension of the boulevard, and a new Neponset bridge. As for the grade crossing question he was in favor of a safe, and sensible plan of depression. He also spoke of the need of a traffic bridge over the tracks near the Norfolk Downs station.

As there were no other state candidates present at that time the Mayoralty candidates were called upon in alphabetical order, the first therefore being G. B. Bates.

CANDIDATE BATES.

Mr. Bates said he would tell them what was the matter with Quincy, but it would take more than ten minutes. He said that he had been doing business in Quincy for 27 years and was a business man paying more taxes than all of the other candidates combined. Referring to his chart, he enlarged upon how a dollar was spent calling especial attention to the dark cloud which represented interest and said if the city kept on at the present rate that dark cloud would envelop the circle, and the bankers and corporations would own the city.

Quincy ought to be ashamed for the way it was treating the school problem. He also told how big land owners were getting by and how the little home owners were getting soaked. That some corporations were only taxed $3,000,000 on property worth $10,000,000. We have been electing Mayors controlled by these corporations, who dictate what taxes shall be.

He also attacked the New Haven railroad who owned valuable land on the water front, but who were getting by with a small assessment. He was a candidate to right the wrong and there would be no tax dodgers when he was mayor. He would serve on the Board of Assessors without pay. No other candidate had a platform other than air to stand on. In closing he guaranteed an $18 tax rate, and to find $10,000,000 more property to assess. He would give a bond of $50,000 against a bond of any other candidate for $25,000 to do it.

CANDIDATE CAMPBELL.

Said he did not agree with the last speaker, and he could not take up his proposition, for in the first place he did not have the $25,000. It was not a question of platform and his slogan was a business administration. The other candidates advocate the same eration, as well as in a business administration. He believed in co-operation, as well as in a business administration. Without co-operation a business administration would fall flat.

CHESTER I. CAMPBELL.

We could not advance because the heads of department in City Hall had not co-operated. The Executive department and School Board had not co-operated for fifteen years. He believed he had an efficient school board and while the Mayor has no authority over them he should co-operate with them.

All the gentlemen named as possible candidats for Mayor were of the highest type, but he did take issue with some of statements made by their backers. He believed they will give you what they consider best.

His own experience had been of the broadest character, and in this connection he briefly outlined his business experience for the past fifteen years. What the city wanted was a business man with experience who will co-operate.

CANDIDATE FEGAN

Said he was the only genuine Democratic candidate. There comes a time in affairs of every corporation when it is necessary to take stock. So it is with a corporation like the City of Quincy. The time has come to take stock and see where we stand. We find there is something fundamentally wrong, and the question of taxation is a burning issue. All agree that the valuation is not right. However he was not pledged to a higher or lower tax rate. It was not in the province of the Chief Executive to guarantee what the tax should be. We all know that is the business of the Assessors. We must chose wisely and have men who will do their duty.

The valuation today is not right. The small property owner is burdened. His platform was to secure for the city an equalization of taxes. He should not hamper the assessors, nor take the time of the chief executive for that work. The board of Assessors must secure a proper valuation. There was no mystery about the Assessors. The equalizing of taxes means raising values where they should be, and if property was over valued to lower it. That was all there was to it.

It was a disgrace to any city or town that Squantum should be neglected as it was. You pay your share of the taxes and your share of the taxes should be expended here for improvements. In closing he said he was the only Democrat seeking nomination.

CANDIDATE JOHNSON

Said that he could not tell it all in ten minutes, but would be glad to come to

CHARLES H. JOHNSON

Squantum later and talk for an hour or more. He simply wanted to appear as a Republican. There were but two Republican candidates, himself and Mr. Tilden. One man was trying to straddle all parties, and another seeking the Republican nomination was a Progressive, and did not represent the Republican party.

Last year I was a candidate, and want to thank the citizens of Ward Six for the splendid support they gave me, and I feel that I should receive the same support on Nov. 10. He would have a platform when he was nominated. This is the time when we must read the signs. Many who are talking of city affairs are not conversant with them. One perhaps does not know that he has very little to say about the Assessors. The Tax Commissioner is the power there. He had been in Quincy since 15 years of age and had been identified with many of its projects. In his public life as a member of the City Council and as chairman of the Assessors he had done what he could for the welfare of the city. He spoke of his experience as a real estate expert and that he had often been called as such by the Commonwealth and others. Also of his experience as an auctioneer

He felt qualified to take up these questions of vital importance that were now confronting our city. He intended to give his whole time to the duties of the office and should surround himself with efficient officials.

CANDIDATE TILDEN .....

Said that confidence was a great asset. Therefore there was not much need of an election for the candidates had already been elected. He had not got the confidence of election as some of the candidates had, but looked to the voters for his confidence. His platform was co-operation and conservation. He could spare the time from his other business to look after the affairs of the city, and if elected he would give his entire time to the duties of the office. If I do not know enough I will get the best talent in the city to give me advice. The committee who urged him to try for the nomination said that he would not have to speak but he had been doing it ever since. When he went to school every Friday afternoon was devoted to speaking by the scholars, and he always made it a practice to be absent when there was any speaking.

Concerning the assessed valuation, he said this could be better explained by a little example. For instance if there was a place assessed for $5,000 and there was a sign on it for sale, and the owner would gladly sell for $4,000 then $4,000 was the proper valuation. We want to put the valuation where it belongs, never mind what the tax rate is. The only way when we owe a bill is to put our hands in our pocket and pay it. That is what any business man would do, and what the city should do. During his two years as City Treasurer he had the co-operation of the Mayor, and felt that he had done a great deal toward getting in the taxes, although he had made some enemies by doing so. He was proud to say that with one exception, and that was one year of Mayor Bryants administration, he had served in an administration that had reduced the city debt over $109,000 which was something that had never been done before. Improvements were all right, but we should pay our debts first and stop the large sums that are now needed for interest. That will help the city best at this time.

CANDIDATE POWERS

Said all those who have spoken say they are business men's candidates. He admired their courage. We have had too many business men as Mayors of Quincy. He did not see how any man dared to stand on that platform. His platform was not a business men's administration, but a working men's administration. There are people who walk into City Hall, who if they are not slicked up receive sarcasm. It was time to stop that. When he took office he would walk in with a broom and sweep them all out. He should fight for equality in taxes. A poor man would have a show and would not be used so roughly as they have been by the Assessors this year.

EDWARD P. POWERS.

Ain't I glad I am not the chief assessor, so I will not have to look these poor people in the face.

If elected I will have a carnival in Quincy and have 100,000 people here every day. Quincy cannot grow until we get some new industries. He would have a grand inaugural ball and use the proceeds to get more for the children on the Fourth of July. We should take more interest in the children and should provide them better places for their games and should enter into the sports with them. Do not vote for ward heelers, but vote for men you think you want. If he had given a certain promise, one of the candidates wanted, he would not be running for the nomination this year was the last of the Mayoralty candidates to speak. He said he would not criticize any of the other candidates. This was to be a clean campaign as far as he was concerned. He was not going to promise the taxpayers a reduced rate in advance. "I am the only genuine candidate." He lives in Houghs Neck and knowing the conditions that had existed there he sympathized with Squantum. He told how Houghs Neck was situated for schools, lights and streets nine years ago, and how its association by hard work had got some of the things desired. So it was with Squantum. It was entitled to more. He took a deep interest in Squantum. There should be better streets in Squantum. At least there should be one main street that was in fine condition, and he promised to do all he could when he was Mayor.

He was a believer in higher education, and Squantum should have a school building. Then in view of the fire of that morning, he believed it would be a good idea to have a piece of fire apparatus located there and he would do what he could toward that end.

He then spoke of ex-Mayor Hugh O'Brien of Boston, who during his life was a frequent visitor to his store. Mayor O'Brien reduced the tax rate of Boston and had he lived he would be Mayor now. He knew how he had done it, and the same thing could be done here in Quincy. What we need is more efficient work in all departments, and what followed in Boston will follow in Quincy.

He thought with Mr. Bates that it was possible to give the citizens an $18 tax rate, if we only equalized the valuation. There was a lot of personal property that was getting by. He would have a board of assessors who would do their work right. "My heart is in Squantum, I will see you again."

MAYOR WHITON

When called upon for a few remarks, received a great ovation. He said he had been in City Hall for a few days and what was needed was an honest man who would carry out his convictions. It would not be proper at this time to state who he favored, but he had his preference as to who would make the best Mayor. There has been too much friction, and we need an honest administration. We will not progress unless we follow out the line of the state and federal government. He would refrain from calling names, but some of the candidates had been talking hot air. We have a half million dollars in taxes outstanding. Water bills dating back to 1913, and poll tax bills unpaid dating back ten years. What we want is an honest man and not a politician to pull us out of the hole.

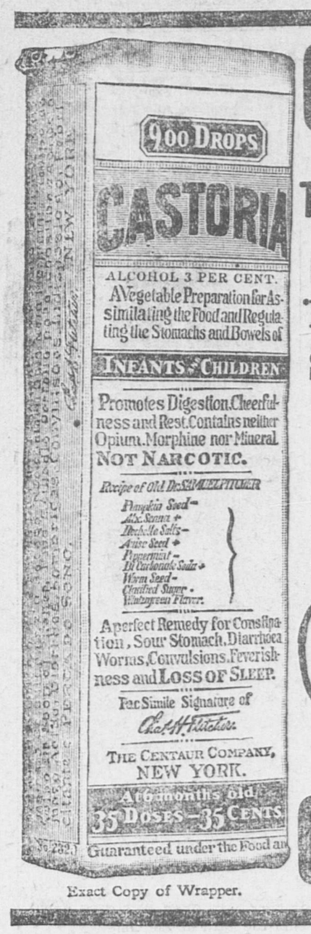

OTHER SPEAKERS.

Other speakers were Harry Howard, Republican candidate for congressman; Charles Proctor, Democratic candidate for senator; Louis F. R. Langelier, the Republican candidate for senator; Herbert O. Cassidy, Progressive candidate for Representative; Herbert S. Barker candidate for School Committee at large.

In addition to these there were most of the candidates for Councilmen from Ward Six, candidates for Councilmen at large, and candidates for School Committee from Ward Six.

Letters regretting their inability to be present were received from Representative Edward J. Sandberg, Frank A. Prescott, one of the candidates for Councilmen at large; Henry L. Kincaide candidate for congressman and others.

MAY BE TRIED SECOND TIME

Plan Favored by Carman Prosecution and Defense

WOMAN SEEKS VINDICATION

Says She Can Only Secure It Through Being Cleared of All Suspicion of Having Killed Mrs. Bailey—Husband and Attorney Deny Rumors of Separation of Doctor and Wife.

Freeport, L. I., Oct. 28.—That Mrs. Florence C. Carman will be tried again in December seems certain. District Attorney Smith, Mrs. Carman and Attorney Levy all agreed on this. Smith said:

"I believe Mrs. Carman will have to stand trial a second time on the charge of shooting Mrs. Bailey. I will never move the dismissal of the indictment, and I will oppose any move to have it set aside."

Mrs. Carman, after a conference with her counsel, issued through Levy a statement in which she said:

"I shall insist upon a new trial, and that very soon. I demand that I be forever cleared of all suspicion, and that can only be done through my acquittal."

Mrs. Carman held an extended conference with her attorneys. At the same time, rumors began to spread that there might be a separation between Dr. and Mrs. Carman.

Freeport gossip first made itself heard, and then circumstances were brought forward as bearing out the truth of the rumors.

Mrs. Carman plans to go to Raven, N. J., to a farm owned by Carman and Levy. It was there that she retired after her indictment for manslaughter in connection with Mrs. Bailey's death and before her indictment for first degree murder. She plans to remain there about a week.

When Levy told the reporters of this plan, he said Carman would be in the party. But Carman himself later said he would not go with his wife.

It was pointed out that he did not go with her to Brooklyn for the bail hearing, and these two instances of seeming neglect were the more remarkable in view of the doctor's devotion to his wife up to the time of the jury's disagreement.

Levy was asked if there was any truth in the reports of a separation. He said there was no truth in them. Dr. Carman was asked the same question and replied:

"No, indeed. I'm not going to New Jersey, it is true. I have to get to work for a living again, and to get back the practice I had before this unfortunate affair. I expect to be very busy from now on, and I hope that the public will forget us."

WELSH BEATS BALDWIN

Englishman Retains Lightweight Championship of the World

Boston, Oct. 28.—Freddie Welsh of England is still champion lightweight of the world, and, judging from the excellent form he showed in his bout with Matty Baldwin of Boston here last night, is likely to retain his title for some time.

It was a game, hard fight that Baldwin carried to the champion, and, though in the last two rounds, when Welsh turned loose his entire batteries the local man was outpointed by a wide margin, he made a great hit with the fans.

More than 6000 boxing fans witnessed the battle. The decision was awarded Walsh at the end of a twelve-round bout.

VERDICTS OF $7750

Outcome of Suits Resulting From an Automobile Crash

Boston, Oct. 28.—Verdicts of $6500 for Elizabeth J. McDermott, $750 for Bertha Lamson and $300 for D. C. Brewer for injuries in a collision of autos at Gloucester were returned by a Suffolk jury in their suits against John S. Gray. In their suits against his wife, Ellena T. Gray, there were verdicts in each for the defendant.

The accident happened on July 25, 1912. The three plaintiffs were thrown out of their auto. The defendant's car was driven by Gray's chauffeur, Michael W. Murphy, and had a single passenger.

LIVED ALONE SIXTY YEARS

Death of Hermit Who Was Disappointed In Love Affair

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 28.—Charles Lambert, once a civil engineer, who lived in a one-room, one-story shack on the shore of Mosquito pond, died in a hospital in this city. He was 91 years of age.

An unfortunate love affair drove him to embrace the life of a hermit, and for more than sixty years he lived alone in his humble cabin four miles from this city.

Florence Is Shaken Up

Florence, Italy, Oct. 28.—A severe earthquake shock was felt here. The inhabitants were panic-stricken, but little damage was done.

Four Killed In Building Collapse

Sampson, Ala., Oct. 28.—In the collapse of a building here four persons were killed and several were injured.

IN FAMILY'S PRESENCE

Brockton Man Takes Life of Wife and Shoots Himself

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 28.—Mrs. Joseph Roy, 40, was shot and killed by her husband in the kitchen of their home. The bullet entered the back of Mrs. Roy's head at the base of the brain. Roy then put a bullet in his right temple and another through the jaw.

Joseph Roy, Jr., 14 years old, was in the yard at the time of the crime. He saw his father as he aimed the revolver at Mrs. Roy. The boy tried to get in the house through the window, breaking the window pane, sash and all, but was unable to prevent the killing of his mother.

Five other children were in the room at the time, all too horror-stricken to raise a hand in opposition to the father. Their hysterical cries were pitiful.

Roy left a note addressed to the pastor of the Sacred Heart Catholic church, in which he expressed sorrow for the crime, but stated that his wife was trying to get rid of him. It is believed the man is insane.

OUR NATIONAL DEFENSES

Gardner Is Completing Plans For a Hearing on the Subject

Washington, Oct. 28.—Final plans for a hearing before the house rules committee in November on his resolution calling for the appointment of a committee to investigate the adequacy of the national defense are being made by Representative Gardner of Massachusetts.

A large number of witnesses will appear and, according to Gardner, three days will be required to hear all of them.

In a speech in the house recently Gardner declared the defenses of the United States were utterly inadequate.

GASOLINE IN SEWERS

Inquest Shows It Was Responsible For Death of Six Men

Boston, Oct. 28.—In his report of an inquest Judge Brown finds that the explosion at the East Boston pumping station last June, which caused the death of six men, was due to the presence of gasoline in sewers.

He recommends that all establishments using gasoline, naphtha and benzine in the cities and towns connected with the metropolitan sewer be compelled to install separating traps as is required by the city of Boston.

GRASP AT SLENDER CLUE

Police Hunt For Suitcase and Hat of Slain Schoolgirl

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 28.—Search for a missing suitcase and a girl's hat is being made by the police in the faint hope that they may lead to the arrest of the slayer of 15-year-old Hazel Macklin, whose body was found in Island park.

The suitcase the girl carried when she left her uncle's home the night of Aug. 19 to meet a man who promised her work and the hat she wore the same night are missing.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

Manager James J. Gray of the Lowell Baseball club of the New England league died suddenly at Lowell from acute indigestion.

Burglars entered the New Haven railroad stations at Marlboro and Northboro, Mass., and raided telephone booths and gum machines.

Beverly, Mass., may have a public market. The matter will be discussed at the next meeting of the aldermen.

The United States torpedo boat destroyer Paulding went ashore at Lynnhaven inlet, Va., and lies fast, bow on.

Thomas F. Dunn, 65, of Lynn, Mass., Civil war veteran and actor, dropped dead in a store in that city.

The revenue cutter Acushnet floated the fishing schooner Anna, which was ashore off Siasconsett, Mass.

The Associated Trust Hotels, Incorporated, were adjudged bankrupt in the United States district court at Boston.

QUARANTINE ON GRANITE

Danger of Spreading the Gypsy Moth the Reason

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28—Owing to the fact that egg clusters of the gypsy moth are being distributed on stone and quarry products from the infested region of New England to other sections of the United States, the Secretary of Agriculture has placed such products under regulation as to interstate movement by a quarantine, effective October 23, 1914.

This action is taken under authority given in the act of Congress making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture in relation to the gypsy moth and brown-tail moth control in New England, and is entirely independent of the plant quarantine act.

The provisions, however, governing the inspection and certification of stone and quarry products are substantially the same as those governing the movement of nursery stock and other plant products under the plant quarantine act referred to in relation to the same insect.

The area covered by this quarantine is identical with the area covered by the plant quarantine. This quarantine puts no bar on the interstate traffic in stone and quarry products, except to provide for Federal inspection and certification as a condition of such traffic. Such inspection and certification will be made on application to the local office of the United States Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Entomology, 43 Tremont street, Boston, Massachusetts.

Political candidates who do not use the advertising columns, should not expect the newspapers to report in detail all their little rallies.

Advance publicity for entertainments, dances, campaigns etc., is advertising, and newspapers should be recompensed.

Don't send printed programs (printed out of town) to the Daily Ledger, just to get an advance notice. It is like waving a red rag in front of a bull.

Mayo P. Fuller, a member of the granite firm of Fuller, Foley & Co., died suddenly in the office at the works on Tuesday afternoon. Medical Examiner Dr. Fred E. Jones said death was due to heart disease. Mr. Fuller was 78 years of age, and was one of the best known granite men in the city. He has been active in directing the affairs of the firm up to the time of his death. He made his home at 152 Crescent street and is survived by several sons.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the parsonage of the Hall Place M. E. church, Tuesday evening when a number of the members of the parish tendered a surprise party to the pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. P. S. Neldon. The party met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newcomb and proceeded from there to the parsonage. Mr. and Mrs. Neldon were overcome with surprise at the unexpected visit of so many of their people, and during the evening thanked the friends for their kindness. The evening was spent in singing, playing games and in social talk. Mr. Neldon in thanking the friends, spoke of his work here and of his hopes for it, and asked the people to help him in it, and in closing thanked them for the cordial way in which they had received "Mrs. Neldon, himself and the three little Neldons," when they came here as strangers. Mr. Neldon's work at Quincy-West since coming here in April has been commendable, his sermons being practical and helpful, meeting the daily needs of a busy people, and great hopes are entertained for the spiritual work of the church during the coming winter.

Edward F. McDevitt, for many years a representative of the Granite Railway Co. and father of former Senator John J. McDevitt. died suddenly at his home on Willard street on Tuesday afternoon. Hs death followed an illness of three days, pneumonia having developed Saturday. Mr. McDevitt has been a respected resident of West Quincy for many years. He was in his 65th year. He leaves a wife; and son, John J. McDevitt; and one daughter, Miss Florence McDevitt.

SWEDISH M. E. CONFERENCE

Many Ministers Arrive This Afternoon

The Swedish Methodist ministers of the Boston-Worcester districts will meet at the Swedish St. Paul's M. E. church this week.

This evening at 7.45 there will be a concert and reception. An excellent program has been prepared for the occasion. The speech of welcome will be given by the local pastor, Rev. A. E. Hillman. There will be musical selections by the choir, sextette and solos by Rev. H. E. Whyman of Hartford. Radeings by Rev. Edwin Stromberg of Lowell and an address by Rev. F. E. Broman of Boston. Refreshments will be served at the close of the program.

Ten or more ministers are expected to be present at the conference. Sessions will be held Thursday and Friday from 9 to 12 A. M. and from 2 to 5 P. M. Preaching services will be conducted Thursday at 3 and 7.30 and Friday at 7.30 P. M.

The preacher for Thursday afternoon will be Rev. A. J. Lofgren of Worcester. In the evening Rev. D. K. Englund of Worcester and Rev. H. E. Whyman of Hartford will speak. The preachers on Friday evening will be Rev. A. J. Lofgren and Rev. Edwin Stromberg. No meetings will be held on Saturday.

At the Sunday morning service, Rev. F. E. Broman, the district superintendent will preach the sermon and conduct the holy communion service. A mass meeting will be held at 3 o'clock in which the sister denominations are invited to partake. The speakers will be Rev. C. E. Rydstrom, a former pastor of St. Paul's church. Other speakers will follow.

The last meeting of this conference will be held Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Rev. Oscar K. Sundberg of Malden will preach and a large chorus choir will sing.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL SOCCER.

Cranch 1; Atherton Hough, 0.

Both grammar schools under the direction of Principal Alfred S. Townsend were victors in the regular soccer games at Merrymount park Tuesday afternoon. The contests were exciting.

QUINCY WOLLASTON

The Young Peoples Religious Union of the Wollaston Unitarian church held its Hallowe'en party in Alpha hall Tuesday evening . Colors of the season furnished the basis of the decorative scheme and games and dancing were enjoyed during the evening. Punch was served. The matrons were Miss Almira Simmons, Mrs. Frank Page and Mrs. Carl G. Horst. The floor was in charge of Leon Brown, Jr. with Miss Catherine Reed and Miss Margaret Magee as the assistants.

NEWS ITEMS FROM MILTON

About 50 members and friends attended the monthly social of the Woodsum class of the First Baptist church, Moday evening, in the church vestry. The speaker of the evening was Daniel MacKay, the prisoners' friend. Mr. MacKay spoke in a very interesting way about his work among the prisons and the underworld. Following the speaking ice cream and cake were served by George Jones, Chester Carder, William Johnstone, Archie Robie and Winfred Geddes.

The Sunday School of the East Congregational church will hold a Hallowe'en social Friday evening in the church vestry. Games, stories etc., will be enjoyed and ice cream and cake will be served. The committee in charge includes; Mrs. Jesse B. Baxter, Mrs. Olaf Olsen, Mrs. S. S. Gilbert, Miss Ada Enderlie and Mr. Maclairy.

On Friday evening, Nov. 6, William L. Underwood will give an illustrated lecture on "Journeys with an Indian" in St. Michael's parish house on Randolph avenue, under the auspices of Troop 3, Boy Scouts of Milton.

The regular meeting of the King's Daughters circle of East Milton was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. C. E. Snow on Plymouth avenue. The ladies are planning to hold a fair Saturday afternoon, Nov. 14, in the vestry of the East Congregational church. The president, Mrs. A. A. Brackett, will have full charge of the fair.

Frank Stocker and family, formerly of Church place, are now living in the W. D. Parson's house on Granite place.

The Misses Josephine Rogers and Alma Jardine of the First Baptist church waited on table at the Baptist Bethel fair held in Tremont Temple this week.

Rev. J. Hamilton Woodsum is attending the convention at Pittsfield this week.

The ladies missionary society of the First Baptist church will hold their regular meeting Friday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. David J. Brown, on Edge Hill road.

The Democrats held a rally Monday evening in Ellsworth hall with about 100 present. Ex-representative John J. Gallagher of Adams street was chairman. After a few preliminary remarks he introduced State Auditor, Frank H. Pope, who charged the Republicans with misrepresenting the Democrats in regard to the tariff. At the mention of the name of Governor Walsh by the speaker there was considerable applause. Mr. Pope praised the "watchful waiting attitude" of President Wilson and said that we ought to rejoice that we hae such a man for president. He was followed by Mr. MacGovern, "Harvard's live wire," Richard Olney 2d candidate for Congress from this district, George Hubbard of Brockton, Thomas J. Boynton, attorney-general of the state and Charles W. Proctor, candidate for the Senate.

QUINCY POINT

Joseph Dorley of River street, for many years a resident of Quincy Point and one of its best known business men, died at the Quincy City Hospital on Thursday after a long illness. Mr. Dorley was stricken about a month ago and was removed to the hospital for an operation. A discovery by surgeons, after they had made several incisions, caused them to abandon their efforts to bring about relief. Mr. Dorley conducted a fish business for many years and recently erected a small business block where he was to conduct a grocery and provision store. He has been an interested member of the New Quincy Point parish which is to be set off from St. Johns parish and was instrumental in organizing the committee which held the first social in its aid. He is survived by his wife and family.

The U. S. Virginia arrived at the Boston Navy Yard on Tuesday for important repairs. The ship has been stationed at Vera Cruz since last May. The Georgian and New Jersey arrived several days ago.

GOES TO CANTON FOR A BRIDE

News comes from Canton that one of the prettiest weddings of the season took place Tuesday morning, when Miss Elizabeth M. Healy, daughter of Mrs. William Healy of Mechanic street became the bride of James C. Gallagher of Quincy. A nuptial mass was celebrated in St. John's Church by Rev. John J. Farrell, who also performed the marriage ceremony. The wedding party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's "Bridal Chorus," rendered on the organ by Miss Martha Harrington.

The bride was gowned in white duchesse satin with princess lace, and wore a veil and wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was Miss Florence Healy, sister of the bride. Miss Healy wore a gown of pale blue charmeuse, with a picture hat of black velvet and pale blue plumes. She carried a large bouquet of Kilarney roses.

The best man was Dr. N. A. Gallagher of Malden, brother of the groom. The ushers were C. S. Healy, Frederick Healy, D. J. Gallagher and Joseph Gallagher.

A wedding breakfast was served and a reeception held at the home of the bride's mother.

The young couple left town at noon for New York and Washington. They will be at home after Dec. 1, at 72 Spear street, Quincy. The bride has been the telephone operator here for five years, and is very popular. The groom is the captain of the Quincy Fire department.

FIFTY YEARS A MASON

Presentation to Editor Hawes of Weymouth

Martin E. Hawes, editor of the eWymouth Gazette, was signally honored by Orphans Hope lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Weymouth, at a special communication held in Masonic Temple Tuesday evening. The occasion was the celebration of Bro. Hawes' fiftieth year as a Mason, as well as his 33d consecutive year as chaplain of Orphans Hope lodge. He just attained his 80th birthday.

Worshipful Master George F. Farrar presided and in honor of the record as a Mason the lodge presented him with a purse of $105 in gold coin. The affair was a perfect surprise to the veteran, who was met at the outer door by a committee consisting of Wor. Frank A. Bicknell, Frank A. Torrey, T. John Evans, L. W. Bates, Charles W. Dunbar, Joseph Chase, Jr., W. P Denbroder, with Rt. Wor. Gardner R. P. Barker and Bros. Willard J. Dunbar, G. L. Barnes ,E. E. Bates and G. C. Drew and escorted to the East where the presentation was made by the Worshipful Master, to which Bro. Hawes feelingly responded.

A banquet followed the communication, at which J. Burton Reed was the toastmaster. Remarks were made by Grand Lecturer Frederic L. Pitnam, Senator George L. Barnes, Rev. L. W. Atwood and Gordon Willis. A male quartette furnished music.

HEN CASE IN COURT.

Joseph Grannatto, empolyed on the Castor Farm at Germantown, was arraigned in court this morning on the complaint of John McLellan, whose property adjoins the farm, on a charge of mutilating an animal. The complainant alleged that Grannatto shot a chicken which had strayed onto the Castor property, and then threw it over the fence, and that he threw it back. He testified the defendant picked it up, examined it and left it laying on the ground. A witness said that after the young Italian walked away the chicken revived.

The defendant admitted he shot the chicken, but through his attorney denied the cruelty, claiming he thought he had killed the chicken. Judge Avery dismissed the complaint on payment of $5 costs, and ordered $1 paid to McLennan for the chicken.

FIRE PROBABLY INCENDIARY

Discovered in Moore Cottage at Houghs Neck

A fire of probably incendiary origin was discovered in the Moore cottage on Rogers street, Houghs Neck, this morning. The blaze was in a closet under the sink and just inside the outside wall of the house.

The blaze had worked along the inside of the fence running around the posts supporting the house. The fire was extinguished without difficulty.

MRS. CHARLES F. PETTENGILL.

Mrs. Lizzie P. Pettingill, wife of one of Quincy's well known business men, Charles F. Pettingill, died suddenly at her home 53 Revere road, early this morning, the immediate cause of her death being a shock. Mr. and Mrs. Pettingill were out for the evening returning home about 10 o'clock. At that time Mrs. Pettingill was apparentl yin her usual health, although she has not been in the best of health since she sustained a shock some seven years ago.

Mr. Pettingill was aroused about 1.45 and immediately summoned a physician but she was beyond medical aid.

Mrs. Pettingill was born in Boston and was married Jan. 14, 1897, and have hade their home in Quinsy ever since. Besides a husband she leaves a mother, two brothers and a sister. Her brother J. F. Dunbar who was notified came immediately with his wife to Quincy. Mrs. Pettingill was a member of John Adams chapter D. A. R. Funeral services will be held from her late home Friday at 2.30.

HANCOCK STREET LAND VALUES

Most Valuable Lot in City Probably at Cor. of Granite Street, City Square

Hancock House Lot is Now Valued at $94,000

Up to the present time, taxpayers have only been able to compare their individual bills one year with another, and each probably thinks he is the one who is hardest hit. But today the Daily Ledger gives something that is more tangible and represents considerable work.

It is a comparison of the assessed values of each lot of land on the west side of Hancock street—the year 1914 with the year 1912. In some cases there have been transfers of estates and changes of area, so that comparisons are not always easy to make without considerable explanation. In six cases the areas have been reduced as marked with asterisks.

Whether the most valuable lot in the city is on the west side of Hancock street is not certain, but it is probably a fact. In that case the distinction belongs to the estate of the late Dr. Welch at the corner of Granite street, where the stores of N. G. Emanuel, Brown & Co., C. F. Pettengill and the Orent-Payson Co. are located. This lot of 7,775 feet, about the size of our ordinary house lot, is valued at $29,325, or $3.77 per square foot. This is an increase from $21,450 in 1912 when it was valued at $2.65 per square foot. The lot of Mrs. Welch adjoining, occupied by the Sherman store, is valued at $2.90 per foot.

The Hancock street front of the Hancock House, lot, owned by Henry M. Faxon, is undoubtedly valued higher, but the whole block bounded by Hancock street, Depot street, the depot yard and Saville street, containing 29,779 square feet, is valued at $94,000, or $3.15 per foot. This is an increase from $89,500 in 1912, when the value was just $3.00 per foot.

Speaks on National and State Extravagance

An enthusiastic reception was accorded the State candidates Wednesday night at the grand Republican rally in Music hall. For an hour previous to the rally an automobile containing a fife and drum corps, and burning red fire, paraded about City Square announcing the rally.

SAMUEL W. McCALL.

John R. Richards, president of the Republican City Committee presided, and on the platform aside from the speakers were ex-Senator Eugene C. Hultman, ex-Mayor Eugene R. Stone, City Auditor Henry O. Fairbanks, Mayor Joseph L. Whiton, John Q. A. Field, Walter E. Piper, Frank L. Badger, Charles H. Johnson, Dr. Bowker, W. R. Lakin, Harry W. Read, John D. Mackay, chairman of the School Committee; Representative Edward J. Sandberg, Councilman Charles A. Ericson, and others.

Members of the city committee acted as ushers, and this was an innovation that was appreciated by those who attended.

President Richards, in opening, briefly welcomed those present. He admit, he said that there was something wrong, and that conditions are not what they should be. We have here tonight men competent to tell you what the trouble is, and as the first speaker he introduced Guy A. Ham, candidate for Councillor.

Mr. Ham said that during the past few days his friends had been sending him pink circulars, among the announcements on which were that Timothy Guy gave the war whoop that started the war to free the colonies. He had always supposed that the American Revolution had something to do with it, but he now learned for the first time he was mistaken. Then again he has supposed that George Washington was the father of the country, but supposed that he had been mistaken. He humorously re-

CAMPBELL'S POLICIES

Outlined at Rousing Rally at Atlantic

The supporters of Chester I. Campbell, who is making such a vigorous fight for the Republican mayoralty nomination, were overjoyed at the size of the crowd and the enthusiasm that it showed to their candidate at a citizen's meeting held in Quincy school hall, at Atlantic, Wednesday evening. About 400 men and women were present and constantly they interrupted Mr. Campbell in his forceful convincing talk, to cheer him.

At no time since the opening of the Campbell campaign has the committee who is in charge of the campaign been more sanguine of victory. At the conclusion of last night's meeting Edward E. Palmer and William Coulson, who arranged the rally, announced to Mr. Campbell that the ward would go two to one in his favor on the day of the primaries.

Mr. Campbell made a clear cut, forceful talk on the needs of Quincy's government. He said that he believed that a man of broad experience was needed, and that he considered that he could meet this requirement because of the many large and varied commercial enterprises that he had successfully managed.

When I entered this contest it was made clear by me, that politics would make their exit from City Hall when I entered it as the chief executive, said Mr. Cambell. I have no quarrel with any politician or set of politicians, but I don't believe that Quincy would be getting what was coming to her if as chief executive my hands were tied by promises to politicians, or any other class of office seekers.

At no time since I began this race for the mayoralty chair have I promised a single office, or a favor to anyone, and I can say honestly that not a single one of the committee that inouced me to enter the fight or a member of the Quincy Business Administration have even suggested that so and so would be a good man for any particular job.

So you see I will have an absolutely free rein to guide the affairs of our municipality in a business way. No matter from what angle you view the difficulties of our city's government, you have got to get back to the fact that the fundamental basis of it all is a lack of business organization, administration and execution.

A business administration is the only pre-election promise that I have to offer you. I am not going to state that I will cut down your taxes, nor will I promise you a hundred and one improvements of which you are so sorely in need. These will all come in due time with the ample resources that we will have, once there is a harmonious, well organized, efficient business system carrying on the work in every department of our municipality.

If I am elected Mayor of Quincy my policy will be: Honesty and reliability in all of my transactions; punctuality and celerity in meeting the city's demands; Industry and energy in the prosecution of my work and the work of all city employees; Courtesy and cheerfulness towards all; accuracy in all official matters, and temperance in all things. I feel that any man who enters the Mayor's office with these qualities, and the firm intention to adhere to them, will succeed and the city will be better for it."

Councilman Charles W. Bailey was the first speaker. He told his audi-

CITY PROMOTION.

The question is often asked, what practical things can be done to advertise our city.

In some places the citizens wear "booster" buttons—except when they go out of the city where the advertising might do some good. Campaigns for new industries are very common, requiring interminable patience, usually a fund of money, and liberal treatment as to taxes and rent.

Some places take write-ups in trade papers. If these periodicals have a real circulation, this may have value. Frequently their circulation is confined to the people who buy the write-ups.

In some places business men unite in printing cuts of local scenes on their correspondence envelopes. If these cuts are attractive, the pictures tell a helpful story.

Other cities prepare a brief statement of the advantages of the place and put it on their stationery. If this is well written, made up of facts instead of fine writing, it will also perform its mission.

Many places put up big signs near the railroad station, with a town slogan. If the heart of the citys work can be concentrated in a few words, this has its effect.

The best way to advertise a city is by a general purpose on the part of its citizens to spread its good name and reputation on all possible occasions. Some people take every occasion to disparage and run down the home place. They think it shows discriminating judgment to speak in this slighting way. Such a town usually merits the disparagement that is given.

In other places, citizens are not ashamed to tell of the advantages they have at home. They commend its schools, churches, social life and business push. They send away programs of interesting events, pictures of attractive scenes, newspapers containing reports of notable events. Where a city has that spirit, it soon acquires a widespread reputation. It simply can't help growing.

CANDIDATE McCALL

ferred to the fact that there was a Ham in Noahs Ark. It was very appropriate that Mr. Guy should have a man like Lieut. Gov. Barry to speak for him, and that Guy should act for Barry. Mr. Ham then went on to say how the state which was governed by the machine represented by the Lieut. Governor was permeated with extravagance. The Council had considerable to do with appropriations and they should be carefully looked after. Mr. Ham spoke at length on the State and National issues and in closing said that if elected he would speak for himself and would not depend upon anyone to think and speak for him.

Charles L. Burrell candidates for state treasurer spoke particularly in relation to the office of State treasurer paying particular attention to the selling of State bonds over the counter, and of the idle talk made by the present treasurer for the sale of all outstanding bonds under the sinking fund system. He believed thoroughly in the serial bond system established by Elmer A. Stevens.

Senator Langelier took occasion to deny some of the statements made by his opponent which he declared were false. He disliked to enter into personalities but when he had been attacked he must answer. He repudiated the statements made by the Democratic candidate, and told of the important measures where his opponent who was in the House voted no. He also spoke of the letter of endorsement written to him by the labor lobby which was dated last July but which his opponent had stated was three years old. He had always been favorable to labor.

Speaking of his attitude on the grade crossing question he said when the bill came from the House there was no provisions for streets to cross over the tracks and that it provided that the City of Quincy should stand all of the expense for the mistakes of the state commission. He had moved the amendments which had perfected the bill.

County Commissioner Merrill spoke of some of the important duties of the County Commissioners, and also of the merchant marine legislation proposed by President Taft, which if it had passed would have been of great benefit to Quincy industries but which had been killed by the Democrats. He urged all to vote for the Republican candidates. There was never a more able man than Samuel W. McCall, Republican candidate for Governor.

Elmer A. Stevens for many years state treasurer, spoke at length on State and National issues, paying particular attention to the extravagance of the present administration in Washington. He told how the present tariff bill had injured New England industries as it was intended it should. That the Underwood tarriff bill did not bring the revenue it was expected to do, and that there was a deficit so that it was necessary to put another tax on the people or change the tariff bill. The latter would be admitting a mistake, so a new tax had been imposed.

The administration was in sore straits until the war broke out, then they had an excuse and laid everything to the war in Europe. The fact was however that the present business depression dated back from the first of the year and the war had nothing to do with it. The present tariff was driving business out of New England and this country. The voters had seen the handwriting on the wall, and would record their protest next Tuesday. The ladies he said go to Paris for their styles of dress, and some of them are mighty bad ones, and Paris Comes to America for our styles of shoes. Now with the cheapness of labor on the other side, and the fact that they were getting our styles our shoe industry is being ruined. He also spoke of the accumulation of useless laws by the State legislature so that today one law contradicted another and even the judges of our courts could not understand them, but they have the last say and have the best of us.

Candidate McCall entered the hall at this time and was given a rising reception and three cheers loud and long. Owing to the lateness of the hour however he only spoke about twenty minutes.

Candidate McCall scored the Walsh administration for the abrogation of the statutory provision that members of the Legislature may not be appointed to office that they themselves have created.

I am calling attention this year to the high cost of government which I believe is an important cause of the high cost of living. If Massachusetts paid only its per capita share of the national tax, and it pays more, the total cost per family in. Massachusetts of our different governments would be at least $175 a year which is a great percentage of the average wage. Economy has in it the making of great nations. Extravagance has in it the destruction of great empires.

The appropriations of the State for this year amounted to the sum of $19,000,000. That is nearly $5,000,000 more than the annual State appropriation four years ago.

Because money was not raised from current taxation to meet current revenue. In the very convenient way of transferring to the State Treasury some $400,000 acquired was a surplus out of prison industries.

"The effect of the rule of the Democratic party on high cost of government is accentuated by the operations of that party at Washington. Coming in upon a platform of denunciation of Republican extravagances and a promise of economy we see the cost of government this year when it is under complete democratic control $100,000,000 greater than it was under the last year of eRpublican ocntrol. And not content with drawing upon the scources heretofore used for national revenue they have arrogantly intruded upon the sources heretofore used for national revenue they have arrogantly intruded upon the sources of revenue heretofore reserved for the States and other local govrnments.

"The objections to the Underwood Tariff Bill are briefly stated. That it is framed upon no principles at all; it capriciously gives protection to some industries, and especially to those of the South, and puts other industries like the great boot and shoe industry entirely upon the free list. From the time it passed until the outbreak of the war it enormously increased the importation of foreign made goods which took the place of goods which would otherwise have been produced in American factories, by American workingmen, paid American wages.

"Recurring once more to State issues I wish to refer to two matters which seem to me of the utmost importance. There should not merely a halt be called to the increasing cost of government but also the piling up of laws which are a restraint upon individual freedom. An expanding society undoubtedly needs new laws but we can see evidence of the mania for legislation in the enormous size of our Blue Book. If we are to be governed at the rate of eleven hundred pages of new laws ever yyear the time is not vry far distant whn we shall all be made perfect by penal enactment and when the faculties which we received from the Crator will be supplanted by a new set of faculties conferred upon us by the Legislature.

The last speaker was Harry Howard candidate for congressman. He stated briefly that if elected he would work first, last and all of the time for New England and her industries.

NEWS ITEMS FROM MILTON

For the first time in the history of Milton High school, a school paper is being organized. For several years there has been considerable talk about this matter but it was not until this year that the first steps were taken. Much credit is due for the progress so far in this line to several members of the Senior class, who have been working diligently to accomplish it. A committee of twelve, three from each class, was recently chosen, to draw up a board of editors. This committee consisted of Kenneth D. Johnson, J. Randall Pratt, Edith Swift, Dorothy Fuller, Mary Kaufmann Bertha Muran, Langdon Parsons, Hazel Sprague, Gladys Kaufmann, William Hecker, Frances Gosselin and Wilfred Johnstone. The following is the editorial board for the paper chosen by this committee and approved of by the English teachers and Principal Charles L. Curtis:

Editor in chief—Kenneth D. Johnson.

Assistant editor—Dorothy Fuller.

Business manager—Milton Tucker.

Assistant Business manager—William Philbrick.

Exchange editor—Louis Gosselin.

Art editor—Helen Melley.

Athletic editor—Hugh Robertson.

Alumni editor—Rachael Farrington.

Subscription manager—J. Randall Pratt.

Assistant subscription manager—Ernesta Libby.

School notes editor—Mary Kaufmann.

The Room editors are as follows:

Room 1—Doris Pearce.
Room 2—Gladys Kaufmann.
Room 3—Majory Piper.
Room 7—Edith Swift.
Room 8—Frances Gosselin.
Room 9—Bertha Muran.
Room 13—Doris Hersey.

A new class for young men, between the ages of 16 and 20, has been organized in connection with the East Congregational church Sunday school The first meeting was held Saturday evening at the home of the teacher, Mr. McClaire, on Hollis street. The following were chosen as officers:—President,—Clarance Carlson; Secretary,—Walter Lakin; Treasurer,—Langdon Parsons. The name of the class will be the "Kemp Class," in memory of the late Mr. Kemp, for 27 years superintendent of the Sunday school. Some of the members are: Hugh Robertson, Clarance Carlson, Walter Lakin, Langdon Parsons, J. Randall Pratt, Paul Carlton, Kenneth Hecker, Louis Gosselin and Fred Grimes.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Baptist church was held Wednesday afternoon in the church parlor. Mrs. James G. Smith presided.

The Ladies' Aid society of the East Congregational church held their regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. James Kent on Granite place. HANCOCK STREET LAND VALUES

There is one other lot in the list that is valued at over $3.00 per foot, and that is the land owned by Henry M. Faxon between the Hancock cemetery and the Emanuel fruit store.

Another lot valued over $2.00 per square foot is the Greenleaf House block, corner of Granite street, at $2.20.

Other lots valued over $1.00 per square foot are the Quincy Department store at $1.97, the Wilson estate at $1.60, the Central building at $1.57, the lot in the rear of City Hall at $1.50 the Music Hall lot at $1.28, the John Hall lot at $1.04, the northerly corner of Saville street at $1.04.

None of the lots between School and Saville streets are valued at less than 45 cents.

North of Dimmock street none of the lots are valued over 25 cents, and only five at that figure. Many are 15 cents or less, and one less than four cents per square foot.

In dollars and cents the largest increase was on the Dr. Welch estate at the corner of Granite street, $7,875. Next on the lot in the rear of the Greenleaf on Granite street, $5950. Third on the Hancock House lot $4500, and the James H. Penniman estate opposite Merrymount park, $4,500. Fifth on the Faxon estate north of the Kincaide Theatre, $3,400.

No buildings are included in the value below. They are only mentioned to identify the property. The assessed land value of 1914 and 1912 are compared in the last two columns:

A glance at the vote on the License question for the past thirteen years furnishes food for considerable study. The figures as presented below show how the "No" votes has varied each year in each precinct of the city. That while the city has grown rapidly in population No vote has not always kept pace.

WARD ONE.

For instance in precinct one of Ward One of last year it will be noticed that the No vote falls behind that of 1910 ,although it was larger than in 1912. From 1901 up to and including 1906 the No vote in this precinct was well up toward 300, the lowest being 222 in 1901 and the highest 280 in 1906. From then on the vote has been rising 300 every year.

In precinct two the No vote of 1913 was a record breaker being the highest No vote ever cast in this precinct. With one or two exceptions this precinct has lead the ward in its No vote.

WARD TWO.

The Quincy Point ward affords some interesting facts for consideration. In precinct one, the precinct in which the Fore River shipyard is located, the No vote instead of increasing as in most wards has been growing smaller, showing the need of some missionary work in that precinct.

On the other hand precinct two, while showing a falling off in the No vote, the vote for No has always been considerably larger than in precinct one.

WARD THREE.

The No vote in precinct one in 1913 shows quite a falling off from the previous year although, being the smallest No vote since 1906. In that year the vote was 289 but the following year something seems to have happened to arouse sentiment for the vote the following year jumped t 344.

Precinct two has not varied much in its No vote since 1901, ranging from 223 in that year to 241 in 1913.

WARD FOUR.

This ward in which the license vote has always received considerable at tention, showed a falling off in 1913 from the previous year in the No vote In fact the No vote of last year was the smallest it has been since 1901 the nearest year being 1912. From 1901 to 1910 the No vote showed a steady increase but since then it has been dropping.

In precinct two results have al most been the same, and while the year 1913 was not the smallest No vote since 1901 it came within one of it.

WARD FIVE.

This ward has always been the banner ward for No. Up to the time the ward was divided into precincts in 1909 it has given a large No vote. Since that time precinct one has continued to give a No vote ranging from 410 to 449 and instead of 1913 showing a falling off it shows an increase. In Precinct Two there has been slight falling off from the previous year but as a rule the precinct has increased its No vote.

WARD SIX.

This ward voted by precincts for the first time in 1902 and the vote for No in precinct one has been steadily growing, although in one or two years it has shown a falling off, but what was lost that year was gained the following year.

In precinct Two the No vote of 1913 was the largest since the ward was divided, being 244. It has given a No vote of over 200 several years, although it has fallen below that number in several years.

THE YES VOTE.

A similar comparison of the Yes vote on the License question is given below:

WARD ONE

In but seven years has precinct one given over one hundred votes for Yes. That is 1901, '02, '07, '08, '09, '12, and '13. In all of the other years it has been less than 100. Precinct two, however, has always given over 100 for Yes, the largest Yes vote being in 1913 when it went to 230, which was two larger than in the previous year.

WARD TWO

The Yes vote in precinct one has grown from 59 in 1901 to 116 in 1913. Up to and including the year 1907 it gave Yes less than 100, but since that time the Yes vote has been climbing. In precinct two, the Yes vote has been over 100 since 1906, the Yes vote of 1913 being the largest in the list.

WARD THREE

This ward, especially precinct one, has not changed much, although last year there was a very large increase in the Yes vote, that is from 113 in 1912 to 227 in 1913. This preeinct has always given between one and two hundred Yes votes. Precinct two also showed a large increase in the Yes vote last year, but not as large an increase as the other precinct.

WARD FOUR.

While the increase in the Yes vote in precinct one was considerable it was not so large as in Ward three. Yet at the same time it was the largest Yes vote the precinct ever gave since 1901.

Precinct two also showed an increase last year in the Yes vote, the increase being from 184 to 190, six votes. It was also the largest Yes vote in this precinct since 1901.

WARD FIVE

Ward five has always given a small Yes vote. Up to the time the ward was divided into precincts, the Yes vote reached the 100 mark but once, that was in 1901. Since then precinct one has never given over 45 for Yes that of 1913 being even smaller than the previous year.

In precinct two the Yes vote shows a decrease of twelve over the previous year although it is larger than in the years 1909, '10, and '11.

WARD SIX

Precinct one of this ward shows an increase in the Yes vote of 1913 from the previous year, and quite a large increase from the year 1912, showing that some missionary work is necessary.

The same is true of precinct two, although the Yes vote in this precinct in 1913 was smaller than in 1912, and is considerable smaller than it was in 1902 the first year the ward voted by precincts.

Question Cleared Up

Quincy Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

Again and again we have read of strangers in distant towns who have been cured by this or that medicine. But Quincy's pertinent question has always been "Has anyone here in Quincy been cured?" The word of a stranger living a hundred miles away may be true, but it cannot have the same weight with us as the word of our own citizens, whom we know and respect, and whose evidence we can so easily prove.

Mrs. George Atkinson, 80 Main street, Quincy, says: "One of my family had trouble from weak kidneys caused by his work. He also suffered from backache. He used six boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured him. He don't complain at all now. We give all the credit for this cure to Doan's Kidney Pills. We keep a supply in the house all the time."

W. F. Field and Miss Helen Stoddard Married

A pretty wedding in which many Quincy people are interested was solemnized at the Emanuel chapel of the Episcopal church in Portland, Me., Tuesday evening when William F. Field of Quincy was united in marriage to Miss Helen Woodman Stoddard of Portland, Me., the ceremony being performed by Very Rev. Farnk L. Vernon, D. D.

Walter G. Field of Quincy was the best man and the bride was attended by Miss Helen Snow and Miss Helen Barry as bridesmaids and Mrs. Field the matron of honor. The ushers at the church were Fred H. Gabbi and John H. Wildes, and the ceremony was witnessed by eighty or more of the immediate friends of the bridal party.

A reception followed the ceremony after which Mr. and Mrs. Field left for a brief trip through the Berkshires in Mr. Field's automobile, returning from which they will reside at 28 Richie road, Quincy.

The bride wore an ivory satin gown with tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. The matron of honor wore a nile green satin with over dress of white point lace, a picture hat of nile green satin with a silver lace.

The reception was held at the home of the bride and they were assisted in receiving by her parents,. Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Stoddard. Refreshments were served by the young ladies club of which the bride was a member, Mrs. W. G. Marston and Miss Ivy H. Keene serving ices.

The bride is a graduate of the Portland High school and is very popular with the younger set of Portland.

TO GIVE THANKS FOR BLESSINGS

President Officially Designates Nov. 26 as Holiday

AT PEACE WITH THE WORLD

Proclamation Dwells on Prosperous Situation In Which America Now Finds Herself, While Much of Rest of World Is at War—Nation Stirred to Helpful Co-operation

Washington, Oct. 29.—President Wilson issued a proclamation designating Thursday, Nov. 26, as Thanksgiving day. It says in part:

It has long been the honored custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. The year, while a year of discipline, because of the mighty forces of war and of change which have disturbed the world, also has been a year of special blessings for us.

It has been vouchsafed to us to remain at peace, with honor, and in some part to succor the suffering and supply the needs of those who are in want. We have been privileged by our own peace and self-control in some degree to study the counsels and shape the hopes and purposes of a day of fear and distress. Our people have looked upon their own life as a nation with a deeper comprehension, a fuller realization of their responsibilities as well as of their blessings, and a keener sense of the moral and practical significance of what their part among the nations of the world may come to be.

The hurtful effects of foreign war in their own industrial and commercial affairs have made them feel the more fully and see the more clearly their mutual interdependence upon one another and has stirred them to a helpful co-operation such as they have seldom practised before. They have been quickened by a great moral stimulation. Their unmistakable ardor for peace, their earnest pity and disinterested sympathy for those who are suffering, their readiness to help and to think of the needs of others, has revealed them to themselves as well as to the world.

Our crops will feed all who need food; the self-possession of our people amidst the most serious anxieties and difficulties and the steadiness and resourcefulness of our business men will serve other nations as well as our own.

The business of the country has been supplied with new instrumentalities and the commerce of the world with new channels of trade and intercourse. The Panama canal has been opened to the commerce of the nations. The two continents of America have been bound in closer ties of friendship. New instrumentalities of international trade have been created which will be also new instrumentalities of acquaintance, intercourse and mutual service.

Never before have the people of the United States been so situated for their own advantage or the advantage of their neighbors or so equipped to serve themselves and mankind.

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-sixth of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and invite the people throughout the land to cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks to Almighty God.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States to be affixed.

BOTHA TO LEAD FIGHTING

England Alarmed by New Uprising In South Africa

London, Oct. 29.—No attempt was made to minimize the seriousness of the latest revolt in South Africa. While the government is confident it will speedily be put down, there is a strong feeling that it will be much more of a struggle than has been the scotching of the Maritz rebellion.

The new leaders, Generals De Wet and Beyers, have a strong local following in the Orange Free State and western Transvaal. The admission by the war office that Premier Botha has himself gone to the front to lead the fighting against the new rebels indicates that the government has no intention of treating the revolt lightly.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

Mrs. Dennis Leahy of Canton, Mass., died as a result of burns she received while cleaning clothing with gasoline. The gasoline exploded, setting fire to her dress.

Joseph A. Gahm and Frank H. Jenkins were appointed receivers for the estate of C. M. Rimbach of the Crawford House, Boston, who is missing. The liabilities amount to $65,000.

Hagerstown, Md., was visited by a fire which caused a loss of more than $400,000.

As the inventor passed through Mount Clemens he stepped into the telegraph operator's office and tapped off a message to his children in New Jersey.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

For those who find it hard to apply themselves to the study of history, but who enjoy learning about the events of bygone years, the historical novel gives an excellent opportunity. These are novels in which some of the more interesting events of history are interwoven with imaginary events Sometimes just snatches of history are brought in to make the work seem more real. At other times the lines of the novel follow very closely the actual history, battles are graphically detailed and good character sketches of men are given.

Some books which are timely on account of the present European War have recently been added to the library. One of these is "The Iron Year" by Walter Bloem, which describes the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. King William of Germany and several generals of each army take part in this story, which ends with the surrender of Strassburg.

"When William Came" by H. H. Munroe is a story which depicts London under the rule of William of Germany, and shows the effect a German conquest would have over the English mind.

Frederick Palmer has written a book called "The Last Shot," in which he "attempts to familiarize the public with the new symbols of warfare to show the effects of war in the 'nth degree of modern organizations and methods on a group of men and women." To do this he pictures war as it would be if two European Nations turned against each other.

The last is "War" by W. Douglas Newton. Rudyard Kipling has honored this book with an introduction, and Robert Hugh Benson has written a preface for it. It pictures the actualities of war with all the horrors, the brutality and the outrages committed in its name—Samuel Abbott calls it a cinematographic book on war and recommends that it be read by all Americans who hate war.

There is other historical fiction among the books listed on the European War. These books have been placed on the ledge at the left of the Registration desk.

TEACHERS CONVENTION.

The annual meeting of the Norfolk County Teachers association will be held in Ford Hall, Boston, on Friday and in order that the teachers of the Quincy schools may attend there will be no session of the public schools on that day. Devotional exercises will be conducted at Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, and music by the Hoffman Trio. The addresses at the convention will be, "Teachers Made Over," by William McAndrew, principal of the Washington Irving high school New York. George Strayer, Ph. D. of Teachers College, Columbia University, will talk on the social purpose of education in theory and practise. A the afternoon session Mary Antin will speak on "The Foreigner in the school and How to Make the Most of Him.' Business of the association will be conducted in the last hour.

John C. Davis of Canton is president of the association. The other officers are: Vice-president, Arthur S. Townsend, Quincy; George F. Weston Jr., Dedham; Earl M. Benson, Wellesley; secretary, Bertha M. Cunningham, Weymouth; treasurer, Clarence Boylston, Milton.

SPECIAL CLASSES.

The School Committee at its last meeting took the initial steps toward the organization of one or more special classes to be located in central points about the city where pupils who are slightly sub-normal may receive instruction especially adapted to their type of mental development. Under present circumstances such a child in an ordinary or crowded class room has little opportunity either for individual instruction or for careful study of his needs. The Superintendent and grammar masters had already made a preliminary study of the situation sufficient to make plain the great opportunity that was open in this direction and the superintendent has now been authorized to make a careful investigation of the needs and possibilities and make report later.

FINANCIAL STANDING.

Following the monthly financial report at the School Committee meeting on Tuesday, the secretary made a report on the probable expenditures required to complete the school years compared with the resources available. It appeared that the appropriation for instruction or teachers salaries will fall short by over $2000 of the amount required to pay the next two pay rolls, while the other items in the budget aided by the miscellaneous receipts that are credited to the School Department each year will just barely take care of the expenses for the balance of the year in those particular departments. The School Commitee therefore find it necessary to ask the City Council for an additional $2000 in order that the year may be closed with all bills paid. It will be remembered at the beginning of the year that $2000 was the amount cut from the School Committee Budget, though a most carefully detailed estimate, taken school by school, showed that the amount called for would be required.

Jim Olindy broke into the bowling limelight at the Wardwell alleys Wednesday evening by getting a total of 373 in three strings. The mark surpassed all previous ones attained consecutively. Olindy got 130 in his first, 136 in his second and 107 in the third. He was in fine fettle, got the drops and bought up all possible spares. The fans who gathered about the settees during the match were jubilant over his remarkable showing, all acknowledging he had a little something on the thin ones, during the rolloff at least. Olindy's new record will probably stand for some time to come and will be shelved with the joint single record of 149 held by Michael Hennessey and Dennis Murphy, the latter of the Quincy council, Knights of Columbus team.

FUNERAL OF JOSEPH DORLEY.

The funeral of Joseph Dorley a respected resident if Quincy Point, who died at the Quincy City Hospital following a short illness, took place from his home at 34 River street this morning and was largely attended.

A high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Johns church by Rev. Fr. John J. Coan, pastor. The musical portion of the mass was the Gregorian chant sung by the regular choir under the direction of John Mahon organist. The soloist were Mrs. Mary Burns King and Miss Eva Rice. Among those present was a delegation of members of the Holy Name Society of St. Johns parish and Representative Michael T. Sullivan.

The floral remembrances were received from relatives and friends of all parts of the city and completely filled a landeau.

The bearers were Herbert, John, Jeremiah and William Pitts and Michael and John Dorley. Burial was in St. Marys cemetery.

TENNIS CLUB BOWLING

The Wollaston Tennis Club bowling league rolled at the Coliseum alleys Wednesday evening. The four matches developed into enthusiastic contests. Scores didn't run very high and only a few singles went over the century mark. The winning team took all four points.

The Geddes five took all four points from the Litchfields, Geddes being the only man passing 280 in his total.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

The jolliest of Hallowe'en parties was in the form of a surprise party for Miss Mabel Jilbert at her home on Baxter street, the twenty-eight young people making merry until midnight. Miss Jilbert was presented with a gold bracelet by Miss Edith Avery in behalf of those present. The rooms and table decorations were most elaborate with the Hallowe'en color scheme of yellow and black. In the centre of the table was a huge pumpkin from which the favors were drawn making no end of fun and there were appropriate place cards of witches and black cats. Ice cream, cake, fancy crackers and apples were served. The usual stunts and tricks were accomplished, numerous games played, and dancing enjoyed. Miss Marjorie Brooks, Miss Edith Avery and Miss Minnie Laing had charge of the affair. Miss Jilbert was given a large bunch of chrysanthemums my Miss Brooks in behalf of those present.

Mayor Whiton Calls the Offer of G. B. Bates

Candidates for the various offices met at a union rally of the Houghs Neck Associates at the beach Wednesday night, and all indulged in a "slam test" to the amusement of the large crowd gathered. Strong statements were made by all speakers, and among those who participated in the engagement was Mayor Joseph L. Whiton.

Gustave B. Bates, who seeks Mayoralty honors, said he would, if elected, furnish a bond of $50,000 guaranteeing to keep the tax rate down to $18 providing anyone would meet him half way with a $25,000 bond that he couldn't do it, the money to be paid over to charity by the loser.

Mayor Whiton, later in the evening said he would accept Mr. Bates' proposition and would make a side bet of $100 he couldn't collect the assessment on his proposed increase of his proposed increase of $10,000,000 valuation of the New Haven property in this city.

"Why," said Mayor Mhiton, "that kind of talk is all rot, any anyone who believes that kind of stuff is a nut."

Charles H. Johnson said he defied any man to show him he was not the logical candidate for the Republican mayorality nomination. Gus Bates offered to, but was not allowed. He said Tilden was the choice of one or two business men and not a body of citizens, and he said one of the parties instrumental in getting him into the fight was a tall business man who had secured the bulk of certain business during a preceding administration through discrimination. Candidate Johnson said he had always voted a Republican ticket and he intimated that Mayor Whiton had jumped the traces of the Republican party.

Mayor Whiton tartly replied later and said "the coat fits me, and I will wear it," and he said he never again would be known as anything but an independent voter.

Charles W. Proctor, Senatorial candidate, Senator Langelier and Representative Sullivan clashed on state issues.

Candidate Proctor said Langelier was one of the three men who signed the paper given to Attorney General Boynton intimating the decree of the commission favoring the elevation of grade crossings was the entire sentiment of the city.

Langelier in reply said he had proof that he had supported depression of tracks and said he overlooked bringing a newspaper stating in its headlines "Langelier fights valiantly for the grade crossing bill."

Representative Sullivan corroborated Candidate Proctors statement as to Senator Langelier being one of the three who put up the intimation to the Attorney General which resulted in his signature being appended for the State, and that City Solicitor Pinkham was one of the other two Representative Sullivan said, as far as he knew, Langelier never appeared before a committee or spoke in favor of the depression plan.

Representative Sullivan and Representative Sandberg represented a part of the city not concerned in the grade crossing controversy as both under discussion were in Ward One and Three and because of that he should have been told of the conference Senator Langelier, Representative Sullivan and City Solicitor Pinkham had with the Attorney General when they said the decree of the commission was in keeping with the sentiment of the city.

Edward Powers, who proposes to make a run for the office of Mayor spoke for several minutes in his own behalf. When he learned that Henry F. Tilden, candidate for the Republican nomination, was ill at his home he said he hoped he was not still suffering from the effects of the hot shot fired at him at the Squantum rally Tuesday night.

CAMPBELL'S POLICY

ence that it wasn't a question of what man they wanted for Mayor so much as what kind of a man should be elected. One of the first and most important things that the voters must decide is whether or not the man they vote for is the sort of a person who has the ability and experience to execute the affairs of the city, declared Councilman Bailey. I have every reason to believe that Chester I. Campbell is the kind of a man the voters are seeking, and after he gets through talking with you this evening you will agree with me.

George Taylor of Wollaston in his inimitable manner provoked a lot of laughter, and at the same time drove home with telling force some vital points that brought the crowd to a high pitch of enthusiasm. His humorous description of the promises and the lack of qualifications that the other candidate demonstrated to him, was a classic.

A. L. Stinson, said that Quincy needed some dignified, official advertising. This old city of ours has some wonderful natural resources, which if advertised in a dignified manner would wake people up in all sections of the country to the possibilities of commercial activity in Quincy.

Chester I. Campbell is an expert in this line. He would do more for Quincy's commercial life in one year than all the preceding Mayor have done since the town government disappeared, and the city was born. He has got the punch. He does big things and I honestly believe that the great city of Boston has never had a chief executive who had more energy and ability to administrate and execute its affairs than Chester I. Campbell.

An unsigned political handbill was distributed in the hall before the crowd arrived. When Mr. Campbell's attention was called to it he refused to make any comment other than to say, It is a sign that my enemies are beginning to fear the results.

MILTON BRIDE QUINCY GROOM

Miss Amelia Nelson and W. H. Woodward Married

Miss Amelia Gertrude Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Nelson of Milton, was united in marriage Wednesday to Walter H. Woodward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Woodward of Robertson street. The ceremony took place at the Trinity church Boston, Rev. Alexander Mann officiating, and was witnessed by the immediate family friends. Miss Annie Nelson, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and the groom was attended by his father.

The bride wore a white messaline, with long tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms, and carried a prayer book. The bridesmaid wore a pink messaline and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the groom in West Quincy after which they left for a brief trip returning from which they will reside on Cypress road, Milton, where they will be at home after Dec. 1.

QUINCY--REVERE TOMORROW.

The football team of Quincy High school is ready for the game at Merrymount oval Friday afternoon with the strong Revere High and in preparation for the event have put in a week of steady practice during which they have perfected their mass plays and new formations.

The game will be called at 2.30, one hour earlier than usual, because most of the games have been finished in twilight.

The students of the school held a mass meeting in the assembly hall today to rehearse the cheers and songs. Remarks were made by teachers, rooters and players.

The management of the team feels confident that the students will turn out en masse for the game and establish a record for attendance.

Lincoln	2	0	3	4
Willard	2	0	2	4
Bryant	0	0	3	0

Twenty-five games have been played in the grammar school soccer series, and 11 postponed on account of rain, will be played off within two weeks. The addition of wings to the goal posts resulted in 16 games being played before any of the teams tied. The regular goal counts two and the wings one point. In the National league, Hancock and Montclair, Cranch and Wollaston, tied and the Adams and Massachusetts Field schools tied in the American.

The Washington school has another hold on the title this year and heads the National league with five wins and no losses. The Massachusetts Fields school appear to be the comers in the American league, no loses being chalked against them. The indications are that Washington and the Fields school meet in the World's series and that the former will again take the pennant, which the school has held continuously since the game was introduced.

The balance of schedule follows:

BIRD SANCTUARY.

Quincy bird lovers are much interested in the new bird sanctuary at Hingham. F. W. Coburn in a recent issue of the Boston Transcript has the following comments on it:

"The peninsula between Weymouth Back River and Hingham Harbor, is being posted with signs stating under the name of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, that "for the protection and propagation of wild birds and quadrupeds this area has been made a State reservation" in accordance with the provisions of chapter 410, Acts of 1911. Here, right in Boston's backyard, is an area of remarkably varied cover on which for all time birds of this habitat may moult and multiply. To traverse it with our Epops—that is, with Mr. Pope, who as naturalist and as representative of the Downer estate has been the prime mover in securing this reservation—one is impressed with the opportunities the place offers: ponds and inlets for the breeding of ducks, thickets in which quail and partridges might nest; stretches of beach grass suitable for shore birds; orchards and gardens wherein henceforth the songsters' nests will be guarded against marauders and amateur ornithologists. Part of the area belongs to the United States Government, whose ammunition is stored along the easternmost of the Weymouth rivers. The rest is comprised of private estates of which the Peter B. Bradley place is the largest. All the landowners of the peninsula have given their consent to such control as the Massachusetts Commissioners on Fisheries and Game must exercise in order that the sanctuary may be genuinely sacrosanct.

"Perhaps the most interesting exhibits at present are the young wild ducks which have been growing to maturity on the ponds of the Bradley estate. As they come greedily in response to the scattering of a handful of corn, it is difficult to appreciate that they are not common or garden ducks such as waddle in backyards of Revere or Saugus. It is thought that they may stay here altogether. Even if they go away temporarily they will return to nest in a locality which they have discovered to be safe.

"As this is the first bird sanctuary of its kind established in Greater Boston, and one of the largest to be projected anywhere, it may be well to review the conditions under which such a reservation may be formed. The commissioners may authorize in writing any deputy or any owner or occupant of land within the territory to hunt and kill any quadrupeds or birds deemed harmful to the peace and welfare of the bird community. It is, of course, unlawful for anyone else under any conditions whatsoever 'to molest, hunt, pursue, take or kill any bird or quadruped within the said territory, or therein to disturb or injure any nest, eggs or young or to remove the eggs or young from the nest.'

The commissioners last August examined the Hingham hinterland and found it good. While the district contains a good many residences of humans, these are mostly of the peaceful commuter kind who can be trusted not to violate the neutrality of the kingdom of Birdland. No pan-suburban movement is in sight to threaten the profound tranquility in the midst of which the new realm enters upon its existence. All the neighbors think the reservation idea a good one; some of them have suffered in the past from poaching pothunters. Naturalists, who have listened with interest to tales of the good things accomplished by Mr. Harold Baynes's little bird sanctuary in New Hampshire, are enthusiastic about this large reservation close to New England's largest city. With this latest addition to plans for protecting the wild life that has heretofore been sadly decimated, everybody is pleased, including, of course, the feathered subjects of our good King Epops of Crow Point.

Political candidates who do not use the advertising columns, should not expect the newspapers to report in detail all their little rallies.

Advance publicity for entertainments, dances, campaigns etc., is advertising, and newspapers should be recompensed.

Don't send printed programs (printed out of town) to the Daily Ledger, just to get an advance notice. It is like waving a red rag in front of a bull.

We appreciate invitations to entertainments and gatherings, but free advertising should not be expected in advance even if a ticket is sent.

Be loyal to your friend, the newspaper, and see that it is given fair play.

INVASION OF POLAND ENDS IN DISASTER

Austro-German Army Overcome by Russian Hordes

DISASTER BUT LITTLE LESS THAN COLOSSAL

Invaders Who Were Within Seven Miles of Warsaw Are Now More Than Fifty Miles Away, Broken and Disheartened—Dead, Wounded, Guns and Stores Abandoned After Furious Resistance For Seven Days—Russians Gain Advantage by Having Fresh Troops to Fill Depleted Ranks—German Wave of Conquest Believed to Have Passed—Frightful Carnage In Struggle For Possession of River Yser

London, Oct. 29.—The German host that so confidently rushed against Warsaw has been smashed by the Russian hordes.

Slowly, but certainly, the last desperate attempts of the Germans and Austrians to hold their lines in southern Poland have been overcome by the tremendous new army corps that have been hurled against them.

Here and there, especially on one section of the Pilitza river, the invaders are fighting stubbornly. But these scattered remnants of a once great army are merely forlorn hopes, for to the north and the south their comrades are rushing in mad haste toward the friendly German provinces of Posen and Silesia.

The situation in the blood-drenched regions of Belgium and France, where the wrestling armies are still obstinately striving for mastery, is of less importance than the terrific struggle in faraway Poland, where a death-blow to German hopes appears to have been delivered by the irresistible onslaught of the Russian hordes.

Berlin Admits Disaster

Hopeful dispatches from Petrograd were at first believed to be over-optimistic, but when the official statement came from Berlin that confirmed the retirement of the Germans and Austrians, it was no longer possible to doubt the Russian messages.

After the crushing defeat sustained by the Germans in their attempt to invade the Russian province of Suwalki, Berlin contented its worried populace by stating that the German troops were falling back for strategic purposes. The official bulletin from the German capital, read in the light of previous events, indicates that the disaster in Rusisan Poland is little less than colossal.

Days ago the Germans, who came within seven miles of Warsaw and who prophesied that within a few hours they would be revelling in the Polish capital, are now between fifty and seventy-five miles away, broken and disheartened, harried by the Cossacks and hearing in their ears the rumble of the advancing Russian infantry and artillery as they roll westward toward Posen.

Rolled Back In South

Undaunted by this crushing defeat, the Germans and Austrians further to the south have continued their furious resistance for seven days. Now they, too, are being rolled back, abandoning their dead and wounded, their guns and their stores as they seek safety in Silesia.

Lodz, the most important Polish city taken by the invaders, was captured several days ago by large bodies of Russian cavalry. But south of the Pilitza river the invaders held their ground, checking charge after desperate charge that was hurled against them.

Evidently, however, the new Russian army that was gathered weeks ago has been able to resch the fighting zone, for both Russian and German dispatches tell about fresh troops that were being hurried across the Vistula. The overwhelming numbers told and the Austrians and Germans fell back to a second line, driven out of cities, towns, forests and swamps to a line running north and south from Radom.

Russians Have Fresh Troops

Radom fell on Tuesday after hours of furious fighting in which the losses were tremendous. But always were there fresh Russian troops to fill the depleted gaps in their lines, while the war-worn invaders had to fight on without hope of reinforcements.

Mile after mile the resistance was overcome and the great battle line has been battered westward until the Germans and Austrians are at places beyond the Russian boundary lines and nearly everywhere else they are being toppled backward.

In Galicia the Austrians are still holding their positions along the river San and Russian shells continue to screech above the battered forts at Przemysl. Cholera has, it is reported, come to the aid of the Przemysl garrison and compelled the besiegers to slacken their assaults.

In East Prussia the resumption of the German offensive movement has been checked, while the Austrian advance through the Carpathians into Galicia has been stopped.

FOOD FOR BELGIANS

American Commission Ships Thousand Tons From England

The Dutch ship Coblenz sailed from London for Rotterdam with the first 1000 tons of food purchased by the American commission for the relief of the Belgian people.

Coincident with the departure of this ship, the Belgian government announced that hereafter all movements for supplying Belgium with food must be conducted through the American commission, which is the sole body authorized by all governments concerned, both belligerents and neutrals, to perform this task.

The announcement was made because a group of wealthy Ostend residents, wishing to contribute $100,000, failed to get in touch with the commission until they had cabled to Washington.

All contributions and supplies will be under the protection of the American and Spanish diplomatic representatives, but the actual work of distribution will be in the hands of the American commission.

KROONLAND HELD UP

Probably Due to Question of Copper as Contraband Cargo

The detention of the Red Star liner Kroonland by a British warship at Gibraltar was reported to the state department at Washington by the American consul at Gibraltar.

The Kroonland, an American built and American owned vessel, was carrying a cargo of 1500 tons of copper from New York to Naples. No reason was given for her detention.

State department officials pointed out that, while copper has been placed on the conditional contraband list, Great Britain has no right to detain an American vessel headed for a neutral port, no matter what her cargo is.

EMDEN'S EIGHTEENTH

Japanese Steamer the Latest Victim of German Cruiser

The German cruiser Emden sank the Japanese liner Kamegasaki-Maru in the Indian ocean while the latter was proceeding to Singapore from Japanese ports.

The Emden up to the present time has to her credit the sinking of fourteen British steamers, the capture of three other vessels flying the Union Jack, and the sinking of this Japanese steamer—eighteen in all.

The Emden continues to evade the pursuing column made up of twenty British and French warships and nearly the total reserve strength of the Japanese navy.

OKUMA WARNS JAPAN

Wants Bigger Army and Navy Prepared For Any Emergency

At a meeting of party leaders at Tokio, Premier Okuma delivered an address urging the immediate expansion of the Japanese army and navy in order to enable the imperial government to act quickly in the event of an emergency.

It is expected that the new budget, to be introduced soon, will contain the largest military fund Japan has known in many years.

FIFTY LIVES SACRIFICED

Air Pumps In Burning Mine Reversed to Save 285 Men

Royalton, Ills., Oct. 29.—The disaster at the mine of the Franklin Coal and Coke company, from the workings of which forty-seven bodies have been recovered and where probably fifty men perished, was caused by the explosion by a miner's lamp of a pocket of gas located the night before by a mine inspector and marked dangerous:

A large proportion of the dead were sacrificed, it is said, in order to save the lives of nearly 300 others in more distant workings. Reversal of the air pumps saved 285 miners scattered among the galleries at the expense of dooming to death those in the zone of the explosion who escaped being disabled and were trying to reach the air shaft.

Reversal of the air pumps kept the main workings free of afterdamp, but most of the dead, it is thought, were thereby forced to become victims.

LEE JURY DISAGREEES

Attendant Charged With Causing Death of Insane Patient

Boston, Oct. 29.—A disagreement was reported in the case of Henry F. Lee, an attendant at Pierce Farm, who was charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Charles R. Brown, an insane patient, who was found to have sustained eight broken ribs and a broken bone in the neck.

No announcement was made by the district attorney's office as to whether there will be another trial of the case. Lee was taken back to jail pending a decision on this point.

Eighteen Hurt In Train Wreck

Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 29.—Eighteen persons were hurt, five seriously, when a train from Richmond and Washington jumped into a ditch near here. A broken flange on the day coach is blamed.

GEN. VON FALKENHAYN.

Acting Chief of German General Staff Since Illness Of General von Moltke.

This is the man who is now the chief of staff to Kaiser Wilhelm. It is now his task to finish the remarkable campaigns started by his military predecessor, Count von Moltke, who is reported to be suffering from a chronic illness which has incapacitated him for the position of chief of staff.

With winter here to aid the Russians, with the apparent shattering defeat of all the German offensive movements, and with the slackening of the German attack in Belgium and France, there is a confident feeling in London that the high tide of the German wave of conquest has passed and that they will hereafter, except for sporadic efforts, wage a defensive fight.

In Belgium and France the slackening of the assaults that have been so persistently hammered against the allies gives further proof that not even the war-mad general staff of the German armies can blind their eyes to the terrific sacrifices that they have been making in their futile effort to smash their way to the French channel ports.

In the battle of Flanders alone, the struggle that has been waged for the possession of the river Yser in Belgium, the German reports state that the Belgians have lost no less than 10,000 men. English correspondents maintain that the Germans have lost 16,000 in killed and 30,000 in wounded and prisoners.

The losses of the French and British have been appalling, although the little Belgian army has faced the most staggering German attacks. Hardly in the history of warfare have such terrific losses been known.

Strain Less Severe on Allies

That the allies have been able to stand the strain better than the Germans is indicated in the latest official statements. Sixteen British warships have been patrolling the Belgian coast and so destructive has been their firing that the invaders appear to have abandoned their attempt to hack a way to Dunkirk between Nieuwport and Dixmude. There are slight indications that they are massing to break a passage through Ypres, but north of this historic town the allies were able to gain ground.

Reinforcements and heavy guns are coming up to the aid of the Germans at Roulers, but the allies are now so strongly entrenched that it is believed the German assaults will fail.

An attempt to feel out the French defenses about Craonne resulted disastrously for the invaders, who lost 2000 men in one attack. Berlin maintains that some ground was gained in the forest of Argonne, while Paris reports that the French drew closer to the nearly isolated German post at St. Mihiel on the Meuse.

A move on Metz is now planned by the French in Alsace and Lorraine. At points along the battle line in these provinces the opposing forces are separated by so short a distance that the men are able to shout back and forth to each other.

WHITLOCK'S GREAT ACT

Induced Germans to Spare the Great Buildings at Antwerp

To Brand Whitlock, the American minister to Belgium, is due the credit for saving the cathedral and the art galleries, churches, theatres and public buildings in Antwerp during the recent bombardment of that city by the Germans.

When the Germans approached Antwerp Whitlock asked the German commander, General von Der Goltz, to spare the historic buildings. Thereupon von Der Goltz agreed to use his good offices in this respect if Whitlock would prepare maps for the German aeroplanists in order that they might direct the firing.

Henry W. Diedrich, the American consul general, then arranged a number of large maps on which were indicated the points which it was desired should be avoided by the German shells.

The German shooting was so skillful that the palace of justice was the only large government building struck during the bombardment. Two shells hit it, but they did only slight damage.

SULLIVAN CASE IS ONE FEATURE

Investigation of Sing Sing Will Be of Broad Character

WITNESSES ARE HUNTED UP

Wanted to Testify In Case of Bank Wrecker Who Is Said to Have Gone Riding With Warden McCormick and to Have Conferred Outside of Prison With Confidential Clerk

New York, Oct. 29.—A sweeping investigation into the administration of Sing Sing prison was begun today by Stephen C. Baldwin, appointed by Governor Glynn as a special investigator. Baldwin says he expects to summon witnesses to testify before him in Brooklyn at once.

Baldwin said he would not only investigate the case of David A. Sullivan, the banker convicted of wrecking the Union bank of Brooklyn, who is reported to have received extraordinary favors from the prison authorities, but would take up many other matters in connection with prison discipline there.

John J. Malloy, auditor at Sing Sing, was taken from jail before the King's county grand jury. Malloy had spent two nights and a day a prisoner in contempt of court for his refusal to testify concerning reports that Sullivan had gone automobile riding with Warden McCormick on numerous occasions. District Attorney Cropsey said Malloy had decided to testify at the instance of Governor Glynn.

George Ford, a Yonkers policeman, was summoned before the grand jury. It is planned to ask him if it were true that Sullivan had recently lost his way in Yonkers and appealed to Ford to set him right.

Cropsey's detectives are searching high and low for Miss Louise B. Burkhardt of Yonkers, said to have been Sullivan's confidential clerk. Cropsey wants to question her as to the accuracy of reports that Sullivan had conferred often with her in Yonkers when he was supposed to have been in jail.

In compliance with Governor Glynn's request John D. Riley, state commissioner of prisons, suspended Warden McCormick pending an investigation of allegations that Sullivan had been granted improper privileges while a prisoner.

TOY FACTORIES BUSY

European War Will Not Spoil American Kiddies' Christmas

New York, Oct. 29.—American kids will not have to go toyless because of the war, in spite of the fact that a large proportion of our toys come from the warring countries, especially Germany.

Inquiries among the toy importers elicited the information that the only result of the war on the toy market was a big boom for the American toy industry. The managers of the toy departments in leading department stores declared that American toy factories were working day and night shifts.

"Most Christmas toys from Europe," explained one manager, "are ordered a year in advance for July shipment and were received before the war broke out. American kids need not be afraid that Santa will have any trouble in loading his sleigh as usual this Christmas."

DEED OF INSANE MAN

Murders His Three Children and Shoots Wife and Self

Galesburg, Ills., Oct. 29.—Temporarily deranged, Will M. Stromberg, candy dealer, blew the heads off his three children with an automatic shotgun, shot off a part of his wife's arm, and then inflicted a fatal wound upon himself.

Mrs. Stromberg fought with him while he attempted to shoot her, and finally broke loose and ran into the yard. Stromberg fired at her as she ran. While she hurried to summon neighbors he killed the three children and shot himself. Mrs. Stromberg will recover.

CARMANS LEAVE FREEPORT

Attorney Accompanies Them on Trip to New Jersey Farm

Freeport, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Mrs. Florence Carman, who was released on $25,000 bail after the disagreement of the jury at her trial for the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, left her home here for her husband's farm at Raven Rock, N. J. Dr. Carman, her daughter and Attorney Levy accompanied her.

Mr. Levy announced that it had not been decided as yet whether a second trial would be demanded for his client.

PULMOTOR SAVES A LIFE

Well Handled by Members of Police Department

The pulmotor, operated by members of the Police department, was instrumental in saving the life of Patrick Cavanaugh of West Quincy who was found nearly asphyxiated in an Engine house at Houghs Neck on Wednesday evening.

Cavanaugh, an engineer in the employ of the city, had charge of a gas engine, pumping the water from the sewer trench on Sea street. After making the necessary adjustments he entered a small shed and fell asleep. Escaping gas from the feed pipe worked its way into the building and rendered him unconscious. He was found by the night watchman.

Patrolman David Farrell was summoned and while the patrol ambulance speeded to the beach he prolonged life through artificial respiration. Chauffuer Cahill and Wagon Officer Halloran adjusted the apparatus and Cavanaugh responded after fifteen minutes of treatment. When Dr. Walter Sargent arrived Cavanaugh was in condition to be moved to the Quincy City Hospital where he is resting comfortably this morning.

One tank of oxygen was necessary to tide Cavanaugh over his perilous condition.

The pulmotor has been at the disposal of the Police department for about a year and, has been used in five cases without success. The patrolmen and Chief Burrill have always maintained that it would prove its value if given a reasonable opportunity, and the hundreds who have been interested in this latest equipment in medical science are well pleased this morning with the results.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

About twenty-five ladies of the First Parish and the Wollaston Unitarian church, accompanied by their pastors Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson and Rev. Carl G. Horst, attended the Norfolk Conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches at the Channing Street church, Dorchester, on Wednesday. The morning session opened at 10 o'clock and at noon a lunch was served by the ladies of the Dorchester church.

There were nine tables in play at the weekly whist tournament of the Granite City club Wednesday evening. The two best scores were made by Samuel T. MacQuarrie and Benjamin Johnson. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the tournament.

The editorial staff of the King's Daughters edition of the Quincy Daily Ledger consisting of Mrs. V. E. Miller, editor-in-chief; Mrs. George R. Badger, Mrs. Charles W. Guy, Mrs. Frank W. Crane, Mrs. J. Frank Merrill and their private secretary Miss Harriet Griffiths are very busy women these days preparing an unusually interesting edition of the Quincy Daily Ledger for Nov. 11.

PAPER ON WHEELWRIGHT

President Adams Addresses Historical Society

The autumn meeting of the Quincy Historical Society, held in the chapel of the First Parish church on Wednesday evening was one of the most interesting and instructive meetings the society has held in many years.

The President, Mr. Brooks Adams gave an address which held the close attention of the audience for about one hour and left every one wishing that it had been longer. The subject discussed was "John Wheelright and his significance to us," and in tracing that significance the speaker gave a swift an dilluminating review of the history of religious protest, touching especially on St. Francis of Assisi, Luther, John Wheelwright, the first minister of Mt. Wollaston (now Quincy) and Lemuel Briant, one of his successors, under whom the First Parish in 1750 became distinctively Unitarian in its faith. In each of these cases he showed that the real protest was against the use of religious authority for selfish purposes, either in the acquisition of money or power and a demand for the freedom of the human soul.

The next meeting of the society will be held next Spring and the board of curators authorized the president to appoint a committee to arrange details.

CITY HALL HAPPENINGS

Taxes and Water Bills Are Being Paid

Mayor Whiton had nothing in the news line to give out this morning other than to say that people were paying up their taxes now and that Wednesday more than $25,000 was taken in by the Tax Collector. The shutting off of water services has also had a good effect and the collections for water are coming in well.

The City Council on Legislative Matters, with Commissioner Brown and City Engineer Sargent, are perambulating the boundary line between Quincy and Braintree this afternoon with the Selectmen from Braintree.

QUINCY ATLANTIC

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Cook of Prospect street are receiving congratulations on the birth, Wednesday of a daughter, who has been named Ella. Mother and children are doing nicely.

At the Annual Harvest Supper in Memorial church, Wednesday night the vestry of the church was filled to over crowding. It being the first event of the season most of the parish was represented, and no one was disappointed, as the supper both in preparation and service was unusual. The committee in charge were Mrs. L. T. Gurney, Mrs. John Welsh, Mrs. Fred Osgood, Mrs. George W. Wight, Mrs. T. W. Davison, Mrs. Spencer Apollonio, Mrs. C. F. Letteney, Mrs. A .H. Hall, Mrs. C. A. Stearns, Mrs. H. A. Beeman, Mrs. Robert Harding Mrs. Tabener, Mrs. William Coulson, Mrs. B. F. Thomas, Miss Ada Harding, Miss Mabel Schraft, Mrs. William F. Cummings. Mrs. John La Teur, Mrs. Robert Dennison and Mrs. Isabel Smith. The coffee was poured by the young men of the church. After the supper duets were sung by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard of Squantum and solos were sung by by Miss Jordine Davison. At 8 o'clock most of the audience went over to the Campbell political rally to hear Mr. Stinson of Atlantic and Mr. Campbell.

QUINCY SQUANTUM

A course of entertainments for the benefit of the building fund of the First Church of Squantum has been arranged. The series will start on Wednesday evening, Nov. 4, and close with a Watch Night party Dec. 31. The entertainments and those in charge of these affairs are—Nov. 4. literary concert, Rev. T. W. Davison and J. H. Leonard; November 18, New England costume party, Charles S. Bostwick and John Marden; the district school, Herbert A. Smith, Roger Mason, John R. Nelson, John Holmes and William Spargo; illustrated lecture, Carl E. Carlson and James H. Hagan; Watch Night party, James H. Sumner and Warren Fifield. The chairmen of the various committees will add to their individual committees as found necessary.

Mrs. Helen McGowan opened her home at Saturday night to members of the Squantum Women's club and their friends, to a delightful evening of whist. Souvenirs at military whist were won by Roger Mason, Miss Marjorie Woodhead, Mrs. Frank Cuneo, and Mrs. Helen McGowan. Among those present were, Mr. and Mrs. George Hersey, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew McGrain, Mrs. F. H. Morton, Mrs. C. S. Purcell, Roger Mason, Mrs. Frank Cuneo, Miss Marjorie Woodhead, Miss Ahearn Miss Letitia McCarthy Mr. and Mrs. John Jepson, Miss Frances Bean, Miss Mildred Bean, Mrs. Hiram A. Morse, Mr. Bowen, Mrs. Gregory, Mrs. Joseph Allen, Mrs. McCarthy, Mr. Gregory.

Mrs. Louise Holt has gone to New York City where she will make her permanent home. Her host of Squantum friends are very sorry to lose her from this community where she has been a most active worker for the good of the community and one of the most popular residents.

A meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the First church was held in the church vestry on Wednesday evening when complete plans for the Hallowe'en party to be given Saturday night in Community hall were made. Many flattering compliments are being paid Mrs. William Spargo for the artistic invitation to the party which she donated for the affair.

Mrs. Arthur Beckwith of 124 Fayette street has been visiting at her old home in Dartmouth, N. S. She is now at Hartsport where Mr. Beckwith formerly lived, and returns to Wollaston soon.

The first meeting of Merrymount lodge, Knights of Pythias, held in their new quarters at Colonial hall, on Wednesday evening was largely attended. The rank of page was worked on two candidates, after which refreshments were served. There was much enthusiasm and favorable comment regarding the new hall. There were visitors present from Ivanhoe lodge of Charlestown, Monatiquot lodge of Braintree, Washington lodge of Dorchester, Old Colony lodge and others from Maine. A smoke talk and open meeting is to be held in the near future and at the November 11 meeting the lodge will work the second degree on a number of candidates.

BARRY--BYRON WEDDING

West Quincy Couple Are to Live at Milton

Miss Mary C. Byron of 15 Grove street, and Richard E. Barry of 9 Willard street, a popular West Quincy couple, were married in West Quincy on Wednesday evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Thomas R. McCoy in the St. Mary's parish house. Miss Catherine Byron, sister of the bride was her attendant and Lawrence J. Kelley of West Quincy, a friend of the groom, was the best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was attended by nearly 200 guests. The house was prettily decorated and the couple were the recipients of many handsome and costly wedding presents. A buffet luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry are now on a honeymoon trip to New York and will be at home to their friends after Jan. 1 in their new home on Huntington road, East Milton.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Byron and is connected with one of the large department stores of Boston.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Catherine Barry and is well known throughout athletic circles in this city. He has been manager of the Copeland Club base ball teams and other West Quincy aggregations and was catcher on that team for several seasons. He is a member of Ave Maria council, Knights of Columbus, and is past president of Div. 22, A. O. H. He is employed by the N. E. T. & T. Co.

KINCAIDE RALLIES.

Colonel Kincaide, candidate for Congress, spoke Wednesday evening at a series of enthusiastic rallies beginning at Avon. He advocated government regulation of prices for necessities of life. With such a law he said it would be impossible for firms or trusts to put up the prices of provisions as they pleased on every sort of excuse, but the government would see that the people could buy their food at a price that was fair to all. The Colonel also addressed large audiences at Rockland, Stoughton, and Norwood and at each rally was given close attention and great applause.

A quiet home wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening when Miss Isabelle Janet Workman became the bride of William George Rennie. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride, 9 Wendell road, in the presence of a large company of friends. Rev. Benjamin A. Willmott officiating. After a brief trip Mr. and Mrs. Rennie will reside in Atlantic.

The Girl Triod met at the home of Helen Sherburne Wednesday evening for their second meeting. The following officers were elected: Instructress, Helen Sherburne; president, Madeline Betts; vice-pres., Gladys Rouse; secretary, Irene Rouse; treasurer, Ruth Kinsman. After all business matters were discussed a most enjoyable evening was spent.

Miss Alice Crockett, 18 years of 196 Washington street, underwent what will probably be the most trying experience of her lifetime when she came from Boston to Quincy by electrics Wednesday evening while suffering from an acute attack of appendicitis. Miss Crockett was stricken in Boston but unaware of the symptons she went to Dudley street and took a Quincy bound car. On the trip she suffered from the severe pains and several times was on the point of collapsing. She also developed a slight hysteria. Passengers rendered what assistance they could and when City Square was reached Starter Henry Davey took her in charge. Dr. Fred E. Jones was summoned and he took her to her home and later to the Quincy City Hospital where she will be operated upon Friday morning. She is resting comfortably today.

MR. McCALL MISSING.

Boston and local newspaper circles were thrown into a high state of excitement Wednesday evening by rumors connecting Samuel W. McCall, the candidate for governor, with an auto accident between here and Brockton. To make the rumor stronger the candidate could not be located.

When he reached Quincy he furnished the explanation of his disappearance, which probably started the humor. Candidate McCall left the Brockton rally for Stoughton, and found his auto had been appropriated by another candidate. A stranger gave him a life and offered to take him to Quincy, but as in the other case he was among the missing when wanted. Mr. McCall was carried to Quincy in Mayor Howard's machine of Brockton, and after the rally no auto appeared to take him out of town and he was obliged to hire a taxi.

DISTRICT COURT.

George B. Clark was fined $10 and Charles Anthony $8 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Joseph Donahue was arraigned for larceny from John G. Miller at Quincy Case continued until Nov. 6.

Simon Gallant was fined $10 and Mitchell La Lund sentenced to three months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Quincy.

Waldo Galligan, one of the most active young men of the Kincaide campaign committee, escaped serious injury on Independence avenue Wednesday evening, when the steering gear of his auto broke and the machine ran onto the sidewalk and brought up against a pole. The accident occured near Bennington street at 7.30, as Galligan was on his way to City Square. The machine was making moderate speed when the rods snapped and struck the pole with much force. The impact threw Galligan over on the steering wheel, smashed the headlights and jammed the radiator. Galligan was able to walk to his home a short distance away where he was given medical treatment. He is in good condition this morning.

Miss Susannah Goddard Field off Franklin street, is celebrating her 90th birthday anniversary today. Although having reached a ripe old age Miss Field enjoys remarkably good health and entered fully into the spirit of the day. During the day she received a large number of her friends informally, the day being a particularly happy one. Miss Field is a sister of John Q. A. Field, George H. Field, and Mrs. L. Floyd.

JOINT RALLY FOR WARD ONE

Will Probably Be Held in Alpha Hall

The Wollaston Park Improvement association has issued invitations for Mayor to attend an open meeting of the Wollaston yacht clubhouse next week Thursday evening.

Similar meetings have been held at Squantum and Houghs Neck. Such a meeting has never been held in Ward One, but it is planned to hold one this year. The date of the meeting has not been selected, but it will be sometime next week and will probably be held in Alpha hall.

The holding of political rallies in school halls is causing much comment and the question is being asked how it is that the School Committee should allow the use of its school halls for this purpose. This protest does not come from any one particular party, but from citizens of all parties.

As most people understand the law the School Committee have authority, under the law, to allow the use of school halls for anything in the line of an educational nature. Most people think the law is being stretched a little in allowing the use of school halls for political meetings.

NEW GRAND COMMANDER

Knights Templar Help Those Stranded in Europe

The 109th annual conclave of the grand commandery, Knights Templar, of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, was held in the Masonic Temple, Boston, Thursday, and Walter F. Medding was elected as grand commander. The grand recorder's report showed that there were now 18,165 templars in the jurisdiction on Sept. 30, and additions during the past year were 800. The jurisdiction has lost nearly 400 by death during the year. In the United States there are 229,881 enrolled and in the world 243,055. It was also reported that the Grand Commandery has sent $3,000 to templars stranded in London when the war broke out.

At the meeting of the Knights Templar Commanders association in the evening at Youngs hotel, Em. Sir John Morgan of Quincy commander, was among the commanders added to the roster.

SMITH—FETRIDGE.

WRITES OF WAR EXPERIENCE

Miss Julia B. Hill Has Reached England

Mrs. William E. Hingston, wife of the well-known handwriting expert, has received an interesting letter from her sister, Miss Julia B. Hill of Wollaston, who for twelve weeks was in Brussels, Belgium, during the occupation of that city by the Germans. While in Brussels several letters were received from her, but all passed through the hands of the censor, and other than stating that she was all right, no information was given.

Miss Hill with other American refugees finally succeeded in reaching London and in a letter dated from London, Oct. 13, she writes interestingly of her experiences. While in Brussels she was in the care of the American consul, and was repeatedly warned that she must write nothing of the war. Her letters from home were filled by the Germans and she was glad to get out of the stricken city. In her letted she says:

"After over 12 weeks in Belgium again I am back in dear old England. It seems good to be again in England, but strange, after all the harassed weeks in Belgium to be in a country that is outwardly at least in peace. England is deeply stirred, it is true, stirred to its very heart, but England is not the scene of the war and, Oh, the difference! And Oh! the relief—the luxury after all those weeks in Brussels during the German occupation—of being able to post letters at one's own sweet will and sealed. The postoffice in Brussels has been closed.

"Then, too, the luxury of being able to sally forth and purchase the London Times for a penny. English papers during the German occupation were not sold publicly at any price. One day I was quietly, secretly offered a copy of the London Daily Telegraph for six francs. A young English lady let me take a copy of the London Times for which four francs had been paid. Yet I will say that on the whole the German soldiers behaved very well. Let me implore every one of you at home to accept many of the harrowing war stories with great—very great mental reservations. Yes, indeed! This awful war has brought

CAMPBELL AT WEST QUINCY

Inefficiency in Administration His Subject

West Quincy, the Democratic stronghold of the city, was the point of attack by the forces of Chester I. Campbell Thursday evening at a citizen's meeting in St. Mary's hall. The hall was comfortably filled with voters, and it was said that there were fully as many Democrats as Republicans in the audience. The crowd gave Mr. Campbell an enthusiastic greeting and listened to him with rapt attention.

Candidate Campbell did not arrive until the meeting had gotten under way as he had previously spoken to the members of the Manet Club in South Quincy. Just as he had concluded his remarks and was leaving the building, "Charlie" Johnson, one of his Republican opponents arrived. President Daniel Mahan of the Manet club suggested that Mr. Campbell go back and introduce his opponent. This he did in a very gracious manner.

At the meeting in St. Mary's hall, Alexander Falconer was the chairman. The speakers were Thomas G. Breen, Alexander Cowe, John L. Hamilton and A. L. Stinson.

Down here in West Quincy you realize, perhaps, better than the other sections of our city the inefficiency of the municipal organizations judging by the wretched condition of your streets and sidewalks, declared Mr. Campbell. This shouldn't be because there have been vast sums of maney expended on the streets.

There hasn't been co-operation in that department. It needs bolstering up. It has got into the same condition that other departments of our city are in. The men are capable enough but there is no organization, no system, no co-operation.

This and a hundred other unfortunate conditions show only too well that Quincy is in need of a business administration. It shows that the city is not getting the right kind of a return for its money, and not until it does receive full value for every dollar it expends will there be a chance to do the things that are needed here.

When you get a well organized municipality with all of the department heads working in harmony with the chief executive and every man getting the highest efficiency out of his particular job then you will have a chance to make improvements that are needed and at the same time keep the city's debt down.

ODD FELLOWS BARN DANCE

Manet encampment, I. O. O. F., held a barn dance in Alpha hall Thursday evening which was well attended by members and friends from Quincy and surrounding towns. The costumes were quiet but had that truly rural appearance which goes a long way toward fun. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight and music was by McEacheran's orchestra. Refreshments were served in Union hall.

The committee in charge included Sam Wood, Jr., George Ela, William Richards, Charles Harwood, C. C. Barron, Andrew Johnson, Frank J. Carlton, Walter Walker and Ethan A. Rich.

The many friends of Miss Sadie MacDonald of 100 pland road, will be pleased to learn that she is rapidly recovering from the operation which she underwent last Monday.

TILDEN WILL NOT THROW MUD

Will Conduct a Clean Campaign or none at all

A rally of the Republicans of Ward Four interested in the candidacy of Henry F. Tilden for Mayor, was held in Hibernian hall, Thursday evening. It was a very enthusiastic gathering and there was no lack of enthusiasm. Standing firmly by the declaration of Mr. Tilden, to conduct a clean campaign free from personalities and mud throwing Candidate Tilden, although assailed by mud thrown by some of the other candidates during the past few days, reiterated his statement to conduct a clean campaign or nothing at all.

Nathan Ames, a former well known resident of Ward Four presided and the speakers aside from Candidate Tilden were ex-Mayor Eugene R. Stone and Acting Mayor Whiton.

Mr. Tilden was introduced as the man of the hour. A man such as the HANDS OFF THE SCHOOLS.

It will be much easier for the voters of Quincy to decide wisely as to who shall be the next Mayor if the candidates stick to the issues rather than discuss matters that don't concern the mayoralty at all. One candidate is quoted as telling his audience that he favored Quincy girls for positions as teachers in the public schools. If he wanted it inferred that the Mayor had any say in the matter, it might be well for the voters to know that the selecting and hiring of teachers is vested in the hands of the school committee by the laws of the state and the Mayor has absolutely nothing to do about it. It might be just as well also for the people of Quincy to understand that Quincy girls are not discriminated against, but on the contrary favored whenever their qualifications are as high as those of applicants from outside. A large percentage of our teachers are Quincy girls.

The policy of the Superintendent of Schools is to get the best teachers available for the money; and it is the policy of the School Committee to consider the question of efficiency first and the birth-place last. If Miss Brown is a better teacher than Miss White, why should she not get the appointment even if she comes from Boston or some other outside place and Miss White lives in Quincy? It is only when other things are equal that the preference should be given the Quincy girl. And when it comes to deciding whether other things are equal, the superintendent and the School Committee are better able to judge wisely than the Mayor.

It is just as well for the politicians to let the schools alone. The voters will certainly continue to back up the school authorities until they are shown that the authorities are in the wrong, and nothing of that sort has yet appeared. Keep the schools out of politics, for the good of the schools and for the good of our children.

THE MODERN HALLOWE'EN.

Hallowe'en used to be largely a girl's affair. It had much to do with the identity, personality, and appearance of her future husband. Society queens, aged ten, were deeply concerned with this imminent problem They walked down cellar backwards with a looking glass, threw apple parings over their heads, and performed other occult stunts.

The boys seem to have captured hallowe'en today. They light bonfires, run tick-tacks against windows, rattle blinds, and threw corn against houses. They remove gates and fence rails. When you become indignant and appear on your front doorstep to protest, they vanish like the four winds of heaven, and one hears their impish laughter in the shrubbery.

The householder would better not show too much annoyance. If he calls the police, the boys will blacklist him next year, and break some windows to express the strength of their convictions.

The Daily Ledger is newsy every day. Are you a regular reader?

M'CORMICK WILL TELL HIS STORY

Ready to Testify Concerning Doings at Sing Sing

SULLIVAN SEEN IN NEW YORK

Said to Have Driven From Prison In Automobile When He Was Supposed to Be Serving Sentence—Something of a Mystery Concerning Automobile Owned by "State"

New York, Oct. 30.—T. J. McCormick, the suspended warden of Sing Sing prison, sent word to District Attorney Cropsey that he was willing to come to Brooklyn and answer any questions that the district attorney might ask him. Cropsey so announced, adding that John J. Malloy, auditor at Sing Sing, now in prison in contempt of court for failure to testify before the grand jury, had been instructed by John B. Riley, superintendent of prisons, to tell all he knows.

Before leaving for Sing Sing, where he is attending the investigation of prison affairs conducted there by Stephen C. Baldwin, Governor Glynn's special commissioner, Cropsey said the October grand jury would not be discharged, as had been anticipated, but would continue to take further testimony along the lines of its present investigation.

This investigation, Cropsey, said, was undertaken to ascertain if David A. Sullivan, serving a prison sentence in Sing Sing for wrecking the Union bank of Brooklyn, had been in King's county recently and while there had participated in an alleged larceny in connection with the bank's affairs.

Cropsey announced that he had positive proof that Sullivan had been seen on Broadway recently, although he was supposed to be in Sing Sing prison at the time. He said Sullivan had been recognized by an acquaintance at Broadway and Sixtieth street a few weeks ago and that on another occasion Sullivan had driven from Sing Sing to New York in an automobile and had remained in New York alone for several hours.

One of the things that the grand jury will be asked to determine is whether the automobile in which Warden McCormick and Sullivan have been seen together in Yonkers recently was purchased by Sullivan. Cropsey said he had been informed reliably that McCormick had made affidavit that the secretary of state had purchased the machine, paying $3000 therefor. The secretary of state, Cropsey said, did not purchase the car; nor was its purchase authorized by the comptroller, who is supposed to pass on purchases of more than $1000. The alleged affidavit by McCormick, Cropsey said, would be placed before the grand jury.

Incidentally it was learned that the car had been used by Governor Glynn personally in his primary election campaign in this city. As matters now stand, the district attorney said, McCormick asserts that the car is the property of the state while the state has never paid for it, so far as can be learned, although McCormick said it had.

Sullivan Acted as "Chauffeur"

Ossining, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Only two witnesses were examined by Commissioner Baldwin, appointed to investigate affairs at Sing Sing prison. They were Thomas J. McCormick, the suspended warden, and William Watson, his secretary.

Both men admitted that David A. Sullivan, now serving a sentence in Sing Sing for the part he played in wrecking the Union bank of Brooklyn, had been employed as chauffeur of the warden's personal automobile.

McCormick did not deny that on one occasion he had left Sullivan unguarded in a New York garage while the automobile was being repaired, nor that the prisoner was left alone in the car at Yonkers, McCormick's home.

Watson also admitted that he had advised John J. Malloy, one of the prison officials, not to testify before the King's county grand jury.

UNDER RED FLAG LAW

Two Men Convicted In the Superior Court at Boston

Boston, Oct. 30.—The first convictions since the supreme court's ruling on the so-called red flag law were made in the Suffolk superior court when Judge Quinn affirmed the finding of the lower court in the cases against Joseph W. Merovitz and William R. Henry.

In the lower court both men were fined $25 each for carrying red flags on the streets of Boston. In the superior court they paid their fines.

In a parade in Boston one of the men carried the red Socialist banner and the other a red flag showing a dagger and the words "liberty or death," according to the police.

WARSHIPS SENT TO HAITI

Marines Will Look After American Interests at Capital

Washington, Oct. 30.—Orders to proceed with all possible speed from Dominican waters to Port au Prince, the rebel-held capital of Haiti, were sent by the navy department to the transport Hancock, which has on board a full regiment of marines. At the same time the battleship Kansas was ordered to Port au Prince from Vera Cruz.

The cruiser Tacoma already is at Port au Prince and a detachment of her marines was landed last week to protect the American consulate, after an understanding had been reached with both factions.

TRIED TO SMUGGLE DRUG

Wife of Dr. Flower and a Friend Are Held at New York

New York, Oct. 30.—Charged with having a drug in their possession and attempting to smuggle it to Dr. Richard C. Flower, who pleaded guilty to grand larceny charges growing out of swindling operations, Mrs. Lillian Flower, wife of the prisoner, and Thomas McEnery were held under bail.

When Mrs. Flower called at the Tombs to see her husband, 1000 grains of white powder, said to be a drug, was found concealed in her clothing. A smaller quantity was found in the possession of McEnery; who called earlier in the day to see Flower.

MAY BE RESENTENCED

Maine County Attorney Objects to Pardoning of Prisoner

Portland, Me., Oct. 30.—Arthur G. Eaton, the former Portland insurance manager who was unconditionally pardoned by the governor and council after serving two years of a seven-year term for larceny and forgery, is liable to be sentenced on all other counts of which he stands convicted, according to County Attorney Bates.

Bates has anonunced that he will move for sentence at the January term of the superior court. He sent a letter to Governor Haines, remonstrating against the granting of the pardon petition.

DEATH LIST OF FIFTY-NINE

All but Seven Bodies Recovered From Mine In Illinois

Royalton, Ills., Oct. 30.—The death list in the mine disaster near here is now placed at fifty-nine. A rechecking of the names revealed that nine men had not been accounted for.

Two more bodies have been taken out of the mine, making fifty-two that have been brought to the surface.

Naval Inquiry In Paulding Case

Washington, Oct. 30.—A board of inquiry to survey the torpedo boat destroyer Paulding, which went aground in Hampton Roads, has been appointed by the navy department. The vessel is still aground.

Mine Sinks Swedish Steamer

Stockholm, Oct. 30.—The Swedish steamer Ornem was sunk by a mine off Cuxhaven in the North sea. Five seamen were drowned.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

The Hallowe'en party under the auspices of Dorothy Quincy commandery, United Order of the Golden Cross, in Hancock hall, Thursday evening, was an enjoyable affair and attended by young men and women from all parts of the city, to the number of 75.

Vocal solos during the evening were by Andrew Dinegan and D. J. Seward McCurdy, and piano selections were given by Miss Gertrude Welsh. Dancing and games made up the evenings program, music for this portion being given by Miss Helen Connor. Refreshments were served.

The hall was decorated with the season colors and potted plants. The committee on the affair was Miss Sadie Wilson, Miss Minnie Moody, Miss Pauline Sweeney, Miss Mary Cryan, Miss Sadie Ridge, Miss Theresa Tooley.

CHEESE IT COP'S COMING!

A railroad officer on duty near the Atlantic station Thursday night detected a strong odor of cheese. He was mystified for a time, but following the scent, he found that the nearer he approached a freight car the stronger it grew. Cautiously looking in at the door of the car, he saw a big roll of cheese coming toward him. Apparently the cheese was coming without aid. He made a grab for it, and was not only successful in getting the cheese but a pair of hands which proved to be the propelling power.

The hands were attached to the body of a man who gave the name of Alexander Shumpski, aged 21 years, who claimed to live in Portland, Me.

He offered no explanation of how he happened to be in the freight car or what he intended to do with the cheese. A few minutes later he was given a ride in the municipal automobile to the stone building on School street where he was given lodging in one of the spacious rooms of that hotel for the night. The cheese was also put away for safe keeping and both appeared in court this morning.

In court this morning Judge Avery assessed Shumpski $25 for his part in the mystery. In absence of having the amount necessary, and the loss of a check book, he will probably be at Dedham for a few weeks.

TILDEN RALLY

citizens of Quincy had been looking for as its chief executive. After the experience of the last year it was time that the citizens sat up and did a little thinking. That they give if necessary a little of their time from busines and attend the caucuses that there might be a fair expression of the citizens on the Mayoralty question.

Candidate Tilden after a few introductory remarks said in part:

I see some of the candidates are attacking me and my following. It is a sure sign they are losing ground when they commence to throw mud. I have only the best wishes for them all and whoever wins this fight I will give them my support.

"Gentlemen," said the candidate, if I am nominated and elected to this high office you will have no cause for regret. I will give Quincy the best that is in me and attend to the duties of the office, morning and night. I will look into all expenditures and see that your money is not wasted. I will give you economy and efficiency in every department, as far as it is possible to do so. I will be there at all times and co-operate with the heads of departments and see that their duty is well done. Can you ask more? We must be cautious and defer unnecessary improvements until such time as we can afford them. I have made no promises to anyone, or shall I. I dare to do right, come what may."

Mayor Whiton spoke of the need of an honest and efficient man in the office and he knew that Mr. Tilden was just the man needed next year and that the voters would make no mistake in nominating and electing Henry F. Tilden.

He was one of the committee who waited upon Mr. Tilden to get him to enter the caucuses for he realized the importance of having a man for Mayor next year, who not only had experience in city affairs, but who was strictly honest and who could and would give his entire time to the duties of the office and who could be found at his desk in City Hall every working day of the year.

Ex-Mayor Eugene R. Stone spoke of the services of Candidate Tilden during the two years that he was Mayor, for during his administration Mr. Tilden had held the office of Treasurer. He made one of the best City Treasurers the city ever had, and he did not doubt for a moment but if elected to the office of Mayor he would give the same care and attention to the duties of Chief Executive as he had to the office of treasurer.

From West Quincy, Candidate Tilden attended and spoke at two rallies at South Quincy and also paid a short visit to Houghs Neck where a rally was in progress at Pandora hall.

Tonight Candidate Tilden will invade the sacred precincts of Wollaston, and also visit Quincy Point.

MANY TRIPS FOR Y. M. C. A.

First of the Weekly Sports Next Tuesday

The "last call" for basket-ball candidates is set for Tuesday night, Nov. 3. Only three men are left from last years first team and there will be a big fight on for the vacant places. The second team has lost three men also, and if this team is to keep up its championship record this season the new squad will have to "get together" at once An effort is being made to play the first games on Saturday night, Nov. 14 letters having been sent out to Chelsea, Malden, Somerville and Melrose Y. M. C. A. managers.

The Junior class will choose up their teams for the fall season on Saturday morning. The captains will be selected by the Physical Director, and then the boys will be picked by them to remain on the teams throughout November and December. All of the games and competitive sports will be conducted by these teams and ribbons will be given to the members of the winning team. A trophy will also be placed in the prize room with the names of the winners engraved on it.

The examination for leaders and squads will be held on Tuesday afternoon for the Junior class. Several of last years leaders have been promoted to the Student class and there will be some keen competition among the youngsters for the places open.

The Senior class will hold the first of the series of "weekly" sport on Tuesday evening after the regular class session. It is planned to hold one event every Tuesday night, keeping the record made by each man in the different events, and then at the season's and three prizes will be given to the high-score men. The coming Tuesday night, the standing broad jump will be the event.

Trips have been planned by Fred Lobbenboske for the Boys division to the following places of interest: Waltham Watch Co., New England Confectionery Co., Filenes department store, Christian Science Monitor, Hood Rubber Co., new Summer street subway, Globe Publishing Co., Boston Elevated power plant, Edison Light power plant. Youths Companion, and some local plants such as Boston Gear Works, Fore River Shipbuilding Co., etc. If you want a good time fellows get in on some of these trips.

Big time Saturday morning at the boys meeting at 9 o'clock held in the Association hall. Stereopticon pictures. "Ten nights in a bar room," "The Bottle" and illustrated songs. All school boys over ten years invited. Don't forget your buttons and that banner.

That there are hundreds of young men and boys in the city who have never seen the inside of the Y. M. C. A. building, goes without saying. The good people of the city put up the building for just such young men. That they may have a chance to see what the Association has to offer a campaign for 200 members is going to be conducted next week. There will be ten teams of six men each. These teams will call upon young men who they feel ought to be enjoying the privileges they themselves are enjoying. The teams will report each night so that the captains may know just how the battle is waging. The general of the Campaign is Roy Prout, the chairman of the Membership committee of the association. The Captains of the teams are: Lee Brooks, A. J. Mintie, A. V. Bissett, W. G. Kidder, H. Ernest Rich, Henry Behe, Matthew Nicoll, Carl Prescott and George Shirley.

at the Board of Trade Rooms." As a result of this notice in your paper, you received and printed the following Wednesday afternoon October 21st, that Mr. Gustave B. Bates would speak before the Master Plumbers' Association in the Board of Trade Rooms on Thursday evening, Oct. 22d, and I wish to say that political addresses are not to be delivered in the Board of Trade Rooms and no political business is to be transacted in that Room, and the invitation to Mr. Bates to speak before the Master Plumbers' Association is unauthorized and will not be allowed."

Now, we do not, as an Association, wish to receive this sort of publicity, but we feel in this particular instance that Mr. Hall, the secretary of the Board of Trade, has over stepped the mark. He says that political addresses are not to be delivered in the Board of Trade Rooms and that the invitation to Mr. Bates to speak before the Master Plumbers' Association is unauthorized. Without doubt what Mr. Hall aimed to do was to put himself on record, as Chairman of the Rooms and Rules Committee, in regard to the use of the Board of Trade Rooms for political purposes. Now, without seeking the advice of Mr. Hall, we feel that Mr. Bates was perfectly within his rights and entitled to speak to us as a member of our Association, and, furthermore, he was authorized to speak by an invitation addressed to him through our Secretary. The Rooms of the Board of Trade are let to our Association for a consideration wherein we may transact our business and we feel that as we conduct a private and not a public meeting we are at liberty to have our speakers choose any subject they may see fit. Part of the notice which appeared in another Quincy paper of October 15th was wholly uncalled for and was without authority of Mr. Bates wherein it states that "Mr. Bates will open his political campaign at the meeting of the South Shore Master Plumbers' Association in the Quincy Board of Trade Rooms, Thursday evening, October 22d." This part of the announcement in the paper referred to was purely an assumption on the part of the Editor or his representative.

On behalf of our Association I wish to say again that we consider the statement of Mr. Hall wholly uncalled for and most unjust and I further wish to state that the conduct of one of the other presiding officers of the Board of Trade, who rushed into our meeting without any announcement or solicitation and proceeded to tell us what we must do and must not do, was unwarranted. No knowledge of any friction in regard to our meeting had been made known up to the last minute. Unfortunately some of our presiding officers were late in starting the meeting; but for this fact our program would have proceeded with Mr. Bates addressing the meeting as originally intended. We fell that a good deal of credit is due Mr. Bates in having had the courtesy the absence of the presiding officer of our Association ,to retire rather than create any friction.

IIn summing up, I wish to state most emphatically that, as Master Plumbers, we are not indulging in politics and that if we see fit to have a speaker address our meeting on some subject with which he is familiar, especially when he is a member of our Association, we shall feel at liberty to do so without the advice of anyone outside of our Association. From time to time we have had speakers on various subjects at our meetings and this is only one of the many invitations which we have extended to different people to speak and the fact that Mr. aBtes happens to be a political candidate, it does not necessarily follow that he was to address us politically or as a politician.

Our membership consists of men who are connected with the plumbing business from the surrounding towns, from Rockland, Abington, Weymouth, Braintree and Milton, consequently the address of Mr. Bates was to have been broad enough to interest these men or they would not have attended the meeting.

We do not wish to start a controversy in this matter and we feel that in the future it would be well for those interested to ascertain all the facts in the matter before they rush into print.

Thanking you for this space in your valuable paper, I am,

Respectfully yours,
William A. Bradford
President South Shore Master Plumbers Asso.

HALLOWE'EN AT NURSES HOME

Sheets Take The Place of the Regulation Gowns

The nurses of the Quincy City Hospital entertained eighteen gentlemen friends at a Hallowe'en party on Thursday evening. The affair was one of the most brilliant of the season and was given in the Nurses home which was gayly decorated for the occasion.

The matrons were Miss Caroline Hill superintendent of the hospital, Miss Carry Best, Miss Helen B. McCarthy, Miss Emmaline Mills and Miss Anna Dick.

Among the members of the surgical and medical staff who were present were Dr. Daniel B. Reardon, Dr. John T. Reynolds and Dr. W. J. McCausland.

The program included ghost marches, games, "antics" singing and dancing. Throughout the evening punch and refreshments were served. The party adjourned about midnight.

The nurses under whose direction the affair was given were the Misses Anna Ljundquist, Martha M. Morrill, Leona Carter, Sigrid Swanson, Irene E. Corbett, Gertrude Flaherty, Valeria Vazkis, Margaret Twohey, Barbara Cameron, Violet Robertson, Estelle Battock, Alice Billings, Ruth Pinel.

REFUSES TO APOLOGIZE

J. F. Fitzgerald Denies He Said Anything About Graft in Quincy

After practically admitting in a previous letter, that the statements attributed to him in the published report of a Democratic rally in Boston, ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald now flatly denies that he said anything atout graft in Quincy and refuses to offer an apology. The denial however is nothing more than might have been expected.

In giving out the reply of the ex-Mayor, refusing to apologize Mayor Whiton says:

I offer the following letter from John F. Fitzgerald in answer to my letter previously published. The pub- therefore having read that correspondance can judge for themselves.

Hon. Joseph L. Whiton.
Quincy ,Mass.

Dear Sir:

I said nothing about graft in Quincy and therefore see no necessity for an apology.

Yours very truly
John F. Fitzgerald.

ONE ALARM TWO FIRES

Soot in the chimney of a brick oven, in what is known as the Benson house on Canal street took fire this morning and the heavy smoke alarmed the family of Alphonso Ricci who lives there. An alarm was sounded from Box 227. About 40 pounds of soot was removed from the chimney by the firemen.

While returning to Central station the department extinguished a fire in a pile of rubbish which had been dumped on Canal street and the persons responsible for the fire were notified to discontinue the practice.

TURKS SHELL RUSSIAN CITY IN CRIMEA

Much Damage Done In Hour's Attack by a Cruiser

GREECE AND ROUMANIA MAY NOW TAKE PART

Entrance of Ottoman Empire Into European War Makes Ten Nations Now Engaged In Conflict—Turks Will Be Driven Out of Europe If Allies Win—Latest Disturbances Believed to Have Been Fomented by Germany—Germans and Austrians Being Pushed Back by Russians—Both Invaders and Defenders Claim to Have Made Gains In Western Battlefields—London Fears Air Raid

London, Oct. 30.—With the bombardment of the Russian city of Theodosia in the Crimea and the demand that the Russian town of Novorossysk in the Caucasus surrender, Turkey has at last definitely joined Germany and Austria in the world war that now numbers ten nations in actual warfare.

Greece can now hardly be restrained from declaring war upon Turkey, Roumania will probably join the allies and it is believed that Bulgaria will soon yield to pressure exerted from the powers, although whether Berlin or Petrograd will prevail at Sofia is somewhat doubtful.

A Turkish cruiser, presumably either the Breslau or Goeben, the German-manned and German-officered warships which have been steaming about the Black sea, appeared before the harbor of Theodosia in the Crimea. The guns of the cruiser were turned upon the city, and for an hour shot and shell raked the city, damaging the cathedral, a church, a bank and a pier and setting several fires. The cruiser then steamed out into the Black sea in the direction of Constantinople.

Hamidieh Backs Down

Almost at the same time the Turkish cruiser Hamidieh, which did such effective work against the Greek navy in the Balkan war, appeared off the town of Novorossysk in the Caucasus and sent ashore a message that the place surrender. The Russian officials immediately arrested the Turkish consul and other prominent Turkish residents and the Hamidieh promptly withdrew without, so far as can be learned, attempting to fire upon the port.

The reports of the activities of the Turkish cruisers come from reliable sources at Petrograd. It is rumored that the Russian Black sea fleet has been ordered to fire upon the Turkish ships.

Backed by Germany?

Competent observers in London couple the Turkish action with the rebellions in South Africa as indications that German influence and money is being widely employed in desperate efforts to avert what now seems an inevitable end to Prussian militarism. It will not be surprising if German diplomats are shown to have been behind the alliance between Turkey and Afghanistan, which may lead to an invasion of India. It will also not be surprising if revolts in India and Egypt, Algeria and Morocco and in Central Asia are stirred up against Great Britain, France and Russia. They may prove troublesome, but no one in London believes that they can become critical.

One thing is certain if the reports of Turkey's participation prove true. If the allies win, the Turks will be driven out of Europe and the flag of a Christian nation will fly over St. Sophia in Constantinople, where the red banner of the Turk has for so many centuries defied Christendom.

On the Great Battlefields

The fighting of Thursday may be quickly summarized, for it has been merely a prolongation of Wednesday's struggles.

In the east the Russians continue to batter back the Germans and Austrians in Russian Poland, who are now many miles west of Radom. The badly shattered armies are expected to reform on the Warta river, a few miles from the German frontier, where reinforcements are being hurried from the German ranks in East Prussia. As the majority of the Germans in the east appear to be troops of the landwehr and far inferior to the picked corps struggling in France and Belgium, it is believed that within a fortnight the battle may be carried into German territory.

In Belgium and France the vast armies are still at a deadlock, despite claims of gains sent out from Paris and Berlin.

The civil populace has been ordered out of Ostend, which is steadily being approached by the allied troops, advancing under shelter of the 12-inch guns of the British warships off the Belgian coast. The Germans maintain that they have made some progress south of Nieuwport, while the allies claim to have advanced in the neighborhood of Ypres. Probably neither was of great importance.

The invaders are apparently trying to batter toward Calais from Lille rather than cross the lowlands of Belgium. This could have been done easily three weeks ago if German troops had been available; today they will find resistance as unyielding as that which is making a shambles of Flanders.

Little will be left of the Rheims cathedral. The Germans bombarded it again Thursday, excusing their action by stating that a French battery had been placed in front of the renowned edifice and that military observers were utilizing the towers.

Berlin states that the French suffered terrible losses in attacks made on the German positions southwest of Verdun, where counter attacks by the invaders gained for them considerable ground. The French made further progress in the direction of St. Mihiel and were able to dislodge the German advance posts between the Moselle and the Vosges.

Surprise Attack Probable

Although the Germans have apparently abandoned their attempt to reach Dunkirk by a smashing attack on land, they are undoubtedly planning some surprise attack from the Belgian coast. Eight Zeppelins have been seen in flight from Germany, going in the direction of Antwerp, and submarines in parts, which can be quickly put together, are being transported by rail to Zeebrugge, the Belgian port north of Ostend.

There is a feeling in London that some dramatic stroke is soon to be delivered in retaliation for the defeat of German troops in the east and their persistent check in the west.

Paris estimates the German losses at the Yser in the last few days at from 75,000 to 80,000 men, and hears now that an army of 350,000 Germans is advancing on Calais. These numbers are all probably quite liberal estimates.

Germany's Casualty Lists

Berlin broke its long silence regarding casualty lists by sending out a tabulation of fifty published lists, the totals showing 36,351 dead—including 2385 officers—159,165 wounded and 35,522 missing—231,218 in all. To what date this list is complete does not appear.

The German casualty lists have been somewhat puzzling, though they are the most definite received from any nation except England. Recently it was announced that the "sixtieth Prussian list" contained about 11,000 names and was headed by a general who was shot Aug. 23. The fifty lists tabulated in Thursday's report must carry the totals to a date later than Aug. 23, but what system is adopted in making them up is a mystery.

Military critics, probably because of the German defeats reported in the east and west, are of the opinion that the superiority in numbers of the allies is beginning to tell. England is now said to have 1,500,000 men under arms.

DUTY OF BELGIAN TROOPS

King Albert Tells Them They Must Free Country of Invaders

The following proclamation was issued by King Albert to the Belgian troops:

"Our towns have been burnt and our houses destroyed and there is mourning over the whole country. But more terrible disasters will follow if we do not free the country of the invaders.

"That is your imperative duty and it is a duty you can fulfill with the assistance of our allies."

EMDEN SINKS TWO MORE

Russian and French Warships Destroyed by German Cruiser

The German cruiser Emden, flying the Japanese flag and disguised by the addition of a fourth smokestack, entered Penang, a British possession in the Straits Settlement, and fired torpedoes which sank the Russian cruiser Zemtchug and a French destroyer.

The Emden's entrance into the waters of Penang was audacious. She went in under the guns of the fort, and after sinking the cruiser and the destroyer escaped through the strait of Malacca. The fate of the crew on board the Zemtchug is not yet known.

The Russian cruiser Zemtchug was a boat of 3106 tons. Her main battery consisted of six 4.7-inch guns and she had a speed of twenty-four knots. She carried a crew of 334 men.

LOUIS OF BATTENBERG

Naturalized German Prince Resigns From British Navy

PRINCE LOUIS RESIGNS

First Lord of British Admiralty Is Forced Out of Office

Prince Louis of Battenberg, first sea lord of the British admiralty, has resigned. His resignation is said to be due to the campaign in some of the newspapers against him because of his German connections.

Prince Louis is a vice admiral and personal aide-de-camp to the king. He was born at Gratz, Austria, in 1854, the eldest son of Prince Alexander of Hesse. He married his cousin, Princess Victoria, daughter of Louis IV., Grand Duke of Hesse, and of Princess Alice, Queen Victoria's daughter. He was naturalized a British subject and entered the royal navy in 1868.

By marriage, Prince Louis is related to Emperor William of Germany, the emperor being the eldest son of Queen Victoria's eldest daughter. The wife of Prince Louis is sister to the Russian empress and cousin to the German emperor.

PEOPLE FACING STARVATION

Fear That Hungry Belgians Will Attack the Authorities

"It is feared that in their desperation the hungry people will attack the authorities. This would cause serious loss of life."

So stated Captain Lucey, representative of the American commission for relief in Belgium, in a telegram sent to London to Herbert C. Hoover, chairman of the commission, from Rotterdam.

Lucey added that he had been told by representatives of the national relief committee that in Brussels, Charleroi, Liege, Namur, Mons and Dinant 3,000,000 persons were being fed by charity, and that only four days' supply of flour was on hand. In the vicinity of Liege conditions were more desperate than elsewhere, if possible. The necessaries of life were urgently needed.

ALMOST SUFFOCATED

Soldier Found Himself Under Pile of Dead In Trench

A wounded British soldier tells a story of an experience which recalls the grim experience of Balzac's Colonel Chabert, and which also illustrates the severity of the fighting.

This soldier said he remembered the start of a fierce fight in the trenches. Then his mind became a blank for many hours. When he recovered his senses it was morning and he had an awful feeling of suffocation. When he tried to move he realized that he was in a trench, buried beneath a pile of German and British dead.

The enemy had retired temporarily and eventually the soldier was able to crawl to the next line of trenches, which were occupied by his comrades. Then he was sent to the rear.

SEARCH OF AMERICAN SHIPS

No Opposition Will Be Offered by United States Government

The right to search American merchant ships on the high seas, in opposition to which the United States went to war in 1812, will be admitted by the state department during the present war.

Announcement to this effect was made at Washington by Acting Secretary of State Lansing, following the publication by the treasury department of a prohibition of the making public of manifests of merchant ships leaving American ports until a month after they had sailed.

The outcome of the state department's decision in this matter will be that all American ships will be liable to stoppage and examination on the high seas by foreign warships. Protests by this government will be filed only when the ship is taken into port and held for a considerable length of time.

POLICEMAN IS PERPLEXED

Large Cat Dives Five Stories and Lands on His Bald Pate

Philadelphia, Oct. 30.—Policeman John Hilton is undecided whether to apply to some anti-cruelty organization for a medal or to hire himself out as a safety mattress.

His perplexity and likewise bruised bald head are due to the high dive of a large gray cat which leaped from a fifth-story window, landing squarely on his pate.

Hilton is being congratulated for saving the life of the feline, which, so far as can be learned, was uninjured.

Wiscasset, Me., Oct. 30.—Gilmore Bowman was indicted on the charge of murder by the grand jury for the death of Hugh Clark, who was stabbed at a dance at East Jefferson.

New Counterfeit $10 Bill

Washington, Oct. 30.—The secret service announced that a new counterfeit $10 bill, of the series of 1901, has been found. The notes bear the number E780,440.

"Is your husband a confirmed party man?" asked the smiling candidate.

"Laws, no! He's quit dancin' and don't even attend his lodge reg'lar," answered Mrs. Wayback.—Dallas News.

WRITES OF WAR

to the front many noble qualities, so many deeds of kindness.

And just here let me tell you of Mr. Ethelbert Watts of Philadelphia—our United States consul in Brussels. Of him I can only speak in praise. Mr. Watts has been a counsellor, guide and friend—and a friend not only to the Americans in Brussels, but to Belgians and English also. No wonder that he is so respected and admired. Mr. Watts is "the right man in the right place."

"One of the hardest and most cruel things to bear during these weeks in Brussels has been the cannonading. The harrowing sound of the cannonading wore upon one's nerves and one's heart. Brussels during all this time of the German occupation has been outwardly quiet; Oh! the surging emotions within. And what a superb city—a city with its suburbs of about 800,000 people—is Brussels! What superb buildings! What handsome boulevards! To say nothing of its parks and monuments! I have been living near the Palace of Justice, that superb edifice, one of the truly magnificent buildings of the world. And just think of Germans washing out their clothes and hanging them up to dry in this superb edifice!

"We have had plenty of fruit and vegetables in Brussels this autmun, but on some mornings there was no coffee or rolls, or "Pistoles," as they are called; instead there was dark, sour bread. But this was the merest bagatelle. Think of the Belgians, who at that very time were enduring not only hardships, but agony. Dear, braveli ttle Belgium! My sympathy it may be needless to say, is entirely with Belgium and the Allies—Belgium Brussells! Antwerp! They are written on my heart. When I think what a prosperous, contented, peaceful, brave little Belgium! My sympathy ly a short time ago! How one feels or the poor of Belgium; How one feels for young King Albert and Queen Elizabeth! Both the young king and queen are greatly admired and beloved. Indeed, the young queen of Belgium is almost idolized in Brussels. Her charities are boundless.

"We went, we Americans, from Brussels to Aix-La-Chapelle, Germany and slept there the second night of our journey; then we proceeded to Flushing by way of Maestricht and Rotterdam. We left Brussels Oct. 5, Monday, and arrived in London Friday night. I felt very calm in Brussels and walked deliberately before the German soldiers wearing the Belgian and English colors and a small American flag. I could not but feel for the poor fellows; yes, and their officers, too. They simply have to do what they are told.

"In Rotterdam the spectacle of the refugees brought tears to one's eyes. At a place near Flushing one man broke down and cried. He said, "I've worked all my life to get my little home—" Many of the refugees crossed with us from Flushing to Folkestone on the good ship Princess Juliana. Oh, what a piteous sight! But the Dutch and English are nobly generous to these poor exiles. I say "Long live Belgium and her Allies!"

DON'T IMPOSE ON YOUR NEWSPAPERS.

Political candidates who do not use the advertising columns, should not expect the newspapers to report in detail all their little rallies.

Advance publicity for entertainments, dances, campaigns, etc., is advertising, and newspapers should be recompensed.

Don't send printed programs (printed out of town) to the Daily Ledger, just to get an advance notice. It is like waving a red rag in front of a bull.

MILITARY AND NAVAL POLICY

Subject of Interest to People of the United States

EXPERTS TO HAVE INNINGS

Men Acquainted With Our State of Preparedness Will Be Heard at Gardner Hearing—Wood Says We Want Trained Reserve, Rather Than Large Standing Army

Washington, Oct. 30.—Military and naval experts in Washington who for years have been trying to make an impression on congress are looking forward to the opportunity which will be afforded them when the Gardner resolution on national preparedness is given a hearing by the house rules committee.

Just who will be called to that hearing is not, of course, known at this time, but opinion here is fairly unanimous as to the names of some of the witnesses.

Major General Wood will undoubtedly be asked to set forth his ideas on our state of unpreparedness for war. Chief of Ordnance Crozier, Quartermaster General Aleshire and Chief of Staff Wotherspoon, all of whom appear annually before the military and naval affairs committee when the big appropriation bills are made up, will have an opportunity to set forth their views to an audience composed not of a congressional committee alone, but of the entire country. Major General Carter, whose services to the general staff in its formative period following the disclosures of the Spanish war are well known, also may appear.

The importance of these hearings is great. The introduction of the Gardner resolution two weeks ago was the signal for discussion from one end of the country to the other of our need for a military and naval policy.

While President Wilson is apparently willing that this discussion should continue, he has plainly indicated that he regards it as "academic" rather than as practical. This attitude on his part, necessitating as it does a similar attitude on the part of his cabinet officers, has created a situation which may easily become difficult.

Lessons in preparedness for the United States have already been drawn from the suddenness of the European war by Major General Wood, in an address at a reception tendered him by the Medical club of Philadelphia.

"For the preservation of peace and the maintenance of our dignity as a nation," Wood said, "the United States should have a reserve line which could be brought into existence at a moment's notice for the national defense.

"At present our army consists of a little over 100,000 men, and our militia which could take to the field without further training would hardly amount to 100,000 more. Therefore, 200,000 is the actual war strength of the United States, a nation of nearly 100,000,000 people. According to our army plans, we want a reserve force of 600,000 men, all trained for instant service.

"We have the men and we have the willingness on the part of our people to die, if necessary, for their country, but we do not have them trained. It is just as much a patriot's sacred duty to know how to fight as to be ready to die."

BECKY EDELSON ACQUITTED

I. W. W. Leader Found Not Guilty of Disorderly Conduct

Tarrytown, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Becky Edelson, one of the Industrial Workers of the World leaders, was not guilty of disorderly conduct when she spoke here last spring with anarchistic leaders at meetings of protest growing out of the Colorado mine strike. The jury which heard her case returned a verdict of not guilty.

Miss Edelson conducted her own case and chose the jurors with great care. She objected to most of the talesmen who had been summoned, and it was necessary to send out policemen to round up a second panel before a jury that met with her approval could be empaneled.

New York, Oct. 30.—Taxicab bandits held up two employes of the Stanley soap works and robbed them of $4000, the weekly payroll.

There were four bandits. While two of them held the victims prisoners at the point of revolvers the other two ran with the loot and leaped into a taxi and sped away.

Worried Over Loss of Crop

Danvers, Mass., Oct. 30.—The low price of apples, combined with the loss of a considerable portion of his crop because of frost, are said to have led David Dunham, 48, a farmer, to commit suicide by hanging.

Alleged Slayer of Children

Shreveport, La., Oct. 30.—Roland Williamson, an attorney, was arrested an a charge of having strangled his 8-year-old daughter and an infant son. He is believed to be insane.

AMUSEMENTS

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Never has there been preached a truer, more powerful, more effective warning against the grave dangers lurking in the feminine folly for dress than in "To-Day," George Broadhurst and Abraham Schomer's vital and vivid drama of life which is now on its third week at the Majestic theatre, Boston, and which was the dramatic hit of New York last season where it enjoyed a year's run on Broadway. Another, scarcely less important moral to be gleaned from "To-Day," is the pitfalls which are dug for loyal wives by demons of their own sex. What Mephistopheles is to "Faust," that precisely Mrs. Garland is in "To-Day." Mrs. Garland in "To-Day" to all intents and purposes, is just a woman of fashion, differing from others of that class by her extraordinary wit and a certain dryness of humor, scarcely surpassed by that of Mephistopheles in "Faust." Seldom has a more evenly balanced and competent cast than the one presenting "To-Day" been seen in Boston. It took Harry Von Tilzer, the managing director, one year to assemble for its interpretation those players whom he has considered best equipped to portray the various characters.

AROUND WORLD IN TWO HOURS.

Jules Verne's "Around the World in Eighty Days," once thought the extreme romance of prediction, will be shortened to two hours by Dwight Elmendorf, the traveller and raconteur, when he presents his newest travel talk, "Around the World through the Panama Canal," at Symphony hall Friday evening, Nov. 6th. This all-sea route will reveal new scenes in the Azores, Madeira, Port Said, Aden, Arabia, India, Burma, Penang, Singapore, Hongkong, Canton, Japan, the Hawaiian Islands, and of the completed Panama Canal. As usual, Mr. Elmendorf's travel talks will be given in two parallel courses on five Friday evenings and five Saturday afternoons.

Other lectures in the series will be: "Around the Mediterranean,—Egypt, the Holy Land, and the Adriatic;" "Around Northern Europe,—London, Berlin, Vienna, and Budapest;" "Around Southern Europe,—France, Switzerland and Italy;" and "Around the United States,— the American Wonderlands." The lectures will be illustrated with color reproductions from Mr. Elmendorf's original still-life and motion-picture negatives.

SHUBERT THEATRE.

"The Passing Show of 1914" enters upon the second week of its engagement at the Shubert theatre Monday evening. Like the Passing Shows which have preceded the present one, this latest revue causes one to pause in wonderment how such a huge conglomeration of farce, travesty, musical comedy and extravaganza could ever have been so nicely fitted together. The producers and authors at the Winter Garden, New York, have mastered this intricate entanglement, with the result that shows from that playhouse are marvels of farcial revelries, song and dance numbers, as well as novel scenic surprises, any one of which would have been sufficient but a short while ago, to assure the success of any musical production. In "The Passing Show of 1914," there is such a bewildering array of fresh, new, rare and uncommon entertainment that one is loath to select any one for particular comment. In designating this show as being an "Uproarious Upheaval of Lingerie and Laughter,' the advertising columns come to the rescue, and are not far wrong. George W. Monroe and Harry Fisher are the chief-funmakers of the show. Like old friends, they come back each year to delight the theatre-goers with their droll comicalities and exuberant fooleries.

WILBUR THEATRE.

A striking feature of "The Road to Happiness", now in its eighth triumphant week at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, and one which is thoroughly enjoyed by the host of playgoers who throng that beautiful playhouse, is the curious likeness which exists between William Hodge's character of young Whitman in the play and the real Abraham Lincoln in the days of his youth. If the author of this comedy of village life has been originally inspired with the reading of Lincoln's biography and had purposely set down to invent a fictive footlight figure resembling the youthful "Honest Abe" of history, he could scarcely have succeeded better. When Abraham Lincoln was in his teens, his father followed a carpenter's trade indeed, it was while working in the carpenter shop of a man named Hanks that the elder Lincoln won the heart and hand of the niece, Nancy Hanks, who became the mother of our Martyr President of the Civil War. As Lincoln grew up, he not only handled the carpenter's tools but he became a renowned wielder of the axe in the then virgin forests He was always proud of his title of "rail-splitter." While a young axman, Lincoln studied law by the glare of the pine knots. He used to do his sums on a wooden fire shovel, whittling off the figures when done to get another clean surface. Hodge as young Whitman in "The Road to Happiness" is the same breed. He is a struggling young carpenter and jack-of-all trades. He has a love romance as odd and unique as was Lincoln's own.

BOSTON THEATRE.

The grand old Boston Theatre whose wide reaches and farthest recesses have reverberated and re-echoed with the marvelous music of every great opera singer of the world during more than sixty years will be the only theatre in New England to offer grand opera during the coming winter. Definite anouncements made during the past week make it finally certain there will be no other grand opera in Boston. It is generally conceded that it has not been a dearth of singers due to the war which has caused this decision, as opera artists of the first rank have been flocking to this country for weeks past in great numbers, in fact the artistic world of Europe may be said to have been shifted to the United States. Rather a noticeable reluctance to support opera at high prices, is believed to have cleared the field for the Boston Theatre Opera Co.

The fifth week of the season is to open with the company's first presentation of "La Traviata," familiar in its dramatic form as ""Camille." The opera is full of lovely melodies and noted for its wonderful coloratura numbers. The difficult "Ah, fors e lui" will be sung by Miriam Ardini whose coloratura voice has already attracted marked attention. The opera will be given Monday evening and Wednesday afternoon. The remarkable reception given Ciccolini for his work in "La Boheme" has led to a demand for another presentation of this ever popular Puccini opera which will form the bill for Tuesday evening. "Faust," will be the opera Wednesday and Friday evenings. "Un'Ballo in Maschera," the opera which has its unique setting in Boston in the time of the Colonial Governors, is to be given Thursday evening. Another performance which always commands attention and satisfied lovers of dramatic music is "Tosca" to complete the week on Saturday evening.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

Comin g to the Hollis Street Theatre Monday for a limited engagement which will include the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees, is Lydia Lopokova in "The Young Idea." The names of most American stage stars are well known to the reading public either from a succession of annual visits at the heads of their own companies or in case of ones newly elevated to stellar honors, by a prior prominent association with important productions. It is not strange therefore that the name of Lydia Lopokova should come to many with an unfamiliar sound, for never until now has it appeared upon a playbill in any capacity other than that of a dancer. She was the ballerina of the Russian Ballet, appearing with that organization at the Boston Opera House where she created a genuine sensation by her wonderful technical proficiency, her youth, beauty, bewitching grace, the evident dramatic ability that marked her interpretative dancing and a personality of compelling radiance and power. She was then only a few months over from Russia and could speak no English beyond a few scattered words, but with the Russian gift for languages and a prodigious capacity for application, she has now mastered it almost completely and it is the linguistic medium of her dramatic debut which is being made under the management of Harrison Grey Fiske. There remains but a slight trace of an accent, and this fits in with the character she portrays in the play, which is a comedy by Ethel Watts Mumford, the well-known novelist, newspaper and magazine writer.

It is the story of a young girl, a half- orphan, who had spent the ten years from seven to seventeen, in Europe where she had been brought up along most unusual lines both physically and mentally. She had worn only loose-fitting, comfortable clothing, sandals, girdles and other articles of dress that would allow perfect freedom' had been schooled in the dance, both as a physical culture process and as a means of complete expression for all phases of human emotion. At the expiration of the ten years she is brought back to America to aid in a social campaign being waged by her father's recently acquired second wife, a woman of great aspirations and hopelessly unpromising ancestery. The incidents of the play follow the introduction of the girl with her advanced and truthful ideas into the artificial and hypocritical atmosphere of the home presided over by the grasping stepmother, and the society in which she is desperately trying to force a footing. It is a test of the young idea against the old and the resultant situations are said to be novel original and most effective.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"Madame X," Alexander Bisson's great drama of mother love, with its big court room scene, is a play that Boston theatre goers took to their hearts once and for all two years ago, when Miss Mary Young first essayed the role of the said and sinning heroine, who takes life in order that disgrace may be averted from her little son whom she was loved in silence all her life. Miss Young repeated her former triumph last week, and in many respects has improved on her former rendering of the role. Her attitude in the trial scene and the innumerable little details by means of which she builds up the part of the drug taking and hopeless woman until it stands out before us in tragic realism, was very marked and drew, both from the press and public unstinted praise. The cast was noticeably well distributed.

Next week with Montgomery's "Ready Money" Castle Square will be again the home of mirth. "Ready Money" is a play that shows up good humoredly the weakness of human nature and has in addition a love story that British Queen Mary, who saw it twice, is said to have declared the "nicest love story on the modern stage." There are no less than seventeen characters in "Ready Money" so Castle Square play goers will see all their favorites. Mr. Carleton plays Baird and as Jackson Ives, the maker of moneythat looks better than it is. Mr. John Craig will have a part, suave, gentlemanly and quietly humorous such as he loves to play and such as his audiences love to see him in.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

Cohan and Harris' latest success "Wanted $22,000" will begin its last week at the Plymouth Theatre, Monday night. This amazing play is the biggest hit of the Boston season. Every effort has been made to keep the production throughout the winter but previous contracts call for its presentation in New York. If your parent has sacrificed all to help a life long friend in distress, if that friend proved dishonest, if your family faced certain ruin, if you were young and it was up to you to save the family from disgrace, what would you do? This is the dilemma in which handsome young Richard Howard finds himself and the way he gets out of it makes the most fascinating drama the Plymouth has ever housed.

A beautiful young college girl saves him and to see the way she does it is a delight. Ernest Glendinning, who has created more parts than any young actor on the stage, appears as Richard Howard. Desmond Kelly portrays the heroine Elaine Foster. Matinees are played Thursdays and Saturdays.

NEWS ITEMS FROM MILTON

The Agenda Club of the First Baptist church recently held a meeting in the vestry with a large number present. The young ladies are planning to hold their second annual fair and festival on Dec. 15 at the church.

The Ladies Aid society of the East Congregational church held their regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. James Kent on Granite place, with 30 ladies present. All plans for the harvest supper to be held on Friday, Nov. 6, were completed. The committee in charge of the supper includes: Mrs. Benjamin Fuller, Mrs. James Kent, Mrs. Lydia Shapleigh, Mrs. Kelley, Mrs. Oscar Bohm, Mrs. Marshall A. Abbot, Mrs. Edmund Carlton, Mrs. John Marr and Mrs. C. E. Snow.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Baptist church was held Wednesday afternoon in the church parlor. The ladies did considerable sewing for the Red Cross work in connection with the European war. The hospitality was in charge of Mrs. J. A. Simpson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Batchelder of Huntington road are enjoying a trip through the western part of the state.

CONCERT WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The concert Thursday evening at the Swedish Congregational church was a great success. Talent from the church only contributed. The mixed choir of twenty voices sang three selections and the childrens choir also rendered two numbers. Rev. Mr. Sporrong, is director of the two choirs. The male choir of eight voices, under the direction of John Anderson sang three numbers. Mrs. Sporrong and Mrs. Anna Sutherland sang a duet. A mixed quartette, Mrs. Sutherland, Mrs. Sporrong, eRv. Mr. Sporrong and John Anderson also sang "Come where the lillies bloom" Rev. Mr. Sporrong also sang a solo.

Misses Ethel Sutherland and Hazel Johnson gave a piano duet and Miss Helen Hanson of the Squantum Sunday school gave two piano solos. Miss Ruth Danielson gave a recitation. The entire program was much appreciated and there was a large attendance who freely applauded.

CHILDREN AT THE FOOD FAIR

In order that the children of the public schools might have an opportunity toattend the food fair in Boston otday while the schools are closed on accoune of the teachers convention, Arthur W. Newcomb a member of the school board distributed Thursday among the children of all the schools one thousand tickets to the fair. As each ticket admits two children it means that 2,000 can attend the fair today.

FIRE AT WEYMOUTH.

The ice houses of J. F. & W. H. Cushing on Middle street, East Weymouth were burned Thursday entailing a loss of $4,000. The buildings were discovered on fire at 12.30 but when the department arrived the fire had made such headway that little of the building could be saved. The building contained about 600 tons of ice. The fire was discovered by Donald Canterbury while on his way home from a gunning trip. The cause of the fire is unknown. October 15, a lot of hay was found burning inside of the building but was extinguished in time to prevent loss.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

The Sons of Veterans and others who ignore the local press should not expect free advance notices.

The many friends of Mrs. James S. Perkins will sympathize with her in the loss of her father, Elmer Andrews of Essex, Mass., who died very suddenly Thursday morning, October 29. Mr. Perkins is master of the Coddington school and Atherton Hough school in this city.

Mrs. Daniel Mannix who is ill at her home at 900 Hancock street is gradually recovering.

Miss Josephine McCarthy entertained a party of friends at her home on Chestnut street on Thursday evening. The affair took the form of a Hallowe'en party and during the evening all participated in a program of the season. Dancing was enjoyed and refreshments served.

The whist party of the George L. Gill Associates in Odd Fellow's hall on Thursday afternoon was well attended and souvenirs were awarded to Mrs. Sarah Williams, Mrs. Jeremiah Kenney, Mrs. J. Hughes, Mrs. Spear, Mrs. Annie Thompson, Mrs. M. Dame.

A rally in the interest of Charles H. Johnson will be held in Doble's hall next Thursday evening. Prominent citizens will address the meeting.

ENTHUSIASM AT SO. QUINCY

Republican State and City Candidates Among Speakers

A rousing Republican rally was held in Doble's hall South Quincy, Thursday evening with John R. Richards president of the City Committee presiding. Among the speakers were Harry Howard candidate for congressman, Senator Langelier and a member of the Republican state committee.

In addition to the state speakers there were several local speakers. Thse included Henry F. Tilden and Charles H. Johnson. the only two Republican candidates for the nomination of Mayor, ex-Mayor Stone, Acting Mayor Whiton and John Q. A. Field.

Candidate Tilden spoke along the same line as at West Quincy deploring the fact that some of the candidates in their eagerness to win votes had resorted to throwing mud. He did not believe in this kind of campaigning and said if he could not win without it, then he would lose. He promised to give his entire time to the duties of the office , to scrutinize carefully every appropriation, to select the best men he could find in the city for his officials and demand of them, that they give the city full value for the salary received.

Candidate Johnson stated that he was pleased to have the opportunity to address the Republican voters of Ward Three on the state issues. "I regret," said Mr. Johnson, "that the approaching city campaign has in the case of some of the candidates been the one issue and more than that, the campaign booster of this same candidate being also a member of the city committee. I am a constant and sincere Republican on state and national issues and I ask you men to vote on Tuesday next for all the candidates in the Republican ticket. They are worthy of your support." Mr. Johnson also spoke briefly on the municipal campaign and was given a rousing reception.

QUINCY SOUTH

The Christian Endeavor Society of the United Presbyterian church will hold a Hallowe'en party at the home of Miss Grace McKinnon, 89 Trafford street, South Quincy, this evening. The social committee and officers are planning a good evening's fun and all the members and friends of the society are cordially invited to be present.

HALLOWE'EN DECORATIONS

Harvest Supper of Woman's Guild, Most Excellent

At six o'clock Thursday evening a harvest supper was served in the parish room under the direction of the Woman's Guild of St. Chrysostom's church. They well merit their reputation for excellence, as the supper was a good one.

The decorations were most effectively carried out. Crepe paper covered with autumn leave made dutch curtains at the windows and there were festoons from the ceiling of crepe paper and ropes of paper. Autumn leaves were scattered on the table and there were napkins with witches, black cats and bats to include the Hallowe'en scheme. Large vases filled with varied colored chrysanthemums and cosmos decorated the tables.

The menu consisted of corn beef, cabbage, turnips, carrots, beets, mashed potatoes, baked beans. Apple, celery and sweet red pepper salad, mince, squash and apple pie, cheese and coffee.

The committee in charge was: Mrs. Daniel C. Miller, Mrs. George E. Allen, Mrs. George H. Bean, Mrs. Frederick L. Bent, Mrs. Alice J. Bainbridge, Miss Annie Clean, Miss Mattie E. Clean, Mrs. William J. Croucher, Mrs. Edwin J. Coleman, Mrs. Percy L. Davidson, Mrs. H. Kneeland Ellis Jr. Mrs. Howard D. Fowler, Mrs. Albert J. Fox. Mrs. Benjamin A. Hobson, Mrs. J. Willard Hallet, Mrs. George Horte, Mrs. Herbert F. Price and Mrs. L. Theodore Parlee.

SETTLEMENT BY ARBITRATION

St. Ry. Employees Refuse Proferred Increase of Half Cent

The street railway employees have unanimously rejected the half cent an hour increase offered by the officials of the Bay State Street Railway Co. Instead of the substanial increase demanded, and have agreed to bring about a settlement of the wage This decision was reached at a meetingof 400 employees of the Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree barns who are affiliated with the Quincy union.

The men asked for a wage scale of 30 to50 cents per hour, men to be graded in point of service in place of the 24 to 28 cent scale now in effect.

Representatives of the union and company have been conferring on the matter and the meeting last night received the report of their committee.

The men in voting to reject the report did so through the use of the Australian ballot. The tellers will submit the results to the State FFederation which will canvassthem and approve the men to act as arbitrators.

MAYOR WHITON MISQUOTED

Mayor Whiton said this morning that he had been slightly misquoted in what he said at the meeting at Houghs Neck Wednesday evening held by the Associates. He did not say that anyone who believed in an $18 tax rate was a nut, but that any candidate who advocated an $18 tax rate was nut.

DANCING CLASSES.

Mrs. Osborne's dancing classes for children are held in Alpha Hall Saturday afternoons. Beginners may start next Saturday at two o'clock and advanced pupils at four. The evening class starts next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock and instructions will be given in all the modern ballroom dances according to the recently adopted standardization.

QUINCY WOLLASTON

M. J. Brady and A. W. Goodall of the Wollaston Golf club won the big open competition over the links of the Metacomet club Thursday their best score being 145.

B. D. Corliss of Wollaston foreman for John Berman, who is building a number of houses off Washington street was successfully operated on at the Quincy Hospital, Wednesday. He is resting comfortably and his many friends are hoping for his speedy recovery.

Havana's Pathetic Little Door.

This little door is one of the entrances to La Casa Beneficencia, the large and well regulated orphan asylum of Havana. The passerby might easily take it for a coal hole if coal were generally used in Cuba, for when the door is closed there is nothing to indicate its use. On opening it, however, one finds a revolving circular box divided into three compartments. It does not need a very vivid imagination to picture the drama that has been enacted here on many occasions.

A woman, her head covered with a black shawl, her arms holding a bundle to her breast, hurries along the narrow street. She reaches the little door. Glancing furtively about to see that no one is looking she opens the door and, shaken by stifled sobs, kisses for the last time the baby she is about to renounce. She places the child in the circular box, gives it a turn and hurries on. Inside one of the Sisters of Charity hears the tinkle of a bell. It marks the arrival of a newcomer in La Casa Beneficencia.—Boston Herald.

Force of Habit.

A humorist was looking over a mill, and while in an unguarded moment he was perpetrating one of his jokes upon an innocent operative he was drawn into some ponderous gearing and badly crushed.

They extricated him from the machinery and laid him on the floor.

"Who is it? Who is it?" was the anxious inquiry as a crowd collected.

Nobody knew.

Then the funny man suddenly opened his eyes and strove to speak. A sympathetic bystander bent down to catch his words.

"There's good reason why nobody recognizes me," he whispered painfully.

"What is it?" asked the sympathetic one.

"Because," the humorist explained as he saw a chance to get one home, "it's because I've been traveling incog."

That was his final effort, for he never spoke again.—London Tit-Bits.

"Towel" of Hot Air.

In hotel, factory and public lavatories, where roller towels should not be used because of the danger of spreading skin disease and where the expense of furnishing individual paper or cloth towels is considerable, the electric hand drier may be used economically and satisfactorily. A sanitary hand drier described in the Electrical World consists of a sheet metal case with an opening in its top in which the hands can be inserted and dried by a current of hot air. A foot pedal operates a quick acting switch which starts a blower, forcing air through the electric heater. The hand drier is, of course, absolutely sanitary, as it is unnecessary to touch any part of the apparatus when using it. The hands can be thoroughly dried, it is declared, in from thirty to forty seconds, which is less time than is required to perform the same operation with a linen or paper towel.

AIR FULL OF PINK CARDS

Runaway Scatters Assessors Cards Over Streets

Are the beautiful span of black horses owned by Chief Assessor Buckley in league with the taxpayers? Someone was unkind enough to give that as a reason the animals ran away this noon scattering the field cards all over the street .Whether any of the cards were lost or not can not be told until stock is taken.

The Assessors who have received many complaints as to the value they placed on property went on the field again today taking a second and calmer look at the estates. Returning to City Hall about noon the team was driven into the avenue near City Hall. While left alone a gust of wind blew a blanket over one of the horses heads, which frightened the animals. They had no difficulty in backing out of the avenue and the next minute the horses were speeding down Hancock street with the field cards blowing all over the street. They turned into Chesnut street and went down Revere road, leaving a trail of pink cards behind them. The animals were stopped near Faxon Hall and brought back to City Hall. Citizens came to the rescue of the Assessors and helped gather up the cards. It will reguire some time to re-arrange the cards and hten more time to find it any are missing. Many doubtless would be glad if their card was among the missing.

VESTRY HIVE OF INDUSTRY

Wollaston Women Work for Belgian Women and Children

The vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church was like a hive of busy bees all day, Thursday. With Wollaston Alliance as hostess each of the five Wollaston churches was represented, and it was truly inspiring to watch the cheerful workers—some cutting out the various garments; others steadily stitching on the five machines; ir sewing by hand, still others making bandages, or knitting various useful things.

Box luncheon with hot coffee was served at noon.

It was delightful to feel the spirit of co-operation, especially in these days of terrible enmity across the sea. At the close if the day, large piles of comfortable dresses, skirts, infants' outfits, etc., had been finished. Arrangements have been made to send these things direct to the Belgian refugees, other sewing meetings will be held next week.

Contributions of money, wool materials, or second hand clothing, solicited. Address Miss Turner, 25 Winthrop avenue, Wollaston.

Associations.

All experience evinces that human sentiments are strongly affected by associations. The recurrence of anniversaries or of longer periods of time naturally freshens the recollection and deepens the impression of events with which they are historically connected. Renowned places also have a power to awaken feeling which all acknowledge. No American can pass by the fields of Bunker Hill, Monmouth and Camden as if they were ordinary spots on the earth's surface. Whoever visits them feels the sentiment of love of country kindling anew, as if the spirit that belonged to the transactions which have rendered these places distinguished still hovered round with power to move and excite all who in future time may approach them.—Daniel Webster.

Long Honeymoon.

Marriage among Moslems in India is followed by other ceremonies. The bride, with the bridegroom, is taken back to her father's house after four days; then again she comes back to her husband's house after ten days' stay and then after a stay of twenty days returns to her father's house for at least six months. Thus instead of having a short period of honeymoon they make it last almost a year.

CAMPAIGN LIES NAILED

In a futile attempt to stem the great tidal wave now sweeping this district for KINCAIDE, certain malicious and desperate statements, it is reported, have been circulated, that are absolutely false. Why not tell the truth, men,—stick to facts?

Facts About Col. Kincaide

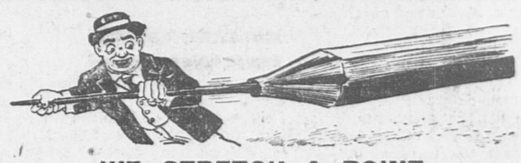

All girls in his employ are well paid, in fact in his office, Annex and Theatre, girls get higher wages than the average wage elsewhere for similar employment.

He is not an aristocrat by any means, but a man who has worked his way from the bottom up.

He did go to the Spanish War,—served throughout the entire war. and on Sept. 15th, over a month after the signing of peace between the United States and Spain, he resigned from the U. S. service and returned to his business, left meanwhile in the hands of subordinates. These facts are shown by government records and your examination of them will be welcomed. See order 213 Adjutant General's Office, Washington.

The Contemptible trick of attempting to circulate defamatory lies will be rebuked at the polls in no uncertain terms. American citizens will not stand for such underhanded methods of campaigning.

THE ELECTION OF KINCAIDE TO CONGRESS WOULD BOOST QUINCY

CAMPBELL AT POLAND HALL

Councilman Bailey Tells of His Experience

Chester I. Campbell, who is one of the aspirants for the Republican mayoralty nomination, was cheered loud and long in Poland hall, Norfolk Downs, last evening, when he declared that if he was elected Mayor that the politics of a man would not be regarded as a qualification. If Republicans vote for me expecting that I will only appoint Republicans to office then I warn them that they better not vote for me if they do not want to be disappointed.

In his inroduction of Mr. Campbell, chairman V. E. Matlack concluded his remarks by calling on His Honor Mayor Campbell.

I might as well start to get used to that appelation said Mr. Campbell, for there is every indication that I will be returned an easy winner at the primaries on November 10. From the hundreds of citizens that I have had the pleasure to meet personally I have been told that they had been awakened to the needs of business methods in conduct of our municipal affairs.

From all that I can learn the next Mayor of Quincy has got one big job in front of him. It means a whole lot of work, but friends I assure you that I am quite lonesome when I am not busy. We all realize that it will require the efforts of a busy man down in our City Hall after the first day of January, and I now assure you that when I enter that noted old building that everybody in the employ of the city had better sit up and take

THE USE OF SCHOOL HALLS

Chairman Mackay Quotes the Law of 1914

Chairman Mackay of the School Committee feels that the article concerning the letting of school halls for political meetings, which appeared in yesterday's Ledger, should have stated that they received the usual fee of fifteen dollars from the Quincy Business Administration Committee for the use of the Quincy school hall Wednesday evening, which was the only occasion thus far on which a school hall in Quincy has been used for a political meeting.

Mr. Mackay also requests the Ledger to print the statute governing the letting of school halls, so that it may be seen that as the law now stands school halls may be used for other purposes than educational ones. The last word by the Legislature on the subject is found in Chapter 538 of the Acts of 1914. The statute reads as follows:

"For the purpose of promoting the usefulness of the public school property, the School Committee of any city or town may conduct such educational and recreation activities in or upon school property under its control, and shall allow the use thereof by individuals and associations, subject to such regulations as the School Committee shall establish, for such educational, recreation, social, civic, philanthropic and similar purposes as the committee may deem to be for the interest of the community, provided that such use shall not interfere or be inconsistent with the use of the premises for school purposes."

CAMPFIRE HALLOWE'EN

Witches, Follies and Others Appear in Masks

The five Camp Fires of Quincy had a merry Hallowe'en party Friday evening in Hancock hall. The grand march at 7.30 was a most interesting feature, for the members were all in fancy costumes and wore masks. At the conclusion of the march, the masks were removed and the identity of witches, follies, little Red Riding Hoods, cats, boy scouts, sailor boys, and ghosts were disclosed amidst much laughter.

'Hallowe'en games were played and Hallowe'en refreshments, consisting of apples, doughtnuts, and cider, were served.

The Virginia Reel was enlivened by the brief and unexpected appearance of Mr. King and much confetti. The rest of the evening was spent in dancing.

The committees were as follows:

Entertainment —Misses Harrison, Brooks, Hall, Lane and Gibb.

Decorations—Misses Walther, Sayward, Smith and Horton.

Refreshments—Misses Roache, Parmenter, Schenkelberger, Marie Bass and Miss Walker.

Chairman of the whole—Miss Ruth Bass.

KNIGHTS OF KING ARTHUR

Entertain at a Hallowe'en Party

One of the best of Hallowe'en parties was given last evening by the Knights of King Arthur in Bethany chapel. Everywhere witches and black cats and other Hallowe'en novelties were to be seen.

In one corner Miss Getrtrude Shaw and Miss Roberta Smith acted as fortune tellers and were kept busy telling future prospects of the young people, while in another corner others were trying to bite doughnuts.

This being over, a fine program had been prepared for the rest of the evening which opened with a recitation by little Allen Von Pierce who made his first appearance and was one of the best numbers on the program. He gave three long recitations and used a great deal of expression and oratorical power for one so young being only about 6 or 7 years old.

Then came a small playlet entitled "Two Jay Detectives." The parts were well taken and was very comical. It being a Hallowe'en play, ghosts and detectives played a prominent part. Those taking the parts were:

Silas Yankem, a school of correspondence detective,
Carl W. Pierce
Hank Fetchem, another detective
John F. Willmott
Landlord, Webster W. Pierce

Guy Shaw gave two Scotch songs and was dressed in Scottish costume, with kilts and bonnet and was a good imitation of a Highlander.

Another play was given which ended the evening's program. It was entitled "Fooling Father" and was well given. Those taking part were:

Mr. Somerville, a retired merchant
Richard D. Wetherell
Paul Somerville, his son
Guy W. Shaw
Fred Faulkener, Paul's friend
Carl W. Pierce

Richard Clark was pianist.

It was one of the best entertainments given and much credit is due to the boys for their work which was appreciated by the large audience listening to the program. Refreshments of ice cream were served.

KINCAIDE EVERYWHERE

Looks as if He Would Carry Brockton

All over the 14th District sentiment for Kincaide is not only strong but is hourly growing stronger. In Brockton the campaign is at white heat. Yesterday's issue of the Brockton Searchlight, the Union Labor Paper, speaking of Kincaide says "He will lead, far a certainty, everywhere outside of Brockton, and in Brockton he has grown so strong and popular in the last few days that Howard's friends are losing heart. Before Tuesday this will probably cause a landslide of anti-Democrats to Kincaide."

Leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties in Brockton admit that the great campaign Kincaide has put up there has turned a host of voters his way, and that he will run very strong throughout the city. At Kincaide headquarters in Brockton reports indicate that without doubt he will carry the city.

Quincy has more to gain and should be more interested in the election of Kincaide than Brockton. It the voters of Quincy realize the opportunity they have Tuesday to send a Quincy man to Congress and will stand shoulder to shoulder for the Quincy candidate, Kincaide will be elected without a doubt.

Tonight there will be an auto parade to Brockton, and all auto owners are inivted to participate. Those who can go are requested to report to Arthur Raymond at the real estate office in the new Kincaide block at 7 o'clock promptly .

TILDEN AT TWO RALLIES

Mayor Whiton Replies to Candidate Johnson

Rallies in the interest of the candidacy of Henry F. Tilden for Mayor were held Friday evening at Quincy Point and at Norfolk Downs. The meeting at Quincy Point was under the auspices of the Waseca club where there was a large attendance of the members, the hall being full. The speakers were enthusiastically received and judging from the applause their remarks met with hearty approval. The speakers were Candidate Tilden, Acting Mayor Whiton and ex-Mayor Stone.

When Mr. Tilden was introduced there was a spontaneous outburst of applause. He spoke briefly saying "good government means that taxpayers get what is best for the city at a minimum cost, and all money expended is done so judiciously. To do this someone is obliged to be on the lookout at all times and see that waste and extravagance are kept away from us. I will do it, for that will be my business, and I have nothing to hinder me from doing so. Gentlemen if you put your confidence in me I will not betray you.

BARN DANCE OF K. OF C.

Fellers and Gals From the Rural Sections

The Knights of Columbus fellers, who belong to the Quincy council, held their second annual contra dance for the town folks in Music hall Friday night. The hall had the appearance of a country barn, not only because of the field decorations but through the variety of costumes worn by the fellers and gals.

The grand march, headed by Squire Michael Walsh and his sister Elizabeth had nearly 100 couples in line, and the five dollar gold piece, first prize, was given to Miss Miriam Douglass of East Weymouth and Andrew Dinegan of West Quincy. The bushel of potatoes, second prize went to Somerville with Miss Marion Nolan and to Quincy Point with J. R. Oliver.

The judges were Grand Knight Bernard O'Neil of Ave Maria council, Grand Knight Lucien Godreau of Braintree council, and Mrs. Agnes Reardon, president of the Catholic club.

Billy Wilson had charge of the fiddlers and the barn boss was Squire Walsh. Pete Sullivan was foreman

PLUMBERS VS. BOARD OF TRADE

In the letter of William A. Bradford in Friday's Ledger four important lines disappeared from the article in the make-up of the paper. The paragraph is reprinted, the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th lines being inserted: * * *

I refer to the note which was printed in reference to Mr. Gustave B. Bates which occurred in the issue of October 21st, as follows: "Mr. Bates will speak tonight before the Montclair Improvement Association and Thursday night before the South Shore Master Plumbers' Association at the Board of Trade rooms." As a result of this notice in your paper you received and printed the following letter from Mr John O. Hall, Secretary of the Board of Trade: "I saw a statement published in your paper of Wednesday afternoon October 21st, that Mr. Gustave B. Bates would speak before the Master Plumbers' Association in the Board of Trade Rooms on Thursday evening, Oct. 22d, and I wish to say that political addresses are not to be delivered in the Board of Trade Rooms and no political business is to be transacted in that Room, and the invitation to Mr. Bates to speak before the Master Plumbers' Association is unauthorized and will not be allowed."

DANCING CLASSES.

Mrs. Osborne's dancing classes for children are held in Alpha Hall Saturday afternoons. Beginners may start next Saturday at two o'clock and advanced pupils at four. The evening class starts next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock and instructions will be given in all the modern ballroom dances according to the recently adopted standardization.

CITY HALL HAPPENINGS

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held Monday evening. No committees have met since the last regular meeting, but some of the committees are scheduled to meet before the Council meetiny. There is but little business to come before the meeting, and the session bids fair to be a short one. Several rallies are schedulel in different parts of the city for that evening, and as some of the Councilmen desire to attend they will be in a hurry to adjourn. All of the standing committees have about cleaned their calendar, with the exception of the Finance Committee which still has many matters before them.

As Elihu Root says that 62,014 laws have been passed in this country in the last five years, it would seem hardly necessary to put our legislators to work by the piece in order to get more work done.

The men who kick the hardest about corruption in politics will not probably be able to go to the polls on Nov. 3, as they cannot afford to take their time away from business.

Some of the congressmen are returning home without having secured either public buildings, river and harbor money, or jobs for their constituents. Yet no movement to subject them to impeachment proceedings has so far been reported.

The brainy war strategists of Europe are sending out bomb dropping aeroplanes, and thereby stirring up the other side to fight about twice as hard and long.

THE SPELL BINDERS.

The spell-binders who have been nightly orating, all over the state in the interest of this or that candidate for state office, will be glad that the most active campaign is now entering its last hours. It has been a strenuous time for most of them, for it is no easy task to make three or four political speeches every night in the week and in as many different cities and towns. There is one advantage, however, some of the campaigns of years of the past, and that is now it is possible by the use of automobiles to cover more ground.

While the State spell-binders have been busy is it somewhat remarkable when one stops to think, of how much campaigning is being done in municipal affairs. Usually there is but little, in the line of municipal speaking until after the State election, but this year the campaigners started in early and for the past two weeks some of the candidates have been speaking in two and three wards every night, and they will keep at it until after the city primaries Nov. 10.

Then the candidates who succeed in carrying off the nomination will begin another round of campaigning. Will all be glad when the agony is over, and things settle down for another twelve months? Just ask them.

THE NEWCOMER IN POLITICS.

Every year, thousands of college and school graduates are educated to take an interest in politics. Under the leadership of spectacled and scholarly professors, they are ambitious to go down into the dusty political arena, and do battle with the Gogs and Magogs of public corrption.

After a few bouts with the aforesaid tough and battered old giants, the winning of the conflict does not look so easy.

Where political conventions are still held, the novice is tried out in the capacity of one of the minor delegates, on some office where the results are slated in advance. Under the primary system, he is sent out to some meeting in the outskirts, to arouse the slumbering voters to a true conception of the nation's peril. The managers thus learn if he will stand without hitching.

His first desire is to get a fair and comprehensive statement of the issues to the voters. He still has faith, once the issues are clearly made known, that all thinking men must see them as he sees them.

Among the political workers, he hears inquiries with bated breath as to when, where, and how far the candidate promises to "come across." There are ominous shakes of the head if a statesman fails to perceive his duty and do it. As to issues, well those are stock in trade, to get in on.

Nine out of ten young fellows, when brought thus in contract with low nims, quit in disgust, and forever remain aloof. But once in a while there comes along a man with a bigger point of view. He sees that while the money grabbers may control the little pickings, the large prizes rarely go twice in succession to that kind of man. They go to the one who is big enough, patient enough, tolerant enough, to see that in the long run frankness and sincerity pay in politics, just as they pay in business.

PUNISHED FOR FRIEND'S CRIME

Claim of Delaware Man Who Wants Citizenship Restored

LONG PROMINENT IN POLITICS

Admits Having Served Prison Term After Being Convicted of Manslaughter More Than Two Score Years Ago—Friend and Foe Unite to Aid Man With a Past

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 31.—Friends and even political opponents of ex-Fire Chief Hugh F. Sweeney joined in a movement to restore him to citizenship following Sweeney's admission in superior court that for forty-two years he has lived down the fact that he was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to six years at hard labor in 1872.

Sweeney has been active in politics for years. His right to citizenship never has been questioned. The first hint Sweeney had a "past" came when he answered a summons to the superior court on startling charges made by Republican opponents that Sweeney had been convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to six years, and that, therefore, he had no standing as a citizen.

Sweeney is now 65. When he appeared before Judge Rice he asked to make a statement before being questioned. Upon the court's acquiescence Sweeney quietly told his story. He said:

"Forty-two years ago I attended a picnic at Sea Breeze, N. J. There was a fight. A man was struck on the head and died. I was merely a spectator and innocent of the deed, but I was arrested, convicted and sentenced. For four years and nine months I toiled in the Trenton penitentiary. I got fifteen months off for good behavior.

"I knew the man who struck the blow for which I was being punished. He was my friend, Lewis Legg. He did not come forward to save me, but I am not and never have been sorry I made the sacrifice. I would not tell his name if he were not dead."

BODY FOUND BY SONS

New Bedford Woman Slain by Husband During a Quarrel

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 31.—Mrs. Cleophas Blanchard was found dead in the kitchen of her home, her throat cut with a razor. Overturned furniture showed that the woman had struggled desperately for her life.

The mysterious disappearance of her husband, aged 51, and a note written by him in which, the police say, jealousy of the woman was shown, has caused the authorities to notify the police of cities and towns all through New England to be on the watch for him.

The man has relatives in Taftville, Conn., but the police believe he is now on his way to Canada.

The woman's body was found by her sons, Alphonse and Dominick, when they arrived home from work. Both said their parents were quarrelling when they left home in the morning.

RESIGNS FROM MINT

Director Roberts Has Record of Most Distinguished Service

Washington, Oct. 31.—George E. Roberts of Fort Dodge, Ia., director of the mint, has resigned, to become effective when accepted by President Wilson.

Roberts is a Republican, but his achievements in the political field are of little importance compared to the record he has made for himself, not only as a practical banker, but as a student and authority on financial questions.

As director of the mint he has come to be recognized as probably the greatest authority in the United States on the production, distribution and movement of gold, the reserve basis upon which banking and credit are established.

"DRYS" ARE CONFIDENT

Expect to Win In Washington and Oregon and Are Hopeful In Ohio.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Headquarters of the Anti-Saloon League of America claim victory in three or four of the six states in which prohibition will be voted upon in next Tuesday's election. The six states are Arizona, California, Ohio, Oregon, Washington and Colorado.

The league feels fairly certain of victory in Oregon and Washington, and hopeful in Ohio, where the chief point of attack has been made.

Owes Over Half a Million

Boston, Oct. 31.—Jacob Tarplin, a real estate operator of this city, filed schedules of his liabilities and assets in the United States district court, revealing an indebtedness of $550,971.70 and assets of $313,010. Tarplin was petitioned into involuntary bankruptcy by unsecured creditors.

Alleged Assault Proves Fatal

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 31.—Frank B. McGarry, who, it is alleged, was pushed from the steps of a lodging house by John McSweeney, the proprietor, died as the result of a broken neck. McSweeney was held on a charge of manslaughter.

TILDEN

Ex-Mayor Stone, who is almost like a neighbor of many of those present, spoke briefly telling them of his long acquaintance with Mr. Tilden. Our candidate he said had been tried in one important office and he had proven true, and had been one of the most efficient officials, the office of City Treasurer ever had. If a man proved true in one office the indications are that he will prove true wherever he was put, and there was no question in his mind that if nominated and elected to the office of Mayor he would give the city one of the best administrations it ever had. He will be on the job early and late and will keep a careful watch over every department of the city. As City Treasurer he had an opportunity, afforded no other man to see where the small leaks were. It is the small leaks that sink the ship and you can depend upon it that if nominated and elected Henry F. Tilden will plug up those leaks.

It is all nonsense for any candidate, who has never had any experience with the conduct of city affairs to know it all. No one man can become familiar with the city business in any one year. It is all very well for one unfamiliar with City Hall affairs to say that he will do this or that thing but when he gets there he finds it a different proposition. What City Hall needs is a man who has had at least some experience with the interior workings of our government, and outside of the Mayor's office there is no better office in City Hall in which to obtain that experience than in the office of City Treasurer. Gentlemen you make no mistake in giving Mr. Tilden your support.

Mayor Whiton spoke briefly on the great need of a strong man in City Hall next year. He had always realized the importance of the office of Mayor, but it was not until the past few weeks, when he had been acting Mayor that he fully realized just what it called for. The man who takes the Mayor's office next year will have no picnic. It will be a hard year for any Mayor. Quincy next year needs a man of honesty and strong personality, and such a man he believed Mr. Tilden to be, and that is why he was advocating his nomination and election.

Mayor Whiton than paid his respects to Candidate Johnson. Mr. Johnson, said Mayor Whiton has taken me to task for voting for ex-Mayor Shea, and not the regular Republican candidate. Our lamented ex-Mayor was a non-partisan candidate and I voted for him and would again if possible.

However I have been looking up Mr. Johnson's record a little and I find that in the campaign of the year 1895 when Charles L. Hammond was the regular Republican candidate for Mayor, that Mr. Johnson's name appears at the head of the list of the Ward Two committee working for the interest of Charles F. Adams, 2d, the Democratic nominee.

Again I find in 1901 when the late Frederick L. Jones received the regular Republican nomination that our friend Mr. Johnson went back on his party and supported ex-Mayor Charles M. Bryant who was running as a Citizens Independent Nomination Paper candidates.

From Quincy Point the candidates and other speakers went to Norfolk Downs at the residence of Arthur H. Stowers on Lunt street, where they were greeted by over fifty of the residents of that immediate vicinity, the house being much too small too comfortably accommodate those who were present.

There was considerable enthusiasm and Mr. Tilden spoke along the same lines as at Quincy Point.

Before the meeting adjourned those present organized themselves into a rallying committee, and it was given out as their several avowed purpose to make a house-to-house campaign all through the Norfolk Downs and Wollaston Park district.

People are not lukewarm this year but everybody is thoroughly aroused and the caucuses will without doubt be better attended than ever before.

DEMOCRATS HOLD RALLIES

Attacks Senator Langelier and County Record

Sveral hundred voters attended the rallies held in this city Friday night in the interests of the candidates on the Democratic ticket. At St. Mary's hall there were 300, at Poland's hall in Atlantic there were about 450, and at Hibernian hall there were 125. Charles J. McGilvray, Edmund A. Shea and Michael Donahue were the presiding officers.

The speakers were Richard Olney, 2nd Representative Peter Tague of Charlestown, Senator James H. Kehoe, Hon. William H. O'Brien, Maj. Thomas J. Walsh, brother of Governor David I Walsh; Representative Michael T. Sullivan, Representative Chas. W. Proctor of Randolph who opposes Senator Langelier, Councilman Daniel Corcoran, candidate for representative, Edward J. Parker, John D. Smith Edward J. Fegan, Councilman James O'Dowd and William J. Sullivan, candidate for county commissioner.

Particular reference was made to the progress in legislation for workingmen in the state the past year and all pleaded for the election of a Democratic House of Representatives.

Perhaps the warmest attack ever made on Senator Langeller was that of Charles W. Proctor who criticised his attitude on the grade crossing bill.

Councilman Daniel Corcoran attacked the record of Representative Sandberg. He read a letter from the American Federation of Labor stating he (Corcoran) was the desired candidate, and also criticising the labor record of Representative Sandberg.

William J. Sullivan at Hibernian hall discussed county issues. He said he intended to win in his fight for the county commissionership. He made a short speech pointing out what should be remedied. He said the 79 prisoners in the Dedham House of Correction cost $22,913 annually against $20,987 for 126 prisoners at Salem. The individual cost at Dedham he said was $236.60 against $147.89 at Salem. It requires, he said, practically the same salaries to run these institutions but still there is a marked difference. In Dedham he said $10,880.24 was received from industries as compared with $1,580.86 at Salem and the cost of fuel for the former was $4,603.70 against $1,525.65 for the latter.

WOMAN'S CLUB HALLOWE'EN

Alpha Hall Prettily Decorated For Occasion

The Hallowe'en party of the Wollaston Woman's Club in Alpha hall Friday evening was one of the most brilliant society events of the year. The hall, transformed into a goblin palace where witches and ghosts run riot, had the appearance of a gorgeous stage setting during the moonlight dances.

The decorations commenced at the foot of the stairs, extended around the sides of the hall and ended in a curtain of crepe paper strips suspended from the top of the platform. The screen was made up of over 5000 strips and completely hid the orchestra engaged at the last moment when Pool'e orchestra, said to have been engaged, failed to appear.

The guests commenced to arrive about 8.30, and soon after the matrons, Mrs. Henry M. Faxon, Mrs. Eugene R. Sprague and Mrs. Charles M. Bryant were escorted to the corner. As the first couple were about to be presented, nine year old Fred Cheever, dressed as a ghost, leaped from the center of a giant paper pumpkin where he had been hidden and commenced to distribute the dance orders.

But no orchestra appeared and the committee in charge was obliged to scout the city. Finally the committee of men who offered its assistance found its way to the music store of Ted Johnson on Chestnut street. There the situation was explained but he said both his orchestras were engaged. The men appealed and finally he harkened and after a score of 25 telephone calls mustered enough musicians to complete an orchestra.

The affair was under the direction of Mrs. John O. Short who was assisted by the entertainment committee of the club.

A LOOK BACKWARD.

Editor Ledger:

I was deeply interested in the observance of the 275th anniversary of the First church in Quincy a few weeks ago and regretted the impossibility of attending the services. Some sixty years ago I joined the church and am wondering if any members at that time are living now. If there are I should like to know it.

I recall those early days when as a boy I used to stand on the stone steps and watch the arrival of prominent men. Often I have seen "Old Man Eloquent" President John Quincy Adams come up those steps. His family would ride in the coach but he usually walked. His namesake John Quincy Adams Field was one of the boys to stand on the steps with me.

Hon. Josiah Quincy the second mayor of Boston with his two queenly daughters used to come in their coach. Up to the time of his death at the age of 95 years, he and his family were constant attendants.

Sometimes during the summer the Hon. Charles Sumner used to visit the Adamses and attend church with Hon. and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams. Again Chief Justice George Tyler Bigelow and family were often in attendance sitting in the left hand gallery. Mrs. Bigelow's mother a very stately aristocratic looking lady was often with them and her son Charles Miller, who owned and lived on the large estate of which Miller Stile Inn was once a part; and where the present pastor Rev. A. L. Hudson now makes his home. Directly opposite lived Isaac Hall Adams and his sister Miss Elizabeth Adams, grandchildren of President John Adams. They were constant attendants at church. One seldom meets a more companionable, sociable and interesting woman than Miss Elizabeth Adams and her cousin Mrs. Charles Francis Adams. Both were much interested and constant attendants at the Fragment society meetings, the sewing circle of the church.

Charles Francis Adams was interested in the Sunday school as I well know for I was superintendent and often consulted with him. There was another helpful and earnest worker in the school and parish, Miss Carrie Beal, who was ever an intelligent and interested advisor.

I was always impressed with the dignified bearing of Adam Curtis, called the king of Franklin street, when he came into church and passed down the broad aisle to his pew. He always reminded me of Daniel Webster. Then there was Josiah Brigham, grandfather of James H. Stetson. He was president of the old stone bank. Many others I would like to mention but space and time forbids.

The Sabbath school in those days was held in the main body of the church as there was no chapel then.

The library was in the entry of the right gallery, and near the entrance to the left gallery two or three pews were reserved for the colored attendants.

In the early days the stone posts around the church were used as hitching posts, with a horse and carriage at nearly every one, the same people using the same post each Sunday year in and year out.

On my return from the South last spring, during my stay in Boston I attended services at First church and was pleased to note the large increase in attendance since my last visit some three years ago. The pastor Rev. A. L. Hudson is certainly doing a great work in building up the church. May he continue his good work and the old church prosper and be an uplift to the community in generations to come as in the past is the wish of a former attendant.

In SOCIETY

Mrs. Frederick S. Waite of Safford street returns today from Sarnia, Ontario, Canada, where she has been visiting her cousin Mrs. James Collyer since the first of the month.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Drew of 16 Hamden circle, Norfolk Downs are receiving congratulations upon the birth of daughter born October 11th.

* * *

Mrs. Edward H. Dewson, nee Maude Field, landed in New York Monday from Europe, coming from Switzerland by way of Holland. She had few unpleasant experiences. Although Mrs. Dewson has many friends among the Germans because of several years residence in Germany she feels that country is in the wrong and must be beaten by the Allies. After a few weeks with her family in New York she hopes to come to Quincy for a short visit to her father George H. Field.

* * *

Quincy friends have received cards announcing the engagement in Brockton of Miss Rosamond Grey Smith youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren B. Smith and Fred Harold Tolman, all of Brockton. Miss Smith is well known in Quincy, being a sister of Mrs. Lorenzo H. Gilson. Mr. Tolman is the owner of the Tolman Print of Brockton. Quincy friends are extending congratulations.

* * *

Miss Elizabeth M. Brewer who has been at Milford, N. H., for several weeks has been the guest for a few days of Miss Flora Underwood at Salem. She is leaving next week for Brooklyn, New York to visit Mrs. A. F. Whitney.

* * *

Mrs. Clarence Reed of Conant road received a telegram Thursday from Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada announcing the birth of twin daughters to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morrison, nee Beulah Reed of Atlantic.

The Atlantic Shakespeare Society met with Mrs. Charles L. Coe at her home on Atlantic street. The 3rd and 4th act of Pericle" was studied. Mrs. Theodore Parker was the chairman of the afternoon. Mrs. Walter A. Jackson read selections from "The Home and Haunts of Shakespeare."

A typical harvest supper was given by the Unity Circle of King's Daughters in the Union church, Friday evening, Oct. 23. Neither quantity or quality were lacking. After the supper John Gutterson formerly of Weymouth gave an organ recital that held the closest attention of the audience from 7.30 to 8 o'clock. Herbert C Curtis rendered two very pleasing vocal solos ,after which Eugene Murphy and Mrs. Fouche members of the church choir sang a duet. After the entertainment there was a sale of aprons and fancy articles and the evening passed very pleasantly.

DISTRICT COURT.

James W. Walsh and Bernard Murphy were arraigned for the larceny of ice cream at Holbrook. They were each ordered to pay $5 on account of costs and to make restitution in the sum of 75 cents each.

William J. O'Neil was arraigned for breaking and entering and larceny from the stores of Joyce Bros., and Payson-Mitchell Co., and was held for the grand jury.

TEACHERS CONVENTION.

The teachers of Norfolk County met in annual convention in Ford Hall, Boston, on Friday. William McAndrew, principal of the Washington Irving school of New York city He attacked prize awards saying it increased individualism rather than common good. James S. Perkins of the Coddington school was placed on the nominating committee to report at the business session held today.

Supt. Barbour was elected one of the councillors.

HELD FOR THE GRAND JURY

Alleged to Have Made Two Breaks Last Winter

William J. O'Neil, who was arrested two weeks ago by Capt. McKay and Inspector Goodhue, for breaking and entering the clothing store of Joyce Bros. and of Payson-Mitchell was given a hearing this morning in the district court before Judge Avery. The break at Joyce Bros. was on March 19, 1913, and that of Payson-Mitchell on Jan. 13, 1914.

The most damaging evidence against O'Neil was given by a young man whose right name is Frank Crawford, but who is known as James Casey among the underworld. He is an operator for the W. J. Burns detective agency and it was mainly through his efforts that the police were able to place O'Neil under arrest.

He testified that he was assigned to the case and that he met O'Neil and his chum Earle in a bar room in Boston. That he accompanied O'Neil at the latter's suggestion to Quincy one night on the 10.35 train. That O'Neil took him around through Temple street and thence to the jewelry store of C. F. Pettengill which he said he was intending to break. From here he took him down Granite street and pointed out the store of Joyce Bros., which he said they had pulled.

When asked how they got in, the detective was taken to the rear of the store where O'Neil said they backed an old team up to the building and then with a ladder climbed to the roof and gained entrance to the store through the skylight. The rope on which they lowered themselves to the store broke and Earle fell striking some of the fixtures causing a rupture which obliged him to go to the hospital. He also stated that there was some soft tar on the roof and this got on their feet.

It will be remembered that in reporting the Joyce Bros. break at the time the Daily Ledger stated that there were marks of tar left on some of the clothing.

Earle, the alleged chum of O'Neil is now in custody having been held for the grand jury by the Stoughton court for a break in Sharon.

According to the police O'Neil is a Roxbury boy, but of late has been ing his home on Nightingale avenue, Quincy.

Although represented by counsel O'Neil offered no defence and he was held for the grand jury on both complaints.

One of the peculiar things in connection with the visit of the detective Crawford, or Casey, to Quincy with O'Neil, was the fact that they in turn were trailed from Boston by two other operators of the Burns agency who would, aside from being handy in case Crawford got into a tight box, verify his testimony as to his visit to Quincy and what transpired on that visit.

Many people who have read about the arrest of one William J. O'Neil, for burglarizing the stores of Joyce Bros. and that of the Payson-Mitchell Co., have confounded him with William W. O'Neil, a well known Quincy young man. In justice to the latter however it should be stated that they are entirely different persons. William W. O'Neil who is getting considerable unwelcome notoriety over the affair has lived in Quincy all of his life and is now engaged in the real estate business in Boston, and is a very estimable young man.

William J. O'Neil, the alleged burglar, is a Roxbury man and has resided in Quincy but a short time, according to the best information which the police have been enabled to obtain of his history.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Quincy Well Represented at Conference

Among those present from Quincy on Friday at the Massachusetts conference on industrial development and trade extension at the Copley Plaza hotel were Councillor Charles W. Guy; H. G. Smith of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation; ex-Mayor Stone; John L. Hamilton, president of the board of trade, Lucien H. Thayer and the editor of the Daily Ledger.

Gov. Walsh was one of the speakers at the morning session, and Mayor Curley of Boston at the afternoon session. The statement of the Governor thatthere was too much politics in Quincy was applauded. He said there were three objects of government, one for public health, one for education of life, and one for providing opportunities to earn a livelihood.

The conference received some up-to-date reliable information from Dr. E. E. Pratt of the United States Department of Commerce relative to conditions in foreign countries, and their needs.

Mr. Filene made these definite suggestions: that the industries now employing only men be investigated to see if women cannot be employed in them in some capacity,and if not if industries cannot be located in the towns of the state where women may be employed; that investigations be conducted to see if men employed in seasonal work cannot be used in off seasons in some way; that study be made of industries that may be brought into the state for which Massachusetts can supply the raw materials through transportation or otherwise most cheaply; that as New England must face the loss of unskilled industries study should be given to the development of art and skill industries; that a commercial museum like that in Munich be established, and that the state free employment office be reorganized and enlarged into a juvenile labor exchange.

GETTING DESPERATE.

It is claimed that Congressional candidate Howard advised a meeting of workmen at South Braintree on Thursday afternoon to vote for the Democratic candidate if they couldn't vote for him. Friends of Col. Kincaide are expressing considerable resentment over the alleged remark. A gentleman who livs in Wollaston says he heard Howard make the statement.

It is only two months ago that Mr. Grossman of Grossman's Clothes Shop came to Quincy and started in the clothing business. He has made good and his good intentions have been carried out and today his reputation for square dealing has made the men of this town patronize him. His advertisement in today's Ledger is causing considerable good comment and surprise. Here is a chance to get the best $15 suit made, free. Are you lucky, see Grossman.

QUINCY HIGH VICTORY

Show Great Improvement in Game With Revere

Quincy High football team, showing a fine improvement over the work early in the season, trooped to the Merrymount oval Friday afternoon and defeated Revere High school 28 to 7. The Quincy team was in fine fettle, their strong attack being varied, and good for consistent ground gains. The defence at times was weak and resulted in Captain Brodbine of the visitors, supported by Horgan, playing the best of anyone in the game.

Hamlin made three touchdowns. In the first period he took the ball through the left side of the line on an entire line shift play. The second he carried over from the yard line where Larkin had been tackled after a pretty run from the centre of the field. His third came through pretty playing. Larkin scored in the last period when Crosscup intercepted a forward, giving Quincy the ball and on a long forward, Larkin made a perfect catch and carried it over, dodging five men.

Quincy had three periods to themselves but one, the second, really belonged to Revere. Brodbine and Horgan with the help of the line shift play carried the ball through the Qoincy yards for 41 consecutive yards, bringing the fine work to a finish, by Horgan taking the ball over on a 25 yard forward.

The third period was one of punts, both teams resorting to booting the ball. Here again Brodbine starred, one of his spirals going high into the air and drifting a distance of 55 yards, the longest ever made on the field.

Jepson did some unexpected work when he intercepted two forward passes at moments which would have been critical for his teammates. The rest of the team played to win and aside from the poor tackling during the entire second and part of the third period performed up to their standard. Foy recovered a blocked punt when possession meant considerable.

The use of the straight arm during the game resulted in the local boys getting the better end of the argument the Revere players calling for time out frequently during the last half.

notice as everybody has got to be busy.

Enthusiasm is contagious. I pride myself upon having plenty of it and will have considerable of the germs of it to spread around among apathetic employees.

One of the suporters of a candidate opposing me has taken it for granted that I am going down to City Hall to clean it out of every employee that has opposed me in this fight. That is a stupid interpretation of my remarks. Nothing is farther from my mind. It will not make one atom of difference to me. If a man is found to be efficient in his work he will be secure in his job, and no power will be able to uproot him, and it will not make a particle of difference whether he is a Republican, Democrat or a mugwump.

It is so obvious that there is a lack of organization and method in the operation of the various departments in our city government that to dilate upon it is a waste of time. All we have to do is to look at the condition of our sidewalks and streets and examine superficially the same loose way that other departments are conducted to determine that a business administration is badly needed.

Mr. Campbell then described the character of the big expositions that he conducts stating that he merely wanted to show that he had a broad experience which required considerable ability as an organizer, administrator and an executive.

Councilman Charles W. Bailey, who preceded the candidate, announced that he wasn't quitting City Hall, as reported, because he had grown disgusted. He stated that he couldn't give it the time that was required. Councilman Bailey gave a brief expose of the inside working of the city government. It was a clear, comprehensive view of a man who had seen the other side of Quincy's municipal problems and how ineffectually they were worked out.

His story of how things were done in City Hall was go interestingly told that when he pleaded that he was boring his listeners a great shout of "Go on, you're great" went up from the crowd.

After four years as a member of the Quincy City Council I feel that I am qualified in stating that we have a rare opportunity this year at the polls. We have the opoprtunity of electing a man who has had great experience in commercial lines; a man who has done big things and when he gets into the Mayor's chair will do things for Quincy.

From my observations from the inside at City Hall, I wouldn't say that there was any graft or corruption. It is merely inefficiency. Now we have a chance to put a man at the helm who will draw all the ends together, stop up the leaks and perfect a well organized municipalty. The sad part of it is that we can only elect him for one year at a time.

Edward E. Palmer, who is seeking the nomination as Councilman in Ward Six, urged that Mr. Campbell be elected, as he was a big man who was willing to sacrifice his time to do good for the city.

A. L. Stinson stated that not since Nathaniel Hawthorn had written his beautiful ballad, "The Merry Mount Maypole" had anyone done anything to give Quincy some dignified advertising. He said that with her great commercial possibilities and natural beauty that a man of the type of Chester I. Campbell would do much to develop the city by his methods of advertising.

DON'T IMPOSE ON YOUR NEWSPAPERS.

Political candidates who do not use the advertising columns, should not expect the newspapers to report in detail all their little rallies.

Advance publicity for entertainments, dances, campaigns etc., is advertising, and newspapers should be recompensed.

Don't send printed programs (printed out of town) to the Daily Ledger, just to get an advance notice. It is like waving a red rag in front of a bull.

We appreciate invitations to entertainments and gatherings, but free advertising should not be expected in advance even if a ticket is sent.

Be loyal to your friend, the newspaper, and see that it is given fair play.

IN QUANTITY AND QUALITY

Turkey an Uncertain Factor In the European Struggle

UNITED STATES INTERESTED

Greece and Italy May Be Drawn Into Fight Against Ottoman Empire, With Chances of Balkan States Becoming Mixed In Imbroglio—Turks Cannot Hope to Win

Washington, Oct. 31.—Turkey's entrance into the field of warlike operations, though not unexpected, has caused a sensation in official circles here because of the probable far-reaching effect of this action. Probably no one factor in the great European struggle is regarded so uncertain in quantity and quality as the Turkish empire.

The probability that by Turkey's act of war against Russia the Balkan states may be drawn into the vortex of the great conflict, thereby cutting off a vast quantity of food supplies, hich, it had been expected, would go to the maintenance of the northern European countries during the war, has brought home to the officials here a realization of the very close and intense interest of the United States in the latest development.

The result of Turkey's action, as viewed by the military experts here from a purely technical point of view, will be to embarrass Russia greatly at the outset.

Great Britain, Russia and France had made it plain to Turkey, it is understood, what the consequences of her entry might be. The Anglo-French fleet, which has been comparatively unoccupied in the Mediterranean, would bombard the ports of Asia Minor, Greece would probably join the allies against Turkey, and the Balkan states be drawn into the general imbroglio, with the prospect that Italy early might be found fighting Turkey as well.

That the conflict might extend to Egypt, Persia or Arabia, with the possibility of the Japanese fleet supporting operations of the allies, has been discussed here.

The Greek navy, with its two American-built battleships, formerly the Idaho and the Mississippi, has an equipment superior to the Turkish cruisers in armor and armament. The general opinion here is that at least in the beginning and for some time thereafter Turkey will be greatly circumscribed in her activities.

One of the uncertain elements in the political side of the problem is the effect upon the great Moslem population of India. It is pointed out, too, that there are probabilities that Egypt may be drawn in through her political and religious affiliations with Turkey, thus affecting British suzerainty over Egypt and the control of the Suez canal, a very necessary link in the British chain of communications between England and the great Indian empire.

From a purely military point of view, it is believed Russia would have little to fear from an attack by the Turkish army. It is regarded as certain that such action would doubtless be immediately followed by declaration of war against Turkey by several of the Balkan states, and the experience of the Ottoman government in the last conflict is held to have demonstrated the ability of Servia, Greece, Montenegro and Bulgaria to check a northern movement of the Turkish army, if not indeed to drive it across the straits into Asia Minor.

From a naval viewpoint Turkey cannot work much mischief, in the opinion of experts here.

Because of persistent rumors of possible anti-Christian uprisings as a result of general disturbances, Ambassador Morgenthau at one time advised that an American warship be present in Turkish waters.

The cruisers North Carolina and Tennessee, which were sent to Europe with gold for relief purposes, are now and probably will be maintained in the eastern Mediterranean.

President of Hayti Takes Refuge on Dutch Vessel at Port au Prince

Washington, Oct. 31.—President Zamor of Hayti has been obliged to quit Port au Prince and seek refuge on a Dutch vessel, according to a report to the state department. Officials interpret this to mean that the rebels are in complete control of Port au Prince.

Administration officials await with some anxiety official advices concerning the latest revolutionary uprising in the Haytian capital.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES

The Boston and Maine railroad stations at Greenland and Northampton, N. H., were entered and telephone and gum machines rifled.

Six-year-old Esther Dardof died as the result of falling over a banister at her home at Cambridge, Mass.

Margaret Grady, 15, was killed in the elevator in a Boston building where she was employed by a dressmaker.

Mrs. Annie C. Ottosen, 50, who lived alone at Boston, committed suicide with illuminating gas.

SULLIVAN WAS ALONE

Witness Saw Convict Walking In Yonkers Streets at Night

Ossining, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Michael J. Walsh of Yonkers, deputy comptroller, was called to testify before Stephen C. Baldwin, appointed to investigate charges that Warden McCormick, now suspended, allowed David A. Sullivan, the Brooklyn bank wrecker, unusual privileges and took him on automobile rides while he was serving a sentence in Sing Sing prison.

Walsh testified that he rode in Warden McCormick's automobile with the warden and with Sullivan acting as chauffeur to visit several polling places in Yonkers when the state primaries were being held on Sept. 28.

Sullivan was brought into the room and in rapid succession five witnesses identified him as the man they had seen at various times recently in Yonkers. One witness testified he had seen Sullivan walking about the streets of Yonkers at night on one occasion. Sullivan was alone, the witness said.

Coal Company Brings Action Against Eastern Steamship Line

Portland, Me., Oct. 31.—A receivership for the Eastern Steamship corporation was applied for in the United States district court here. The petitioner is the Berwind-White Coal company of Philadelphia, the holder of a supply claim amounting to $42,491.

The Eastern Steamship corporation was formed under the laws of Maine in 1911 as successor to the Eastern Steamship company, which had been in existence since 1901.

The company has a fleet of steamers operating from Boston to Portland, Rockland, Bangor, Bath, Augusta, Bar Harbor and Eastport, Me., St. John and intermediate landings.

LEE ALLOWED FREEDOM

Hospital Death Defendant Is Released In $1000 Bail

Boston, Oct. 31.—Henry Lee, the Pierce Farm attendant who faces another trial for manslaughter as a result of the death of Charles R. Brown, an insane patient, unless the district attorney's office drops the case, was allowed to leave jail.

Assistant District Attorney Lavelle moved for a reduction of bail from $10,000 to $1000 and agreed to allow Lieutenant Rooney of police headquarters be surety for the $1000.

Another Red Cross Appeal

Boston, Oct. 31.—The emergency committee of the American Red Cross society in Boston has made a new appeal for contributions to help European war sufferers. Contributions should be sent to Francis L. Higginson, Jr., treasurer, 44 State street, Boston.

NORTH WEYMOUTH

Edwin Stone, owner of the Bay View garage has been appointed driver of the new auto apparatus, due to arrive in North Weymouth today.

Several members and friends of Tent 32 D. of V. attended the annual roll call and turkey supper Thursday evening. D. P. I. Mrs. Anna Williams of Standish road was a special guest.

Seven year old John Tobin is suffering with an attack of rheumatism.

Mrs. Ozro Estes, Miss Ella Fisher, and Mrs. Harry Bailey were the committee to serve supper Wednesday for the Universalist Sewing circle. The usual business was transacted in the afternoon.

Mrs. John Taylor entertained the N. D. U. club at her home on Shaw street Tuesday. A dainty lunch was served.

Mrs. Ellen Kidder of Pearl street was in charge of the W. R. C. sale held Tuesday at G. A. R. hall. A tidy sum was realized from the sale of useful and fancy articles. Folk dancing by sixteen little tots was the star event of the evening's entertainment.

Rev. Charles Clark officiated at the funeral of Edith, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Leighton. The floral tributes were many, pieces being sent from her classmates and teachers.

Miss Cora Beard a popular Athens school teacher, has the sympathy of all in the loss of her mother Mrs. Alice J. Beard. Rev. Charles Clark conducted services at the late home on Pearl street, Monday.

The funeral of Job Chandler, who passed away early this week, was held at 10.30 Thursday morning, and the remains taken to Carver, his birthplace, where E. W. Pierce Post No. 8, of which he was a member, took charge of the body. Mr. Chandler enlisted at Plymouth August 14, 1862 as a private and was promoted to sergeant June 1864, and discharged the following September. The next day Sept. 13 he re-enlisted in Co. F., 1st Regt. Louisiana Cavalry as 2nd Lieut. He was discharged Dec. 18, 1865 at the close of the war. Mr. Chandler was nearly 77 years of age, and is survived by a son, Alton, and daughter, Mrs. Ida Farrington with whom he lived.

WOODWARD PARTY.

The senior and junior classes of the Woodward Institute held a very enjoyable Hallowe'en party Friday evening at the school hall. Hallowe'en decorations about the hall and adjoining rooms cast witch like look over the scene. It was a very lively party and Hallowe'en games and sports were indulged in until about 10.30. Light refreshments were served.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

QUINCY SQUARE

John E. Greene is to be the soloist at the Universalist church Sunday afternoon.

The Dorcas society is to give an entertainment and social in the vestry of the Universalist church, Tuesday evening. All interested in the church are invited to this social time. Miss S. Abbie Feltis has charge of the entertainment and Mrs. George F. Spooner the refrsehments.

The regular monthly meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery Association will be held Monday afternoon, (instead of the usual Tuesday) at half past two at the Women's clubhouse. The annual donation party for the nursery is to be held Wednesday at Bethany chapel.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will meet with Mrs. Tirrell, 49 Upland road, Friday, Nov. 6 at 3 P. M. Every woman interested in this important work is invited to attend.

The funeral of Mrs. Charles F. Pettengill was held Friday afternoon from her late residence on Revere road, and was largely attended by neighbors and friends. Rev. A. L. Hudson of the First Parish church officiated. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Burial was at Mt. Wollaston.

The re-organization of the bowling league of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, will be effected at a meeting of the bowlers in the club rooms on Monday evening. Officers will be chosen and arrangements made for the first rolloff to determine the captains and teams.

It is not generally know that our City of Presidents is also a city of poets. They will be discovered in the King's Daughters edition of the Quincy Daily Ledger, Nov. 11, 1914.

The pastor of Bethany Congregational church has arranged for a new series of lectures on "The Revelation of God in the lives of men." Sunday's lecture will be "A man for sale." Men are especially urged to invite their friends to this lecture.

QUINCY WOLLASTON

Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters is to meet Monday evening with Mrs. W. A. Mann of 84 Freeman street.

Walther men's class meets Sunday at 12.15 in the Wollaston Baptist church. The pastor will teach the lesson, subject "The arrest and trial of Jesus." Large chorus of men, interesting discussion's and a hearty welcome to all men.

Members of the Limited Three Club were guests of the Misses Pike at Melrose Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Emery of Billings street, Atlantic are moving to Fayette street, Wollaston, the first of November.

There will be no sale of tickets at the door for the John Kendrick Bangs lecture.

Tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock at Park and Downs Congregational church another lecture in the Series on "Great lessons from the," will be given.

The alarm from Box 154 at 5.40 Friday night was a false alarm. Chief Billings made a quick run to the box and immediately sounded the recall.

BAD ANGLE IN SIDEWALK

New Curbing on Hancock Street Should be Reset

Unless some change is made in the line of the sidewalk curbing on the east side of Hancock street, between the Daily Ledger office and Cottage avenue, there will be a bad angle left in the sidewalk curbing, if anything can be judged from present appearances. This morning the curbing on the new sidewalk line on this side of the street was set and where it meets the old curbing near the store occupied by Sanborn & Damon it forms an angle, the point of the angle projecting into the street. It is hard to understand just how the two curbings can be joined without leaving a bad job. Then, again, the wide sidewalk is not needed at this point, but a wider street is needed.

"Win-My-Chum"" week will be observed from Nov. 1 to Nov. 8 inclusive at the Hall Place M. E. church. Services every night. Gospel team will conduct service Friday, Saturday and Sunday, all day, November 6, 7 and 8. A cordial welcome for all Junior League Friday afternoon at 4 P. M.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

QUINCY ATLANTIC

At the revival meetings held at the Atlantic M. E. church the past week Revs. Stephens, Bailey, Parkinson, Potter and Chaffee preached soul inspiring sermons. Sixteen have united with the church, which has been greatly strengthened by the meetings. The revival meetings close Sunday night when Rev. Dr. Bronson will conduct the services.

The Atlantic Men's club met in Ward Six Patriotic room Tuesday and perfected a temporary organization with Welcome G. Young president; Henry F. Mosses vice president and Jesse I. Spear secretary. The work of the club is somewhat hampered by the number of members out working for the different candidates for the office of mayor. Mr. Young hopes to have plans for a building that can be purchased or leased for club work by the first of December.

Roscoe Keay and family, have moved from Atlantic street to Wollaston.

The Christian Endeavor social held in the vestry of Memorial church last week Friday evening, was a huge success. Games were enjoyed most of the evening and refreshments consisting of ice-cream and cake were served.

Rev. E. C. Pollard of the Atlantic Methodist church gives his popular illustrated lecture on the Yellowstone Park at the Methodist church in Walpole Wednesday evening, November 4 under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society.

Augustine Bombi, of 51 Hunt St. is at the Relief Hospital in Boston. He is believed to be suffering from concussion of the brain. Late Wednesday night he entered the poolroom at 15 Greene St., sat in a chair and apparently fell asleep immediately. An ambulance was summoned when he could not be awakened and took him to the hospital. His name was placed on the dangerous list.

One of the largest and best Hallowe'en parties ever held in Atlantic, was enjoyed in the large barn of William L. Buckley by the Tead club of Memorial Church Sunday School Friday evening. The barn was decorated with autumn leaves and red lights. Games were played in which souvenirs were awarded to Miss Winnifred Pratt and William MacMahon. Refreshments, consisting of coffee, gingerbread, doughtnuts, and candy were served. There were twenty-five couples present from Atlantic, Quincy, Wollaston, Dorchester, Braintree and Weymouth. Mrs. Edwin A. Tead and Mrs. Edwin J. Waterhouse chaperoned the party.

The two Memorial Church Sunday School classes under Miss Alice Waterhouse and Miss Ruth Ferguson held a Hallowe'en party in the vestry of the church on Friday evening. The affair was in the form of a ghost party and twenty of the girls came as ghosts; two came as twin pumpkins. The evening was enjoyed in playing games, and refreshments were served.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mrs. Ellen McDevitt and family wish to thank their many friends for the sympathy and expressions of love given them in their recent bereavement.

West Quincy. 31-1t

QUINCY WEST

Upwards of a score of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Peterson, a popular couple of this city, invaded their home at 40 Station street on Friday evening and tendered them a reception on the occasion of the fifth wedding anniversary. The affair was a complete surprise and was arranged by friends. The arrival was signalled by cheers and the tooting of horns, and when Mr. Peterson opened the door he was beseiged by those in the party. All carried handsome and useful presents. The programme of the evening was an impromptu one, those present carrying out each others wishes. Refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson since their marriage have made their home in West Quincy. Mrs. Peterson before marriage was Ida Samuelson of Cranch street.

The funeral of Mayo P. Fuller, a pioneer granite manufacturer of this city, took place Friday afternoon from his home at 154 Crescent street. Rev. P. S. Neldon of the Hall Place M. E. church officiated at the services and burial was in the Milton cemetery.

QUINCY POINT

Through the efforts of Dock and Water Front Commissioner Frank Fersenden Crane, the large rock in channel near the Fore River bridge is to be removed by the Directors of the Port of Boston. This rock has long been a menace to shipping, and captains will be glad to learn that Commodore Crane has succeeded in having it removed.

Friends of Miss Marjorie Welch are pleased to learn that she is very much improved at the Quincy City Hospital.

FOR CONGRESS KINCAIDE

A SURE WINNER

That means that for the next two years the 14th district will be ably represented in Washington by an active, successful business man—a man who will take off his coat and work for better business and living conditions for the district. It means more work at Fore River, more work in the shoe shops, more trade in the stores.
